150. Another (m) Arabick Hiſtorian gives us a long Account of the Kings of the Perſians about that Time. This is an Argument, that the Feathers of the Aſſyrian Monarchy were alſo pluck'd from it on that Side, which ſtill made it ſo much the weaker. He tells us, that Aphridoun was made King of the Perſians about the Time of the Death of Terah, the Father of Abraham, and in the four hundredth Year of the Monarchy of Nimrod. Now as Terah really (n) died, when Abraham receiv'd the Promiſe in the Year of the World 2083, the ſubſtracting of 400 Years from thence will bring it to the Year 1683, which is but 15 Years after the Flood. To reconcile this Account, we muſt conſider, that this Author makes Terah to live (o) 265 Years, whereas the Scripture plainly ſaith, that he liv'd only 205 Years: So that he puts his Death 60 Years later. Secondly, the Arabians in their Chronology follow the Septuagint, and not the Hebrew Bible. Now the Hebrew Bible ſaith, (p) that Nahor was twenty nine Years of Age at the Birth of Terah, but the Septuagint ſaith, that he was 179 Years old at that Time. And conſequently, according to this Reckoning, the Monarchy of Nimrod began when Nahor was 44 Years of Age. The Account is thus:

From the Birth of Nahor to the Birth of Terah	179
Terah's Age at his Death	265
Total is	444
Duration of the Aſſyrian Monarchy ſubſtract.	400
The Age of Nahor	44

Which according to the Hebrew Account was the Year of the World 1894, and differs but ſeven Years from the Time where it is really plac'd.

Aphridoun reigns 95 Years, and dies at 140 Years old (q).
Shaharnaz, his Son, ſucceeds him, and reigns 93 Years (r).
Aſphidbaz, his Son, ſucceeds him, and reigns 71 Years (s).
Ruſtan, his Brother, ſucceeds him, and reigns 65 Years (t).
Waſhliman ſucceeds him, and reigns 77 Years (u).

In which Catalogue it is obſervable, that the Years of their Lives and of their Reigns do well agree with the Lives of the Patriarchs their Contemporaries, eſpecially if we only ſuppoſe, that they began to reign, when they were of a mature and an active Age.

151. Tho' Joktan, (x) of the fourth Generation from Shem, had formerly brought his numerous Family into Arabia, and the Arabians generally ſay, that Joktan founded that King- Anno Mundi 2470.

dom; yet we do not find, that they had a King over them till now. However they now (y) take their Advantage, and (z) pluck off more of the Feathers from the Chaldean Monarchy; ſo that having conquer'd them, they now ſet up a King of their own call'd Mardocentes, who reign'd 45 Years. Our (a) learned Primate ſuppoſes him to have been call'd Merodach, who was afterward accounted (b) as a GOD among the Babylonians, from whom alſo their Kings Merodach-baladan and Evil-merodach took their Names. This happen'd within fifty Years of the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, and was a particular Providence of GOD to weaken the Power of the Babyloniſh Monarchy, ſo that neither Kingdom was in a Condition to attack them in the Wilderneſs. Our learned (c) Countryman Dr. Pocock reckons 22 of theſe Kings until the Time of the Queen of Sheba, who came to hear the Wiſdom of Solomon: and as that was 550 Years after; ſo one with another each of them might reign about five and twenty Years. And therefore it is probable, that the Arabians might miſtake, who report, that Yaarab, who was their firſt King, was the immediate Son of Joktan; and that they take no notice of all the intermediate Space, only to raiſe the Antiquities of their Nation as high as poſſible.

152. Soon after the Death of Joſeph, a Misfortune befel the Poſterity of Ephraim. He muſt at that Time be above ſeventy Years of Age, and had a numerous Family, of whom there are nineteen Sons and a Daughter reckon'd up in (d) the ſacred Scriptures. The Text ſaith, (e) that the men of Gath ſlew them, becauſe they came down to take away their battle. The learned Dr. Lightfoot (f) ſuppoſes the Men of Gath to have been the Plunderers. But others (among whom is the (g) Author of the Jewiſh Targum) more juſtly lay the Blame on the Poſterity of Ephraim. The Scripture ſeems to me to determine the Caſe, which ſaith, that the men of Gath, who were born in the land, where the Battle happen'd, ſlew them. Had the Battle been in Egypt, the Men of Gath muſt have been the Invaders; but as Gath was in the Land of Canaan, and the Battle there, the Ephraimites were the firſt Aggreſſors. The Jews think, that (h) they miſtook their Computation of the End of the Years, in which they were to be Slaves in Egypt, and imagining them to be near expir'd, made an Inroad into the Land of Canaan to take Poſſeſſion of it before the Time. But as they liv'd in that Part of Goſhen, which border'd upon the Land of Canaan, and applied themſelves to Paſturage; ſo it might rather proceed from a Deſire of Prey and Spoil, which they thought they might lawfully get from thoſe, whoſe Country they were to poſſeſs: And they preſum'd the more to make this Attempt, becauſe they were valiant Men, and proud of the great Power and Authority, which their Grandfather Joſeph had in Egypt. And it is probable, that theſe Philiſtines had formerly infeſted them in the Land of Goſhen, which provok'd theſe Sons of Ephraim to break into their Country, and make Repriſals upon their Cattle. Ephraim their Father on this ſad Occaſion mourneth for them many Days; and the more, becauſe he might think, that it would fruſtrate the Prophecy of Jacob concerning his being more fruitful than his Brother. However he ſoon after had another Son, whom he call'd Beriah, that is, In an ill State, becauſe it went ill with his Houſe at that Time.

153. But the moſt remarkable Occurrence in this Epocha is that of Job, which takes up a whole Book in the ſacred Story. In the Account hereof, there are two things to be conſider'd, viz. the Place where, and the Time when he liv'd. The Place where he liv'd is generally ſuppos'd to be Idumæa; becauſe we meet with a Perſon (i) call'd Uz among the Sons of Eſau, from whom (k) a Part of Idumæa was antiently call'd, The land of Uz. We meet alſo with (l) Eliphaz the Son of Eſau, and (m) Teman his Son, and therefore it is probable that Eliphaz the Temanite the Friend of Job, might be the Son of this Teman, and Grandſon of the other Eliphaz; and therefore many think, that Job might be (n) Jobab, one of the Kings that reign'd in the Land of Edom. But in anſwer to all this, it may be conſider'd, that there is another (o) Uz the Son of Nahor, (p) Abraham's Brother, who married (q) Milcah of the ſame Family, from (r) which Family Iſaac and Jacob took Wives by the Direction of their Parents, and conſequently moſt likely to be a Family, in which Religion might be kept up in that Purity, as we find it to be in Job. As to the Land of Uz, (s) the Septuagint calls it Auſitis, but never calls (t) that Uz in the Land of Edom by this Name. Nahor liv'd at Haran on the South of Euphrates, and no doubt his Son might live with him, and his Family give a Name to this Country. And we find in Ptolomy a People call'd Aiſi- tæ, which the learned Bochart (u) ſuppoſes ſhould be written Auſitæ, who extended themſelves from the River Euphrates, ſouthward into Arabia Deſerta, and here both he, and Biſhop Patrick (*) our excellent Commentator, ſuppoſes Job to have been born. Beſides, Job is ſaid (x) to be one of the greateſt of all the men of the eaſt. Now the Land of Uz in Idumæa can in no Reſpect be call'd the eaſt. It lay almoſt north from Egypt, and ſouth from Canaan, and ſouthweſt from the Country of Midian, where Jethro the Father-in-Law of Moſes liv'd. But the ſouth Part of the Country of Auſitis or Uz lay not only eaſt from Canaan, but eaſtward from all the Countries in which the Iſraelites travell'd, whilſt they were in the Wilderneſs. As for the Name of Eliphaz, it is not impoſſible, but two Men in different Countries might have the ſame Name, and then Eliphaz the Friend of Job might not be the Son of Eſau from Teman, but the Son of Iſhmael from (y) Tema, whom Abraham (z) in his Lifetime ſent eaſtward to inhabit the eaſt Country, and where we find them in the neighbourhood of Uz. In theſe Parts it is probable, that Bildad (a) the Shuhite, or (b) Son of Abraham from Shuah by Keturah, might live, who was alſo (c) ſent thither with the reſt of his Brethren. And as (d) Buz was the Brother of Uz; ſo Elihu (e) the Buzite being of that Family might well live in thoſe Parts, eſpecially ſince he ſeems to be of a religious Family, the Son of Barachel, that is, He bleſſeth GOD, or GOD bleſſeth. Beſides, this Elihu was of (f) the Kindred of Ram or Aram, that is, a Syrian, as Laban (g) was alſo call'd, who dwelt with his Anceſtors in (h) Padan Aram, or the Country of Aram. To this may be added, that (i) the Sabeans, who took away Job's Oxen, and (k) the Chaldeans, who took away his Cattle, were near Neighbours to this Part of the Country of Uz the Son of Nahor, but lay ſo remote from Uz in Idumæa, that they could not make an Excurſion thither. It is allow'd alſo that Job ſpoke the Arabick Language in Perfection, whence he is call'd, The Divine of the Arabians, and the Book which goes under his Name is full of Arabick Words and Phraſes, and we may more rationally expect this Language to be ſpoken in Arabia it ſelf than in Idumæa. And therefore there is little Reaſon to think, that Moſes would call him Job in one Place, and Jobab in another, where the Difference of Words is not only evident in every Tranſlation, but in (l) the Hebrew Language they do not begin with the ſame Letter.

154. As for the Time when Job labour'd under his ſevere Afflictions, it is impoſſible abſolutely to fix it. I have plac'd his Death in the Year before the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, and conſequently (m) his Troubles to be in the hundred and forty firſt Year before it, or in the 289th Year after the Promiſe; ſo that his Death about this Time might make his Story to be more freſh in the Memory of the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs. His Years as well as his Subſtance are ſuppos'd to be doubled, and that (n) the Hebrew Phraſe doth plainly intimate the ſame. And if ſo, then as (o) he liv'd an hundred and forty years after his Troubles; ſo he muſt be ſeventy years old, when his Troubles began, and conſequently born in the 219th Year after the Promiſe, or four Years after Jacob's Going down into Egypt: He died (p) at 210 Years of Age, the longeſt Liver born ſince Terah, whereas (q) a leſs Age was very old in the Time of the Patriarchs. Since this, in the Time of Moſes, (r) the Life of Man was ſhorten'd, to what it is in the preſent Age, and we read not of any one in Scripture born afterward, who liv'd an hundred and forty Years, and (s) but one who exceeded an hundred. It is evident, that Job was of a conſiderable Age when his Troubles happen'd, becauſe (t) he had ſeven ſons and three daughters, who (u) had Houſes to dwell in at that Time. It is plain, that theſe things happen'd before the Setting up of the Arabian Monarchy, and when (x) the Chaldean Monarchy was eſtabliſh'd in theſe Parts, and had extended its Conqueſt near to the Land of Uz, and when (y) they and the Sabeans and others plunder'd their Neighbours; and this in all Probability occaſion'd the Revolt of the Arabians. Such Practices were common in (z) the Time of Ephraim the Son of Joſeph, ſince ſome of his Sons (whom (a) Joſeph liv'd to ſee) were ſlain by the Men of Gath upon the Account of their Cattle. That Job's Misfortunes happen'd before the Time of Moſes is evident, Firſt, becauſe (b) he, and (c) his three Friends, being the Fathers of their Families, offer'd Sacrifices as Prieſts for themſelves and their Families, which (d) was the Antemoſaical Method. Secondly, Job liv'd in the Middle of Arabia Deſerta, (e) among the Children of the Eaſt, and he alſo liv'd in a Time, when Religion flouriſh'd there, as appears by the Diſcourſe of himſelf and all his Acquaintance, which was ſoon loſt in that Country, as lying ſo near to Babylon. Thirdly, The Land of (f) Uz is ſuppos'd to take its Name from (g) Uz the Son of Nahor, who was Brother to Abraham, and lying among the reſt of their Brethren, and the Sons of Abraham, the Name might be ſoon loſt; and yet Job liv'd, when it retain'd its firſt Name. Fourthly, Eliphaz the Temanite may be ſuppos'd to have come from (h) Tema the Son of Iſhmael, from whoſe Name (i) the Land which he poſſeſs'd was afterward call'd. Bildad the Shuhite is (k) ſuppos'd to be deſcended from Shuah the Son of Abraham by Keturah, whilſt the Name of Shuah continu'd freſh in Memory. Elihu the (l) Buzite was probably deſcended from (m) Buz, the Son of Abraham's Brother, whoſe Name was ſoon extinct. Laſtly, The Matter contain'd in the Diſcourſe between Job and his Friends may help us to fix the Time. Zophar alludes to (n) Iſhmael's ſavage Way of Living, as it was (o) propheſied of him. Others ſpeak (p) more plainly of the Creation of the World, and (q) of Man, and of (r) Adam's Hiding himſelf after the Fall. They alſo ſpeak of (s) the Flood, of (t) Drying up of the Waters, with the Promiſe (u) that they ſhould return no more to deſtroy the World. Of (x) the Overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah, and (y) the Death of the firſt Tyrants in the Chaldean or Aſſyrian, and perhaps in the Perſian Monarchy. They ſpeak of (z) the Dwelling in Tents and Tabernacles, as it was the (a) Cuſtom of the Patriarchs Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and of (b) the Law being deliver'd by Revelation from GOD, as the only Way whereby they knew his Will. And in the whole Book there is not the leaſt Hint of the Jewiſh Religion, of the Law, or of the Prophets, of the Troubles of the Iſraelites in Egypt, or of their Wandering in the Wilderneſs, when the Mention thereof would have been ſo much to their Purpoſe, and they could not but have heard of it, had they liv'd either then or ſince, becauſe (c) their Neighbours traded into Egypt, and they were well acquainted with (d) Jordan and the Parts adjacent. Beſides, when Job vindicates his Innocency, he ſpeaks only of the Worſhipping of the (e) Sun and Moon, the firſt Method whereby they deny'd the true GOD that is above, and fell from his Service. But he ſaith not a Word of Idolatry, tho' (f) it was the conſtant Abomination of the Canaanites, and (g) of the Egyptians, and other Nations near them in the Time of Moſes. As therefore the Troubles of Job could not be much more or leſs than an hundred and forty Years before the Delivery of the Iſraelites out of Egypt; ſo they muſt be over before their extreme Servitude began, ſince Joſeph died but 144 Years before their Deliverance, and (h) their Bondage did not begin until a King reign'd, who knew not Joſeph, and the (i) Decree to deſtroy the Infants took Place but immediately before the Birth of Moſes, who (k) was but eighty Years old, when he was the Inſtrument to deliver them. Anno Mundi 2369.

155. It is probable, that when Moſes kept the Flock of Jethro the Prieſt of Midian, he might meet with this Book of Job written in Arabick Verſe, the Language of that Country, which he tranſlated into Hebrew, and added (l) the Hiſtorical Part, from what he had heard of the Story, to teach the Iſraelites Patience by ſo eminent an Example. The (m) poetical Part of the Book ſeems to have been penn'd by Elihu one of the Speakers in it, as may appear from theſe two Reaſons: Firſt, becauſe (n) when Job's Friends, who came to lament with him, and to comfort him, are number'd by Name, Elihu is not nam'd among the Number, becauſe he himſelf was the Hiſtorian and Penman, who gave this Account; and therefore he nam'd not himſelf, when he nam'd the reſt. And as he probably liv'd near, ſo he could know more exactly the Certainty of what he wrote. And ſecondly, becauſe he ſeems to (o) ſpeak of himſelf as of the Hiſtorian, They were amazed, they anſwered no more, they left off ſpeaking; when I had waited, for they ſpake not but ſtood ſtill, and anſwered no more; I ſaid, I will anſwer alſo, I alſo will ſhew my opinion. Its being written originally in Arabick is the Reaſon, that the Style is not like to the reſt of the Books of Moſes, nor indeed to any other Parts of the Old Teſta- ment, but more conciſe and obſcure, and that there are (p) ſuch a vaſt Number of Arabick Words and Phraſes to be found in it. Neither is it ſtrange, that the Language was not more alter'd from the Time of Job to the Time of Mahomet, it being an inland Country, ſubject to little Commerce, fully peopled, not capable to receive any new Inhabitants, and ſituated among other Languages of the greateſt Affinity to it. And tho' our European Languages have been vaſtly alter'd in a few Centuries; yet it was not ſo in theſe Parts. The Greek remain'd the ſame from the Time of Homer to the Time of St. Chryſoſtom. The Hebrew remain'd the ſame from the Time of Moſes to the Time of Malachi. And more particularly the Chaldean Language remain'd the ſame from the Time of (q) Jacob to the Date of the Babyloniſh Talmud.

156. There are ſome, who think, that the Troubles of Job laſted ſeven Years, and others, that they laſted but one; but it is not probable that they laſted ſo long. The News of the Misfortunes which attended his Goods and Family, came (r) immediately one after the other, and we cannot ſuppoſe a long Space before (s) he was afflicted in his Body. His three Friends ſeem to have been his near Neighbours, and (t) they came to viſit him, as ſoon as they heard of the ill News, which uſually flees apace. When they ſaw his Miſery, they (u) ſat with him ſeven Days in Silence. After this they enter'd into Diſcourſe with him, and at the End of this Diſcourſe, which could not well laſt above another Week, GOD heal'd his Sores, before (x) his three Friends were parted from him, who, we may ſuppoſe, were Men of great Authority in the Country, and had Buſineſs of their own to call them home, and therefore would not ſtay longer on ſo melancholy an Occaſion, after they had been tired with Arguing, and (as they thought) to little Purpoſe. And therefore it is probable, that all his Afflictions did not laſt above a Month: So long might be neceſſary to try his exemplary Patience, and ſhew, that GOD, who (y) doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men, would not ſuffer ſo faithful a Servant to be tormented much longer.

157. Job's three Friends and Elihu ſeem to be Men of great Piety and Knowledge. They all ſpeak with the utmoſt Veneration of GOD and his Attributes, and advance many noble and uſeful Truths, as Occaſion offers; ſo that their only Miſtake was in the Application of them. They concluded that all Puniſhments in this World were for Sin; and therefore as Job was the greateſt of Sufferers, ſo he muſt have been the greateſt of Sinners. Job's own Conſcience did not accuſe him of any ill Practice, and therefore he vindicates his own Innocency, which occaſion'd many ſharp Speeches and Anſwers between him and them. When he had (z) loſt his Goods and his Children, and four Meſſengers came immediately after one another to acquaint him with the ill News, he bore it patiently, and bleſſed GOD for the Proſperity which he had formerly enjoy'd. When he was ſmitten (a) with ſore Boils, he was ſubmiſſive for ſeven Days, from the Time that his three Friends came to viſit him. His Wife in the mean Time (b) perſuades him to lay aſide all Manner of Religion, Doſt thou ſtill (ſaith ſhe) retain thine integrity? And adds, as we tranſlate it, Curſe GOD, and die. That is, Provoke him by the moſt flagrant Impieties to cut thee off. The Hebrew Word having a contrary Signification hath been alſo render'd by ſome, Bleſs GOD and die; and then it is an Ironical Reflecting on his former Expreſſion, (c) The LORD gave, and the LORD hath taken away; bleſſed be the name of the LORD. And the Meaning is this, Do as you did before, if you can, and ſee what will be the End of it. This he ſeverely (d) reprov'd, and piouſly repreſented to her, that the more Good we have receiv'd from GOD, the leſs Cauſe we have to complain, when we ſuffer any Evil. And for theſe Reaſons St. James ſaith, (e) Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have ſeen the end of the LORD; that the LORD is very pitiful and of tender mercy. At the End of theſe laſt ſeven Days, his Patience (*) was tired out, and then he bitterly curſes the Day that he was born, and in ſome Diſcourſes with his Friends is ſo outragious, as to (f) wiſh that he could come and plead before GOD himſelf, to ask him the Reaſon of ſuch Afflictions, declaring that in ſuch a Caſe he would vindicate his own Innocency, order his Cauſe before him, and fill his Mouth with Arguments for this Purpoſe. But when GOD in Reality appears to him, he is ſo far from juſtifying his Conduct, that he only ſaith, (g) Behold, I am vile, what ſhall I anſwer thee? I will lay my hand upon my mouth. Once have I ſpoken, but I will not anſwer: yea, twice, but I will proceed no farther. And,

(b) I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye ſeeth thee. Wherefore I abhor my ſelf, and repent in duſt and aſhes. In the (i) Concluſion GOD vindicates Job in all that he ſaid; he doth not blame Elihu, but ſeverely reproves his three Friends, for not ſpeaking of him the thing that was right. Job's Innocency can be vindicated by conſidering, that GOD winks at, and takes no Notice of the Failings, which we are guilty of in deep Afflictions: (k) He knoweth whereof we are made, and remembers how weak and frail we are, and what ſtrong Temptations there are to ſuch Failings at ſuch Times. And ſecondly, let our Sins be ever ſo great; yet when we humble our ſelves for them, and repent of them, GOD pardons them all, and looks upon them, as if they had never been committed. Eliphaz, tho' he was juſtly provok'd at Job's Curſing the Day of his Birth, and his impatient Deſire of Death, only to be eas'd of his Anguiſh; yet he was under a Miſtake in his Diſcourſe. He thought, that as Afflictions do not come by Chance, but by the Providence of GOD; ſo they are (l) only ſent for the Sins of Men: And therefore without Doubt Job was a very great Offender, which was the Cauſe that he was handled in this Manner; tho' in Concluſion he (m) owns, that all the Ways, whereby we deſerve Puniſhment, do not appear to Man. This is contrary to that great Law ſince reveal'd, (n) Judge not, that ye be not judged; and ſpeaks of GOD, as if he had but one Deſign in all his Afflictions. Bildad goes into the ſame Opinion; but adds, that (o) the Evils which Job endured here, ſhould, if he prov'd innocent, be chang'd into good things (as they really were) and in the End be highly ſerviceable to him in the other World, and be recompenſed there. This Doctrine, apply'd in this Manner, ſavour'd too much of Merit, which was afterward the Error of the Jews, and is the ſame at this Time in the Church of Rome. Zophar ſeems to advance another Notion, which was, (p) That GOD acts according to his own Pleaſure, and that we are not to ſearch for any Cauſe of his Actions except his own Will; nor to ask, Why he doth this, and not that? So that we are not to ſeek the Way of Equity, and the Decree of Wiſdom in his Doings; for it neceſſarily belongs to his Eſſence, that he may do what he will; and our Underſtanding is too ſhallow to comprehend the Secrets of his Wiſdom, whoſe Right and Property it is, that he may do according to his own Pleaſure. This was wrong, becauſe it was not qualified with this Expreſſion, That tho' GOD may do what he will; yet he only doth that which is juſt in it ſelf, and good for his Servants. Elihu, tho' he (q) blames Job as a Sinner like Eliphaz, and (r) carps at his former Words taken in the worſt Senſe; yet he was not reprov'd, becauſe his Advice to Job was good, which was, (*) to humble himſelf before GOD: For tho' he might be juſt in the Sight of the World, and in his own Conſcience; yet, (as (s) Bildad obſerv'd before, and (t) David ſince) no fleſh could be juſtified in the ſight of GOD. And when Job had taken (u) this Advice, GOD was appeas'd, and the Affliction remov'd. At the Healing of his Sores, GOD doubled to him all that he had before. Before he had (x) ſeven thouſand Sheep, now (y) he hath fourteen. Before he had three thouſand Camels, now he hath ſix. Before he had five hundred Yoak of Oxen, and five hundred She-Aſſes, and now he hath a thouſand of each. And as (z) he liv'd an hundred and forty Years after this; ſo it is probable, that he was ſeventy Years old when it began, and two hundred and ten when he died. His Wife (a) alſo became very fruitful, and brought him as many Children as (b) he had loſt; that is ſeven Sons and three Daughters. And to preſerve the Memory of ſo marvellous a Deliverance, and of which there were many living Monuments, he call'd the Name of the firſt Jemima, that is, the Day, becauſe of the Felicity in which he now ſhone, after the ſad Night of Affliction in which he had lain. He call'd the ſecond Kezia, that is, A Spice of an excellent Smell, becauſe GOD had heal'd his ſtinking Ulcers, which made even (c) his Wife refuſe to come near him. And the laſt he call'd Kerenhappuch, which the Septuagint calls The Horn of Amalthæa, and is in Hebrew, The Horn of Plenty, to ſhew the wonderful Increaſe of his Subſtance. So that the whole Scope of the Book is to teach us, that the Providence of GOD orders all things; that the Devil can do us no Harm, but when, and in ſuch a Manner, and as long as GOD gives Leave; that GOD hath ſeveral Deſigns in ſending Afflictions upon us, as particularly for Trial of our Faith, Patience and other Graces, and if we behave our ſelves well under them, he will in his due Time give us a happy Deliverance out of all. And that the Preſerving a good Conſcience in Time of Proſperity, is the beſt Method to enable us to bear Adverſity as we ought, and to cauſe GOD to be our Friend in the midſt of all. So that ſuch an Example, and ſuch Doctrines as theſe, were of excellent Uſe to the Iſraelites, whilſt they travell'd in the Wilderneſs.

158. We cannot well return from the Land of Uz into Egypt, but we muſt take the Country of Edom in our Way, which we left govern'd by Saul of Rehoboth at that Time. He (d) was ſucceeded by Baal-hanan the Son of Achbor, and at his Death (e) Hadar, who was the laſt King of that Country, reign'd in his ſtead. During this Time the Country was call'd, The Country of Seir, from the People who poſſeſs'd it. In the Samaritan Verſion (f) it is call'd Gablah, in Jonathan's Targum Gebal, and in Joſephus Gobolitis, which Words, being deriv'd from גבול Geboul, ſignifying a Border, ſhew us, that it lay as the Boundary of the Land of Canaan on the eaſtern and ſouthern Parts thereof. Eſau and his Poſterity had now no Share in the Government, which is the Reaſon, that neither he nor (g) his Sons Eliphaz and Revel are ever call'd Dukes, tho' the ſucceeding Generations have that Title given them by Moſes, they being dead before the Monarchy of theſe eight Kings were diſſolv'd, out of whoſe Reigns the Ariſtocracy under the Dukes began. During this Time, Eſau and his Poſterity dwelt in a (h) Part of this Country, which was call'd from him, The Field of Edom, and there they employ'd their Time in Feeding Cattle, as Jacob did in Canaan, and his Poſterity at firſt in Egypt; ſo that they dwelt as mere Sojourners in the Land. There is no Account, that Eſau or his Succeſſors as yet made the leaſt Diſturbance in Seir. And tho' he had 400 Men with him, when he met Jacob; yet it was not a Quarter Part more than his Grandfather Abraham had not long after his Entry into Canaan, who made no Conqueſt of the Canaanites, but liv'd among them by Permiſſion. However the two potent Families of Eſau and Seir, being link'd together by Intermarriages, agree to hinder the Election of another King. For upon the Review of the Succeſſion it appears, that no Son or near Kinſman came next to the preceding Monarch, but ſucceeded either by Election or a forcible Entry upon the Government. Thus they diſſolve the Government in the Vacancy, and alter it from a Monarchy to an Ariſtocracy, conſiſting of one and twenty Dukes, ſeven of (i) Seir's Race, and (k) fourteen of Eſau's; and theſe made the firſt Succeſſion of Dukes. But Eſau's Dukes, like their (l) Father, living by the Sword, and being double in Number to thoſe of Seir, were eaſily tempted to graſp the whole Government of the Country into their own Hands, without any Aſſociates. Hence follow'd a Civil War, by which they diſpoſſeſs the ſeven Dukes of Seir of all their Authority, and choſe (m) eleven more Dukes to govern the Country, who were all of the Family of Eſau, and were therefore call'd by Moſes (n) the Dukes of Edom. Theſe getting the Power into their own Hands, (o) fall upon the Horites and utterly diſpoſſeſs them, and ſo become ſole Maſters of the Country. However at the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, they again alter'd their Form of Government, and ſet up a King over them of their own, who ſhould take Care of their Country, being apprehenſive of Danger from the Approach of ſo great a Body of Men as the Iſraelites were. And this was probably the nameleſs King of Edom, to whom Moſes ſent an Embaſſy, when he was near his Death, to deſire that (p) they might paſs thro' his Borders, which was refus'd, knowing by the late Hiſtory of the Country, how dangerous it was to admit of Strangers, eſpecially at a Time when their Conſtitution was ſo lately ſettled, and its Settlement in this Manner was occaſion'd by the Fear of the Iſraelites. And thus the Country of Seir, as it was formerly call'd, alter'd its Name with its Conſtitution, and was afterward only call'd the Land of Edom.

159. At this Time, and before it, the Iſraelites were under a moſt cruel Bondage and Oppreſſion in Egypt. Joſephus ſaith, (q) that the Egyptians forc'd them upon the learning of ſeveral painful Trades, and tied them up to a perpetual Reſtleſneſs of Labour. They put them upon Draining of Rivers into Channels, Walling of Towns, Caſting up of Ditches and Banks to keep off Inundations, and even to the erecting of fantaſtical Pyramids. There are other Authors, who make the Pyramids of a later Date, and ſay, that Cheops built one for his Sepulchre, Cephron builds a ſecond, and Nitocris finiſh'd a third. But all this may be eaſily reconcil'd with the other. There are ſeveral Pyramids great and ſmall, which ſome count to be about an hundred, and therefore moſt of theſe might be built at this Time, and ſome ſince. It is generally allow'd, that Amenophis built ſeveral, and (r) this according to Manetho in his Catalogue, is the Name of him who was drown'd in the Red-Sea, who reign'd nineteen Years and ſix Months, and is deſcrib'd by him as a Man eaſily and ſtrongly deluded by their ſuperſtitious Prieſts, even to his own Deſtruction. There are (s) three Pyramids, which are moſt remarkable, being much larger than the reſt, of whom two are ſhut, and the other, which is the biggeſt of all, is open, and is that which Travellers mount, and enter into. And it is a Tradition among (t) all the Inhabitants of the Country, that the King, who order'd that Pyramid to be built, was that Pharaoh, who by the juſt Judgment of God was drown'd in the Red-Sea, and ſo was never bury'd in it. Pliny ſaith, that (u) this Pyramid was built in twenty Years Time, which is near the Time of Pharaoh Amenophis's Reign, and that 360000 Men were employ'd therein, which probably were as many Iſraelites, as could be ſpar'd from other Employments. Diodorus Siculus ſaith, that beſides theſe there are other Pyramids, every Square of which are 200 Feet in the Baſis, and in all things like unto the other, except the Bigneſs. And he adds, It is ſaid, that theſe three laſt Kings built them for their Wives. Yet, ſaith he, concerning the firſt Builders of theſe Pyramids, there is no Conſent either among the Inhabitants or Hiſtorians; as that the greateſt was built by Armeus, the ſecond by Amaſſis, and the third by Inaronas. And ſince in the Catalogue of (x) the Kings of Lower-Egypt, the Order of Armais, and his immediate Succeſſors, ſtands thus,

	Years.	Months.
Armais reign'd	04	01
Rameſſes reign'd	01	04
Rameſſes Miamun reign'd	66	02
Pharaoh Amenophis reign'd	19	06

who was drown'd in the Red-Sea.

I cannot but ſuppoſe, that Diodorus Siculus by Armeus means Armais, by Amaſſis he means Rameſſes Miamun, and by Inaronas he means Pharaoh Amenophis, becauſe it ſo well agrees with the Scripture Hiſtory. The Scripture ſaith, (y) that the Egyptians made the children of Iſrael to ſerve with rigour. And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of ſervice in the field: and all their ſervice, which they made them to ſerve, was with rigour. And as the Pyramids were built with brick; ſo (z) the Working therein was the greateſt Part of the Slavery of the Egyptians at that Time, as (a) Grotius and other Commentators affirm. We are alſo told (b) that they built for Pharaoh two treaſure cities among the reſt, whoſe Names were Pithom and Raamſes. The Word Pithom among the Rabbins ſignifies a familiar Spirit, and ſeems to intimate, that this City was built for the Study of Magick and Sorcery, which made them ſo famous for theſe diabolical Arts in the next Century. And Raamſes (c) is call'd Rameſſes, which keeps up the Name of Rameſſes Miamun, in whoſe Reign it was built, and is a farther Proof of their Slavery at that Time.

160. But there was another Accident, which made the Malice of the Egyptians againſt the Iſraelites more implacable; ſo that they reſolv'd to root them out from the Face of the Earth. The Jews (d) ſay, that Pharaoh King of Egypt dream'd, that he ſaw an old Man ſtanding before him with a Pair of Scales in his Hand, who bound all the Elders of Egypt, and plac'd them in one Scale, and a Lamb in the other, which outweigh'd them all. And calling the Magicians to him in the Morning, he was told that it ſignify'd, that one ſhould be born, who ſhould deliver the Iſraelites from the Egyptians. Joſephus takes no Notice of this Dream, but ſaith, (e) There was a certain Scribe, a Man in great Credit for his Predictions, who told the King that there was a Hebrew Child to be born about that Time, who would live to be a Scourge to the Egyptians, and advance the Glory of his own Nation; and he would alſo be an eminent Man for Virtue and Courage, and make his Name famous to Poſterity. This did ſo ſtartle the King, that by the Counſel of the Scribe he order'd the Egyptian Midwives carefully and ſtrictly to attend the Labours of all the Hebrew Women, preſerving the Females, and caſting the Males into the River. He committed this Truſt to the Egyptians as the leaſt likely to be partial, and upon Pain of Death to them and their Family, who ſhould preſume to conceal any Child, or act contrary to this Command.

161. However the Midwives (f) feared GOD, and did not as they were commanded, and when queſtion'd for their Diſobedience, they made their Conſtancy more remarkable; which was ſo acceptable to GOD, that he preſerv'd the Midwives from their Enemies, gave them a numerous Iſſue, and bleſſed their Subſtance, and (g) in a moſt ſignal if not miraculous Manner, preſerv'd thoſe Children, whoſe Deaths were thus threatned; and a Child, which the Scribe had foretold, was born, and brought up privately and ſafe in Deſpight of all Precautions, and liv'd to make good the Scribe's Predictions.

162. The Promiſes of a Deliverance were ſo (h) clearly reveal'd to Abraham and (i) Jacob, and mention'd by (k) Joſeph that it was the conſtant Belief of the Iſraelites

during

during their Bondage. For this Reaſon Kohath the Son of Levi calls his Son Amram, that is, A glorious People. This Amram, (l) Joſephus ſaith, was a Man of eminent Quality and Credit, who found himſelf in a great Straight upon this Decree, both publick and private; one Way, out of Reſpect to a whole Nation, who was to be rooted out by it; and the other in Regard to his own particular Caſe, for his Wife was then with Child, and Pharaoh not being able to effect this by the Midwives, had newly commanded all his People to do the ſame, and appointed other Officers and Searchers to take Care of the Execution of this Command. In this Diſtreſs, Amram offer'd up a Prayer to Almighty GOD, that he would look down in Pity upon a People, which had never departed from his Worſhip; that he would guide and protect them, and in his good Time put an End to a Calamity, that ſtruck at no leſs than the Rooting out of the whole Stock. His Prayer was heard, and GOD appear'd to him in a Dream, telling him, that as he had not forgotten the Piety of his Predeceſſors, ſo neither would he fail to reward them, as he had done their Anceſtors, incouraging Amram to hope for better things. He had alſo an Aſſurance at the ſame Time, that GOD would provide for the common Good of the Nation in general, and his own Family in particular. And that the Child, which the Egyptians ſtood in ſuch Fear of, and for whoſe Sake all the Hebrew Males were to be put to Death, ſhould be born to him, come happily into the World, eſcape all Spies, have an Education provided for him, beyond what could be expected, and in good Time deliver the Iſraelites from the Egyptian Bondage, and make his Name famous to all Generations far and near. This and more (ſaid the Viſion) will I do for you and yours; and there ſhall be another Brother, whom I will honour with the High Prieſthood, and it ſhall deſcend from him to his Heirs for ever.

163. When Amram waked, he told (m) his Wife Jochebed the whole Viſion, which puts them both into a great Perplexity; for they were now not only ſollicitous for the Child, but alſo very incredulous of the wonderful good things, which were promis'd to the Family. However, ſoon after his Wife was ſafely deliver'd of a Son, before the Egyptian Midwives could have Notice of it; by which Providence they were brought to have more Faith in the Viſion, and (n) ſoon became leſs and leſs fearful of the King's Commandment. The (o) Eaſtern Writers repreſent him as of little Stature, of a lean Conſtitution, and a ruddy Complexion. However we are told by better Authority, (p) that in his Infancy he was a goodly Child, and (q) exceeding fair or beautiful; ſo that his Parents hid him in the Houſe three Months. After this Amram being afraid of a Diſcovery, that would deſtroy Father, Mother and Child at once, and alſo diſappoint the Prediction, reſolv'd to leave all to Providence, arguing in this Manner. If the Child could be conceal'd (as it was very difficult to do it, and very dangerous to attempt it) they muſt lie in Danger every Moment; but as to the Power and Veracity of GOD, they did not doubt of it, but were aſſured, that whatever he had promis'd he would certainly make good. Upon this Diſcourſe they came to a Reſolution, and procur'd a little Basket large enough for their Purpoſe, made of light Wood or Wicker, which is (r) the proper Meaning of the Word that we tranſlate Bulruſhes. One Author tells us, that (s) it was made of the Paper Reeds, which grew on the River Nile, and of which (t) Veſſels of ſmall Burden were often made; ſo that it is moſt probable, that when (u) they daubed it with ſlime and with pitch, they faſten'd the Paper round it, to keep it from Letting in the Water. However they put the Child in it, and the Mother laid it in the Flags by the River's Brink, and order'd Miriam his Siſter, then above ſeven Years of Age, to watch it at a conſiderable Diſtance.

164. Thermuthis the King's Daughter, who was of an advanc'd Age without any Child, and having now little Hope of one, came down at this Time to waſh her ſelf at the River, and happening to ſee this Basket among the Flags, ſhe ſent one of her Maids to fetch it. And when they had open'd it, they ſaw the Child, which immediately wept, and caus'd her to have the greater Compaſſion on him, and ſo ſhe became exceedingly delighted with him. Such (ſaith (x) Joſephus) was the Grace and Favour of GOD to Moſes, that he was preſerv'd, brought up and provided for by thoſe very Perſons, who were in the Plot of Cutting off the whole Race of the Hebrews for his Sake. Upon this Thermuthis orders a Woman to be call'd to give it ſuck, but ſeveral being brought and tried one after another, no one could make it take the Breaſt. The (y) Story goes, that Miriam being there preſent, and ſeemingly more out of Curioſity or Chance, than any thing of Concern or Buſineſs, ſhe told the Princeſs, that this would never do. For if the Child was of one Country, and the Nurſe of another, it is poſſible, that the Milk of a Stranger would not agree with it: but if there was a Hebrew Woman, the Child would perhaps allow that to ſuckle it. And that which ſhe ſaid ſeem'd ſo reaſonable, that the Princeſs order'd her to try, if ſhe could get ſuch a Nurſe her ſelf. If this was true, ſhe muſt be of a greater Age, or had a Judgment far beyond what could have been expected. However ſhe went away immediately to look after a Nurſe, and call'd the Mother (x) her ſelf (whom no Body knew) and ſhe with good Succeſs made the former Experiment. The Princeſs obſerving it, order'd her to take Care and nurſe the Child, promiſing to give her Wages for it, which ſhe gladly perform'd, and in due Time brought him to Thermuthis the Daughter of Pharaoh, who adopted him for her own Child, and gave him a ſuitable Education. Philo the Jew (y) gives this Account thereof: That he ſhewed a Modeſty and Gravity beyond his Years, and chiefly applied himſelf to thoſe things which were profitable. And accordingly he had many Tutors, ſome coming of their own Accord out of the neighbouring Countries of Egypt, and others being hired with great Rewards from Greece, whom he excell'd in a little Time, having ſo great a Capacity to learn, that his Learning ſeem'd only to be a Remembrance of what he had learn'd before. Thus he learn'd from the Egyptian Maſters, Arithmetick, Geometry, and all ſorts of Muſick, Rhythme, Harmony and Metre, and the Speculative as well as the Practical Part. He learned alſo their occult Philoſophy contain'd in Hieroglyphick Characters, or Pictures of ſuch Animals, which they ador'd for Gods. The Greeks taught him all their liberal Arts and Sciences. The Aſſyrians taught him their Way of Writing, the Chaldeans taught him Aſtronomy, which alſo he learned of the Egyptians, who were very ſtudious in all the Mathematical Arts and Sciences. If this can be depended on, it is very evident, that (as (z) St. Stephen ſaith) Moſes was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians. Joſephus ſaith, (a) that he had a Name given him according to the Event of the Providence, and was call'd Mo-Yſes; Mo in the Egyptian Language ſignifying Water, and Yſes being Preſerv'd, ſo that putting both together, Mo-Yſes is the ſame as preſerv'd out of the Water. The Hebrew Text only derives his (b) Name from (c) the Verb, which ſignifies to draw out. And ſhe called his name Moſes; for ſhe ſaid, Becauſe I drew him out of the water.

165. As (d) he grew up, he ſhew'd a Pregnancy of Underſtanding much above thoſe of his Years. Nay, the very Gaiety of his little Plays and Sports was not without ſomething ſerious and inſtructive in it: doing every thing with ſuch a Grace, that in his very Childhood he gave the World to underſtand, what might be expected from him in Time to come. After three Years of Age, he was ſuch a Miracle of a Child for Beauty and Comelineſs of Stature, that People would ſtop and ſtand gazing at him with Delight and Admiration, wherever they ſaw him; and his Way was ſo taking, that it wrought upon the moſt unſociable and moroſe Sort of Men: nor did he ſo much as move any where, but all Eyes were upon him: and let People be ever ſo buſy, or ſo much in haſte, yet they could hardly leave him.

166. Thermuthis being as much delighted with him as any other Perſon, wanting Iſſue of her own, and having reſolv'd to adopt him for her Son, brings him to her Father, and merrily tells him, that ſhe came to preſent him with a Succeſſor, in Caſe he ſhould want one. This, ſaith ſhe, is the ſweeteſt, prettieſt temper'd Child, that ever was born. I have brought him up my ſelf, and it was the Bounty of the River Nile, that deliver'd it into my Arms. This Child I do intend to adopt, and make you a Preſent of it for your Succeſſor. And with theſe Words ſhe gave the Child into the Hands of her Father. The King receiv'd him with an affectionate Tenderneſs, and preſſing him toward his Heart, took off his Crown to gratify his Daughter, and plac'd it upon the Child's Head, who wantonly turning it up and down, the Crown fell to the Ground, and after that the Child trampled upon it with his Feet. This Action was look'd upon to be an ill Omen to the King and his Government, inſomuch that the Scribe being then at Hand, cried out to have the Child kill'd. For this is the Child, ſaith he to the King, that I foretold to you, would be the Deſtruction of Egypt; and he hath now confirm'd the Prophecy, by the Affront which he hath put upon your Government, in Treading the Crown under his Feet. In ſhort, this is he, by whoſe Death alone you can promiſe your ſelf to be ſecure; and take but him out of the Way, the Hebrews ſhall have nothing more to hope for, and the Egyptians nothing more to fear. Another (e) Jew adds, that in the Midſt of this Outcry GOD ſent the Angel Gabriel in the Form of one of the Senators, who adviſed the King to take a Jewel and put it into one Veſſel, and put Fire into another, and lay both before the Child; adding that if the Child took the Jewel, it was a Sign that all which he did was knowingly, and then he ſhould die; but if he took the Fire, he ſhould be freed. They follow'd this Advice, and the Angel in an inviſible Manner ſo directed the Hand of Moſes, that he took the Fire, and put it to his Mouth, and burnt his Tongue and his Lips, that it caus'd him to have (f) a ſtammering Speech for ever after, and upon this he was acquitted. Thermuthis being under a Concern, takes him immediately away out of the Company, without any Oppoſition from the King, it being GOD's Will for the Good of Moſes, that he ſhould not regard it. And the very great Advantages, which the Princeſs gave him of a generous and polite Education, put the Hebrews in Hope of ſome great Good to befal them; whilſt the Egyptians on the other Side were as jealous of Miſchief, but having then no Proſpect of any Succeſſor to the Crown that they could hope for, their bloody Deſign fell to the Ground.

167. The Birth of Moſes, according to Manetho's Account of the Kings of Lower-Egypt, was in the ſixth Year of the Reign of Rameſſes Miamun, who reign'd ſixty ſix Years. At this Time Men liv'd uſually to be an hundred and twenty Years old. Levi was (g) 137 Years old at his Death; Kohath (h) was 127. Amram (i) was 136, and Moſes (k) was 120. So that if this King of Egypt died at 120 Years old, he muſt be 60 Years old at this Time, and his Daughter Thermuthis might be about 40, which well agrees with the Story, and the Length of human Life in that Age of the World, according to the ſacred Scriptures.

168. Joſephus (l) tells a very diverting Story of Moſes, which I cannot but relate, tho' the Credit of all doth only depend upon him. The Story is this: The Ethiopians made an Inroad upon the Borders of Egypt, rifling and ſpoiling that Part of the Country. The Egyptians reſented the Affront, and march'd out againſt them with an Army to take their Revenge, both for the Diſhonour and for the Injury. It came to a Battle, and the Egyptians were routed, ſome kill'd in the Action, and others forc'd ſhamefully to retreat. The Ethiopians were ſufficiently puffed up with this Succeſs, and follow'd the Blow ſo cloſely, that they were not without ſome Hope of Overunning even the whole Country. They burnt and ravag'd without Controul, took Booty in Abundance, and carried off all before them without Reſiſtance; inſomuch that they march'd to Memphis it ſelf, and ſo to the Sea, without any Oppoſition. The Egyptians were hard preſs'd, and in this Extremity had Recourſe to their Diviners and Oracles, what they had beſt to do. The Anſwer was, that they ſhould call in a certain Hebrew to their Aſſiſtance. Upon this the King tells his Daughter, that he was reſolv'd to levy an Army againſt the Ethiopians to revenge their Injuries, and he ſhould be glad to have Moſes at the Head of it. The Princeſs promiſed to do her Part toward the Engaging of him, as a thing of great Importance to her Father's Service, but binding him under a ſacred Oath before-hand, that no malicious Practice ſhould be attempted upon the Perſon of Moſes; caſting it in the Teeth of the Prieſts, how great a Shame it was firſt to contrive and adviſe his Death, and then moſt wretchedly to implore his Friendſhip.

169. Moſes was eaſily prevail'd upon both by Thermuthis and the King to undertake this Commiſſion, which was very pleaſing to the good Men of both Sides. The Egyptians flatter'd themſelves, firſt with the Hope of Victory under his Conduct, and then with the Likelihood of an Opportunity, when their own Work was done, to deſtroy Moſes. The Hebrews, on the other Side, delighted themſelves with the Thought, that under the Command of ſo great a General, they might one Day find themſelves in a Condition to ſhake off the Egyptian Yoke. In this Expedition Moſes was intent to ſurprize the Enemy. The Paſſage over the Land was horridly infeſted with Serpents, many of them fierce, venemous, and terrible to the Sight, and ſeveral of them are to be found no where elſe; ſome with Wings lying upon the Catch, and others as mortal in the Air as they are upon the Ground. This Way was ſo deadly hazardous, that all People were againſt the Adventuring an Army thro' it; ſo that for this Reaſon he rather choſe this Way than that by the Nile, upon a true Judgment that he might thereby ſurprize his Enemy. Moſes was in the firſt Place only to provide againſt the Dangers of this deſperate Paſſage, which he did by this wonderful Stratagem. The Bird Ibis is a mortal Enemy to all Sorts of Serpents, and they fly from the Purſuit of it like Deer from Dogs, till they are overtaken and devour'd. This Bird is only fierce to thoſe Inſects, and gentle to all other Creatures. (m) Now Moſes's Invention to ſecure his Army againſt theſe Creatures, was to carry with him ſeveral of theſe Birds in Cages of Bulruſhes, to clear the Way before him.

170. Moſes was no ſooner advanc'd to this dangerous Quarter, but he let looſe his Birds upon the Serpents, as upon ſo many Enemies, and under their Protection he went forward without any Harm or Interruption. So that puſhing hard to overtake the Ethiopians, he came up with them, before they were aware, and utterly defeated them; and having cut off their Retreat into Egypt he forc'd them back again to their own Home, deſtroying a great many of their Towns and Cities, and committing a terrible Slaughter among their People. This Victory of Moſes put new Life and Courage into the Egyptians, whilſt the Ethiopians on the other Hand had nothing but Death, Deſtruction and Slavery before their Eyes. They were at laſt driven into Saba, the Metropolis of Ethiopia, which Cambyſes afterward call'd by the Name of Meroe, having a Siſter of that Name. Moſes ſat down before this Place, tho' in all Appearance impregnable, being ſurrounded by the River Nile, and two other Rivers, Aſtapus and Aſtabora, falling in to ſtrengthen it; which made the Paſſage ſo much the more difficult: beſides, as it ſtood in an Iſland, and was encompaſs'd with a ſtrong Wall, it was alſo fortify'd with Ramparts, and other Works of Defence, to ſecure it from any Attacks or Inundations from the River.

171. Moſes was not at all pleas'd with this Siege; for the Army lay idle, and there was no Forcing the Enemy to fight. However there happen'd a very extraordinary Encounter of another Nature. The King of Ethiopia had a Daughter call'd Tharbis, who had the Fortune once to ſee and obſerve Moſes from the Walls of the Town with his Sword in his Hand, behaving himſelf with great Honour and Bravery. She was ſo infinitely taken with his Courage and Bravery, that ſhe look'd upon him as the Balance of the two Kingdoms, having recover'd the Egyptians when they were at the loweſt, and at the ſame Time humbled the Ethiopians in the very Height of their Victories. Upon all this put together, the Princeſs fell violently in Love with him; and her Affections ſtill growing upon her more and more, ſhe broke her Mind at laſt to ſome particular Confidents which ſhe had, and ſent them over to Moſes to offer her ſelf in Marriage to him. Moſes agreed to it, but upon this Condition (which was ratified with an Oath) that the Marriage ſhould be conſummated upon the Delivering up of the City, which happen'd very ſoon after upon a great Slaughter made of the Enemy. So that nothing more remain'd but to give GOD Thanks, and to ſolemnize the Wedding; which being done, the Army of the Egyptians return'd triumphantly into their own Land. I can only add, that no Countenance to this Story can be fetch'd from (n) what is ſaid in Scripture, that Moſes married an Ethiopian woman. For there the Word is a Cuſhite, from Cuſh another Son of Ham, who inherited a Part of Aſia near Egypt on the Red-Sea. From that Country came Jethro, who was afterward Prieſt of Midian, and Moſes (o) married Zipporah his Daughter; ſo that if he had married the other Ethiopian, it is probable, that ſhe died in ſome ſhort Time after.

172. The Life of Moſes is ſtuff'd ſo full of fabulous Legends by the Eaſtern and eſpecially the Jewiſh Writers, that there is nothing to be depended on, except what we find in the Scriptures; where we read, (p) that when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to viſit his brethren the children of Iſrael. Anno Mundi 2473. Accordingly (q) when on a particular Day he beheld the hard Labours of the Iſraelites, he ſaw an Egyptian ſmiting an Hebrew. And he looked this way, and that way, and when he ſaw that there was no man near, he ſlew the Egyptian, and hid him in the ſand. St. Stephen gives (r) a particular Reaſon for this Action, For he ſuppoſed, that his brethren would have underſtood, how that GOD by his hand would deliver them; but they underſtood not. The next Day he went out to look upon his Brethren, and found two of them contending with one another. The Jews (†) give this Account of it, That Dathan and Abiram, two Jews, quarrel'd with each other, and Dathan lifted up his Hand to ſtrike Abiram. Upon this he (s) reproves Dathan, and ask'd him, Why he attempted to ſmite his Brother? eſpecially ſince their common Calamities ſhould teach them to love one another the more. But Dathan made this ſharp Reply, Who made thee a prince and a judge over us? Intendeſt thou to kill me, as thou killedſt the Egyptian yeſterday? This put Moſes into a terrible Fright, becauſe he concluded, that the Murder was diſcover'd. It was not long before this News was told to the King of Egypt, which probably brought into his Mind the former Preſages, that Moſes ſhould be a Scourge to the Egyptians, and this made him reſolve to kill Moſes, that he might effectually prevent it. Upon this Moſes fled out of the Land of Egypt, and that he might be more ſecure, goes as far as Midian, where he gets Acquaintance with Jethro the Prieſt of the Country. This Prieſt ſeems by Birth to be from (t) Cuſh the Son of Ham, whoſe original Settlement ſeems to be between the Red and the Dead-Sea, and therefore his Poſterity (u) were call'd Kenites, as belonging to that Country, which was (x) formerly promis'd to Abraham, and after that given to Eſau. When Cuſh, who was the Father of Nimrod, remov'd with his Family toward Babylon, he left ſome of his Poſterity behind him, who were the Anceſtors of this Prieſt. This Country had been ſubject to ſeveral Changes and Misfortunes. Firſt the (y) Hivites came and dwelt among them. Then the Phœnician Paſtors or (z) Caphtorims, who came from the Egyptian Wars, deſtroy'd them. Then (a) the Horites came and dwelt there, and then the Children of Eſau ſettl'd there, deſtroy'd the Horites, and alter'd their Government from a Monarchy to an Ariſtocracy, not without much Bloodſhed and Diſturbance. Jethro being a good Man, removes from theſe Diſtractions to dwell quietly in Midian, where he had been ſettled about forty Years before Moſes came to him. And therefore he goes under two Names, viz. (b) Reuel or (c) Raguel, as he might be call'd in Idumea, and Jethro, or The Remainder, as he might be call'd in Midian, becauſe he was the only Remainder of the Cuſhites, who dwelt in that Country. Jethro hearing that Moſes was fled out of Egypt, having (*) learned by his own Misfortunes to pity thoſe who were under the like, takes him into his Houſe, employs him as a Shepherd, and gives him his own Daughter Zipporah for a Wife; which was a particular Reſpect, becauſe he was a Man in great Eſteem, and like Melchiſedeck in Canaan officiated as a Prieſt among thoſe few Families, who were not corrupted by Idolatry. By Zipporah Moſes had two Sons, the (d) firſt he calls Gerſhom; that is, A ſtranger there. For he ſaid, I have been an alien in a ſtrange land. And he call'd the ſecond Eliezer, that is, My GOD is an help. For, ſaith he, The GOD of my father was my help, and delivered me from the ſword of Pharaoh. Zipporah (e) ſeems to have been an affectionate Wife to Moſes, of which there is this Inſtance, That when Moſes too far complying with the Cuſtoms in his Father-in-Law's Family had neglected to circumciſe one of his Children, and GOD was angry at him for the Neglect, and appear'd in ſuch a Manner, as if he intended to deſtroy him for it, Zipporah circumcis'd her Son with her own Hands, to ſave her Husband's Life, without the leaſt Reflection (as is commonly thought) but only Uſing the common Form, (f) By me thou art made a Son-in-Law to GOD by the Blood of the Circumciſion, or By me thou art eſpouſed to the Church of GOD by this Rite of Circumciſion.

Anno Mundi 2429.

173. When Moſes had been (g) about twenty Years with his Father-in-Law, which the Scripture calls In proceſs of time, or after many days, Rameſſes Miamun the King of Egypt dies, and (h) the Enemies of Moſes, who ſought his Life, did not long ſurvive him. However he was ſucceeded by Pharaoh Amenophis, who reign'd nineteen Years and ſix Months, and was drown'd in the Red-Sea. His Cruelty to the Iſraelites exceeded all that went before him, ſo that it is ſaid, (i) that the children of Iſrael ſighed by reaſon of the bondage, and they cried; and their cry came up unto GOD by reaſon of the bondage. Moſes was now fourſcore Years of Age, and (k) he (perhaps out of a Curioſity to inquire after the State of his Father-in-Law's Relations in thoſe Parts) led the flock to the back ſide of the Wilderneſs of Edom, not thinking it ſafe to go into the Country, and ſo he came to the mountain of GOD, even to Horeb. This Horeb was a Part of Mount Sinai, where GOD afterward appear'd. And indeed the upper Part was divided into two Parts, one of which was call'd Horeb, and the other Sinai. Joſephus tells us, that it was the higheſt Mountain in the whole Country; and that the People had an old Tradition, that GOD dwelt there; ſo that in antient Time, out of pure Reverence to it, they forbore either feeding or walking upon it. Here GOD appears to Moſes in a Flame of Fire in a Buſh; the Flame was fierce and violent, and yet neither the Leaves, Flowers, nor Branches, receiv'd the leaſt Damage. The (l) Flame (ſaith Philo the Jew) ſignify'd the Furiouſneſs of the Egyptians againſt the Iſraelites, and the Buſh the Iſraelites themſelves, and it repreſented, how they ſhould be ſurrounded with the utmoſt Dangers, and eſcape without the leaſt Hurt. Here GOD gives Moſes a Charge to deliver the Iſraelites, and promiſes to be with him in this Expedition, anſwers all his Objections to the contrary, confirms him by ſeveral Miracles, and joins Aaron with him for the Compleating of this Deſign. And after this he reveals himſelf by his incommunicable Name JEHOVAH, which comes from the Hebrew Verb, that ſignifies to be, and hath the Characters of all the Tenſes in it, ſo that it is fitly tranſlated by St. John, (m) I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the firſt and the laſt, ſaith the LORD, which was, and is, and is to come, the almighty. It ſhews him to be the eternal, unchangeable, and all-ſufficient GOD, who alone hath his Being in and of himſelf, and gives to all others the being, which they have: So that he was what he is, he is what

what he was, and he ſhall be both what he was, and what he is from everlaſting to everlaſting, and all other Beings are dependent on him. It was never pronounc'd among the Jews but once a Year, which was by the High-Prieſt upon the ſolemn Bleſſing of the People, and it was Death for any other Perſon to ſpeak it. And therefore Joſephus ſaith, (n) It was never known, nor heard of before, and I dare not ſo much as mention it. Moſes returning from the Buſh acquaints his Father-in-Law with what had happen'd, and deſir'd Leave to return into Egypt, which was eaſily granted, with good Wiſhes of Succeſs. He (o) at firſt intended to have taken his Wife and Children with him, who accordingly went ſome Part of the Journey; but bethinking himſelf of the Danger, he ſent them back again, and ſo they (p) ſtay'd with her Father until his Return. In his Journey he meets Aaron at Mount Horeb or Sinai, where they diſcourſe together of all things which had happen'd, and concert Meaſures in what Manner they ſhould addreſs themſelves to Pharaoh on this Errand. And firſt, they tell the Iſraelites the Meſſage, which they were ſent about, and did the Miracles before them, which they were commiſſion'd to act for the Confirmation thereof, and which fill'd them with an univerſal Joy. This encourages them to go to Pharaoh, and demand the Releaſe of the Iſraelites, which hath a different Turn from what they expected; for Pharaoh is angry at them, gives them a flat Denial, and orders their Tasks to be increas'd, and that they ſhould make Brick without any Straw afforded them for ſuch a Purpoſe. Upon this the Iſraelites were ſcatter'd about in all the Land of Egypt, to gather Stubble inſtead of Straw, and beaten for not performing their Tasks, which was now an Impoſſibility. Accordingly the People complain to Pharaoh, but they had no Redreſs, and Pharaoh anſwers them in a tyrannical Manner. At their Coming from him they meet Moſes and Aaron, and complain bitterly to them of the Miſchief, which they had done. They complain to GOD, and GOD renews his Promiſe, and at this Time mentions his incommunicable and glorious Name, which when Moſes told the Children of Iſrael, they look'd upon him only as a Cheat and an Impoſtor, and (q) hearkned not to him, becauſe of their anguiſh of ſpirit, and their cruel bondage. However GOD encourageth Moſes to go again to Pharaoh, and to demand the Sending the Iſraelites out of the Land, and gave him Power to work a Miracle before him. When they were before Pharaoh, Aaron had the Rod of Moſes in his Hand, which he caſt upon the Ground, and it became a Serpent ſo great and terrible, that the firſt Time that (r) Moſes did this Miracle, he fled from before it. Pharaoh ſtartled at this Sight, and imputing it to the Art of Magick, ſends (s) for his Sorcerers and Magicians, the principal of which were (t) Jannes and Jambres, to confront Moſes; theſe, with ſeveral others, bring ſeeming Rods, which they caſt upon the Ground, and they appear'd like Serpents; however this Rod of Moſes and Aaron mov'd toward them, and ſwallow'd them up. This might have convinc'd Pharaoh, that Moſes would in the End be the Deſtruction of them all, and therefore it was high Time to ſend them out of the Country; but inſtead thereof, it had a contrary Effect. Pharaoh ſeeing the Magicians do ſomething, was in Hope that in Time they would do more, and ſo at laſt be able to prevail, and therefore he hardens his Heart, and refuſes to obey. This, according to the Computation of our Learned Primate, muſt be on Saturday the thirteenth Day of March, and on the ſixteenth Day of the ſixth Month.

174. The Day following being Sunday, or a Day of religious Worſhip throughout the whole World, we may be ſure, that Pharaoh would omit nothing, which might engage all his Idols to exert their utmoſt againſt theſe Deſigns of Moſes and Aaron. For this Reaſon ſome think, that he went to pay his Morning Devotions to the River Nile; for as (u) Plutarch obſerves, nothing was had in ſo much Honour among the Egyptians as that River. Others make Pharaoh to be a (x) Magician, and that he went to the River for ſuch a Purpoſe; and ſo the (y) Chaldee Paraphraſe adds, Behold, he goeth out to obſerve Divinations upon the Water, as a Magician. However (z) GOD commands Moſes to confront him there, and to let him ſee, that the River could not help him; the firſt Plague, which was threatned, was the Turning of all the Waters of the River into Blood, which was perform'd on the next Day, being the eighteenth Day of the ſixth Month. And here it is obſervable, that the Magicians, who could not prevent the Plague when fully threaten'd, nor remove it when inflicted, yet (a) they alſo brought forth Blood by their Inchantments; ſo that tho' they could not make it better, they could help to make it worſe. And the Miſchief, which they did, had a worſe Conſequence, becauſe it harden'd Pharaoh's Heart. On the Sunday (b) following, or the twenty fourth Day of the ſame Month, Pharaoh goes to the River again in the ſame Manner as before, and Moſes goes again to confront him, and threatens another Plague from the River, which was an offenſive Company of Frogs, and theſe were alſo ſent the next Day, and the Magicians did the ſame. There was now no Occaſion of Boaſting, or (c) Speaking in the Language of theſe Kings, My river is my own, and I have made it for my ſelf, ſince it was but the Cauſe of their Misfortunes. However Pharaoh ſues to Moſes to pray to GOD for him, with a Promiſe of ſending the Iſraelites away. Upon Moſes's Prayer to GOD, the Frogs were all deſtroy'd the next Day; but Pharaoh returns to his former Temper, and abſolutely refuſes to perform his Promiſe.

175. The Day after, being the twenty ſeventh Day of the ſame Month, GOD ſends the Plague of Lice among them; a very inſignificant Animal, however ſufficient to be the Inſtrument of GOD's Juſtice upon an obſtinate People. And to ſhew that the Magicians could do nothing without his Permiſſion, he denied them the Power of Producing ſo ſmall a Creature; ſo that when they attempted by their Inchantments to bring forth Lice, they were not able to effect it; but were forc'd to confeſs to Pharaoh, That (d) this was the finger of GOD. The twenty eighth Day of the ſame Month Moſes threatens the fourth Plague, which was the Swarms of Flies, and other Inſects, and this was ſent on the next Day, and remov'd the Day following, or on the laſt Day of the Month, by the Prayer of Moſes. The firſt Day of the next Month being Sunday, GOD ſends Moſes again to Pharaoh, threatning a very grievous Murrain of the Egyptian Cattle, which was inflicted on the next Day, ſo that vaſt Numbers died of all ſorts, eſpecially thoſe which were in the Field, whilſt thoſe belonging to the Iſraelites were preſerv'd. Upon the third Day of the Month GOD ſent the ſixth Plague, which was that of ſore Boils breaking forth upon Man and upon Beaſt, to which the Magicians were equally liable with other People, and were ſo far from Curing others, that they could not heal themſelves. About the fifth Day of the Month Moſes threatens the Plague of Thunder, Lightning and Hail, which he ſends upon the ſixth Day, and removes upon the ſeventh. Upon the eighth Day being Sunday, GOD ſends Moſes again with a particular Meſſage to Pharaoh, threatning that unleſs he ſent away the Iſraelites, the Country ſhould be ſo afflicted with Locuſts, that they ſhould even darken the Air, and devour the Fruits of the Earth. His Officers being met together, probably for the Worſhipping of their Gods, perſuade him to comply, and had almoſt prevail'd; tho' he afterward rejected their Advice with Scorn, and drove Moſes and Aaron out of his Preſence. So that the Locuſts were ſent on the ninth, and remov'd on the tenth Day. On the tenth Day of this Month Moſes, by the Appointment of GOD, commands the Iſraelites to ſeparate a Lamb out of the Flock, and to keep it up for four Days, to be kill'd and eaten in Token of their approaching Deliverance. On the eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth Days of the Month there was a total Darkneſs in the Land of Egypt, except in Goſhen, where the Iſraelites were; ſo that the Egyptians ſaw not one another, neither did any one of them riſe out of his Bed for three Days. On the fourteenth Day of this Month, or on Saturday in the Afternoon, (e) between the two evenings, as the Hebrew expreſſeth it, that is, In the middle Space, between the Declining and Setting of the Sun, or as we ſay, About three of the Clock in the Afternoon, the Iſraelites kill the Paſſover, ſprinkle the Blood upon the Door Poſts, and eat it in their Families, as ſoon as it could be got ready, and ſo lay themſelves down to ſleep.

176. It may here be obſerv'd, that the four former Days of the Antemoſaical Sabbath, GOD ſent Moſes and Aaron with particular Meſſages to Pharaoh, threatning to turn the River into Blood, to ſend Frogs into their Houſes, a Murrain among their Cattle, and the Locuſts in the Fields; ſo that they could not obſerve this Day as a Day of Reſt, according to the firſt Command: and this was without Doubt to wean them by Degrees from the Obſervation of the old Sabbath, becauſe the new one was ſo ſoon to ſucceed in the Place thereof. But now the Providence of GOD ſo order'd it, that none of the Iſraelites could obſerve this Sabbath as a Day of Reſt. For (f) at Midnight GOD deſtroy'd all the firſt-born in the land of Egypt, from the firſt-born of Pharaoh, who ſat on the throne, to the firſt-born of the captive, which was in the dungeon, and all the firſt-born of the cattle. Their dying Groans wak'd thoſe of the ſame Family, and when they ſent to their Neighbours for Aſſiſtance, they ſoon found, that they were all afflicted in the ſame Manner, and that the Calamity was univerſal. Upon this there was a lamentable Outcry in Egypt, there being not an Houſe, in which there was not one Dead. This oblig'd the Egyptians to hurry the Iſraelites out of their Country, being under an Apprehenſion that if they ſtaid longer, the whole Nation would have been deſtroy'd; for there was hardly any other Judgment left but this. This caus'd the Iſraelites to be driven out with the utmoſt Haſte, and inſtead of reſting on this Sabbath Day, according to the Commandment, they travell'd (g) from Rameſes to Succoth, which could not be leſs than thirty Miles. Here they ſpend the ſixteenth Day of this Month in Making Booths, and ſo they refreſh themſelves a little while under the Shade, and therefore they call'd the Name of the Place (h) Succoth, or Booths, and ſo in the Evening they go to Etham, which lay near the Red-Sea in the direct Road to Canaan. The ſeventeenth Day of this Month GOD (i) gives an expreſs Command, that they ſhould turn and encamp before Pihahiroth, between Migdol or the Tower, and the Sea over againſt Baal-Zephon. This was ſuch a Situation, that in all human Probability they muſt have been infatuated to have choſen it. When they march'd out of Egypt, Moſes acted the Part of an experienc'd General, by (k) Dividing the whole Company into five Parts, ſo that there was the Advanc'd Guard, the right Wing, the left Wing, the main Body, and the Rear, according to the Arabian Method of Marching with their Armies. And this was the Method which he afterward us'd in the Wilderneſs, when he had one Standard in the Eaſt, another in the Weſt, another in the North, and another in the South, and the Tribe of Levi, with the Tabernacle, and all its Appurtenances, in the Center. However Moſes pitches his Camp here, where he had the Red-Sea to the Eaſt, the River Ptolomeus, which comes from the Lake Amari to the Red-Sea, on the South, a ſtrong Gariſon, or Migdol, on the Weſt, and liable to be attack'd by the Egyptians from the North without any Poſſibility of Eſcaping. Beſides this, they encamp'd over againſt Baal-Zephon, or Baal the Watchman. This was an Idol ſet up as the Guardian of their Country, and ſome think, that it was ſet up by the Magicians of Egypt, and by Pharaoh's Order, to hinder the Iſraelites in their Paſſage. And therefore Pharaoh hearing of this Situation of the Iſraelites, ſo apparently void of any good Conduct, might well ſay, (l) They are entangled in the land, the wilderneſs hath ſhut them in; or (m) as the Philiſtines did in the Caſe of Sampſon, Our God hath delivered our enemy into our hand. On the eighteenth Day of the Month it was told Pharaoh, where the Iſraelites were, who thinking them to be really bewitch'd (as well he might) gathers his whole Army together, and follows after them on the nineteenth. On the twentieth he comes up in Sight of the Iſraelites, which made them murmur againſt Moſes. On the twentieth in the Evening (n) Moſes ſtretch'd out his Rod toward the Sea, and the Waters were divided, ſo that the Iſraelites paſſed over on dry Ground, and the Waters were a Wall unto them upon their Right Hand and upon their Left. The Egyptians then move forward, and march after them into the Place where the Sea had been. And then (o) the pillar of the cloud, which (p) formerly had led them in the Way, went from before their face, and ſtood behind them: And it came between the camp of the Egyptians, and the camp of Iſrael, and it was a cloud and darkneſs to the one, but it gave light to the other; ſo that the one knew which way to go, but the other could not ſee where to follow. When the Iſraelites were ſafe on the Shore, Moſes ſtretch'd out his Hand toward the Sea, and the Sea returned, and drowned the Egyptians; inſomuch that in the Morning, they ſaw their Enemies dead upon the Sea-Shore, and, as the Jews tell us, they took their Arms and their Armour, by which they were enabled to fight with their Enemies during all their future Expeditions. The Iſraelites being tired with ſuch a ſtrange March in the Night, and finding themſelves ſafe, and their Enemies deſtroy'd, ſpend this Day, being Saturday, or their new Sabbath, in an holy Reſt, in Praiſing GOD for his Mercies, and Uſing that (q) Song, which Moſes hath recorded. From this Time they began the Obſervation of the ſeventh Day of the Week as a Sabbath, inſtead of the firſt; and Moſes gives them a Command for the ſame in (r) theſe Words, Remember, that thou waſt a ſtranger in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out hence by a mighty Hand, and by a ſtretched out arm, therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee to keep the Sabbath-day. So that the Reaſon, why this Day was obſerv'd, was peculiar to the Iſraelites, and conſequently no other Parts of the World were ever under any Obligation to obſerve the ſame.

177. There have been ſeveral Writers, who have affirm'd, that this Paſſage over the Red-Sea was not miraculous, but that Moſes being skill'd in Aſtronomy, and Natural Philoſophy, took the Advantage of a low Ebb upon a great Spring-Tide, and that Pharaoh conducted more by Fury than Conduct, purſued him ſo far, that before he could recover the Egyptian Shore, he and his Army were overtaken by the Flood, and ſo deſtroy'd. By this we may ſee what Objections Malice and

Spite,

Spite aſſiſted by the Devil, will raiſe againſt the Scriptures without the leaſt Shadow of Reaſon. For firſt, the greateſt Springs and loweſt Ebbs are about two or three Days after the Full and Change of the Moon; but this happen'd about two or three Days after the laſt Quarter, when the Ebbing and Flowing was the leaſt of all. Secondly, It is againſt all Senſe and Reaſon, that when Moſes was Etham, and in Effect clear of Egypt, he ſhould (without a divine Command) turn back again into the Mouths of his Enemies, when he could not know the Time that they would come upon him, and they might have attack'd him, when the Waters were at the higheſt. So that Moſes had not the leaſt viſible Neceſſity for this hazardous March; and it is abſurd to think, that the Egyptians did not know the Nature of the Red-Sea as well as he. The Egyptians at that Time were well skill'd in the Obſervations of the heavenly Motions, and of the Fluxes, and Refluxes of the Sea in their own Country, upon their own Coaſt, and in their moſt frequented Ports and Havens, where they might have had five hundred Years Experience of the Tides. So that it is ridiculous to think, that Moſes could preſume upon their Ignorance in a Caſe of this Conſequence, or that he, who had been employ'd forty Years in Keeping Sheep in another Country, could underſtand it better than they. Beſides, where there is any Ebbing of the Sea in any Gulf or Indraught of Water, there the Waters fall away from the Land, leaving all that Part toward the Land to be dry. So that if a Paſſage had been made by the Falling away of the Water ten or twelve Miles below Poſidium, where Moſes paſs'd it, then when Pharaoh had found the Flood increaſing, he needed not to have return'd the ſame Way toward the Egyptian Shore, but he might have kept before it on his right Hand, till he came to the northern Shore, and ſo have eſcap'd. Or if the Sea had drown'd them in this Manner, the Tide muſt have carried them to the northern Coaſt, and ſo the Iſraelites could never have ſeen one of them upon the Shore. Beſides, it is certain, that Pharaoh did not come upon them at the Ebb, but at the Flood, and had deſtroy'd them all, if the Pillar of the Cloud and thick Darkneſs had not miraculouſly interpos'd, and prevented his Overtaking them. So that the People beholding Pharaoh's Approach cried out againſt Moſes, and altogether deſpair'd of their Safety. And when Moſes pray'd to GOD for Help, he was anſwer'd by GOD, (s) Wherefore crieſt thou to me? Speak unto the children of Iſrael, that they go forward. But lift thou up thy rod, and ſtretch out thy hand over the ſea, and divide it. And it was ſo contrary to all their Expectations, that (t) when Iſrael ſaw that great work, which the LORD did upon the Egyptians, the people feared the LORD, and believed the LORD and his ſervant Moſes. And therefore the Account which Moſes gives us will ſtand the Teſt, if we only conſider the Situation of the River. The Courſe below where the Iſraelites paſs'd was from Eaſt to Weſt, and the River large; where they paſs'd the Courſe was northward, and then it turn'd toward the Northweſt for between twenty and thirty Miles, where it ended, and was encompaſs'd with the Shore. Now Moſes ſaith, (u) that the LORD cauſed the ſea to go back by a ſtrong eaſt wind all that night, and made the ſea dry land, and the waters were divided. As (x) a Space of two Miles was ſufficient to open a Paſſage for the Iſraelites; ſo it is probable, that this violent Wind extended it ſelf no farther, but it was perfectly calm on both Sides thereof, and blew from the main Land of Arabia. Had it extended it ſelf to the North, it would have brought down the Waters from the Tongue of the Red-Sea to the Shore where the Iſraelites lay. Had it extended it ſelf South to the Red-Sea, it would have driven up the Waters, and made it more unpaſſable. Beſides, no other Wind could have ſerv'd ſo well for this Purpoſe. A north Wind would have driven all the Waters downward, and left none behind. A ſouth Wind would have fill'd the Sea higher inſtead of Falling it. A weſt Wind might have dried the Shore, where the Iſraelites were; but then they would be apprehenſive that the Waters lay on the oppoſite Shore, which muſt have prevented their Paſſing over. And therefore when they ſaw the Shore next them dried by a ſtrong eaſt Wind, it was a convincing Argument, that the oppoſite Shore muſt be dry, from whence the Wind blew, and therefore they could ſafely paſs over. Moſes therefore rightly tells us, (y) that the Waters were divided, and were as a wall to the Iſraelites on their right hand and on their left at a due Diſtance. The Waters caſt on the others raiſed them higher; and the Iſraelites being in the Bottom were ſo much the lower. So that when (x) Let us ſuppoſe, that there were 600000 Men, 600000 Women, and 300000 Children, the total would be 1500000. Now in a Mile there are 1760 Yards, which multiplied by it ſelf, ſhews that there are 3097600 Yards in a ſquare Mile, which doubled is 6195200 Yards in all, and this is above four Times the Number of the Men, Women and Children, according to the largeſt Computation. So that a Space of one Mile broad, and two Miles long, would have held the whole Company, and have allowed a Square of ſix Feet, or two Yards to each of them, which is much more than would be ſufficient for their Marching. (y) Exod. 14. 21.

the Egyptians found their Error, they ſaid, (z) Let us flee from the face of Iſrael; for the LORD fighteth for them againſt the Egyptians: and then they fled back toward the Shore, where they enter'd; and before they came thither, the Waters were join'd near the Shore, ſo that (a) the Egyptians fled directly to them, and ſo they were all overwhelm'd. Thus the Waters came rolling from the one Shore to the other, and drove the dead Bodies along to the oppoſite Shore, and afterward ebb'd away and left them there, in the ſight of the Iſraelites. So that notwithſtanding all the Cavils which have been rais'd, their Paſſage happen'd to be truly miraculous, and exactly as Moſes hath deſcrib'd it.

CHAP. V.

The Concluſion.

IN Reading the Hiſtorical Part of this Book, there are ſeveral things occurring, which may ſuggeſt to us the divine Authority of the ſacred Scriptures, from whence we originally have it. The hiſtorical Part was never juſtly excepted againſt, and it hath ſtood the Teſt of the greateſt Criticks in all Ages. Many heathen Writers give an Account of moſt of theſe Facts, as may be fully ſeen in ſeveral of our learned Commentators, and others, who have written on theſe Subjects. Here is nothing trifling or romancing, but the whole is ſolid, and cloſe to the Purpoſe. The uninſpir'd Jews, who write of theſe things, fill their Writings with ſo many Fables, as do juſtly call in Queſtion the Truths, which they mention; and the Arabians generally follow the ſame Method. Mahomet in his Alcoran hath ſtudiouſly endeavour'd to add to the ſacred Story many Inventions of his own Brain, that ſo he might paſs for a divinely inſpir'd Writer; but his Additions are ſo trifling and impertinent, as do plainly betray the Impoſtor to any unprejudic'd Reader, and of this his (a) Hiſtory of Joſeph (to omit all other Inſtances) is ſufficient to detect him. In Scripture where any thing is miraculous, it is plainly related as ſuch, and appears ſo to be; and all the other Parts ſhew their own Probability. Here we find how the Ages of Men gradually declin'd. From the Beginning of the World to the Flood Men lived above nine hundred Years, after that it was ſhortned to five hundred, and then to three hundred. Terah the Father of Abraham was (b) two hundred and five Years old when he died; and (c) the Patriarchs Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob were about an hundred and eighty. Joſeph, Levi, Moſes, and Joſhua, were (d) about an hundred and twenty Years of Age at their Deaths, and after that the Age of Man ſeems to be ſhortned, to what it is at this Time. Now no other Book gives us ſuch an Account, and it was the Effect of an infinite Wiſdom to tranſmit it to us, that we might know the Method whereby GOD's Providence peopled the World ſo ſoon after the Flood; and how it came afterward not to increaſe ſo faſt, as it did at firſt. And it will ſerve as a Guide to the true Antiquities of other Nations, by Comparing the Ages of their Lives with thoſe which are mention'd in Scripture, as is plain from the Examples of the Egyptians, Chineſe, Babylonians, Germans and others. The Account which (e) Moſes gives, when the Canaanite was alone in the Land of Canaan, and when the Perizzite was alſo there, ſhews us the Time when ſome of them firſt return'd from the Egyptian Wars, and conſequently is a corroborating Circumſtance to fix the Hiſtory of that Nation according to the Tables of Eratoſthenes and Manetho, and the Obſervations of our Learned Archbiſhop Uſher, and Biſhop Cumberland. And it is alſo obſervable, that every Age makes freſh Diſcoveries, and every Diſcovery does farther confirm to us, that ſuch Texts were written by divine Inſpiration. Beſides, the (f) Propheſies of Jacob, as recorded by Moſes, could be dictated by none but him, who knew all things before they came to paſs. Jacob ſpoke of them above two hundred Years before Moſes wrote them down, and Moſes wrote them down before they were accompliſh'd. Some of them tell the conſtant State of each Tribe from their firſt Settlement to the End. Others tell us what ſoon happen'd, as the Settlement of the Tribes; others what happen'd later, as in the Days of Jephthah and Sampſon, the early Battles of Benjamin, and what they did in the Time of the Perſian Monarchy; the Valour of the Tribe of Judah in their firſt Conqueſts, and that the MESSIAH ſhould be of that Tribe in the latter Days. It was impoſſible to foretel, without a divine Spirit, that one Part of the Tribe of Zabulon ſhould lie on the Lake of Tiberias, and the other Part near Zidon, eſpecially ſince the Direction was (g) to divide the Land by Lot, which (h) was done accordingly. And tho' it might have been foreſeen, that the (i) Tribe of Levi, to whom the Prieſthood was annexed, ſhould have no diſtinct Inheritance, but be ſcatter'd among the reſt of the Tribes; yet it was impoſſible for human Underſtanding to foreſee, that this would be the Caſe of Simeon, who had (k) a Lot, and conſequently an equal Title with the reſt of his Brethren, to that which was allotted for him. And therefore the Accompliſhment of theſe things cannot but force a Confeſſion from the moſt obſtinate, That GOD was the immediate Author of theſe Writings.

2. Beſides,

2. Beſides, When we rightly conſider it, we ſhall find, that no one but an all-knowing Being could inſtitute either the Sabbath, or the Paſſover, in ſuch a Manner, as it was inſtituted in the Writings of Moſes. As the Sabbath was appointed at the Creation to be obſerv'd on the firſt Day of Adam's Life, or the firſt Day of the Week; ſo far it was a Commemoration of what was paſt, or GOD's Reſting after the Creation, and a Sign of what was to come, or of the Chriſtian Sabbath, and therefore appointed by that GOD, who not only knew that CHRIST ſhould riſe from the Dead, but alſo knew that it ſhould be on this Day of the Week, above four thouſand Years before it happen'd, and alſo that thereby he ſhould ſet apart this Day to be obſerv'd in all Chriſtian Congregations to the End of the World. As the Sabbath was given to the Children of Iſrael, and obſerv'd on Saturday the twenty-firſt Day of the firſt Month, when they ſaw their Enemies dead upon the Sea-Shore; ſo it was appointed as a Day of Praiſe and Thankſgiving in Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt. But as it was a Day of extraordinary Reſt from all ſorts of Labours; ſo far it was a Type of CHRIST's Reſting in the Grave. This is plain from what the Apoſtle ſaith, (m) Let no man judge you in reſpect of the ſabbath days, which are a ſhadow of things to come, but the body is of CHRIST. And there were two Ceremonies in it, which made it more reaſonable for this Purpoſe; The one is (n) the ſtrict Reſt, which they were commanded to obſerve in theſe Words, Abide ye every man in his place; let no man go out of his place on the ſabbath-day. And ſo the people reſted upon this day, which look'd as if all were dead. The other is (o) the Prohibition, that they ſhould kindle no fire throughout their habitations upon the ſabbath-day, becauſe this look'd like a Raiſing of ſomething from the Dead, and therefore muſt be deferr'd until the Day following, ſo that it could not be inſtituted but by him, who knew at ſuch a Diſtance of Time, that this was to be the Day of the Week; in which CHRIST ſhould reſt in the Grave, and that the Day following he ſhould be raiſed to Life again.

3. And ſecondly, The Paſſover could not be inſtituted but by an all-knowing GOD. As it related to things paſt, it was an evident Commemoration of the Deliverance of the Iſraelites out of Egypt. And as it related to things to come, it was an evident Type of the Death of CHRIST; and therefore St. Paul ſaith, (p) that CHRIST our paſſover is ſacrificed for us. Thus to inſtance in Particulars, (q) a Lamb was to be taken out of the Flock; ſo was CHRIST true and very Man like unto us. This Lamb (r) was to be ſet apart for this Purpoſe; and CHRIST alone was appointed for our Mediator. The Lamb (s) was to be without Blemiſh; and CHRIST alone was without Sin. The Lamb (t) was to be ſlain and roaſted; and CHRIST ſuffer'd and died. They (u) were not to break any Bone of it; and the ſame was fulfill'd in CHRIST. The Lamb was to be (x) ſlain in the Evening, Between the two Evenings, or the firſt Declining and Setting of the Sun, that is, at three of the Clock in the Afternoon, or as the Jews expreſs it, about the ninth hour; and this was the preciſe Time when CHRIST died. The Poſts were to be ſprinkled with (y) the Blood of the Lamb; and the Satisfaction of CHRIST muſt be imputed to us. The (z) Deſign of the Paſſover was, that the Deſtroyer might paſs over the Iſraelites Houſes, and not hurt them; and the Deſign of CHRIST's Death was, that we might be deliver'd from everlaſting Death. The Lamb (a) was to be eaten in every Family; and there muſt be in every Man an Application of the Death of CHRIST to himſelf by Faith. The Lamb (b) was to be eaten all; and we muſt take CHRIST for our Saviour upon all the Terms, upon which he is pleas'd to offer himſelf to us. The Lamb (c) was to be eaten without leavened Bread, and what we do muſt be done without Pride and Hypocriſy. The Lamb (d) was to be eaten with bitter Herbs; and we muſt be patient and expect Afflictions. The Lamb (e) was to be eaten haſtily in the Habit of Travellers; and we muſt live, as if we had here no abiding City, and did ſeek for one that is to come. The Lamb was to (f) be eaten only by circumciſed Perſons; and they alone who are baptized, have a Right to the Privileges of the Goſpel, or to receive the LORD's Supper. He therefore who appointed this Ordinance under the Law, well knew all thoſe Circumſtances which happen'd at the Death of CHRIST, and all the Conditions of (g) the new Covenant, which he would make with his People under the Goſpel, and therefore he muſt be GOD. Theſe Inſtitutions alſo ſhew, that the Appointer of them knew, that CHRIST ſhould riſe again on the third Day from the Dead, which being to be the Chriſtian Sabbath, was to be on a Sunday, and conſequently that he was to be crucify'd on a Friday. Thus (b) in the Sacrifice of the Peace-Offering, which was a Type of the ſame Nature with the other, the Offerer was to eat of it on the ſame day that it was offered, and on the morrow the remainder of it was to be eaten, and ſo long it was a Type of CHRIST, who was on thoſe two Days ſubject to the Power of Death. But if any of the ſacrifice of the peace-offerings was eaten at all on the third Day, it ſhould not be accepted, neither ſhould it be imputed to him that offered it; becauſe it was no longer a Type of him, who was on this Day perfectly freed from Death: and therefore it was to be an abomination, and the ſoul that eat of it muſt bear his iniquity. And as the Author of theſe Books knew that CHRIST was to die on a Friday, to reſt in the Grave on a Saturday, and to riſe from the Dead on a Sunday; ſo he alſo knew, that this very Friday would happen (i) on the fourteenth day of the firſt Month, or the fourteenth Day after the firſt Appearance of the Moon at the Change; which depending on many minute Circumſtances, could not be known at ſuch a Diſtance in the Days of Moſes, but by the Creator of Heaven and Earth, who at the Beginning gave to the Sun and Moon thoſe Laws of Motion which they were to obſerve to the End of the World, and who alone knew them at that Time, and therefore theſe Books of Moſes could be dictated by none but GOD alone.

4. It might be a Satisfaction to ſuch, who ſcruple the Taking of an Oath before a Magiſtrate in ſerious and weighty Matters, to conſider, that (k) Abraham requir'd it of his Servant, and (l) Jacob of his Son, and Abraham (m) alſo ſwore unto Abimelech; from which Oath the Place was call'd Beerſheba, which was alſo a Place, where Abraham planted a Grove for religious Worſhip, and where he call'd on the Name of the LORD the everlaſting GOD; and if we conſider how readily the Ceremony of Putting the Hand under the Thigh was comply'd with in thoſe Days, it may teach us more readily to comply with thoſe innocent Ceremonies, which are now us'd according to the Cuſtom of the Country wherein we live.

5. The (n) Planting of Groves, Building of Altars, and Dedicating of Pillars is an Argument, that in thoſe early Times they had not only ſet Days and Seaſons, but alſo ſet Places dedicated to the Worſhip of GOD; and tho' the Time is in a great Meaſure by divine Inſtitution, yet the Place cannot be appointed but by human Authority, and ought to be ſuch a Place, as is in all Reſpects convenient for ſuch a Purpoſe. And we may obſerve from (o) Abraham's Purchaſing the Cave of Machpelah from Ephron the Hittite for a Poſſeſſion of a Burying-Place; and from (p) Abraham and Sarah, Iſaac and Rebeccah, Jacob, Leah and Joſeph being bury'd there by the expreſs Deſire of (q) ſome of them; that there ought to be Burying-Places ſet apart, where People may be decently interred, and alſo in ſuch a Manner, that the neareſt Relations may lie near to each other.

6. There are but two Chronological Diſlocations in all this ſacred Hiſtory, which is (r) the Account of Judah and his Family, the (s) Beginning whereof happen'd a little before (t) the Defilement of Dinah, and (u) the other Part ſoon after (x) the Selling of Joſeph into Egypt. However it is all laid together, that the whole Story may be related at once: And tho' ſome things contain'd in it did not happen until after the Story mention'd in the next Chapter; yet it was very proper to place it where it is, that Judah's Misfortune in his Family being mention'd immediately after the Sale of Joſeph (for (y) he was the chief Adviſer in it) may teach us, that GOD puniſheth us for our Sins in ſuch a Manner, as we leaſt can foreſee. Judah had occaſion'd Trouble to his Father for the ſuppos'd Loſs of his Son Joſeph, and now he is troubled with the real Loſs of his own Children. And he was unfortunate as a Father, who had been ſo unnatural as a Brother. And we may add to this, that Judah's Sinning with his Daughter-in-Law, and Joſeph's not Sinning with his Miſtreſs, being plac'd together in the two (z) ſucceſſive Chapters, may teach us, how juſt it is with GOD, when we tranſgreſs his Laws, to leave us to our ſelves, and ſuffer us to fall from one Sin to another; but if like Joſeph (a) we ſet GOD before our Eyes, he will preſerve us under the ſtrongeſt Temptations, that none ſhall hurt us.

7. Tho' the Story of the Inſtitution of the Paſſover is mention'd after the three Days Darkneſs, yet it was inſtituted before; and perhaps before the Plague of the Hail or of the Locuſts came. For as ſoon as the Plague of Darkneſs was over, and any Egyp- tian could ſtir, Pharaoh (b) ſends for Moſes, and after ſome ſmart Speeches between them, Moſes tells him of the Slaughter of the firſt-born, and (c) that it ſhould be the very next Night. So that the Darkneſs did but end on the Morning of the Paſſover-Day, or the fourteenth Day of the Month, and it had been on the Egyptians the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth Days. Now the Command for Obſerving the Paſſover was (d) given to Moſes on or before the tenth Day of the Month; and ſome think on the firſt Day, when the Year was alſo chang'd. So that the Reaſon why the Account of the Inſtitution of the Paſſover is laid after this Plague, is, becauſe the HOLY GHOST was willing to place the whole Story of it together. And tho' the Command for it, and the Obſervation of it, were at ſome Days Diſtance; yet the Account of its Inſtitution is very properly mention'd at the Time of its Obſervation, which was on Saturday the fourteenth Day of the firſt Month.

From the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to the Birth and Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR.

FROM the Departure of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, to the Year of the real Birth of CHRIST, or Year 00, were 1491 Years; to the Year of his Birth according to the vulgar Computation were 1495 Years; and to the Year of his Crucifixion were 1528 Years.

The Proof of this will be the Subject of the remaining Part of this Treatiſe in the Beginning of each reſpective Book, according to the following Method.

From the Departure of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, to the (a) Laying of Solomon's Temple in the fourth Year of his Reign, were 480 Years.

From whence ſubtract 4 Years.

And conſequently from the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, were 476 Years.

The Iſraelites wander'd in the (b) Wilderneſs 40 Years.

Therefore from the Iſraelites Entrance into Canaan, to the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, were 436 Years.

Solomon reign'd (c) 40 Years.

From the Beginning of his Reign, to the Foundation of the Temple, were 4 Years.

Therefore from the Foundation of the Temple, to the End of his Reign, were 36 Years.

From the (d) firſt Taking of Jeruſalem in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, and the Captivity of the Jews, which follow'd thereupon, until their Return in the firſt Year of Cyrus were 70 Years.

But

But from the laſt Taking of Jeruſalem in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, and the Captivity of the Jews, which follow'd thereupon, and when (e) Ezekiel's 390 Years were accompliſh'd from the Setting up of the golden Calves by Jeroboam, until their Return in the firſt Year of Cyrus were only 50 Years.

So that theſe things conſider'd, the remaining Epochas may ſtand thus:

From the Departure of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, were 40 Years.

From the Iſraelites Entring into the Land of Canaan, to the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, were 436 Years.

From the Beginning of Solomon's Reign, to the Laying the Foundation of the Temple, were 4 Years.

From the Laying of the Foundation of the Temple, to the Death of Solomon, were 36 Years.

From the Death of Solomon, to the Setting up of the Golden Calves, was 1 Year.

From the Setting up of the Golden Calves, to the firſt Captivity of the Jews, from whence the ſeventy Years were computed, were 370 Years.

From the firſt Captivity of the Jews to the laſt, where Ezekiel's 390 Years ended, were 20 Years.

From the laſt Captivity of the Jews, to their Return out of Babylon, were 50 Years.

From their Return out of Babylon to the Birth of CHRIST, according to the vulgar Account, were 535 Years.

And therefore from the Departure out of Egypt, to the Birth of CHRIST, according to the vulgar Account, were 1495 Years.

But as our SAVIOUR was born four Years ſooner than the vulgar Account; ſo ſubtract 4 Years,

And then from the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to the Time of his real Birth, were 1491 Years.

And as he was crucify'd in the thirty third Year of his Age according to the vulgar Computation; ſo to 1495 Years

Add 33 Years.

And then the Total, from the Departure out of Egypt to the Time of our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion, were 1528 Years.

The vulgar Year of CHRIST 1495, being added to that in the former Table of 2513 Years, proves, that the vulgar Year of CHRIST's Birth was in the Year of the World 4008, and conſequently that there were 4007 Years between the Day, in which the World was created Anno Mundi 1. and the ſame Day of the Year in the Year of the Birth of CHRIST, according to the common Computation, and as it is plac'd in all theſe Tables.

And as the vulgar Year of our SAVIOUR's Birth was in the Year of the Julian Period 4713;

So from thence ſubſtract 4307 Years,

The Remainder is 706, which is the Year of the Julian Period, in which the World was created, Anno Mundi 1.

CHAP. II.

From the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to their Paſſing over Jordan.

FROM the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to their Paſſing over Jordan, were forty Years; which (a) Space of Time is ſo frequently mention'd in the Scriptures, that it will admit of no Diſpute. That theſe forty Years do not begin from (b) the Time, when the Threatning was given, or about a Year and an half after their Departure out of Egypt, but from the very Time of their Departure, will be evident, Firſt, becauſe they (c) went out of Egypt on the fifteenth Day of the firſt Month, after they had kept the Paſſover, and (d) at the ſame Time of the Year they enter'd into Canaan. Secondly, The (e) Children of Iſrael were fed with Manna forty Years. This (f) was from their Coming into the Wilderneſs on the fifteenth Day of the ſecond Month after their Departure out of Egypt, until (g) their firſt Paſſover in Canaan. Thirdly, Moſes was (h) eighty Years of Age, when he deliver'd GOD's Meſſage to Pharaoh, and (i) at the End of the fortieth Year, even (k) when he died, he was but an hundred and twenty Years old.

(a) Exod. 16. 35. Num. 14. 33, 34. Num. 32. 13. Deut. 2. 7. Deut. 8. 2, 4. Deut. 29. 5. Joſh. 5. 6. Nehem. 9. 21. Pſal. 95. 10. Amos 2. 10, and 5. 25. Acts 7. 36, 42. 2. This Sum of forty Years being added to that of 2513, in the End of the former Table, makes 2553 Years; which proves, that the Children of Iſrael enter'd into the Land of Canaan in the 2553d Year from the Creation.

3. There are three Perſons, the Fixing of whoſe Births will explain ſome Paſſages in the preſent and future Hiſtory. The firſt is Caleb the Son of Jephunneh. Of this there is no Difficulty. He tells us, (l) that he was forty years old, when Moſes ſent him to ſpy out the land of Canaan. This being in the Year 2514, he muſt be born in the Year 2474. And as he was (m) fourſcore and five Years old, when Joſhua began to conſider of Dividing the Land, ſo it is plain, that (n) they did not conquer it at once, but it took up the Space of about ſix Years.

4. The ſecond is Joſhua the Son of Nun. It is probable, that he died in the Beginning of the ſame Year, when Cuſhan Riſhathaim the Aſſyrian Emperor (o) began to oppreſs the Iſraelites, which our Learned Prelate makes to be in the Year 2591, ſo that as he was (p) 110 Years of Age when he died, he muſt be born in the Year 2481, and conſequently muſt be about 32 Years of Age, when he came out of Egypt, and therefore (q) he is call'd a young man about the Middle of the ſame Year, which is the utmoſt Age, in which any one was call'd by this Name in thoſe Times, and he could not be leſs, becauſe he was (*) the General of the Iſraelitiſh Army againſt the Amalekites at the ſame Time. He was therefore about three and thirty Years of Age when he went to ſpy out the Land, and 78 Years of Age when their (r) Wars were ended, and GOD gave them Reſt from all their Enemies, and they began to divide the Land when he is ſaid to be old, and ſtriken in Years. And the (s) Exhortation of Joſhua to the People immediately before his Death was thirty two Years after that, which is ſaid to happen a long time after the LORD had given reſt unto Iſrael from all their enemies round about. And therefore tho' the Iſraelites grew worſe and worſe; yet it is probable, that they corrupted themſelves in the Time of Joſhua, when he was old, and not ſo capable of Governing; which made him not only to admoniſh them ſo ſeriouſly to cleave unto the LORD, by a Repetition of former Benefits, and by Promiſes and Threatnings, but alſo (t) to make a Covenant with them, and ſet up a Stone for a Witneſs. And therefore tho' Judah headed (u) the twelve Tribes againſt the Canaanites, and (x) the Tribe of Joſeph acted bravely, yet (y) they could not drive out the Inhabitants of the Land, becauſe at the Death of Joſhua, Cuſhan Riſhathaim invaded them, aſſiſted their Enemies, and even (z) brought them into Subjection for ſome Time.

5. The third is (a) Nahſhon. He was (b) a principal Perſon in the Tribe of Judah, and their Standard Bearer in the ſecond Year after their Coming out of Egypt; and therefore we may ſuppoſe him to be at that Time about forty Years of Age, which was the Age of Caleb, and a fit Age for ſuch an Employment, and therefore might be born about the Year 2475. His Great Grandfather Hezron (c) was born about three Years before the Going down into Egypt, in the Year 2295; ſo that there is the Space of 180 Years for three Generations, or 60 for one. And conſequently his Grandfather Aram might be born about the Year 2355, and his Father Aminadab about the Year 2415. His Son Salmon (d) was in all Probability born in the Wilderneſs, and enter'd into the Land of Canaan, where he married Rahab, (who (e) hid the Spies) after the Taking of Jericho, by whom he is ſuppos'd to (f) have been the Father of Boaz mention'd ſo much in the Book of Ruth, about two and forty Years after the Paſſage over Jordan, or in the Year of the World 2595; all which Accounts have nothing of Improbability in them, and therefore may ſerve for a farther Confirmation of the Scripture Chronology.

6. The Tabernacle being ſet up on the firſt Day of the ſecond Year after the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, namely, on the firſt Day of the Month Niſan, the Orders and Rules were given concerning the Sacrifices, and the Conſecration of the Prieſts; and the eight Days of their Conſecration and Sacrifices were accompliſh'd before the Time came, when the Paſſover was to be kept by a former Command given in Egypt, and by a ſecond Command given in the Wilderneſs. On this fourteenth Day of the firſt Month, which was the proper Day for the Paſſover, ſome Men, becauſe they were unclean, could not obſerve it; and upon their Acquainting Moſes with their Caſe, he preſently brings them an Order (g) to keep it on the fourteenth Day of the next Month, and we have no Reaſon to doubt, but they obſerv'd it accordingly, even as (h) it was afterward obſerv'd in the Time of Hezekiah. Thus the Tranſlation of this Feaſt a Month beyond its proper Time, did rather enforce the Sig-

nificancy of things to come than of things paſt, as rather commemorating the Death of CHRIST than their Deliverance out of Egypt, when it happen'd not to be on that very Night.

7. When GOD had poſitively declar'd, that (i) the Iſraelites ſhould wander forty Years in the Wilderneſs, and that all of them, except Joſhua and Caleb, ſhould die there, and when he did thus cut ſhort the Age of Man, to what it is at this Time, then Moſes (k) penn'd a melancholy Pſalm, in which he tells us, how they were conſum'd by GOD's Anger for their Impieties. And now Man's Age is come to ſeventy or eighty Years (after which there is only Labour and Sorrow) inſtead of thoſe Hundreds, which they liv'd before.

8. Here we may obſerve, that as Sin at firſt brought Death into the World; ſo Sin did afterward ſhorten the Age of Man. Before (l) the Flood the Patriarchs liv'd almoſt to a thouſand Years. But the Sin, which brought the Flood, took away one half of Man's Age, ſo that they, who were born afterward, (m) never attain'd to the Age of five hundred. At the Confuſion of Babylon it was ſhortned again in the ſame Manner; ſo that (n) none born after that Time liv'd up to two hundred and fifty, as it is eaſy to obſerve by Computing thoſe Ages. After the Death of the Patriarchs, when the true Worſhip of GOD was very much declin'd in their Families, and the reſt of Mankind were overrun with Superſtition and Idolatry, the Life of Man was ſhortned again; ſo that we read of none born ſince, who exceeded an hundred and five and twenty. Neither did the Ages of Men ſtand at that Meaſure; but at the frequent Murmurings and Provokings of GOD in the Wilderneſs, a third Part more, or thereabout was cut off from the Age of Man, and the common Stint of Man's Life was brought to ſeventy or eighty Years, or thereabout, or more particularly to 83 or 84 Years, which very few exceeded, and which Moſes ſpeaks of in the before-mention'd Pſalm, compos'd upon that Occaſion. And tho' the Sins of Mankind have been very great and univerſal ſince that Time; yet the Age of Man's Life hath not been ſhortned any more; becauſe a ſhorter Space would hardly have been ſufficient for the Finding out and Improvement of Arts and Sciences, as well as for other Reaſons.

CHAP. III.

Of the Sabbatical Year.

AND now, as we have brought the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt into the Wilderneſs under the Conduct of Moſes, who afterward deliver'd to them not only the Moral, but alſo the Judicial and Ceremonial Law, which laſt conſiſted in ſeveral Types and Repreſentations of their MESSIAH or our JESUS, who was then to come; ſo it will be requiſite to conſider, what Types they had, which could point out unto us not only in general the Tranſactions of his Life, but alſo by a conſtant Chronological Revolution, could foreſhew the Years in which ſome of the moſt remarkable Paſſages ſhould happen; and among them there are two, which will deſerve our Thoughts, namely, their Sabbatical Year, or Year of Reſt, and their Year of Jubilee, or Year of Rejoicing.

2. The Sabbatical Year being appointed once in ſeven Years, and the Year of Jubilee being appointed to be the fiftieth Year, it hath made moſt Commentators incline to this Opinion, that the Sabbatical Years were included in the Years of Jubilee, as Parts in the whole, and that they did always begin and end together. According to this Account, the Year of Jubilee happen'd once in every forty nine Years, and both the Years of Jubilee, or the firſt and the laſt, were included in the fifty, according to a Way of Speaking very common among the Jews. If this is the true Account, then as (a) both the Sabbatical Year and (b) the Year of Jubilee were Years, in which they were neither to reap their Corn, nor gather in their Grapes; it would be impoſſible, that two ſuch Years ſhould come together, and yet (c) the contrary is plainly intimated, where GOD having injoin'd theſe two Reſts, promiſeth a Bleſſing upon the Obſervance of them. If they did obſerve his Statutes, and keep his judgments, and do them, then they ſhould dwell in the land in ſafety. But leſt when two ſuch Years did come together, they ſhould doubt the Providence of GOD to provide for them, he promiſeth, that he would preſerve them by a more immediate Care.

(a) Lev. 25. 5. (b) Lev. 25. 11. (c) Lev. 25. 20, 21, 22.

For

For then (ſaith he) I will command my bleſſing on the ſixth year, and it ſhall bring forth fruit for three years. And if he did thus provide for them in extraordinary Caſes, which could happen but (d) twice in three hundred and fifty Years, they might certainly depend upon him in the ordinary Courſes, when they had Liberty to ſow in the eighth Year, as well as when they were forc'd to eat of the old fruit until the ninth Year; for in all theſe Caſes, until the fruits came in, they ſhould eat of the old ſtore. Beſides, whilſt the Notion of the Sabbatical Years being included in the Year of Jubilee laſted, there was no Uſe made of theſe Epochas in Chronology; and the Learned Dr. Prideaux, in his Preface to his Hiſtorical Connexion of the Writings of the Old and New Teſtament, plainly affirms, that it was beyond his Skill. But this is in Effect to render thoſe divine Inſtitutions wholly needleſs, as if they had not been communicated to us by one, who is infinite in Wiſdom. Whereas, by Fixing theſe different Epochas in different Years, and Carrying on both diſtinctly, I hope to make it evident, that even thoſe Times and Seaſons, being Part of the Ceremonial Law, ſerve with the reſt, as (e) Schoolmaſters to bring us to CHRIST; That they are of excellent Uſe in Chronology, and worthy of the Appointment of him who hath plac'd the Times and Seaſons in his own Power, and that they do directly point out unto us the Years of our SAVIOUR's Nativity and Crucifixion.

3. To begin therefore with the Sabbatical Year. It is very evident, that among the Jews the ſeventh Day was a Day of Reſt, and alſo that the ſeventh Year was a Year of Reſt. One Day in ſeven took its Riſe from the Creation of the World, according to the Example of GOD himſelf, who in ſix days made heaven and earth, the ſea and all that therein is, and reſted the ſeventh day. Wherefore the LORD bleſſed a ſeventh day (for ſo I ſhall venture to tranſlate it) and hallowed it. But as the Year was alter'd, when the (f) Iſraelites came out of Egypt, from one Month to another; ſo the Sabbath was likewiſe alter'd from one Day to another. This is plain from what hath been already mention'd, more particularly from (g) the ſecond Repetition of the Law by Moſes, And remember, that thou waſt a ſervant in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out thence by a mighty hand, and by an out-ſtretched arm, therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee to keep the ſabbath day. But as the Paſſover did not only look back to the Deliverance of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, but alſo directed them to look forward to CHRIST our Paſſover, who at that Time was alſo crucify'd for us; ſo the Sabbath was not only a Memorial of Things paſt, but alſo a Sign of Things to come, and directed them to look to CHRIST, who on this Day reſted in the Grave. It is particularly ſaid of him in the Articles of our Creed, That the third day he roſe again from the dead. This Day, as all the four Evangeliſts tell us, was the Day after the Sabbath, or the firſt Day of the Week. On this Day he (h) appear'd to the two Diſciples going to Emmaus. On (i) the ſame Day of the Week he appear'd again to his Diſciples, and on that Day ſevennight he (k) confirm'd St. Thomas in the Faith of his Reſurrection. On the ſame Day of the Week the Apoſtles were (l) inſpir'd by the HOLY GHOST. This Day was call'd (m) the LORD's Day. And Athanaſius obſerves, that the Sabbath was chang'd by our LORD himſelf, and therefore all Chriſtians obſerve that Day, in which he their Maſter roſe from the Dead. It is very evident, that (n) CHRIST was crucify'd on the Day before the Jewiſh Sabbath, even the day of the preparation. That he (o) reſted in the Grave on the Day of the Jewiſh Sabbath, which was alſo a celebrated Feaſt, and (p) was particularly obſerv'd by the Diſciples. Thus the Jewiſh Sabbath was a Type of CHRIST's Reſting in the Grave on that Day, who accordingly by his Death fulfill'd the ſame, as it was typical, and by his Reſurrection he eſtabliſh'd another, which was to be of a perpetual Obligation. If then the Sabbath Day was typical, why not alſo the Sabbatical Year? If the one directed us to the Day of the ſeven, in which CHRIST was to reſt in the Grave, why may we not as well ſuppoſe, that the other might direct us to the Year of the ſeven, in which this happen'd. As therefore he reſted in the Grave on the Sabbath Day; ſo he reſted in the Grave on the Sabbatical Year, and thus he put an End to both theſe Types at once.

4. For the Proof of this we muſt inquire, when the Sabbatical Year began, and how long it was from thence unto the Death of CHRIST. As for the firſt Inquiry, we muſt take Notice, that the Command for Obſerving (q) a Sabbatical Year was given (r) with the reſt of the Levitical Law, at the Beginning of the ſecond Year after their Departure out of Egypt, or at the Vernal Equinox in the Year of the World 2514. The Obſervation of this Reſt conſiſted chiefly in two things, Firſt, in their not Tilling their Ground, nor Pruning their Vineyards, and not Gathering in the Fruits of the Earth, whence it was call'd (s) the Sabbath of the land. This could not be obſerv'd, until the Iſraelites (t) came into the Land of Canaan. Secondly, It conſiſted in the Creditors freely Diſcharging their Debtors, and Releaſing their Debts, even (u) as GOD for CHRIST's ſake hath forgiven us, and hence it was call'd, (x) The LORD's Releaſe, and was a Type of the full and free Forgiveneſs of Sins, and the Liberty which we obtain for the Sake of CHRIST our LORD, who on ſuch a Year as this made a full Satisfaction for all. And thus it might be obſerv'd (as no Doubt it was) as ſoon as the Command was given. The Reaſon of its Inſtitution was in Commemoration of their Deliverance out of the land of Egypt, and out of the houſe of bondage, and that (y) they might learn to do to others, even as GOD had done to them. And as this might be obſerv'd immediately; ſo they had greater Reaſon to obſerve it, when their own Deliverance was ſo freſh in their Memory. And therefore as the Jewiſh Sabbath was kept ſoon after their Departure out of Egypt; ſo the firſt Jewiſh Sabbatical Year was kept ſoon after the ſaid Departure. As to the Year, there are two things to be conſider'd, either the Time of the Year when it began, or the Year it ſelf. As to the Jewiſh Year, it is certain that it began at the Vernal Equinox in Reference to all things ſacred, by an expreſs (z) Command from GOD himſelf; but in civil Matters the former Method of Beginning at the Autumnal Equinox is ſuppos'd to have ſtill continu'd. And there is great Reaſon to think, that their Sabbatical Year began at that Time, when all their Harveſt was over, which began at the other Equinox. Then they were not to ſow, as they uſually did in October and the following Months, but to ſtay till the Return of the Seaſon the next Year. For if this Year had began in March, they could not have reaped that which they had ſown the Year before. But how to fix the Year it ſelf is a greater Difficulty, and can (I think) no otherwiſe be determin'd than by Conſidering, that as in Canaan it was a Reſt from Tilling, ſo in the Wilderneſs it muſt be a Reſt from Travelling and Working. Now the Iſraelites came out of Egypt in the Spring, and in the Year of the World 2513. Their firſt Year was (a) a Year of Travel to Succoth, to Etham, to Pihahiroth, to Marah, to Elim, to the Red-Sea, to Sin, to Dophkah, to Aluſh, and to Sinai. And tho' they continu'd there for ſome Time; yet they were conſtantly imploy'd in making the Tabernacle to the End of that Year. Their ſecond Year was alſo a Year of Travel (b) to Kibrothhattaavah, to Hazeroth, and to Rithmah, or Kadeſhbarnea, where they arrive about (c) the latter End of July, in the Year of the World 2514, and here they tarry (d) many Days, even a full Year, in the ſame Manner as they had tarried at Sinai, but without any Work to do. So that here was properly a Sabbatical Year to the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs. And as their Year of Jubilee, and their Sabbatical Year, being both of the ſame Nature, began in the ſeventh Month, or at Autumn; ſo this began not far from the ſame Time, and particularly continu'd at the Paſſover in the Year 2515. And it is difficult to aſſign any other Reaſon, why the Scripture is ſo poſitive in Mentioning this Year only, as a certain Year of Reſt to the Iſraelites, but that we ſhould take Notice of it as a Sabbatical Year, and compute from thence accordingly. Now from the Year 4041, when (as it will appear by theſe Tables) our SAVIOUR was crucify'd, let us ſubtract the firſt Sabbatical Year 2515, according as it is thus laid down in theſe Tables, and the Remainder is 1526, which being divided by ſeven, the Cycle of theſe Years, there is no Remainder. This ſhews, that our SAVIOUR was crucify'd in a Sabbatical Year; and thus the Type both of the Day and of the Year do anſwer exactly with the Antitype.

(d) That is, at the End of the fifth Jubilee, when the Sabbatical Year was the Year before it, and at the End of the ſeventh Jubilee, when the Sabbatical Year was the Year after it. (e) Gal. 3. 24. the

5. And now let us come into the Land of Canaan, and ſee when their firſt Sabbath of the land was obſerv'd. And here (e) the Words of Moſes muſt be our Guide. When ye ſhall come into the land, and ſhall have planted all manner of trees for food (which was the Work of the firſt Year) then ye ſhall count the fruit thereof as uncircumciſed; three years (excluſive of the firſt Year) ſhall it be as uncircumciſed unto you; it ſhall not be eaten of. But in the fourth year (excluſive of the firſt) all the fruit thereof ſhall be holy (or a Sabbatical Year) to praiſe the LORD withal. And in the fifth year ye ſhall eat the fruit thereof (then ye ſhall ſow and reap, then ye ſhall plant Vineyards, and gather in the Grapes, and then ye ſhall do all Manner of Husbandry) that the earth may yield unto you the increaſe thereof. I am the LORD your GOD. Now as the Iſraelites came out of the Land of Egypt in the Year of the World 2513; ſo they came into the Land of Canaan in the Year of the World 2553. This Year they planted Trees for Food; then the Years 2554, 2555, and 2556 were Years, in which they were not to eat thereof, and the Year 2557 was the Sabbatical Year. And the Command it ſelf ſhews, that it ought to be thus obſerv'd at their Entrance into the Land of Canaan. Now from the Year of the World 4041 let us (as before) ſubtract this Sabbatical Year 2557, and the Remainder is 1484; which being alſo divided by ſeven, or the Cycle of theſe Years, there is no Remainder, and ſo this like the other anſwers exactly to the Antitype. Thus all theſe Rites are Shadows of things to come, and plainly ſhew, that they were ordain'd by a moſt wiſe Being, who knew exactly at ſo great a Diſtance of Time the very Year, in which they ſhould all be fulfilled. And as GOD was pleas'd to number the Years ſo exactly for many Ages from the Creation; ſo hath he given us ſuch Signs as theſe by which we may know how to rectify them afterward.

6. Thus the Computation of the Sabbatical Years, tho' it is mention'd (f) by Moſes immediately before the Year of Jubilee, muſt not be reckon'd as a Part thereof, but as a diſtinct Epocha by it ſelf. It is (g) mention'd as diſtinct from the other, and to be at the End of every ſeven Years. And then the (h) Metaphor of a Sabbath, namely, always one in ſeven, is more clear and plain; and it will be of great Uſe to fix the Time of our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion.

7. This Computation of the Sabbatical Year may help us to fix the (i) fourteenth Year of King Hezekiah's Reign, to the Year of the World 3298, according as it is plac'd in theſe Tables. From the Year 3298, ſubtract the Sabbatical Year 2515, and the Remainder is 783, which being divided by ſeven the Remainder is 6, and ſhews it to be the Year before the Sabbatical Year. This Year the Aſſyrian Army being very great (ſince 180000 of them were deſtroy'd in one Night) had ravag'd the Country, ſpoil'd all their Tillage, and came near to Jeruſalem without any Oppoſition. Hezekiah praying, and ſending to Iſaiah, receives a comfortable Anſwer and a comfortable Sign. The Anſwer was, that the Aſſyrian Army ſhould not be able to do any Miſchief to Jeruſalem, but ſhould return with Shame into their own Land; and that GOD would protect and defend the City of Jeruſalem (at leaſt during the Life of Hezekiah) for his own Sake, and for his Servant David's Sake. And (k) this ſhould be a Sign unto them. Tho' the Country was ruin'd and plunder'd; yet the Earth of its own Accord ſhould bring forth a ſufficient Plenty: Ye ſhall eat this year, ſuch things as grow of themſelves. And tho' the next Year was the Sabbatical Year, in which they were not to ſow, nor reap, nor gather in their Vineyards; yet let them go on in their Duty, and GOD would provide for them, that they ſhould eat the next year, that which ſpringed up in the ſame Manner, and in this ſame Year. And as they ſhould experience the Truth of this Promiſe in the next Harveſt; ſo let them continue their Obedience to him, and his Providence would provide for them; ſo that in the third Year (when the Sabbatical Year was paſt) they ſhould enjoy ſuch a laſting Peace and Plenty, that they might ſow, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof.

8. This Computation may fix the Sabbatical Year (l) mention'd by the Prophet Jeremiah thus: In the eighth Year of Zedekiah, at the Autumnal Equinox, or the Year of the World 3417, the Sabbatical Year began; ſo that the Year 3418, was the Sabbatical Year. Thus if we ſubtract 2515, or the firſt Sabbatical Year, the Remainder will be 903, which being divided by 7, there is no Remainder, and conſequently proves it to have been the Sabbatical Year, which the Prophet mention'd. So that the Story is thus: At the Beginning of the Sabbatical Year in the eighth Year of Zedekiah's Reign, and the Year of the World 3417, (m) the princes and all the people having enter'd into a covenant, and having heard, that every one ſhould let his man ſervant, and every one his maid ſervant go free, and that none ſhould ſerve themſelves of them any more, they obeyed, and let them go. In the Beginning of the next Year, Anno Mundi 3418, (n) Zedekiah deſpiſes the oath, and breaks the covenant which he had made with the King of Babylon, and (o) ſends Ambaſſadors to Egypt, that he might be ſupply'd with an Army both of Horſe and Foot, and ſo (p) he rebels againſt the King of Babylon. The Princes and People, (q) puff'd up with great Expectations from Egypt, compel by Force the ſervants and the handmaids, whom they had let go free, to return, and brought them into ſubjection for ſervants and for handmaids. Upon this (r) the Prophet Jeremiah tells them of this Fault, and threatens the Sword, the Famine, and the Peſtilence as the Conſequences thereof, and alſo that Je- ruſalem ſhould be taken, and Zedekiah given to the King of Babylon's Army, which came to paſs accordingly; for (s) in the ſame Year, being the ninth Year of King Zedekiah's Reign, in the dead Time of Winter, the City was beſieg'd for a Year and an half, and afterward taken according as it had been foretold. Which Account agrees exactly with the Scripture Hiſtory, and what is mention'd by our beſt Chronologers, and fixes the Sabbatical Year at this Time.

9. And laſtly, this Computation may afford us ſome ſmall Light for the Fixing the Time between Jeroboam's making Iſrael to ſin, and the laſt Babyloniſh Captivity, when Jeruſalem was taken by a Siege. This Diſtance (t) is plainly ſhewn to be three hundred and ninety Years. Now (u) the ſeventy Years Captivity in Babylon ſo often mention'd in Scripture, began from the Time when Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon (x) came to Jeruſalem, and beſieg'd it, and which was in the third Year of Jehoiakim King of Judah, whom (y) GOD gave into his Hand, with Part of the Veſſels belonging to the Temple; and this was twenty Years before the laſt Captivity. For Jehoiakim (z) reigned eleven Years, ſo that two Years paſs'd before his Troubles began, and the laſt Captivity was (a) in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, who ſucceeded him at (b) three Months Diſtance. As therefore the nine laſt Years of Jehoiakim, and the eleven Years of Zedekiah added together, make twenty in the whole, and theſe ſubtracted out of the ſeventy Years, make it appear, that there were fifty Years from Zedekiah's Captivity to the Return from Babylon; and thus there ſeems to be fifty Sabbatical Years unobſerv'd, from the Time when Jeroboam firſt made Iſrael to ſin to the laſt Captivity, in the whole Space of the three hundred and ninety Years, which are (c) ſo plainly intimated in Scripture, and which may be reckon'd thus: In the three hundred and ninety Years aforeſaid, there were ſix and fifty Sabbatical Years in all, incluſive of the laſt, in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, when Jeruſalem was taken. They were all probably unobſerv'd, except (d) in the Reigns of Hezekiah and Joſiah. The firſt Year of Hezekiah's Reign, being a Sabbatical Year, could not be obſerv'd, the Reformation being but newly begun, the Ground having been plow'd the Year before, or perhaps the Harveſt being over before he began to reign. In (e) Hezekiah's nine and twenty Years Reign (f) one was obſerv'd, even in his fifteenth Year, by the Command of the Prophet Iſaiah. And as he doth not blame them for their former Non-obſervance; ſo this Silence is a tacit Confeſſion, that the other in his eighth Year was obſerv'd, and the Prophet only exhorts them to do as they had done before, notwithſtanding their preſent Difficulties; and thus, no Doubt, the other two were obſerv'd in the twenty ſecond, and in the laſt Year of Hezekiah's Reign. Joſiah reign'd (g) one and thirty Years. In the (h) eighteenth Year of his Reign the Book of the Law was found, upon which there was (i) a great Concern, becauſe the People had not acted according to it; and upon this the two following Sabbatical Years in the twentieth and twenty ſeventh Years of his Reign were obſerv'd, the People then knowing their Duty, but being ignorant of it before. Thus ſix were obſerv'd in all, and the other fifty were omitted, which (k) fifty Omiſſions were puniſh'd accordingly with fifty Years final Captivity; and ſo (l) the Land enjoy'd her Sabbaths, as Moſes had foretold.

CHAP. IV.

Of the Year of Jubilee.

AS the Paſſover points out unto us the Time of the Year, in which CHRIST was crucify'd; as the Feaſt of Weeks typify'd the Inſpiration of the Apoſtles; as the Sabbath Day among the Jews directed us to the Day of the Week, in which CHRIST reſted in the Grave, and the Sabbatical Year directed us to the Year of this Reſt; ſo the Feaſt of Tabernacles, typifying the Nativity of CHRST, directs us to the Time of the Year, and the Jubilee directs us to the Year, when it happen'd.

2. The

2. The Jubilee was the laſt Feſtival, which GOD commanded to be obſerv'd by the Jews. The Engliſh Word Jubilee is deriv'd from (a) the Hebrew, where it ſignifies ſometimes a Ram, and ſometimes only a Ram's Horn. Thus (b) in Joſhua, Seven prieſts ſhall bear before the ark ſeven trumpets of rams horns; where the Word (c) is us'd, and expounded by the Chaldee Paraphraſts, as it is in our Tranſlation.

3. There were five main Uſes of this Feaſt. Firſt, For the general Releaſe of Servants. Secondly, For the Reſtoring of Lands and Tenements to the firſt Owners, who formerly ſold them. Thirdly, Hereby a true Diſtinction of their Tribes and Families was preſerv'd, becauſe Lands return'd to their Owners in their proper Tribes, and Servants to their own Families; and hereby CHRIST was more eaſily prov'd to be of the Tribe of Judah, and of the Family of David according to the Promiſe. Fourthly, Some are of the Opinion, that as the Grecians did compute their Times by the Olympiads, the Pagan Romans by their Luſtra, and the Chriſtian Romans for ſome Time by the Indictions; ſo the Jews computed by the Jubilees, or at leaſt that it was ſo intended. Laſtly, It did myſtically ſhadow forth that ſpiritual Jubilee, which Chriſtians enjoy under the Goſpel by the Coming of CHRIST, by whom we have not only a Re-entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven, which we had all forfeited by our many Sins, (and this was ſignify'd by their Re-entrance upon their Lands formerly ſold) but alſo the Sound of the Goſpel, which in this Feaſt is typify'd to us by the Sound of the Trumpets, is gone throughout the World. Thus (d) the LORD hath blown the trumpet. But neither this Releaſe of Servants, nor the Reſtoring of Lands was until the tenth Day of the Month Tiſri, or five Days before the Feaſt of Tabernacles, at which Time it was proclaim'd by the Sound of the Rams Horns. The nine firſt Days of this Month the Servants feaſted, made merry, and wore Garlands in Token of their approaching Liberty. To theſe I ſhall add another Uſe, viz. It directs us to the Year of CHRIST's Nativity.

4. To prove this theſe three Particulars muſt be obſerv'd, Firſt, That CHRIST was born at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, which always follow'd the Sounding of the Jubilee. Secondly, He was born in the Year of Jubilee. And Thirdly, The firſt Jubilee was obſerv'd in the third Year after the Iſraelites enter'd the Land of Canaan, Anno 2555.

5. Firſt, CHRIST was born at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, which always follow'd the Sounding of the Jubilee, that is, in a Year when the Jubilee happen'd. The Sounding of the Jubilee was always on the tenth Day of the Month Tiſri, or the ſeventh Month, and the Feaſt of Tabernacles began on the fifteenth Day of the ſame Month.

6. This Month was ennobled in former Times, Firſt, (e) in this Month the World was created, and when Sin had enter'd into it, the Redeemer was promis'd, that he ſhould be born of a Woman. In this Month were all the Fathers born, who liv'd before the Flood, and all the Patriarchs, who were after, as the Jews generally aſſert, and not without ſome Reaſon. From this Month the Year began from the Creation of the World to the Redemption out of Egypt; and tho' the ſacred Year was alter'd, yet the civil Year continu'd the ſame. In this Month the Year of Jubilee began in the ſucceeding Ages. In this Month were theſe famous Solemnities, The Faſt of Expiation, and the Feaſts of Trumpets and Tabernacles. In this Month the Tables of the old Law were repair'd. For Moſes, after the Faſt of forty Days, comes down from the Mountain, a Meſſenger of good things to come, on the firſt Day of this Month, which was appointed to be the Feaſt of Trumpets in ſucceeding Ages. And ſuch glorious things as theſe may be alſo obſerv'd concerning the Feaſt of Tabernacles it ſelf. At that very Time (f) did the Iſraelites ſet about Making of the Tabernacle in the Wilderneſs, and at (g) that very Time was the Conſecration of Solomon's Temple. And it would be very ſtrange, if all theſe things were Types of nothing.

7. But ſecondly, A View of the Jewiſh Feaſts will help forward this Obſervation. Thoſe, which were of divine Inſtitution, were (h) only three, viz. The Feaſt of unleavened Bread, The Feaſt of Weeks, and The Feaſt of Tabernacles. And theſe were partly for Remembrance of things paſt, and partly for Types and Figures of things to come.

8. The Feaſt of the Paſſover was for a thankful Remembrance of the great Deliverance of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, when for Haſte they were forc'd to carry their Dough unleaven'd upon their Shoulders. And the Evening before, God having ſlain all the firſt-born of Egypt, preſerv'd the firſt-born of the Iſraelites, becauſe he ſaw the Blood of the Paſchal Lamb ſprinkled upon the Door-Poſts of their Houſes. For this Cauſe they were commanded to rejoice before the LORD their GOD, whenever that happy Time of the Year ſhould come, and to keep it holy in a peculiar Manner.

9. This Feaſt was alſo a Type and Figure of good Things to come, viz. Of our Deliverance from the Bondage of Sin and Satan by that immaculate Lamb CHRIST JESUS,

(a) יובל. (b) Joſh. 6. 4. (c) יובלים. (d) Zech. 9. 14. (e) Lightfoot, Vol. 1. Page 427. (f) Exod. 35. (g) 1 Kings 8. 2, and 2 Chron. 5. 3, and chap. 7. 8, 9, 10. (h) Deut. 16. 16, 17.

who was foreordain'd of GOD to be ſlain upon the Croſs for the Sins of the World on the ſame Month and Day; and whenever GOD ſhall behold this Blood of CHRIST apply'd by a lively Faith to the Soul of any Chriſtian, he will ſpare and not deſtroy it.

10. The ſecond Feaſt, or the Feaſt of Weeks or Pentecoſt, was, Firſt, For the Remembrance of the Law given at that Time upon Mount Sinai with Thundering and Lightning, and the Sound of a Trumpet from Heaven. And Secondly, For a Type of the Doctrine of the Goſpel, which was publiſh'd at the ſame Seaſon, when with a Sound from Heaven, cloven Tongues like Fire (i) fell upon the Apoſtles, and they were all filled with the HOLY GHOST.

11. As for the Feaſt of Tabernacles, the firſt End is plain, that it was a Memorial of the long Dwelling of the Iſraelites in (k) Tabernacles in the Wilderneſs. Ye ſhall dwell in booths (ſaith the LORD) all that are Iſraelites ſhall dwell in booths; That your generations may know, that I made the children of Iſrael to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt. I am the LORD your GOD.

12. But it is not ſo expreſs as in the former, of what things to come concerning CHRIST it was a Type. However we may judge thereof from (l) the Words of St. John, The Word was made fleſh, and dwelt (or fix'd his Tabernacle) among us. For ſo (m) the Word may ſignify. By this Expreſſion St. John ſeems plainly to intimate, That as the Paſſover was a Type of his Paſſion, and the Pentecoſt a Type of the Sending of the HOLY GHOST; ſo the Feaſt of Tabernacles ſhould be for a Type of his Incarnation, when the Divine Nature took our Fleſh as a Tabernacle to inhabit in, and the WORD of GOD became Immanuel, or GOD with us. For it is incredible, that this principal Feaſt ſhould not be a Type of ſome principal thing concerning CHRIST, as well as the reſt, it being as ſolemn as the other two, or rather the chief of the three. And there is nothing but his Incarnation and Nativity, which can be apply'd to it.

13. But to proceed to Particulars: The Inſtitution of the Feaſt of Tabernacles agrees excellently with the Time of CHRIST's Birth. For Firſt, When Moſes came down from the Mountain on the firſt Day of the Month Tiſri, and declar'd, that GOD was appeas'd, and the People pardon'd, his (n) Face ſhone, as if the Divinity had inhabited the Manhood, ſo that the Iſraelites could not look upon him; and he then gave Directions, that they ſhould immediately ſet about the Building of the Tabernacle (which was hitherto hinder'd by and becauſe of the golden Calf) ſeeing that GOD would now dwell among them, and forſake them no more. Upon this the People bring their Offerings, which were view'd and found to be ſufficient. And then immediately they pitch their Tents, knowing that they were not to depart from that Place, before the Divine Tabernacle was finiſh'd; and thus they ſet about this great Work with all their Might at this Time of the Year. Hence the fifteenth Day of this Month, and ſeven Days after, were appointed for the Feaſt of Tabernacles, in Commemoration of their Dwelling in Tents in the Wilderneſs, when GOD dwelt in the Midſt of them. And it ſeems very evident, that theſe things reſpect the Incarnation of CHRIST, when GOD dwelt among us in human Fleſh, with a very apt and typical Aſpect. And to this may allude the (o) many Expreſſions of GOD's Dwelling among the Children of Iſrael.

14. Secondly, The Reaſon, why (p) GOD was ſo punctual, that all things ſhould be made by Moſes according to the Pattern, which was ſhewn to him in the Mount, may probably be to ſhew us, That CHRIST JESUS, who took our Nature upon him, was the ſame, who before was ſeen by Saints and Angels in the higheſt Heavens.

15. Thirdly, This Feaſt had a more extraordinary Courſe of Sacrifices than either of the other, which ſeems more viſibly to point at the Time, when he, who was the Accompliſhment of them all, ſhould come in the Fleſh.

16. Fourthly, This Feaſt was of one Day's Continuance more than the reſt, this having eight feſtival Days, and the other two but ſeven. And it is not improbable, that the eighth Day was added to it, which was (q) a great day of the feaſt, as figuring the Time of his Circumciſion.

17. Fifthly, Another Cuſtom us'd at this Feaſt may alſo confirm this Opinion. For (r) whilſt they gather'd and carry'd the Boughs, whereof they made their Tabernacles, they uſually ſang a Kind of Litany, in which the People continually cry'd Hoſanna, Hoſanna, that is, Save now. This was ſo uſual, that in Time the Feaſt, and the Boughs, and all their Ceremonies, came to be call'd Hoſanna. Hence aroſe the Cry of the People in the Goſpel, when (s) they cut down Boughs to honour our SAVIOUR Riding upon an Aſs, Hoſanna to the Son of Da- vid, Hoſanna in the higheſt. For tho' it was at a different Time of the Year from the Feaſt of Tabernacles; yet the Carrying of Boughs put them in Mind of the accuſtom'd Acclamation at that Feaſt. All which ſeems to be order'd by the Providence of Almighty GOD, to ſhew, Firſt, What this Ceremony of Tabernacles aim'd at, namely, the Myſtery of our Redemption by GOD in the Tabernacle of our Fleſh, or the Incarnation of CHRIST, which is that which made him to be JESUS, a Saviour, and makes us to cry unto him by Faith, Hoſanna, Save now. And ſecondly, That it might be known who this Tabernacle was, the People by a ſecret Providence cry'd out unto our SAVIOUR, even at another Time, Hoſanna to the Son of David, aſcribing in their ſo Speaking the whole Ceremony of Boughs and Tabernacles to him.

18. Sixthly, Another Cuſtom us'd at this Feaſt may not be improperly conſider'd, which is their Drawing and Pouring out of Water, and their great Rejoicing for it. This Pouring out of Water was us'd every Day of the Feaſt, and their Rejoicing upon it was ſo great, that in all this Feaſt, nay, in all the Feaſts throughout the Year, they had not the like. One (t) of the Prieſts with a golden Tankard goes to the Pool of Siloam, and there he fills it with Water. He returns back again into the Court thro' that which was call'd, The Water Gate; and when he came there, the Trumpets ſounded. Then he goes to the Riſe of the Altar, and after ſome Ceremonies he pours it out by Way of Libation. Towards Night they begin their Rejoicing for the Pouring out or Drawing of the Water, which Mirth they continu'd far in the Night every Night of the Feaſt. And this their Rejoicing was ſo very great, that they ſay, He that never ſaw the Rejoicing at the Drawing of the Water, never ſaw Rejoicing in all his Life. Now it is certain, that our SAVIOUR applies this whole Ceremony to himſelf. For (u) in the laſt and great Day of the Feaſt, when they had kept this great Mirth ſeven Days, in Reference to the Drawing and Offering of Water out of the Pool of Siloam, he (x) ſtood and cried, ſaying, If any man thirſt, let him come unto me, and drink. He that believeth in me, as the Scripture hath ſaid, out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living water. And this he ſpake of the ſpirit, which they, who believed in him, ſhould receive. But to apply this to our bleſſed SAVIOUR. When he was juſt entering upon the (y) thirtieth Year of his Age, and conſequently at the very Time of this Feaſt, he was baptiz'd with Water by St. John in the River Jordan. At this Time he was not dipp'd, but the Water was pour'd down upon his Head, as at the Altar, which ſanctify'd the Oblation, and thus he ſanctify'd Water to the myſtical Waſhing away of Sin. And as the Waters of Siloam went Eaſtward, and the Waters of Jordan went Southward, until they came to the dead Sea, and thus they both went either to or from the four cardinal Points of the World; ſo the (z) Water of Baptiſm typify'd by the one, and ſanctify'd by the other, goes not to the Jews only, but alſo to the Gentiles, who (a) were dead in treſpaſſes and ſins, and ſerves for the Healing of all Mankind. That the Water was pour'd on the Head of CHRIST (and that he in this Particular agreed more exactly with the Type, than if he had been dipp'd) is evident from (b) the Words of St. John the Baptiſt, who ſaid to the Phariſees and Sadducees, I indeed baptize you with water; but CHRIST ſhall baptize you with the HOLY GHOST and with fire. Here both the Baptiſms allude to each other, as both perform'd in the ſame manner; and therefore it will be as hard to prove, that St. John plung'd his Diſciples into the Water, as it is to prove, that CHRIST did plunge his Diſciples into the Fire. But this was literally fulfill'd, (c) when cloven tongues, as of fire, ſate upon the heads of the Apoſtles, coming from Heaven with a Sound like the Ruſhing of Water, and they were all filled with the HOLY GHOST. There is (d) a remarkable Paſſage in the Talmud. Rabbi Levi ſaith, Why is the Name of it call'd, The Drawing of the Water? And to this it is anſwer'd, Becauſe of the Drawing or Pouring out of the HOLY GHOST, according to (e) that which is ſaid, With joy ſhall ye draw water out of the wells of ſalvation. And (f) St. Matthew ſaith, that JESUS, when he was baptized, went up ſtraitway from the water, and lo the heavens were opened unto him, and he ſaw the ſpirit of GOD deſcending like a dove, and lighting upon him, And lo, a voice from heaven, ſaying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed. And he that compares theſe together, may ſoon obſerve the Agreement between the Type and the Antitype, viz. the plentiful Effuſion of the HOLY GHOST, and the Pouring forth of the Water at this Seaſon.

19. To theſe Particulars (g) another Text may be added, which may ſerve in a great Meaſure to illuſtrate them. And it ſhall come to paſs, that every one, who is left of all the nations, which come againſt Jeruſalem, ſhall go up from year to year to worſhip the king, the LORD of hoſts, and to keep the feaſt of tabernacles. And it ſhall be, that thoſe who will not come up of all the families of the earth unto Jeruſalem to worſhip the king, the LORD of hoſts, even upon them ſhall be no more rain. This is a Propheſy of the Times under the Goſpel, and of a Feaſt that ſhould be then kept; and it would be hard to conceive, that GOD ſhould take more Care, or that Chriſtians ſhould be under a greater Obligation to obſerve this, than either of the other two, if this was not typical of the Goſpel Times, as the other two undoubtedly are. Beſides, if the Feaſt of the Nativity doth not anſwer to the Feaſt of Tabernacles, as far as it was typical, there is no other which anſwers to it at all, and then this Curſe muſt light upon all the Chriſtian Churches in all Ages, and in all Places, which would be a much harder Caſe.

20. Seventhly, That CHRIST was born about the Feaſt of Tabernacles will very probably appear from the Church of Alexandria, which was planted by St. Mark, who adapts his Goſpel more exactly according to the Chronological Order of Time than the other Evangeliſts. This Church kept the Feaſt of St. John the Baptiſt's Nativity (as St Cyril witneſſeth in an Homily on that Occaſion) on the eight and twentieth Day of the Month Pharmuth, which (h) anſwers to the four and twentieth Day of our April. Now it muſt be obſerv'd, that (i) according to the Alexandrian Account of Time, they did not reckon the Year of the Birth of CHRIST, as we do, but ſuppos'd it to be eight Years later, even in the Year of the Julian Period 4721. Accordingly it appears by Calculation, that the Jewiſh Year did then begin on the twenty fifth Day of March, and therefore that the Day of the Nativity of St. John the Baptiſt, being the eight and twentieth Day of the Month Pharmuth, or the four and twentieth Day of April, did not then happen on the fifteenth Day of the firſt Month, but on the firſt Day of the ſecond; ſo that they reckon'd not (k) ſix Months complete between the Birth of St. John and the Birth of our SAVIOUR, as we do, but only five Months and an half, or the ſixth Month current. And he who views (l) the Texts in the Margin with Attention might think, that they had ſome Reaſon for ſuch a Computation, eſpecially if they depended upon the common Expoſition of ſuch Expreſſions without other concurring Circumſtances. Or, which is more probable, they might fix the Feaſt of the Nativity of St. John the Baptiſt, at ſuch a Time, when the Jewiſh Feaſt began very late, and ſo the four and twentieth Day of the Month Pharmuth might happen near the fifteenth Day of the firſt Jewiſh Month, and ſo be about half a Year before the Feaſt of Tabernacles.

21. Laſtly, The Day of our SAVIOUR's Nativity will be more abundantly evident from the four and twenty Courſes of the Prieſts, and the Courſe of Abia, when Zechariah burnt Incenſe in the Temple. Concerning which we are to obſerve, that the Prieſts were (m) divided by David into four and twenty Courſes. Theſe Courſes, thus newly ſettl'd by David for Number, and thus rank'd by Lot for Order, and both being deſign'd for the Service of the Temple, when it ſhould be built, it is not to be queſtion'd, but that they began their Round, when the Service of the Temple did firſt begin. This Round began on the Day of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, if it happen'd to be on a Sabbath, or otherwiſe on the Sabbath Day after. Now when Solomon ſettl'd the (n) Service of the Temple, the great Feaſt of Tabernacles, or the fifteenth Day of the ſeventh Month, happen'd to be upon a Sunday, the Day both of our SAVIOUR's Nativity and Reſurrection (all which will appear in their proper Places by Calculation) there was an extraordinary Concourſe of People, and the whole Week was celebrated in an extraordinary Manner. The following Sabbath, being the twenty firſt Day of the ſame Month, the Courſe began, in which all the Prieſts were preſent. The Day after, being the two and twentieth Day of the Month, was on a Sunday, the laſt and great Day of the Feaſt, and the Day on which our SAVIOUR was circumcis'd, which was alſo a ſolemn Aſſembly. On the Monday (o) being the three and twentieth day of the ſame Month, he ſent the people away into their tents, glad and merry in heart for all the goodneſs, which GOD had ſhewed them. So that this Week alſo (p) there was a great Feaſt, the People not being as yet gone to their own Houſes, but living in Tents near Jeruſalem; and therefore the Company of the Congregation continu'd to be ſo great, and the Multitude of the Sacrifices to be ſo many, that no ſingle Courſe was able to undergo the Service; and therefore (q) then eſpecially, (as alſo at the other two great Feſtivals) all the Courſes ſerv'd indifferently, and on the next Sabbath Day, being the eight and twentieth Day of this Month, the Courſe of Jehoiarib, or the firſt Courſe began.

22. They chang'd every Week, coming in on the Sabbath, and (r) going out on the next;

next; ſo that by the Time of the Paſſover they had juſt finiſh'd their firſt Courſe, and from thence they began their ſecond Round again. In the eighth Courſe of this ſecond Round (for (s) this was the Courſe of Abia) Zechariah heard the glad Tidings of the Birth of St. John the Baptiſt, who was the Forerunner of CHRIST, juſt about the ſame Time of the Year that (t) Sarah heard of the fix'd Time of the Birth of Iſaac, which was about the Middle of the Summer, or at the Solſtice. And therefore (u) ſix Months after this, or at the Winter Solſtice, the Angel appear'd to the Virgin Mary immediately before her Conception, and CHRIST was born nine Months after, or at the Autumnal Equinox, which according to the Jewiſh Reckoning was in the ſeventh Month, and uſually about the Time of the Feaſt of Tabernacles.

23. But that the Reader may have a full and perfect View of theſe Courſes, it may not be thought improper to interpoſe a Calendar or Almanack of them both, for the Year preceding the Dedication of the Temple by Solomon, and the Year of the Nativity of our Bleſſed SAVIOUR, beginning at the Courſe of Abijah, when Zechariah receiv'd this Meſſage from the Angel, and ending on the Day on which our SAVIOUR was circumciſed. In which the firſt Column ſerves for the Day of the Month according to the Julian Account, the ſecond ſerves for the Day of the Week in the Year of the Dedication, the third for the Day of the Week in the Year of the Nativity, the fourth ſhews the Feaſts and Faſts and other remarkable Days of the Jewiſh Months.

24. As the Dedication of the Temple happen'd to be in the Year of the World 3000, or before the Vulgar Year of the Nativity 1008; ſo it appears by Calculation, that the Sun touched the Autumnal Equinox in that Year on the laſt Day of September, and that the Moon was viſible after the Change on the ſecond Day of October following. And as we have no Reaſon to doubt, but that Solomon made his Obſervations for the Beginning of the Year at the Autumnal as well as at the Vernal Equinox, ſince the ſame Method would equally ſerve for both, and his Skill in Aſtronomy would make him the more exact in all ſuch Computations, eſpecially in ſo remarkable a Year as this; ſo we may very well ſuppoſe, that this ſeventh Month, according to the ſacred Account, or the firſt Month according to the civil Account, began from the firſt Viſibility of the Moon. And therefore it appearing from Calculation, that the Moon was viſible on the ſecond Day of October in the Evening, and conſequently the firſt Day of the ſeventh Month happen'd on the third Day of October, and the fifteenth Day of the ſame Month, in which this famous Feaſt of the Dedication was kept, happen'd to be on the ſeventeenth Day of October. In this Year the Julian Period was 3705, which being divided by 28 the Remainder is 9, which ſhews that B was the Sabbatical Letter, and C the Dominical Letter for the latter Part of that Year, which anſwering to October 17 ſhews, that this great Feaſt was held on a Sunday, the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath, and on the ſame Day both of the Week and of the Jewiſh Month in which our SAVIOUR was born, and not on the Day of the Jewiſh Sabbath, as (x) the learned Dr. Lightfoot ſuppos'd, the Hurry of Buſineſs being much too great for ſuch a Day. And the laſt or great Day of the Feaſt was alſo on the four and twentieth Day of the ſame Month, the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath, or the Day both of the Week, and of the Jewiſh Month, in which our SAVIOUR was circumcis'd; and ſo (y) on Monday the three and twentieth day of the ſeventh Jewiſh Month, or the twenty fifth Day of October, he ſent the people away into their tents, glad and merry in heart for the goodneſs that the LORD had ſhewed unto David, and to Solomon, and to Iſrael his people.

25. Here we may alſo ſee the Reaſon (z) of Solomon's holding a Feaſt, and all Iſrael with him fourteen days, and alſo, why it is ſo particularly divided into ſeven days and ſeven days. The Feaſt of Tabernacles began upon a Sunday, and therefore it was ſeven Days to their Sabbath. During this Time all the Prieſts attended to obſerve this ſolemn Feaſt. On the next Sabbath all the Prieſts are preſent and ſerve, the Law was begun to be read, and the High Prieſt officiating in Perſon ſerv'd for that Week before the firſt Courſe began, which laſted for ſeven Days more, and the Total was fourteen Days. The ſeven firſt Days were for all the People. On the eighth Day, or the great Day of the Feaſt, being the twenty ſecond Day of the Month, Solomon gave Orders for all the People to return Home, which they did on the following Day, or the twenty third Day of the Month. However he continu'd the Feaſt till the following Sabbath was ended; for ſo long the High Prieſt continu'd to officiate, and no longer, and the other Prieſts continuing with him, they were feaſted all together.

26. It is agreed by all our preſent Chronologers, that our SAVIOUR was born four Years before the Year of his Birth according to the Vulgar Computation: On that Year the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the twenty fifth Day of September. And therefore it appearing from Calculation, that the Moon was viſible on the twenty ſecond Day of September, immediately before; the firſt Day of the Month Tiſri, or the ſeventh Month, happen'd to be on the twenty third Day of September; and the fifteenth Day of the ſame Month in which he was born, was on the ſeventh Day of October, and the Day of his Circumciſion was on the fourteenth.

In this Year the Julian Period was 4710, which being divided by 28, the Remainder is 9; which ſhews that F was the Sabbatical Letter, and G the the Dominical Lettter for that Year, which anſwering to the ſeventh and fourteenth Days of October, ſhews that our SAVIOUR was both born and circumcis'd on the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath, and anſwer'd to the ſame Days of the Week, in which the two famous Feaſts of Tabernacles were obſerv'd by King Solomon, at the Dedication of the Temple.

(a) Hippocrates περὶ σαρκῶν.

24. To fill up ſome void Places in the Calendar, I have inſerted the Sections out of the Law and the Prophets, according as (a) they were read in the Jewiſh Synagogues on every Sabbath day, beginning at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, October the 18th, Anno ante Chriſtum 1, and ending at the Feaſt of Tabernacles Anno Chriſti 00. Whether theſe Leſſons or Sections were appointed and ſet out from the Law by Moſes, or Joſhua, or Ezra, or by any other, or how the like in the Prophets came to be parallel'd with them, or to be read inſtead of them, when the Perſecution of Antiochus forbad the Law, is not my Buſineſs to determine. Only if the Reader will obſerve the Harmony between the two Portions, which were read at one time, he may ſee, that the Choice of them was of more than common and ordinary Diſcretion. And ſometimes the taking Notice of the Portions themſelves will help to clear and ſatisfy ſome Obſcurities, which could not ſo eaſily have been done without them.

25. Secondly, The Reader may obſerve from the firſt of theſe, how the Old and New Teſtament came at firſt to be appointed to be read throughout for the firſt and ſecond Leſſons in our daily Service; and he may obſerve from the ſecond, how the Epiſtles and Goſpels came to be introduc'd for Sundays and Holydays.

26. Thirdly, He who conſiders the Calendar, may not only obſerve, that the (b) firſt and laſt Days of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, when our SAVIOUR was born and circumcis'd, happen'd to be on a Sunday; but he may alſo find ſeveral other things, which are remarkable. The (c) firſt Day of the fourth Month, or Tammuz, was the Day of Elizabeth's Conception of John the Baptiſt, and the (d) firſt Day of the tenth Month, or Tebeth, was the Day of the Virgin Mary's Conceiving by the HOLY GHOST, and theſe may point out to us another typical Reaſon for the great Rejoicings among the Jews at the Feaſt of their new Moons, and the Sound of the Trumpets and Rejoicings at that Time. And that there were particular Providences, which requir'd to be taken Notice of in the ſame Manner with the Jubilee, as being Forerunners of more joyful News, than is uſually imagin'd. Secondly, Tho' the Courſe of Abia, in which Zachariah ſerved, is only mention'd in general Terms; yet we may gueſs, that the particular Day, in which he receiv'd the Meſſage from the Angel, was on (e) the laſt Day of that Courſe. On this Day the Decree of Ahaſhuerus to deſtroy the Jews was (f) revers'd, and Copies of the Revocation written and diſpers'd, and ſent by proper Meſſengers. And therefore on this Day the Angel being a proper Meſſenger ſent from Heaven with better Tidings, might bring the News to the Jewiſh Nation of the Forerunner of their MESSIAH, and that GOD would viſit and deliver his People. Thirdly, The Eating of unleaven'd Bread among the Jews began (g) on the Day after the Paſſover, and on this Day John the Baptiſt (h) was born, who came (i) neither eating nor drinking of any thing that was delicious, and (k) whoſe meat was locuſts and wild honey. Fourthly, The Angel deliver'd to the Virgin Mary the News of her Conception (l) on the laſt Day of the old Year, and ſhe conceiv'd on (m) the firſt Day of the new, according to the Roman Account. And this cannot but put us in Mind of the new Covenant made with the Gentiles, by him who was thus conceiv'd, and which (n) St. Paul doth excellently deſcribe in this Manner: CHRIST is the mediator of a better covenant, which was eſtabliſhed upon better promiſes. And finding fault with the other, he ſaith, (o) Behold the days come, when I will make a new covenant with the houſe of Iſrael, and with the houſe of Judah. For all ſhall know me from the leaſt to the greateſt. For I will be merciful to their unrighteouſneſs, and their ſins and their iniquities will I remember no more. So that whereas he ſaith, A new covenant, he hath made the firſt old. And that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vaniſh away. Fifthly, It may alſo be obſerv'd, that the (p) Annunciation and Conception of the Bleſſed Virgin happen'd in the Time of the Feaſt of the (q) Dedication of the Temple, which was obſerv'd (r) in Commemoration of the cleanſing of it by Judas Maccabæus, after it had been profan'd by Antiochus Epiphanes. This could not but put them in Mind, that (s) the LORD, whom they did ſeek, ſhould ſuddenly come to his temple, even the meſſenger of the covenant whom they delighted in. Who ſhould purify the ſons of Levi, and purge them as gold and ſilver, that they might offer unto the LORD an offering in righteouſneſs. And then the offerings of Judah and Jeruſalem ſhould be pleaſant unto the LORD as in the days of old, and as in former years. And ſixthly, we may obſerve, that they were near the Right, who reckon ſix full Months between the (t) Birth of John the Baptiſt, and the Birth of our SAVIOUR; tho' the Words both of (u) St. Luke and the (x) Angel, ſhew the Annunciation was in the ſixth Month after the Conception of Elizabeth, which might be equally true of any Space of Time exceeding five Months. For Elizabeth (y) conceiv'd on the firſt Day of the fourth Month, or Tammuz, and the Angel brought the News of it to the Virgin Mary on (z) the laſt Day of the Month Chiſleu, or the ninth Month; ſo that there was the Space of ſix full Months between, and yet no Part of any ſeventh. And therefore the Apoſtle might truly ſay, (a) That the holy days, and the new moons, and the ſabbath days were ſhadows of things to come; but the body was of CHRIST.

27. Laſtly, From theſe Sections we may give a probable Conjecture concerning the Time of the Year when our SAVIOUR read (b) a Part of the Prophecy of Iſaiah, in (c) the Synagogue of Nazareth, namely, that it was in (d) the Beginning of the Month Tiſri, or the ſeventh Month. The particular Portion of Scripture which he read, is not among the Portions appointed to be read at all. But (e) two, which are very near it, are appointed for the two Sabbath Days immediately before the Feaſt of Tabernacles. And therefore when the (f) Miniſter of the Congregation call'd him out to read, he went up into a Desk or (g) Pulpit as uſual, which ſtood in the Midſt of the Synagogues for that Purpoſe, and when the Book of Iſaiah was deliver'd to him, and he was directed to the Part appointed to be read: he read not the Part appointed, but a Part very near it. And when the People were ſurpriz'd, as thinking it had been a Miſtake, he makes an Apology to this Effect: (h) Marvel not at this, that I read not the Section which is appointed, but a Section near it; For this day is this Scriptnre, (which I read) fulfilled in your ears. And all men bore him witneſs, that what he ſaid was true, and wonder'd at the gracious words, which proceeded out of his mouth.

28. But to return from this Digreſſion to the Birth of our SAVIOUR on the Day of the Feaſt of Tabernacles. It may be objected, That the Birth of CHRIST was in December, but the Feaſt of Tabernacles was kept on the fifteenth Day of the ſeventh Month, which anſwer'd in a Manner to our September or October, and which Day in this Calendar is plac'd on the ſeventh Day of October, and therefore it could not be ſo late in the Year at the Time of his Birth as it is uſually ſuppos'd to be. So that if the Feaſt of Tabernacles had been a Sign of his Incarnation, the Time ſhould as well have agreed here, as it did in the Paſſover and his Paſſion, and alſo in the Giving of the Law, and the Sending of the HOLY GHOST. But between the Birth of our SAVIOUR, and the Feaſt of Tabernacles in the Age when he was born, there was frequently three Months Difference, and never leſs than two.

29. But in Anſwer to this it may be affirm'd, that we do not obſerve the right Time; and this is not a late Notion only, but it was the Opinion of Joſeph Scaliger, Dr. Lightfoot, Mr. Mede, and the moſt learned Chronologers of the laſt Century. Theſe affirm, That the Birth of our SAVIOUR was ſoon after the Autumnal Equinox at the Time of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, and not in December, as the Memory thereof is now celebrated. For it is certain from (i) Clemens Alexandrinus, that in the Primitive Church there was no abſolute Agreement about the Time of the Nativity: And he adds, That they, who inquire more exactly into the Time, do aſſign the five and twentieth Day of the Month Pachon, which is our twentieth Day of May for the real Day. And to this Time of the Year the learned Dr. Allix, in his Book de natali Chriſti, doth plainly incline.

30. Others aſſign'd others and divers Times, as Epiphanius witneſſeth almoſt four hundred Years after CHRIST: So long therefore there was no Certainty agreed upon. And it was after the Time of Conſtantine, that the Day, which we now obſerve, was firſt choſen in the Latin Church, but not in the Greek, till the Days of St. Chryſoſtom in the Beginning of the fifth Century, who made an Oration yet extant upon the firſt Obſerving of this Day, which (as he ſaith) they then receiv'd from the Roman Church, and which he endeavours to prove to be the true Day of his Nativity.

31. If any one would know, how they came after ſo many uncertain Opinions to reſolve at laſt upon this Day, we are plainly told, that it was upon a falſe Suppoſition, and a miſtaken Ground. For finding in (k) the Law, that the High Prieſt was oblig'd once every Year to enter into the moſt holy Place, and there to offer Incenſe at the Feaſt of Expiation, and reading in St. (l) Luke's Goſpel, that the Angel Gabriel appear'd to (t) Thus we place the Nativity of John the Baptiſt on June 24, and the Birth of CHRIST on December 25, at a full half Year's Diſtance. (u) Luke 1. 26. (x) Luke 1. 36. (y) July 8, Anno ante Chriſtum 1. (z) December 31, Anno ante Chriſtum 1. (a) Coloſſ. 2. 16, 17. (b) Iſai. 61. 2. (c) Luke 4. 16. (d) See Anno Chriſti 00, September 23, when the ſeventh Month, or the Month Tiſri began. (e) Iſaiah 60. 1. to the End; and Iſaiah 61. 10, to 63. 10. (f) שליח צבור. (g) Βῆμα, Heb. בימה. (h) Luke 4. 21. 22. (i) Stromaton Lib. 1. Page 4. (k) Levit. 16. 29 to the End, and 23. 26 to 33, and 25. 9. (l) Luke 1. 8 to 24.

Zacharias,

Zacharias, as he went to offer Incenſe in the Temple, they ſuppos'd, that he was the High Prieſt, and argu'd thus: The Time of the High Prieſt's Offering Incenſe in the moſt holy was about the latter End of September in thoſe Days, particularly on the tenth Day of the ſeventh Month, which then might happen on any Day between the eighteenth Day of September and the ſeventeenth Day of October: Now as ſoon as Zacharias had fulfill'd the Work of his Miniſtration, John the Baptiſt was conceiv'd; and this (ſuppoſing the Month Tiſri or the ſeventh Month to begin as ſoon as poſſible) might have happen'd about the twenty fifth Day of September. Now when the Angel ſaluted Mary, he told her, (m) that her Couſin Elizabeth had been with Child ſix Months. If then John the Baptiſt was conceiv'd about the twenty fifth Day of September, the Annunciation of the bleſſed Virgin, and the Conception of our SAVIOUR, which happen'd about ſix Months after, muſt fall about the twenty fifth Day of March, and ſo his Birth muſt fall about the twenty fifth Day of December, which was nine Months after his Conception. And this was the Ground, upon which the Feaſt of CHRIST's Nativity was fix'd to this Day.

32. To this they anſwer, who think otherwiſe, Firſt, That the Angel did not appear to Zacharias in the moſt holy Place. For the Altar of Incenſe was without the Veil, at which (n) the Angel appear'd. Neither could Zacharias be the High Prieſt; for (o) he was of the courſe of Abia, and it came to his lot to offer incenſe. But the High Prieſt was of no Courſe; neither did the Offering of Incenſe in the moſt holy Place fall to him by Lot, but it was his only and proper Office. The Ground thereof was therefore wholly miſtaken.

33. Secondly, At the Birth of CHRIST every Man, Woman and Child was to go to be tax'd at the City, to which they belong'd, whither ſome had long Journeys, particularly the Virgin Mary her ſelf travell'd about (p) ſeventy Miles. But the Middle of Winter was not a proper Seaſon for ſuch a Buſineſs, eſpecially for Women with Child and Children to travel in. Therefore CHRIST could not be born in the Depth of Winter.

34. Laſtly, At the Birth of CHRIST the Shepherds lay abroad watching with their Flocks in the night Time; but this was not likely to be in the Depth of Winter. And if any ſhall think, that the winter Winds or Froſts were not ſo ſevere in thoſe Parts, let him remember the Words of CHRIST in the Goſpel, (q) Pray that your flight be not in the winter. If the Winter was ſo bad a Time for Men to flee by Day, it ſeems not to be a fit Time for Shepherds to lie in the Fields by Night, or Women with Child to travel on any Occaſion. They had (r) Froſt, and (s) Snow, and (t) Ice in that Country; and this was the proper Time, when they might expect it. Beſides, when our SAVIOUR was brought before the (u) High Prieſt, the ſervants and officers had made a fire of coals in the Palace, for it was cold, and warmed themſelves. And if it was cold by Day in the Palace on the third Day of April, which was the Day of the Paſſover on that Year, when the Sun had paſſed the vernal Equinox, What muſt it be by Night in the open Air, and in the Time of December, when the Sun was very near to the winter Tropick?

35. Secondly, It may be objected, Why do not the Governors of the Church alter the Day kept in Commemoration of CHRIST's Birth from the wrong Day to the true one?

To this it may be anſwer'd, That tho' we do not obſerve the Day of his real Birth; yet we obſerve the Day, which was ſet apart for this Purpoſe by publick Authority. We obſerve the Day, which all the weſtern Churches always obſerv'd, and which afterward was obſerv'd by others upon their Authority. Prudentius, who liv'd before the Middle of the fifth Century, in his Hymn for (x) the twenty fifth Day of December ſaith, That this was the famous Birth-Day, which was then obſerv'd. And certainly, tho' ſome may think, that the Time it ſelf is moſt fit for ſuch a Solemnity; yet no Time can be unlawfully choſen for ſuch a Day. We have a Command, that (y) all things be done according to the Injunction; and that (z) the ſpirits of the prophets, or particular Perſons, muſt be ſubject to the prophets, or the general Orders. And therefore, as there hath been an Injunction in the primitive Times, and handed down to us ever ſince, it can hardly be adviſeable for a particular Church to alter the ſame without an univerſal Conſent. The Apoſtle (a) ſpeaking of another Caſe ſaith, But if any man ſeem contentious, we have no ſuch cuſtom, neither the churches of GOD. In which he pleads the Argument of Cuſtom to overrule any Diſputes in Church Diſcipline, and plainly ſhews us, that the Cuſtoms us'd in the Churches of GOD ought to determine ſuch things, as are not abſolutely neceſſary. And indeed, without this the many Commands, (m) Luke 1. 36. (n) Luke 1. 11. (o) Luke 1. 5. (p) Luke 2. 4, 5. (q) Matth. 24. 20. (r) Gen. 31. 40. Exod. 16. 14. Job 37. 10. Pſal. 78. 47, and 147. 16. (s) 2 Sam. 23. 20. Job 37. 6. urg'd with the ſtrongeſt Motives, that we ſhould (b) be all of one heart and of one mind, and endeavour to keep the unity of the ſpirit in the bond of peace, can hardly be obſerv'd. It was the Obſervation of (c) St. Auguſtine, That the very Change of a Cuſtom, tho' it might be uſeful in it ſelf, yet it may give Offence by its Novelty. And they, who conſider what a ſmall Matter occaſion'd the Rupture between the eaſtern and weſtern Churches, which could never afterward be heal'd, and the fatal Conſequences thereof, by Letting Mahometaniſm into the one, and Popery into the other, will hardly think it proper to make ſuch Alterations in one Church without the Approbation of all the reſt.

36. Having thus prov'd, that our SAVIOUR was born on the Day of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, being the fifteenth Day of the ſeventh Month, it will be neceſſary in the next Place to endeavour to prove, that he was born in the Year of Jubilee, the moſt ſolemn Ceremony whereof was upon the tenth Day of the ſame Month. For this there is the Authority of Biſhop Jeremy Taylor in his Life of CHRIST. And he, who conſiders it as typical, will find ſufficient Reaſon for ſuch a Conjecture. The general Releaſe of Servants was a plain Intimation of the Redemption, which CHRIST was to bring with him, not only from the Jewiſh Law, but alſo from the Slavery of Sin and Satan. And the Reſtoring of Lands and Tenements to their firſt Owners, who formerly ſold them, will plainly refer us to CHRIST, who hath reſtor'd us to a better State, than that which Adam loſt; and inſtead of an earthly Paradiſe, which was forfeited by the Eating of the forbidden Fruit, hath purchas'd for us an eternal Inheritance in the Kingdom of Heaven. And thus immediately after the Time, when the Rams-Horns ſounded a Redemption of Captives, the holy Angels from Heaven proclaim'd a Redemption from Satan. When the Servants prais'd the Bounty of their Maſters, then the heavenly Hoſt in a great Multitude prais'd GOD, and ſaid, (d) Glory be to GOD on high, and on earth peace, and good will toward men. And when the Servants rejoic'd for that Liberty, which was peculiar to themſelves, then thoſe bleſſed Spirits ſaid to the Shepherds, (e) Fear not, for behold I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which ſhall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a SAVIOUR, which is CHRIST the LORD.

37. The laſt thing propos'd is, that the firſt Year of Jubilee happen'd in the third Year, after the Iſraelites were enter'd into the Land of Canaan. As the Year of their Entrance was Anno Mundi 2553; ſo according to this Suppoſition, the firſt Jubilee was obſerv'd at the Autumnal Equinox, Anno Mundi 2555. And as our SAVIOUR was born at the Feaſt of Tabernacles Anno Mundi 4005, and the Year of Jubilee came but once in fifty Years; ſo from the Year 4005, ſubſtract 2555, and the Remainder is 1450, which being divided by 50 there is no Remainder, and ſhews, that our SAVIOUR was born in the Year of Jubilee, upon Suppoſition that the firſt Jubilee was obſerv'd Anno Mundi 2555, or in the third Year after the Iſraelites were enter'd into the Land of Canaan. For the Proof of this we muſt refer to the original Commands of GOD for the Obſerving of the Sabbatical Year, and the Year of Jubilee. The firſt is contain'd in theſe Words, (f) Speak unto the Children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, When ye come into the land, which I give unto you, then ſhall the land keep a ſabbath unto the LORD. Here is a Direction to obſerve the Sabbatical Year. And (g) immediately upon this follows the other Command for the Obſerving of the Jubilee, which ſeems to imply, that they ſhould obſerve a Year of Jubilee, as ſoon as poſſibly they could, upon their Entrance into the Land of Canaan. And as that Direction firſt given did not fix the Sabbatical Year to the firſt Year of their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, but it was over-rul'd by (h) an expreſs Command, that they ſhould firſt plant trees, and then count the fruit as uncircumciſed for three years, before it could be holy to praiſe the LORD withal, and then they were to obſerve it, as ſoon as poſſible; ſo the Command that they ſhould obſerve the Year of Jubilee, did not fix it to the firſt Year of their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, becauſe it might be hinder'd by ſome particular Accidents. However they were oblig'd by this Command to obſerve it as ſoon as poſſible; and how it was obſerv'd, will (as I ſuppoſe) appear by the following Computation.

38. The Jubilee, being a Year of Reſt and Mirth, could not be obſerv'd, before they had conquer'd a great Part of the Land, and had receiv'd viſible Tokens of GOD's future Favours, which they could depend on. But this was the Work of ſeven Summers, before (i) they began to divide the Land. This appears from the Age of Caleb. The Iſraelites came out of Egypt in the Year of the World 2513. At the latter End of the Summer, in the following Year, or the Year 2514, when (k) Grapes were fully ripe, Moſes ſends (l) twelve Men, and (m) Caleb among them, to ſpy out the Land of Canaan. When Joſhua began to divide the Land,

Caleb

Caleb gives (n) this Account of himſelf, Forty years old was I, when Moſes the ſervant of the LORD ſent me to ſpy out the land. And now behold, the LORD hath kept me alive, as he ſaid, theſe forty and five years, ever ſince the LORD ſpake this word unto Moſes, whilſt the children of Iſrael wandered in the wilderneſs, and now lo, I am this day fourſcore and five years old. So that if to the Year of the World 2514, when the Spies were ſent, we add theſe five and forty Years, it brings us to the Year 2559, when Joſhua began to divide the Land, and conſequently there were ſeven Summers in the Land of Canaan, before theſe Wars were fully ended. In this Space of Time they had (o) conquer'd one and thirty Kings in all; twenty of whom were conquer'd, before (p) Joſhua and all Iſrael with him returned to the camp to Gilgal to obſerve the Jubilee, as (q) will be ſoon mention'd. For (r) when Jabin king of Hazor heard that Joſhua had retreated to Gilgal, he ſent to the king of Madon, the king of Shimron-meron, and the king of Achſhaph to join with him againſt the Iſraelites, who accordingly (s) were the 21ſt, 22d, 23d, and 24th among thoſe that were conquer'd. So that the Story runs thus: In the Julian Year of the World 2553, in the Spring, the Iſraelites paſs over Jordan, upon which they (t) keep the Paſſover in Gilgal. After this they (u) proceed to take Jericho. Upon this, when (x) they expected the ſame Succeſs, they were ſmitten at Ai, ſo that the hearts of the people melted, and became as water. This made Joſhua rent his clothes, fall upon the earth, and put up a bitter Lamentation before the ark of the LORD, whilſt the Elders of Iſrael had Duſt upon their Heads, and GOD told them, that the People were accurſed, neither would he be with them any more, except they deſtroyed the accurſed from among them. Upon their Performance of what GOD requir'd (y) Ai was taken; but the Conſideration, that they had been accurſed, muſt abate their Joy. So that this ſeems to be all which happen'd in this Summer's Campaign. In the following Winter the Gibeonites (z) by Craft obtain a League, and the Princes of the Congregation ſwore to them to let them live, and asked not counſel from the mouth of the LORD. And it being contrary to the many expreſs Commands of GOD, that they ſhould deſtroy all the People of the Land, it gave the whole Congregation too juſt an Occaſion to murmur againſt the Princes, and was the Original of all the Misfortunes which happen'd to them in future Ages from the Natives of the Land. So that the Seaſon of this Year for the Obſerving of the Jubilee paſſed off without any ſufficient Ground for ſuch a Solemnity, and only the Kings of Jericho and Ai ſeem to be conquer'd in the Year 2553. When (a) the neighbouring Kings heard of this, they enter'd into a Combination the next Spring to fight againſt Joſhua. And ſo (b) the King of Jeruſalem, and four more Kings in Confederacy with him, reſolve to deſtroy the Gibeonites, for the League which they had made, and accordingly beſiege the Town. They ſend to Joſhua to ſuccour them. GOD himſelf encourages Joſhua, and promiſes him Succeſs. And after the Battle GOD caſt down great Stones from Heaven upon them, and ſlew more in this Manner, than thoſe which the Iſraelites ſlew with the Sword. This was ſucceeded by another Miracle, the like whereof never happen'd before nor ſince; for the Sun ſtood ſtill a whole Day to give an Opportunity for the Iſraelites to gain a complete Victory. Such viſible Tokens of GOD's Favour were attended with freſh Succeſſes. (c) Seven Kings and their Cities, and their Land, were (d) conquer'd one after another at one time, in one Year or Campaign, even the ſecond Year after their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, or the Julian Year of the World 2554, becauſe the LORD GOD of Iſrael fought for Iſrael. So that nine Kings were conquer'd in the ſecond Year. In the third Year, or Year 2555, they conquer (e) eleven more Kings, which are mention'd in their Order in the Catalogue. And (f) then Joſhua returned, and all Iſrael with him to the camp to Gilgal. Then was the Time, when (g) they ſeem'd to enjoy a ſettl'd Peace, and none moved his tongue againſt the children of Iſrael; for they had conquer'd all the ſouthern Parts of the Land of Canaan. Now it ſeems ſtrange, that after ſuch viſible Tokens of Succeſs, Joſhua did not preſs forward at leaſt toward the Sea-Coaſts, but return'd to the Camp to Gilgal, which was the Place where he firſt pitch'd; when he came over Jordan, and that he ſhould bring all Iſrael thither with him. But the Reaſon ſeems to be this, That he having now a Time of Peace and viſible Tokens of GOD's Favour, was willing in the Month Tiſri, or the following Autumn, to retire to ſuch a Place, where he might obſerve the Jubilee, and accordingly did obſerve it that Year. The next Year, or Year 2556, the Sabbatical Year began, which laſted until the Autumn in the Year 2557; ſo that theſe two Years ſeem to be Years of little

little or no Action. However having in the former Years conquer'd all the ſouth Country, he proceeds in the following Spring, in the Year 2558, toward the North, conquering the (h) eleven Kings, whoſe Cities lay in the Tribes of Ephraim, Manaſſeh and Zebulun, which employ'd him that Summer, and Part of the next; and ſo in the Year 2559, he proceeds to divide the Land, at which Time Caleb was fourſcore and five Years old, as is before mention'd.

39. As for the Year of Jubilee, it came only once in fifty Years, as (i) Ainſworth obſerves, and to which (k) Biſhop Patrick ſeems to incline. The firſt of theſe expreſly ſaith, That the Year of fifty Years means the fiftieth Year. So that they are miſtaken, who count every nine and fortieth Year to be the Jubilee. That nine and fortieth Year was the ſeventh ſeven, the ordinary Sabbath, and the Year of Reſt; and the Year following was the Jubilee, even the fiftieth Year, and thus two holy Years came together. And thus (ſaith he) the Hebrew Canons declare it. Maimonides (l) ſaith, The Year of Jubilee comes not in the Account of the Years of the ſeven; but the nine and fortieth is the Releaſe, and the fiftieth is the Jubilee, and the one and fiftieth Year begins the ſix Years of the ſeven following, and ſo in every Jubilee. And Rabbi Menahem (m) is much to the ſame Purpoſe, The nine and fortieth Year is the Year of Releaſe; and after it is the Jubilee in the fiftieth Year. This is true, when the Sabbatical Years and the Years of Jubilee began together (which is the only particular Caſe that they mention) and ſerves in all other Caſes to fix the Sabbatical Years to ſeven Years, or ſeven Sabbatical Periods to nine and forty Years; and the Year of Jubilee to be always not the nine and fortieth but the fiftieth Year.

40. Thus we find, that our SAVIOUR was born in the Year of Jubilee; and that the Types both of the Day and Year do anſwer exactly with the Antitype. And as the Year of our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion (as plac'd in theſe Tables) is demonſtrated from the Sabbatical Year; ſo the Year of his Birth is alſo demonſtrated from the Year of Jubilee.

CHAP. V.

A Journal from the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan.

THE Time of the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, and the Diſtance from thence to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, being thus fix'd; and alſo the Sabbatical Years and the Year of Jubilee being thus ſettl'd, as certain Epochas to compute by, like the Olympiads among the Greeks, and the Indiction among the Romans; I ſhall now ſubjoin a Journal of the Scripture Hiſtory from the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, to their Entrance into the Land of Canaan. And for this Purpoſe it is neceſſary to compute the Beginning of the ſecond Year after their Departure out of Egypt, which was in the Year of the World 2514, and the Beginning of the Year before their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, which was in the Year of the World 2552.

2. As to the firſt of theſe, it appears by (a) Calculation, that the Sun came to the vernal Equinox on the fourth Day of April; that on the twelfth Day of April following, the Difference of the oblique Deſcenſion of the Sun and Moon was 14 Deg. 37 Min. and therefore the Moon was viſible in that Evening, and conſequently the thirteenth Day of April was the firſt Day of the new Year, according to the Jewiſh Account. The Julian Period was alſo 3219, which being divided by 28, the Remainder is 27 for the Cycle of the Sun, and ſhews that the Jewiſh Sabbatical Letter for that Year was A, and the Dominical Letter was B.

3. As to the ſecond, or the Year of the Iſraelites Entrance into Canaan, it appears alſo by (b) Calculation, that in that Year the Sun alſo came to the vernal Equinox on the fourth Day of April, and that on the eleventh Day of April following, the Difference of the oblique Deſcenſion of the Sun and Moon was 12 Deg. 11 Min. which makes it very uncertain, whether the Moon was viſible at that Time or not, and the Negative is moſt probable, they being not curious in their Obſervations, and pitching on the eaſt Side of Mount Horeb, ſo that they could not ſo plainly diſcern the Moon at her Setting. And conſequently the thirteenth Day of April was the firſt Day of the new Year, according to the Jewiſh Account. The Julian Period was alſo 3257, which being divided by 28, the Remainder is 9 for the Cycle of the Sun, and ſhews, that the Jewiſh Sabbatical Letter for that Year was B, and the Dominical Letter was C.

On this Day GOD delivers the Law from Mount Sinai; and on this Day the Apoſtles were afterward inſpir'd to preach the Goſpel. This happen'd on the twenty fourth Day of May, being ten Days after our SAVIOUR's Aſcenſion into Heaven; ſo that the Antitype and the Type happen'd in the ſame Week of the Julian Year, the one at the Beginning, and the other near the End. And conſequently it was alſo remarkable, that the Jewiſh Paſſover happen'd at the ſame Time of the Year with our SAVIOUR's Crucifixion, and that the Jewiſh Paſſover ended one Week, and the Antemoſaical Sabbath ſoon after began another. Theſe things were thus fore-ordain'd by him, who is the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the Ending, the Firſt and the Laſt, who always had the Times and the Seaſons in his own Power, and hath order'd the Motions of the Heavens ſo to correſpond thereunto, even from the Foundation of the World, that we may ſay with Admiration, Oh the depths of the riches both of the wiſdom and knowledge of GOD! How unſearchable are his judgments, and his ways paſt finding out!

The People being thus ſanctified, Moſes and Aaron with Nadab and Abihu, and ſeventy of the Elders of Iſrael, go up into the Mount, ſee the LORD, and eat and drink before him, and he lays not his avenging Hand upon them, Exod. 24. 9, 10, 11. The Glory of the LORD abode upon Mount Sinai during theſe ſix laſt Days of the Feaſt of Weeks, or of Penteco ſt, Exod. 24. 15, 16. And for this Reaſon this was a ſolemn Feaſt, even one of the three which laſted ſeven Days, one in Commemoration of the Law being deliver'd, and the other ſix in Commemoration of the Glory of GOD appearing for ſo many Days after.
6	C	11	This Day being the Day of the Week with the Chriſtian Sabbath, Moſes goes up into the Mount to receive the two Tables of Stone, Exod. 24. 12, 13, 14. ſo that Aaron and the Elders depart from him, and only Joſhua ſtays at ſome Diſtance. At this Time he not only receives the Law; but on the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath he begins to receive Directions for Making the Tabernacle, Exod. chap. 25. 26, 27. which was a Type of the Incarnation of JESUS CHRIST, who was made fleſh, Καὶ ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, and placed his Tabernacle among us, John 1. 14. and was born, and roſe from the Dead on the ſame Day of the Week. April.	Sab. Let.	Niſan.
			N. B. At the End of the laſt Year the Moon chang'd on the eleventh Day of April, and the Jewiſh Sabbatical Letter for this Year is A. On the twelfth Day of April in the Evening, the Diſtance of the Moon from the Sun was ſuch, as render'd it very uncertain, whether ſhe was viſible or not, and the negative was moſt probable, the Moon being then ſo near her Apogæum, and their Obſervation at that Time not being exact. If ſo, then the Moon being firſt viſible on the thirteenth in the Evening, the Year muſt begin on the fourteenth Day.
14	f	1	The Tabernacle is ſet up, Exod. 40. 1, 2, 17.
15	g	2	On this Day it is probable, that GOD ſpake to the Iſraelites from the Tabernacle and gave them in Charge that Part of the Levitical Law in Chap. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7. and to conſecrate Aaron and his Sons for the Prieſt's Office, Levit. 8. 1, 2, 3. And thus the ceremonial Law was given to the Iſraelites from the Tabernacle on the ſame Day of the Week, in which it was fulfill'd by CHRIST, when he offer'd up his Body as a Sacrifice for us.
16	A	3	Aaron and his Sons are conſecrated accordingly. The firſt Day of their Conſecration begins on the Day of the Jewiſh Sabbath, and the laſt Day of their Conſecration ended on the ſame Day of the Week; for it laſted eight Days, Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37. Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. And as the Conſecration of Aaron laſted a Jewiſh Week from Sabbath to Sabbath; ſo we Chriſtians obſerve a Week from Sunday to Sunday, even the Whitſon Week, in Commemoration of the Inſpiration of the Apoſtles, and Setting them apart by a more glorious Conſecration to begin the Church of CHRIST.
17	B	4	The ſecond Day of Conſecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
18	c	5	The third Day of Conſecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
19	d	6	The fourth Day of Conſecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
20	e	7	The fifth Day of Conſecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
21	f	8	The ſixth Day of Conſecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
22	g	9	The ſeventh Day of Conſecration, Levit. 8. 33, 34, 35, 36. Exod. 29. 29, 30, 35, 36, 37.
23	A	10	The eighth Day of Conſecration, Levit. 9. 1. Aaron offers for himſelf and the People, Levit. 9. On this Day Nadab and Abihu offered ſtrange fire before the LORD, and were burnt, Levit. 10. 1, 2. That it was on this Day appears; ſince on this Day they offered the Goat, Levit. 9. 3, 15. which was burnt, becauſe on this Day ſuch things had befallen to Aaron, that he was not fit to eat thereof, Levit. 10. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. And thus the Service of the Sanctuary began by Accident with Death and Judgment. The Lamb is taken up, and ſet apart for the Paſſover, Exod. 12. 3. Num. 9. 1, 2.
24	B	11	On this Day, and the remaining Days of the Month, the reſt of the Levitical Laws are given. Compare Leviticus with Num. 1. 1.
27	e	14	The Paſſover is obſerv'd in this ſecond Month by the Command of GOD, Num. 9. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. occaſion'd by ſome Perſons being unclean, and declaring their Condition in the former Month, as was before-mention'd, Num. 9. 6 to 15. Here was a new Diſpenſation, and a Matter of very great Moment. For the Tranſlation of that Feaſt a Month beyond its proper Time, did more eminently enforce the Significancy of things future than of things paſt, and rather recorded the Death of CHRIST to come, than their Deliverance out of Egypt, when it happen'd not to be on the ſame Night.

May.	Sab. Let.	Ijar.
14	A	1	The Sabbath is obſerv'd. And GOD on this Occaſion ſpeaks to Moſes from the Tabernacle, and commands him to number the People, and ſet up their Standards accordingly, Num. 1. 1.

16	c	3	The Princes offer their Gifts to the Sanctuary, Num. 7. That they offer'd not until their Standards were ſet up, is evident by Comparing the Method of both, Num. 2 and 7. Nahſhon the Son of Aminidab of the Tribe of Judah (from whom David and our bleſſed SAVIOUR deſcended, Ruth. 4. 20.) offer'd firſt, Num. 7. 12.

26	f	13	Ahiezer of the Tribe of Dan offers on the tenth Day, Num. 7. 66.
27	g	14	Pagiel of the Tribe of Aſher offers on the eleventh Day, Num. 7. 72. They who were unclean in the firſt Month now keep the Paſſover, Num. 9. 6 to 15.
28	A	15	The Sabbath is obſerv'd.
29	B	16	Ahira of the Tribe of Naphthali offers on the twelfth Day, Num. 7. 78. So that upon the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath all the Offerings are compleated.
30	c	17	On or about this Day, Jethro or Hobab, Moſes's Father-in-Law, comes to viſit him, Exod. 18. The Reaſons for Fixing the Story about this Time are theſe: Firſt, It is ſaid, Exod. 18. 12. that Jethro took Burnt-Offerings and Sacrifices for GOD. But the Law for Burnt-Offerings and Sacrifices was not yet given, Exod. 10. 26. And by the Law they were to be brought to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, Levit. 1. 3. and to Aaron and his Sons, Levit. 1. 5. who could not officiate until after their Conſecration in the former Month. Secondly, It is ſaid, Exod. 18. 13, 16. that Moſes ſat to judge the people, and made them know the ſtatutes of GOD, and his laws. Now the Moral Law cannot be meant hereby; for that was given in ſuch a Manner, that they all knew it; but it was the Ceremonial Law, which GOD ſpake to Moſes from the Tabernacle, Levit. 1. 1, 2. and commanded him to declare it to the Children of Iſrael. Thirdly, The Chuſing of Judges and Elders, which was by Jethro's Counſel, Exod. 18. 17, to the End, was not till their Departure from Sinai, Deut. 1. 7, 8. This Counſel was given by Jethro immediately upon his Coming to Moſes, Exod. 18. 13, &c. and it was ſo near to their Departure from Sinai, which is mention'd, Num. 10. 11. that it ſeems, ſome Warning of their Departure thence was given them before, Deut. 1. 6, 7, 8, &c. Fourthly, The Murmuring of Aaron and Miriam againſt Zipporah Moſes's Wife (who without Doubt was brought thither with her Children by her Father) is ſet after their Departure from Sinai, Num. 12. and this in all Probability was upon her firſt Coming among them, and their firſt Converſation with her, or ſoon after. Fifthly, The Departure of Jethro or Hobab from the Iſraelites at Sinai, Num. 10. 29, 30, 31, 32, is ſet ſo near the Place, where this Story is laid, that only a few Verſes come between. To this it may be objected, That in Exodus chap. 18. the Story is mention'd, before the Iſraelites came to Sinai. But the Reaſon of this will appear by Looking back upon the Curſe, which GOD denounc'd againſt Amalek, Exod. 17. 14, 15, 16. GOD will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven: And the LORD hath ſworn, that the LORD will have war with Amalek from generation to generation. Now that the HOLY GHOST might ſhew, that Jethro, who dwelt among the Amalekites, 1 Sam. 15. 16. Judg. 4. 11, 17. Num. 10. 29. did not fall under this Curſe, he brings in the Story of his Coming into Iſrael, and Making his Peace with GOD, in the very next Place after the Curſe is related; not thereby to conclude ſtrictly, that his Coming was at that very Time, as ſoon as the Curſe was pronounc'd, but to ſhew, that he once came, and ſo avoided the Curſe.
31	d	18	Moſes judgeth the People, Exod. 18. 13 to 24.

13	e	1	The Quails are ſent no longer. About this Time the Iſraelites come to Hazeroth, Num. 11. 35. Num. 13. 17. Aaron and Miriam ſpeak againſt Moſes, and vilify his Wife Zipporah, whom Jethro brought to him at Sinai, Num. 12. Miriam is ſhut out of the Camp for ſeven Days, which hinders them from Marching, Num. 12. 15.
24	b	12	About this Time they march and come to Rithmah, Num. 33. 18. in the Wilderneſs of Paran, Num. 12. 16. which is alſo call'd Kadeſh and Kadeſh-barnea, Num. 13. 26. Num. 32. 8. Deut. 1. 9. It was firſt call'd Rithmah, Num. 33. 18. compar'd with Num. 12. 16. and Num. 13. 26. and perhaps it was ſo call'd from many Juniper-Trees, which grew there, as 1 Kings 19. 4. but now call'd Kadeſh, becauſe the LORD was there ſanctify'd before the People, and Barnea, or The wandering Son, or a People who deſerv'd to wander; becauſe the Decree for their long Wandering in the Wilderneſs was made here.

Anno Mundi 2514.

Auguſt.	Sab. Let.	Tammuz.
7	b	26	About this Time the twelve Spies are ſent to view the Land of Canaan, Num. 13. Num. 32. 8, 9. Deut. 1. 19 to the End, and return at the End of forty Days, Num. 13. 25. ſo that nothing remarkable happen'd in the next Month Ab.

Anno Mundi 2514.

September.	Sab. Let.	Elul.
16	g	6	The Spies return on the Evening before the Sabbath, at the End of forty Days, and bring with them a Bunch of Grapes, and alſo Pomegranates and Figs, Num. 13. 23, 24. which they might well do, even in the Beginning of this ſixth Month, becauſe the former Year being an Embolimæan Year made the Months happen the later, and the Sun on this Day was in ♍ 9, as it is about the twenty ſecond Day of Auguſt in this Age of the World. And the Grapes are fully ripe ſooner in that Climate, than they are in theſe more northern Parts.
17	A	7	The next Day being the Sabbath, the whole Congregation murmur, Num. 14. 1, 2, 3. and are therefore ſentenc'd to wander forty Years in the Wilderneſs, until they were all deſtroy'd, Num. 14. 22 to 40. In Memory whereof the Jews have ſince obſerv'd the ſeventh Day of the Month Elul for an annual Faſt.

As the Iſraelites continu'd three hundred ſeventy one Days near Mount Sinai, according as (a) it appears in the Margin by Computing from (b) the Day when they came thither, Anno Mundi 2513 (the Year conſiſting of thirteen Months, or 384 Days) to (c) the Day when the Cloud gave them Notice of their Departure thence; ſo they continu'd three hundred and ſeventy one Days at Kadeſh-barnea: and conſequently as they came thither on the twenty fourth Day of July, or on the twelfth Day of the Month Tammuz, Anno Mundi 2514, which Year conſiſted of 354 Days; ſo they departed thence on the thirtieth Day of July, or the twenty ninth Day of the Month Tammuz, Anno Mundi 2515. And as the Sabbatical Letter for that Year was G, and for the Year before was A; ſo it is evident, that they began their Reſt there, and their March from thence (as uſual) on the Day after the Sabbath. That they ſtaid ſo long at Kadeſh-barnea, appears from the Words of Moſes, (d) So ye abode at Kadeſh many days, according to the days that ye abode there, or as long as they had before ſtay'd at (e) Horeb, which (f) is the ſame with Sinai. So that they ſpent the ſame Quantity of Time, or Number of Days in each Place.

Anno Mundi 2552.

2. In the firſt Day (as it is moſt probable) of the firſt Month which began the fortieth Year of the Iſraelites Travels in the Wilderneſs, they come to (g) Kadeſh. This was a Kadeſh in (h) the Wilderneſs of Sin, toward (i) Eziongeber and the Red-Sea, and was (k) the thirty third Place where they encamp'd, and it was not Kadeſh-barnea, where they had been before, and which (l) was ſituate near the South-Coaſt of the Land of Canaan, and was call'd (m) Rithmah by Moſes. In (n) the Text it is ſaid, that the Iſraelites came to the deſert of Zin to Kadeſh in the firſt month, but it names not the Year; for it refers to the Decree made of their forty Years Wandering, and this was the firſt Month of the fortieth Year, as it is more clearly expreſs'd in (o) other Places. And therefore tho' the Occurrences, which happen'd in all this former Space, cannot be fix'd to a certain Chronological Order; yet we find, that of the (p) two and forty Journeys in the Wilderneſs, (q) fifteen were ended in the third Summer, the (r) nine laſt were perform'd in the laſt Year, and there remains ſix and thirty Years for the other eighteen, or about the Space of two Years for each Journey. However, many Particulars of the laſt Year in the Wilderneſs, and the firſt in the Land of Canaan, may be mention'd with a greater Exactneſs, as appears in the following Table.

CHAP. V.

The History of the WORLD.

AFTER Pharaoh Amenophis was drown'd in the Red-Sea, his Son Sesostris succeeded him in the Kingdom of Lower-Egypt. His Acts both at home and abroad, as they are related by Heathen Historians, exceeded all others in any Part of the World, and even those of Alexander the Great; and yet Authors differ prodigiously concerning the Time of his Reign. Eusebius (a) out of Africanus, and he out of Manetho the Egyptian Priest, makes him very antient by Placing him in the twelfth Dynasty, and afterward Moses in the eighteenth Sir Walter Raleigh (b) places his Death about an hundred and twenty Years before the Deliverance of the Israelites out of Egypt. Sir John Marsham (c) reckons Sesostris to be the same with Shishak in the Time of Rehoboam; but then he and Eusebius confute themselves by Placing Danaus the Brother of Sesostris about the Time of the Departure out of Egypt. Sir John Marsham's Opinion being follow'd by none, and learnedly confuted by (d) Bishop Cumberland, was again reviv'd by the late Sir Isaac Newton, without taking the least Notice of the Arguments by which it was confuted. And therefore I rather chose to follow (e) our learned Prelate, who makes his Coming to the Throne to be immediately upon the Passage of the Israelites thro' the Red-Sea. The (f) Greek Historian saith, that after his Birth his Father perform'd a noble Act, and becoming a King. He caused all throughout all Egypt, who were near of the same Age with his Son, and especially those who were born the same Day with him, to the Number of seventeen hundred in all, to be brought together, and to have the same Education, and be instructed in the same Discipline and Exercises with his Son, supposing that by being thus most familiarly acquainted, and conversing one with another, they would be always most loving and faithful Friends, and the best fellow Soldiers in all the Wars. Providing therefore every thing for his Purpose, he caused the Boys to be exercis'd daily in the Schools with hard and difficult Labours, as that none should eat till he had run an hundred and fourscore Furlongs, or two and twenty measur'd Miles and an half. And by this Means, when they were of a fit Age, they were capable either to be Commanders, or to undertake any brave or noble Action both in Respect of the Vigour and Strength of their Bodies, and the excellent Qualifications of their Minds. There are some, who write, that at the Time of his Birth, Vulcan appear'd to his Father in his Sleep, and told him, that the Child then born should conquer the whole World, and that this was the Reason, why his Father assembled so many of the like Age, and bred them up together with his Son to make Way for him to rise with more Ease to that Height of Imperial Dignity; and that when he was grown to Man's Estate, he fully believing what had been foretold, undertook those Expeditions, which are reported of him. In the first Place he was sent with an Army into Arabia by his Father, and his Companions, who were bred up with him, and attended him at the same Time, where they endur'd great Fatigues in Hunting and Killing of wild Beasts, and after that having overcome all his great Labours, Toils and Troubles, as also the Want both of Water and Provision in that desert Country, he conquer'd all that rude and barbarous Nation, which was never before subdued, as not being inhabited in the Time of Nimrod and Semiramis. And the Killing of those wild Beasts was a particular Providence, which made the Israelites afterward travel with less Difficulty and Danger in those Countries. After this it is said, that he was sent into the western Parts, where he conquer'd the greatest Part of Lybia, being as yet but a Youth. If this Account can be depended on, it is probable, that he was concern'd in this Expedition, when the News was brought him that his Father and his whole Army were drown'd in the Red-Sea, and therefore he left the Rest of Libya untouch'd, and came back with his whole Army into Egypt to secure to himself the Government of that Kingdom. When he return'd, he found the Country in a lamentable Condition. The Israelites, who were their Slaves, were gone from them. All the veteran Soldiers were lost with their Arms, Chariots and Horses, the first-born in every Family were all slain in one Night, their Cattle were kill'd with the Murrain, their Fruit deſtroy'd firſt by the Lightning and Hail, and then by the Locuſts, which had eaten up every green thing upon ths Face of the Earth, ſo that nothing but a Famine could be expected. In this lamentable Poſture of Affairs at home, Seſoſtris prepares for an Expedition abroad, thinking that it could not be worſe, and hoping that it might be better, and encourag'd by his former Succeſſes he undertakes to ſubdue and conquer the whole World. Some report, that he was ſtirr'd up by his Daughter Athyrte to attempt an univerſal Monarchy. For being a Woman of an extraordinary Underſtanding, ſhe made it out to her Father, that the Conqueſt was eaſy. And others encourag'd him by their Divinations, foretelling his Succeſſes by the Intrails of the Sacrifices, by their Dreams in the Temples, and Prodigies ſeen in the Air. For this Purpoſe he made it his chief Concern to gain the Love and good Will of all the Egyptians, judging it neceſſary in order to effect what he deſign'd, ſo far to engage his Soldiers, as that they ſhould readily and willingly venture their Lives for their Generals, and that they whom he ſhould leave behind him, ſhould not contrive, nor hatch any Rebellion in his Abſence. To this End he therefore oblig'd every one to the utmoſt of his Power, working upon ſome by Money, upon others by Giving them Lands, and upon many more by free Pardons, and upon all Occaſions by fair Words, and an affable and courteous Behaviour. For he pardon'd thoſe, who were condemn'd for High Treaſon, and freed all that were in Priſon for Debt by Paying what they ow'd, of whom (g) there was a vaſt Multitude in the Goals. For (h) the Iſraelites borrowed of the Egyptians jewels of ſilver, and jewels of gold and raiment, and they lent unto them ſuch things as they required, inſomuch that they ſpoiled the Egyptians. This made the Creditors more exacting, and the Debtors leſs able to pay, and therefore the Liberality of Seſoſtris, and the Poverty of his Country, made him the ſooner raiſe an Army. Upon this he reſettl'd the antient Diviſion of the Country into ſix and thirty Parts, which the Egyptians call'd Nomi or Provinces, and were firſt made by the Canaanitiſh Paſtors at their Entrance into the Country; and over every one of theſe he appointed a Nomarchus or Governor, who ſhould take Care of his Revenue in his Abſence, and manage all other Affairs relating to their ſeveral and reſpective Provinces. Out of theſe he choſe the ſtrongeſt and ableſt Men, and rais'd an Army anſwerable to the greatneſs of the Deſign, conſiſting (if the Hiſtorian may be credited) of ſix hundred thouſand Foot, and twenty four thouſand Horſe, and twenty ſeven thouſand Chariots of War. And over all the ſeveral Regiments he made thoſe the principal Commanders, who had been brought up with him, being ſuch as had been us'd to martial Exerciſes, and from their Childhood earneſt and zealous to perform heroick Exploits, and were knit together as Brethren in Love and Affection both to the King and to one another; and upon theſe his Companions he beſtow'd large Eſtates in Lands in the richeſt Parts of Egypt, that they might not be in the leaſt Want of any thing, reſerving only their Attendance upon him in the Wars.

2. Upon this (i) Seſoſtris conſtitutes his Brother Armais, who was alſo call'd Danaus, Lieutenant General of Egypt during his Abſence, and veſted him with all ſovereign Powers and Privileges, the Wearing of the Crown excepted, and with a Caution not to oppreſs the Queen or her Family, nor to intermeddle with his Concubines; and ſo he proceeds in his Expedition.

3. In the mean Time the Dukes of (k) Edom finding that the Iſraelites had paſs'd the Red-Sea, and were come into their Neighbourhood, chang'd their Form of Government, and choſe a King, that they might the better defend themſelves in Caſe of Neceſſity. For then (l) as Moſes ſaid, The dukes of Edom were amaz'd, and trembling took hold of the mighty men of Moab. The Name of this firſt King is not mention'd, but it is plain, that he was an able and a valiant General. He took the Advantage of (m) the Iſraelites after a long March, and kill'd ſeveral of thoſe, who ſtay'd behind. He fought the Iſraelites (n) in a pitch'd Battle at Rephidim, and (o) prepar'd to attack them, when they only deſir'd a Paſſage thro' his Country, and the Monarchy thus ſettl'd continu'd (p) to the Time of Jehoſhaphat King of Iſrael, and we know not how much longer. Anno Mundi 2513.

4. But Seſoſtris (q) having rendezvouz'd his Army, march'd firſt againſt the Ethiopians, who inhabited the ſouth Country; and having conquer'd them, he forc'd them to pay him a Tribute of Ebony, Gold and Elephants Teeth. Then he ſent forth a Navy of four hundred Sail into the Red-Sea, and was the firſt Egyptian, who built Ships reſembling our modern Form; whereas before they were oblong and flat-bottom'd, and conſequently not ſo fit for ſpeedy Sailing. By the Help of this Fleet he gain'd all the Iſlands in thoſe Parts, and ſubdu'd the bordering Nations as far as to India; but happening to come into a ſhallow Sea, and his Ships drawing more Water than uſual, he either could not, or was afraid to go any farther, and ſo he return'd into Egypt. After this, upon Conſulting the Prieſts, he recruited his Army, and march'd with them by Land into Aſia. By this Time the Iſraelites had paſs'd into the Deſerts of Arabia, whither Seſoſtris was afraid to follow them, partly becauſe he well knew the Barrenneſs of the Country, that there could not be a Subſiſtence for two ſuch Multitudes, and the Iſraelites being firſt, muſt of courſe conſume all the Proviſion, and chiefly becauſe he knew what Miſeries Egypt had ſo lately underwent for their Sakes; and dreading a miraculous Overthrow of himſelf and his whole Army, he had learn'd from his Father's Example to beware, and ſo he march'd directly into Canaan, and committed no Hoſtilities againſt the King of Edom, rather looking upon himſelf as oblig'd by that Nation for the Miſchiefs, which they had ſo lately done to the Iſraelites, whom he look'd upon as his profeſs'd Enemies, tho he dar'd not to march after them.

5. In the mean Time the Canaanites had heard of the frequent Promiſes, which GOD gave to Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, that their Seed ſhould poſſeſs this Land, and at the Time appointed they ſhould come forth out of Egypt, and deſtroy them all, and that they had in a miraculous Manner paſs'd the Red-Sea for this Purpoſe, which put them in a terrible Conſternation. They concluded, that if they weaken'd their Army by Engaging with the one, it would be an effectual Means of their being deſtroy'd by the other. They had Reaſon to expect their Lives if they ſubmitted to the Egyptians, but had no Reaſon to expect even that, if they ſubmitted to the Iſraelites, and were alſo in Hope of conſiderable Reinforcements from Egypt to protect them whenever there ſhould be Occaſion; and therefore the whole Country immediately ſubmitted to Seſoſtris without the leaſt Oppoſition. Upon this he places Governors in all the principal Towns, to collect an annual Tribute and ſend it to him, and alſo to raiſe Recruits as often as he ſhould want them. Theſe were (r) one and thirty in all, who in the Time of his Succeſſor Buſiris the Tyrant ſet up every one for himſelf, which made them ſo much the weaker, and was the viſible Cauſe of their being ſo eaſily deſtroy'd by Joſhua one after another.

6. Seſoſtris flush'd with this Succeſs (as the Hiſtorian tells us) without any Loſs of Time marches forward with his whole Army, and conquers all Aſia. For, (ſaith he) he (s) not only invaded thoſe Nations, which Alexander the Macedonian afterward ſubdu'd, but likewiſe thoſe which he never ſet his Foot upon. For he both paſs'd the River Ganges, and likewiſe pierc'd thro' all India to the main Ocean. Then he ſubdu'd the Scythians as far as to the River Tanais, which divides Europe from Aſia. In the ſame Manner he brought into Subjection all the reſt of Aſia, and moſt of the Iſlands of the Cyclades. From thence he went into Thrace in Europe, and marching thro' the Deſerts the Thracians endeavour'd to cut off his Retreat, inſomuch that he was in Danger of Loſing his whole Army, thro' the Difficulty of the Paſſages, and Want of Proviſion; and therefore putting a Stop to his Expedition in Thrace, he erected Pillars up and down in all his Conqueſts, whereon were inſcrib'd in Egyptian Letters, call'd Hieroglyphicks, theſe Words:

7. Among thoſe Nations, which were ſtout and warlike, he (t) carv'd ſuch Repreſentations upon the Pillars, which might ſhew their Valour; and among thoſe Nations who made no Reſiſtance he carv'd (u) ſuch Repreſentations, as might ſhew their Cowardiſe: And in ſome Places he ſet up his own Statue carv'd in Stone, with a Bow and a Lance, about four Cubits and four Hands in Height, of which Stature he himſelf was reported to be. Herodotus (x) reports the ſame Story, and adds, that the Army under his Command ſeems to have gone as far as Scythia and Thrace and no farther, becauſe there are ſuch Monuments in thoſe Countries, and none beyond them, and that he himſelf had ſeen ſome of them in Syria of Palæſtina, or the Land of Canaan, which ſhew'd that at that Time they were an effeminate People; and that he ſaw two of them in Ionia, one in the Road from Epheſus to Phocæa, and the other in the Road from Sardis to Smyrna. There are ſome, who call him by the Name of Ægyptus, and (y) tell us, that Egypt, which was before call'd Aeria, took its Name from Ægyptus, who reign'd there, when Danaus was expell'd. Others call'd him Rameſſes, after the Name of his Grandfather, and from hence (z) Tacitus calls him Rhamſes, and ſaith of him, that he conquer'd Africa, Ethiopia, Media and Perſia, Bactria, Scythia, Syria, Armenia and Cappadocia, as far as the Bithynian Sea on the one ſide, and the Lycian Sea on the other. In all theſe Places we cannot find that he planted any new Colonies, except at the (a) Lake Mæotis by the River Tanais, where he gave an Original to the Nation of Colchis.

Theſe

These the (b) learned Bochart proves to have come from Casluhim, by the Affinity of the Name, only leaving out the Letter S, who was one of the Grandchildren of (c) Ham by Mizraim, and whose Posterity lay at the End of the Red-Sea, near the Borders of the Land of Canaan. This he proves, from the Testimony of (d) Apollonius in his Argonauticks, who saith, that the Inhabitants of Æa, the most antient City of Colchis, were brought thither by an Egyptian King, who, as the (e) Scholiast expressly tells us, was Sesonchosis or Sesostris. The same also is affirm'd by (f) Dionysius Periegetes, (g) Priscianus, (h) Festus Avienus, (i) Valerius Flaccus, (k) Herodotus, Diodorus Siculus, (l) Strabo and others. To these Testimonies may be added other Arguments, which the (m) learned Bochart hath more fully prov'd; as that the Inhabitants both of Colchis and Egypt were of a black Colour, and curl'd Hair; and for this Reason were frequently call'd Ethiopians. That Herodotus affirms, that the Inhabitants both of Colchis and Egypt were circumcis'd, not by a late Order, but from the Beginning, of which Sanchoniatho (n) gives us this Account, That Ham was circumcis'd, and forc'd his Auxiliaries to submit to the same; so that from Ham this Custom came into Egypt, (o) the Land of Ham, and from thence it came to Colchis. Both Nations work'd up Linen in the same Manner, and wore Linen Garments: They both worshipp'd the Sun; their most antient King Æætes was said to have the Sun for his Father, and the same was affirm'd of the Egyptian Kings. At Phasis in Colchis there was the Picture of their tutelar Goddess, holding a Cymbal in one Hand with Lions under her Throne; and this was also the Representation of Isis in Egypt. In Colchis there was also a River call'd Isis, after her Name. Both Nations were studious of magick Arts, insomuch that in Egypt there were Jannes and Jambres, and in Colchis there were Circe and Medæa. The most famous Philosophers came antiently from Egypt; and Marsyas, as eminent as any of them, came from Colchis. Both Nations were famous for Geography, and a Map of the Conquests of Sesostris was originally preserv'd by both; neither of these Nations did offer Sheep for Sacrifices. And as the Posterity of Casluhim lay neareſt to the Land of Canaan, from whence they added many Words to their own Language; so they carried these Words with them into Colchis, of which this learned Author hath given us a surprizing Account.

8. During this grand Expedition of Sesostris abroad, his Brother Armais, or Danaus, acted the Tyrant at home, and (p) did just the contrary to what he should have done. He without any Difficulty or Scruple casts off the Allegiance, which he ow'd to his Brother, and sets up for himself. He expels the Queen, abuses the King's Concubines, and by the Advice and Assistance of his false Friends he takes the Crown, and resolves to maintain his Title by Force of Arms. The Egyptian High Priest gave notice to Sesostris from Time to Time of all these Indignities; who being now reduc'd to the last Difficulties, despairing of more Conquests, and fearing to lose all, if he stay'd abroad any longer, he march'd back with all Expedition into Egypt by the Way of Pelusium, and secures his Government.

9. In the mean Time (q) his Brother Danaus, having Notice of his Return from this great Expedition, feigns himself to be of another Temper, and meets him at Pelusium the frontier Town, before he could have a certain Account of this Matter from the Inhabitants of the Country. Here Danaus invites Sesostris to a great Feast, together with his Wife and Children, and under an open Shew of Friendship plots secretly against his Life; for being all overcome by Wine, and gone to Rest, he caus'd a great Quantity of dry Reeds, long before prepar'd for that Purpose, to be plac'd round the King's Pavilion in the Night, and to be all set on fire. The Flames quickly spread themselves all round, and the King had little Assistance either from his Servants or Lifeguard, who were all overcome with Wine. Upon this Sesostris, with his Hands lifted up to Heaven, calling upon the Gods for Help for his Wife and Children, rush'd with them thro' the Flames. Tho' it is also reported, that he waking and finding his Danger, consults with his Queen what to do in this Extremity, who adviseth him to throw two of his Children into the Flames, that they might be as a Bridge for all the reſt; which he did, and ſo they eſcap'd. And being thus unexpectedly preſerv'd, he made Oblations to the reſt of the Gods, but eſpecially to Vulcan, as to him by whoſe Favour he was ſo remarkably deliver'd. He alſo on this Occaſion plac'd at Memphis in the Temple of Vulcan his own and his Wife's Statues, each of one intire Stone, thirty Cubits in Height, and others for his Sons, which were twenty Cubits high. Upon this a War follows between the two Brothers, in which (*) Seſoſtris being Conqueror expels his Brother Danaus, who flees from Egypt into Greece, in a Ship of fifty Oars, which is ſaid to be the firſt Ship of that Kind ſeen in that Country, eſpecially in the Ægæan Sea, the firſt Inhabitants being tranſported thither from Aſia the leſs in flat-bottom'd Boats, coaſting along by the little Iſlands, and the Inhabitants of Tarſus, who had Ships of another Faſhion, ſailing to Countries peopled at firſt by them, and lying at a greater Diſtance. Upon his coming into Greece, he begins to erect a Kingdom, and claim'd a Title to it as deſcending from Io the Granddaughter of Libya, and ſo he endeavours to draw off all thoſe, who had formerly been planted there from Egypt to be govern'd by him. The Kingdom of Argives had been founded there long before by Inachus, who reign'd fifty Years; after him Phoroneus reign'd ſixty Years; then Apis five and thirty Years; after him Argus ſeventy Years; from whom not only his City, but alſo all Peloponneſus was call'd Argos; then Criaſus reign'd four and fifty Years, Phorbus thirty five Years, Triopas forty ſix Years, Crotopus one and twenty, and Sthenelus eleven. At this Time a War begins between Sthenelus and Danaus. Sthenelus makes Gelanor his General, who fights with Danaus for ſome Time, till the Argives ſeeing a Wolf kill a Bull, judg'd that it was the Will of Apollo, that the Stranger ſhould have the Kingdom. Upon this Gelanor yields up all to Danaus, and from him all the Grecians who liv'd near the Sea-Shore, and were therefore formerly call'd Pelaſgi, were ſince call'd Danai. Danaus upon his Advancement builds a Temple to Apollo Lycius, and make a Wolf's Head to be the Badge, or, as we ſay, the Arms of Argos; and his Daughters erected a Temple to the Honour of Minerva. Herodotus tells us, (r) that Danaus came originally from Chemmis, a large City of Thebais in Egypt, where they kept the Memory of him carefully, and the Genealogy of Perſeus from him. Perhaps one Cauſe of his Advancement at Argos might be his Directing them to cut Canals in ſeveral Parts of the Country, after the Egyptian Method, for the better Conveniency of Watering their Land, which it formerly wanted, and which he manag'd ſo much to their Satisfaction and Intereſt, that they were more eaſily inclin'd to intruſt him with the Care of all their other Concerns. Strabo ſaith, that he did it alſo by the Uſe of Wells and Pumps, for which they were alſo famous in Egypt. And Apollodorus ſaith, that he did it by the Help of his Daughters, and the Poets make this their Puniſhment for Killing their Husbands. The Story goes, that Seſoſtris or Ægyptus had fifty Sons, and that his Brother Armais or Danaus in his Abſence married them to his own fifty Daughters, and order'd all of them to kill their Husbands the firſt Night; which they all did, except Hypermneſtra, who ſaved her Husband Lynceus; and that when Danaus had reign'd nine and fifty Years, his Son-in-Law Lynceus murder'd him, and ſucceeded in the Kingdom.

10. Seſoſtris having now ſpent nine Years in this Expedition, and carrying himſelf in the mean Time courteouſly and familiarly toward all his Subjects, and having broken the Power of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, that they were not in a Condition to attack the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs, he orders all the Nations, which he had conquer'd, to bring their Preſents and Tributes yearly to him, every one in Proportion to his ſeveral Abilities. And he himſelf, with the Captives and the reſt of the Spoils, of which there was a vaſt Quantity, returns into Egypt, far exceeding all the Kings which were before him in the Greatneſs of his Actions and Atchievements. He adorn'd all the Temples in Egypt with rich Preſents, and the Spoils of his Enemies; and after that he rewarded his Soldiers, who had ſerv'd him in the War, every one according to his Deſert. For (s) having before divided the Land of Lower-Egypt into ſix and thirty Nomi or Counties, he now divides his Subjects into three Parts; one Part conſiſted of his Court, which were either Prieſts or civil Officers, the other Part conſiſted of Husbandmen and Tradeſmen, and the third Part conſiſted of their ſettl'd Militia, which alſo conſiſted of two Sorts, call'd either the Hermotybie or the Calaſiries, and were eſteem'd above all Tradeſmen. Accordingly twelve of theſe Nomi were given to theſe military Men, the full Number of them were two hundred and fifty thouſand Men, who in their Courſes were the King's Guards; and every one of them had, to maintain him and his Family, Land free from Taxes, whoſe Area or ſuperficial Content was twelve Aroura, each A- roura being an hundred Cubits on every Side. So that the whole conſiſted (t) of about nine Acres and an half of our Statute Meaſure, (u) and according to the neareſt Computation, might contain about an eighth Part of the whole Country of Lower-Egypt. And tho' we may look upon it but ſmall to breed up a Family upon it; yet in this Caſe we muſt conſider the great Fruitfulneſs of the Country, the great Improvements made by Gardening, that they manur'd it themſelves, and eſpecially their cheap Way of Living. For we are aſſur'd, (x) that they brought up their Children with very little Coſt, and were ſparing to Admiration on that Account. They provided for them Broth made of any poor and mean Stuff, which might eaſily be had, and fed thoſe who were of Strength, and able to eat it, with the Pith of the Bulruſhes or Paper Weeds, which grew in the Nile, roaſted in the Embers, and with Roots and Herbs got in the Fens, ſometimes raw and ſometimes boil'd, and at other Times fry'd and boil'd. The Climate was ſo warm and temperate, that moſt of the Children went barefooted and naked. And it is ſaid, that it coſt not a Parent above twenty Drachms, or about twelve Shillings and Six-pence of our Engliſh Money, to bring up a Child to Man's Eſtate. And this was the chief Reaſon, why Egypt was ſo populous, and excell'd all other Places in magnificent Structures.

11. Thus it is ſaid, that not only the Army return'd home loaded with Riches, and receiv'd the Glory and Honour of their approv'd Valour; but the whole Country of Egypt reap'd many Advantages by this Expedition. For Seſoſtris having now diſbanded his Army, and having given Leave to his Companions in Arms, and Fellow-Conquerors, to take their Eaſe, and enjoy the Rewards of their Conqueſts, and being alſo fir'd with an earneſt Deſire of Glory at home as well as abroad, and ambitious to leave laſting Monuments of his Memory behind him, he made many fair aud ſtately Works, admirable for their Coſt and Contrivance, by which he is ſaid both to have advanc'd his own Reputation, and to have procur'd unſpeakable Advantages to the Egyptians for the Time to come. For beginning firſt with what concern'd the Gods, he built a Temple in all the Cities of Egypt to that God, whom every Place moſt ador'd; he alſo employ'd none of the Egyptians in his Works, but finiſh'd all by the Labours of the Captives, and therefore he cauſed this Inſcription to be made in all the Temples, None of the Natives were put to labour here. It is reported, that ſome of the Captives brought out of the Babyloniſh Country, (becauſe they were not able to bear the Fatigue of the Work) rebell'd againſt the King, and having poſſeſs'd themſelves of a Fort near the River, they waſted the Country thereabout, but at laſt having obtain'd a Pardon, they choſe a Place for their Habitation, and call'd it Babylon after the Name of the chief Town in their own Country. And it is farther added, that Troy, ſituate upon the River Nile, was ſo call'd upon a like Occaſion. For Menelaus, when he return'd from that famous Siege with many Priſoners, arriv'd in Egypt, where the Trojans deſerting him, ſeiz'd upon a certain ſtrong Place, and took up Arms againſt the Greeks, till they had gain'd their Liberty, and then they built a famous City, and call'd it after the Name of their own. And thus alſo Cadmus, going from Thebes in Egypt to Greece, built there a large City, and call'd it by the ſame Name. It is certain, that there are Towns in Egypt call'd Troy and Babylon; tho' it is not ſo certain, how they came at firſt to be ſo call'd.

12. When Seſoſtris had built the Temples, he proceeded to raiſe many Mounts and Banks of Earth, to which he remov'd all the Cities that lay low, and in the Plain, that both Man and Beaſt might be ſafe and ſecure at the Time of the Inundation of the River. He alſo cut many deep Ditches, from the River as far as from Memphis to the Sea, for the ready and quick Conveying of Corn and other Proviſion and Merchandiſe thither by ſhorter Cuts both for the Support of Trade and Commerce, and the Maintaining of Peace and Plenty all over the Country. And when he had done this, he fortified all the frontier Places againſt the Incurſions of Enemies, and made it of difficult Acceſs; whereas before, the greateſt Part of Egypt lay expos'd to a ſuperior Number of foreign Forces. But now the Multitude of Canals drawn all along the River, made the Entrance very difficult, and the Country not ſo eaſy to be invaded. He alſo defended the eaſt Side of Egypt againſt the Irruptions of the Syrians and Arabians, with a Wall drawn from Peluſium thro' the Deſarts as far as Heliopolis for the Space of fifteen hundred Furlongs. He alſo caus'd a Ship to be made of Cedar, of two hundred and eighty Cubits in Length, gilded over with Gold on the outside, and with Silver within; and this he dedicated to the God, who was most ador'd by the Thebans. He also erected two Obelisks of polish'd Marble an hundred and twenty Cubits high, on which was inscrib'd a Description of the large Extent of his Empire, the great Value of his Revenue, and the great Number of Nations conquer'd by him.

13. It is also reported of him, that he order'd all the Kings of the conquer'd Nations, who either held their own Kingdoms thro' his Favour, or had receiv'd large Principalities as a Token of his particular Kindness, to come with their Presents and Tributes into Egypt at the Times appointed; and when they were come accordingly, he receiv'd them with all the Signs of Honour and Respect; but when he went to the Temple, or into the City, he order'd all the Horses to be unharnes's'd out of his Chariot, and that four Kings and other Princes should draw it in their Places. The Design of this proud Custom was to make it evident to all, that there was none comparable to him in Valour, who had conquer'd the most famous and potent Princes in the World. So that in short, this King seems to have excell'd all others, that were ever eminent either for Power or Greatness, either before or after him, both as to his Warlike Enterprizes, the Number of Gifts and Oblations, and his wonderful Works in that Country.

14. After he had reign'd three and thirty Years he fell blind, and wilfully put an End to his own Life; for which the Heathen Historian saith, he was admir'd not only by Priests, but by all the rest of the Egyptians. Because as he had before manifested the Greatness of his Mind by his Actions; so they thought that his End was agreeable, by a voluntary Death, to the Glory of his Life. It is said, that the Fame and Renown of this King continu'd so fresh down to Posterity, that many Ages after, when Egypt was conquer'd by the Persians, and Darius the Father of Xerxes would set up his Statue at Memphis above that of Sesostris, the chief Priest upon the Debating of the Matter in the Conclave boldly spoke against it, declaring that Darius had not as yet exceeded the noble Acts of Sesostris, which the King was so far from resenting, that on the contrary, he was well pleas'd and taken with that Freedom of Speech, and said, That he would endeavour (if he liv'd as long as the other did) to be nothing inferior to him, and wish'd them only to compare things done in Proportion to the Time; for that was the justest Trial and Examination of Valour.

15. There is an Objection against this Story, viz. that if it was true, the Egyptian Monarchy ought to be reckon'd among the other four, especially as well as the Grecian, which began and ended wieh Alexander the Great. But to this it may be answer'd, that each of the other Monarchies utterly overturn'd that which was before it. But as the Assyrian Monarchy was standing before his Time; so he left it standing afterward. None of the Historians tell us that he conquer'd either Babylon or Nineveh; but he rather coasted it along the Red-Sea and the Persian Gulph, and took in the neighbouring Countries, and after that went thro' the Land of Canaan toward Scythia on the other Side, and enter'd not into the Heart of the Empire. And as (y) Daniel describ'd it, he seiz'd on the Eagles Wings, and pluck'd off the Feathers, but left the Heart and Vitals untouch'd.

16. But the greatest Dispute concerning Sesostris, is about the Time when he liv'd. They who follow Manetho can never be reconcil'd with Scripture or Probability; and others, who make him to be Shishak in Rehoboam's Time, entangle themselves with as many Difficulties. But tho' they differ so widely from Truth, some on the one Hand and some on the other; yet they all place his Brother Danaus near the Time in which he really liv'd. Eusebius, who follow'd Manetho in Sesostris, places Danaus but two Years distant from this Time, as it is observ'd by our learned Prelate, and he makes Sesostris to be the Son of that Pharaoh, who was drown'd in the Red-Sea. Sir John Marsham, who makes Sesostris to be Shishak, affirms his Brother Danaus to have liv'd four and twenty Years before the Departure of the Israelites; so that their near Agreement about the Time of one Brother, might more easily reconcile the Difference about the other. Our learned Bishop Cumberland (z) is of the same Opinion with Archbishop Usher, in Making Sesostris to be the Son of that Pharaoh, who was drown'd in the Red-Sea, and he hath given such solid Arguments to prove it, that tho' they have been disregarded by some; yet they have been answer'd by none. As for the Names of Sesostris and Shishak, they only agree in a single Letter, which tho' repeated, is not sufficient to frame an Argument upon it; and as for their Actions they were vastly different. The Actions of Sesostris have been already mention'd, and as for Shishak, the Scripture tells us in the (a) Book of Kings, that in the Beginning of Rehoboam's Reign Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and provoked him to jealousy. So that it came to pass in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, that Shishak king of Egypt came up againſt Jeruſalem: And he took away the treaſures of the houſe of the LORD, and the treaſures of the king's houſe; he took away even all the ſhields, which Solomon had made. In (b) the Book of Chronicles the Account is more particular, with this Addition, that Shemaiah the Prophet admoniſh'd the King and Princes of their Wickedneſs; and upon their Humiliation promis'd, that GOD would grant them ſome Deliverance, and his Wrath ſhould not be poured out upon Jeruſalem by the Hands of Shiſhak, and accordingly he went back into Egypt, and we hear no more of him. Joſephus (c) expounds it thus: Rehoboam being brought into the utmoſt Extremity of Deſpair, the Prophet told the King, that GOD was pleas'd ſo far to accept of their Humiliation and Repentance, that they ſhould not be utterly deſtroy'd and cut off, but only deliver'd into Subjection and Slavery to the Egyptians, that they might learn by Experience, whether it was better to ſerve GOD or Man. In this panick Fear Rehoboam deliver'd up Jeruſalem to Shiſhak upon certain Conditions, but he without any Regard to Faith or Honour broke his Articles, and afterward went back again with a prodigious Booty. So that this bars all farther Progreſs in that Expedition. Seſoſtris ſpent nine Years in his Wars, and there is not the leaſt Shadow of Reaſon to think, that Shiſhak did not return the ſame Summer. Shiſhak went immediately back again from Jeruſalem; but Seſoſtris extended his Conqueſts into Scythia and Thrace. Seſoſtris conquer'd all the Land of Canaan, or elſe he could have gone no farther; but Shiſhak did not touch the ten Tribes of Iſrael, where Jeroboam reign'd, who had (d) liv'd with him a long Time in the Reign of Solomon, and probably invited him to diſtreſs Rehoboam, againſt whom he had rebell'd, that he might be the ſafer, when the Kingdom of Judah was impoveriſh'd.

17. But not to inſiſt upon (e) leſſer Authorities, there are ſeveral other Writers of conſiderable Note, who place Seſoſtris long before Rehoboam's Time. Ariſtotle (f) affirms the Kingdom of Seſoſtris to have been much older in Time than Minos in Crete, which Sir John Marſham owns to be in the Time of Joſhua. Pliny affirms, (g) that Troy was taken in the Time of Rameſis. This Rameſis was the third in Deſcent from Seſoſtris. And there were but five Years from his Death to the Reign of Thuoris, under whom Africanus places the Taking of Troy. So that theſe Authors agree pretty near in this Matter, and both muſt imply, that Seſoſtris being long before the Time of Rameſis, muſt be at a greater Diſtance from the Siege of Troy. Strabo (h) affirms Seſoſtris to have been before the Trojan Times; and Sir John Marſham, and in general, all the Writers of the Argonautick Expedition own plainly, that the Colonies of Seſoſtris had been in Colchis before that, which all agree to be the Century before the Fall of Troy.

18. The only ſupport of this Opinion, that Shiſhak and Seſoſtris were the ſame, is a Quotation in Joſephus, (i) where he ſaith, that Herodotus of Halicarnaſſus takes Notice of this Expedition, only erring in the Name of the King. Now Joſephus begins his Chapter thus, GOD aveng'd himſelf upon Rehoboam by the Hand of Shiſhak King of Egypt, (k) concerning whom Herodotus being miſtaken, aſcribes what he did to Seſoſtris. So that Joſephus ſaith expreſly, in the Beginning of the Chapter, that Seſoſtris was not Shiſhak, and others infer from the ſame Chapter, that Seſoſtris was Shiſhak. Neither will the Quotation out of Joſephus prove what it is alledged for. As it is quoted it ſtands thus: Herodotus of Halicarnaſſus takes Notice of this Expedition, being only deceived as to the Name of the King. This alone intimates, as if there were but one Difference, and that is the Name; but take the whole Sentence together, and we ſhall find many more Differences. For Joſephus adds, (l) he was deceived only as to the Name of the King, and that he went into many other Countries, and that he ſubdu'd the Palæſtina Syria, and ſeiz'd the Men who were in it, without ſtriking a Stroke. Now if we take the whole Sentence together, which is the faireſt Way, it deſtroys that for which it was quoted, and ſhews that there were many other Differences between Seſoſtris and Shiſhak beſide the Name. We may as well argue, that the Word πλανηθεὶς, deceived, muſt not be reſtrain'd by the Word μόνον, only; but that it muſt refer to all the Words which are join'd together by the Conjunction καὶ, or and, in the ſame Sentence. Thus to give a parallel Inſtance: In the Apoſtles Time there were ſome, who taught the primitive Church, that (m) except they were circumciſed, and kept the law of Moſes, they could not be ſaved, againſt whom St. Paul diſputed, and wrote very largely both to the Philippians and Coloſſians ſians. Now let us ſuppoſe, that St. Paul (who uſes (n) the ſame Words with Joſephus) did give up the Cauſe, excepting in the Caſe of Meats, becauſe he ſaith (o) the Jewiſh Oeconomy ſtood only in Meats, without repeating the whole Verſe, which ſtood only in meats, and drinks, and divers waſhings, and carnal ordinances impoſed upon them until the time of reformation; can we imagine, that the Primitive Chriſtians would have thought St. Paul to have been fairly treated? But if any one had confuted ſuch a Method, by Laying the whole Quotation before the World, and after that a third Perſon had ſtill inſiſted on the firſt Objection, as if it had been never anſwer'd, what muſt then be thought of it? And this is the Caſe in the preſent Controverſy. Sir John Marſham quotes Joſephus by Halves, to prove an Aſſertion of his own. Biſhop Cumberland (p) plainly lays this before the World in a Diſcourſe almoſt for this only Purpoſe; and yet Sir Iſaac Newton takes no Notice of the Anſwer, but propoſeth the very ſame Argument, as if it was unanſwerable. He alſo (q) tells us, that GOD gave to Shiſhak ממלכות הארצות the kingdoms of the lands, and puts down the Hebrew Words, and the Text for a Proof of it. The whole Verſe, which he quotes, is this, Nevertheleſs they (the Jews) ſhall be his ſervants; that they may know my ſervice, and the ſervice of the kingdoms of the countries. Here is not a Word of other Countries given to Shiſhak in the whole Text (the Words, GOD gave them to him, are made Scripture by Sir Iſaac Newton) and therefore when he (r) ſaith, that he hath made his Chronology to agree with the Scriptures, he may be ſuppos'd to mean the Scriptures of his own making. The learned Bochart, who (s) interpreted the Words of Joſephus, as if Seſoſtris was Shiſhak, tells us, that according to this it is evidently falſe, that the firſt Inhabitants of Colchis planted there by Seſoſtris could be ſo late as this Time. For the Argonautick Expedition, where they are particularly mention'd, was many Ages before the Time of Rehoboam. This Argument he was ſo candid to leave as unanſwerable againſt his own Opinion, as taken from Joſephus, whereas if he had hit upon the true Time of Seſoſtris, there would not have been the leaſt Occaſion for this Objection.

18. But after all, if Joſephus was of this Opinion, it will appear, that this was the Miſtake of Joſephus, and not of Herodotus, to whom he chargeth it. Joſephus took his Antiquities from the Records of the Jews, which gave a full Account of what happen'd to Abraham their Father, and his Poſterity, both before and after they had inherited the Land of Canaan, but gave him no Account of that Country, when it was not theirs, and particularly whilſt the Iſraelites were in the Wilderneſs. It is therefore more than probable, that Joſephus knew of no Conqueſt of the Land of Canaan by the Egyptians before the Time of Rehoboam, and therefore telling us what Herodotus ſaith of Seſoſtris, he adds, Now this can only be underſtood of the Conqueſt of our Country by the Egyptians, not thinking that it might be (as it really was) conquer'd by the Egyptians, when it was not theirs. Joſephus farther adds, Herodotus tells us of ſeveral Pillars erected and left there with the Images of Men cut upon them in an effeminate Manner, as an emblematical Way of ſtigmatizing the Men for giving up their Country without a Blow. Now this Rehoboam (ſaith he) was undoubtedly our King, who gave up all for the Asking. Herodotus ſaith, that the Pillars were ſet up by Seſoſtris, and ſo they were; for he ſet up many Pillars of the ſame Nature in other Countries. But Joſephus by Miſtake applies them to Shiſhak after his Expedition, becauſe he knew of no other Expedition but that. Herodotus, in what he ſaith of Seſoſtris, agrees with Diodorus Siculus and others: But if Joſephus intended to fix the Actions of Seſoſtris to Shiſhak, there is no antient Author who will agree with him.

19. And after all, the very Pillars, which Joſephus, Herodotus and all Authors both antient and modern do mention, might determine this Controverſy, that Seſoſtris was not Shiſhak. Shiſhak made an Irruption into Judæa, plunder'd the Temple and the Country; and as both the Scriptures and (t) Joſephus tell us, immediately went back again into Egypt. Now can we imagine, that if he had ſet up ſuch Pillars, as a perpetual Mark of Infamy on that Nation, the Jews would have let them ſtand, ſo as to be ſeen in Herodotus's Time? They would certainly have pull'd every one of them down immediately upon his Retreat. But if Seſoſtris, who ſucceeded the Pharaoh, that was drown'd in the Red-Sea, had conquer'd Canaan, and ſet up the Pillars, there is good Reaſon to think, that they might continue ſtill. No one dar'd to pull them down in his Reign, or in the Time of the Deputies, who govern'd under him. Theſe continu'd till Joſhua conquer'd them one after another, ſo that the Canaanites, on whom the Pillars reflected, were a conquer'd People, and dar'd not pull them down. And the Iſraelites knew, that theſe Pillars were no Reflection on them, but only on their Enemies, and therefore they left them ſtanding.

20. Another Argument to fix the Time of Seſoſtris, may be their Ages at their Deaths. Diodorus Siculus ſaith, that he reign'd ſix and thirty Years, reckoning from the Death of his Father. Others, who are followed by Marſhal, ſay that he reign'd ſixty eight Years, reckoning from the Beginning of his Expeditions into foreign Countries. And conſequently he could not be leſs than ninety Years old when he died. His Brother Danaus was made Viceroy of Egypt, and liv'd eighty three Years after. At the End of nine Years, he fled into Greece, where (u) after fifteen Years Time he was made King of Argos, where he reign'd nine and fifty Years; ſo that he liv'd ſeven and forty Years after the Death of his Brother, and could not be much leſs than 120 Years old when he died. Now this Age agrees well with the Time of the Iſraelites Departure out of Egypt. Aaron was (x) 123 Years old when he died. Moſes was (y) 120 Years old at his Death, when his eye was not dim, nor his natural ſtrength abated. Caleb was (z) 85 Years old, and in perfect Vigour, when the Land of Canaan was divided, and how long he liv'd afterward is uncertain; and Joſhua (a) was 110 Years old at his Death; ſo that all this agrees well with the Age of Danaus and Seſoſtris. But it was very different in the Time of Reboboam. David was but (b) 70 Years old when he died. In his Reign (c) Barzillai being 80 Years old, was by Reaſon of Age a Burden to himſelf and thoſe about him. Solomon reign'd (d) forty Years, and (e) was very young, when he began to reign. Reboboam (f) died at eight and fifty Years of Age. And Jehoſhaphat died at (g) ſixty Years of Age, which few of his Succeſſors exceeded; and therefore the Length of the Life both of Seſoſtris and Danaus can by no Means agree with the Age of Reboboam or his Contemporaries.

21. I ſhall only add another Argument, which is, that Seſoſtris was the firſt Egyptian that built long Ships. For the better Managing of this Argument, it will be neceſſary to give an Account of the Riſe and Progreſs of Navigation in thoſe early Times. And for this Purpoſe we may obſerve, that Ships were very common during the Time of the Iſraelites being in the Wilderneſs. Moſes tells them, (h) that if they were diſobedient GOD ſhould bring them again into Egypt by Ships; and Balaam propheſies (i) of Ships coming from Chittim or Greece. So that by the Help of Ships the Grecian Coaſt was well known at that Time; and indeed it could not be peopled at firſt (k) by the Sons of Japhet, after their Names, in the manner as Moſes mentions, but by Shipping. As to the Riſe of Navigation, it is certain, that the firſt Pattern of a Ship for the new World to imitate was the Ark, which landed on an Hill, and being of great Bulk muſt be taken Notice of by all, and imitated by thoſe who came firſt to the Sea-Shore. Now the Ark was (l) an Oblong of three hundred Cubits long, fifty Cubits broad, and thirty Cubits high; ſo that the Model thereof was a Parallelipepid, the Breadth of it being much leſs than the Length, and the Height was much leſs than the Breadth, the Sides alſo were ſtreight, and the Bottom flat; and therefore it was call'd an Ark, or a Cheſt, this being the Form which it did moſt reſemble. This Ark was not deſign'd to be made for Sailing, but rather to lie upon the Water, and to land Noah and his Family near the Place, where it was built; and therefore could only be a Pattern for them to make ſquare and flat-bottom'd Veſſels by; and ſuch as theſe might be eaſily built, their Timber being naturally fit for this Purpoſe. So that they who tell us, that the firſt Ships were round, are out in their Mathematicks, there being not the leaſt Neceſſity for ſuch a Figure, and no Way to make it but by the Trouble of Bending of Boards, or the Pains of Cutting a great deal of Timber to Waſte, which naturally growing ſtreight, might be fitted to the other Form with much leſs Labour or Damage. When Ham and Japhet, who were ſav'd in the Ark, came to Babylon, it is probable, that they built ſuch oblong Boats as theſe of a large Bulk, to be ſerviceable in Building both the City and the Tower, and ſo they might fetch what they wanted not only down the Streams of Tigris and Euphrates, but alſo down the Rivers Gorgus, Lycus and Caprus, which run into the Tigris. And it is obſervable, that here were excellent Materials for ſuch a Purpoſe. As the Ark was made of Gopher or Cypreſs Wood, which was the moſt durable of any; ſo it is obſervable, that among theſe Rivers there was a Place call'd Cypariſſon, near to Arbela where Alexander the Great beat Darius; and here it is ſuppos'd by the learned Bochart, that Noah built the Ark. And the Cypreſs alſo grew in ſo great a Quantity in the Plains of Babylon, that (m) Alexander

(u) For the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt was before the Year of CHRIST 00, 1495 Years; the Expulſion of Danaus was 9 Years after, or in the Year 1486, as appears from Archbiſhop Uſher, and the Year of his being made King of Argos was 1474, as appears from Marſhal's Tables. is is ſaid to have built a vaſt Fleet in that Place, which conſiſted of no other Wood. And therefore when Nimrod began the Aſſyrian Monarchy, he built all the Places, which the (n) Scripture mentions, upon the great Rivers, that he might have the better Conveniency by Water-Carriage, and they might get into Boats to avoid wild Beaſts, and keep an open Paſſage to and from thoſe People, whom they left behind, as Occaſion ſhould require. Thus Babylon was built upon Euphrates; Erek upon the River between Babylon and the Perſian Gulf; Accad where the Tigris and Euphrates join'd; Calneh, Reſen, Nineveh, and Rehoboth upon the Tigris, and Calah upon the River Lycus. With ſuch Boats as theſe they might eaſily go to the Perſian Gulf, and fetch from thence the rich Commodities of Sheba, Dedan, Raamah, and the Land of Havilah.

22. Accordingly the River Euphrates would naturally lead the Poſterity of Ham toward the north Part of the Mediterranean Sea. And Sanchoniatho tells us, that (o) Ham himſelf had his chief Reſidence at Berytus, a Sea-Port Town in Phœnicia, which he gave to the Cabiri or Dioſcuri, and to Huſbandmen and Fiſhermen; and (p) the Deſcendants of the Dioſcuri, having built ſome tumultuary and other ſtronger Ships, went to Sea, and being over-againſt Mount Caſſius, they were caſt away, and there they conſecrated a Temple in Memory of their Eſcape, which was of ſo great an Antiquity, that it is reported by ſome, who afterward ſaw it, that they found no Image in it. Arvad (q) the Son of Canaan, and Grandſon of Ham, with his Poſterity the Arvadite, poſſeſs'd the Iſland of Aradus, which he muſt do by Shipping, and call'd it after his Name. Sidon (r) the firſt-born of Canaan is reported to have built the City of Sidon in Phœnicia, and that the Inhabitants of the Country were call'd Sidonians from him. The Name (s) in Hebrew plainly implies, that it was a Town remarkable for the fiſhing Trade, like Bethſaida in the Land of Canaan. Theſe Inhabitants muſt have a Notion of the Ark, they lay open to the Sea, and near to the Foreſt of Lebanon, from whence they might be ſupply'd with Timber for the Building of their Ships. And there is no Doubt but they had been long employ'd this Way, which made Solomon in (t) his Letter to Hiram ſay, Thou knoweſt, that there is not among us any who have skill to hew timber like the Sidonians. It is the general Opinion, that the Sidonians fled in great Numbers to Carthage, when Joſhua enter'd the Land of Canaan, and then they built that City; and the Likeneſs (I might ſay Identity) of the Carthaginian Language, which we have in Plautus's Pœnulus, with the old Phœnician Language, is an Argument us'd by many learned Men to favour this Opinion. Procopius (u) tells us, that when the Inhabitants of Phœnicia and Palæſtina were conquer'd, and put to flight by Joſhua, they were ſcatter'd all over Africa, and built a Caſtle in the City of Numidia, which in his Time was call'd Tigiſis (Tingis or Tangier) where there were two Pillars of white Stone erected near a great Fountain, with this Inſcription in the Phœnician Character and Language, We are they who fled from Joſhua the Robber the Son of Nun. Bochart (x) gives many Reaſons to confirm this Account, and adds, That there is no Cauſe to doubt of it.

23. When Ham went afterward into Egypt (which from him was call'd (y) The land of Ham) there is no Doubt but he carry'd this Art of Navigation with him, and the Egyptians ſoon learned to trade to the Perſian Gulf, from whence they brought the Jewels of Gold and Silver, and all the precious Stones, which the Iſraelites borrow'd of them. The Canaanitiſh Paſtors (z) came out of Egypt into that Land, at the Time when Abraham firſt ſojourn'd there, and they carry'd on the ſame Trade in the Mediterranean Sea with ſuch Succeſs, that the Word Canaan in Hebrew ſignifies a Merchant; and the Philiſtines, who were the chief among them, were generally ſeated near the Shore.

24. Such a Trade as this was afterward carry'd on by the Iſraelites, when they dwelt in the Land of Canaan. Thus Jacob propheſy'd of (a) Zebulun, that he ſhould dwell at the Haven of the Sea, near the Lake of Tiberias, which is call'd in Scripture the Sea of Galilee; and he ſhould be an haven for Ships. His Lot ſhould extend from thence to the Mediterranean, where there were many Sea-Port Towns. And when Deborah and Barak conquer'd Siſera at the River Kiſhon, the Tribe of Dan (b) plac'd their Families on Shipboard, which they might well do at (c) the Haven of Joppa, that lay in their Tribe. And the Tribe of Aſher was ſo timorous, that (d) they put off from the Shore, till the Battle was over, and remained in the Sea, which they might the better do, ſince (e) Zidon and Accho, afterward call'd Ptolemais (to ſay nothing of Tyre) might afford them Ships for ſuch a Purpoſe; and their Deſign was without Doubt to ſail away (as the Phœnicians had before done from Joſhua) in Caſe of Neceſſity.

25. The Poſterity of Japhet, who upon the Erecting of the Aſſyrian Monarchy fled from their Habitations between the Tigris and Euphrates, and ſettl'd in Aſia the leſs, ſoon found out a Way, by the Help of Shipping, to take Poſſeſſion of the oppoſite Shores of Greece, being conducted thither by the Sons and Grand-Sons of Japhet, who accordingly (as Moſes mentions) call'd the Places by their own Names. And as Tarſhiſh or Tarſus was firſt ſeated in Cilicia, the moſt eaſtern Parts of that Country; ſo his Voyages were longer, and conſequently he made larger Ships, and Ships according to the modern Form, which they call'd long Ships, and were more neceſſary for their Purpoſe. Hence it was, that all Veſſels, for longer Voyages and greater Burdens, came to be call'd Ships of Tarſhiſh, becauſe they were built like the Ships of Tarſhiſh properly ſo call'd. And this is the Reaſon, that (f) the Septuagint do ſometimes call the Ships of Tarſhiſh by the Ships of the Sea, in Oppoſition to ſmaller Veſſels us'd by Coaſters, or in ſhorter Voyages. This is a natural and eaſy Way to account for Solomon's Navy being call'd (g) A navy of Tarſhiſh, and alſo for (h) the Ships which were built by Jehoſhaphat's Order, being call'd Ships of Tarſhiſh. Now it is evident from Scripture, that theſe Ships could not be call'd Ships of Tarſhiſh, as being built at Tarſhiſh, or Trading either to Tarſhiſh originally ſo call'd, or to any Colony of it call'd by that Name, nor from their Sailing on the Sea of Tarſhiſh, or the Mediterranean Sea. For the Scripture ſaith, (i) that the Ships of Solomon were deſign'd to go to Ophir for Gold, which lay on the Mouth of the Red Sea, and is a Peninſula on the ſouth-eaſt of the Gulph of Bengal, which was call'd by the Antients both Greek and Latin, The golden Cherſoneſus, and now Malaya. And the Ships of Tarſhiſh built by Jehoſhaphat were (k) broken at Eziongeber, which was an Haven upon the Red Sea, where (l) the Iſraelites once encamp'd in their Journeys between Egypt and Canaan. So that they, who affirm, that Shiſhak was the firſt, who built long Ships in the Time of King Rehoboam, do very much forget themſelves; ſince we cannot but think, that in their Reading they have met with ſuch Particulars, as would otherwiſe oblige them to be of a contrary Opinion.

26. Hence it appears, that the long Ships built for large Voyages, and great Burdens, were firſt built at Tarſus in Cilicia, and after that in common Uſe in the Mediterranean Sea, and even on the Egyptian Shore; for Danaus fled from thence to Greece in a Ship of fifty Oars. But the Red Sea being not ſo broad as the Mediterranean, and in many Places very ſhallow, and abounding with Iſlands, they traded in thoſe Parts with the old-faſhion'd oblong Ships, being ſuch as would draw but little Water. And Seſoſtris, the Succeſſor of Pharaoh Amenophis, and Brother of Danaus, was the firſt who built long Ships of the modern Faſhion in thoſe Seas. Theſe Ships being all in the utmoſt Danger, and many or moſt of them caſt away in the narrow Water, made the Egyptians content themſelves with their old Faſhion; inſomuch that it was reckon'd one of the famous Acts of King Solomon, that he firſt built the Ships of Tarſhiſh, or long Ships, in thoſe Parts. So that the Affirming Shiſhak to be the firſt who built them, is to deny what the Scripture ſaith of King Solomon, and to ſhake the Authority of thoſe ſacred Writings in the preceding Hiſtory.

27. But to diſpatch the Hiſtory of Lower Egypt all at once until the Time of Solomon. After (m) Seſoſtris had reign'd three and thirty Years, his Son ſucceeded him in the Kingdom, and took upon him the ſame Name, or Seſoſtris the Second. Herodotus calls him Phero, miſtaking his Name for Pharaoh, which was the common Title of the Kings of Egypt. His real Name was Buſiris, and by ſome he is ſaid to be the Son, or rather the Grandſon of Neptune and Libya, the Daughter of Epaphus. Our learned Prelate (n), ſaith that Rameſſes Miamun, who made the Decree for the Drowning all the Infants of the Iſraelites, was often by the Mythologiſts call'd Neptune; and his Grandſon was ſo like him for Tyranny and Cruelty, that for this Reaſon he might be call'd his Son. And from hence it is probable, that (o) it was uſual with the Poets to call all bloody and cruel Tyrants the Sons of Neptune, as void of all Humanity, and ſprung out of the Sea. He perform'd nothing remarkable by his Arms abroad. But remembring the great Calamity, which befel the Egyptians for the ſake of the Iſraelites, whom they call'd Hebrews or Foreigners, he reviv'd the Cuſtom of Sacrificing Men, which Tethmoſis had long before aboliſh'd, and built (p) Altars for that Purpoſe on the Banks of the Nile, where he put all Strangers to Death, who came into his Country, with the utmoſt Torments, as an effectual Method to prevent Strangers from Settling among them, and bringing upon them the ſame Misfortune at another Time. But GOD's Vengeance for theſe Facts ſoon found him out. For the Heathen Hiſtorian tells us, that the Affliction and Miſery which befel him, was remarkable; for he became blind, as his Father was before him, and ſo he continu'd for a long Time, deriving his Misfortune either from his Father in his Birth, or rather as (p) a Judgment upon him for his Impiety. And after him there were many Succeſſions of Kings in Egypt, of (q) whom we are told, that they did nothing worth the Mentioning of their Names in Hiſtory; and this is the Reaſon, that we hear nothing of them in the Scripture for many Ages after.

28. And here we cannot but again admire the Providence of GOD both in Preſerving the Iſraelites from their Enemies in the Wilderneſs, eſpecially after the Defeat (r) at Hormah in the ſecond Year, and in the Manner of their conquering the Land of Canaan. GOD had promis'd (s) thoſe who were then alive at the Red-Sea, that they ſhould no more ſee the Egyptians come againſt them in an hoſtile Manner, and he knew how to fulfil his Word. When Seſoſtris came to the Throne, he had but a melancholy Time in Egypt, there being not an Houſe in which there was not one dead; and his Father and the whole Army were drown'd. For this Reaſon he could not bear ſtaying in the Country, but reſolv'd upon ſome Expedition, and accordingly he fits out a large Navy in the Mediterranean Sea, and got together the greateſt Army that he poſſibly could, under his Command, and left the Country to be govern'd by his Brother Armais, Danaus or Rameſſes. The Judgments which befel his Country one after another, were too freſh in his Memory to let him purſue the Iſraelites; neither could his Fleet be any way ſerviceable on this Occaſion, when they were in the Wilderneſs, and at a Diſtance from the Red Sea. It is probable, that he did not march out of Egypt (t) till after the Battle between Joſhua and the Amalekites, and (u) that at Hormah, when the Iſraelites had a ſharp Engagement in the one, and were defeated in the other. Then Seſoſtris begins his Expedition againſt the Land of Canaan, which he conquer'd with little Difficulty, being divided into eleven Kingdoms, according to (x) the Names of the eleven Sons of their Father Canaan: And thus the Canaanites, who in the Paſtoral Wars thought to have conquer'd all Egypt, are conquer'd by them, and ſo they revenge themſelves of the Injuries, which they had formerly ſuſtain'd. The Canaanites were now enſlav'd that they could not ſtir; and the conquering Army was on the other Side of Jordan (which was a Barrier) and it was afterward employ'd in other Expeditions. After the Conqueſts of Seſoſtris in Aſia, he paſs'd over into Europe, where he was in Danger of Loſing his whole Army, thro' the Difficulty of the Paſſages, and want of Proviſions. This put a Stop to his Expedition in Thrace, and ſo he return'd into his own Country. The Rebellion of his Subjects at home in his Abſence, cauſed him to undertake no more Expeditions abroad; and the Danger of Loſing his Army abroad was a particular Caution to him not to venture any more into a Wilderneſs, eſpecially againſt a People in whoſe Behalf GOD had ſo ſignally appear'd, by Plaguing the Egyptians, Cauſing them to paſs ſafely thro' the Red Sea, and Drowning their Enemies who purſu'd them. And thus the Iſraelites were preſerv'd. Beſides, Seſoſtris having conquer'd the Land of Canaan, puts Governors in every Town to act under him, and order'd every one of them annually to come to Egypt, and bring their Tributes to him. Buſiris ſucceeding him, acted ſo tyrannically toward Strangers, that none of them would venture to come into Egypt, but they all ſet up for themſelves; and he being taken blind, and unactive in warlike Exploits, could not reduce them any more to his Obedience. Theſe were (y) all call'd Kings, and had a ſeparate Intereſt from each other, ſo that the Strength of each was ſo much the leſs. Upon this they quarrel with one another, inſomuch that (z) Adonibezek, who was one of them, ſubdu'd threeſcore and ten of the reſt. And whereas if they had been united, they (a)

(p) Diodorus Siculus, lib. 1. cap. 5. tells us, that it was for his Impiety againſt the River, againſt which he threw his Javelin; and adds this Comical Story, by which we may obſerve, how ready the Devil is by his Oracles to ſtir up thoſe to Murder, who are inclin'd to Cruelty. Being blind, he was forc'd to apply himſelf for Help to the Gods, whom he ſought to appeaſe with many Offerings for a long Time together; yet he could find no Relief, till at the End of ten Years he was directed by the Oracle to go and worſhip the God of Heliopolis, and waſh his Face in the Urine of a Woman, who never had known any other Man beſide her own Husband. Hereupon he began with his own Wife, and made Trial of many others, but he found none honeſt, except a Gardiner's Wife, whom he afterward married, when he was recover'd. All the ſuppos'd Adultereſſes, and perhaps many honeſt Perſons, he caus'd to be burnt in a little Village (which from this Execution the Egyptians call the holy Field) to teſtify his Gratitude to the God of Heliopolis for this great Benefit. At the Command of the Oracle he erected two Obelisks, each of one intire Stone, eight Cubits in Breadth and an hundred in Height, and dedicated them to the Deity. far exceeded the Iſraelites both in Number and Might; yet being thus divided among themſelves, they could not engage in any one common Enterprize, which was the viſible Providence, that (b) enabled Joſhua ſo eaſily to conquer them one after another.

29. But to return to the Iſraelites. After they had paſs'd the Red Sea, and ſung a Song of Praiſe, and kept their (c) firſt Sabbath in Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt, the Iſraelites (d) were very backward and unwilling to march; ſo that Moſes brought them from the Red Sea, not without ſome Importunity. Some think the Cauſe hereof proceeded from a Deſire to return into Egypt, which now, perhaps, they thought to be ſo empty, that being thus arm'd with the Spoils of their Enemies, they might eaſily get it for themſelves; others think, that they expected the Sea might throw up more Spoil, which if they tarried, they might gather for themſelves. And yet another Reaſon might be, that they were not well ſatisfy'd in the Aboliſhing of the antient Sabbath, and Eſtabliſhing the new one, which they had obſerv'd the Day before. However they (e) gave ſo much Credit to what he told them, that they march'd at his Command (f) into the Wilderneſs of Shur, which (g) lay in the Road from Canaan to Egypt, that ſo the People might be the more eaſy, as not knowing his true Intention, and hoping that they might go back (h) from thence to Egypt by the Way of Etham, where they had been but very lately before. But this did not anſwer their Expectation; for they wander'd three Days in that Wilderneſs, and found no Water; ſo that their Cattle as well as they ſuffer'd much by it, and could not afford them Milk ſufficient to quench their Thirſt. Upon this they were glad to return back again toward their firſt Station, and ſo they came to Marah on Wedneſday the twenty fifth Day of the Month Niſan. Here they found Water, but were ſtill diſappointed, for it was ſo brackiſh and (i) bitter, that they could not drink of it. And for this Reaſon they call'd the Place Marah, which in Hebrew ſignifies Bitterneſs. The People upon this murmur againſt Moſes, and Moſes cries to GOD, who directs him to a Tree, which when he had caſt into the Waters, they were made ſweet, and may put us in mind of our bleſſed SAVIOUR, who by the Tree of his Croſs chang'd the Bitterneſs of everlaſting Death into the Sweetneſs of eternal Life. Here Moſes ſaith, (k) that GOD made for the Iſraelites a ſtatute and an ordinance, and here he proved them. And ſaid, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the LORD thy GOD, and wilt do that which is right in his ſight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his ſtatutes; I will put none of theſe diſeaſes upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians; for I am the LORD that healeth thee. What this particular Statute and Ordinance was, can be known only by Conjecture. It is certain, that it related not to any Part of the ceremonial Law; for (l) the Prophet Jeremiah plainly alluding to it, ſaith in the Name of GOD, I ſpake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them, in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, concerning burnt-offerings and ſacrifices. But this thing commanded I them, ſaying, Obey my voice, and I will be your GOD, and ye ſhall be my people. It is the moſt antient and conſtant Tradition of the Jews, that now he commanded them to obſerve the Sabbath, which they underſtand by Statute, and to do Juſtice, particularly to honour their Parents, and the Judges, whom GOD had ſet over them, which they underſtand by Ordinance or Judgment, as the Hebrew Word משפט plainly ſignifies, eſpecially becauſe theſe two Commandments are preſs'd upon them in Deuteronomy, with this particular Inforcement, (m) As the LORD thy GOD hath commanded thee; which they will have to relate to this Command at Marah. And this (n) Maimonides confeſſes in theſe Words: It appears from the Scripture, and the Cabbala alſo, that the firſt Precept which GOD gave us after we came out of Egypt, was not concerning burnt-offerings and ſacrifices, but it was that which was given us at Marah, where he gave us a Statute and a Judgment. And it is a certain Tradition, that the Statute was the Sabbath, and the Judgment was the Taking away all Iniquity, or the Preventing Sins from being national by Inflicting Penalties upon Offenders. So that it is probable, that at this Time GOD gave them a Law for the conſtant Obſerving of the Sabbath on the ſeventh Day of the Week, and not on the firſt, as it had been obſerv'd before. They had obſerv'd it on the ſeventh Day before by Killing the Paſſover thereon, and travell'd on the next Day out of Egypt, which was their antient Sabbath. They reſted the next ſeventh Day at the Red Sea, where they ſung their Song of Praiſe for their glorious Deliverance, and travell'd again on the next Day by the Direction of Moſes. So that here was another antient Sabbath broken.

But

But these were only particular Cases. They had a particular Command, (o) That on the first day there should be an holy convocation, and on the seventh day there should be an holy convocation. But this might refer only to the Days of the Passover Week. And therefore GOD justifies what they had done before, by Declaring his Will for the Future, that they should observe the seventh Day of the Week as a Sabbath, and not the first. This will more plainly appear from a Repetition of (p) the Command in Deuteronomy, Keep the Sabbath day, the seventh and not the first, as the LORD thy GOD commanded thee at Marah, and not as it was practis'd before. Six days shalt thou labour and do all thy work, as it was before, But the seventh day of the Week is now the sabbath of the LORD thy GOD. And remember that thou wast a stranger in the land of Egypt, and that the LORD thy GOD brought thee out thence through a mighty hand, and by a stretched out arm; therefore the LORD thy GOD commanded thee at Marah to keep the seventh day, as that which had been just before most solemnly observ'd in Commemoration of this Deliverance. The Prophet Ezekiel seems also (q) to intimate the same, where he saith, that when GOD lifted up his hand to bring them into the land, that he had espied for them, he commanded them not to defile themselves with the idols of the land of Egypt, and to prevent this, he gave them his sabbaths to be a sign between him and them, that they might know, that he was the LORD that sanctified them, that separated them unto himself from all the People of the World, that they might serve him alone, and the Sabbath might be a Sign of it, because he alone was worshipp'd on that Day. But then it follows, that the House of Israel walked not in these Statutes, for they greatly polluted his sabbaths, and their hearts went after their idols, which they worshipp'd on the other Day, and so this Day was neglected. And to prevent this, GOD commanded them not to defile themselves with these idols, but to hallow his sabbaths, that they might be a sign between him and them, and they might know, that he was the LORD their GOD by being worshipp'd on this Day, which was alter'd for this Purpose, that he might not be worshipp'd at the Time when others offer'd to their Idols.

30. The Stay of the Israelites at Marah, their fifth Station, was but short; but soon after this Statute and Ordinance was given, they (r) march to Elim, their sixth Station, where they had a much better Conveniency; for there were twelve Wells of Water, and threescore and ten Palm-trees, so that here they had sufficient to quench their Thirst, and a pleasant Shade to refresh themselves; and after they had stay'd there as long as was convenient, they take a long March toward the Country of Canaan, and approach to the Land of Edom. That this was a long March is evident, because Elim was situated near the Red Sea, of which (s) the Writer of the Holy Wars gives this Account, that Baldwin the first, when he pass'd that Way into Egypt, enter'd Elim, a most antient City, and well known to the children of Israel, in antient Times; and when they came thither, the Inhabitants having Knowledge of the King's Approach, took Shipping, and so retreated into the neighbouring Sea.

31. The Stay of the Israelites at Elim, gave Time to the new King of Edom to raise a large Army, and particularly from the Country of Amalek the (t) Grandson of Esau or (u) Edom, who lying nearest the Land of Canaan, on the south Side, were most concern'd to annoy them; because if the Israelites had Possession of the Country, they would be the most expos'd to their Incursions, or to be wholly subdu'd by them. And therefore the Army consisting chiefly of Amalekites, and these being the most desperate Enemies, whatever was done by the whole is particularly said to be done by them. Besides, it is most probable that the King of Edom himself was of that Tribe, and the Scripture seems to intimate the same, by Calling him (*) Amalek, or the Amalekite, and therefore his Army consisted chiefly of them, being his near Relations, and old Acquaintance, and therefore such whom he could best confide in. However, the King of Edom seeing the Israelites in full March, and not thinking himself strong enough for a pitch'd Battle, lays an Ambuscade of Amalekites, who fall upon the Rear, when they were in the greatest Disorder, after they were pass'd by, and so put the whole Body into Confusion. Of this Moses speaks thus (x) almost forty Years after. Remember what Amalek did unto thee by the way, when ye were come forth out of Egypt, How he met thee by the way, and smote the hindmost of thee, even all them that were feeble behind thee, when thou wast faint and weary, and he feared not GOD. Therefore it shall be, when the LORD thy GOD hath given thee rest from all thine enemies round about in the land which the LORD thy GOD giveth thee for an inheritance to possess it, that thou shalt blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven, thou shalt not forget it, it, which was (y) afterward perform'd, when Saul was King of Iſrael.

32. Now tho' the Iſraelites had taken the Arms and Armour of the Egyptians at the Red Sea, yet Moſes had not as yet train'd them up in the Art of War, neither was he fully aſſur'd of their Fidelity; but as they had murmur'd once before at the Red Sea, and the ſecond Time at Marah; ſo he was apprehenſive, that they would be apt to return to Egypt rather than ſuſtain the Wants and Dangers, which every where accompany'd them in the Wilderneſs, and the perpetual Wars to which they might be thus expos'd, ſo that he marches off with his undiſciplin'd Army, for fear of a Battle; and his Enemies ſeeing them arm'd, were afraid to purſue them; and ſo after a long and tedious March, they come back again to the Red-Sea, and there they encamp; which tho' Moſes (z) omits to mention in the Book of Exodus, yet he takes a particular Notice of it in (a) the Book of Numbers, as their ſeventh Station. And here it is probable, that Moſes pitches upon thoſe who were fitteſt to bear Arms, and makes Joſhua their General; ſo that now they are diſciplin'd and train'd up to the Art of War, to prevent a like Inſult at another Time. Moſes was eighty Years of Age, and therefore not fit to go out to Battle; and he had alſo Buſineſs enough of another Nature; but Joſhua was (b) two and thirty Years of Age in the Prime of his Strength, and therefore (c) he is call'd A young man.

33. However, (d) one and thirty Days after their Coming out of Egypt they march again, and come to the Wilderneſs of Sin, which was their eighth Station; ſo that they came hither on a Tueſday, and in three Days Time had eaten up all the Product of the Country; and in this Length of Time had conſum'd the Stores, which they carry'd with them out of Egypt. And tho' they had great Numbers of Cattle and Sheep among them; yet it is probable, that they were not willing to feed themſelves with many of thoſe, but reſerv'd them both for the Milk to breed up their Children, and alſo to ſtock the Country, when they ſhould come to the Land of Canaan. And therefore upon the Sabbath Day following, the whole Congregation, who ſhould have met together for the Worſhip of GOD, betake themſelves to a different Exerciſe, and murmur the third Time againſt Moſes and Aaron. Moſes betakes himſelf to Prayer, probably about the Time when the morning Sacrifice was offer'd, and had a Promiſe, that at the Evening they ſhould eat Fleſh, and in the Morning they ſhould be fill'd with Bread, which happen'd accordingly; for (as (e) Joſephus tells us, who is follow'd by (f) our Tranſlation) ſoon after this there came a wonderful Flight of Quails, of which there are a vaſt Number in the Arabian Gulf, and theſe Birds were ſo tir'd with croſſing it, that they drop'd down quite wearied into the Camp of the Hebrews. Others (g) of very eminent Learning interpret it of Locuſts, who were brought into the Wilderneſs of Arabia from the Red Sea, by (h) a ſouthern or an eaſterly Wind, and ſometimes fled in ſuch vaſt Quantities, as to darken the Air; and when they fell one upon another to a great Depth, they were not ſuffocated by it, but preſerv'd like a Cluſter or Swarm of Bees by Reaſon of the Length of their Feet, and the Thinneſs of their Wings. Such as are commonly brought hither, have a very purging Quality, and therefore not fit for a conſtant Food. But it is as certain, that there was another ſort in thoſe Parts of the World, which were accounted a very delicious Meat; and they, who have taſted of them, compare them to a freſh Crab or Lobſter (like to which they are in Shape and Figure) and they are ſeveral Ways prepar'd, and accounted very wholeſom Food, when the Heads, Wings and Feet were thrown away. This was (i) the conſtant Food of St. John the Baptiſt, and (k) Pliny ſaith, that ſome Parts of Ethiopia liv'd upon them, and that being dry'd in Smoke and ſalted, they were preſerv'd for their Nouriſhment throughout the whole Year. The next Day, being the Day after the Sabbath, they had a miraculous Bread rain'd from Heaven, which continu'd in Showers every Night, the Eve of the Sabbath excepted, until they were (l) in Poſſeſſion of ſome Part of Canaan, and had eaten of the Corn of the Country, and then it ceas'd. It was a (m) ſmall round thing, as ſmall as the Hoar-froſt upon the Ground at firſt, but afterward it was white, and about the Bigneſs of Coriander-Seed, and the Taſte of it was like Wafers made with Honey. This they call'd מן הוא, Man hue, which in Hebrew ſignifies, What is this? and afterward מן, Man, or a Portion, becauſe it was what they never ſaw before, and therefore they could not tell how to give it any other Name. Of this they (n) gather'd the ſix following Days of the Week, with a particular Command that they ſhould leave none of it till the next Morning, and when any was left, it bred Worms and ſtank; and this was to teach them that they were to depend on GOD's Providence to give them day by day their daily bread. On the Eve of the Sabbath, (o) Moſes ſaid unto them, This is that which the LORD hath ſaid, To morrow is the reſt of the holy ſabbath unto the LORD; bake that which ye will bake to day, and ſeethe that which ye will ſeethe; and that which remaineth over, lay up for you to be kept until the morning. And when they did ſo, it did not ſtink, neither was there any worm therein. Upon this Moſes commands them ſaying, Eat that to day, for to day is a ſabbath unto the LORD, to day ye ſhall not find it in the field. And after that, when ſome of the people went out on the ſeventh day to gather it, they found none. And the LORD ſaid unto Moſes, How long refuſe ye to keep my commandments and my laws? See, for that the LORD hath given you the ſabbath, therefore he giveth you on the ſixth day the bread of two days; abide ye every one in his place, let no man go out of his place on the ſeventh day, and ſo they reſted accordingly: And it was ſo ſtrictly obſerv'd, that ſome Time after, when (p) they found a Man, who was binding up of Wood, or imploy'd about his weekly Buſineſs, the reſt were ſo ſtrict in Obſerving it, that they put him in Priſon, and he was not brought before Moſes, at leaſt not judg'd, till the next Day, when he was condemn'd by the Command of GOD to be ſton'd with Stones, and he was executed accordingly; ſo that this new Jewiſh Sabbath was, by the Direction of Moſes, obſerv'd in Egypt, and at the Red Sea, commanded at Marah, repeated by Moſes both in Exodus and Deuteronomy, confirm'd by a conſtant Succeſſion of Miracles in the Wilderneſs for forty Years, and the Tranſgreſſors were capitally puniſh'd; without all which they could not well be ſuppos'd to change the old Day for a new one, tho' they might have retain'd their antient Cuſtom with leſs Difficulty or Sanction.

34. For a Perpetuating the Remembrance of this Miracle, (q) GOD commanded Moſes to take a pot, and put an omer full of Manna therein, and lay it up before the LORD to be kept for their generations. This Pot was (r) made of Gold, and plac'd within the Ark, in which there was Aaron's rod that budded, and the two tables of the covenant; ſo that it continu'd there till the Babyloniſh Captivity, when (s) theſe five Particulars were loſt: 1. The Shechinah, or Divine Preſence. 2. The Urim and Thummim. 3. The holy Fire upon the Altar. 4. The Spirit of Prophecy; and 5. The Ark of the Covenant, and the Mercy-Seat, which was upon it, and ſo the Pot of Manna was loſt, having been miraculouſly preſerv'd till that Time.

35. After the Iſraelites had tarry'd for ſome Time in the Wilderneſs of Sin, and made (t) their eighth Station at Dophkah, they march'd from thence to Aluſh, their ninth Station, in both which Places there paſs'd nothing remarkable; and ſo from thence they went to (u) Rephidim their tenth Station, which was the direct Road to the Country of Edom. Here was no Water for the People to drink, and therefore they murmur the fourth Time, and from this Murmuring againſt GOD's Providence, and Tempting of him, the Place was ſometimes call'd Maſſah, or Temptation, and ſometimes Meribah, which ſignifies Strife or Contention. Upon this Moſes prays to GOD, and GOD commanded him to take of the Elders of Iſrael to be Witneſſes of the Miracle, and his Rod in his Hand, and come to the Rock of Horeb, ſo call'd in Hebrew from the Dryneſs of the Country round it, and ſmite the Rock, and it ſhould afford them Plenty of Water, which he did, and the Succeſs anſwer'd his Expectation. The Pſalmiſt obſerves (x) GOD clave the rocks in the wilderneſs, and gave them drink as out of the great depths; ſo that the waters ran down like rivers, and flow'd from Horeb to Rephidim in Quantities ſufficient for themſelves and their Cattle, and was a (y) ſtanding or continual Water, which made this Part of Arabia habitable in future Ages, tho' no Man ever dwelt in it before. The Jews tell us, that this Water follow'd them afterward in the Wilderneſs wherever they went, ſo that they wanted no more un*til* the laſt Year of all. And the Apoſtle (z) intimates the ſame by ſaying, that the Iſraelites drank of that ſpiritual rock, which followed them, and that rock was CHRIST, or a Figure of him. The Rock being ſmitten afforded Water, and CHRIST being crucified, affords us his Spirit. The Water from the Rock accompany'd the Iſraelites to the End of their Travels, and they all drank of it without Diſtinction, and CHRIST by his Spirit is (a) with us always, even to the end of the World. And thus (b) by one ſpirit are we all baptiz'd into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free, and are all made to drink into one ſpirit.

36. The King of Edom, who knew nothing of this Miracle, expecting the Iſraelites to be almoſt dead with Thirſt, and flush'd up by his former Succeſs, reſolves to hazard a pitch'd Battle, and therefore gathering all his Forces together, and eſpecially the Amalekites as before-mention'd, he marches out of his Country to attack them. Upon this Moſes orders Joſhua his General to chooſe the ſtouteſt Men and beſt diſciplin'd, and fight with the whole Army, promiſing that he would be importunate with GOD in Prayer, and take the Rod of GOD in his Hand, thereby encouraging Joſhua to hope that GOD would deliver them, tho' a Miracle was requir'd to bring it to paſs. The next Morning Joſhua goes to fight the Enemy, and Moſes goes with Aaron and Hur, who (as (c) Joſephus tells us) was Miriam's Husband, to the Top of a Hill, where they might ſee the Engagement; and when Moſes lifted up his Hands, imploring the divine Aid, the Iſraelites prevail'd, the Sight of the Rod of GOD inſpiring them with ſuch Courage, that their Enemies could not ſtand before them; but when Moſes let down his Hand, and they could not ſee the Rod, their Spirits flagg'd, and they began to give Ground, as imagining that Moſes deſpair'd of Victory. When Aaron and Hur ſaw this, they took a Stone, and ſet Moſes on it, and they held up his Hands until the Evening, and ſo after a hard Battle Joſhua gain'd an intire Victory. In a grateful Commemoration hereof, Moſes builds an Altar, and calls it JEHOVAH Niſſi, or, The LORD is my Banner, as plainly ſhewing, that by him alone they had Succeſs. And he gives (d) this Reaſon, Becauſe as he ſat on the Stone, and ſtretched out his Hand with the Rod; ſo the Hand of the LORD ſitting upon the Throne of his Majeſty, was ſtretched out, and held up his Banner to fight with Amalek throughout all Generations.

37. The Encampment of the Iſraelites at Rephidim was on the weſt Side of the Mount of Horeb, and on that Side which lay toward the Land of Edom. It was a Mountain with two Tops, like Parnaſſus in Greece. The Top which lay toward Edom, was a rocky, dry, and barren Ground, and was therefore call'd Horeb. The Top, which lay toward Arabia, was full of Buſhes, and therefore was call'd Sinai; and among theſe was one of the Buſhes, where GOD had (e) before appear'd unto Moſes. The Iſraelites, on the ſecond Day of the third Month, being Friday the twenty eighth Day of May, and the Day after the Battle, decamp'd from the Side of the Mountain call'd Horeb, and pitch'd on the other Side call'd Sinai. Here they might well expect greater Revelations of GOD, and his Will, and therefore came more willingly thither, becauſe (f) GOD had before ſaid theſe Words to Moſes in this Place, Certainly I will be with thee, and this ſhall be a token, that I have ſent thee; when thou haſt brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye ſhall ſerve GOD upon this mountain. When they were encamp'd here, the Cloud, which (g) conſtantly went before them to guide them in the Way, remov'd, and ſtood upon the Top of the Mountain, where the Glory of GOD appear'd, and call'd Moſes to him, who went frequently down to the People to deliver the Meſſage of GOD to them, and frequently went up again to return their Anſwers to GOD. Thus he ſaith of himſelf, (h) I ſtood between the LORD and you at that Time, to ſhew you the word of the LORD; for ye were afraid by reaſon of the fire, and went not up unto the mount. Thus was Moſes a Mediator between GOD and his People and a fit Type of CHRIST the Prophet like unto Moſes. And the Reaſon of that ſtrict Injunction, that tho' they were (i) declar'd to be a peculiar treaſure unto GOD above all people, a kingdom of prieſts, and an holy nation; yet (k) there ſhould not a hand touch the Mountain, but he ſhould ſurely be ſtoned or ſhot through; and whether it was beaſt or man, it ſhould not live, was that (l) no man ſhould preſume to take this office upon himſelf, except he was firſt call'd and appointed thereunto. And as to what peculiarly belongs to CHRIST, it ſhould not be given to Saint or Angel, or any other Creature: For (m) as there is but one GOD, ſo there is but one mediator between GOD and man, the man CHRIST JESUS, who gave himſelf for all. Accordingly GOD commands, and the People ſanctify themſelves the remaining Part of that Day, and the next Day being the Sabbath, and ſo they were ready on the third Day being Sunday, and the great Day of the Feaſt of Pentecoſt, to hear what GOD ſhould ſay unto them, who on this Day deliver'd to them the ten Commandments with his own Mouth, as they are recorded in the twentieth Chapter of Exodus, and afterward wrote them with his own Hand in two Tables of Stone, and gave them to Moſes as a perpetual Law both to the Iſraelites and all Mankind. In Commemoration hereof, GOD appointed the Feaſt of Weeks, or the Day of Pentecoſt to be obſerv'd, and to be reckon'd from the Day of the Paſſover in a very particular Manner, ſo as to be counted (n) from the Morrow after the first Sabbath following the Passover, as from the first Day of the Week or Sunday, in the very same Manner as we Christians compute our Whitsontide. Their Passover was (o) the fourteenth Day of the first Month, which both on this Year, and the Year when our SAVIOUR was crucify'd, happen'd on a Friday. The Day after was the Jewish Sabbath, in which our SAVIOUR also rested in the Grave. The Day after being (p) the morrow after the sabbath, or a Sunday, the Israelites were oblig'd to bring a sheaf of the first fruits of their harvest unto the priest, as that which was (q) cut or taken from the Earth on that Day. The Priest was oblig'd to wave this sheaf, or move it round to all Parts of the World, to shew that on that Day he should be taken from the Ground, or rise from the Dead, who was to be the first Fruits of them that slept. And as this Sheaf was a Consecration or Dedication of all the rest, and a Sign that the whole Harvest should follow in its due Season; so the Resurrection of CHRIST was a Type and Pledge of ours, that (r) we also like him shall all be made alive. And thus they offer'd a Sheaf or Omer of the first Fruits of their Barley Harvest. From this Day was taken an Account of the seven Sabbaths, or Weeks, and upon the Morrow after the seventh (that is, upon our LORD's Day) was celebrated the Feast of Weeks, being the fiftieth Day or Day of Pentecost, which was also (s) call'd, The Day of the first Fruits, at which Time they offer'd the first Fruits of their second or Wheat Harvest, which was therefore call'd (t) the Feast of Harvest, because then was the Conclusion of the principal or whole Harvest of the Year. Upon which Day (u) the Apostles having themselves receiv'd the first fruits of the spirit begat three thousand Souls with the Word of Truth, and presented them as the first fruits of the Christian Church unto GOD, and to the Lamb. And therefore the Matter being so order'd by GOD himself, that in the Observation of the Feast of the Wave-offering, and the Feast of Weeks, the seventh Day of the Week, or the Jewish Sabbath, was purposely pass'd over, and those great Solemnities were kept upon the first Day of the Week, and these (x) were Shadows of things to come; it is no Wonder that the Christian Church hath appropriated that Day (in which those things were fulfill'd, of which they were Shadows) instead of the seventh for the Service of GOD.

38. Upon this Occasion Moses tarry'd in the Mountain of Horeb forty Days and forty Nights, during all which Time (y) he did neither eat bread nor drink water, and his Fasting in the Mount, before he receiv'd the Law, was a Type of our SAVIOUR's Fasting so long in the Wilderness, before he preach'd the Gospel. During this Time GOD gave to Moses by Word of Mouth the Ceremonial Law, which he was to teach the Israelites, and also the Judicial Law, by which their Magistrates were to act, and a particular Command to build a Tabernacle for his Worship: and that he might be more exact herein, GOD shew'd him a visible Pattern of it in the Mount, with all the Furniture belonging to it, and the Vestments of the Priests set up before him in the same Manner, as he afterward set it up below among the People, with a strict Command to make all things according to the Pattern which he saw. For GOD would have nothing left to the Fancy of the People, whom he knew to be too much inclin'd to the Gentile Superstition. And if Moses had not been determin'd by a divine Prescription, they would have been apt in all these things to have interpos'd their own Inventions.

39. In all this Law there were three things remarkable, viz. The Sacrifices, the High Priest's Garments, and the Structure of the Tabernacle, and these were Types of something else. The Sacrifices were slain to make an Atonement for the Sins of the People, to shew that JESUS CHRIST should in due Time offer up himself for the same Reason, and be that (z) Lamb of GOD, who should take away the sins of the whole World. The Sacrifices were slain at the Altar, which (a) sanctify'd the Gift, and the Altar of CHRIST's Godhead gave Worth and Efficacy to his Manhood, and so made it to be a complete and a sufficient Sacrifice. The (b) bodies of those beasts, whose blood was brought into the sanctuary for sin, were burnt without the camp: And JESUS also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate. In some Cases (c) a Goat was slain, and another which was join'd to it was let out into the open Field, after the High Priest had laid his Hand thereon, and confess'd the Sins of the People, which Goat was to carry them into the Land of Forgetfulness. Thus the Body of CHRIST should die, the Soul should be separated from it, and thro' the Efficacy hereof apply'd by Faith, GOD hath (d) promis'd, that our sins and our iniquities he will remember no more. In another Caſe one (e) Bird was to be kill'd, and another to be dipp'd in its Blood, and let fly into the open Air; and very often (f) there were Burnt-offerings, when the Bodies were conſum'd by Fire, and the Smoke thereof aſcended up into the Air, and all this was to ſhew, that when the Body of CHRIST did really die, his Soul ſhould aſcend into (g) Paradiſe in a ſeparated State, to make Way for our Souls to be happy in the ſame Manner. In the Judicial Law, there was (h) this remarkable Sentence: If a man hath committed a ſin worthy of death, and he be put to death, and thou hang him on a tree, his body ſhall not remain all night upon the tree, but thou ſhalt in any wiſe bury him that day, for he that is hanged is accurſed of GOD. And tho' it was the Cuſtom of the Romans (who at that Time had Authority over the Jews, and brought in the Puniſhment of Crucifixion among them) to leave the Bodies of crucify'd Perſons expos'd to publick View in the open Air; yet CHRIST, who was crucify'd for us, was taken down, and bury'd the ſame Day, who (as (i) the Apoſtle ſaith) hath redeemed us from the curſe of the law being made a curſe for us, as it is written, Curſed is every one that hangeth on a tree; that the bleſſing of Abraham might come upon all, and that all might receive the promiſe of the ſpirit through faith.

40. As for the High Prieſt's Veſtments, who was a Type of CHRIST our great High Prieſt, it is obſervable, that they were made of the fineſt Materials and fineſt Work, which poſſibly could be, to ſhew the great Dignity of his Office. The (k) Bonnet repreſented a Crown, or rather ſuch a Tiara, as the Kings of the Eaſt wore in antient Times, to ſhew the Kingly Office of our SAVIOUR. Upon the Mitre there was a Plate with (l) this Inſcription upon it, HOLINESS UNTO THE LORD, to typify him, who alone was (m) without Blemiſh and without Spot. Upon (n) the Shoulders of the High Prieſt there were two Onyx Stones, and on them were engrav'd the Names of the twelve Tribes of Iſrael, which at that Time was the whole Church, to ſhew how CHRIST bears, carries and ſupports his whole Church in all their Trials and Afflictions. There was alſo (o) a Breaſtplate adorn'd with twelve precious Stones, and on them were engrav'd the ſame twelve Names, to ſhew how near his Church and People are to CHRIST. They were engraven not only upon (p) the Palms of his Hands, but his wounded Side ſhews, that they were very near his Heart, and he hath them in continual Remembrance before his Father, and continually (q) liveth to make interceſſion for them. Joſephus (r) farther adds, By the linnen Garment of the High Prieſt is meant the whole Body of the Earth; by the violet Colour the Heavens. The Pomegranates anſwer the Lightning, the Noiſe of the Bells the Thunder. The four colour'd Ephod (ſince it pleas'd GOD to order it ſo to be) bears a Reſemblance of the very Nature of the Univerſe; and the Interweaving of it with Gold hath a Regard to the Rays, that give us Light. The Rationale in the Middle of it intimates the Poſition of the Earth in the Center of the World. The Girdle about the Body of the Prieſt, is as the Sea about the Body of the Earth. The two Sardonyx Stones are a Kind of Figure of the Sun and Moon; and by the twelve other Stones are underſtood either the twelve Months, or the twelve Signs in the Circle, which the Greeks call the Zodiack. The violet-colour'd Tiara ſpeaks a Reſemblance of Heaven; and it would have been an Irreverence to have written the ſacred Name of GOD upon any other Colour; and the triple Crown and Plate of Gold gives us to underſtand the Glory and Majeſty of Almighty GOD. All this ſeems to repreſent the Divinity of our great High Prieſt, that (s) All power is given unto him, and (t) He is Lord of all things both in heaven and earth. That (u) He is not the GOD of the Jews only, but of the Gentiles alſo; and (x) in every nation he that feareth GOD and worketh righteouſneſs is accepted of him.

41. It is remarkable, that (y) when Alexander the Great had made himſelf Maſter of Tyre, he march'd againſt the Jews with a full Reſolution to puniſh them for Diſobeying his Commands. In this Diſtreſs Jaddua the High Prieſt, and all Jeruſalem with him, implore the Mercy of GOD for their Deliverance from this Danger, and make their devout Addreſſes to him with Sacrifices, Oblations and Prayers. By which GOD being mov'd with Compaſſion toward them, directed Jaddua in a Viſion by Night to go out and meet the Conqueror in theſe Robes, with the Prieſts attending him in their proper Habits, and all the People in white Garments. Jaddua in Obedience hereto went forth the next Day according to this Direction; and advancing to a Place call'd Sapha, he there waited the Coming of Alexander, and on his Approach met him in this pompous and ſolemn Manner. As ſoon as Alexander ſaw the High Prieſt coming toward him in this Manner, he was ſtruck with a profound Awe, and haſtning forward bowed down to him, and ſaluted him with a religious Veneration, to the great Surprize of all that attended him, who expected nothing leſs, than that Alexander would have deſtroy'd them, as he deſtroy'd the Tyrians, and came thither with an eager Deſire to have had a Share of the Booty. When all were amaz'd at this Behaviour, Parmenio ask'd the King the Reaſon of it, and how it happen'd, that he, whom all ador'd, ſhould pay ſuch Adoration to the Jewiſh High Prieſt? To which he anſwer'd, that he did not pay that Adoration to him, but to that GOD, whoſe Prieſt he was. For that when he was in Macedonia, and there conſulting with himſelf how he ſhould carry on the War againſt the Perſians, and was in much Doubt about the Undertaking, the ſame Perſon, and in the ſame Habit, appear'd to him in a Dream, and encourag'd him to lay aſide all Diſtruſt about that Matter, and paſs boldly over into Aſia, promiſing him, that GOD would be his Guide in the Expedition, and give him the Empire of the Perſians; and therefore ſeeing this Perſon, and knowing him by his Shape and Countenance, that he was the very ſame that appear'd to him, he aſſur'd himſelf from thence, that he made the preſent War under the Conduct of that GOD, whoſe Prieſt he was, and therefore paid Adoration to him in the Perſon of his Prieſt. Upon this having kindly embrac'd Jaddua, he enter'd Jeruſalem in a friendly Manner, and offer'd Sacrifices to GOD in the Temple; where Jaddua having ſhewn him the (*) Propheſies of Daniel, which foretold the Overthrow of the Perſian Empire by a Grecian King, he went from thence with the greater Aſſurance of Succeſs in his farther Carrying on of the War, not doubting but that he was the Perſon, who was meant by thoſe Propheſies. So that the GOD, who directed Moſes to make ſuch Ornaments for the High Prieſt, was the GOD, who caus'd Alexander to dream this Dream, who foretold by Daniel the Subverſion of the Perſian and the Succeſſion of the Grecian Monarchy, who aſſiſted Alexander, and gave him Succeſs in all his Undertakings, who (†) governs all the Kingdoms of the World, and diſpoſeth of them, as it ſeems beſt unto him.

42. As for the Tabernacle, (y) Joſephus tells us alſo, that it is the Image of the whole World. It was thirty Cubits long, and divided into three Parts, two for the Prieſts in general, as a Place is common to them all, and free of Acceſs like the Earth and the Sea. The third Place, where no Mortal muſt be admitted, is as the Heaven, reſerv'd only for GOD himſelf. The twelve Loaves of Shew-bread upon the Table, ſignify the twelve Months of the Year. The Candleſtick is made up of ſeventy Pieces, and refers to the twelve Signs of the Zodiack, through which the ſeven Planets take their Courſe; and the ſeven Lamps on the Top of the ſeven Branches bear an Analogy to the Planets themſelves. The Curtains, with the four Colours wrought unto them, repreſent the four Elements. The Linnen ſignifies the Earth, as the Flax takes its Growth out of it. The Purple repreſents the Sea from the Blood of the Fiſh Murex, that gives it the Tincture. The violet Colour is the Symbol of the Air, and the Scarlet of the Fire. The Jew hath well obſerv'd, that the Holy of Holies, or the Inner Part was a Reſemblance of the Heavens, into which (z) the High Prieſt went alone not without blood, which he offered for himſelf, and for the Errors of the People. And the Apoſtle (a) tells us, That the Holy Ghoſt ſignified hereby, that the way into the holieſt of all was not yet made manifeſt, whilſt the firſt Tabernacle was yet ſtanding. But CHRIST being come an high prieſt of good things to come by a greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is to ſay, not of this building; neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us. Before this Holy Place ſtood the Ark, with the two Tables of the Law in it, and (b) a Covering over it, which we call the Mercy-Seat, which (c) the Septuagint and the Apoſtle ſometimes call a Propitiation. Over this there were two Cherubims ſtretching forth their Wings, and looking toward each other. Of this GOD ſaid to Moſes, (d) There will I meet with thee, and there will I commune with thee from above the mercy-ſeat, from between the two cherubims, which are upon the ark of the teſtimony. Here therefore the divine Preſence did manifeſt it ſelf, and therefore he is ſo often call'd (e) the GOD that ſitteth or dwelleth between the cherubims. This Mercy-ſeat was therefore reckon'd a Type of CHRIST, who interpoſeth between the Sentence of the Law, and the Juſtice of GOOD, who is (f) the Propitiation for our Sins, and (g) appointed by GOD for this Purpoſe through faith in his blood. And as this was the Place of the immediate Preſence of GOD, and ſtood directly oppoſite to the Entrance into the Tabernacle, and without the Holy of Holies; ſo from thence came the Cuſtom among the Jews, to worſhip and bow toward that Place, eſpecially at their firſt Coming in and Going out, and from hence the ſame Cuſtom was continu'd in the Chriſtian Church, long before any Images were ſet up in the ſame to be worſhipp'd, as they have been ſince in the Church of Rome; and to this they might well apply the Commands of the Pſalmiſt, not only (h) to worſhip, and fall down and kneel before the LORD our maker, but alſo (i) to worſhip before his footſtool.

43. As GOD had declar'd (k) his Deſign of making ſuch a Sanctuary to be, that he might dwell among them; ſo this Dwelling was fitly repreſented, by having all things in it belonging to a Dwelling-Houſe, particularly a Table and Bread, whereby they were made to underſtand, that this was the Place of his Habitation. There was a Table and a Candleſtick order'd for this Houſe, becauſe they were the ordinary Furniture of a Room; but no Seats, it not being proper to ſit in the Preſence of his divine Majeſty. For the ſame Reaſon the Table had its Diſhes, Spoons, Bowls and Covers, (tho' they were never us'd) and was always furniſh'd with Bread upon it; and the Lamps were continually burning in the Candleſticks; and there was a continual Fire in the Dwelling of GOD upon his Altar, and a conſtant Meat and Proviſion brought to it by the Sacrifices there offer'd, which were partly conſum'd by Fire upon GOD's own Altar, and partly eaten by the Prieſts, who were GOD's domeſtick Servants, and therefore to be maintain'd by him. And beſide the Beaſts offer'd up in Sacrifices, there was alſo a Meat-offering made of Flour and Oil together, with a Drink-offering, which were always join'd to the daily Sacrifice, being the Bread and the Drink, which was to go along with the Meat. It was alſo ſtrictly commanded, that Salt ſhould accompany every Oblation, becauſe it was not fit that GOD's Meat ſhould be unſavoury. And all theſe were to be conſum'd at the Altar only, with the holy Fire that came down from Heaven, becauſe they were GOD's Portion, and to be conſum'd by Fire in an extraordinary Manner. And the Bread, being made of the ſame Corn which the Jews themſelves did eat of, ſhews that they were GOD's Gueſts, who continually entertain'd them with the ſame Proviſion, which was made for him.

44. Another thing remarkable in the Tabernacle is, that it was a Model by which the Temple was afterward built, which is (l) therefore call'd a Reſemblance of the holy Tabernacle, which GOD had prepar'd from the Beginning. In the Tabernacle there was firſt the Holy of Holies, ſeparated from the other by a Veil, then the main Body, with the Door oppoſite to it, and after that the outward Court. Thus it was in the Temple, whoſe Veil was rent at the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and thus in the Chriſtian Churches, there are the Chancels, which were antiently ſeparated from the Reſt by Rails or Lattices, and therefore call'd Cancelli; next to this is the Body of the Church, and a Door oppoſite to it; and without this the Church-Yard. We may add, that in the Temple there were two Piles of Building on each Side, which were Chambers for the Prieſts, and in our large Churches we have generally two Iſles in the ſame Manner. In the Temple there was an high Tower oppoſite to the Holy of Holies, and the Towers in our Churches are generally oppoſite to the Chancel. In the Temple there was a very large ſquare Walk, call'd (m) Solomon's Porch, and this gave the firſt Riſe to the Cloyſters in all Cathedral Churches, and alſo in the Colleges in our Univerſities. The chief Difference is, that their Holy of Holies was plac'd toward the Weſt, and the Entrance was from the Eaſt; but our Chancel is plac'd toward the Eaſt, and the Entrance is from the Weſt. They look'd forward toward us, to ſee what ſhould happen in the latter Days, and we look back again toward them, to view what happen'd in the early Ages. They look'd after the Accompliſhment of all by the MESSIAH, and we ſhould behold how all things were fulfill'd, which were written in the Law and the Prophets concerning him. Wherever they were they look'd toward Jeruſalem, and ſo do we, as if we both did wait for (n) that Jeruſalem, which is from above, and is the mother of us all.

45. The Jews tell us, that when Moſes was in the Mount, he not only receiv'd the written Law, but the traditionary alſo, and ſay (o) that when GOD deliver'd a Precept to Moſes, he always added the Expoſition and Meaning of it. That Moſes afterward went into his Tent, and Aaron alone follow'd him; to whom Moſes deliver'd the Precept, which he had receiv'd, together with its Expoſition, or oral Law. That hereupon Aaron kept on the right Hand of Moſes, and Eleazar and Ithamar came next into the Tent; to whom Moſes communicated what he had before imparted to Aaron, upon which one of them betook himſelf to the right Hand of Moſes, and the other to the left Hand of Aaron. After this the ſeventy Elders came in, and Moſes taught them, as he had taught Aaron and his Sons. After them came in the Multitude, and all that ſought the LORD, who receiv'd the like Inſtruction from his Mouth; ſo that Aaron receiv'd theſe Traditions from Moſes four Times, his Sons three Times, the Elders twice, and the Multitude once. After this Moſes withdrawing Aaron repeated the whole of both Laws, as he had heard it from him, and he withdrew. Then Eleazar, and Ithamar repeated the ſame, and withdrew. After this the ſeventy Elders made the ſame Repetition to the People then preſent; ſo that all of them having heard theſe Laws repeated four Times, they had them firmly fix'd in their Memories. After this, Moſes the Day before his Death repeated it to Joſhua; Joſhua deliver'd it to the Elders, who ſucceeded him; the Elders deliver'd it to the Prophets, the Prophets tranſmitted it down to each other till it came to Jeremiah; Jeremiah gave it to Baruch, and Baruch to Ezra. Ezra gave it to the Men of the great Synagogue, the laſt of whom was Simon the Juſt: By him it was deliver'd to Antigonus of Socho; by him to Joſe the Son of Johanan; by him to Joſe the Son of Joezer, and by him to Nathan the Arbelite and Joſhua the Son of Perachiah; and by them to Judah the Son of Tobbai, and by him to Simeon the Son of Shutah, and by him to Shemaiah and Abtalion; and by him to Hillel and Shammai, who interpreted the ſame in a different Manner to their Scholars. Hillel is ſaid to deliver it to Simeon his Son, who is ſuppos'd to be the ſame, that took our SAVIOUR into his Arms, when he was preſented in the Temple. Simeon deliver'd it to Gamaliel his Son, who was Preſident of the Sanhedrim, when (p) the Apoſtles were examin'd before them, and (q) educated St. Paul in all theſe Traditions of the Fathers. From him it deſcended to Simeon his Son, then to Gamaliel his Son, then to Simeon his Son, and ſo to Rabbi Judah, whom they call The holy Man. But as all this is without the leaſt Warrant from Scripture; ſo if the Jews could invent ſo many, ſo great, and ſuch formal Lyes for nothing, what might they have done, had it been for a Wager?

46. This Rabbi Judah being a blind Man, and having nothing elſe to do, about eighty Years after the Deſtruction of the Temple, and the Diſperſion of the Jews, fearing leſt ſo great a Treaſure ſhould be loſt, ſet himſelf to collect all theſe Traditions into Writing out of theſe two Schools, which he did in a Book call'd, The Miſhneh, or ſecond Law, and in which he generally lays down their different Opinions, which Book being written in a very ſhort and obſcure Style, occaſion'd two very copious Expoſitions of it, the one call'd, The Babyloniſh Talmud, in thirteen large Volumes, and the other call'd, The Jeruſalem Talmud, in eight large Volumes, and all of them in Folio, which laſt Books are the moſt difficult of all the Rabbinical Learning. And as the Jews tell us, that the Reconciling of theſe Differences, and Setting them in a due Light, is a Work reſerv'd for the MESSIAS; ſo he hath done it in much fewer Words, declaring of them all alike, that (r) they tranſgreſſed the commandment of GOD, and laid it aſide by their Traditions, and in vain did they worſhip him, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men.

47. But to return from this Digreſſion: Moſes having ſtay'd longer in the Mount than the Iſraelites expected, ſo many of them as could not be oppos'd by the reſt (s), come tumultuouſly unto Aaron, and require of him to make a ſacred Symbol or Sign, as other Nations had, which might repreſent GOD to them in a viſible Manner. Aaron partly overcome by their Importunity, and partly frighten'd into a Compliance, takes their Ear-rings of Gold, melts them in the Fire, and makes the Similitude of an Ox with them, about the Bigneſs of a Calf. Perhaps he thought that the Iſraelites would be beſt pleas'd with ſuch an Image at this, having (t) ſeen the Idolatry of the Egyptians in Worſhipping both living Oxen, and alſo the Pictures of ſuch; or, which is more probable, only to put them in Mind of the divine Power, which was hereby repreſented. For an Ox's Head was antiently an Emblem of Strength, and Horns were a common Sign of Kingly Power. Upon this the Iſraelites hold a Feaſt, and run into all the Extravagances of the Egyptian Idolatry. And GOD commands Moſes to go down immediately, and put a Stop to it. But before this (u) GOD declares firſt his Intention to deſtroy all the Iſraelites, which was diverted by the Prayer of Moſes, who (x) ſtood before him in the breach to turn away his wrathful indignation. When (y) GOD reſolv'd to ſpare the Iſraelites, he expreſſes his Anger againſt Aaron, and declares his Reſolution to deſtroy him; but Moſes pray'd for Aaron alſo at the ſame Time, and ſo he was preſerv'd. At his Coming in Sight of the Camp. he (z) was very angry, and caſt the two Tables out of his Hands, and brake them beneath the Mount, which the (a) Eaſtern Writers ſay he afterward pick'd up again, and plac'd in the Ark, together with other two whole Tables, which were afterward given him. Upon this he deſtroys the Golden Calf, and grinds it to Powder, and throws it into the Water, of which they were afterward oblig'd to drink. He calls for thoſe who were zealous for the Cauſe of GOD to deſtroy the chief Idolaters, which the Levites did at that Time, to the Number of three thouſand Men, who acted with that Impartiality, that they ſpar'd not even their own Children, whom they knew to be guilty. And for this Service Moſes promis'd to them (b) that they ſhould be conſecrated to the LORD, and be a peculiar People to him, they ſhould be GOD's Prieſts, and Miniſters of his Houſe, and the tenth of all the Land ſhould be given them for an Inheritance. The next Day Moſes goes again to GOD to beg Pardon for his People. And tho' GOD had not utterly caſt off his People, and had reſolv'd not to puniſh the innocent; yet he declares, that they ſhould periſh, who had offended his Divine Majeſty. And accordingly, he (c) ſent a Peſtilence among them. and tells them, that (d) he would viſit this Sin of the Fathers upon their Children in future Generations, which made the Jews obſerve, that (e) no Vengeance had ſince come upon the Iſraelites, in which there had not been half an Ounce of the Golden Calf. However (f) after ſeveral Threatnings and other Signs of GOD's Diſpleaſure, he ſhew'd himſelf in ſome Meaſure reconcil'd to them; and upon the great Humiliation of the People, he (g) order'd Moſes to hew two Tables of Stone like unto the firſt, and bring them with him to the Top of Sinai, which Moſes did accordingly, and then GOD renew'd his Covenant with his People, proclaim'd himſelf a GOD merciful and gracious, long-ſuffering, and abundant in goodneſs and truth, keeping mercy for thouſands, and forgiving iniquities, tranſgreſſions and ſins; he wrote upon the Tables (h) the ten Commandments, as they had been in the former. Upon this Occaſion Moſes was again in the Mount as before forty Days and forty Nights, during which Time, he (i) neither did eat bread, nor drink water, and ſo was the ſecond Time a Type of our SAVIOUR's Faſting in the Wilderneſs.

48. When he came down from the Mount with the two Tables in his Hand, it is ſaid, (k) that the Skin of his face ſhone. The Word which ſignifies a Horn being deriv'd from this Hebrew Verb, hath made many be of this Opinion, that there were two Horns or Rays of Light, which came from his Forehead; and for this Reaſon he is uſually painted in our Churches with two ſuch Rays from his Face, and a Rod in his Hand. And ſeveral Commentators give theſe Reaſons of it, viz. to put the Iſraelites in mind of their Sin, and to ſhew, that as they were moſt inclinable to worſhip thoſe Beaſts, which had Horns; ſo GOD could digniſy whom he pleas'd in ſuch a Manner, and particularly his Servant Moſes, whom they ought to reverence the more in Time to come for this Reaſon. The Apoſtle tells us, that (l) the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly behold the face of Moſes for the glory of his countenance, and a Senſe of their own Guilt might make them the more aſham'd on ſuch an Occaſion. When therefore Moſes ſpoke to the People, he put a Veil over his Face; but when he went to ſpeak with GOD, he took it off. The Apoſtle (m) makes it to repreſent the Obſcurity of the Law, unleſs as it refers to the Antitype. Moſes put a veil over his face, that the children of Iſrael could not ſtedfaſtly look to the end of that which is aboliſhed. But their minds were blinded; for until this day remaineth the ſame veil untaken away in the reading of the old teſtament; which veil is done away in CHRIST. But even unto this day when Moſes is read, the veil is upon their hearts; nevertheleſs when it ſhall turn unto the LORD, the veil ſhall be taken away. For we all, who are Chriſtians, when we read therein, behold as in a glaſs the glory of the LORD.

49. As ſoon as the Face of Moſes ceas'd to ſhine, that the Iſraelites might freely and familiarly converſe with him, Moſes (n) told them, that they muſt build a Tabernacle for GOD to dwell among them, who expected, that the People ſhould willingly offer ſuch things as were neceſſary for that Purpoſe, which they did ſo liberally, that they were ſoon reſtrain'd from Offering any more. Upon this Bezaleel of the Tribe of Judah, and Aholiab of the Tribe of Dan, were appointed by GOD himſelf for the Overſeeing and Managing of the whole Work; which was done with that Exactneſs, that upon a ſtrict View by Moſes, it was found to be according to the Pattern that was before ſhewn him. And accordingly he commended the Workmen, who had done their Work faithfully, and the Children of Iſrael, who had contributed the Materials, and gave Thanks to GOD, who had enabled them ſo to do, and had given them ſo evident a Sign, that he was pleas'd to dwell among them. When the Iſraelites perceiv'd, that ſuch a ſtately Tent was building, they rightly concluded, that they ſhould not decamp, until it was finiſh'd and ſet up; and therefore they made Booths for themſelves and their Families. Accordingly on Friday the eighth Day of October, or the fifteenth Day of their ſeventh Month, they obſerve the Feaſt of Tabernacles, as GOD had before (o) commanded them ſo to do; which without Doubt they obſerv'd with great Joy, as a Preparation for their Building a Tabernacle for their GOD. The Day following they obſerv'd their Sabbath, which Command was not only given them before at Marah and Sinai, but alſo enjoin'd (p) among the other Commands for Doing this Work; and hereby GOD declar'd, that all other Commands ſhould give Place to this. Neither did the divine Wiſdom think it proper, that on the Day of the Week, in which CHRIST was afterward dead, and reſted in the Grave, the Jews ſhould be employ'd in Building any other Place for his Reception. Bnt on the Day following, being Sunday, the Tabernacle (which was a Type of CHRIST, who (q) was made fleſh, and dwelt among us, and was alſo born on this Day, and ſo fix'd his Tabernacle with us) is begun to be built, even on the ſame Day of the Week, which we obſerve in Commemoration of the Antitype. In eight Days Time the Iſraelites had finiſh'd the Making of Booths for themſelves, and therefore the firſt and the eighth or laſt Day were (r) the two great Days of the Feaſt, as it is ſtill among us Chriſtians, the one in Commemoration of the Birth of CHRIST, and the other in Commemoration of his Circumciſion.

50. The Iſraelites being thus employ'd, we hear no more of them till the Tabernacle was ſet up, which was done by (s) the expreſs Command of GOD, on the firſt Day of the firſt Month of the Year, according to their Account, when GOD was pleas'd in a miraculous Manner to teſtify his Approbation of it. For (t) the Cloud, which had hitherto gone before them like a Pillar by Day, and like a Flame of Fire by Night, now viſibly removʼd from the Front of their Camp, and covered the tent of the congregation, in ſuch a Manner, that Moſes was not able to enter into it, becauſe the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle; and thus a cloud was upon it by day, and fire was on it by night, in the ſight of all the houſe of Iſrael throughout all their journeys: And it was afterward their conſtant Method, that when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Iſrael went forward in all their journeys. But if the cloud was not taken up, then they journeyed not, until the day when it was taken up.

Anno Mundi 2514.

51. The firſt Month of this new Year takes in the whole Story of Leviticus. And therefore as ſoon as the Tabernacle was erected, and probably, on the Day following, GOD (u) ſpeaks to Moſes from thence, and gives him ſeveral Rules and Ordinances concerning it, the firſt of which are concerning Sacrifices to repreſent the Death of CHRIST, as the Tabernacle it ſelf did repreſent his Body. After this he (x) gives Direction concerning the Conſecration of Aaron to be the High Prieſt, and his Sons to be Prieſts under him; which was done with that Solemnity, that it laſted ſeven Days, in the Preſence of the whole Congregation, or ſo many as could be Spectators of it, that they might be Witneſſes of what was done, and ſatisfy all the People, that Aaron and his Sons did not intrude themſelves into this Office, but were ſolemnly call'd and conſecrated to it by Moſes the Servant of the LORD. And therefore an inward Call alone is not ſufficient, but there muſt be an external Ordination for that Purpoſe; for (y) no man ought to take this office unto himſelf, but he that is called of GOD, as was Aaron. There muſt be Satisfaction given not only to the Perſon himſelf, but alſo to the People among whom ſuch a Perſon officiates. But here is no Witneſs to teſtify an inward Call, except the ſame Perſon. And in this Caſe even CHRIST ſaith (z), If I bear witneſs of my ſelf, my witneſs is not true. There are but two Ways to prove our Miſſion, either by a due Ordination, or by Working of Miracles. This laſt was that which CHRIST appeal'd to, with this Declaration, that (a) if it had been otherwiſe, he ought not to have been believ'd. And therefore they who cannot bring this Teſtimony, ought to ſubmit to the other, before they preſume to take this Office upon them.

52. Aaron being thus conſecrated, he offers upon the Day after a (b) burnt-offering for himſelf, and a ſin-offering for all the People,

People, and (c) immediately after this he lifted up his Hands, imploring the divine Bleſſing upon the People, which he afterward pronounc'd. Upon this GOD manifeſted his Approbation of the whole, for that Glory (d) which before fill'd the Tabernacle, now appear'd without in the Sight of all the People, and a Fire came from thence, which burnt up the Sacrifices: And when all the People ſaw it, they ſhouted for Joy, and prais'd GOD with an humble Thankfulneſs, who hereby teſtify'd his Preſence among them, and his gracious Acceptance of them. And as GOD had before given a poſitive Order, (e) that the fire ſhould be ever burning upon the altar, and ſhould never go out; ſo they preſerv'd this Fire until the Captivity, by a conſtant Supply of Wood for that Purpoſe; ſo that it continu'd during the firſt Temple, but the Jews agree, (f) that it was wanting in the ſecond, notwithſtanding the Story (g) in the Maccabees, that it was hid in a Pit, and miraculouſly reſtor'd in the Time of Nehemiah.

53. But as no State in this Life is without its Troubles; ſo a ſad Accident happen'd, which turn'd the Joy of Aaron's Family into Sorrow; for (h) Nadab and Abihu, his two eldeſt Sons, attempted without any Order from GOD to burn Incenſe in the Sanctuary. They both attempted it, tho' it was to be offer'd but by one at a Time, and probably they offer'd it out of Seaſon, it being neither the Time of the Morning, nor the Evening Sacrifice. And whereas they might now be oblig'd to take only of the Fire burning on the Altar, which they call'd holy Fire, they took it from another Place, which if allow'd, would have brought the Altar into Diſeſteem, and occaſion'd the Worſhipping of other Gods in other Places. The Cauſe of all this might be, that they had eaten and drank too liberally on this ſolemn Feaſt, which made them forget themſelves, and raſhly run into ſo groſs a Miſtake, which occaſion'd the Prohibition (i) of Wine and ſtrong Drink to the Prieſts, who were to enter into the Sanctuary. But GOD, to deter others from the like Offence, ſtruck them dead immediately with Fire from before his Face, giving this as a Reaſon, (k) I will be ſanctified by all them that come nigh me, and before all the people will I be glorified. This Misfortune ſo ſenſibly afflicted Aaron, that he (l) would not eat of the Goat for the Sin-offering, as he was (m) expreſly commanded; and he gave this Reaſon to Moſes for it, that (n) they had in many Particulars acted as it was commanded; but that ſince there had ſuch a heavy Misfortune befel him, in the Death of his two Sons, he could not have eaten it with a joyful and thankful Heart, as he ought to have done, and therefore he fear'd, that GOD would be angry at him, and he alſo ſhould loſe his Life in the ſame Manner with his Sons; which (o) Apology ſatisfy'd Moſes. For where there is no wilful Contempt, but rather a Reſpect intended in any Action, all good Men are inclin'd to make a favourable Conſtruction of it, and grant it an Indulgence, tho' there may be ſome Error in it.

54. And now the Feaſt of the Paſſover drawing nigh, GOD (p) commanded the Iſraelites to obſerve it in the ſame Manner as they had obſerv'd it in Egypt the Year before, leſt they ſhould look upon it as a temporal Command, which they did accordingly; at which Time ſome Perſons, who had been unclean by the Touching of a dead Body, deſire to know of Moſes, whether they ſhould keep it with the reſt of the Iſraelites or not; and Moſes, by the Direction of GOD, makes a ſtanding Rule, that in all ſuch Caſes they ſhould keep it on the fourteenth Day of the next Month. And the Reſt of the Month was ſpent in GOD's Delivering many other Commands to the Iſraelites, as we find them recorded in (q) the remaining Part of the Book of Leviticus.

55. On (r) the firſt Day of the ſecond Month in this new Year, GOD commands Moſes to number the Tribes, and place them in their Order about the Tabernacle; and it is very remarkable, that let them march which Way ſoever, the ſame Tribes were always on the ſame Side, let it be either Eaſt, Weſt, North or South, and began firſt to march accordingly, even tho' they happen'd to be the hindmoſt. The (s) Levites were appointed to pitch on the three Sides of the Tabernacle, and Moſes and Aaron before it. On the (t) eaſt Side there were the Tribes of Judah, Iſſachar and Zebulun. On the ſouth Side there were the Tribes of Reuben, Simeon and Gad. On the weſt Side were the Tribes of Ephraim, Benjamin and Manaſſeh; and on the north Side the Camps of Dan, Aſher and Naphthali. That there was an infinite Wiſdom concern'd in the Diſpoſal of theſe Camps, which knew all Events to the End of the World, and was the ſame which appear'd to (u) Ezekiel and (w) St. John, will appear by comparing them all together. In the Wilderneſs there was a Throne for the Divine Majeſty, or the Holy of Holies, in the Tabernacle. In Ezekiel and the Reve- lations there is a Throne, expreſly call'd ſo, and all theſe are ſuppos'd not to be vacant, but fill'd with the Divine Majeſty, as it is particularly expreſs'd by Ezekiel and St. John. In the Wilderneſs, and by St. John, this Throne is plac'd in the Midſt of all, in Ezekiel above all. And all this is to ſhew GOD's Providence in and over his Church, and that nothing happens to her but by his Appointment and Permiſſion. Next to the Tabernacle in the Wilderneſs, was the Camp of the Levites, including the Prieſts as their principal Part. Next to the Throne in the Revelations are the four and twenty Elders, like the Heads of (x) the four and twenty Courſes of the Prieſts, appointed by David to attend upon the Temple in their ſeveral Turns. Beyond theſe in the Wilderneſs, are the twelve Tribes of Iſrael, reduc'd into four Armies or Bodies, pitching at a convenient Diſtance on the Eaſt, South, Weſt and North Sides, each having its particular Standard under ſo many principal Tribes, Judah, Reuben, Ephraim and Dan. Each of theſe principal Tribes, as the Head of each Army, according to the antient Tradition (y) of the Jews, had their own peculiar Animals diſplay'd on their Banners, particularly Judah's Enſign on the Eaſt was a Lion, Ephraim's on the Weſt was an Ox, Reuben's on the South was a Man, and Dan's on the North was a flying Eagle. Thus when Ezekiel ſaw his Viſion with (z) his Face toward the North, the four Faces of the Cherub which he ſaw did exactly correſpond thereto. For the Face (a) on the Right hand or Eaſt was as a Lion, that on the Left-hand or Weſt was like an Ox, that on the South, which he mentions firſt as being before him, was like a Man, and that on the North was like an Eagle. The (b) ſame Order is alſo obſerv'd by St. John, as an Introduction to his Prophecies, or (c) the Opening of the Seals, which immediately follow'd. And as (d) the Seat of St. John's Viſions was the Roman Empire; ſo this Situation in the Wilderneſs, and Ezekiel's Viſion, compar'd with his, do fix the Hiſtory of the four firſt Seals, and conſequently ſerves for a Key to all the reſt. The firſt Seal ſhews us (e) a white Horſe, and he that ſate on him, had a bow, and a crown was given to him; and he went forth conquering and to conquer. By this is meant CHRIST himſelf, who was perfectly clean and pure, and without Spot or Blemiſh. He is repreſented by St. John as a Lion, the Enſign of Judah on the eaſt Side, and is call'd (f) the Lion of the tribe of Judah, to ſhew more expreſly a Correſpondence of this Seal with his Authority and Power. He firſt ſet up his Kingdom at his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion, which begun in the Eaſt, and ſoon made a great Progreſs, and after the Deſtruction of his Enemies the Jews, was ſtill more and more advancing it ſelf in the Roman Empire. The (g) ſecond Seal ſhews a red horſe, and power was given to him that ſate thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they ſhould kill one another: and there was given unto him a great ſword. This is introduc'd by the ſecond Animal an Ox, whoſe Station was on the Weſt Side of the Camp of Iſrael, and the Prophetick Scenes. This fixes the Hiſtory to the Reign of Trajan, and his immediate Succeſſors of the Ælian Family. He was born in Spain the utmoſt Parts of the Weſt, and was the firſt Roman Emperor, who was not an Italian. And he and his Succeſſor Hadrian made the moſt diſmal Slaughters of the Jews, which ever were known, to the Number (as (h) ſome ſay) of twelve hundred thouſand Men. The third Seal (i) ſhews a black horſe, and he that ſate thereon had a pair of balances in his hand. And there was a voice in the midſt of the four beaſts, ſaying, A meaſure of wheat for a peny; and three meaſures of barley for a peny. And ſee, that thou hurt not, or (k) be not unjuſt in the oyl and the wine. This was introduc'd by the third Animal, which had the face of a man, whoſe Station was on the South Side of the Camp of Iſrael, and the Prophetick Scenes. This fixes the Hiſtory to the Beginning of the Reign of Septimius Severus, who was born in the South Part of the Roman Empire, even in Africa it ſelf, and he and his Succeſſors under this Seal were the only Roman Emperors, who were of this Extraction. And the Care, which he and his Succeſſors took to make good Laws, and execute them impartially, particularly in Relation to Oil and Wine, and to procure Plenty of both, as related by the Hiſtorians of thoſe Times, doth perfectly agree with this Prophecy. The fourth Seal (l) ſhews a pale horſe, and his name that ſate on him was Death, and hell followed with him, and power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth to kill with ſword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beaſts of the earth. This was introduc'd by the fourth Animal, which was like a flying eagle, whoſe Station was in the North ſide of the Camp of Iſrael and the Prophetick

Scenes, and fixeth the Hiſtory to the Beginning of the Reign of Maximinus, who was born North as far as Thrace, and thus it was to continue during the Reigns of his immediate Succeſſors. There were Wars and Murders, Tyranny and Cruelty, a Peſtilence for fifteen Years together, and a Famine conſequent thereon, at which Time it was no Wonder, (m) if the wild Beaſts of the Earth increas'd upon them. So that it is evident, that the GOD, who gave Directions, how the Iſraelites ſhould pitch their Tents, was the GOD who appear'd to Ezekiel and St. John, in Viſions agreeing therewith, and made them ſo exactly to agree with the Hiſtory of future Ages; and conſequently knew in the Beginning what ſhould happen to the End of the World.

Anno CHRISTI 235.

56. In the Situation of the Levites round the Tabernacle, it is obſervable, that the Family of Gerſhom pitch'd (n) behind toward the Weſt, the Family of Kohath on (o) the Right-hand toward the South, and the Family of Merari (p) on the Left-hand toward the North, and they were reckon'd to be twenty and two thouſand, but in Computing them we ſhall find that they were three hundred more. Thus

Num. 3. 22.	Gerſhom	7500
28.	Kohath	8600
34.	Merari	6200
	Total	22300

Which may be thus accounted for: The Family of Kohath was the moſt numerous, and (q) Moſes and Aaron were deſcended from them. Moſes and Aaron (r) pitch'd their Tents on the Eaſt Side of the Sanctuary, and probably Moſes on the Right-hand near to his Family; ſo that he might take three hundred from them, one half to attend on him, and the other half to attend on Aaron, and ſo they who remain'd in their reſpective Camps might be the exact Number, which the Scripture mentions; and the Camp of Kohath will be ſtill the largeſt of the three.

57. The Number of the Iſraelites from (s) twenty Years old and upwards, (t) was 603550, but the Number of the (u) Levites from a Month old and upwards was but 22300, ſo that we cannot ſuppoſe, that the Number of thoſe, who were above twenty Years old, could exceed twenty thouſand, which was not a thirtieth Part in Number of the reſt. Theſe were to have the full Tythe of Cattle, Sheep, and indeed of every thing even to Mint, Aniſe and Cummin; ſo that in this Reſpect two Levites had as much or more of the Product of the Ground as five other Iſraelites, beſide the Sacrifices, voluntary Oblations, and other Offerings at the three ſtated Feaſts, and (x) the eight and forty Cities which were given to them, could not be leſs than a (y) full Proportion with the reſt; ſo that there was a much more ample Proviſion than many imagine, for ſuch as in thoſe Days did attend the Service of the Altar. And if (as moſt affirm) they paid a ſecond Tythe every Year, the Levites had much more, and the Husbandman paid above a ſixth Part, as appears from (z) an antient Computation in this Manner.

6000 Buſhels in one Year belonging to the Husbandman.

100 Buſhels was the leaſt, which could be paid to the Prieſts, for the firſt Fruits of the threſhing Floor.

(m) Such a Deſtruction of Men the Scriptures frequently intimate to be the Cauſe of the Increaſe of wild Beaſts, as Levit. 26. 21. Deut. 7. 22. Deut. 32. 24. Ezek. 5. 17, and Ezek. 14. 15, 21. (u) As above. (x) Num. 35. 1 to 9. (y) As the Levites had eight and forty Cities given them, Num. 35. 7. and on each Side a thouſand Cubits for Suburbs, and two thouſand more for the Fields of the Suburbs, Levit. 25. 34. or for their Paſture Ground. See Patrick on Num. 35. 5. So let us ſuppoſe, that the whole might be equal to a Square of two Miles and an half, making in all 158400 Inches, or 7236 Cubits at 21,888 Inches to a Cubit. From hence ſubſtract 6000 Cubits for the Fields and Suburbs on each Side, and the City will be equal to a Square of 1236 Cubits, which is equal to a Square of 27053 Inches, or 136 Perch, and is not very large for a City. According to this Computation, What therefore belongs to each City will be equal to a Square of $2\frac{1}{2}$ Miles, or $5\frac{1}{4}$ Square Miles, and the eight and forty Cities, with their Suburbs and Fields, will be equal to 250 Square Miles. Let us next ſuppoſe that the whole Land of Canaan belonging to the twelve Tribes was equal to an Oblong of 200 Miles in Length, and 100 Miles in Breadth, or 20000 ſquare Miles in the whole, which is more than can be allow'd. However according to this Reckoning the Levites will have an eightieth Part of the whole. Now the reſt of the Iſraelites above twenty Years of Age being 603550, Num. 1. 45, 46. and it being impoſſible, that all the Levites of that Age could be 20000, ſince all of a Month old and upwards were but 22300, the whole Number might be about 623550. The Levites therefore being but a thirtieth Part of the whole, will have ſuch a Proportion of Land, as 30 is to 80, or 3 to 8, which was very conſiderable, beſide the Tythe of all the reſt. And if we reckon 640 Acres to a ſquare Mile, their 250 ſquare Mile will amount to 160000 Acres in the whole; which according to the loweſt Computation was 8 Acres to each Man. However we may rather conclude, that GOD allow'd to his Servants the Levites when in Canaan, about the ſame Quantity of Land, which Seſoſtris diſtributed among his Soldiers in Egypt in the Time when they travell'd in the Wilderneſs. But if among the 22300 Levites, we allow 5458, to be between a Month and twenty Years of Age, and that only 16842 of them, among whom the Land was divided, were above twenty Years of Age, then according to the former Suppoſitions each of them might have nine Acres and an half, which was the exact Quantity that Seſoſtris gave to his Soldiers. Or it may be the ſame, if we reckon the Land of Canaan to be leſs than what is here computed, as it really was. (z) Sixtinus Amamus de decimis.

5900 Buſhels remaining to the Husbandman, out of which he paid two Tythes.
590 Buſhels were the firſt Tythe to the Levites, Tobit 1.7. Neh. 10. 37.
59 Buſhels the Levites paid to the Prieſts, which is call'd, The Tythe of the Tythes, Neh. 10. 48. 2 Chron. 31. 6.
5310 Buſhels remain'd to the Husbandman, out of which he paid his ſecond Tythe, Tobit 1.7. and it was ſpent two Years in the Temple, Deut. 14. 26. and the third Year given to the Poor, Deut. 26. 12. (a) 531 Buſhels were the ſecond Tythe.
4779 Buſhels remain'd to the Husbandman as his own, all being paid.
1121 Buſhels are the Sum of both Tythes join'd together, which is above a ſixth Part of the whole, or almoſt nineteen out of an hundred; but if the firſt hundred is added to it, it is 1221 or above a fifth Part, or twenty to an hundred.

And therefore according to this Computation, if we except the ſecond Tythes of the third Year as belonging to the Poor, the Tythes belonging to one Levite will be four Times as much in Value, as the Lands belonging to any other Iſraelite.

58. Whilſt the Camp of the Iſraelites was ſettled in the Order before-mention'd, GOD (b) gave direct Orders to the Iſraelites to ſeparate unto him the Tribe of Levi inſtead of the firſt-born, who before executed the Office of Prieſts in their reſpective Families; and alſo (c) to put out of the Camp all unclean Perſons, which was done accordingly, and he alſo gave them (d) ſeveral other Laws, which were to be obſerv'd among them.

59. Thus on the firſt Day of the ſecond Month, in the ſecond Year, which was the Day of the Jewiſh Sabbath, GOD ſpeaks to Moſes from the Tabernacle, and (e) commands him to number the People, and ſet up their Standards on the four Sides of the Camp, and particularly mentions the Names of the Princes of each Tribe, who was to be their Standard-Bearer, and the principal Perſons to give Directions in all Caſes of this Nature. The Day (f) after the People are number'd, theſe Standard-Bearers are ſettled, and they take care to ſettle theſe Encampments according to their Directions. And thus the Jewiſh Church becomes moſt glorious on the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath; which being done, Moſes (g) ſeems to dedicate the whole Camp to GOD by ſome particular Ceremonies, which were without Doubt according as he had been commanded, tho' the Command is not mention'd, becauſe it was never afterward to be in Uſe; and theſe Princes conſult what they ſhould offer unto GOD for this Honour done them, that ſo their Offerings might be alike, which they did one by one every Day, the Sabbaths excepted; ſo that all their Offerings were completed on the ſixteenth Day of the ſame Month, being the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath.

60. In the mean Time GOD gives (h) ſome other Commands to Moſes relating to the Office of the Prieſts, and gives him (i) particular Directions for the Conſecration of the Levites, which were obſerv'd accordingly; and the Perſons who were unclean at the Time of the Celebration of the laſt Paſſover, are directed to obſerve it on the fourteenth Day of the ſecond Month, according to the Directions which had before been given them. The Tranſlation of this Feaſt a Month beyond its proper Time, occaſion'd that it could not then be a Commemoration of their Deliverance out of Egypt, becauſe in ſuch a Caſe it would have been obſerv'd on that very Night, or not at all; and therefore it muſt refer to ſomething elſe, and chiefly to ſomething elſe to come, which was the Death of CHRIST.

61. When Moſes was coming into Egypt upon GOD's Meſſage, at the End of the former Year, the (k) Angel of the LORD appear'd in a threatning Poſture, as if he intended to kill him, which could not but affright him, and put him into ſome Diſorder. The Reaſon was, becauſe he had neglected to circumciſe one of his Sons; which being done, and the Danger over, Zipporah his Wife fearing ſome other Misfortune, into which ſhe and her Children might fall by the Way, or in Egypt, deſir'd Moſes to ſend her home again, until he had finiſh'd the Work that he went about, to which he conſented. But now Jethro his Father-in-Law (l) hearing of all the glorious things, which GOD had done for the Iſraelites by the Hand of Moſes, brings his Wife and his two Sons with him unto Moſes at Sinai, where they receiv'd each other with a mutual Affection, Moſes telling Jethro the great Deliverances, which they had met with, and Jethro rejoicing when he heard the News, and (m) profeſſing his Belief in the GOD of the Iſraelites. He was certainly a good Man, and his Piety might be the chief Inducement to cauſe Moſes to be ſo nearly related to him. He was deſcended from Cuſh, the Family of the Son of Ham, and therefore is call'd (n) a Cuſhite, which we tranſlate an Ethiopian. Before the Beginning of the Aſſyrian Monarchy by Nimrod the Son of Cuſh, he remov'd with a great Part of his Family toward Babylon, and ſettl'd in the South Part call'd Cuſcha; and after that remov'd into the Parts of Perſia call'd Cuſeſtan, or the Province of Cuſh. And thoſe who were left behind in their old Country being much weaken'd thereby, were expos'd to the Invaſions of the (o) Iſhmaelites, the (p) Avites, the (q) Horites, the (r) Caphtorims, or neighbouring Parts of Egypt, and the (s) Idumæans, which ſo weaken'd them, that in the Time of Jethro there was hardly any thing of them remaining in that Country but the antient Name. He is call'd in the Books of Moſes by three Names. The firſt (t) is Reuel, which (u) the Septuagint frequently tranſlates by Raguel, which was alſo the Name of his (x) Father, and was accordingly the Name of ſome others in thoſe Countries, particularly of (y) Raguel mention'd in the Book of Tobit. The (z) Name ſignifies Fear, Terror or Conſternation, as if ſome heavy Calamity afflicted the Nation at each of their Births, and probably was occaſion'd by ſuch Commotions. The other Name is (a) Jethro, or, The Remainder, as if he was the laſt of all, who tarried in that Country; and when he remov'd from thence to dwell among the Midianites, who were of Poſterity of (b) Abraham by Keturah, he was there call'd (c) Hobab, or, The Beloved, where he was ſo well reſpected, that he was made (d) the Prieſt of Midian, not perhaps of the Midianites, but of his Brethren the Cuſhites, who upon thoſe ſeveral Occaſions before mention'd upon the Diſperſions from the Country of Cuſh, might come and ſettle there. And it is probable, that his Intereſt in that Country might be a peculiar Providence, that none of all the Sons of Keturah, which were ſettl'd in thoſe Parts, gave the Iſraelites the leaſt Diſturbance, whilſt they travell'd in the Wilderneſs. Jethro (e) coming thither, offer'd a Burnt-offering and Sacrifices to the GOD of the Iſraelites, which ſhews, (f) that all thoſe Laws were then fully ſettl'd by GOD himſelf. And the next Day (g) Moſes judg'd the Iſraelites according (h) to thoſe judicial Laws, which had been before eſtabliſh'd after the Delivery of the ten Commandments. Jethro ſeeing Moſes undergo ſo great a Fatigue, adviſ'd him (i) to appoint fit Judges to act under him in all the leſſer Matters, to which he conſented, and which was a great Eaſe to him afterward all the Days of his Life.

62. After this (k) GOD commands Moſes to make two Silver Trumpets, and tells him the Uſe of them in Calling the Princes or the People together on any particular Occaſion. And when Jethro had been with him about three Days, the (l) Cloud aſcends from the Tabernacle, to give Notice of their March from Mount Sinai, and ſo they prepare to travel by Setting the Standards and the Tribes in their Order, and Appointing the Levites to their particular Charges. And Moſes knowing what a ſignal Piece of Service his Father-in-Law had done him in ſo ſhort a Space of Time, and concluding that his Advice might be as proper on other Occaſions, (m) deſires him not to leave him, with a Promiſe to gratify him to the utmoſt of his Power for ſuch an Obligation, which he refus'd, and return'd back again into the Country of Midian. The Reaſon of his Refuſal is ſuppos'd to be, becauſe he had not ſettl'd the Government of theſe People, nor the Office of the Prieſthood during his Abſence; and that he might teach them the Worſhip of the true GOD, and leave in them a true Senſe of Religion, which he effected in ſo great a Meaſure, that Piety was propagated in ſome Families among them to future Generations. For the (n) Rechabites came out of this Country, who (o) deſcended from this Jethro or Hobab, and (p) whoſe Virtue the Prophet Jeremiah praiſes in the latter End of the Jewiſh Church.

63. After a tedious March of three Days in (q) the Wilderneſs of Paran, the Iſraelites (r) came to a certain Place, where ſome of them began to murmur, but not publickly, either becauſe of the Length of the Journey, or for Want of ſuch Proviſions as they had a Mind to. But GOD, who knows our private Actions, deſtroy'd many of them by a Fire, which was quench'd at the Interceſſion of Moſes. For which Reaſon the Place, which probably had no diſtinct Name before, was now call'd Taberah, or a Burning. However, (s) the whole Multitude was ſo far from being reform'd by this, that they come tumultuouſly unto Moſes, and murmur for Want of Fleſh, and at the Prayer of Moſes GOD promiſeth to give them ſo much as ſhould ſerve for a whole Month. But (t) while the fleſh was yet between their mouths, and before it was chewed, the wrath of the LORD was kindled againſt the people, and he ſmote the people with a very great plague. And therefore the name of the place was called Kibroth-hattaavah, or the Graves of Luſt, becauſe there they buried the people that luſted. When Moſes relates the Story firſt in (u) the Book of Numbers, he mentions both the Names, but doth not tell us, whether or no they were two different Places. When he (x) repeats the ſame in Deuteronomy, he ſeems to mention them as two different Places. And when he (y) ſpeaks of their ſeveral Encampments, he leaves out one of the Names, as if they were both the ſame. But the Truth ſeems to be this: They were two different Places, but ſo near to one another, that when they had remov'd from one Place to the other, ſome of the Tents ſtood on the ſame Place where the others had ſtood before; and therefore it was rather a Change in the Situation of their Camp than a different Encampment.

64. The two (z) moſt learned Men of their Age have differed in their Opinions, what Food this was, which was given to the Iſraelites, one of them affirming it to be Quails and the other Locuſts. It is poſſible, that the original Word might ſignify both; and therefore at this Time they might be fed with both. They (a) complain'd for Want of Variety, and therefore GOD might give them Variety. And (b) the Pſalmiſt ſeems to refer to both, when he ſaith of GOD, that he rained fleſh upon them as thick as duſt, and feathered fouls like as the ſand of the ſea. And he let it fall into the midſt of their camp, even round about their habitation.

65. The People being ſix hundred thouſand Men, it was impoſſible for Moſes ſo to ſpeak, that he could be heard of them all, and therefore (c) he complain'd to GOD, that the Burden was too heavy for him, and deſir'd to be eas'd of it either in Life or by Death. GOD commands him to bring to him ſeventy of the Elders, and promiſes to (d) endow them with extraordinary Gifts, that they ſhould ſpeak to the People ſuch excellent Truths as were proper for them to hear, and might perſuade them to their Duty on all Occaſions, with ſuch forcible Arguments, and in ſo preſſing a Manner, that all might be ſenſible, that it was GOD who qualify'd them for this Work, and theſe Gifts were conferr'd not only on all the Number which were preſent, but even upon two that remain'd in the Camp,

66. After a ſmall Stay at Kibroth-hattaavah the Iſraelites decamp'd from thence, and came to Hazeroth their thirteenth Station. Zipporah the Wife of Moſes had not been with him above a Fortnight or three Weeks, but (e) Aaron and Miriam revile her and Moſes for her Sake. It is probable, that they had never ſeen her before; and when they ſaw her they deſpis'd her, being of a black or ſwarthy Complexion like the reſt of the Family of Ham, from whom ſhe was deſcended by his Son Cuſh. But there were other Reaſons for Reflection: Shem (from whom they were deſcended by Abraham) had (f) the Right of Primogeniture conferr'd upon him as a Reward of his Piety to his Father Noah, and Ham was not only the youngeſt Son, but accurſed of GOD for his Impiety at the ſame Time. His Race fell ſoon into Idolatry, for which Reaſon the Canaanites were devoted to utter Deſtruction, the Egyptians were plagu'd in a terrible Manner, the Cuſhites had been weaken'd by frequent Invaſions, and Jethro who tarry'd longer than the reſt, was forc'd at laſt to fly his Country. The Reflection againſt Moſes was, that he was too much rul'd by this foreign Family. He had made Judges by the Advice of Jethro, and ſince that had appointed ſeventy Elders to be Prophets without conſulting them; and therefore they look'd upon themſelves as ſlighted upon the Account of theſe new Relations, and reſented it accordingly. But GOD vindicates his Servant Moſes by a Voice from the Tabernacle; and as Miriam was the chief Aggreſſor, and ſtirr'd up Aaron to join with her (for which Reaſon ſhe is (g) mention'd as the firſt) ſo ſhe was ſmitten with Leproſy, the Sight whereof brought Aaron to a deeper Senſe of his Sin, ſo that he humbly begg'd Pardon for himſelf and for her, and ſo eſcap'd.

67. After Miriam had (h) been ſhut out of the Camp ſeven Days (for (i) ſo long was any Perſon reckon'd as unclean by this Diſtemper) they (k) march'd again and came to Rithmah, a Place ſo call'd from the great Number of Juniper Trees, which were in it. This was their fourteenth Station, and it lay in the Wilderneſs of (l) Paran in the direct Road to the Land of Canaan, and ſo near it, that another March might have brought them into the ſouthern Part of the Country. Here Moſes (m) by the Commandment of GOD chooſes out twelve Men, one out of every Tribe, and commanded them to ſearch out the Land, and bring him a particular Account. The Name of him, who was of the Tribe of Ephraim, was (n) Hoſhea, whom Moſes for a particular Reaſon (n) call'd Jehoſhua, and was he, who afterward led the Iſraelites into Canaan, and is not only by the Septuagint, but alſo (o) in the Apocrypha call'd Jeſus the Son of Nave, and is once in the New Teſtament call'd (p) Jeſus by St. Paul himſelf. The Name Hoſhea in Hebrew ſignifies a Saviour, and the Word Jehoſhua, Joſhua, or JESUS, ſignifies, The LORD will ſave. The Name was thus alter'd, to ſhew the Iſraelites that Joſhua was only the Inſtrument, but the Praiſe and Glory of all muſt be given to GOD alone. He was a Type of CHRIST; and as he led the Iſraelites into the Land of Canaan; ſo CHRIST brings us to the Kingdom of Heaven, that (q) Reſt, which remaineth for the people of GOD. For this Reaſon our bleſſed LORD was call'd by this Name, and the Angel gives this Account hereof to Joſeph, telling him, that the Virgin Mary (r) ſhould bring forth a ſon, and they ſhould call his name JESUS, becauſe he, the LORD himſelf, ſhould not be a temporal Saviour only, as Joſhua was, but he ſhould ſave his people from their ſins.

68. Theſe Spies are ſuppos'd to agree together to ſeparate themſelves, or only to go two and two for fear of being diſcover'd, and to return at the End of forty Days, which they did accordingly. At their Return they brought of the Fruit of the Land, particularly ſome of the Pomegranates and Figs; and when they came to a Brook in the ſouthern Part, they cut down a large Bough from a Grape-Tree, which they brought upon a Stick between two; and for this Reaſon the Brook was call'd, The Brook of Eſhcol, which Word ſignifies, A Cluſter of Grapes. This needs not to look like a Romance, ſince (s) Strabo ſaith, that the Vines in Margiana and other Places were ſo big, that two Men could ſcarce compaſs them in their Arms, and that they produc'd a Bunch of Grapes of two Cubits, or three Foot and an half in Length, which could not well be carry'd but between two upon a Stick. They return'd back (as near as can be computed) on the ſixteenth Day of September, according to our Style, at which Time the Sun was in nine Degrees of Virgo, as it is with us about the twenty ſecond Day of Auguſt. And tho' this is earlier than the Time, when Grapes are ripe among us; yet in the Parts more near the Sun, they ripen'd ſooner, and ſo might be fully ripe about the ſame Time. The Canaanites, who return'd from the Egyptian Wars, and had there learn'd the Art of Fortification, built ſuch large Walls about Towns, as were thought to be impregnable. Some of the Men were of a gigantick Stature, and particularly the Anakims, of whom it was a (u) Proverb, Who can ſtand before the Children of Anak? And their Names at that Time ſhew'd their Size. Anak ſignify'd (x) a Chain or a Collar, ſuch as the commanding Officers wore in thoſe Days, and therefore ſhew'd a Man well vers'd in Military Affairs. The (y) Names of his Sons were remarkable. Ahiman ſignifies, Who is my Brother? as if there were none to be compared to him. Sheſhai coming from a Word which ſignifies ſix, imports him to be ſix Cubits high, which was near the Height of Goliah; and Talmai ſignifies Furrows, as if his Height was equal to the Breadth of a Furrow, which in Countries where they mow their Corn and do not reap it, muſt be very conſiderable. The Spies returning magnify all theſe Reports, and put the People in a Fright, only Caleb and Joſhua endeavour to appeaſe them, and the People murmur at the News, and for this Reaſon GOD deſtroys all the Spies except thoſe two, who were reſerv'd to enter into the Land of Canaan; he tells them that they ſhould wander forty Years in the Wilderneſs, until they, who were above twenty Years old, ſhould be all deſtroy'd, and their Children ſhould be brought in to poſſeſs it, which forty Years are not to be reckon'd from this Time, but from the Time of their Coming out of Egypt. Upon this Occaſion Moſes pens (z) the ninetieth Pſalm, in which he ſadly complains, how (a) their Days were conſum'd by GOD's Wrath, and their Years came very ſoon to an End in Compariſon of the former Generations. After this the Murmurers, inſtead of humbling themſelves before GOD, reſolve now to ſeize upon the Land, or periſh in the Attempt; and tho' (b) Moſes diſſuades them from it, they reſolve to go on, and had ſo great an Overthrow, that the Name of the Place was call'd Hormah, or Deſtruction, from this Accident. After this GOD gives the Iſraelites (c) ſome other ceremonial Laws, and (d) puniſheth with Death the Man who preſumptuouſly breaks the Sabbath.

69. Upon this (e) GOD commands the Iſraelites to wear Fringes at the Bottom of (e) the four Skirts of their Garments, and to put over it a Ribband of blue, being of a diſtinct Colour from all the reſt, which bound the Fringe faſt at the Top, and made it more conſpicuous. This was a particular Faſhion, and ſhew'd them to be a particular People.

And as the Rainbow was appointed by GOD to ſhew, that there ſhould be no other general Flood; tho' in it ſelf it could ſignify nothing; ſo this was appointed to ſhew them, how they were bound to keep all GOD's Commands. A ſmall Fringe or Lace would have been ſufficient for this Purpoſe; but as the Superſtition of the Jews increas'd, ſo they who pretended to a greater Holineſs than others, (e) enlarged the borders of their garments, that this Fringe and Lace might be the longer, and enlarg'd their Fringes, ſo that they ſwept the Ground, which made them more remarkable; and at laſt their Superſtition grew ſo much, as to contrive, that theſe Fringes might be ſo wrought, as to ſignify the ſix hundred and thirteen Precepts contain'd in the Law of Moſes, which they often ſpeak of, and ſo put them in Mind of (f) all the commandments of the LORD, and (g) our SAVIOUR himſelf is ſuppos'd to wear them in Compliance with the Jewiſh Cuſtom at that Time. And it is probable, that at the ſame Time GOD might give them a Law, like to that (h) which Moſes repeated in Deuteronomy, Theſe words, which I command thee this day, ſhall be in thy heart, and thou ſhalt bind them for a ſign upon thy hand, and they ſhall be as frontlets between thy eyes, and thou ſhalt write them upon the poſts of thy houſe, and upon thy gates; which being ſpoken in a figurative Senſe, they took in a literal. Accordingly they had Schedules or Scrolls of Parchment, which were of two ſorts; one they call'd Phylacteries for the Forehead, or Frontlets, reaching from one Ear to the other, and tied behind with a Thong; the other they call'd Phylacteries for the Hand, faſten'd upon the left Arm above the Elbow on the Inſide, that it might be nearer the Heart. Both theſe ſorts were worn, not by the Phariſees only, but by the Sadduces alſo, but (i) with this Difference, that the Phariſees for greater Oſtentation wore their Hand Phylacteries above their Elbows, and the Sadduces in the Palms of their Hands. And as the Command might be taken in a literal Senſe; ſo our SAVIOUR did not blame the Wearing of them, but the Making them broad, whereby they would appear more holy than others. And as they could not write all the Books of Moſes in ſuch Scrolls as theſe; ſo they only wrote theſe four Particulars,

Exod. 13. 2 to 11.
Exod. 13. 11 to 17.
Deut. 6. 4 to 10.
Deut. 11. 13 to 22.

Theſe they put into one Skin, in which there were made four diſtinct Houſes or Receptacles for each of theſe Texts. And as there is alſo a (k) Command, That they ſhould write ſome of the Law upon the poſts of their houſes, and upon their gates; ſo they wrote in Parchment theſe two Particulars,

Deut. 6. 4 to 10.
Deut. 11. 13 to 22.

Which they roll'd up, and writing upon it the Name of שדי Shaddai, or, The Almighty, they put it into a Piece of Cane or other hollow Wood, and faſten'd it to the Doors of their Houſes, and of each particular Room in them; and as often as they went in or out, they (l) made it a Part of their Devotion to touch this Parchment and kiſs it.

70. During the Stay of the Iſraelites at (m) Kadeſh-barnea, there aroſe another Inſurrection againſt Moſes and Aaron. Korah, their Couſin-german, could not bear his being excluded the Office of the High Prieſt, and concluded, that there ought to be more than one, and Dathan and Abiram the Sons of Reuben concluded, that their Tribe being the firſt born ought to have had the civil Power, without conſidering, that they were excluded by (n) their Forefather Jacob, for (o) a heinous Crime, which Reuben had been guilty of. Theſe drew two hundred and fifty Men into the ſame Conſpiracy, who being Men of principal Note among them, brought Incenſe and Cenſers to offer for themſelves, and for the reſt of the People. But GOD to vindicate the Authority of Moſes and Aaron, caus'd the Earth to open and ſwallow up Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, and burnt up the reſt with Fire from his Preſence. And to prevent the like for the future, GOD commanded, that broad Plates ſhould be made of the Cenſers, which they offer'd for a Covering for the Altar, that all who ſaw them might know the Reaſon of it, and learn to beware by ſuch an Example. And the next Day, when the Congregation murmur'd againſt Moſes and Aaron, a Plague deſtroy'd 14700 of them, which would have gone farther, had it not been prevented by the Interceſſion of Moſes, and the Incenſe which Aaron offer'd. And to prevent any Complaint concerning the Prieſthood of Aaron, GOD (p) order'd all the Tribes to bring every Man a Rod, probably all cut off from the ſame Tree, and lay them up before the Ark, and to write the Names of the Tribes upon them, only Aaron's Name inſtead of Levi. The next Day they view'd theſe Rods, and all the reſt remain'd as dry as before, but Aaron's Rod had in ſome Places the Appearance of Buds, in others Buds come out, in others Bloſſoms, and in others Almonds, to ſhew by this Miracle, that the Prieſtood ſhould not be confin'd alone to Aaron, but ſhould deſcend to his Poſterity. This effectually convinc'd them for the preſent, and the Rod was order'd to be laid upon the Side of the Ark, and is ſuppos'd ſtill to have continu'd in the ſame State to prevent the like Murmuring for the future. How long it continu'd there is uncertain, it (q) ſeems to have continu'd in the firſt Temple, but was not in the ſecond, and it put a final End to all Diſputes about the Prieſthood, both in the Tribe of Levi and in the Family of Aaron. And upon this GOD gives (r) other Commands concerning the Charge of the Levites, their Maintenance and their Office.

71. After the Iſraelites (s) had tarry'd as long at Kadeſh barnea, as they tarry'd at Horeb or Sinai, which (t) was three hundred ſeventy one Days, they decamp'd from thence on the thirtieth Day of July, or the twenty ninth Day of their Month Tammuz, and (u) march'd back again to the Red-Sea. And from the Time that the Curſe of Wandering was (x) pronounc'd againſt them, to the Time when they came to the Wilderneſs of Zin was eight and thirty Years, during which Space Moſes (y) reckons eighteen Marches, in which they were led back again to Eziongeber, or from the North to the South, and ſo to the Red Sea, in which Journeys they (z) compaſs'd the Land of Edom many Years, and nothing remarkable happens; and ſo at laſt (a) they come to Kadeſh, not Kadeſh-barnea, which was their fifteenth Station, and (b) lay upon the Confines of the Land of Canaan, but (c) another Kadeſh near the Land of Edom, and not far from the Red Sea. Here they arrive on the firſt Day of their new Year, upon the thirteenth Day of April, and (d) nine Days after Miriam dies, her Mutiny againſt Moſes (e) being probably the Sin, which depriv'd her of Entring into the Land of Canaan.

72. And now GOD being willing to try this new Generation, whether they were any better than their Fathers, caus'd the Waters to fail, which had accompany'd them from the Time, when (f) they were at Rephidim; ſo that they probably emptied themſelves into the Red-Sea, and went no farther. Beſides, they were now coming into Countries, which abounded with Water; ſo that after this firſt Trial of their Faith and Patience, there was no need of a conſtant Miracle to procure it for them. And this we may learn from the Names of ſeveral Places, where they afterward encamp'd. Not long after this they came to (g) a land of rivers of water, then (h) to Oboth, which ſignifies Bottles, where we may ſuppoſe that they fill'd their empty Bottles with Water, and in Commemoration hereof gave this Name to the Place. Then (i) they came to Ije abarim, The Heaps of Fords, or as the Chaldee expounds it, The Fords of them that paſs over; then to (k) the Brook Zered, then to (l) the River Arnon, and then (m) to Beer or a Well, which they digg'd for their Conveniency. But the People murmur, as their Fathers had done; upon which GOD commands Moſes to take his Rod, and go to a certain Rock, and ſpeak to it in the Preſence of the People, and it ſhould yield Water for their Uſe. Moſes, inſtead of ſpeaking to the Rock, ſpeaks to the People, and ſmites the Rock; for which he and Aaron his Brother were refus'd Entrance into the Land of Canaan, and the Place was call'd, The Waters of Meribah, or the Waters of Strife; and to diſtinguiſh it from (n) another Place of the ſame Name the Word Kadeſh, or holy, is added to it, becauſe (o) the children of Iſrael ſtrove with the LORD, and he was ſanctified among them. His Goodneſs to them was more evidently known, by Working ſuch a Miracle when they had no Title to it, as having not acted according to his Directions.

73. Here (p) Moſes ſends Meſſengers to the King of Edom, who had been ſet up at their Coming out of Egypt, for Leave to paſs thro' his Borders into Canaan, which was refus'd; and GOD gave them no Leave to fight with them, becauſe (q) their Anceſtors were ſo nearly related, and therefore at the Approach of the Army they turn'd back; which made Sihon the King of the Amorites take afterward the ſame Method in Hope of the ſame Succeſs, and was the Cauſe of the total Loſs of his Country, he being (r) of the Race of the Canaanites, whoſe Land GOD had given to the Iſraelites for a Poſſeſſion. After this they (s) come to Mount Hor, where Aaron dies, and Eleazer his Son ſucceeds him in the High Prieſt's Office. Here they mourn for Aaron thirty Days, during which Time the Iſraelites continue in their former Encampment. King Arad, (t) who dwelt in the South of the Land of Ca- naan, obſerving that they ſtay'd there ſo long after ſeveral other ſhort Encampments, and not knowing the Reaſon of it, but concluding they were providing to attack his Country, becauſe they were near the Place, where the twelve Spies went into the Land of Canaan eight and thirty Years before, and therefore might be inform'd of all the Roads and Paſſages leading that Way into the Country, he brings together his Army, and by Surprize falls on the Out-Skirts of the Camp, and takes ſome of them Priſoners. Upon this the Iſraelites make a Vow, that if GOD would give them Succeſs, they would utterly deſtroy their Cities; which they did accordingly, and from thence the Name of thoſe Places was call'd Hormah, or Deſtruction.

74. Upon this the People expected to have immediately march'd to take Poſſeſſion of the Land; but the Time not being yet come, they were oblig'd to march back again toward the Red Sea, and to compaſs once more the Land of Edom. This Diſappointment made them the more uneaſy, inſomuch that they murmur'd againſt the Providence of GOD, and the Adminiſtration of Moſes, as they had done many Years before. To prevent this from being univerſal, GOD ſent a very venomous Kind of Serpents among them, which bit or ſtung the People, ſo that many of them died. Upon this the People repent, and come to Moſes confeſſing their Faults, and deſiring him to pray to GOD in their Behalf, which he did; and upon this GOD gives him this Direction, (u) Make thee a brazen ſerpent, and ſet it upon a pole, or (as it is alſo in Hebrew) for a Banner, or an Enſign; and it ſhall come to paſs, that every one that is bitten, when he looketh upon it, ſhall live; which he did, and the Succeſs anſwer'd their Expectation. The Eaſtern (z) Writers look upon it as faſten'd to an Enſign. Hence it is, that we ſpeak ſometimes of the Enſign of the Croſs. And the (y) Prophet Iſaiah uſeth the ſame Word, when he ſaith, There ſhall be a root of Jeſſe, which ſhall ſtand for an enſign of the people; to it ſhall the Gentiles ſeek, and his reſt ſhall be glorious. And he ſhall ſet up an enſign for the nations, and ſhall aſſemble the outcaſts of Iſrael. The Author of the (z) Book of Wiſdom calls it a ſign of ſalvation, and ſpeaks the Senſe of the Jews, when he ſaith, He that turned himſelf toward it, was not ſaved by the thing which he ſaw, but by GOD, who was the Saviour of all. And we know, who hath given us the true Meaning of it in theſe Words, (a) And as Moſes lifted up the ſerpent in the wilderneſs, even ſo muſt the ſon of man be lifted up. For GOD ſo loved the world, that he gave his only begotten ſon, that whoſoever believeth in him ſhould not periſh, but have everlaſting life. The Serpents are therefore the Devil and his Angels, their Venom is Sin, with which they ſlay the Souls of Men, and CHRIST (b) was made in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and (c) was made ſin for us, who knew no ſin in himſelf, that we might be made the righteouſneſs of GOD in him, and by Looking unto him with a true Faith, as crucified for us, might be healed of all the Wounds, which our Sins have made. It is (d) recorded, that when Conſtantine the Great march'd againſt Maxentius, and was taken up with devout Ejaculations tho' then an Heathen, there appear'd to him a Pillar of Light in the Faſhion of a Croſs with this Inſcription, By this overcome. And the Night following our SAVIOUR appear'd to him in a Dream, with a Croſs in his Hand, commanding him to make a royal Standard, like that which he had ſeen in the Heavens, and cauſe it to be born before him in the Wars, as a ſure Sign of Victory and Safety; which when he did, his Enemy was kill'd, and his Army routed, tho' conſiſting of double the Number; and this was the Cauſe of his Converſion to Chriſtianity, and Reducing the Roman Empire to the ſame Obedience. And this (e) is the Victory that overcometh the world, the Fleſh, and the Devil, even our faith. For who is he that overcometh, but he that believeth that JESUS CHRIST is the ſon of GOD, and our only SAVIOUR?

75. And now the Iſraelites, after ſeveral ſhort Encampments, come (f) to Bamoth in the Valley that is in the Country of Moab, near to the Mountain of Piſgah, which looks toward Jeſhimon, and which is call'd the Mountains of Abarim before Nebo, and here they encamp. And after they had ſtay'd here a little Time to reſt themſelves, they (g) ſend Meſſengers to Sihon King of the Amorites, in the ſame Manner as they had ſent before to the King of Edom, for Leave to paſs thro' his Land, who refus'd them a Paſſage, and came with his whole Army to fight them, expecting that they would march off from him, as they march'd off from the Edomites. But the forty Years Travel in the Wilderneſs being near expir'd, and the Time being come in which they were to begin to inherit the Land, which GOD had promis'd them, of which this was a Part, they were encourag'd to venture a pitch'd Battle, and ſo they gave him a total Overthrow, took all his Cities, and poſſeſs'd his Land, and made (h) a Song in Commemoration hereof to encourage them on all future Occaſions of the like Nature. After this they march'd toward Baſhan, where (i) Og the King thereof, being (k) of a Gigantick Stature, came out againſt them with his whole Army, being alſo Men of the ſame Size; the Sight of whom ſo terrified the Iſraelites, that GOD himſelf encourag'd Moſes not to fear them, and promis'd him Succeſs, and that they ſhould alſo poſſeſs their Land, as they did the other, and then they ſucceeded accordingly. So that theſe two Victories were Earneſts of future Favours, and a full Proof, that when GOD was with them, neither Giants nor Walls could ſtand before them; ſo that they might well call to Mind, what Joſhua and Caleb had (l) ſaid before to quiet their Murmurings, that they were able to overcome them, and if the LORD delighted in them, he would bring them into that land, and give it them. That there was no Occaſion to fear them, ſince their defence was departed from them, and GOD was with the Iſraelites.

76. After this the Iſraelites march, until they come to the Eaſt Side of Jordan in the Plains of Moab, over-againſt Jericho, on the other Side of the River, where they extended their Camp from (m) Beth-jeſhimoth to Abel-ſhittim, and here they ſtay'd till they paſſed over Jordan under the Conduct of Joſhua. Upon this (n) Balak the King of the Moabites, hearing the Succeſs, which the Iſraelites had, and that they had deſtroy'd two Countries, was afraid that his Turn would be the next; and to prevent it, he ſends for Balaam, a notorious Enchanter, and a Dealer with familiar Spirits of the worſt ſort, call'd (o) Serpents or Devils, that by his Aſſiſtance the Iſraelites might be deſtroy'd, and all the Powers of Hell might be engag'd to root them out. But GOD, who defeated the Magicians in Egypt, ſhew'd himſelf to be the ſame GOD ſtill. The Moabites come, and bring great Preſents with them. Balaam being of a covetous Temper, and (p) loving the wages of unrighteouſneſs, intended to go with them. But GOD appears to him, and forbids him; upon which he denies them, and (q) owns himſelf to be overrul'd by a ſuperior Force. Upon this (r) Balak ſends more and more honourable Ambaſſadors with larger Preſents, and Offers of the utmoſt Honours, which could be conferr'd upon him. Balaam having Time to harden his Heart, reſolves to (s) take theſe Rewards, be the Conſequence what it will, which is charg'd upon him as his Error. GOD appears to him again, and tells him in an angry Manner, that ſince he hath ſuch a Mind to go, he may follow his own Inclinations. Upon this he reſolves to go the next Morning, carrying with him an evil Mind, deſirous to get the Money and the Honour which was offer'd him, hoping as he had now gain'd one Point, he might gain the other, and ſo curſe the Iſraelites according to his Inclinations. This made that GOD angry, who knows the Heart; and therefore he ſends his Angel with a drawn Sword, to make him ſenſible of his Error. The Aſs ſaw the Angel, and three Times ſaves his Maſter's Life by Avoiding the Danger. Balaam knowing nothing of this ſmites the Aſs as often in great Fury. GOD enables the Aſs to ſpeak and argue the Caſe with him, who convinces him of his hard Uſage. And thus Balaam (t) was rebuk'd for his iniquity, and the dumb aſs ſpeaking with mans voice forbad the madneſs of the prophet. After this Balaam was enabled to ſee both the Angel and his own Folly, ſo that he offer'd to go home again, but was permitted to proceed upon Condition that he ſhould ſpeak only thoſe Words, which GOD ſhould put into his Mouth. And thus inſtead of (u) Curſing them he bleſſed them three Times, or as (x) Moſes ſaith in another Place, When Balaam was hir'd againſt the Iſraelites to curſe them, the LORD their GOD would not hearken unto him, but turn'd the Curſe into a Bleſſing to them, becauſe the LORD their GOD lov'd them. And for this Reaſon (y) the Iſraelites had a Command, that an Ammonite or a Moabite ſhould not enter into the congregation of the LORD until the tenth generation after they were made Proſelytes, and they ſhould not enter into any Leagues with them for mutual Aſſiſtance.

77. After this Balaam, tho' an Heathen, propheſies of CHRIST JESUS as (z) a Star, which ſhould ariſe out of Jacob, or (a) the ſon of man, which came down from heaven, whoſe Kingdom ſhould be from everlaſting to everlaſting, and is call'd (b) the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning ſtar, who ſhould (c) rule over all the children of Seth, from whom (d) Noah deſcended, and therefore there ſhould be no longer a Diſtinction between the Jews and other Nations, but all Mankind ſhould be united under his Government. And therefore (e) out of Jacob he ſhould come, who ſhould have dominion. And this is (f) rightly explain'd by the Pſalmiſt, who ſaith, He ſhall have dominion from ſea to ſea, and from the rivers unto the end of the earth. After this he propheſies of the neighbouring Countries, how (g) the Aſſyrian Monarchy ſhould conquer them again, and ſo recover its Strength, and (h) after that the Grecian Army under Alexander the Great ſhould overturn that Empire, and ſet up another. And this ſhews the Aſſyrian Monarchy to be then in being, and well known both to Moſes and Balaam, tho' not in its greateſt Splendor.

78. And now Balaam not being able to do what Miſchief he would, but being willing to do what Miſchief he could, (i) adviſes Balak to ſend the Moabitiſh and Midianitiſh Women to converſe freely with the Iſraelites, and ſo intice them to Whoredom firſt, and Idolatry afterward. This he concluded would make GOD angry at them, and deſtroy them, and the Event did in a great Meaſure anſwer his Expectation. Upon this the Anger of GOD was kindled againſt them, and he commanded Moſes to give Directions to deſtroy all thoſe who were guilty. The Judges being negligent, GOD ſent a Peſtilence among the People. How many died of it is differently reported. Moſes ſaith, (k) that the Number was four and twenty thouſand; and St. Paul ſaith, (l) that it was three and twenty thouſand. To reconcile this ſome ſay, that three and twenty thouſand died of the Plague, and one thouſand by the Hand of Juſtice. But this doth not take away the Difficulty, becauſe Moſes ſaith, that the full Number died of the Plague. But the Words of St. Paul will better reconcile it, who ſaith, That there fell in one day three and twenty thouſand: So that the Peſtilence laſted two Days. The Number which St. Paul mentions died on the firſt Day, and a thouſand on the ſecond, occaſion'd by the Remiſſneſs of the Judges to execute Juſtice. This was reſented by Phinehas the Son of Eleazar and Grandſon of Aaron, who obſerving that they were willing to favour a Prince among them, and a Daughter of the chief Perſon among the Midianites, who were brought before them, he took a Javelin and kill'd them both; and for this his Zeal (warranted only by (m) an expreſs Command from GOD) the Plague was ſtay'd, and the High Prieſthood confirm'd upon him and his Poſterity.

79. And now all things are preparing for the Entrance of the Iſraelites into the Land of Canaan. Their (n) Numbers are taken in order to divide the Land more equally among them; and to take away all Suſpicion of Partiality, every Tribe was (o) to caſt Lots for what ſhould be given to them. The (p) Daughters of Zelophehad petition for an Inheritance among their Brethren, which was granted by GOD himſelf, and Laws are made for this Purpoſe to be obſerv'd for the future. Moſes being (q) told of his approaching Death, deſires GOD to nominate a Succeſſor, and Joſhua is appointed accordingly. And (r) farther Laws are made concerning Offerings, the Obſerving of their ſolemn Feaſts, and the Obligation of Vows. Moſes is commanded to (s) avenge himſelf and People upon the Midianites for the Whoredom and Idolatry into which they had ſeduc'd the Iſraelites, which was done accordingly without the Loſs of a Man; and Balaam the Ringleader of all this Miſchief was ſlain among the reſt, which he ſeems to have been apprehenſive of, when (t) he pray'd ſaying, Let me die a natural Death like the death of the righteous, or innocent Perſon; and let my latter end be like his.

80. After this the (u) Tribes of Reuben and Gad, and half the Tribe of Manaſſeh, deſire that their Inheritance may be allotted to them on the ſame Side of Jordan, where they were now encamp'd, out of the Countries which they had lately conquer'd. Moſes miſtakes their Intention at firſt, and reproves them for it. However they offer to go with the reſt of their Brethren over Jordan, undertake the ſame Hazards, and endure the ſame Difficulties, and not return till the reſt were ſettl'd, leaving only their Wives and Children behind them. Moſes agrees with them on theſe Conditions. Upon this they go on to (x) conquer other Places and diſpoſſeſs the Inhabitants, and inhabiting in them call many of them by their own Names; as (y) Havoth Jair, or, The Habitations of Jair; and where they met with any Towns, which bore the Names of the Pagan Idols, as (z) Nebo and Baal-meon, or the Habitation of Baal, they chang'd their Names to keep themſelves free from ſuch idolatrous Worſhip, according to the Command which GOD had given, (a) Thou ſhalt make no mention of the name of other Gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth. This was ſo commendable an Act in them, that GOD immediately upon it gives (b) Directions to the other Tribes, that when they came into Canaan, they ſhould in the ſame Manner diſpoſſeſs all the Inhabitants, deſtroy all their Pictures and molten Images, and quite pluck down all their high Places; threatning that if they did it not, they ſhould be puniſh'd for their Diſobedience, as it frequently happen'd in the Courſe of their Hiſtory.

81. Upon

81. Upon this (c) GOD deſcribes the Borders of the Land of Canaan, which he had promis'd to the other Tribes, and (d) tells the Names of thoſe who ſhould divide it. He (e) allots eight and forty Cities to the Levites, and ſix of theſe to be Cities of Refuge, where he, who had kill'd any Man, might be protected until the Death of the High Prieſt, if the Murder was not wilful; and after the Death of the High Prieſt, he was free from the Imputation of Guilt, or Danger of Puniſhment; ſo that he was at Liberty to return again to his own Poſſeſſion. Thus the Manſlayer's Liberty depended upon the Death of the High Prieſt under the Law, to repreſent to us, that we have no Deliverance under the Goſpel but by our great High Prieſt the SON of GOD, who was appointed to die, that he might thereby make Satisfaction for our Sins, and ſet us at Liberty from the Guilt of all.

82. After this the half Tribe of Manaſſeh being related to the Daughters of Zelophehad, repreſent the Danger of their Marrying into another Tribe, in which Caſe the Inheritance given to them might be loſt, which Inconvenience was remedy'd by making a Law, that all Heireſſes ſhould marry only thoſe of their own Tribe; and theſe Daughters are the firſt Inſtances of the Obſerving of the ſame. Which Story brings us to the End of the Book of Numbers, and to the Beginning of the ſecond Month, which happen'd before their Entrance into the Land of Canaan.

83. This Month beginning on the ſeventh of February, Moſes on the firſt Day of it begins a long Diſcourſe to the Iſraelites before his final Departure from them, in which he repeats their Hiſtory during their Stay in the Wilderneſs, putting them in Mind of GOD's Goodneſs to them, and their Ingratitude to him, exhorting them to Obedience by many Promiſes and Threatnings, and many other Arguments, and diſſuading them from an Opinion, that they went in to inherit the Land of Canaan by any Righteouſneſs of their own; which may teach us, that our Righteouſneſs is not the Cauſe of our inheriting the Kingdom of Heaven, of which the Land of Canaan was a Type. He diſſuades them from Idolatry, as the Sin which they were continually inclin'd to, which would be the Cauſe of all their Troubles, and all the Judgments that would befal them. He repeats to them the moral Law firſt, and after that a great Part of the ceremonial, and adds many Particulars not mention'd before; from whence the Book, which gives an Account of it, is call'd Deuteronomy, or the ſecond Law. He encourageth the Iſraelites to enter into Canaan, and take Poſſeſſion of the Land, he appoints Joſhua to be his Succeſſor, and gives him a Charge accordingly. He finiſheth the five Books, which go under his Name, and gives them all to the Levites, and orders them to be publickly read every Year at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, that they might the better be known and obſerv'd. And he compoſeth a Song ſetting forth GOD's Mercies and Vengeance, and exhorting them to ſerve him, and him alone. After this, according to the Example of Jacob, he bleſſeth the twelve Tribes, as a Concluſion of the whole, and propheſieth, tho' more obſcurely, of what ſhould happen to them. Thus (f) he ſpeaks of Judah, that it ſhould be a valiant and a ſucceſsful Tribe; of Benjamin, (g) that the divine Majeſty, or his Reſidence the Temple, ſhould be on his Borders, whoſe Lot touch'd Judah's at Jeruſalem, and did not fall off from it in the Revolt of Jeroboam. Of Joſeph he ſaid, that (h) this Tribe ſhould be ſituate in a moſt plentiful Country, and enrich'd by the divine Bleſſing upon it; that the Hills of Mount Ephraim, Samaria and Baſhan, which lay in it, ſhould abound with Olives, Grapes, and ſuch like Fruit, and he ſhould be ſucceſsful over his Enemies, ſeveral of the Judges, who deliver'd Iſrael, deſcending from him. Of Zebulun and Iſſachar he ſaith, that (i) they ſhould call their Neighbours together to the Worſhip of GOD, which was (k) remarkably fulfill'd, when CHRIST began to preach in that Country; and that they ſhould grow rich by Merchandiſe, being ſeated in a maritime Country. He ſaid, that (l) Gad ſhould have a large Inheritance, and (m) be farther enlarg'd, as it afterward happen'd. He ſaith of Dan, that (n) he ſhould leap upon the Prey like a young Lion, as (o) it ſeiz'd upon Laiſh and the adjacent Country. And he ſaith of Aſher, that (p) it ſhould dwell in a Country, where there ſhould be Plenty of Olives, and alſo Mines both of Braſs and Iron. And it is obſervable, that the City of (q) Sarepta, or Zarephath, had its Name from the Trade of Melting ſuch Metals, which was carry'd on in it.

Anno Mundi 2553.

84. And now the Time of Moſes's Death drawing near, he according to (r) the Command of GOD (s) goes up to the Top of Piſgah, which was over againſt Jericho, from whence GOD in a miraculous Manner enabled him to ſee all the Land of Canaan, from the North to the South, and over againſt him as far as the Mediterranean Sea, Part of which was an hundred Miles Diſtance. So that no Eye could poſſibly reach it; and the Arch of the Earth is ſuch, that perhaps the higheſt Mountains in that Country could not be ſeen by Reaſon of the interpoſing Bulk; however without a Miracle it was impoſſible that he could have ſeen the Plains, and the Fruitfulneſs of the Country. Here he died (as is ſuppos'd) on the twenty fourth Day of the eleventh Month, and the Iſraelites mourned for him (t) thirty Days, that is until the firſt Day of the firſt Month in the following Year. For as they then computed thirty Days to each Month, and their common Year being Lunar, conſiſted of 354 Days, ſo their laſt Month could have but four and twenty Days in the whole.

85. The Eaſtern Writers tell us, that Moſes (u) died in the Mountain by a Kiſs from the Mouth of GOD; that is, he did not die of any Diſeaſe, nor worn out with Age, neither had he any Pain, but merely becauſe GOD, the ſupreme Governor of all things, had ſo order'd it. He had a moſt delectable Senſe and Taſte of the divine Love, being neither unwilling to die, nor ſurpriz'd with the Thoughts of it; for he well knew the Time, the Place, and the Manner of it; and with a pleaſant Mind, and a compos'd Spirit, he reſign'd up his Soul to that GOD, who received it from him. After this (x) his Body was remov'd by the Angels from the Mountain into a Valley, and bury'd ſo privately, and in ſuch a Manner there, that the Place could never be found. The Devil us'd his utmoſt Skill, that the Place of his Burial might be known, that it might have adminiſtred an Occaſion to the Jews to commit Idolatry, and ſo either worſhip him as a GOD, becauſe of the Fame of his Miracles, or at leaſt as a Saint, according to the Method of the Church of Rome. For as the Melchizedekians (y) worſhipp'd his Image, what would they have done, if they had found his very Body? and how prone might the Iſraelites have been in the Time of their Diſtreſs, eſpecially at the Captivity of the Land, to run to his Sepulchre, and beg him with Tears to pray for them, whoſe Prayers had been ſo prevalent, whilſt he liv'd among them? So that the Preventing hereof occaſion'd the great Diſpute between the good and bad Angels, of which (z) St. Jude gives us this Account, That Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he diſputed about the body of Moſes, durſt not bring againſt him a railing accuſation, but ſaid, The LORD rebuke thee.

The CONCLUSION.

WHAT hath been ſaid on this Subject may vindicate the Authority of theſe Books of Moſes. He writes with ſuch Simplicity and Integrity, as ſhews the Inditer to be more than human, or that Moſes had in this the Aſſiſtance of the divine Being. He records his own Failings, and the Puniſhments inflicted on him, particularly that he ſhould not go in to poſſeſs the Land of Canaan for that Reaſon; which is contrary to the Method of all Impoſtors. Tho' the Land of Canaan was ſo plentiful a Country, and all their Hopes were of Poſſeſſing it for ever after their Travels in the Wilderneſs; yet he makes not the leaſt Proviſion for his two Sons Gerſhom and Eliezer, who (a) in all Probability enter'd into that Land, and being above forty Years of Age were fit to ſucceed him; he mentions nothing of them in his Diſcourſes to the People, and we hear nothing of them afterward; and Moſes himſelf appoints Joſhua, a Man of another Tribe, to be his Succeſſor. This ſhews, that he was influenc'd not by temporal Views, but by others of an higher Nature; that (b) he had reſpect unto the recompence of reward, and both endured and acted, as ſeeing and being guided by him, who is inviſible. The Ceremonial Law, as it was in that Time, might be look'd upon as inſignificant in it ſelf, and only obligatory as it was commanded of GOD, who might command whatever he pleas'd, and it is our Duty to obey him; but whilſt we Chriſtians look upon it as (c) our ſchoolmaſter to bring us unto CHRIST, we may ſee great Reaſons for every Particular, and the Accompliſhment of it ſhews us the manifold Wiſdom of that GOD, who at firſt injoin'd it. The Propheſies which he mentions are as remarkable, either relating to CHRIST, the Iſraelites, or future Ages. Of CHRIST, GOD ſpeaks to him (d) in this Manner, I will raiſe them up a prophet from among their brethren like unto thee, and will put my words in his mouth, and he ſhall ſpeak unto them all that I command him. And it ſhall come to paſs, that whoſoever will not hearken unto my words, which he ſhall ſpeak in my name, I will require it of him. This was not fulfill'd in the ſucceeding Generations; becauſe we are expreſly told, that (e) there aroſe not a prophet ſince in Iſrael like unto Moſes, whom the LORD knew face to face. In all the ſigns and the wonders, which the LORD ſent him to do in the land of Egypt to Pharaoh, and to all his ſervants, and to all his land, And in all that mighty hand, and in all that great terror, which Moſes ſhewed in the ſight of all Iſrael. And therefore the moſt learned of the Jews did confeſs, that (f) it ſhould not be fulfill'd till the Ceſſation of Prophecy; but after that the MESSIAH ſhould come who ſhould be like him, or rather greater than he. And hence the Apoſtles declar'd (g) to the Jews, how it was fulfill'd. As for (h) his Propheſies concerning the Settlement of the Iſraelites in the Land of Canaan, they could not be known but by a divine Spirit. Moſes had (i) given plain Directions to divide the Land by Lot, which (k) Joſhua did accordingly, ſo that there could not be any Contrivance between them in this Caſe. Lots are merely accidental, and unforeſeen, and therefore (l) as when the lot is caſt into the lap, the whole diſpoſal thereof is of the LORD; ſo nothing of this Nature can be foretold, but by him that diſpoſeth of them. His Propheſies of the Tranſactions of the ten Tribes are remarkable; and to theſe we may add, what (m) he ſpeaks in few Words concerning the future Monarchies, that Ships ſhould come from the Coaſt of Chittim (by which is meant both Greece and Italy, and conſequently both the Grecian and the Roman Empires) and ſhould afflict Aſhur (or the Country of Aſſyria, as Alexander did) and ſhould afflict Eber (the Jews or Hebrews, as the Roman Monarchy did) and he alſo (or the Roman Monarchy) ſhall periſh for ever; ſo that when we view what Daniel hath (n) obſerv'd concerning the Fall of this laſt Empire, when the ſaints ſhall poſſeſs the kingdom, or a Reformation from Po-

CHAP. I.

From the Entrance of the Iſraelites into the Land of Canaan, to the Finiſhing of the Temple.

FROM the Entrance of the Iſraelites into the Land of Canaan, to the Finiſhing and Dedication of Solomon's Temple, were four hundred and forty ſeven Years.

For firſt, The Space of Time from the Departure of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt, to the Laying the Foundation of the Temple at Jeruſalem by Solomon, is ſo exactly mention'd in (a) the Scripture, as to put it out of Diſpute. And it came to paſs in the four hundred and fourſcore Year after the children of Iſrael were come up out of the land of Egypt, in the month Zif, which is the ſecond month, that Solomon began to build the houſe of the LORD.

Now from the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt to their Entrance into Canaan, were forty Years, as hath been already mention'd.

So that from	480 Years
Subſtract	40 Years

And the Remainder is 440, or the Space of Time between the Entrance into Canaan, and the Laying the Foundation of the Temple.

Now Solomon was (b) ſeven Years in Building this Temple.

So that to	440 Years
Add	7 Years

And the Total is 447 Years from the Entrance of the Iſraelites into the Land of Canaan to the Dedication of the Temple, which was begun to be built in (c) the fourth Year of King Solomon's Reign, and dedicated in the eleventh.

And therefore to the Year of the World when the Iſraelites enter'd into Canaan, add

	440 Years

And the Total is 2993, or the Year in which the Temple began to be built,

To which add	7 Years

And the Total is 3000, or the Year of the World, in which the Temple was finiſh'd and dedicated.

2. Concerning this Space of four hundred and eighty Years ſo expreſly mention'd, there are four different Computations. The firſt of theſe is that of the Jews, who allow 450 Years from the Death of Joſhua to the be two and thirty Years of Age, when he miniſtred to Moſes, and when this Battle was fought.

5. However after all, the Account of our learned Prelate meets with ſome Objections. For firſt, he makes the Oppreſſion under (a) Cuſhan Riſhathaim immediately to ſucceed the Death of Joſhua; whereas (b) the Scripture ſaith expreſly, that the People ſerved the LORD all the days of Joſhua, and all the days of the elders, that overlived Joſhua; who had ſeen all the great works of the LORD, that he had done for Iſrael. But when that generation were gathered unto their fathers, and there aroſe another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Iſrael, then they did evil in the ſight of the LORD, and ſerved Baalim, and the groves. And then the anger of the LORD was hot againſt Iſrael, and he ſold them into the hand of Cuſhan Riſhathaim. So that this is ſuppos'd to have happen'd a conſiderable Time after the Death of Joſhua. The other Objection is, That (c) Jephthah treating with the Amorites, before the Battle in which he conquer'd them, pleads his Right to all the Country in Diſpute between them by Preſcription, becauſe the Iſraelites had been in Poſſeſſion of it for three hundred years; but neither Joſephus, Dr. Lightfoot, or our learned Prelate, make the Space ſo long. To anſwer theſe Objections (d) Sir John Marſham hath taken another Method: He agrees with (e) Joſephus, that Joſhua was in Poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan five and twenty Years before his Death, and that it was five and thirty Years more before Cuſhan Riſhathaim oppreſs'd the Iſraelites, and therefore if (f) by thoſe who had ſeen all the great works of the LORD, which he had done for Iſrael, is meant all thoſe, who were of a competent Age to remember what had happen'd at their Paſſage over the Red-Sea, which was an hundred Years before this, we may well ſuppoſe them to be dead in that Space of Time. After this he reckons the Years of the Oppreſſors as diſtinct from the Years of the Judges, which makes too great a Number of Years; ſo that the Account of Jephthah will ſtill remain as an Objection. To remove it, Sir John Marſham divides the Land of Canaan into four Parts, viz. the Eaſtern, Weſtern, Northern, and Southern, and conſequently that there were ſeveral of theſe Judges contemporary in the ſeveral Parts of the Kingdom; and where it is mention'd that the Land had Reſt for a particular Number of Years, it doth not mean the whole Country, but only that particular Part, which was freed from the Oppreſſion. After this he placeth ſome of the Judges, which acted in the North, as contemporary with Eli and Samuel the High Prieſts. This Account (g) our admirable Commentator looks upon as moſt reaſonable. And as it is follow'd by Marſhall in his Chronological Tables, with ſome few Amendments; ſo I cannot but look upon them as the moſt exact in this Epocha. And if we divide the Land of Canaan into four Parts, the Account thereof will ſtand as in the following Table.

6. There is one great Difficulty, which ariſeth from Comparing the Chronology in Scripture with the Genealogies in the Book of Ruth.

For, from the Entrance into the Land of Canaan, to the Building of the Temple, were Years	440
Out of which ſubſtract David's Life, 2 Sam. 5. 4.	70
And the Years of Solomon, 1 Kings 6. 1.	4
The Total being	74
There will remain Years	366

And yet in theſe 366 Years there are but four Generations. For Salmon (who was (h) the Son of Naaſſon, or Nahſhon, a (i) Prince among his People, and Standard-Bearer to the Tribe of Judah) begat Boaz of (k) Rahab, who hid the Spies in her Houſe at Jericho. Boaz (l) begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jeſſe, and Jeſſe begat David. But as the Age of Man was leſſen'd at the Murmuring of the Iſraelites to (m) eighty Years, as it is now, this is impoſſible, ſince

And therefore he might be call'd* A young Man, when only compar'd with Moſes, or elſe the Word נער might ſignify Officers in the Army under the Direction of another, as Joſhua was under Moſes. So it is Gen. 14. 24. or military Men in general, without any Diſtinction of Age, as 2 Sam. 2. 21. becauſe this was the moſt proper Age for ſuch an Exerciſe. And 45 Years is much more proper than 32 for the Age of a General. (f) Joſh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 7. (g) Biſhop Patrick's Comment on Judg. 2. 11. (h) Matth. 1. 4. Ruth 4. 20. there must be allow'd more Years to a Generation, than can be allow'd to the Age of a Man, and therefore they must be suppos'd to have Children even before they themselves were born.

7. For the Solving of this Difficulty there are two Methods propos'd: First, That it is not certain, that the Lives of all Men were shorten'd, at the Time when the Israelites murmur'd in the Wilderness. The Curse then pronounc'd might be only against that Generation, and might not affect others, the Reason of Cutting them off so soon being peculiar to themselves, viz. to prevent their Entering into the Land of Canaan. And therefore the Lives of others might be extended much longer until the Time of David, and especially in that Family, which GOD had honour'd so far, as to appoint that CHRIST himself should be born of it. According to this Account, we may suppose, that Salmon might be about twenty Years of Age, when he enter'd into Canaan; and Rahab, whom he married, to be about the same Age. And then these Years may be thus commodiously distributed, if we suppose Rahab to have born Boaz in the forty second Year after they enter'd Canaan; and if we assign an hundred and two Years before he begat Obed, and an hundred and eleven Years to Obed, before he begat Jesse, and as many to Jesse, before he begat David, which make the exact Sum of three hundred sixty and six. And this is the less strange, since after this Time we read of very old Men, who might be capable of having Children at the Age now mention'd, particularly (z) Jehoiada the High Priest, who liv'd an hundred and thirty Years; and long since that, Thomas Parr our own Countryman liv'd an hundred and two and fifty Years, and had a Son when he was an hundred and five Years old.

8. But secondly, It doth not evidently appear, that all these were the immediate Children of the Parents here mention'd. It is true, that the Word implies it in our English Language, but it doth not so necessarily follow in Hebrew. The Scripture speaks (a) not only of begetting children, but also of begetting childrens children. And of Hezekiah it is said (b) more than once, Of thy sons, which shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon; which could not be accomplish'd in a strict Sense at least before the fourth Generation. For thus (c) Hezekiah begat Manasses, and Manasses begat Amon, and Amon begat Josias. And Josias begat Jechonias and his brethren, about the time that they were carried away to Babylon. And it is observable, that in these Genealogies there is a different Style, and perhaps for a different Reason. The (d) Wife of Salmon is mention'd, by whom he had Boaz, and the Wife of Boaz is mention'd, by whom he had Obed, and (e) the Brethren of David are mention'd, as Sons of Jesse; but neither the Brethren of Jesse the Son of Obed, nor the Wife of Obed the Father of Jesse, is taken notice of. Here therefore a Latitude of Expression may be allow'd; and if here we allow four Generations, as in the Case of Hezekiah, there will be eight in all, and this will leave the Space of six and forty Years for each Generation, which may easily be granted, and so the Difficulty will be solv'd; especially when we consider, that (f) Boaz supposes himself to be no young Man, when he said to Ruth, Thou hast shewed more kindness in the latter end than in the beginning, inasmuch as thou followest not young men, whether poor or rich; and (g) Jesse was counted an old Man, when David his Son was but a Youth.

5. However after all, the Account of our learned Prelate meets with ſome Objections. For firſt, he makes the Oppreſſion under (a) Cuſhan Riſhathaim immediately to ſucceed the Death of Joſhua; whereas (b) the Scripture ſaith expreſly, that the People ſerved the LORD all the days of Joſhua, and all the days of the elders, that overlived Joſhua; who had ſeen all the great works of the LORD, that he had done for Iſrael. But when that generation were gathered unto their fathers, and there aroſe another generation after them, which knew not the LORD, nor yet the works which he had done for Iſrael, then they did evil in the ſight of the LORD, and ſerved Baalim, and the groves. And then the anger of the LORD was hot againſt Iſrael, and he ſold them into the hand of Cuſhan Riſhathaim. So that this is ſuppos'd to have happen'd a conſiderable Time after the Death of Joſhua. The other Objection is, That (c) Jephthah treating with the Amorites, before the Battle in which he conquer'd them, pleads his Right to all the Country in Diſpute between them by Preſcription, becauſe the Iſraelites had been in Poſſeſſion of it for three hundred years; but neither Joſephus, Dr. Lightfoot, or our learned Prelate, make the Space ſo long. To anſwer theſe Objections (d) Sir John Marſham hath taken another Method: He agrees with (e) Joſephus, that Joſhua was in Poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan five and twenty Years before his Death, and that it was five and thirty Years more before Cuſhan Riſhathaim oppreſs'd the Iſraelites, and therefore if (f) by thoſe who had ſeen all the great works of the LORD, which he had done for Iſrael, is meant all thoſe, who were of a competent Age to remember what had happen'd at their Paſſage over the Red-Sea, which was an hundred Years before this, we may well ſuppoſe them to be dead in that Space of Time. After this he reckons the Years of the Oppreſſors as diſtinct from the Years of the Judges, which makes too great a Number of Years; ſo that the Account of Jephthah will ſtill remain as an Objection. To remove it, Sir John Marſham divides the Land of Canaan into four Parts, viz. the Eaſtern, Weſtern, Northern, and Southern, and conſequently that there were ſeveral of theſe Judges contemporary in the ſeveral Parts of the Kingdom; and where it is mention'd that the Land had Reſt for a particular Number of Years, it doth not mean the whole Country, but only that particular Part, which was freed from the Oppreſſion. After this he placeth ſome of the Judges, which acted in the North, as contemporary with Eli and Samuel the High Prieſts. This Account (g) our admirable Commentator looks upon as moſt reaſonable. And as it is follow'd by Marſhall in his Chronological Tables, with ſome few Amendments; ſo I cannot but look upon them as the moſt exact in this Epocha. And if we divide the Land of Canaan into four Parts, the Account thereof will ſtand as in the following Table.

6. There is one great Difficulty, which ariſeth from Comparing the Chronology in Scripture with the Genealogies in the Book of Ruth.

For, from the Entrance into the Land of Canaan, to the Building of the Temple, were Years 440

Out of which ſubſtract David's Life, 2 Sam. 5. 4. 70

And the Years of Solomon, 1 Kings 6. 1. 4

The Total being 74

There will remain Years 366

And yet in theſe 366 Years there are but four Generations. For Salmon (who was (h) the Son of Naaſſon, or Nahſhon, a (i) Prince among his People, and Standard-Bearer to the Tribe of Judah) begat Boaz of (k) Rahab, who hid the Spies in her Houſe at Jericho. Boaz (l) begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jeſſe, and Jeſſe begat David. But as the Age of Man was leſſen'd at the Murmuring of the Iſraelites to (m) eighty Years, as it is now, this is impoſſible, ſince

(a) Annales, pag. 42. (b) Joſh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. Judg. 3. 5, 6, 7, 8. (c) Judg. 11. 26. (d) Canon Chronicus, lib. 2. (e) Jewiſh Ant. And The Samaritan Chronicle allows him five and forty Years in the whole. N. B. That I do here correct the Miſtake, which I was guilty of in the former Book of Allowing to Joſhua 38 Years for his Government in Canaan, and conſequently to have been but 32 Years of Age when he fought with the Amalekites, Exod. 17. 8, 9, &c. in which Year he was call'd נער A young Man, Exod. 33. 11. whereas if we allow but five and twenty Years for his Government, he muſt be five and forty Years old at that Time. And therefore he might be call'd A young Man, when only compar'd with Moſes, or elſe the Word נער might ſignify Officers in the Army under the Direction of another, as Joſhua was under Moſes. So it is Gen. 14. 24. or military Men in general, without any Diſtinction of Age, as 2 Sam. 2. 21. becauſe this was the moſt proper Age for ſuch an Exerciſe. And 45 Years is much more proper than 32 for the Age of a General. (f) Joſh. 24. 31. Judg. 2. 7. (g) Biſhop Patrick's Comment on Judg. 2. 11. (h) Matth. 1. 4. Ruth 4. 20. there muſt be allow'd more Years to a Generation, than can be allow'd to the Age of a Man, and therefore they muſt be ſuppos'd to have Children even before they themſelves were born.

7. For the Solving of this Difficulty there are two Methods propos'd: Firſt, That it is not certain, that the Lives of all Men were ſhorten'd, at the Time when the Iſraelites murmur'd in the Wilderneſs. The Curſe then pronounc'd might be only againſt that Generation, and might not affect others, the Reaſon of Cutting them off ſo ſoon being peculiar to themſelves, viz. to prevent their Entering into the Land of Canaan. And therefore the Lives of others might be extended much longer until the Time of David, and eſpecially in that Family, which GOD had honour'd ſo far, as to appoint that CHRIST himſelf ſhould be born of it. According to this Account, we may ſuppoſe, that Salmon might be about twenty Years of Age, when he enter'd into Canaan; and Rahab, whom he married, to be about the ſame Age. And then theſe Years may be thus commodiouſly diſtributed, if we ſuppoſe Rahab to have born Boaz in the forty ſecond Year after they enter'd Canaan; and if we aſſign an hundred and two Years before he begat Obed, and an hundred and eleven Years to Obed, before he begat Jeſſe, and as many to Jeſſe, before he begat David, which make the exact Sum of three hundred ſixty and ſix. And this is the leſs ſtrange, ſince after this Time we read of very old Men, who might be capable of having Children at the Age now mention'd, particularly (z) Jehoiada the High Prieſt, who liv'd an hundred and thirty Years; and long ſince that, Thomas Parr our own Countryman liv'd an hundred and two and fifty Years, and had a Son when he was an hundred and five Years old.

8. But ſecondly, It doth not evidently appear, that all theſe were the immediate Children of the Parents here mention'd. It is true, that the Word implies it in our Engliſh Language, but it doth not ſo neceſſarily follow in Hebrew. The Scripture ſpeaks (a) not only of begetting children, but alſo of begetting childrens children. And of Hezekiah it is ſaid (b) more than once, Of thy ſons, which ſhall iſſue from thee, whom thou ſhalt beget, they ſhall take away, and they ſhall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon; which could not be accompliſh'd in a ſtrict Senſe at leaſt before the fourth Generation. For thus (c) Hezekiah begat Manaſſes, and Manaſſes begat Amon, and Amon begat Joſias. And Joſias begat Jechonias and his brethren, about the time that they were carried away to Babylon. And it is obſervable, that in theſe Genealogies there is a different Style, and perhaps for a different Reaſon. The (d) Wife of Salmon is mention'd, by whom he had Boaz, and the Wife of Boaz is mention'd, by whom he had Obed, and (e) the Brethren of David are mention'd, as Sons of Jeſſe; but neither the Brethren of Jeſſe the Son of Obed, nor the Wife of Obed the Father of Jeſſe, is taken notice of. Here therefore a Latitude of Expreſſion may be allow'd; and if here we allow four Generations, as in the Caſe of Hezekiah, there will be eight in all, and this will leave the Space of ſix and forty Years for each Generation, which may eaſily be granted, and ſo the Difficulty will be ſolv'd; eſpecially when we conſider, that (f) Boaz ſuppoſes himſelf to be no young Man, when he ſaid to Ruth, Thou haſt ſhewed more kindneſs in the latter end than in the beginning, inaſmuch as thou followeſt not young men, whether poor or rich; and (g) Jeſſe was counted an old Man, when David his Son was but a Youth.

CHAP. II.

The Hiſtory of the WORLD to the Death of Joſhua.

THE Hiſtory of the Iſraelites, from the Time of their Entring into Canaan, until the Time when the learned Dr. Prideaux began to treat of them, hath very little Connexion with that of other Nations. We hear no more of Egypt until the Time of Shiſhak and Rehoboam. Colonies were now ſettled in all Parts, ſo that moſt Nations kept quiet to themſelves, and were contented in Manuring and Improving their own Country. The Eaſtern Writers add very little to what we find in Scripture. The Jews had little or no Dealing with other Nations. They were diſtinguiſh'd from all the Reſt of the World by Circumciſion, by Obſerving their Sabbath on a different Day, and by many other Rites and Ceremonies. They boaſted of their Privileges beyond other Nations, and other Nations abhorr'd them for their Boaſting; ſo that they took little Notice of them in their Hiſtories. Beſides, all the Greek and Roman Hiſtorians are of a much later Date, and ſo they paſs over all theſe Epocha's in a general Silence. And therefore there is very little of Hiſtory that can be added, to what we find either in the Scripture or Joſephus, eſpecially when we add to them what Biſhop Patrick, our moſt admirable Commentator, hath ſaid upon (a) the Hiſtorical Books. And therefore there is the leſs Reaſon to enlarge thereon.

2. But to proceed. After the Death of Moſes, and the Children of Iſrael had mourn'd (b) for him thirty Days, which ended with the old Year, they begin the new one with the Obſervation of the Sabbath, and the next Day Joſhua a Type of our JESUS takes upon him the Government of the People, on the ſame Day of the Week that the Antitype was exalted as King over all by his Riſing from the Dead. Now (c) GOD appears to him, and promiſes him Succeſs. Upon which he ſettles the People in their Order, provides for the Paſſing over Jordan, orders the armed Men of the Reubenites, Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh to paſs over with him, according to their Agreement made with Moſes, and they all promiſe to be faithful and true to him, as to their King or Governor. The ſame Day being the third Day of April according to our Style, Joſhua ſends the Spies to (d) ſearch out the Land, and particularly view the Strength of the Town of Jericho, which ſtood over againſt them, and therefore ought to be taken before they could proceed any farther. The (*) Eaſtern Writers tell us, that they were valiant and religious Men, and in the prime of their Youth; that in order to paſs undiſcover'd they chang'd their Habit, as if they had come from a diſtant Country, and that they cried to thoſe, who ask'd from whence they came, in this Manner, We are People from the Eaſt, and our Companions have heard of this powerful People, who were forty Years in the Wilderneſs without either Guide or Proviſion, And it was reported to us, that they had a GOD, whom they call'd, The King of Heaven and Earth; and who (as they ſay) hath given them both our and your Country. Our Companions therefore have ſent us to find out the Truth hereof, and report it to them. And therefore we have come to you from a diſtant Country. We have alſo heard of their Captain, whom they call Joſhua the Son of Nun, who put the Amalekites to Flight, who deſtroy'd Sihon and Og, and the Kings of Midian and Moab. Wo therefore be to us, and you, and all that flee to us for Shelter. They are a People, who pity none, leave none alive, drive all out of their Country, and make Peace with none, but ſuch as are Strangers to us both. We are all accounted by them as infidels, profane, proud and rebellious. And therefore whoever of us or you will take Care of themſelves, let them take their Families and be gone, leſt they repent of their Stay, when it is too late. And thus they impos'd on the Country till they came to Jericho. Thus (†) they came thither as Strangers, and ſo they went whither they would, and ſaw whatever they had a Mind to, without any Stop or Queſtion. They took a View of the Walls, the Gates, and the Ramparts, all the Strength and Weakneſs of the Town, paſſing the whole Day for Men of Curioſity only, without any Deſign. And as they were diſcourſing how to get back again, Intelligence was brought to the King, as he was at Supper, that they were Spies, and ſo he ſent to apprehend them. However, if any Credit can be given to this Story, it was but juſt that they, who thus impos'd on the Canaanites, were afterward impos'd on in the ſame Manner by the Gibeonites. Theſe Men coming to Jericho, lodge with a Woman call'd Rahab, who kept a publick Houſe or an Inn to entertain Strangers. The Chaldee Paraphraſt (e) expreſly gives her this Character without the leaſt Mark of Infamy; but the Hebrew Word frequently ſignifying an Harlot, or a Whore, ſhe is ſo call'd in our Tranſlation. And the Septuagint ſpeaking in the ſame Manner, and being the Tranſlation common among the Jews, the (f) Apoſtles St. Paul and St. James call her by the ſame Name; not becauſe ſhe was really ſo (for (g) the Word in the Hebrew will bear a different Senſe) but becauſe ſhe was reputed ſo. Both theſe Apoſtles rank her with Abraham the beloved of GOD; one propounds her as an Example of a lively Faith to all Chriſtians, and the other as an Example of good Works. She was admitted into the Society of GOD's People, marry'd into a noble Family of the Tribe of Judah, and CHRIST was born of her Poſterity, and therefore the Word in the Hebrew ought to have the moſt favourable Conſtruction, which the original Language will admit of. However, if ſhe had been ſo formerly, there is no Doubt but ſhe afterward ſaw her Error; and when ſhe was among the Iſraelites, ſhe liv'd a ſober and an exemplary Life. When the two Spies came to her Houſe, ſhe (h) entertain'd them very courteouſly, profeſſeth her Belief, that GOD would give that Land to the Iſraelites, ſecures them from ſuch as were ſent to take away their Lives, gives them Directions how to eſcape, and makes an Agreement with them on certain Conditions for the Saving her own Life, and the Lives of her Relations, of all which the Spies at their Return give an impartial Account to Joſhua, and encourage him to proceed accordingly with Hope of Succeſs; and at the ſame Time they () mention the whole Buſineſs of Rahab with all its Circumſtances, eſpecially that of the Oath. Upon this Joſhua conſulted Eleazar the High Prieſt, and all the Elders, who immediately pronounc'd the Promiſe to be binding, and ſo ratified the Obligation.

3. Thus the Spies ſet out to view the Land of Canaan on the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath, as if it was to teach us, that no Day is fitter for us to view by the Eye of Faith the Kingdom of Heaven, that Reſt which remains for us, and the Services of the Saints above, than that Day in which we on Earth do reſt from our Labours, and which is devoted to the Service of our GOD. The Spies perform what they were commanded on the Sunday, Munday, and Tueſday, as we call them, or upon the ſecond, third, and fourth Days of the first Month, and return in the Evening. The next Day in the Morning Joshua commands the Officers to give a strict Charge to the People to prepare for themselves Victuals, and every thing else which was necessary for a March, because (i) after three full working Days were over, they should pass over Jordan, tho' they themselves could not tell in what Manner. However they prepare such Things on the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, being the fifth, sixth and seventh Days of the same Month. And after they had observ'd the Sabbath, and these three before-mention'd working Days were ended, Joshua rises early (k) in the Morning on the ninth Day of the Month, being our LORD's Day, to begin to take Possession of the promis'd Land. This Day he commands them (l) to sanctify themselves, not only by (m) legal Purifications; but also to dispose their Minds by holy Meditations and Prayer to GOD to receive his Benefits, and to be more sensible of them when they had them. Because that Wonder would now be begun to be perform'd, of which the whole Congregation should reap the Benefit the next Day.

4. And now the Officers give a Charge to the Priests, in what Manner they should carry the Ark before the People; and to the People, at what Distance they should follow the Ark. And accordingly when the Priests came to Jordan, the Waters part, the Ark stands in the middle upon dry Ground, some few of the People pass over that Day, and the next Day they all come over, the Ark comes up out of the River, and the People encamp on the other Side, between Jordan, which lay behind them, and Jericho which lay before them. When they were passing over, they could observe, that the Waters on the southern Part ran away from them, and those on the northern Part stood very high, like a Mountain, near the City call'd Adam, which was in the Outskirt of their Camp, and therefore the Psalmist seems to intimate, that (n) some of their Tents were pitch'd in it. There are some, who tell us, that in Commemoration of this Miracle there was a Town beyond Jordan call'd (o) Bethabara, or the House of the Passage, but this Town lies in our modern Maps beyond the Sea of Galilee, and therefore was at too great a Distance, and was at first but a single Inn built for the Entertainment of such, who came over in Boats. It is certain, that there was another Memorial of it; for by the express Command of GOD they took twelve Stones out of the River, of a different Colour from those on the Land; and the Reason is (p) particularly mention'd, When your children ask their fathers in time to come, saying, What mean you by these stones? Then ye shall answer them, That the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, when it passed over Jordan, and these stones shall be a memorial thereof for ever unto the children of Israel. Josephus (*) tells us, that Joshua erected an Altar of the twelve Stones, and sacrific'd upon it, celebrating the Feast of the Passover also in the same Place in a State of Plenty and Abundance, equal to the Degree of Want and Misery, which they had hitherto endur'd. For the Canaanites Harvest was at this Time ripe upon the Ground, their Cattle and other Booty were every where expos'd, and the Israelites in Possession of all. However this Miracle so terrify'd the Canaanites, that tho' the Israelites rested a considerable Time on the Banks of the River, and were not in a Condition for Action, there was no one who dar'd to set upon them, by which Means they were preserv'd.

5. For it happen'd, that all the Israelites, who were then under forty Years old, and so born in the Wilderness, were uncircumcis'd. The Jews at that Time had very probably a Notion, that when (q) GOD at first commanded this Rite, it was only as a Sign that the Posterity of Abraham should inherit the Land of Canaan, and therefore they were not willing to perform their Part of the Covenant, until GOD had perform'd his. This shews their Obstinacy and Perverseness in the highest Degree. But GOD, who intended that this Ceremony, like the Sacrifices, should be done away at the Coming of CHRIST, never blam'd the Neglect of (r) either, nor punish'd them for it, as he punish'd their Murmurings, their Blasphemy, and their Profaning of the Sabbath, their Idolatry, Fornication, and such moral Evils. For this Reason Moses never blames their Neglect, nor injoins this Duty, but tells us the true Meaning of it, (s) Because the LORD had a delight in their fathers to love them, he chose their seed after them, even these above all people; and therefore they ought to circumcise the foreskin of their hearts, and be no more stiff-necked. So that well might St. Paul say, (†) He is not a Jew, who is one outwardly, neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh. But he is a Jew, who is one inwardly, and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter, whoſe praiſe is not of men but of GOD. And therefore, leſt they ſhould think that they were not any longer bound to the Performance of this Duty, GOD renews it again, by Commanding Joſhua to (t) make Knives of Flint, or (u) ſharp ſtone, as Zipporah did, and circumciſe the children of Iſrael the ſecond Time, reckoning that the firſt, when the others were circumcis'd at their proper Age, and ſo were not to be circumcis'd again. This Joſhua did on the eleventh Day of the firſt Month, when GOD ſaid unto him, (x) This day have I rolled away the reproach of Egypt from off you, or the Mark of Slavery to which they had there been long ſubject, but were now declar'd to be a free People, by receiving the Mark of the Seed of Abraham, and made Heirs of the promis'd Land. In Commemoration of this, (y) the neighbouring Hill was call'd, The Hill of the Foreskins, and the Place, where they were encamp'd, was call'd (z) Gilgal, or A Rowling. At the (a) End of three Days, when their (b) Wounds began to be heal'd, they obſerve the Paſſover, which they could not have done, if they had not been circumcis'd, and ſo they were made Partakers of both Sacraments at once. The Morrow after being (c) the firſt Day of unleaven'd Bread, and the Day when they obſerv'd the Sabbath, the (d) Manna continu'd, being preſerv'd by GOD for their Uſe, which afterward ceas'd on the Days of Labour, when they had eaten of the old Corn, which was the Product of the Country. The Eaſtern Writers farther add, (*) That then Joſhua and the Children of Iſrael prais'd the LORD with the ſame Hymn, which Moſes us'd at the Paſſage over the Red Sea, adding Songs and Pſalms of their own, agreeable to the preſent Occaſion. And they are ſo very particular, as to repeat ſome of the Words: Who is like unto thee, O LORD? O thou moſt holy, moſt terrible, who manifeſts thy Power, who workeſt Miracles, and performeſt Wonders. What ſhall we ſay, O LORD, who ſheweſt thy Tokens, and enlightens the Darkneſs? There is none like unto thee: with more to the ſame Purpoſe. And that when Joſhua (†) commanded the Stones to be taken from the River, the Levites cried with a loud Voice, Praiſe be to him, whoſe Power is ſo great. Praiſe be to him, whom all things obey. Praiſe be to the GOD of Gods, and LORD of Lords, who governs every thing by his Command, the dry Places, Heaven, Earth, Seas, Rivers, and all that is in them. There is no God beſides him, no Kingdom like his Kingdom, and no Power like his Power. There is no Governor beyond his Dominion, nor Emperor beyond his Empire. Let his Name be praiſed, exalted and ſanctified. That when the Waters parted, the Levites ſaid, There is no other Power or Greatneſs but thine, O LORD of Hoſts. And when the Prieſts ſtood in the River, they bleſſed GOD, ſaying, Praiſed be he whom all things obey; and that the Levites ſaid the ſame Words with this Addition, Praiſed be he, who was pleaſed of his own good Pleaſure thus to act for us.

6. After the ſolemn Rites of the Circumciſion and Paſſover had been perform'd, Joſhua (e) went to take a View of Jericho, and obſerve, as Generals uſually do, the Approaches to it. There he beholds CHRIST JESUS ſtanding before him like a Soldier, who declar'd himſelf on Joſhua's Side, and was as (f) the Chaldee Paraphraſe ſaith, The WORD of the LORD, who fought for Iſrael. Joſhua could not but remember, that GOD had ſaid to Moſes, () Mine angel ſhall go before thee, and bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hivites, and the Jebuſites; and I will cut them off, and that this Angel (*†) is expreſly call'd JEHOVAH, or the LORD their GOD. And therefore upon this Joſhua pays him all the Signs of Divine Adoration, which he not only approv'd of, but alſo gave farther Directions for that Purpoſe, which Joſhua perform'd, and (g) afterward adviſ'd hm, in what Manner he ſhould beſiege Jericho, by Marching round it once a Day for ſix Days, and ſeven Times on the ſeventh Day, with a Promiſe that the Wall ſhould fall down flat, and they ſhould take the City without the leaſt Difficulty. Theſe Directions Joſhua obſerv'd, and the Succeſs anſwer'd his Expectation, which convinc'd them, that it was the Work of GOD and not of Man. Upon this he tells them, that the City muſt be

For let us ſuppoſe, that each Foreskin took up the Space of a Quarter of an Inch, which is impoſſible, eſpecially when turn'd into Earth, and that there were eight hundred thouſand in all, which is more than can be imagin'd; yet all this would not fill up the Quantity of a Cube of two Feet. For a Line of two Feet contains 96 Inches, the Cube of which is 884736: And if there had been a Million in all, they could only have fill'd up the Cube of two Feet and an Inch, or an equal Quantity in any other Form.* (z) Joſh. 5. 9. utterly utterly deſtroy'd, with every thing that was in it, and charg'd them to take nothing of it for themſelves, leſt (ſaith he) ye make the camp of Iſrael a curſe, and trouble it. He orders the Spies to fetch out Rahab, and all her Relations who were with her, according to the Oath which they had ſworn to her; and thus they were ſav'd out of the general Deſtruction. Upon this Joſhua (h) adjured them, ſaying, Curſed be the man before the LORD, that riſeth up and buildeth this city Jericho; with this particular Prophecy, that he ſhould loſe his eldeſt Son when he began it, that the reſt of his Children ſhould die one after another, and the youngeſt when the Gates were ſet up: which was fulfill'd accordingly (i) in the Time of Ahab, and is an Argument not only of a prophetick Spirit in Joſhua, but alſo that the Book of his Hiſtory was written before that Time.

7. Soon after this Succeſs Joſhua ſends more Men to view the Country, that they might better reſolve what Town to attack next. Upon their return, they pitch upon Ai, three thouſand Men are ſent to take it, where their Courage fails them, ſix and thirty are kill'd, and the reſt run away to (k) a Place call'd Shebarim, or Breakings to Pieces, becauſe of this ſhameful Defeat. This put the People into a terrible Conſternation, and Joſhua expreſs'd his Concern by Falling down before the Ark, with all the Tokens of Sorrow and Humiliation, and Calling upon GOD in the moſt pathetick Manner. GOD tells him, that one of the Iſraelites had ſinn'd, by Taking ſuch Spoils which he ought not to have meddled with, that he ſhould be providentially diſcover'd, and all that belong'd to him ſhould be deſtroy'd. The (*) Eaſtern Writers tell us, that when they ſtood before the Sanctuary, and the High Prieſt was in it with the Urim and Thummim, wherein were twelve Stones with the Names of the Tribes of Iſrael engraven in them, and when the Tribe, to which the guilty Perſon belong'd, was call'd, that Stone in which was the Name of that Tribe, chang'd its Colour, and became black; and ſo it alſo did, when the Family, and the Houſhold, and the Perſon were call'd. But Joſephus, with greater Probability tells us, that it was (†) diſcover'd by Caſting of Lots, and that by this Method Achan of the Tribe of Judah was taken, who confeſs'd the Fact, which was found upon him, and he and all thoſe who were privy to it were ſton'd with Stones, and his Tent and all his Goods were burnt with Fire, together with their dead Bodies, and a Heap of Stones was rais'd over their Aſhes to keep the ſame in Remembrance. Upon his Condemnation Joſhua ſaid, (l) Why haſt thou troubled us? The LORD ſhall trouble thee this day. And for this Reaſon the Place was call'd, The valley of Achor, or Trouble. And he is call'd Achar, or A Troubler, in (m) Scripture and (n) other Authors. And thus the Prophet Hoſea, (o) ſpeaking of the Goſpel Times, alludes to this Name, and ſaith, He will give us the valley of Achor for a door of hope. Troubles and Afflictions ſhall be ſanctify'd for our Good, that we may (p) rejoyce in tribulations, and ſay with David, (q) Tho' I walk in the valley of the ſhadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me, thy rod and thy ſtaff they comfort me.

8. The accurſed thing being thus remov'd out of the Camp, GOD (*†) encourageth Joſhua with a Promiſe of Succeſs, and adviſeth him to lay an Ambuſh for that Purpoſe. In the mean Time the King of Ai ſends to all the Men in Bethel, who were fit to bear Arms, to come and join him, that they might make a more vigorous Defence, which they readily did, in hope of the ſame Succeſs which they ſo lately had. And now Joſhua having ſent Men to lie behind the City in the dead Time of the Night on the ſouth Side; and having given them ſufficient Directions, he ſends others toward the weſt, and he comes with his whole Army on the north and eaſt Sides, as if he would attack the City; the King of Ai makes a vigorous Sally, Joſhua and the Army make a feign'd Retreat; upon this the King of Ai ſends for all his Forces out of the City to purſue them, who march out in Haſte, and leave the Gates open. The Ambuſcade on the ſouth Side immediately ſeize on the City, and make Fires in all the moſt conſpicuous Places, being the Signal which was before agreed on of its being taken. Upon this Joſhua marches back with his whole Army on the north and on the eaſt Side, they who ſet the City on Fire came upon them from the South, and others, who were ſet for that Purpoſe, attack'd them on the Weſt, ſo that ſeeing the City burnt, and themſelves ſurrounded, their Hearts fail'd them, and they were all deſtroy'd. The King was taken alive and hang'd, and a large Heap of Stones was plac'd upon the dead Body in Commemoration hereof; and the Iſraelites had now the Liberty of Taking the Spoil for themſelves.

9. The Iſraelites having now the firſt Seizure and Poſſeſſion of the Land (for they had no Share in the Spoils of Jericho) and GOD having given them a Taſte of the Performance

Performance of his Promiſe, that they ſhould inherit the Land, it was now a ſeaſonable Time on their Part to engage themſelves to him, and to the Keeping of the Law. And therefore Joſhua puts an End to this Campaign, having Buſineſs of another Nature to do, and marches northward with all his Army unto the Mountains of Gerizim and Ebal, which lay oppoſite to each other in the Tribe of Ephraim. Moſes had given them (r) a poſitive Command, that when they came into the Land, which GOD had promis'd them, they ſhould ſet up great Stones, and plaiſter them with a durable Plaiſter, and write (s) upon it the Words of the Covenant, by which they acknowledg'd that they held the Land of Canaan from GOD as their great Lord, upon Condition they obſerv'd his Laws, to which they and their Poſterity were oblig'd; that at the ſame Time they ſhould offer Burnt-offerings and Peace-offerings, and rejoice before the LORD their GOD; and that ſix of the Tribes ſhould ſtand near Mount Ebal, who ſhould read the (t) Curſes pronounc'd againſt the Diſobedient, and the other ſix ſhould ſtand near Mount Gerizim, who ſhould as diſtinctly read (u) the Bleſſings reſerv'd for the Obedient. All this (x) Joſhua perform'd at the End of the Campaign, and ſo he diſmiſſeth all the People, and they go into their Winter Quarters.

10. In the Beginning of the Winter (y) the Reſt of the Kings of the Country of Canaan being thorowly awaken'd with the Senſe of their Danger, enter into a League offenſive and defenſive, and reſolve the next Year to bring the Iſſue to a deciſive Battle. In the mean Time the Gibeonites, who dwelt in the neighbouring Country, which afterward belong'd to Judah and Benjamin, being apprehenſive that their Country would be next invaded, and that they were not in a Condition to defend themſelves, reſolv'd to treat with Joſhua, and ſubmit to him, hoping by that Means to ſecure their Lives, and, if poſſible, their Rights and Privileges. For this Purpoſe they pretended, that they came from a very far Country, and took all Methods imaginable to induce Joſhua and the Rulers to this Belief, and propos'd to enter into a fair Alliance with them, deſiring only to be admitted as their Friends and Confederates. Joſhua and the Elders being thus impos'd upon, enter into a League with them, and ratify it with an Oath. Joſhua finding ſoon after that they liv'd not far from Jeruſalem, and that they were of the ſame Stock with the Canaanites, ſent for ſome of the chief Men, and told them, that they had not dealt with him like Men of Truth and Honour. They excus'd themſelves upon the Neceſſity of the Caſe, and ſaid, that they had no other Way to be ſafe. Upon this the High Prieſt (as Joſephus (z) tells us) and the Elders were conſulted as to the Obligation of the Treaty, who were all poſitive in their Opinion, that an Oath ſo circumſtantiated and ſo ratified, was abſolutely ſacred and inviolable. And therefore they told them that their Lives were ſafe; but propos'd to them, that they and their Poſterity ſhould be Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Service of the Prieſts, the Altar, and the Temple, which Conditions they willingly agreed to, and therefore they were afterward call'd (a) Nethinim, or Perſons given to GOD and his Service. They were the firſt Fruits of the Gentiles. They were not abſolutely Slaves, but rather a ſacred Kind of Servants, being employ'd about the Houſe of GOD, which was in it ſelf honourable, and not a baſe or contemptible Office. They were very ſerviceable in Hewing Stones for the Building of the Temple, and Repairing it after it was built, and in Carrying them to thoſe who were employ'd in that Work. In this they ſerv'd GOD faithfully, even to the Times of Nehemiah, who tells us (b) of a great Number of the Nethinims, who return'd from Babylon to rebuild Jeruſalem and the Temple, and (c) GOD reſented ſuch Cruelties which were ſhewn to them, as if they had been offer'd to himſelf.

Anno Mundi 2554.

11. This unexpected League between Joſhua and the Gibeonites breaks all the Meaſures, which (*) the Canaanites had before concerted; for (d) Adonizedeck King of Jeruſalem, expecting that Joſhua would march thither with the whole Army, and that his Turn would be next, thought it not proper to delay Time, till all the Forces could come and join him; and therefore he ſends to his four neighbouring Kings, that they would come, and march directly to Gibeon, and ſo take it by Surprize, to be aveng'd of them for what they had done, and terrify others from Doing the like. The Gibeonites hearing of their Danger, ſend an Expreſs to Joſhua for ſpeedy Help, who ſets out as ſoon as poſſible, and marches all Night from Gilgal; and GOD encouraging him, and promiſing him Succeſs, he fell upon the Enemy before Gibeon by Surprize, and totally routed them early in the Morning, and when (e) they came to a certain Deſcent, it is ſaid, that the LORD caſt down great hailſtones from heaven upon them, and there were more which died of hailſtones, than they which the children of Iſrael ſlew with the ſword. And in Commemoration of this Miracle, the Place and Town adjacent was call'd Beth-horon, or, The Houſe or Place of Anger or Fury.

12. When they were in the Road that goes to Beth-horon, which lies toward the north weſt of Gibeon, and not ſo far off but that they could ſee Gibeon it ſelf, Joſhua obſerv'd the Sun ſtanding over the City, as it would in ſuch a Caſe about eleven of the Clock in the Morning, and perceiv'd the Moon near her Setting, as it might be about ſeven Days before her Change, which had favour'd them in their March for near the latter half Part of the Night, and knowing that the Valley of Ajalon in the Tribe of Dan lay weſt from Gilgal, where the Sun and Moon did uſually ſet, and concluding that in the Space of Time before Sun-ſet, he could not obtain a compleat Victory, and being encourag'd by a ſecret Promiſe from GOD he (f) ſaith, Sun, ſtand thou ſtill upon Gibeon; and thou moon, in the valley of Ajalon. Accordingly it appear'd to them, as if the Sun and Moon ſtood ſtill, the diurnal Motion of the Earth being ſtopp'd for ſome time, but the Annual Motion of the Sun, Moon and Planets continuing the ſame. This Story not only gave Riſe to that of Phaethon's Guiding the Chariot of the Sun and ſetting the World on Fire; but the Chineſe Hiſtory ſpeaks of it in ſuch a manner as confirms the ſacred Account, and that Noah, when he fled from Ham into the Eaſt, was the King of the moſt eaſtern Country in his Time, which Country the Chineſe attribute to themſelves, and ſo connect their Hiſtory from thence. As it is natural for Men in things of great Antiquity to enlarge beyond the Truth; ſo the Chineſe tell us, that (g) in the Reign of their ſeventh Emperor Yao it is reported, that the Sun did not ſet for ten Days together, and that the Inhabitants of the Earth were afraid, that the World would be burnt; for there were very great Fires at that Time. This happen'd in the ſixty ſeventh Year of that Emperor's Reign, and ſo it exactly agrees with the Scripture Hiſtory, as will appear by the following Account.

(f) Joſhua 10. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14. It looks as if they had a Proverb about Gilgal to call the Place, where the Sun and Moon did ſet, The Valley of Ajalon. And therefore Joſhua ſeeing the Moon near her ſetting, ſpoke as he apprehended, but not as an Aſtronomer; For ſtrictly ſo ſpeaking, the Moon being near the Beginning of Capricorn, with a great South Declination, at that Time might be four and thirty Degrees diſtant from the Weſt towards the South, but could not, if viſible, be leſs than thirty. (g) Martinii Hiſtoria Sinica, lib. 1. pag. 37. (h) Gen. 9. 28. (i) Deut. 34. 7.

So that he died in the twenty ſecond Year of King Solomon's Reign, or the Year of the World 3011. And as from this Time the Lives and Reigns in the Bible were generally of the ſame Length, as they are at this Day; ſo they continue the ſame in the Chineſe Hiſtories correſponding to them, as well as in all other Parts of the World.

15. The Sun being ſeen thus to ſtand ſtill in China, makes it evident, that it (k) could not be late in the Day, when this Miracle happen'd in the Land of Canaan; for in ſuch a Caſe, as China lies in the eaſtern Parts of Aſia, the Sun would have been ſet in thoſe Countries, and then the Conſternation would not have been ſo great, at leaſt they could have been under no Apprehenſion of the World's being burnt thereby. Beſides, from the Reaſon before-mention'd, we may conclude, that it happen'd about eleven of the Clock in the Morning, becauſe Joſhua marching from Gibeon to Beth-horon, and turning back ſaw the Sun directly over that City, and therefore he ſaid, (l) Sun, ſtand thou ſtill upon Gibeon.

16. The Time of the Year, when this Miracle happen'd, could not be in the Height of Summer, as is commonly ſuppos'd; becauſe the Sun ſtanding ſo directly over their Heads, had it been mid-day, muſt have made the Air ſo exceſſively hot, that it would have been impoſſible for Armies to march, without a ſecond Miracle to cool it. Beſides, the Sun in ſuch a Caſe would have been eighty two Degrees high, and therefore could not be diſcern'd, as ſtanding over any particular Place at a Diſtance, but only over their own Heads. Or if it ſtood over Gibeon, as is ſuppos'd, it would have been but (m) the third Part of an Hour diſtant from the South, which would have alter'd its Altitude but one Degree, and is inconſiderable in this Caſe. And indeed if it had happen'd at Jeruſalem (*), when the Sun was on the Equinoctial Point, it would have been as high on the Meridian, as it uſually appears at London, (n) about the ninth of May; or if it happen'd at the Time ſuppos'd, it (o) would have been as high, as it is about the firſt Day of June in this Age.

17. The Length of Time, in which the Sun ſtood ſtill, is expreſly mention'd in theſe Words, (p) So the ſun ſtood ſtill, and the moon ſtayed, and haſted not to go down about a whole day. Now a natural Day containing the Space of four and twenty Hours, and a civil Day containing the Space of twelve Hours, we may ſuppoſe, that the ſhorteſt of theſe is here meant. For had it been otherwiſe, the Heat of the Sun muſt have been too exceſſive for Soldiers to purſue the Enemy all that Time. They had march'd all Night, and gain'd a complete Victory in the Morning, and thus they were employ'd for ſeventeen Hours; ſo that nineteen Hours more were as much as their Spirits could bear in Purſuing a flying Enemy without a new Miracle to ſupport them. And indeed ſuch a Space was ſufficient to deſtroy the Enemies Army; and there was no Neceſſity of a longer Time, eſpecially when (q) GOD caſt down great hailſtones from heaven upon them, and there were more that died of the hailſtones, than they whom the children of Iſrael ſlew with the ſword. And this is imply'd (r) where it is ſaid in Praiſe of Joſhua, Did not the ſun go back by his means? And was not one day, or the Time in which the Sun appears, as long as two ſuch Days? And that the diurnal Motion of the Earth was really ſtopp'd at that Time, and that the Length of the Day was not occaſion'd only by a Meteor, which appear'd in the Air (as ſome have imagin'd) is plain, not only from the Chineſe Hiſtory, but alſo from (s) the Account, which we have of it in the Scripture, That there was no day like to that either before it or after it, when the LORD hearkned to the voice of a man; becauſe the LORD GOD of Iſrael fought for Iſrael. And therefore twelve Hours are allow'd in all the preceding Calculations for this Miracle.

(k) As the moſt weſtern Parts of China lie about ſixty Degrees of Longitude different from Jeruſalem; ſo there muſt be four Hours diſtance between each of the Meridians. And therefore if the Sun began to ſtand ſtill at eleven of the Clock in Jeruſalem, this would be three of the Clock in the neareſt Part of China, and in the Latitude of 24 Deg. the Altitude of the Sun would be 41 d. 52. m. which might give them diſmal Apprehenſions. But the moſt eaſtern Part of the Country being 85 Deg. of Longitude from Jeruſalem, and in the Latitude of 30 Deg. the Sun would begin to ſtand ſtill there at 4 h. 40 m. in the Afternoon, and the Altitude of the Sun at that Time would be about 18 d. 52 m. And therefore the Sun being ſo low in thoſe Parts, makes it probable, that the eaſtern Part of China was not inhabited at that Time.. (l) Joſh. 10. 12. (m) Or more exactly 4 d. 48 m. which converted into Time is 19 m. 12″. (*) For the Sun's Altitude at Jeruſalem would then have been the Complement of the Pole's Height, or 58 d. 30 m. (n) The Sun's Meridian Altitude at London on the Equinoctial being 38 d. 28 m. will require 20 d. 2 m. of North Declination to make it equal to the before-mention'd Altitude, which happens when the Sun is in ♉ 29. 17. and is in this Age of the World about the ninth Day of May. (o) For the Declination of the Sun being 3 d. 10 m. towards the North, its Meridian Altitude would be equal to what is at London, when it hath 23 d. 12 m. of North Declination, which happens when the Sun is in ♊ 21 d. 21 m. and is in this Age of the World about the firſt Day of June. 18. Tho'

18. Tho' it is impoſſible to demonſtrate the Day in which the Miracle happen'd; yet we may conjecture, that it was on Wedneſday the eleventh Day of April. The Sun had then but lately paſs'd the Equinoctial Line, and therefore it was early in the Spring for Armies to march. Beſides, Joſhua ſaid, (t) Sun, ſtand thou ſtill upon Gibeon, and thou moon in the valley of Ajalon. And it is obſervable, that on this Day, when the Sun might be ſeen over Gibeon, the Moon was about ſeven Days diſtant from her Change, and in the Poſition already mention'd, being about one Degree and an half high; ſo that ſhe might be ſeen, eſpecially ſince not only the Atmoſphere it ſelf, but alſo the Vapours ariſing from the Mediterrenean Sea, might ſerve to make her more apparent at that Time.

19. And therefore the natural Account ſeems to be this: When the Iſraelites were about to enter into Canaan, they had a poſitive Command (u) to deſtroy all the People of the Land, and particularly to demoliſh all their Idols, cut down their Groves, and burn their graven Images in the Fire. The Canaanites could not but look upon this as a religious War, and therefore it concern'd them to take the utmoſt Care to get the Aſſiſtance of the Gods, which they worſhipp'd. Accordingly they could not but ſpend the Sunday, or eighth Day of April, being the Day of their Sabbath, in all their Acts of Devotion, to implore a Bleſſing on this their Undertaking, and pray (x) to the Sun, which was particularly worſhipp'd on that Day. On Monday the ninth Day they march to beſiege Gibeon. The Gibeonites ſend an Expreſs, which might come to Joſhua early on the tenth Day. Joſhua immediately marches, and having ſtay'd a little Time in the Evening to refreſh himſelf, he marches again all that Night, and comes up with them (y) early in the Morning, on Wedneſday the eleventh Day, and ſurprizing them when they did not expect ſo ſoon a Viſit, he gives them a total Overthrow, and the Sun ſtands ſtill to make the Victory more compleat. So that GOD declar'd hereby, that the Pagan Worſhip was vain, that the Sun which they ador'd, had no Power in himſelf to melt even the Hailſtones, which deſtroy'd them; and that the GOD of Iſrael could miraculouſly over-rule their Deities, whenever he pleas'd, to their own Confuſion. So that after this Defeat, ſome of them fled into the ſouthern Parts, and ſome into the northern; which (z) Joſhua perceiving, divided his Army, who purſu'd them to the South, ſome toward Makkedah, and ſome toward Azekah, deſtroying all whom they could overtake, whilſt he purſu'd the main Body northward, as far as Beth-horon, which intercepted their Retreat, and made the Conqueſt of the ſouthern Parts much more eaſy. The Eaſtern Writers (a) ſeem alſo to make this a religious War; for they ſay, that at this Time the Watch-Word which they us'd, was (b) that of Moſes, The LORD is a man of war, the LORD is his name. And they farther add, that Joſhua divided his Army into three Bodies, and caus'd each of them to take a different Rout, whilſt he, with thoſe who were with him, took the common Road, and ſo came up with the Enemy an Hour before the reſt, and when they met each other, they cry'd with a loud Voice, Our GOD and LORD is he that fights for us. And GOD ſhew'd many Miracles that Day for them againſt the Enemy. So that whenever any endeavour'd to eſcape by Flight, Fire came down upon them, and burnt them up. (Joſephus tells us, (c) that there was a dreadful Thunder and Lightning on that Day.) And there was an Appearance of Horſes, which ruſh'd upon them and deſtroy'd them, as often as they heard the Voices of the Children of Iſrael; ſo that none of the Enemies eſcap'd after this perfect Victory. The Scriptures mention nothing of Thunder, or ſuch Viſions on that Day; and yet it is probable, that ſuch things might happen not only then, but at other Times, ſince (d) David deſcribes his Victories in the ſame Manner. The earth ſhook and trembled, the foundations alſo of the hills moved and were ſhaken, becauſe GOD was wroth. At the brightneſs that was before him, his thick clouds paſſed, hailſtones and coals of fire. The LORD alſo thundered in the heavens, and the Higheſt gave his voice, hailſtones and coals of fire. Yea, he ſent out his arrows and ſcattered them, and he ſhot out lightnings, and diſcomfited them. And after this ſignal Victory, Joſhua (e) ſent an Expreſs to Eleazar the High Prieſt to Gilgal with a Letter, which mention'd all the Benefits conferr'd on the Children of Iſrael, and all the Miracles and Signs, which GOD wrought upon that Day, that ſo he might return publick and ſolemn Thanks for the ſame; and if any Credit can be given to this Story, this might be (f) the book of Jaſher, or, The upright Servant of GOD, which the Scripture mentions, and it might have been preſerv'd for ſome Ages, tho' it is ſince loſt.

19. After

19. After this ſignal Victory, Joſhua (g) took Makkedah, Libnah, Lachiſh, Gezer, Eglon, Hebron, and Debir, and all that Part of Canaan, which belong'd to the Tribes of Judah, Simeon, Benjamin, Dan, and Ephraim, or (h) all the ſouthern Parts of the Land of Canaan, from Jordan to the Mediterranean Sea, or from Kadeſh-barnea even unto Gaza, and all the Countrey of Goſhen even unto Gibeon. This was the Effect of the (i) ſecond Campaign, after which the Iſraelites enjoy'd a ſettl'd Peace for ſome Time, and ſo they all return to (k) Gilgal, where they celebrate their firſt Jubilee with all poſſible Demonſtrations of Joy and Praiſe, and this Year they began to compute the Fruits of (l) their land as uncircumciſed, which laſted the two following Years; and the next Year after this was (m) the Sabbatical Year, in which all the fruit was holy to praiſe the LORD withal, and from hence theſe two Epochas began among the Iſraelites.

Anno Mundi 2554. 2555. 2556. 2557.

20. This Delay to enter upon any other Expedition abated that Terror, with which the Inhabitants of the Land were ſeiz'd, inſomuch that all the Kings of the North of Canaan, (n) enter into a League with each other to fall upon the Iſraelites. Accordingly they rais'd a vaſt Army, which could not eaſily be number'd, and cover'd the Place where they were encamp'd, as the Sand covers the Sea Shore, ſo that the Earth could not be ſeen. And to make it the more formidable, they had a great Number of Horſes, whereas the Iſraelites were all on Foot. They had alſo ſo great a Number of Chariots, that Joſephus (o) reckons them to be twenty thouſand, the Uſe of which their Anceſtors had learn'd in the long Egyptian Wars. And they came, and form'd a Camp at the Waters of Merom, or the Upper Water, a Lake not far from the Fountain of Jordan near Hazor, where Jabin their King and General liv'd. Upon this GOD encourages Joſhua with a Promiſe of Succeſs. Accordingly he did not wait for their Motion, but march'd all Night, and attack'd them as they lay in their Quarters, and little expected the Enemy to be ſo near them. Thus he kill'd many, and routed all the reſt; upon which great Numbers fled to Zidon, and the Sea Coaſts, and ſo (p) made their Eſcape by Shipping, to all the Shores which lay round the Mediterranean and Ægæan Seas, and even to other Parts of Europe, Aſia, and Africa, of which (q) the learned Bochart hath given us a large Account in his incomparable Canaan, and particularly ſhewn, that the Names of moſt Places are of Phœnician or Hebrew Extraction. About this Time they ſet up their (r) two Pillars at Tangier with this Inſcription, We are they, who fled from the Face of Joſhua the Robber the ſon of Nun. About this Time they built the City of (s) Carthage, which at firſt they call'd Carthada, or The new City. And therefore the Story of Dido and Æneas, as mention'd in Virgil, muſt be falſe and groundleſs. For if we place her at this Time, it will be two hundred and fifty Years before the Siege of Troy; and if we place her according to (t) Servius about forty Years before the Building of Rome, it will be almoſt four hundred Years too late. Neither is it probable, that the Widow of a Prieſt flying the Country unknown to the King, could carry with her ſo great a Number of Men to a new Colony, as ſhould undertake to build ſo great a City; ſo that ſhe brought not Inhabitants thither, but found them there, and did not ſo properly build as only repair and enlarge the Town to which ſhe came. She built the Tower, which was call'd (u) Bozrah, or a Fort, in Hebrew; and from thence call'd Byrſa, or a Hide, in Greek; and ſo occaſion'd the fabulous Story, that Dido bought the Place to build the City on with little Bits of Leather mark'd, which was antiently us'd inſtead of Money. But others tell us, that when ſhe arriv'd on the Coaſts of Africa, ſhe was forbidden to tarry there by Hiarbas King of that Country, leſt ſhe with her Company might ſeize on a great Part of his Dominion, and therefore ſhe craftily deſir'd of him only to buy ſo much Ground as might be compaſs'd with an Ox Hyde; which, when ſhe had obtain'd, ſhe cut it into ſmall Thongs, and therewith compaſs'd two and twenty Furlongs, on which ſhe built the City afterward nam'd Carthage, and call'd the Caſtle Byrſa or Hide. All this we owe to the fertile Invention of the Greeks, to make every thing deriv'd from them. Whereas Dido coming from Tyre, knew nothing of that Language: and beſides, the old Carthaginian Language was the Phœnician or Hebrew, as appears by the old Remains thereof, which we have in Plautus's Pœnulus.

21. About this Time Cadmus came from Egypt, and brought Letters into Greece. Marſhall places him three Years before the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt, and (x) our learned Primate places him four Years before their Entrance into Canaan; and for this (y) he quotes (z) Diodorus Siculus, who ſaith, that when the ſtrangers were driven out of Egypt, Danaus and Cadmus went into Greece, and Moſes into Judæa. However there are others, who place him about ſeventy Years later. The Poets ſay, that he left his Country to ſeek for his Siſter Europa ſtolen away by Jupiter, or he left Aſia, and came into Europe; and that the Oracle commanded him to travel into Bœotia, where one of his Retinue was devour'd by a Dragon, as he was drawing ſome Water out of a Well which Cadmus ſlew by Minerva's Order, and ſowed its Teeth in a Field, from whence ſprang an Army of Men, who deſtroy'd one another except five, who yielded to him at this Time. But they, who ſeek for Truth in theſe curious and ingenious Fables, affirm, that Cadmus paſs'd into Bœotia, a Province of Greece, at that Time call'd Æole, and kill'd a Prince, who was call'd Dracon or Dragon, ſow'd cunningly a Diſſenſion among his Subjects, who would have oppos'd his Eſtabliſhment, and improving the Diſorder, made himſelf Maſter of the Country, and gave the Name of Thebes to the firſt City, which he built, to ſhew that his Anceſtors were of the great City of Thebes in Egypt. He poliſh'd and civiliz'd the People, and afterward the Diſtractions of his Family made him end his Life in Illyrium, now call'd Sclavonia. Some tell us, that he was the High Steward to a King of Tyre, or of Sidon; which laſt is moſt probable, becauſe Tyre was not built at this Time; and his Wife Hermione, or Harmonia, was a Player on the Flute. The Word Cadmus in Hebrew, ſignifies One who came from the Eaſt, and ſeems to determine him to have been of the Race of (a) the Cadmonites, which was a People in Paleſtina, the ſame with the Hivites, who antiently deſcended from (b) Canaan the Son of Ham. Harmonia deriv'd her Name from Mount Hermon in that Country. Many of theſe Cadmonites inhabited (c) Mount Hermon, which was the moſt eaſtern Part of the Land of Canaan, and ſignifies the ſame, as (d) Tabor lay in, and ſignify'd, The Weſt. His Soldiers the Hivites are ſaid to be chang'd into Serpents, becauſe the ſame Word both in Syriack and Arabick, ſignifies a Serpent. He was the Improver of Braſs, and therefore (e) the Stone of which it was made, was call'd Cadmia, and the ſame Word in the Hebrew Language ſignifies both Braſs and a Serpent. The Reducing his Army to five, might be taken from the different Senſe of the Word in Hebrew, which with a little Variation ſignifies either five, or (f) compleatly arm'd. The (g) Words which ſignify Serpents Teeth, may alſo be render'd Spears of Braſs, with which Cadmus was the firſt, who arm'd his Soldiers in Greece. And therefore the learned Bochart (h) thinks it probable, that ſome Phœnician might write of Cadmus after this Manner, He gather'd together a compleat Army of Men, who were arm'd with Spears of Braſs; and another might tranſlate it in this Manner, He made an Army of five arm'd Men, from the Teeth of a Serpent. By his Wife Hermione he had a Son call'd Polydorus, who ſucceeded him, and four Daughters, who were call'd Semele, Ino, Antonoe and Agave. He went from Sidon to Samothracia, and from thence into Thracia, and then into that Part of Oggia, which was ſince call'd Cadmeis, and now Bœotia, from whence he drove the Hyantes into Phocis, and ſubdu'd the Aones. He firſt built a Citadel call'd Cadmeia, and then a City call'd Thebes, in both which Places he is ſaid to reign ſixty two Years, which well agrees with the Age of Moſes and Joſhua his Contemporaries. About this Time alſo his Brother Cilix ſettl'd in that Part of Aſia over againſt Lesbos, which from him was call'd Cilicia, where he alſo built a City call'd Thebe Hypoplacia; and ſoon after his Brother Phœnix ſettl'd in Bithynia.

22. But that which preſerv'd the Memory of Cadmus beyond any Works of Braſs was, that he brought into Greece the Uſe of Letters. As the Eaſtern Countries wrote from the right Hand to the left; ſo the firſt Line in his Time began in the ſame Manner, but every Line afterward turn'd backward and forward being join'd to each other, in a Manner which they call'd βυστροφηδὸν, or like the Plowing of an Ox, which continu'd until Solon's Time, who alter'd it into the Method now in Uſe not only in Greece, but alſo in all other Parts of Europe. That Cadmus brought Letters into Greece, is agreed upon by (i) the general Conſent of Pagan Authors both Greek and Latin, and alſo the primitive Fathers, whoſe Teſtimonies the learned Bochart hath collected for this Purpoſe. The antient Letters, which the Egyptians, Phœnicians, Canaanites, Moſes and Cadmus us'd, were the Samaritan Character. This is plain from what (k) Dr. Walton obſerv'd, that there were many antient Shekels, on which theſe Words, Holy Jeruſalem, were written in the Samaritan Character, which muſt have been coin'd before the Revolt of the ten Tribes in the Time of Jeroboam, ſince after the Setting up of the golden Calves, they had a different Opinion of thoſe who adher'd to the Worſhip of GOD at Jeruſalem. So that the modern Hebrew Character was brought from Chaldea, at the Return of the Jews from the Babyloniſh Captivity, where they learn'd both their Language and their Way of Writing. This Alphabet conſiſted of two and twenty Letters, and of theſe Cadmus only us'd ſixteen, viz. α, β, γ, δ, ε, ζ, ι, κ, λ, μ, ν, ο, π, ρ, σ, τ, and Palamedes, who was at the Siege of Troy, added the other eight, or η, θ, ξ, υ, φ, χ, ψ, ω. After this ſome others added other Letters, which they call'd Επίσημα, or Marks, which were afterward in Uſe in Numbering by Letters, ſo that they were ſoon excluded from the Letters of the Alphabet, which they call'd Γεάμματα. After this the Greek Language and Character being common in Aſia and Africa by the Conqueſts of Alexander the Great, about three hundred Years before the Birth of CHRIST, the Egyptians laid aſide their old Way of Writing, and took the Greek Alphabet in its ſtead, adding to it ſome Letters of their own. This they call'd the Coptick or Egyptian Alphabet, being willing to attribute the whole to themſelves, becauſe they were ſuppos'd to be invented by Cadmus, who originally came from Thebes in Egypt. And thus a great Number of the Books in the famous Library at Alexandria were either written in the Greek Language (among which was the Tranſlation of the Old Teſtament into Greek, which we call The Septuagint Verſion) or written in the Egyptian Language and Coptick Character lately taken from the Greek. Perhaps the Placing of theſe Letters in their Order, and oppoſite to each other, as in the following Table, with ſome little Variation may be the propereſt Method to let us ſee the Antiquities of each, and how they were at firſt deriv'd from each other.

23. In Comparing of theſe Alphabets we may obſerve, Firſt, That the Names are of an oriental Derivation, and conſequently that they came from the Eaſt into Greece. The Names in Greek ſignify nothing, but in the Phœnician Language they are very expreſſive. Aleph, the firſt Letter, ſignifies a Captain or Leader; Beth, the ſecond, an Houſe; Gimel, the third, a Camel; Daleth, the fourth, a Door; Vau, the ſixth, a Hook; Caph, or Number 20, the Hollow of the Hand; Gnaiin, or Number 70, an Eye; and Shin, or Number 300, a Tooth. And therefore the Hebrews, or Chaldeans, in later Ages, made the Shape of the Letters ſomething like what was repreſented by the Words. The Letter Beth repreſents the Floor, Side and Roof of an Houſe; Gimel hath ſomething to repreſent a Bunch on a Camel's Back; Daleth hath the Side and Lintel of a Door; Vau is a Hook; Caph is hollow, like the Hollow of the Hand; Gnaiin reſembles two Eyes, with the Optick Nerves, as joining before they come to the Brain; and Shin repreſents three Teeth. Secondly, As theſe Letters were all originally Conſonants; ſo the Vowels added by the Greeks are of Greek Derivation. Epſilon is E ſhort, to diſtinguiſh it from Eta; Upſilon is U ſhort, to diſtinguiſh it from the Diphthong ou. Omicron is O little or ſhort, and Omega is O great or long. Thirdly, That the other Names of the Greek Alphabet are plainly deriv'd from the Phœnician, which ſhews that they came from thence; as Alpha, Aleph; Beta, Beth; Gamma, Gimel; Delta, Daleth; E, He; Bau, Vau; Eta, Heth; Theta, Teth; Iota, Jod; Cappa, Caph; Lambda, Lamed, &c. Fourthly, That the Uſe of theſe Letters in Numbers was known before they came among the Greek, the Order of both Alphabets being preſerv'd by the Addition of the Numerical Letters, where they are omitted. Fifthly, That the Greeks had their final Letters, viz. Theta θ, Rho ϱ, Sigma ς, by Imitation of the Oriental Alphabet, as appears in the Hebrew, and more plainly in the Syriack and Arabick Character; and the Latin and Engliſh took their final ȝ as ſtill in Uſe in the black Letter, and their final ʒ from the Greek. Sixthly, That Cadmus brought the Samaritan Character from Phœnicia into Greece. This will plainly appear, if we only obſerve, that the Samaritans and Phœnicians wrote from the Right Hand toward the Left; but the Greeks wrote from the Left Hand toward the Right; and theſe Letters, if we invert the Poſition of them for ſuch a Purpoſe, will appear to be the ſame. As 𐤀, Ββϐ; 𐤂, Γγϛ; 𐤃, Δ𐤃𐤃; 𐤄, Εε; 𐤆, ς; 𐤇, Κκ; 𐤋, Λλ; 𐤌, Μμ; 𐤍, Νν; 𐤐, Ρϱ; which is another Argument of the Antiquity of the Samaritan Character, beſide what is taken from the antient Shekels. And laſtly, That Cadmus did not bring the Coptick Letters from Egypt, but the Egyptians had their Coptick Letter from Greece; becauſe in this Egyptian Alphabet there are all the Letters, which Palamedes added to Cadmus's Letters long after his Time, or about the Time of the Siege of Troy.

24. But to return to the Hiſtory of the Iſraelites: Their Staying ſo long at Gilgal on the Banks of the River Jordan, as is already mention'd, embolden'd thoſe, who inhabited the northern Parts of the Land of Canaan, to enter into another Confederacy againſt them. For (l) Jabin the King of Hazor, which was the Metropolis of the northern Part of the Land, and afterward fell to the Tribe of Naphtali, ſent to all the remaining Kings, and to all the ſcatter'd People in all Parts of the Land to come and join him, that ſo they might make as great an Army as poſſible, and put the Iſſue of all upon one deciſive Battle. The vaſt Army which they rais'd, could not eaſily be number'd, they cover'd the Place, where they were encamp'd, as the Sand covers the Sea-Shore, ſo that the Earth could not be ſeen. To make the Victory more ſure, they brought together all the Horſe of the Country, which might more eaſily over-run their Enemies, being all Footmen. Joſephus (m) makes this Army to conſiſt of three hundred thouſand Foot, ten thouſand Horſes, and two thouſand Chariots. This vaſt Army pitch'd their Camp at the Waters of Merom or the Upper-Waters, which Joſephus calls (n) the Lake Samachonitis from the vaſt Quantity of Fiſh in it, that ſo they might be the better provided both with Proviſion and Water, until they had all things in a Readineſs to march to the Battle. Joſhua being under a great Fear, conſults the divine Oracle on this Occaſion, who encourages him to march and attack them with a Promiſe of Succeſs. Upon which he marches all that Day, and the following Night, in the ſame Manner as he march'd to Gibeon, and comes up with them early the next Morning. The Canaanites, who little expected a Viſit of this Nature, very probably took them to be a large Reinforcement come to join their Army, and ſo let them come within their Lines without Oppoſition, when they, taking the Advantage of the Surprize, deſtroy'd moſt of them before they could put themſelves in Order of Battle, or could diſtinguiſh who were Friends, and who were Enemies, whilſt this Lake of Jordan hinder'd their Retreat, and ſo occaſion'd a moſt entire Victory. In this Confuſion ſome of the Enemy fled weſtward to Zidon, and eaſtward to Mizpeh, and accordingly Joſhua divided his Forces, and purſued them wherever they fled, killing as many as they could overtake. He cut the Sinews of the Horſes, that they might not be ſerviceable at another Time, and burnt their Chariots. After this he took Hazor, which was the chief Town, ſlew their King, who began this War, and burnt the City in the Heat of Blood, which prov'd of ill Conſequence; for the Canaanites in the next Age rebuilt it, and dwelt in it, and the King thereof afterward was one of their Oppreſſors. However, as they came to be more cool; ſo when they took the fortified Towns, they preſerv'd them entire, and dwelt in them, and thus they ſav'd the Charge and Pains of rebuilding what they themſelves had deſtroy'd. Upon this he deſtroys the eleven Kingdoms, which were in the North of Canaan, takes all the Towns, and particularly deſtroys the Anakims, who dwelt toward the South, and ſubdues thoſe who had begun to put themſelves in a Poſture of Defence in thoſe Parts. Add thus theſe ſeven Summers put an End to all the Wars in Joſhua's Time; ſo that they then enjoy'd the Fruit of all their Labours.

25. The (o) Eaſtern Writers farther add, that after theſe Wars there was a great Purification of the Army. This was (p) commanded in Caſe a dead Perſon had been touch'd, and (q) was practis'd by the Iſraelites, after they had conquer'd the Midianites; and therefore they ſuppoſe, that it would not be omitted by Joſhua, ſince (r) it is ſaid, that he left nothing undone of all that the LORD commanded Moſes. However they deſcribe it after this Manner: A great River deſcended from the bleſſed Mountain of Gerizim, which water'd the Plain to which Joſhua went with his whole Army. And when the Purification was ended, Eleazar the Prieſt offer'd Sacrifices for them, and kept the Feaſt in the moſt beautiful and perfect Manner that ever was ſeen. For as yet they were not divided into their Poſſeſſions. And when they celebrated the Praiſes of GOD with Hymns for that Purpoſe, their Voices were heard afar off. And when this Feaſt was ended, Joſhua and the whole Congregation began to divide the Land for an Inheritance. But as there is no River, which deſcends from the Mount Gerizim, or the neighbouring Parts; ſo we muſt leave the Story as we find it.

26. Toward the latter End of this Summer, Joſhua being now ninety one Years of Age, and (s) conſidering that the Canaanites had yet ſeveral Places of Strength left them, which by Art and Nature were almoſt impregnable, he call'd a general Aſſembly of the People to meet at Shiloh, where the Appearance was very great, and wonderfully unanimous and chearful. Joſhua upon this Occaſion ſumm'd up what he had to ſay in few Words, and laid the Matter in Hand before them. He gave them a ſhort Hiſtory of the great things which they had done by GOD's Aſſiſtance, as a People, who religiouſly obſerv'd his Laws. He told them, how GOD had given them the Victory over the one and thirty Kings, who had the Confidence to take up Arms againſt them, and had rooted out the Generations of their moſt mighty Oppreſſors. But ſince the Conqueſt was as yet imperfect, there being many Cities remaining in their Hands, which were better mann'd and fortify'd, and that it would be a Work of Time to reduce them, therefore he thought it more adviſable, that Commiſſioners ſhould be choſen out of every Tribe, Men of approv'd Skill and Integrity, and that their Buſineſs ſhould be to take an exact Survey of the Country, and make a full Report of it without Fraud or Delay. The People being highly pleas'd with this Motion, Joſhua order'd his Agents to enter upon the Work, appointing them for their Aſſiſtants ſuch Men as were well skill'd in Surveying, and ſo could not be impos'd upon or miſled in the Account. He alſo gave them Inſtructions not only to ſurvey the Land by Meaſure, but alſo to make an Eſtimate of the Quality and Goodneſs of each Particular. And thus it is ſaid, that there were ten Men employ'd, according to the Number of the ten Tribes, who were to inherit it, who return'd at the End of ſeven Months, with ſuch an Eſtimate as was according to their Inſtructions. Upon this Joſhua call'd Eleazar the High Prieſt, with the Elders and Princes of the Tribes to his Aſſiſtance; and for the greater Impartiality in this Caſe, he (t) caſts Lots, to determine what Part of the Country every Tribe ſhould have. How this was done is not ſo eaſily known, tho' it is moſt probable, that they made as many Lots as were convenient, and wrote upon each of them the Name of ſome remarkable Place, and put them into the Lap of ſome principal Perſon; then they agreed whoſe Portion ſhould be determin'd by the Lot that ſhould be firſt drawn; and upon drawing the ſame gave that Place, and the Parts round it, to that Tribe, (u) according to the Number of the Tribe, and the Goodneſs of the Land. And thus by common Conſent (x) the Lot of Judah was the firſt Lot. All this was done at Gilgal, where the Tabernacle of the LORD ſeems to have con-tinu'd ever ſince its paſſing over Jordan. Before the Lot was drawn, (y) Caleb makes a Pretenſion to ſome Part of the Country, which he went over, when he ſpy'd the Land forty five Years before, and (z) pleads a Promiſe, which Moſes had given him, tho' the Words themſelves might have been ſpoken in a more general Senſe. He alſo puts it upon this Iſſue, that GOD aſſiſted him to drive out the Anakims from the fenced Cities which were there; and ſo he chooſeth the Country about Hebron for himſelf and his Poſterity. Joſhua agrees to this, and for a farther Confirmation of it, when the Lot was drawn, it plainly appear'd, that this Country belong'd to his own Tribe, and ſo he was ſeated among them.

27. When they had by Conſent ſettl'd the Bounds of Judah the royal Tribe, they agreed next to ſettle the Tribe of Joſeph, becauſe Joſhua was of the ſame. And upon this they (a) remove the Tabernacle of the Congregation from Gilgal, and fix it in Shiloh, a Place in the Tribe of Ephraim not far from Jeruſalem; ſo that it was near to Joſhua, who was of the ſame Tribe. Here it continu'd until the Days of (b) Samuel; and the Reaſon of its being remov'd hither was, becauſe after the Diviſion of the Land it would have been too far for all the Tribes of Iſrael to go to Gilgal, to perform all that the Law requir'd concerning the Tabernacle: Which was now indiſpenſably to be perform'd, tho' (c) whilſt thay were in the Wilderneſs, they did not live by theſe Rules; and perhaps, whilſt they continu'd unſettl'd in the Land of Canaan, they could not obſerve them. After this they aſſign the Portions to the reſt of the Tribes, and give a Part of the Tribe of Ephraim to Joſhua and his Poſterity, as before they had given a Part of Judah to Caleb. And then they (d) according to GOD's Direction, appoint ſix Cities for Refuge to the Manſlayer, and eight and forty Cities with their Suburbs to the Levites.

28. The (e) Samaritans, to give the better Colour to their Idolatry, tell us, that the Mount Gerizim, where their Temple ſtood, was given to Joſhua and to his Companion Caleb; where they forget that Caleb's Portion was in the Land of Judah. However they add, that when every Tribe was ſettl'd, he diſtributed the Levites to their proper Places, who had no diſtinct Tribe, becauſe their Buſineſs was to take Care of their Prayers, Judgments, Tithes and Sacrifices. That he ſet principal Judges over the Tribes, who ſhould give an Account to the High Prieſt of every thing, which was done in their Diviſions. After this Joſhua built a Fort on the left Side of the Mount Gerizim, where he ſpent one Day in every Week with Eleazar, another Day with the Surveyers, that he might recal into his Mind the things which had happen'd, and a third with the Princes of the People, that he might inquire into their State; a fourth he devoted to his private Affairs; and the other three Days the Book of the Law was not out of his Hand, but he read therein Day and Night. And this was the Method of his Life, when he neither went to War, nor was engag'd in a Journey. And that which is more ſurprizing, he built a Temple on the Top of this holy Mountain, in which there was an holy Place, which no Man ever ſaw but himſelf and the Prieſts and Levites.

29. Upon this Joſhua diſmiſſes (f) the Soldiers, who belong'd to the Tribes beyond Jordan, approves of their Conduct, thanks them for their Care, bleſſes them, and gives them Leave to return home. The Samaritans (g) add, that at this Time they eat and drank together, they renew'd their Covenant with each other, that they would perſevere in their Obedience to GOD, and Reſpect for his Prophet Moſes, and that they would aſſiſt each other without Delay, as Occaſion ſhould require. And when they had bound themſelves with this Oath, Eleazar the High Prieſt offer'd Sacrifices for them. That the Princes of the Congregation came together, when they thus parted; and that Joſhua (if we can believe them) appoints Nephich to be his Deputy in that Country. Upon this he clothes him with a royal Robe, puts a Crown on his Head, makes him ride on the choiceſt Horſe, whilſt a Cryer goes before him with this Oration, This is the King of the two Tribes and an half, the Preſident of Juſtice, the Director of Affairs, and the General in the Camp. Let his Commands be obeyed. Let his Determinations be concluſive. In all difficult Caſes let him deſire an Anſwer from Eleazar the High Prieſt. And if any one ſhall contradict his Sentence, or withdraw from his Allegiance, it ſhall be lawful for any one to kill that man, and the whole Congregation ſhall be blameleſs. And then Joſhua deliver'd to Nephich his Deputy a Copy of the Law of Moſes, and recommended to him the Reading therein Day and Night, telling him, that there were many wonderful and plain Duties therein neceſſary for the Prolonging of this Life, and Securing a better. After this Joſhua allots him two thouſand Levites to inhabit thoſe Cities, which were appointed for them, and to exerciſe all thoſe Offices, which did belong to them alone. Then (as they add) the Flags were diſplay'd, the Trumpets were blown, and Eleazar, Joſhua and their Companions rode on Horſes, when they took their Leave; and this was ſuch a famous Day (if we will believe them) that the like never happen'd ſince the Creation of the World. And thus they return'd with joyful and thankful Hearts. And when they, who were on the other Side of Jordan, heard of theſe things, the whole Tribes came to meet them, and ſo having tarried together for ſome Time, Nephich divided the Country according to the Number of the Inhabitants; and the Levites being ſettl'd in their Places, ſpent their Time in Praiſing and glorifying GOD for all his Benefits conferr'd upon them. And then (to uſe the Words of the ſame Author) the Children of Iſrael were completely ſettled in their Tribes, and worſhipp'd the LORD, and were accepted of him, and they offer'd Sacrifices, and bleſſed the People at all the Times appointed; ſo that all Calamities were remov'd from them, nor were any of their Enemies able to hurt them. They alſo went three Times every Year to the holy Mountain of Gerizim with various Gifts, and full of Joy and Gladneſs. Neither were any of their Enemies able to look them in the Face, or do them the leaſt Damage. Thus Joſhua, and the Prieſts, and the whole Army, liv'd in Peace and Quietneſs for twenty Years, in which Time their Enemies were remov'd far from them, and diſpers'd into the fartheſt Parts of the Earth. Their Neighbours were in Peace with them, and no one acted againſt them. There was no Kingdom enlarg'd except theirs, nor any outſtretch'd Arm but theirs; neither did any Day paſs in all that Time without a mutual Correſpondence between them.

30. When the Reubenites, Gadites and Manaſſites came to the other Side of Jordan, they (h) build a very high and large Building in the Form of an Altar. If (as (i) Joſephus ſaith) Joſhua erected an Altar with the twelve Stones, which the twelve Princes of the ſeveral Tribes brought with them out of the River by his own Order, for a Token and a Memorial to future Ages of the miraculous Separation of the Waters; and if Joſhua did offer a Sacrifice on this Altar, they might well conclude, that this would juſtify their Building another on the other Side of the ſame River, only to teſtify, that they were the ſame People, and own'd the ſame GOD, and the ſame Worſhip. However the Iſraelites took Umbrage at this, fearing that (k) it was deſign'd either for the Worſhip of a falſe GOD, or at leaſt for the Worſhip of the true GOD in a falſe Manner; and therefore they ſend over Phinehas the Son of Eleazar, with a principal Perſon out of each Tribe, to argue with them, and find out the Truth, and with a Reſolution, that if Occaſion requir'd, the whole Army would march and deſtroy them for their Idolatry. Phinehas argues the Caſe with them very warmly, and they give him an honeſt and ſatisfactory Anſwer. Upon this they call this (l) Altar Ed, that is, A witneſs, ſaying, This altar ſhall be a witneſs between us, that the LORD is our GOD. Phinehas was (m) overjoy'd, to find that all things were right, and returning immediately to Joſhua, gave him an Account of every thing in the Hearing of the People, who were all greatly pleas'd with the Reſult of this Embaſſage, when they ſaw things brought to ſo amicable a Concluſion without any Danger of a Civil War, or of Bloodſhed. Hereupon they ſacrific'd, and gave Thanks to GOD; after which Joſhua diſmiſs'd the Multitude to their ſeveral Habitations, and he himſelf took up his Abode in Shechem.

31. Some of the Eaſtern Writers add a very romantick Story concerning Joſhua, that his ſwift Conqueſts, and his Severity towards the Inhabitants of the Land of Canaan, made his Enemies call him (n) The evening or the deſtroying Wolf. And add, that (o) in his Time there was a King of Armenia the leſs, whoſe Name was Shaubeck the Son of Hemam, who made a Confederacy with five and forty Kings out of Perſia, and Media, as alſo Armenia the greater, Syria, Sidon, and the Remains of the Canaanites, and with them Japhet the Giant. Theſe by their united Strength raiſe an Army like the Sand of the Sea, and ſend a Letter to Joſhua, the Style whereof ſhews it to be written in a much later Age, being worded thus:

We know, O thou evening Wolf, what thou haſt done to our Neighbours. Thou haſt made our Palaces deſolate. Thou haſt kill'd, and haſt not ſpar'd. Thou haſt deſtroy'd all with the Sword, both young and old, without Diſtinction, and haſt laid all their Cities waſte. Know therefore, that we at thirty Days hence will come into thy Land, and invade thy Poſſeſſion, even to the Mountain, in which thou worſhippeſt thy GOD, which is call'd The holy Mountain [of Gerizim]. We the forty five Kings, every one of us being guarded with a thouſand valiant Men, handling the Bow and Darts, wearing Swords, and skill'd in War [will come]. And with us there is the Giant the Son of Japhet, arm'd with an Engine of Steel, with which he kills a thouſand, or at leaſt five hundred Men at a Time. Thoſe whom he brings with him are Kings, guarded with

Soldiers,

Soldiers, and arm'd with Inſtruments of War, which they all receiv'd in their own Right from their Grandfather Noah of bleſſed Memory. Be thou therefore ready, and provide thy Inſtruments of War, leſt thou ſhouldſt ſay hereafter, that we took thee unprovided. Upon this the Elders and chief Men of the Army thought fit to ſend this Epiſtle by a fit Embaſſador, who ſhould number the People, view the Camp, obſerve their Order, and give an Account of their Condition, and in what Manner they might be attack'd with the greateſt Advantage. This Embaſſador was ſent on the tenth Day of the ſecond Month, in the twenty firſt Year after the Entrance of the Iſraelites into the Land of Canaan, and came thither on the Day after the great Aſſembly of the Feaſt of Weeks began; and he brought the Epiſtle to Joſhua. At this Time he ſat upon his Royal Throne, judging the People, condemning ſome to be beheaded, others to be burnt, and others to be impriſon'd. And Joſhua commanded, that the Embaſſador ſhould be brought to him, tho' he refus'd to ſee him, before he had made an End of Judging the Children of Iſrael. At laſt he took the Epiſtle from his Hand, and read it in the Houſe of GOD, with Faſting, Weeping, and Mourning, and kept it at his own Houſe until the End of the Feaſt of Weeks, neither would he at that Time make the People ſad, tho' he himſelf laid up the Matter in his own Heart. In the mean Time the Embaſſador view'd the Multitude and good Diſcipline of the Army, the Strength and Valour of the King, the Commandments of their GOD and his Power, the Deſcent of the Pillar of Fire, and its Greatneſs. But when he beheld the High Prieſt, he was ſmitten with a ſecret Fear, becauſe he never ſaw any thing like him, nor heard of any ſuch in former Ages. But when the Feaſt was ended, Joſhua gather'd all the People together, and read the Epiſtle before them. After which he ſaid, I have fought many Battles. I have ſubdu'd many Kings, and was never afraid of any of them. But this Accident makes me fear and tremble. And the Congregation was ſad, and all their Joints did quake, and their Knees ſmote one againſt another, and they hung down their Heads toward the Earth. In the mean Time Joſhua had detain'd the Embaſſador in a private Place, that he could not ſee the Concern of the People. However the Multitude made this Anſwer to Joſhua, We never yet heard any ſuch thing. We never yet conquer'd any ſuch Perſon; and we never yet fought with ſuch an Army. But this War is the War of GOD, who is with us, and with our Children, and with thee alſo, O our King, Keeper and Lord. Thou ſhalt direct us by the Help of GOD, and as we have obey'd Moſes, ſo will we obey thee. Take thee a Roll of a Book, and write in a manly Style, and anſwer our Neighbours theſe perverſe Rebels, with Words as ſharp as theirs. Joſhua ſaid, Stand ſtill, that you may hear the Form, which I have drawn up, and if you like it, I will ſend it to them. And all the People anſwer'd, Open thy Mouth, and let thy Words be underſtood. Upon which he reads to them the following Letter, In the Name of the LORD GOD of Iſrael, who weakens the Strong and Proud, and kills the Wicked and Rebels, who ſeparates the Aſſemblies of Sinners and Robbers, and gathers together the diſperſed juſt and holy Men. He is GOD of Gods, and LORD of Lords, the GOD of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, the LORD, who is a Man of War. Joſhua the Servant of GOD, and the holy ſelect Synagogue, the bleſſed Aſſembly, the Multitude of the Congregation of the Children of Iſrael, the Sons of Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob ſaith, There is no Peace to the wicked People, to the Congregation ſmitten with Plagues, to the Worſhippers of Images, and Adorers of Idols. Know ye, that ye have done ill in Waking a ſleeping Lion, and ſtirring up a fierce Lion, by Putting a Sword into his Hand, when he is provok'd. I watching for Juſtice will render your Deſerts upon your own Heads. What Madneſs hath provok'd you to come into the holy Place, and pollute my Land? Put your ſelves in Order, and ſtir not a Foot from your Place; for after ſeven Days I will come to you, and kill your ſtrong Men, that there ſhall be no Poſſibility of Eſcaping. You boaſt indeed, that you have with you five and forty Kings, and every one of theſe is guarded with a thouſand valiant Men. I will not boaſt, becauſe the Kings of the Earth, but becauſe the glorious Angels are with me; one of which overturn'd Sodom and Gomorrah, another brought in the Flood, and a third divided the World into ſeventy Nations. The People which are with me being ſix hundred thouſand Men, both ſtrong and valiant, paſs'd the Sea with a dry Foot. GOD went before them by Night in a Pillar of Fire, and by Day in a Pillar of Cloud. Twelve thouſand of the choiceſt of them ſlew the five Kings of Midian, and Balaam the Son of Beor, and all their Males without the Loſs of a Man. We have a Prieſt, whoſe Name is Phinehas, in whoſe Hands are the holy Trumpets; ſo that when he blows in them, all our Enemies fall down before us. Have you not heard, that Pharaoh and all his Multitude were overwhelm'd in the Sea, and we paſs'd over as on dry Land? Hath it not been told to you, what we have done to Amalek and his People? Have you not ſeen what we have done to Sihon and Og, the two Kings of the Amorites? Is it not evident, what we have done to the one and thirty Kings of Canaan? What then? If the Son of Japhet the Giant is with you; yet with us there is the Giant of Giants, and one who is exalted far above all. By this we may ſee the Bombaſt Style of the Arabian Writers, and how fertile and formal they are in their Arabian Tales, mentioning the particular Names and Places, with the Year and Day of the Month, and ſometimes the Day of the Week. In theſe Stories their Romantick Inventions, without the leaſt Foundation in Scripture, their Miſtakes in Chronology or Geography or both, their Adding new-invented Traditions, or ſome ſuch like Incoherence, diſcovers the whole, and makes them even ſuſpected, when they tell the Truth. And by this we may ſee what Inventions the Samaritans were forc'd to make, to vindicate their Temple in Mount Garizim, in Oppoſition to the Worſhip of GOD at Jeruſalem.

32. When the Time of Joſhua's Death drew nigh, he (p) ſummon'd the chief Perſons of the Iſraelites to come to him either at Timnath-ſerah, where he liv'd, or to Shiloh, where the Tabernacle of the Congregation was ſet up; when he earneſtly exhorts them to continue ſtedfaſt in the Worſhip of the true GOD, by a Repetition of his former Benefits, by Promiſes of future Bleſſings, if they were obedient; and by Threatning ſevere Judgments, if they were diſobedient. But probably living ſome Time longer than he expected, and thinking this not to be ſufficient, he afterward (q) gives them a ſhort Hiſtory of GOD's Bleſſings beſtow'd on that Nation, from the Time of Terah the Father of Abraham until that Time, when he ſpake to them. Upon this Joſhua propoſeth to them to chooſe, whether they would ſerve the GOD of their Fathers, or the Gods of the Heathen round about them, or the Gods of their Country; and when they had choſen to ſerve the God of their Fathers, he enters into a Covenant with them for this Purpoſe, which they ſolemnly promiſe three Times. Then he ratifies the ſame, he orders a great Stone to be ſet up by the Sanctuary as a Witneſs of it, and writes an Account of the whole Proceedings in the Book, which at this Time goes under his Name in the Old Teſtament.

Anno Mundi 2578.

33. The Eaſtern Writers not content with the Account mention'd in the ſacred Scriptures, have (r) added, That when the Death of Joſhua was near, he call'd together the Children of Iſrael, and after the Particulars already mention'd, he offer'd Sacrifices for himſelf and them, and wiſh'd them Proſperity almoſt in the ſame manner as Moſes had done before him. And he choſe twelve Captains out of the nine Tribes and an half, and try'd them both in the ſpeculative and practical Parts of Learning, and caſting a Lot in the Preſence of the whole Congregation in a famous Plain, the Lot for the Kingdom fell upon a Man, whoſe Name was Abil, a Brother's Son of Caleb, of the Tribe of Judah, to whom he gave the Kingdom and the Law, and put the Crown upon his Head. After this he commanded the People to obey him, and commanded him to obſerve the Directions of the High Prieſt, to acquaint him with all the publick Affairs, and undertake nothing of Moment without his Direction.

34. After the Covenant made between GOD and the Iſraelites, Joſhua died, being an hundred and ten Years old, and having govern'd the People five and twenty Years from the Death of Moſes; of whom (s) Joſephus gives this Character, He was a man of political Prudence, and endued alſo with a ſingular Felicity of popular Eloquence in Expreſſing his Thoughts, brave and indefatigable in War, and no leſs juſt and dexterous in Peace; and in ſhort, a Perſon qualify'd for all great Purpoſes. He was (t) bury'd in Timnath-ſerah in Mount Ephraim, a City which (u) was given him for an Inheritance for his great Services, which he built, in which he afterward liv'd, and where probably he died; and it is reported, that (x) the ſharp Stones, with which he (y) circumcumcis'd the Iſraelites in Gilgal, were bury'd with him. This Place was call'd (*) Timnath-heres, or The Image of the Sun; and the Jews (z) give this Reaſon for it, becauſe the Image of the Sun was engraven upon his Sepulchre in Commemoration of that famous Day, when (a) the Sun ſtood ſtill, until he had compleated the Victory. Tho' if the Liberty of a new Conjecture might be allow'd, another Reaſon may be aſſign'd, which is this.

35. Among the reſt of the idolatrous Worſhip of the Canaanites, that of the Sun, Moon and Stars was very common, which made GOD (b) caution the Iſraelites ſo much againſt it. In this City there was a great Image of the Sun for this Purpoſe, and therefore the City was call'd by this Name (as On in Egypt was afterward call'd Heliopolis). Now GOD having commanded the

Iſraelites,

Iſraelites, that (c) the Names of the Idols ſhould not ſo much as be mention'd by them, the Reubenites (d) alter'd the Names of thoſe Towns, where the Idols were mention'd; and Joſhua, ſo good a Man, might do the ſame. And to prevent the ill Effects of this Name, he calls it no longer Timnath-heres, or, The Image of the Sun, but Timnath-ſerah, or, The Image of Wantonneſs; and when the Iſraelites fell from GOD into the Idolatry of their Neighbours, they (e) call'd the Town again by its antient Name.

36. Much about this Time they (f) bury'd the Bones of Joſeph, which the Iſraelites brought out of Egypt. And (g) perhaps this might be one Reaſon for Gathering the laſt great Aſſembly, which was in the Life of Joſhua, that they might the more ſolemnly depoſite the Bones of this great Man in that Portion of Land, which (h) his Father had given him, rather than in the Cave of Machpelah. And it may reaſonably be thought alſo, that the Bodies of the Sons of Jacob, from whom the reſt of the twelve Tribes deſcended, were brought into Canaan, to be there interr'd, as (i) Joſephus relates from an antient Tradition, and (k) St. Stephen confirms it. For tho' Joſeph excell'd them all in Dignity, and gave (l) a ſpecial Charge about his Body; yet no Doubt every Tribe had as great a Regard for the Head of it, and would be inclin'd to do the ſame for their Fathers, which Joſeph deſir'd for himſelf. Thus (m) when Caleb died, it is reported, that they bury'd him in his Neighbourhood, and that his (n) Sepulchre was well known for many Ages after.

37. Soon after the Death of Joſhua (o) died Eleazar the High Prieſt the Son of Aaron, of whom it is ſaid, that (p) when his Death was near, he did the ſame which Joſhua the Son of Nun had done before him. He call'd together the Nobles of the Children of Iſrael, and ſtrictly enjoin'd them Obedience to the Laws of GOD, and bleſſed them and the Tabernacle, and the Servants of GOD. And taking off his holy Garments, with which he was cloth'd, he put them on Phinehas his Son, and died; and they bury'd him in a Hill that pertain'd to his Son, which was given him in Mount Ephraim, and the whole Congregation of the Children of Iſrael mourn'd for him, according to the Cuſtom of their Fathers.

38. An Eaſtern Writer of good Credit (q) ſaith, that it is reported, that in the Time of Moſes that kind of Poeſy began, which was call'd Comedy, in which were related the Vices, and ſcurrilous Expreſſions of Men, and their Acts which were common to Brutes; and alſo that there was another Kind of Poeſy invented call'd Tragedy, in which were related the Virtues and Praiſes of Men, and ſuch Deeds which were common to Angels. If theſe ſcenick Entertainments were invented in Greece, as the Names ſeem to imply, being of a Greek Derivation, they muſt be of later Date, ſince Cadmus firſt brought Letters into that Country in the Time of Joſhua. Accordingly (r) another places it in his Time. Horace (s) tells us, that Theſpis was the firſt Inventer of Tragedy, which was very mean at firſt, and grew up to a greater Perfection. But when Theſpis liv'd is impoſſible to determine. The firſt tragick (t) Writer, whoſe Writings are extant, is Æſchylus, a Greek Poet, who liv'd nine hundred Years after. So that it is probable, that theſe Entertainments were not invented; but it is certain, that they were not brought to any Perfection until after the Inſtitution of the Olympick Games.

CHAP. III.

From the Death of Joſhua to the Coronation of Saul.

AFTER the Death of Joſhua and Eleazar the High Prieſt, who died about the ſame Time, Phinehas his Son ſucceeded in that Office, who held it, as ſome (a) ſay, five and twenty, but (b) more probably about fifty Years. Whilſt (c) any of thoſe liv'd, who had ſeen Jordan dried up, the Walls of Jericho fall down, and the Sun ſtand ſtill, the Iſraelites kept alſo to their Religion, and on all Occaſions conſulted GOD by the High Prieſt. But when (d) they died, the next Generations grew worſe and worſe, until national Calamities did frequently bring them to Repentance. Tho' Joſhua had conquer'd the whole Land, yet there were many of the old Inhabitants left in Cities, Mountains, and fenced Places, particularly in the Tribe of (e) Judah. Now Joſhua having left no Succeſſor, as Moſes did, but concluding, that GOD would direct them what to do, and they reſolving to root out the Canaanites one after another, they (f) come to Shiloh, and deſire Phinehas to repreſent their Caſe to GOD, and beſeech his Directions. The Queſtion ask'd was, What Tribe ſhould begin to fight againſt the Canaanites, who dwelt in their Country, to root them out? And GOD anſwer'd, that the Tribe of Judah ſhould begin, and be ſucceſsful againſt their Enemies. Thus (as (g) Jacob propheſy'd long before) the Hand of Judah was upon the neck of his enemies. He was like a lion's whelp, and went firſt up from the prey, or from the Dividing of the Country to enlarge their Conqueſts. The Tribe of Simeon adjoining to the Tribe of Judah, they both join their Forces together to aſſiſt each other, and ſo they (h) conquer the old Inhabitants, and kill ten thouſand of them in one Battle at Bezek. They alſo take Adoni-bezek, that is, the King or Lord of Bezek. And perhaps hearing of his Cruelty to others, they do the ſame by him, they cut off his Thumbs and his great Toes, that he might be uncapable of bearing Arms becauſe of the Loſs of his Thumbs, or to run ſwiftly becauſe of the Loſs of his Toes. Upon this he acknowledges, that he had done the ſame by ſeventy Kings or petty Princes of that Land, ſome of which might govern at the ſame Time, and others might be Kings of the ſame Places, who ſucceſſively oppos'd him, and were dethron'd by him. Upon this Adoni-bezek owns the juſt Judgments of GOD, and adds, (i) As I have done; ſo he hath requited me.

Anno Mundi 2579.

2. After Joſhua had conquer'd the ſouth Country, he ſpent ſome Time in Gilgal, and was engag'd in the northern Wars, during which Time the old Inhabitants return'd again, and took Poſſeſſion of ſeveral Cities. He had before taken the King of Jeruſalem, and probably his City; but now the Tribe of Judah is forc'd again to beſiege it; and (k) upon the Taking thereof, they diſpoſſeſs the Jebuſites, who dwelt there, of all but the ſtrong Fortreſs on the Top of Mount Sion, which (l) held out till the Time of David. Thus (m) the Towns of Debir and Hebron (which (n) Joſhua had before taken) revolted, and occaſion'd ſome Trouble, before they could be regain'd. Thus the Tribes of Judah and Simeon aſſiſting each other, conquer'd Jeruſalem, and the mountainous Country round it, and the ſouth Part near the Wilderneſs of Paran, and the adjacent Parts; and when theſe Countries had been gain'd for the Tribe of Judah, they alſo aſſiſted (o) the Simeonites, and took Gaza, and Aſhkelon, and Zephath or Hormah, which afterward belong'd to them.

3. Who was their General on this Occaſion is not expreſly mention'd either in Scripture, Joſephus, or other antient Hiſtory; tho' without Doubt it was Caleb. He was of the Tribe of Judah, and conſequently a fit Perſon for this Purpoſe. He was older than any other Perſon by twenty Years, and yet (p) like Moſes, he continu'd in his full Strength and Vigor. He and Joſhua were the only remaining Spies, which ſearch'd out the Land, and acted ſincerely, and therefore as Joſhua was the firſt General, he had the greateſt Right to ſucceed him; and this might be the Reaſon that Joſhua nam'd no other. He and Joſhua were (q) the two only Perſons to whom the Iſraelites gave Inheritances for their ſignal Services; and as his Inheritance lay unconquer'd in this Tribe, he had the greateſt Reaſon to be active in the Reducing of it. He (r) promiſes a Reward to the Perſon who ſhould take Debir, and performs it accordingly. His Name alone is mention'd in all theſe Wars; and his Son-in-Law Othniel the Son of Kenaz was (s) the firſt Deliverer of the Iſraelites from their Oppreſſors, and ſeems to ſucceed Caleb in this Dignity as his neareſt and moſt valiant Relation. The Reward, which Caleb promis'd, was the Marrying of his Daughter, and this was the ſame, which (t) King Saul afterward promis'd to him that ſhould kill Goliah.

4. But now in Length of Time the Zeal of the Iſraelites for the Worſhip of GOD declines, and then they met not with the ſame Succeſs, which they had at firſt. But (u) either thro' Sloth or Covetouſneſs, or Diſtruſt of GOD's Power, or more Lenity than the Law of Moſes allow'd, they did not attempt thoſe People, who were ſtronger than ordinary, or being unfaithful to GOD they fail'd in their Attempt, or having ſome Succeſs only brought them under Tribute. And it is moſt likely, that they were ſo affrighted at the iron Chariots, which were in the plain Country, and forgot the Promiſes, which GOD had given them, that they

they were willing to make no farther Attempts; and thus the idolatrous People remain'd among them, which was the Cauſe of all their Misfortunes, and the Children of Judah and Simeon having (as they thought) ſecur'd their own Country, went no farther to aſſiſt the other Tribes, fearing leſt there might be more Revolts in their Abſence.

5. However ſome of the other Tribes being encourag'd by this Succeſs of Judah and Simeon, take the ſame Methods. The Children of Joſeph had (x) before complain'd to Joſhua, that the Country allotted was too narrow for them; and Joſhua had foretold to them, that they ſhould conquer the woodland Country, and the Perizzites, and the Giants, and ſhould drive out the Canaanites, tho' they were very ſtrong, and had Chariots of Iron; ſo that encourag'd by ſuch a Prediction, they (y) retook Bethel, and enlarg'd their Conqueſts.

6. But the Condition of the Danites was (z) the worſt of all. They could neither expel the old Inhabitants of the Country, nor make them Tributaries, nor ſo much as poſſeſs it together with them. But the Amorites diſtreſſed them ſorely, by Penning them up in the Cities that were in the mountainous Part of the Country, not ſuffering them to dwell in the Plain; and they ſeem'd to be ſo ſtrong with Chariots of Iron and other military Preparations, that the Danites did not dare to engage them. And to add to their Affliction, they would not let them enjoy all the mountainous Country, but poſſeſs'd the three Cities call'd Mount Heres, or, The Mountain of the Sun, Aijalon and Shaalbim. However in the Midſt of theſe Diſtreſſes, the Tribe of Joſeph came to their Aſſiſtance, which brought the Amorites ſo much under, that theſe three Cities, and probably all the low Countries which they inhabited, were taken from them, which at laſt gave ſuch a Check to their Inſolence, that they were confin'd to a more narrow Tract of Land than they had at firſt.

7. However the Amorites ſtill keeping Poſſeſſion of a conſiderable Part of the Country, made the remaining Part much too little for the Tribe of Dan, and therefore (a) they ſend five Men to ſearch out the Land, and bring an Account, in what Part of the neighbouring Country they might enlarge their Conqueſts. Theſe Spies go to the Houſe of Micah of Mount Ephraim, whoſe (b) Mother thinking it too much to go ſo far as Shiloh to worſhip and ſacrifice there, had made an Ephod, and a graven and a molten Image, with a Deſign to worſhip the true GOD in an idolatrous Manner. At firſt one of the Sons of Micah was conſecrated to be the Prieſt; and afterward they took in a Levite for this Purpoſe. Some of theſe Men being acquainted with this Levite, and finding after ſome Diſcourſe that he officiated as a Prieſt, they told him the Cauſe of their Journey, and deſir'd him to inquire of GOD, what Succeſs they ſhould have. The Levite, moſt probably, feigning an Anſwer out of his own Head to flatter and pleaſe them, aſſures them of Succeſs; ſo they came to a (c) Place call'd Leſhem or Laiſh, a City which lay at the Foot of Mount Libanus near the Fountain of Jordan, and finding it to be a pleaſant and a fruitful Country, and no Care taken to ſecure it, they return to their Brethren with the News, and encourage them to undertake the Conqueſt of it. Upon this ſix hundred choice Men are appointed to ſeize it by Surprize. Theſe Men march the firſt Day to Kirjath-jearim, which lay in the north Part of the Tribe of Judah. On the weſt Side of the City they lodge the firſt Night, and from this Accident the Place was call'd Mahaneh Dan, or, The Camp of Dan. The next Night they come to Mount Ephraim, where by Force they take away the Levite, and all the Gods which Micah had made, and promiſe the Levite to make him the Prieſt to the whole Tribe, which he immediately accepts of, and was wonderfully pleas'd with the Offer. The third Day they come to Laiſh, where they burn the City, deſtroy the People, and ſeize upon the Country. Upon this they build another City, and call'd it Dan, which was the Name of their Tribe. And having ſo good Succeſs as they had been promis'd, they ſet up this graven Image, and make this Levite to be their Prieſt; which idolatrous Worſhip continu'd there until the Time that the Ark of GOD was taken Captive by the Philiſtines in the Days of Samuel. Thus Idolatry firſt began in the Tribe of Dan, and (d) afterward quickly ſpread into all the other Tribes, as ſoon as the Elders were dead, who ſurviv'd Joſhua; and this is the Reaſon that (e) the Tribe of Dan is left out of the Number of the Servants of GOD, whom St. John ſaw ſeal'd when he wrote the Revelations.

pen'd a great civil War among the Iſraelites, which almoſt brought the Tribe of Benjamin to Ruin on this Occaſion. The (g) Wife of a Levite of Mount Ephraim having play'd the Whore, run away to her Father to Bethlehem Judah. The Levite went to fetch her back, and lodging at Gibeah, the Inhabitants ſo abus'd her that ſhe died. The Levite gave this Account to all the Children of Iſrael. They in a general Aſſembly reſolve to have Juſtice for the Injury. They prepare for Battle, and at the ſame Time ſend Men to the Benjamites, in whoſe Tribe this happen'd, to demand Satisfaction by Delivering up the Men of Gibeah, who did this Injury, to be put to Death. The Benjamites refuſe it, and ſo a civil War begins. Thus the Iſraelites having tolerated Idolatry, and neither ſtirring againſt Micah or the Danites, this Toleration breeds all Iniquity, ſo that Gibeah is become as abominable as Sodom. At their firſt Enterprize they conſult GOD, whether they ſhould go againſt the Benjamites to Battle; but they never ask what Succeſs they ſhould have in it. Accordingly GOD gives them Leave to go up, but gives them no Promiſe of Succeſs, becauſe he reſolv'd to puniſh them for their Iniquity; ſo that when they went up againſt Gibeah of Benjamin, forty thouſand of them were ſlain by that wicked Town, and by the Tribe, which took Part with it, in two ſeveral Engagements. Thus did Benjamin ravin like a wolf, a fearleſs and an undaunted Creature, (h) as it had been propheſy'd of him; and thus did GOD avenge his own Cauſe againſt Iſrael, becauſe Iſrael would not avenge GOD's Cauſe againſt Idolatry. They were very ſenſible of an Injury done to a Whore in Gibeah; but little regarded as great an Injury done to GOD by the Idolatry of the Danites. After the ſecond Defeat, the Iſraelites humble themſelves in a very ſolemn Manner: They came to the houſe of GOD, and wept, and ſat there before the LORD, and faſted a whole day until evening, and offered burnt-offerings and peace-offerings before the LORD; and they deſire Phinehas the Son of Eleazar, the Son of Aaron, who was then the High Prieſt, to intercede with GOD for them. Phinehas was without Doubt very zealous in this Caſe (as he (i) had been before in the Wilderneſs, in a Caſe of a like Nature) and pray'd ſo long before the Ark of the Covenant, till GOD gave them the Promiſe of a Victory the next Day. This was effected by the ſame Stratagem, whereby (k) Ai had been taken before by Joſhua, viz. by Feigning a Flight, and ordering Liers to wait to ſeize on the City, and burn it with Fire, and then to march out againſt the Enemy, and ſo to deſtroy them on every Side, without any Poſſibility of Retreating. And thus when GOD had us'd Benjamin to execute his Vengeance againſt Iſrael for not puniſhing Idolatry, he then uſeth Iſrael as an Inſtrument to puniſh Benjamin for not delivering Gibeah up to Juſtice; and this Tribe is (l) properly become Benoni, or the Son of Sorrow. In this Senſe the Prophet (m) tells Iſrael, that they had ſinned from the days of Gibeah. This was therefore near the Time of their firſt Idolatry. There they ſtood; and the battle in Gibeah againſt the children of iniquity did not overtake them, ſo as to deſtroy them all, as they juſtly deſerv'd. For the Iſraelites eſcap'd with the Loſs of the tenth Part of their Army; and tho' the Benjamites were thus deſtroy'd, yet ſix hundred Men (n) fled into the Wilderneſs to the Rock Rimmon, where they continu'd four Months, at the End of which Time the Anger of the Iſraelites was abated, ſo that (o) they ſent them a Peace, and provided Wives for them, partly by Seizing on thoſe Virgins which were in Jabeſh-Gilead, and partly by Seizing on thoſe which danc'd in Shiloh at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, and ſo the Tribe was again recruited. And as Shiloh was in the Tribe of Ephraim the Son of Joſeph; ſo (*) the Prophecy of Jacob concerning that Tribe, (as it may be tranſlated from the Hebrew) ſeems now to be fulfill'd, that his daughters went ſolemnly even over to the enemy, to repair the hoſtile Tribe of Benjamin, which otherwiſe had decay'd for want of Wives. And thus was Joſeph like a fruitful Bow, not only in his own Tribe, but alſo in affording Help to another.

9. It may be queſtion'd, who was their General in this Expedition? And in Anſwer to this we may reaſonably ſuppoſe, that it was Othniel the Son-in-Law to Caleb, of the Tribe of Judah. Had Caleb been alive at this Time, he would have exerted his Zeal againſt thoſe Idolaters, and we ſhould have heard of his Acts on this Occaſion. But he being dead, the Government could not otherwiſe devolve but to ſo near a Relation, and one who before had (p) ſignaliz'd himſelf ſo valiantly at the Taking of Debir, or Kirjath-ſepher. At the Death of Joſhua (q) the Iſraelites asked of GOD ſaying, Who ſhall go up for us againſt the Canaanites firſt to fight againſt them. And the LORD ſaid, Judah ſhall go up. When it is ſuppos'd that Caleb was made their General, as having the beſt Title to it of any in that Tribe. battle againſt the children of Benjamin? And the LORD ſaid, Judah ſhall go up firſt. Had Caleb been living this Queſtion would have been needleſs; ſo that we may ſuppoſe Othniel his Son-in-Law to ſucceed him, who was ſoon after the firſt Deliverer of the Iſraelites from a foreign Oppreſſor.

10. The Numbers in both Armies at this Time may afford us ſome Speculations. The Number of (s) the Iſraelites are ſaid to be four hundred thouſand Men, and the Benjamites were but (t) twenty ſix thouſand and ſeven hundred, ſo that the Odds was almoſt fifteen to one; and yet this ſmall Army defeated the other in two ſet Battles, and kill'd more of them than they themſelves were in Number, which ſhews the Power of GOD to raiſe up a ſmall Army, whenever he pleaſes to execute his Vengeance. Secondly, It is ſaid, that (u) when Benjamin was defeated, they loſt in that Day twenty five thouſand and an hundred Men, and (x) only ſix hundred men eſcaped and fled into the wilderneſs; ſo that there are a thouſand Men not accounted for. But this Difficulty ceaſes, when we conſider, that (y) the two former Battles could not be fought without Loſs on the Benjamites Side, and the other thouſand Men may be ſuppos'd to have been kill'd on thoſe Days. Thirdly, A greater Difficulty yet remains, for (z) it is firſt ſaid, that at this total Defeat of the Benjamites, the Children of Iſrael deſtroyed of them on that day twenty and five thouſand and an hundred men. But when they are diſtinctly number'd, they appear to be an hundred leſs. For (a) they trod them down over againſt Gibeah toward the ſun riſing. And there fell of Benjamin eighteen thouſand. And they gleaned of them in the highways five thouſand men, and they purſued hard after them to Gidom, and ſlew two thouſand of them. So that all which fell that day of Benjamin, were twenty and five thouſand men, that drew the ſword. And yet when this all is ſo particularly reckon'd up, it wants an hundred of the other Account. To anſwer this it muſt be conſider'd, that the Number here reckon'd are thoſe which died in the open Field of Battle, either over againſt Gibeah, or in the Highways, or at Gidom, and they were no more. But beſide theſe, an hundred Men might be left in Gibeah, which were kill'd when the Ambuſcade ſurpriz'd the Town, and this makes up what was wanting in the other Number.

11. And now it might have been thought that ſuch a Judgment would have led them to Repentance; but inſtead thereof they grow worſe and worſe. Before, they worſhipp'd the true GOD in an idolatrous Manner, but when (b) all that Generation was dead, which came into the Land of Canaan, the reſt, who ſucceeded them, forſook even the Worſhip of the true GOD, and by Marrying among the idolatrous Natives began to worſhip their Gods, ſuch as Balim and Aſhtaroth, and the Gods of the Nations, which were round about them. When therefore the civil Wars did not reclaim them, GOD was pleas'd to deliver them up to foreign Enemies, and the (c) firſt whom he rais'd up for this Purpoſe, was Cuſhan the Emperor of the Aſſyrian Monarchy at that Time. The Heathen Hiſtorians call him Teutæus, who began this Oppreſſion in the fourth Year of his Reign, and reign'd four and forty Years. The Scripture calls him King of Meſopotamia, becauſe that Part of his Kingdom lay neareſt to the Iſraelites, and he probably attack'd them from that Quarter, being alſo neareſt to the Tribe of Dan, where their Idolatry began, that ſo they might learn their Sin from their Puniſhment. Joſephus (d) affirms him to have been King of the Aſſyrians. And (e) others think, that theſe Words may ſignify the wicked Cuſhite, ſuch as the Kings of Aſſyria were, being deſcended from Cuſh by Nimrod. And the Chaldee Paraphraſe, the antient Syriack and Arabick, tranſlate the latter Word as an Epithet rather than a proper Name. The Prophet Habakkuk (f) by Cuſhan means either the King or the Monarchy of the Aſſyrians. The Word Cuſhan-riſhathaim (g) may well be render'd Cuſhan, King of the two wicked Kingdoms; and the Aſſyrian Monarchy was like two Kingdoms at that Time; the two greateſt Cities in the World, viz. Babylon being the Metropolis of the one, and Nineveh being the Metropolis of the other. And Pliny aſſures us, that all Meſopotamia was the Aſſyrians; and we never read that they revolted from them, but devolv'd with the Empire to the Medes and Perſians. This King of Aſſyria forc'd the Iſraelites to buy their Peace upon hard Terms, for the Space of eight Years, and brought them under Tribute to him, but did not impoſe Gariſons upon them; ſo that they more eaſily recover'd their Liberty, when Othniel the Son-in-Law of Caleb appear'd at the Head of them, who ſo entirely overthrew and routed all his Forces, that he could not recover his Strength to oppreſs them again, and we read no more of the Aſſyrians acting in this Manner till the Reign of David.

12. After

12. After this the Iſraelites (h) had no Wars for the Space of forty Years, in which Space of Time Othniel died, and we read not of any Succeſſor. Phinehas the Son of Eleazar died alſo, being ſuppos'd to have executed the Office of the High Prieſt for the Space of about fifty Years, and was ſucceeded in the ſame Office by his Son Abiezer. His Grandfather the Son of Aaron was call'd Eliezer, or My GOD is my Help; but the Jews declining towards Idolatry, the Name of GOD is omitted, and ſo he is call'd Abiezer, or My Father is my Help, as if at this Time this was the beſt Title, whereby to ſecure the Prieſthood. Anno Mundi 2628.

13. About this Time alſo (as it may probably be (i) conjectur'd) GOD ſent (k) a Famine in the Land to ſucceed the Sword. So that the ſame Reaſon, which formerly oblig'd Jacob and his Family to go into Egypt, oblig'd others alſo at this Time to remove out of the Land of Canaan. Among theſe was Elimelech of Bethlehem Judah, who went into the Land of Moab with his Wife Naomi, and his two Sons Mahlon and Chilion. This Famine began when Othniel (l) judg'd Iſrael, and continu'd (m) ten Years, in which Time theſe two Sons marry'd two Moabitiſh Women, the Name of the one was Orpah, and the Name of the other was Ruth. Before the Famine was ended, the three Men died, and the Women were left deſolate; ſo that Naomi hearing that there was Plenty in Canaan, reſolves to go into her own Country, and leave her Daughters-in-Law behind her. For this Purpoſe ſhe takes a formal Leave of both. And Orpah with much Perſuaſion ſtay'd behind, but Ruth reſolv'd to go with her. She left her own Country, Kindred, and Relations, which (if the Jews may be credited) were not only honourable but royal, out of her great Affection to her Mother-in-Law and her Religion, to live with her in the Land of Canaan in a poor and mean Condition. Thus when the Iſraelites went off to Idolatry, a Moabiteſs embraces the true Worſhip of GOD; and when the Jews for their Wickedneſs were rejected, the Gentiles were admitted into Covenant. Her Hiſtory alone makes one of the canonical Books of Scripture, and is inſerted to prove, that CHRIST ſprang out of the Tribe of Judah, and of the Family of David, but by a Gentile Woman (that all Nations might hope in his Mercy) full of Faith and of earneſt Deſire to enter into that Family; which made her deſpiſe the Pride of her own Nation, and chooſe to live deſpicably among the People of GOD. Naomi and Ruth came to Bethlehem about the Time of the Paſſover, for then their (n) Barley Harveſt began. Upon their Coming the Inhabitants both wonder'd and rejoic'd to ſee them, who ſaid, Is not this Naomi, or my pleaſant one? To whom ſhe anſwer'd, Call me not my pleaſant one; call me Marah or Bitterneſs; for the LORD hath dealt bitterly with me, becauſe ſhe came home in a poor Condition. However GOD, who knows how to bring Good out of Evil, ſhew'd his Providence in this Particular. Ruth's Poverty made her go to gather Corn after the Reapers for her Subſiſtence. For this Purpoſe ſhe went to the Field of Boaz, who was a near Relation. Boaz took particular Notice of her; and tho' he was rich and ſhe was poor, yet he was ſo pleas'd with her Piety and Virtue, that he marry'd her. This Boaz was the Son of (o) Salmon by Rahab, who hid the Spies in Jericho, and Grandſon of Nahſhon, who was (p) the Prince or Standard-bearer to the Tribe of Judah; and if we admit of twenty four Years between the Entrance into Canaan, and the Birth of Boaz by Salmon; and that Boaz, who owns himſelf (q) to be an aged Man, was fifty ſix Years of Age when he marry'd Ruth, this Marriage muſt happen about this Time. The Year after it, it is probable that he had a Son, whom his Mother call'd Obed, or a Servant, to ſhew that ſhe was not aſham'd publickly to own her poor Condition, when ſhe was thus marry'd; and of his Poſterity at a proper Diſtance King David was firſt born, and alſo our bleſſed LORD and SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST. Anno Mundi 2634. Anno Mundi 2635.

14. After the Check given the Aſſyrian Monarchy, the Iſraelites return'd again to their Idolatry, with which GOD having been griev'd forty Years, (r) reſolves to puniſh them again, and raiſed up Eglon King of Moab for this Purpoſe. He perſuades the Ammonites and the Amalekites, who were his near Neighbours, and had an old Grudge againſt the Iſraelites to join with him. Theſe marching together deſtroy the Iſraelites either by a ſudden Invaſion or a pitch'd Battle, and (s) poſſeſs themſelves of Jericho, which tho' it was deſtroy'd by Joſhua, yet it is likely, that they made Fortifications, and plac'd a ſtrong Gariſon, where it formerly ſtood, that they might the better keep the whole Country in Subjection. about was very fruitful; ſo they hinder'd all Communication between thoſe on this Side Jordan, and thoſe on the other Side, but what they were pleas'd to allow; and maintain'd a Correſpondence with their own People, from whom they could receive more Forces, by having the Command of the Paſſages over Jordan, and ſecure their Retreat into their own Country. About this Time Abiezer the High Prieſt being dead, is ſucceeded in that Office by his Son Bukki.

15. Othniel being dead, and the Tribe of Judah not being immediately affected with this Calamity, there was no one of that Tribe who car'd to ſtir; and therefore the Affliction laſted the longer, even for the Space of eighteen Years, whilſt Eglon rul'd as an abſolute Maſter over them, and impos'd what Taxes he pleas'd upon them. After which the Iſraelites humbling themſelves, GOD rais'd up Ehud a Benjamite to be (t) their Deliverer. He was a proper Perſon for this Purpoſe, becauſe his Tribe was the moſt immediately oppreſs'd, the Country of Jericho being in it. He was a Man Left-handed, and had made him a ſhort Dagger fit to be conceal'd, but long enough to do Execution; and when the Iſraelites ſent a Preſent by him to their Oppreſſor, he return'd back to a Place in Gilgal, where the Moabites had ſet up their graven Images, which when he ſaw, his Spirit was mightily ſtirr'd up in him, and ſo he went back with a Reſolution either to revenge this Affront to GOD, and the Oppreſſion done to his People, or elſe to periſh in the Attempt. Accordingly pretending that he had a private Meſſage to deliver, he was admitted to a private Audience, when taking his Opportunity, he kill'd him with the Dagger, and lock'd the Door after him, that none might know it; and gathering together the Iſraelites which lay neareſt to him, he went and ſecur'd the Paſſages of Jordan, that none might eſcape, and then fell upon the Enemy and deſtroy'd them all, and ſo deliver'd his People, that the eaſtern Part of the Land of Canaan enjoy'd a ſettl'd Peace for fourſcore Years.

Anno Mundi 2678.

16. When all things began to be quiet in the eaſt Part of Canaan, there began a third Oppreſſion in the weſt and ſouth Parts by the Philiſtines, who dwelt upon the Shore of the Mediterranean Sea. The Scripture expreſſeth it thus, (u) In the days of Shamgar the ſon of Anath, the highways were unoccupied. There were ſuch Robberies, that Men durſt not travel in the common Road upon their Occaſions. The travellers walked through by-ways, by which means Commerce was very much obſtructed. And the inhabitants of the villages ceaſed. Men were not ſafe in their own Houſes, which were broke open, if they liv'd in Villages; and therefore they forſook them, and fled to wall'd Towns and fortify'd Places. Thus the Philiſtines came not in an open Manner, but plunder'd the Country, as Robbers do, and went off with their Booty. Upon this (x) Shamgar the Son of Anath makes for himſelf an Ox Goad, ſo contriv'd, that it could kill any Man, and yet not be at other Times ſuſpected as deſign'd for ſuch a Purpoſe. Thus following his Plough, when the Philiſtines made their Inroads, and watching his Opportunity, and aſſiſted with his Servants, he kill'd at ſeveral Times ſix hundred of the Philiſtines with this Inſtrument, in the Space of about twenty Years; which Example of his encourag'd others to ſet upon their Enemies, as Occaſion did offer, until they had clear'd the Country of them. About this Time a Son might be born unto Obed, who being an Idolater, his Name is omitted in the Genealogies of Ruth and St. Matthew, together with the two following Branches, and thus Jeſſe being of the fourth Generation, is mention'd as begotten of Obed. Thus it is ſaid of (y) Hezekiah, that of his ſons which ſhould iſſue from him, whom he ſhould beget, they ſhould take, and they ſhould be carried away captives into Babylon; and yet this was not fulfill'd until the Time of Zedekiah, and there were Manaſſes, Amon and Joſiah between. Thus GOD declares himſelf to be a (z) jealous GOD, and one who viſits the iniquities of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation on them that hate him, and make to themſelves a graven image to bow down to it and worſhip it. And among other Puniſhments this is one, that their (a) memory ſhall periſh. Thus Zeraiah loſt the High Prieſthood from the Houſe of Eleazar in the Time of Eli, who was of the Houſe of (b) Ithamar another Son of Aaron, which was reſtor'd again (c) after three Generations by Zadok in the Time of Solomon. Thus (d) it is ſaid in St. Matthew, that Joram begat Uzziah, and we have a very credible (e) Account, why the Names of Azariah, Joaſh and Amazia, whoſe intervening Lives are mention'd in the Kings and Chronicles, were omitted in the antient Jewiſh Genealogies, from whence St. Matthew took his Catalogue.

17. The northern Parts of Canaan enjoying Peace, the Iſraelites in thoſe Parts (f) grow as bad as the reſt, and the Idolatry begun by Micah is propagated there. This made GOD angry, and then he raiſes up Jabin King of the Canaanites, who reign'd in Hazor, to oppreſs them. There was a (g) Jabin King of Hazor in Joſhua's Time, and we may well ſuppoſe him to be of the ſame Race, if not that all theſe Kings were call'd by the ſame Name. He oppreſs'd the Iſraelites for (h) twenty Years, during which Time no Man dar'd to command them; and therefore Deborah, a Woman of a prophetick Spirit, and of an excellent Judgment, decided all Controverſies, and gave Directions upon all Occaſions. In theſe twenty Years there were (i) the ſame Robberies in the North as had been before in the South; but acted in a more open and hoſtile Manner. Jabin made Siſera the Captain of his Hoſt, in which there were no leſs than nine hundred Chariots of Iron, which terrify'd the Iſraelites in ſuch a Manner, that (k) the Reubenites were ſo divided in their Counſels, that they ſtaid at home, as if they were ſeparated from their Brethren in their Affections, as they were in their Situation beyond Jordan. The (l) Gileadites would not ſtir over that River to help their Brethren, tho' they were reputed Men of Valour. The (m) Inhabitants of the Tribe of Dan forſook their Cities, and went to Joppa, and other Sea-port Towns, where they took Shipping, with a Deſign to flee from the Canaanites, as the Canaanites fled from them in the Time of Joſhua. The Tribe of Aſher alſo did the ſame, and for this Reaſon did not repair the Breaches in the wall'd Towns, which their Enemies had made. In the Midſt of this Diſtreſs, Deborah the Propheteſs (n) ſends for Barak from Kadeſh-naphthali, and orders him to gather what Forces he could to oppoſe this Army, with Aſſurance of Succeſs. Barak agrees upon this Condition, that ſhe would go with him. Upon this he draws together all the Forces, which were in (o) Naphthali and Zebulun, and (p) as many as Time would permit from Benjamin, Ephraim and Iſſachar. With theſe he goes to Mount Tabor, a noble (q) Mountain in Galilee, in the Tribe of Zebulun, and the Neighbourhood of Iſſachar and Manaſſeh, which had a Plain on the Top of it call'd Staburium, where the Army might ſafely encamp and exerciſe themſelves. Siſera having Intelligence of this, takes a long March from Haroſheth, paſſes the River Kiſhon, and encamps between Taanach and Megiddo, with a Deſign to march the next Day, and cut off the Retreat of Barak. Upon this Deborah encourages him (r) to march very early, and prevent this March of Siſera by giving them Battle, with a Promiſe of Succeſs. Barak marches and falls upon the Army, before they had decamp'd, who did not expect ſo bold a Salley. However he falling upon them before they were aware, ſtruck a Terror into them, and put them into the greater Confuſion. Beſides, (s) GOD alſo terrify'd them with a violent Thunder and Lightning, and probably made a terrible Noiſe of Horſes and Chariots rattling in their Ears from Mount Tabor, by the Miniſtry of his Angels in the Clouds, as he did in (t) the Days of Eliſha. The Battle continues all Day, in which the Army of Siſera was routed. The Storm brought a violent Rain, which ſwell'd the River Kiſhon. At night the (u) Stars ſhone very bright, which help'd the Iſraelites to purſue the Enemy, who coming to this River, and thinking it fordable as it was before, the Storm being at a Diſtance, they were all drown'd, and the ſwift Stream carry'd them away toward the Mediterranean Sea. Upon this Barak purſues the ſcatter'd Army, which had fled the other way, as far as Haroſheth their principal City, where Siſera dwelt, expecting to find him there. But he having ſtay'd ſo long at Kiſhon, the (x) Army was ſo diſpers'd, that he met with none in his whole March. Siſera not being ſafe in his Chariot, flies away on Foot, and very probably in Diſguiſe, but coming to (y) Zaanaim in the Tribe of Naphthali, Jael the Wife of Heber, who at that Time dwelt in Tents like the Rechabites, invites him in, and ſeems to take Care of him for ſome Time. But when he was faſt aſleep, ſhe takes one of the great Pins with which the Tent was faſten'd to the Ground, and ſtrikes it probably thro' both Temples, where the Skull is thinneſt, and ſo fixes him to the Boards, that lay on the Earth, to make a Floor. And when Barak came that Way, ſhe ſhews him the Place and Poſture, in which Siſera lay dead, that ſo he might ſee, how the Prophecy of Deborah was fulfill'd, that a Woman ſhould kill the General of their Enemies. This miraculous Victory puts an End to all the Oppreſſions of the North, ſo that the Iſraelites deſtroy'd this King and Kingdom in ſuch a Manner, that we hear no more of the Name

18. But when Deborah and Barak were dead, the (z) Iſraelites in thoſe Parts fell again into Idolatry; which provok'd GOD to Anger, and occaſion'd the fourth Oppreſſion, from the Midianites, Amalekites and Arabians. Theſe came over Jordan from the Eaſt, and oppreſs all the northern Countries, not only where Jabin had conquer'd, but even to the South as far as Gaza on the Mediterranean Sea. For fear of them, the Iſraelites fled to the Mountains, and only dwelt in Dens and Caves and fortify'd Places. And in the Time of Harveſt their Enemies came and took away all their Corn and Cattle, which reduc'd them to the extremeſt Poverty. This was their Method for ſeven Years, after which Time the Iſraelites humbled themſelves before GOD; and GOD firſt ſends a Prophet to ſhew them their Sins, and afterward appears to Gideon to encourage him to be their General, with a Promiſe of Succeſs. Gideon at firſt modeſtly declines it, until he was confirm'd by a Miracle, that it ſhould be ſo. In Commemoration of this, Gideon builds an Altar, and calls it JEHOVAH ſhalom, that is, the LORD of Peace, or, The LORD will ſend Peace. The Night following GOD appears to him in a Dream, and commands him to throw down the Altar of Baal, and build an Altar to the LORD, and offer the Sacrifices deſign'd for Baal on this Altar, with the Wood of the Grove which he ſhould cut down near the other. This was an extraordinary Act, and nothing but the divine Direction could juſtify many Particulars in it. Gideon did as he was commanded: Upon this the Inhabitants roſe in a tumultuous Manner, and requir'd of Joaſh his Father, that he ſhould be deliver'd up to Death. Joaſh vindicates his Son, and ſaith, If Baal is a God, let him plead for himſelf, and do himſelf Juſtice, and therefore Gideon was call'd Jerubbaal, or Let Baal plead.

Anno Mundi 2771.

19. Upon this the (a) Midianites and their Company paſs over Jordan, and encamp in Jezreel in the Tribe of Manaſſeh, which alarms Gideon to execute his Commiſſion, ſo that he raiſes an Army of two and thirty thouſand Men out of the neighbouring Tribes of Aſher, Zebulun, Nephthali and Manaſſeh; but miſtruſting his Strength, deſires GOD to ſhew him two farther Miracles for his Confirmation, which was granted, and (b) tho' under the divine Conduct, yet he acted like a diligent and a skilful Commander, marching to the Well of Harod near Gilboa, ſo as to have the Enemy on the North of him, that if Occaſion requir'd he might the better retreat to, or receive Reinforcements from the ſouthern Countries.

20. And now GOD, willing to try Gideon's Faith, (which is particularly mention'd with (c) that of Barak by the Apoſtle in the New Teſtament) (d) orders him to ſend away all that were afraid, by which two thirds of his Army were diſmiſs'd, and after that, he diſmiſs'd moſt of the reſt; ſo that he had only three hundred with him, that GOD might have the whole Glory of their Deliverance. To encourage him the more, GOD commands him, and a Servant whom he had, to go privately to the Camp of Midian, and hear their Diſcourſe, where he heard one Soldier telling a Dream, and another interpreting it, that it ſignify'd the Deſtruction of their whole Army by Gideon himſelf. Gideon then ſure in his own Mind of Succeſs uſeth a Stratagem to effect it. He orders all his Men to take Lamps in one Hand, and put them in ſuch Veſſels as ſhould conceal the Light, and that they ſhould take all the Trumpets which belong'd to the whole Army in their other Hand, and ſo marches in three Bodies, giving Directions to each of theſe to do as he did. It is ſuppos'd, that one of theſe Companies march'd to the eaſt Side of the Camp, and the other to the ſouth Eaſt, and the third to the north Eaſt; and thus Gideon might be in the Middle, that all the reſt might ſee and hear what he did. Thus they came to the Camp in the dead Time of the Night, when they brake their Veſſels, that the Light might all appear at once, ſounded all their Trumpets, and cry'd aloud, The ſword of the LORD and of Gideon. The Midianites hearing ſo many Trumpets in three ſeveral Places at once, and ſeeing ſo many Lights, ſuppos'd themſelves to be attack'd by a formidable Army, and ſo riſing in a Fright, and miſtaking their Friends for their Enemies, they fell upon one another, till they had put every thing into the utmoſt Confuſion. Upon this Gideon ſends for all the Forces to come up, who probably had not march'd far, and as many more as could be got together, ſome to purſue them, and others to take the Paſſages of Jordan to prevent their Retreat. They were not able to ſecure all the Paſſages of Jordan, but ſome paſs'd over, whom Gideon purſu'd with the three hundred Men, whilſt the other Part of the Army deſtroy'd thoſe who ſtaid behind, took the two Princes of Midian, Oreb and Zeeb, and when they had kill'd them, they ſent their Heads to Gideon, as a Token that the Victory was complete. And about this Time Eli the High Prieſt is ſuppos'd to have been born.

21. As the Language of the (e) Iſhmaelites, the Midianites and (f) the Amalekites, who dwelt in Arabia, was originally the ſame with the Iſraelites, who (g) all deſcended from Abraham their common Father; ſo we may infer, that there was little or no Difference at this Time. Oreb in Hebrew ſignifies a Crow, and Zeeb a Wolf, and theſe are very proper Words to repreſent the Sagaciouſneſs and Fierceneſs, which ought to be in two ſuch great Commanders. Gideon underſtood the Words ſpoken in the Midianitiſh Camp, and the Midianites underſtood what his Soldiers cry'd out, without an Interpreter. And therefore we need not wonder at the great Affinity between the Hebrew and the Arabick Languages, eſpecially when we conſider, that the Hebrew continu'd in its Purity from the Time of Moſes unto Malachi; and the Arabick ſpoken by the Chriſtians in Aſia at this Time, is the ſame with that which was us'd by Mahomet the Impoſtor.

Anno Mundi 2785.

22. When (h) Gideon came to Succoth and Penuel, two Towns on the other Side of Jordan in the Tribe of Gad, his Men grew faint in Purſuing the flying Army, and therefore he deſires them to give him ſome Bread for their Refreſhment. They in a taunting Manner upbraid him, and bid him firſt take the two Princes of Midian, Zeba and Zalmunnah, whom he purſu'd, and then they would talk with him. This made him vow Revenge as ſoon as he had taken them, which he executed accordingly. Upon this (i) the Iſraelites offer him the Kingdom, and to make it hereditary, which he refuſeth, but deſireth them to give him the Ear-rings, which they took from the Enemy, which he devoted religiouſly to the Service of GOD by making an Ephod as a Monument of his Victory, being obtain'd ſolely by his Mercy, for the Reſtoring of his true Religion among them. After this Gideon liv'd (k) forty Years; for (l) his Father was alive, when this Victory was obtain'd, and (m) his eldeſt Son but a Youth at that Time, and Gideon died in a (*) good old Age. He kept them to the Worſhip of GOD during his Life, but (n) as ſoon as he was dead, the Iſraelites fell again to Idolatry, and had this Fancy among others, that (o) GOD would anſwer them here, where the Ephod was, as well as at his Tabernacle in Shiloh, where he dwelt. In his Time it is probable, that a Great-grandſon might alſo be born unto Obed, whoſe Name is not recorded in the Genealogies either of Ruth or St. Matthew, for the Reaſons already mention'd. In his Time alſo at the Death of Bakki, Zeraiah his Son ſucceeded as High Prieſt, who continu'd in this Office but a little Time, and was probably outed for Idolatry; when the High Prieſthood was remov'd out of his Family, and Eli ſucceeded him, who was of the Houſe of Ithamar. And this may be the Reaſon that his Name is not mention'd by Joſephus. And indeed the Promiſe (p) of the perpetual Succeſſion to the High Prieſt's Office was ſo ſolemnly confirm'd to the Poſterity of Phinehas the Son of Eliezer, for a particular Reaſon; that we cannot but conclude it to have been ſome very grievous Sin, which caus'd it to fail.

Anno Mundi 2811.

23. About the Time alſo of the Death of Gideon, we may well ſuppoſe Sanchoniatho to have liv'd. He was the oldeſt except the inſpir'd Writers, of all thoſe whoſe Works are extant. He liv'd at Berytus, not far from the north Part of Canaan, and it is probable, that his Credit prevail'd with the Iſraelites to worſhip (q) Baal-berith, or the God of Berytus, as a God. His Writings are preſerv'd in Greek by (r) Euſebius, and were very much made Uſe of by the ſhrewdeſt Antagoniſt, that ever Chriſtianity met with, even Porphyry the Philoſopher. Porphyry places him before Siphoas the King of Egypt, who began his Reign in the Year of the World 2821, and ſaith expreſly, that he receiv'd certain Books ſtom Jerombalus the Prieſt of the GOD JEVO, or rather JAO. This Jerombalus is allowd by all to be Gideon, who was call'd Jerubbaal, which is of the ſame Senſe in the Phœnician Language, only after their Cuſtom, changing one b into m, as in Ambubajæ, Sambuca, &c. They call'd him a Prieſt from (s) his extraordinary Sacrifice, and obliquely to run down the Line of Aaron; otherwiſe he never officiated, being not of the Tribe of Levi, but (t) of Manaſſeh. Or rather he might be ſo call'd from his Making an Ephod in his City of the Spoils of his Enemies, which became a Snare to him and his Houſe, and turn'd the Iſraelites to Idolatry; and therefore he might be the more reſpected by the neighbouring Nations, whoſe Idols the Iſraelites ſoon after worſhipp'd. And the Books which Sanchoniatho had from him, could be no other but the Books of Moſes, which contain the Laws deliver'd by JEHOVAH. This Sanchoniatho was a profeſs'd Idolater, and obſerving that Moſes eſtabliſh'd the true Religion by a ſhort Hiſtory from the Creation in the Line of Seth, reſolv'd to attempt the Eſtabliſhing of his own by a ſhort Hiſtory of the Creation in the Line of Cain, and therefore he was forc'd to omit the Flood which deſtro'y all that Race. The Hiſtory, which he wrote, was taken out of the Records at Berytus, (the Town where Sanchoniatho was born) which were fix'd there by Mizraim the Son of Ham, who would not omit that Hiſtory, becauſe his Mother, or Ham's Wife, was (u) Naamah the Daughter of Lamech, of the ſame Race. But herein (ſaith (x) a learned Prelate) was ſeen the wonderful Providence of GOD, that out of this Eater came forth Meat, and out of the Lion, Honey; and the moſt conſiderable Teſtimonies produc'd by Porphyry againſt our Religion, were of the greateſt Strength to refute his own. For he, being of too great Learning to be ſatisfy'd with the vain Pretences of the Grecians, made it his Buſineſs to ſearch after the moſt antient Records, to find ſomething in them to confront the Authority of the Scriptures; but upon his Search he could find none of greater Veneration than the Phœnician Hiſtory, nor any Author contending for Age with this Sanchoniatho. Yet when he had made the moſt of his Teſtimony, he was fain to yield him younger than Moſes, tho' he ſuppoſeth him older than the Trojan Wars. And he goes about to prove the Agreement of Sanchoniatho's Hiſtory by its Agreement with that of Moſes concerning the Jews, both as to their Names and Places, whereby he evidently aſſerts the greater Truth and Antiquity of Moſes's Hiſtory, when he proves the Truth of Sanchoniatho's by its Conſonancy with that. Indeed Dodwell (y) endeavours to prove him to be a ſpurious Author. It is certain, that the Records of Berytus made Ham to be Chronus or Saturn, and the Canaanites and Egyptians agreed in the ſame Opinion, becauſe they would have no Nation to be older than their own. But the Grecians and Aſſyrians took Noah to be Chronus or Saturn. Now Dodwell went intirely away with the Notion of the Greeks, as all the Europeans did in his Time, and ſo he miſapprehended many Paſſages in this Author, which Biſhop Cumberland hath clear'd up and rectify'd, and ſhewn to be of ſingular Uſe for the Settling the Chronology of the moſt antient Times: and therefore it is very probable, that if ſo great a Man as Dodwell had rightly underſtood this Author, he would have ſpar'd all the Pains, which he took to confute him.

24. As Gideon was call'd Jerubbaal, ſo he was alſo call'd (z) Jerubbeſheth. The Reaſon is, becauſe בשת Beſheth or Boſheth, that is, Shame or Confuſion is often us'd (a) in Scripture to ſignify the Idol Baal; becauſe it made its Worſhippers confounded. And thus it is ſaid (b) that Moab ſhould be aſhamed of Chemoſh.

25. Gideon in his Life time having many Wives, had (c) no leſs than ſeventy Children, and another by a Concubine, whom ſhe nam'd Abimelech, or My Father is the King. This Name ſeems to be given out of Pride and Arrogancy, that ſhe might be look'd upon as the Wife of one, who deſerv'd a Kingdom, tho' he did not accept of it; and it is probable, that it afterward inflam'd the Mind of this Son to affect the Royal Dignity. For as ſoon as his Father was dead, he (d) went to Shechem, the Place of his Nativity, where he prevail'd upon them to make him their King, and then to make himſelf ſure of the Kingdom, he ſlew all his Brethren, except Jotham who was almoſt miraculouſly preſerv'd in the common Deſtruction, and pray'd, that GOD might revenge ſuch barbarous Murders on Abimelech and his Aſſiſtants, and cauſe them to deſtroy one another, which happen'd accordingly; for they grew jealous and diſtruſtful, and ſo fell into Diſſenſions and Diſcords, and forc'd Abimelech to fly away to ſave his own Life. As ſoon as he was gone, the Shechemites make Gael their Commander, who is (e) ſuppos'd by the Jews to have been a Gentile, and not one of the Jewiſh Nation, and a known Enemy of Abimelech, who hearing that the Men of Shechem had bid him Defiance, came to offer his Service againſt him. The Shechemites put themſelves under his Protection, whoſe Aim was to bring them into Subjection to the Canaanites by this Contrivance, and perſuade them to receive their Government, as they had ſo lately revolted to their Religion. However he ſhew'd his Temper too ſoon; for he robb'd the Country, and ſpent the Time in Eating, Drinking, Swearing, Curſing, and Bragging of his own Courage, and Boaſting what he would do to Abimelech, if he could catch him. In the Midſt of his Jollity, and perhaps being elevated with Wine, he ſpeaks (f) contemptibly of Abimelech, as the Son of a Maid Servant, and of one, who threw down the Altar of that God, whom they then worſhipp'd, and that he had ſet Zebul, one of his Servants, over them to be their Governor; and ſo he endeavours to perſuade them, that if they ſubmitted themſelves to any, it would be better to reſtore the Dominion of the antient Lords of the City, and ſubject themſelves to thoſe who were deſcended of the Stock of Hamor, whoſe Son Shechem gave the Town its Name, and who was (f) the King thereof in the Time of Jacob. Zebul, whom Abimelech intruſted with his Concerns in his Abſence, gave him Intelligence of all that happen'd, and adviſ'd him to come with an Army before it was too late. Accordingly, he marches all Night, divides his Army into four Parts, and ſo beſets the City on all Sides. Gael ſeeing them in the Morning, and being but of a cowardly Temper, tells Zebul in a Fright, that he ſaw People coming down from the Tops of the Mountains. Zebul ridicules him for it, That he ſaw (g) the Shadows of the Trees upon the Mountains, and miſtook them for Men; however he deliver'd it in ſuch a ſerious Manner, that Gael believ'd, that he ſpoke in Earneſt. Gael obſerving them as they came nearer, tells Zebul poſitively, that they were Men, and that he ſaw them march in two diſtinct Companies toward him. Zebul now pulls off his Mask, and upbraids him with his former Hectoring, in this Manner, Where is now thy mouth, wherewith thou ſaidſt, Who is Abimelech, that we ſhould ſerve him? Is not this the people, whom thou haſt deſpiſed? And then he challengeth him to go and fight with them, upbraiding him with his Cowardiſe, unleſs he now ſhew'd himſelf a Man with his Sword, as he had done the other Day with his Tongue. Had Gael been a Man of Courage, he would have left Zebul dead upon the Spot for this inſulting Language; however being thorowly provok'd, and finding things brought to Extremity, he march'd out with all his Forces to fight Abimelech; but being a Man of little Courage, and no greater Conduct, his Army was ſoon beaten, and he was driven back into the City. Upon this Abimelech remov'd to a neighbouring Town, depending on the Conduct of Zebul, and watching his Opportunity to be reveng'd of the Shechemites. Zebul had a Party ſtrong enough to turn out Gael a Canaanite and a Stranger, who had been ſo unſucceſsful, which they did, ſo that we hear no more of him; but the Miſunderſtandings between them and Abimelech were ſo great, that nothing would perſuade them to ſurrender to him; ſo that he was forc'd to beſiege the Town, and when he took it, he beat down all the Houſes and Walls, and laid them level with the Ground, and kill'd all the Inhabitants, whom he could meet with. The reſt fled to the Temple of Baal-Berith, or The God of Berytus, which Abimelech burnt, and ſo deſtroy'd all at once. During the Time of Abimelech's Calamities, (h) the neighbouring Town of Thebez revolted from him; ſo that being fluſh'd with Succeſs he beſieg'd it and took it, and the Inhabitants flying into a ſtrong Tower, he reſolv'd to burn that, as he had burnt the other, tho' not with the ſame Succeſs; for they had brought up Stones and other heavy Matter, to throw down upon the Heads of thoſe that ſhould come near the Gates. Abimelech not miſtruſting this, came to the Gate to ſet it on fire, when a Woman threw down a Piece of a Milſtone on his Head, that gave him his Death's Wound, and his Armour-bearer at his own Requeſt run him thro'. And the People having none to head them, rais'd the Siege, and return'd every Man to their own Houſes. By this Example we may ſee, how GOD revengeth Murder and Treachery, and that no Man ſhould think ſuch things as theſe came to paſs by Chance. For GOD the Judge of all puniſh'd both Abimelech and the Men of Shechem, according to their Deſerts, and made them the Inſtruments of each other's Deſtruction. And it is remarkable, that the Curſe which Jotham pronounc'd overtook them ſpeedily, even at the End of three Years, after their Crimes were committed.

26. After the Death of Abimelech, (i) Tolah of the Tribe of Iſſachar ſucceeds as a Judge in the north and eaſt Parts of Canaan. It is not ſaid, that either GOD rais'd him up, or that the People choſe him, and therefore it is probable, that he took upon him this Office of his own Accord. The dreadful End of Abimelech, and thoſe who made him King, affrighted the People from chooſing another of their own Heads, and therefore they more eaſily ſubmitted to one who ſhould ſet up himſelf. However the Confuſions and Diſorders which they were in at that Time, were happily ended by the prudent Management of this Governor. He reſtor'd again the Purity of their Religion, and aboliſh'd the Worſhipping of Idols, particularly that of Baal-Berith, and this made GOD proſper him ſo that there was Peace during his Government, which was three and twenty Years, when he died, and was ſucceeded by Jair. Anno Mundi 2814.

27. In the Time of Tolah there happen'd the famous Siege of Troy, of which all the Grecians and other Hiſtorians, as well as the two great Poets Homer and Virgil, give a particular Anno Mundi 2824.

Account,

Account, and from whence began the famous Epocha among the Greeks, who divide their Hiſtory into three Parts. Firſt, Before the Siege of Troy, which they reckon'd fabulous. Secondly, From thence to the Olympiads, which they reckon'd uncertain. And thirdly, From the Olympiads downwards, which they reckon'd certain. Dichæarchus places it 436 Years before the Olympiads. But others of the Antients, who are follow'd by all the Moderns (Sir Iſaac Newton excepted) place it in the 408th Year before it. Clemens Alexandrinus (k) from Thraſyllus agrees herewith in Placing the Rape of Helena by Paris four Years after the Deifying of Hercules, and Leaving a Blank of ſo much Space between that and the Trojan War. Euſebius (l) places the Rape of Helena in the eighth Year of Meneſtheus King of Athens, who had the Command of his own Army the Athenians in that Siege, which was the ſame Year with the other. The Arundelian Marbles fix it in the ſame Year, by ſaying, that the Wars of Troy began in the 13th Year of the ſame King, and the City was taken in his twenty ſecond Year. (m) Diodorus Siculus, with (n) Dionyſius Halicarnaſſenſis, and (o) Solinus, place it in the 408th Year before the firſt Olympiad. Some of them were ſo particular as to tell us, that it was taken in the Night between the 23d and 24th Days of the Month Thargelion, or June 11, and 17 Days before the Summer Solſtice, tho' the Sun came to the Summer Solſtice two Days before its Time here mention'd. And therefore there ſeems to be no Room left for any farther Diſpute.

28. At this Time the Seas were very much infeſted with Pirates from almoſt all Nations, who landing on the Shores ſeiz'd by Force upon all the Women and Cattle that they could light upon, and Carrying them off, either ſold them in a diſtant Country, or kept them for their own Uſe. And theſe Practices (as Thucydides tells us) were ſo common, that no one inhabited near the Sea for fear of being plunder'd. Upon this Tyndareus the Father of Helena, conſidering the Beauty of his Daughter, caus'd all her Lovers, who were moſt of the principal Men in Greece, to bind themſelves by a ſolemn Oath, that if ſhe ſhould be taken from her Husband, they would join all their Forces together to recover her. Upon this he left his Daughter Helena to chooſe whom ſhe thought fit for a Husband, who accordingly choſe Menelaus King of Mycenæ and Brother to Agamemnon. Paris, one of the younger Sons of Priamus King of Troy, upon the Report of her Beauty, came into Greece to ſee her, where he was kindly entertain'd by Menelaus, but watching his Opportunity, he debauches Helena, and finds Means to carry her off, and alſo to rob Menelaus of his Treaſure. Upon this Menelaus complains of the Injury done him to all the Grecian Princes, and requires the Performance of their Oath. They not willing to cancel ſo ſolemn an Obligation, and influenc'd by the Power, Reputation and Friendſhip of Menelaus, and eſpecially being deſirous of Sharing in the Honour and the Plunder of ſo great an Enterprize, take up Arms againſt the Trojans. Agamemnon, the Brother of Menelaus, was one of the Principal; for beſide his great Dominions in Peloponneſus, he was Lord of many Iſlands, and very rich in Money; ſo that when he embark'd for Troy with his own Ships, they were more in Number than thoſe which any other of the Greek Princes had rais'd, and therefore he was made the General of this Expedition. The Fleet (p) conſiſted of about twelve hundred Sail; but the Ships were not great. For it was not then their Cuſtom to build Ships with Decks, only they us'd (as Thucydides tells us) ſmall Ships fit for Robbing on the Sea, the leaſt of which carry'd fifty Men, and the greateſt about an hundred and twenty, every Man being both a Mariner and a Soldier; ſo that the whole Army may be computed at near an hundred thouſand Men. All the Poets, except Euripides, make Paris to ſail directly for Troy; but other Hiſtorians of better Credit tell us, that Paris in his Return with Helena was driven by Streſs of Weather upon the Coaſt of Egypt, where he was accus'd for this Rape by ſome of his Slaves, who had taken Sanctuary there. Proteus, who was then King of Egypt, finding upon Examination that the Accuſation was true, detain'd Helena and all the Goods taken with her, till her Husband ſhould require them, diſmiſſing Paris without any farther Puniſhment, becauſe he was a Stranger. The Greeks being unwilling to wage War, if Matters could be compounded by a Treaty, ſend Ulyſſes and ſome others as Ambaſſadors to Troy, to demand Helena and the Goods, which were taken with her out of Menelaus's Houſe. What Anſwer the Trojans made is uncertain; but whether they could not or would not reſtore her, it is certain that the Ambaſſadors return'd back very much diſcontented with their ill Uſage, eſpecially becauſe there were ſome who adviſ'd to kill them. In the mean Time Calchas, a Runagate Trojan, ſets up to be a Fortune-teller among them, and the Greeks being too much addicted to ſuch Superſtitions, reſolve to have him as an Adviſer, who endeavour'd to divert them from their Purpoſe with all the troubleſome Anſwers and Amuſements that he could think of. He tells them, that the Anger of the Goddeſs Diana, who withſtood their Paſſage, could not be appeas'd, unleſs Iphigenia the Daughter of Agamemnon their General, was offer'd up as a Sacrifice to her, which ſome ſay was effected; but others tell us, that another Perſon, who pretended to be a Prieſt, and had a Kindneſs for the Girl, told them, that the ſacrificing an Hind would do as well, and ſo ſhe eſcap'd. After this he told them, that Troy could not be taken unleſs Ulyſſes and Achilles went with them, thinking them cunning enough to avoid it, one by Feigning himſelf mad, and the other by being dreſs'd in Women's Apparel; then that the firſt Man, who landed on the Trojan Shore, ſhould be ſlain; and laſtly, that it ſhould be ten Years before the Town could be taken.

29. And now had the Greeks gone to the Siege of Troy, they might have taken it at once, for (q) they were ten Times in Number more than the Trojan Army; but being frighten'd by their Soothſayer, they ſpent near (r) nine Years in Plundering the neighbouring Iſlands and Coaſts upon the Ægæan Shores, whilſt ſome that landed, only block'd up the Town at a Diſtance. This gave King Priamus an Opportunity to be reinforc'd from Phrygia, Lycia, Myſia, and the greateſt Part of leſſer Aſia. Pentheſilea alſo came with her Amazons, Rheſus from Thrace, and Memnon from Aſſyria, who join'd him with their Forces. Thus the Trojans were now reliev'd with great Succours, all the Country being drawn into that War by their Commanders, who aſſiſted King Priamus for Money, in which he abounded when the War began, and partly in Reſpect to him and his Sons, or Hopes of Marriage with ſome of his many and fair Daughters, and alſo ſtirr'd up by the Wrongs which they ſuffer'd from the Greeks, and alſo fearing that if the Greeks took that Country firſt they would not ſtop there, but in Time take all the reſt; ſo that when Hector ſally'd upon them out of the Town, he was little inferior to them either in the Number of Men, or the Quality of their Commanders. And that which was worſe, there aroſe an unlucky Difference between Agamemnon and Achilles in the Beginning of the Summer, when Troy was taken. For when great Booties were brought into the Camp, Agamemnon as General having (s) choſen for his Part a Captive Woman, the Daughter of Chryſes the Prieſt of Apollo, Achilles having choſen for himſelf another in the ſecond Place, then Ajax, then Ulyſſes, and the reſt of the Generals in Order, a great Peſtilence aroſe among the Greeks, which they imputed to Apollo or the Sun, which rais'd up peſtilential Fogs, by which the Army was infected, being encamp'd in a mooriſh Piece of Ground, which was alſo increas'd by the Army lying too cloſe together, all that had been abroad being now return'd to the Camp, and the Ships being alſo drawn up into the River within the Fortifications. Agamemnon conſults Calchas the Soothſayer concerning the Cauſe of this Calamity; he being willing to do his Brother Prieſt a Kindneſs, anſwers, that his Daughter's being a Captive was the Cauſe of it, and adviſeth him to reſtore her to her Father without any Reward, that ſo the Peſtilence might ceaſe. Agamemnon rages at this, and ſaith, that he alone would not loſe Part of the Spoil, but he would take that which had been given to Achilles, or to Ajax, or Ulyſſes. Achilles defies him, ſo that he ſends Forces for this Purpoſe; to which Achilles was forc'd to ſubmit, as not able to revenge his Quarrel any otherwiſe than by Refuſing to fight, or to ſend his Forces. And from this Quarrel Homer begins his Iliads. Anno Mundi 2824.

30. But the Greeks, encourag'd by their Captains, preſent themſelves before the City without him and his Troops, which occaſion'd many Battles, the greateſt of which was at the Tomb of King Ilus upon the Plain, and another at the very Trenches of the Camp, where Hector broke thro' the Fortifications of the Greeks, and began to fire their Ships; at which Time Ajax with his Brother Teucer were the only Men of Note that remain'd unwounded, and made Head againſt Hector, when the State of the Greeks was almoſt deſperate. In the Midſt of this Extremity, Patroclus the dear Friend of Achilles not being able to ſtand neuter any longer, fearing worſe Conſequences, begs Leave of Achilles to uſe his Armour, and command his Troops, and ſo to relieve the Greeks with a freſh Supply. The reſt, thinking him to be Achilles indeed, and glad of his Aſſiſtance, tho' they were very much wounded, were forc'd to put on their Armour, and with this Aſſiſtance they repell'd the Trojans, with great Difficulty and ſome Loſs, eſpecially of Patroclus, whoſe Body was after another ſharp Engagement recover'd by his Friends, and brought back into the

Camp

Camp, after Hector had taken the Armour of Achilles from him, and carry'd it off.

31. Agamemnon thinking that Achilles would be willing to revenge the Loſs of his Armour, and of his dear Friend, concludes that it was now high Time, and a fit Opportunity, to reconcile himſelf to Achilles, and therefore he ſends back Briſeis the Captive Maid, with many very valuable Preſents, and excus'd his former Behaviour as well as he could. Achilles lays aſide all Reſentments, and joins them in another Battle, in which he conquers the Trojans; and reſolving to be reveng'd of Hector, he ſingles him out, and purſues him wherever he went, and never leaves him, till he had kill'd him. After which carrying away his dead Body, he makes Holes in his Feet, and thruſting leathern Thongs into them, he drags him ſhameſully about the Field, and after that ſells his Body to King Priamus for a very great Ranſom. But this Cruelty and Covetouſneſs were not long unreveng'd; for he was ſlain by Paris with an Arrow in the Temple of Apollo, who hid himſelf in a private Part for that Purpoſe, when Achilles came thither to marry Polyxena the Daughter of King Priamus, with whom he was too far in Love, having ſlain ſo many of her Brethren; and his Body was ranſom'd for the ſame Price, that had before been given for Hector's.

32. Homer giving us no Account of the Taking of Troy, Virgil (t) adds, that it was done by a large wooden Horſe, in which they inclos'd many of the principal Greeks; upon which the reſt ſet ſail to the Iſland of Tenedos, leaving Sinon to perſuade them, that it was built upon a religious Account, and that it was neceſſary for them to take it into the City, which they did by Pulling down a Part of the Wall for that Purpoſe, and ſo the Greeks returning on a ſudden, and entring at the Breach, open the Horſe, ſeize one of the Gates, and ſo take and burn the City. But this ſeems to be a poetical Story, and very unlikely in it ſelf: for either the Trojans might have perceiv'd the Deceit, and kill'd the Princes that were inclos'd in it, which, as it is reported, was what was firſt propos'd on that Occaſion, or they might have left it for ſome Time without the City, by which Means they who were ſhut into it muſt have periſh'd for Hunger; and indeed it is unlikely, that they ſhould the very firſt Day agree upon the Bringing it into the Town, and break down the Walls for that Purpoſe; and if they had came out alone, they muſt have been all deſtroy'd. And if this Horſe was, as it is reported, ſo high and ſo great, that it could not be brought into the Town thro' any of the Gates, and therefore the Trojans were forc'd to pull down a Part of their Wall to make way for the Greeks to enter, it would have been a needleſs as well as a deſperate Attempt to incloſe ſo many Men; ſince without their Help there was a Breach made ſufficient for the Army to enter at, and then the Surprizing of any Gate by them would in ſuch a Caſe be to no Purpoſe.

33. But as Virgil imitates Theocritus in his Eclogs, and Oppian in his Georgicks; ſo he imitates Homer in his Æneids. For this Reaſon he frequently tranſlates ſeveral of his Verſes at a Time, and imitates his Fancy. His Story of Dido and Æneas is an Imitation of Ulyſſes and Calypſo in Homer. The Celebrating the Games for his Father's Funeral is the ſame which Achilles is ſaid to have done for his Friend Patroclus; and Æneas's Going into Hell is but what Homer fanſy'd of Ulyſſes. As therefore Homer in his Iliads makes Achilles a Pattern of Valour, and in his Odyſſes he makes Ulyſſes a Pattern of Policy; ſo Virgil makes Æneas a Pattern for both. In his ſix firſt Æneids he celebrates him for his Piety, Conduct and Affection to his aged Father; and in his ſix laſt he celebrates him for his Courage and Abilities in War, and for this Reaſon he could not bear to mention the leaſt Reflection on his Character; tho' (u) another Author, who might know the Truth as well as Virgil, ſaith, that Æneas, Antenor and Polydamus, having taken ſome Diſguſt at King Priamus, agreed with the Grecians to betray the City to them, upon Condition that they might retire with their Men wherever they thought fit, provided they did not ſettle in Phrygia. For this Reaſon it was concerted, that the Grecians ſhould the Day before ſet ſail to the Iſland of Tenedos, and return at Night, thereby to bring the Trojans into Security, and ſo whilſt they were ſleeping and drinking without Fear or Care, their Enemies were let in at the Scæan Gate, over which there was the large Image of an Horſe, which gave the Riſe to all this Story. And perhaps Helenus a Son of Priamus might be in the ſame Plot, which made him find ſo eaſy a Reception among the Greeks as to ſettle a Colony in Epirus, whilſt the other two were ſo hated for their Treachery, that they were forc'd to ſeek for Settlements at a great Diſtance from their Neighbours, and thus Antenor made a Colony in Illyrium, and Æneas, after many Difficulties, Dangers and Repulſes, arriv'd with the Remainder of his Company and ſettl'd in Albania in Italy, and is by Virgil repreſented as the Beginner of the Roman Empire.

34. As for the Greeks, in their Return home they had almoſt as much Miſery as they had brought upon the Trojans. For Thucydides ſaith, that by Reaſon of their long Abſence they found many Alterations when they return'd, ſo that they were driven by their Neighbours from their antient Seats; many were expell'd their Countries by Faction, others ſlain ſoon after their Arrival, and others depos'd from their Supremacy by ſuch as ſtay'd at home. The Cauſe of all theſe Diſaſters was the Diſperſion of the Army; which being weaken'd by the Calamities of a long War, was of little Force to repel Injuries, eſpecially being now divided under ſo many Commanders of ſo many different Intereſts. For at the Time when they ſhould have ſet ſail, Agamemnon and his Brother fell out, one being deſirous to depart immediately, and the other to ſtay and perform ſome Sacrifices to Minerva. Upon this half of the Fleet remain'd with Agamemnon, and the reſt ſail'd to the Iſle of Tenedos, where when they arriv'd, they could not agree among themſelves, but ſome return'd back to Agamemnon, and others were diſpers'd under ſeveral Leaders, whilſt they all ſuffer'd by Tempeſts. Neſtor and Pyrrhus return'd ſafe home, and were ſlain by Oreſtes. Idomeneus and Philoctetes upon their Return were ſoon driven to ſeek for new Habitations, one among the Salentini, and the other at Petilia in Italy. Agamemnon was no ſooner arriv'd, but he was ſlain by his Wife and the Adulterer Ægyſtus, who for ſome Time after uſurp'd the Kingdom. Menelaus having long wander'd upon the Seas, came into Egypt (for (x) even there Homer finds him) before he return'd home to Sparta, whither it is not probable, that he might be driven by a Storm, ſince he might have put into any Port in Greece or the Iſlands in the Ægæan Sea, and been well entertain'd until he could have return'd with Safety, but he rather went thither to ſeek for his Wife Helena and his Goods, which the Ægyptian Prieſt told Herodotus, that Paris had left behind him in that Country. Ulyſſes after ten Years, having loſt all his Company, return'd home in a poor Condition, and had much Difficulty to recover the Maſterſhip of his own Houſe. Ajax the Son of Oileus was drown'd, Teucer fled into Cyprus, Diomedes to King Daunus, who was Lord of the Japyges in Apulia. Some of the Locrians were driven into Africa, and others into Italy, all the eaſt Part whereof was call'd Magna Græcia, becauſe of the vaſt Multitude of the Towns which the Greeks were oblig'd to build on thoſe Coaſts. And they were ſo numerous in the Iſland of Sicily, that the Greek was the native Language of Theocritus the famous Poet, who was born there. Thus as GOD had a little before puniſh'd the Partizans of Abimelech, and the Inhabitants of Shechem, for their mutual Robberies, Perfidiouſneſs and Murders; ſo now he puniſh'd both Greeks and Trojans for the ſame Reaſon, which occaſion'd the fuller Peopling of more diſtant Countries by theſe new Inhabitants. And thus in Proceſs of Time, they pitch'd upon the Taking of Troy as an Epocha in which they might all agree in their Chronological Accounts wherever they were diſpers'd; and their Unanimity herein is an Argument, that they could not be miſtaken in the real Time.

35. From the Account of this Siege in Homer, and other Authors, (y) we may obſerve, that it was the Cuſtom of thoſe Wars, that when they had kill'd an Officer of Diſtinction, they would ſtrip him, and carry away his Body, that they might have a good Ranſom to redeem him. In this Caſe they little regarded the common Soldiers, who all fought on Foot, ſlightly arm'd, and commonly follow'd the Succeſs of their Captains, the Chief of which rode not on Horſes, but in Chariots drawn by two or three Horſes, which were guided by ſome faithful Friends of theirs, who drove up and down the Field as they were directed by their Captains, who by the Swiftneſs of their Horſes preſented themſelves where Need requir'd, and threw firſt their Javelins, and then alighting fought on Foot, retiring into the Ranks of the common Soldiers, or elſe returning to their Chariots when they ſaw Cauſe, they began again with new Darts as they could get them, if the old ones were loſt or broken. Their defenſive Arms were Helmets for the Head, Greaves of Braſs for the Shoulders, Breaſt-Plates, Boots of Braſs or other Metal, and ſometimes a Coat of Mail, and Shields commonly made of Skins of Leather one over another. Their offenſive Weapons were Swords or Spears and Battle-Axes, when they were near; and Stones, Javelins and Darts, with Bows and Arrows, when they fought at any Diſtance. Sometimes their Chariots were made of Iron, and had Swords or Scythes faſten'd on the Sides of them to cut down the Enemy. The Uſe of the Chariots (beſide the Swiftneſs) was to keep them from Wearineſs, to which the Commanders were moſt ſubject, becauſe of their Armour, which was made heavy in Proportion to the Strength of them that wore it, and alſo that from thence they might throw their Javelins down upon the Enemy with a greater Violence. They carry'd but few of theſe Weapons into the Field at once; ſo that they were often forc'd to return to their Tents for more, when theſe were ſpent. They alſo had but one Suit of Armour; every Officer carry'd his own Compleat, and was diſtinguiſh'd by the Creſt according to his Dignity, and known particularly from the reſt by ſome Device upon the Breaſt-plate. If any Piece was loſt or broken, every Man was oblig'd to repair his Loſs with the like, if he had taken any ſuch from any Captain, whom he had ſlain or ſtripp'd, or to buy of thoſe who by this Means had ſome to ſpare. So that when Achilles had loſt his Armour, which Hector had taken from the Body of Patroclus, he was forc'd to tarry the Making of new, before he could go to Fight, tho' he very much deſir'd it to revenge the Death of his dear Friend.

36. But to return to the Scripture Hiſtory. Upon the Death of Tolah, Jair a Gileadite of the Tribe of Manaſſeh, was (z) made the Governor of the Iſraelites. He was the firſt Judge, that was rais'd up from among thoſe who liv'd beyond Jordan, and ſeems to take more Care of the Aggrandizing of his Family than of the Intereſt of Religion. He had thirty Sons, whom he made to ride on thirty Aſs Colts, according to the (a) Cuſtom of the nobleſt Perſons, not only in Judea, but alſo in Arabia, and other Countries even among the Romans. And it is very probable, that they were order'd by their Father to ride a Circuit up and down the Country, and to miniſter Juſtice according to the Law, as (b) Samuel did, when he judg'd Iſrael. He had thirty Cities, of which (c) they were the Governors, which were afterward call'd Havoth-jair, or The Villages of Jair, to keep his Name in Remembrance. He is (d) ſuppos'd to be of the Poſterity of that Jair, who (e) call'd the Cities which he took in Argob by his own Name, and he is (f) call'd Bedan to diſtinguiſh him from the elder Jair. And theſe Cities lying in the ſame Country, where the other antient Cities lay, were very probably diſtinguiſh'd from the other by ſome ſuch Addition as this, The new Havoth-jair. He (g) kept the Iſraelites in Peace in the Beginning of his Reign; but for want of a due Care for the Worſhip of GOD, freſh Troubles began, which laſted all his Lifetime; for they (h) were worſe now than ever. They laid aſide all Concern for the true GOD, and worſhipp'd not only Baalim and Aſhtaroth, as they had frequently done in former Times, but they alſo added the Worſhip of new Gods, particularly thoſe of Syria, as Dagon, Moloch and Tammuz, and alſo the Gods of Zidon, Ammon, Moab and the Philiſtines. This made GOD angry, ſo that he rais'd up the Philiſtines and the Ammonites, two of the Nations, whoſe Gods they choſe to ſerve, to oppreſs them in a grievous Manner, beginning both in the ſame Year, the one invading them on the Weſt and South, whilſt the other invaded them on the Eaſt and North. And tho' Jair held the Government, yet their Oppreſſions and Vexations grew intolerable, and they not only afflicted his own Country, but they alſo paſs'd over Jordan to fight openly againſt the Tribes of Judah, Benjamin and Ephraim, and make them alſo feel the Weight of their Power. At the ſame Time the Philiſtines made Ravages in the Countries of Zebulun and Aſher, and the reſt of the Tribes that lay on the weſtern Coaſt.

37. In the Midſt of this Diſtreſs the MESSIAH, the WORD or Angel of the LORD appears (i) to the Wife of Manoah of the Tribe of Dan, who at that Time was barren, and tells her, that ſhe ſhould have a Son, who ſhould begin to deliver the Iſraelites out of the Hands of the Philiſtines, tho' he ſhould not live to complete their Deliverance, and gives her particular Directions, how ſhe ſhould manage both her ſelf and him. She tells her Husband, who deſires alſo to ſee him, which was granted, and he gives him the ſame Directions, and miraculouſly ſhews that he was no human, but a ſpiritual Subſtance. She did as ſhe was order'd, and when her Son was born, ſhe call'd his (k) Name Sampſon, which Joſephus ſaith, ſignifies ſtrong or powerful, the Reaſon of which is ſuppos'd to be, becauſe this Word ſignifies the Sun, which is a Body of mighty Force, and as the Word imports, is a Servant to us, in Adminiſtring to us both Light and Heat, and Diſperſing thoſe Vapours, which would otherwiſe annoy us.

38. And as the ſtrongeſt Man, ſo the greateſt Prophet, even Samuel, was born about this Time of a barren Woman. The Time of his Birth muſt be reckon'd backward from the Finiſhing of the Temple, Firſt, By Suppoſing him to die within two Years before the Death of Saul, according to the general Opinion; and ſecondly, Suppoſing him to be about the Age of Eli, or (l) ninety eight Years when he died. Of Eli it is ſaid, that (m) he was very old, and his eyes were dim, that he could not ſee, and Samuel (n) is deſcrib'd as an old man, and covered with a mantle to keep himſelf warm. So that the Time may be nearly computed thus.

From hence it will appear, that the Judges mention'd in the north and eaſt Parts of Canaan were contemporary with Eli, and that the laſt of them died the ſame Year with him; ſo that Samuel immediately after rul'd over the whole Country.

39. But to proceed in the Story of his Birth. His Father's Name was (q) Elkanah, the Son of Jeroham, the Son of Elihu, the Son of Tohu; ſo that (r) he was a Levite of the Family of the Kohathites; and therefore he could not be a Prieſt by Deſcent, much leſs the High Prieſt, as ſome have imagin'd. The Place of his Birth was Ramathaim Zophim, and call'd in the New Teſtament (s) Arimathea, where Joſeph liv'd, who bury'd CHRIST. The Word (t) Ramah ſignifies an High Place, of which Ramathaim is the Duel Number, becauſe it was built upon two Hills, which made it appear like a double City. The Title of Zophim or Watchmen ſeems to be added to it, becauſe it being in a High Place there was a Watch-tower in it, where Men were ſet to obſerve who came thither from all Parts round about it. Others think, that it was ſo call'd becauſe here was a School of the Prophets, who were wont to ſeat themſelves in ſuch Places as were remote from Company, and ſo more fit for Contemplation. And thus the Chaldee Paraphraſe renders it, A Man of Ramathaim, a Diſciple of the Prophets, who are (u) frequently call'd Watchmen. His Father and Mother ſeem to have had the early Advantage of a pious Education, and therefore the one was call'd Elkanah, or The LORD hath poſſeſſed him, and the other was call'd Hannah, or Gracious. Neither was it in vain, for their Piety was conſpicuous in Going every Year to worſhip, and offer Sacrifices to the LORD in Shiloh, where the Tabernacle now was, and where the Sacrifices were to be offer'd, and no where elſe; and this was more eaſy to be done, becauſe his Houſe in Ramathaim in the Tribe of Ephraim was not above ſeven Miles Diſtance. This Hannah was his beloved Wife tho' barren, and therefore he took another call'd Peninnah, who bore him Children, and for this Reaſon (x) ſhe ſet her ſelf inſolently againſt the other. This turn'd her Feaſting into Lamentation, ſo that ſhe ſpent her Time in Prayers and Tears, begging GOD to give her a Son, and promiſing with her Husband's Conſent to devote him to his Service. Eli miſtaking her Devotion, thinks ſhe was drunk, and reproves her for it. She with a great deal of Humility excuſes her ſelf, and owns in general, that ſhe requeſted a Favour from GOD, which Eli alſo pray'd to GOD to grant, and ſo ſhe went home with an Aſſurance, that her Petition ſhould be heard. Some of the (y) Jews fanſy, that this was the very Day, when Eli was made Judge over the Land, becauſe of the (z) Hebrew Text, which runs thus, And Eli ſat upon his throne. And if this happen'd to be on the Feaſt of the Paſſover, as in all Probability it was, ſo that Samuel was born in the Beginning of the following Year, it will exactly agree with the former Computation. When he was born, his Mother call'd his Name (a) Samuel, giving this Reaſon, Becauſe I have asked him of the LORD. When the Child was wean'd, ſhe brings him to Eli, confeſſes that this was the Child for which ſhe formerly pray'd, and adding, that becauſe GOD had given him thus to her, ſhe would devote him again to GOD, and to his Service as long as he liv'd. Eli well knowing the Piety of his Parents, and that he was the Son of the Mother's Prayers and Tears, took a particular Fancy for the Youth, and admitted him to attend the conſtant Service of the Tabernacle, and the Mother having compos'd a Pſalm of Thankſgiving ſuitable to this Occaſion, returns home with the utmoſt Satisfaction.

40. At this Time (b) the Iſraelites in the North and Weſt humble themſelves before GOD, confeſs their Sins, and pray to him for Deliverance from the Ammonites. GOD puts them in Mind of their former Deliverances, which he gave them, and their Ingratitude to him, and threatens to deliver them no more, but ſends them to the Gods whom they worſhipp'd, for their Aſſiſtance in this Extremity. They continue to humble themſelves, and implore his Mercy, and put away all their Idols, inſomuch that he reſolves to deliver them. But Jair being either old or unactive, nothing was done in his Life-time; neither did they think it adviſeable to depoſe him, and ſet up another until the Time of his Death, when a fit Opportunity preſented.

Anno Mundi 2858. For probably upon the News of the ſame, (c) the Ammonites publiſh'd a Proclamation requiring all their diſpers'd Troops, which were ravaging the Countries of Judah, Benjamin and Ephraim to return back to their Camp on the other Side of Jordan. Upon this they encamp in the Country of Gilead, with a Deſign, as (d) is ſuppos'd, to lay Siege to Gilead it ſelf, the chief City of thoſe Parts; by the Taking of which, they hop'd to be Maſters of all that Country, and then with greater Forces to go over Jordan again, and conquer the other Tribes before-mention'd.

41. The Inhabitants on the other Side of Jordan being ſenſible of this Attempt, and that they had but one Chance for their Lives and Liberties, (e) aſſemble themſelves together, and encamp at Mizpeh, a Town in the half Tribe of Manaſſeh; ſo that Neceſſity revives their antient Courage, and they ſeem to take a Reſolution either to drive the Ammonites out of the Country, or to periſh in the Attempt; which they perceiving, and finding their Army much weaken'd, retreat to raiſe more Forces, and wait for a more favourable Opportunity. In the mean Time the People of Gilead, who were more nearly concern'd in this Matter, as lying next to the Enemy, enter into a Conſultation, who they ſhould chooſe for their Leader, ſince Jair was dead, and reſolve, that whoever would undertake it, ſhould be the Head over the Gadites and Manaſſites. And it is very probable, that they conſulted GOD about it, who directed them (f) to ſend for Jephthah the Gileadite one of their own Country-men, who was a warlike Perſon of good Courage and Conduct, who liv'd upon the Borders of the Ammonites, and had gather'd together a ſmall Army, with which he made frequent Incurſions upon them, and got what Booty they could for their Subſiſtence. The Iſraelites ſend Meſſengers to him, and offer him the Command of the Army. He accepts of it upon Condition, that if he was ſucceſsful, he ſhould be their Governor as long as he liv'd, which they conſented to, and ſolemnly ratify'd. In the mean Time the Ammonites had recruited their Army, and reſolve once more to enter the Country in an hoſtile Manner. Jephthah willing to compoſe the Difference, acts as their Supreme, and ſends Embaſſadors to know what was the Ground of this Quarrel, or for what Reaſon this Invaſion was deſign'd? The Ammonites return this Anſwer, that it was becauſe the Iſraelites had taken away their Land, when they came out of Egypt. Jephthah denies it, and ſends them Word again, that the Iſraelites only took the Land of Sihon King of the Amorites, and Og the King of Baſhan. But they had (g) a ſtrict Charge not to meddle with any of the Country which belong'd to the Children of Lot. And their Conqueſt gave them as good a Title to that Country, as the Moabites and Ammonites had to the other; for they poſſeſs'd it formerly, the one by (h) Driving out the Emims, and (i) the other by Driving out the Zamzummims. 'Tis true, that Sihon King of the Amorites had taken a great (k) Part of the Country of Moab, which lay near Jordan, and was therefore call'd (l) the Land or the Plains of Moab. So that either Conqueſt was a good Title or not. If it was a good Title, the Iſraelites took it not from them but from the Amorites. If it was not a good Title, the Ammonites ought to reſtore all the Land that they dwelt in, ſince they had no other Title to it. At laſt he tells them, that they had been (m) in Poſſeſſion of the Country for three hundred Years; ſo that it was theirs by a long Preſcription, eſpecially ſince no one laid Claim to it in all that Time, and ſo he appeals to GOD to do Juſtice, whilſt they had recourſe to Arms for no other Purpoſe.

Time of Jephthah to be when Eli was the High Prieſt. The Iſraelites had conquer'd Sihon the King of the Amorites, and Og the King of Baſhan, in the Year before they came into Egypt, as hath been already mention'd; ſo that from thence this Epocha muſt begin. Moſt Chronologers (n) make the Time to be ſomething leſs. Marſhall in his Tables makes it to be the exact Diſtance, but according to this preſent Computation, it is ſeven Years more. In this Caſe ſuch a round Sum will admit of ſome Latitude of Expreſſion, and the Argument will be ſtronger if it is more, than if it is leſs. According to this Computation, there are eight Years between the Death of Samſon and the Death of Eli, whilſt we hear nothing of the Philiſtines; and it is not probable, that they would be quiet any longer, ſince Samſon did only (o) begin to deliver the Iſraelites from them, and at his Death left no Army to make Head againſt them. Beſides, this Computation makes the Judges in the North to end at the ſame Time with the Death of Eli, and ſo paves the Way the better for Samuel to ſucceed in the Government of the whole.

Anno Mundi 2552.

43. When Jephthah went out to fight againſt the Children of Ammon, he (p) vow'd a raſh Vow, which many think was the Occaſion of the Sacrificing his own Daughter. The (q) Jewiſh Commentators are generally of another Opinion, and interpret it thus, If GOD would deliver the children of Ammon into his Hands, then whatever came out of his Houſe to meet him, ſhould either be devoted unto GOD, or it ſhould be offer'd for a burnt-offering. And the Particle in the Hebrew Language will admit of ſuch a Conſtruction. He ſeems to be a Man of a religious Temper, made a Conſcience of Obſerving it, and therefore would vow no unlawful thing; for a Dog or a Swine might have come out to meet him, which was an Abomination, and the Sacrificing his own Daughter to GOD, as to the Idol Moloch, would have been worſt of all. However he obtain'd a complete Victory, and at his Return his Daughter, who was his only Child, came out to meet him; and therefore in this Caſe ſome ſuppoſe, that he did not ſacrifice her, but devoted her to the LORD by a perpetual Virginity. For Firſt, if he had ſacrific'd her, the Scripture would without Doubt have cenſur'd it as a very wicked and inhuman Act. Secondly, In ſuch a Caſe he would not let her go up and down upon the Mountains for two Months; for he might ſuppoſe, that ſhe would never have return'd, and then he could not have done as he had vow'd. Thirdly, If ſhe had gone upon the Mountains, it would have been to bewail her untimely End, whereas all that ſhe propos'd was to bewail her Virginity. And Fourthly, the ſacred Story ſeems to favour this Interpretation: That at the End of two Months ſhe return'd to her Father, who did with her according to his Vow, that he had vow'd, the Conſequence of which is immediately added, And ſhe knew no man. This was a great Trouble to Jephthah, becauſe by this Means his Family was extinct, and he had no Iſſue to inherit his Eſtate, or keep his Name in Remembrance.

44. Jephthah returning out of the Country of Ammon, where his Battles were fought, fluſh'd with Succeſs, met with ſome Diſturbance at Home; for (r) the Tribe of Ephraim paſs'd over Jordan to pick a Quarrel with him, becauſe he did not ſend for them to join the Army and ſhare in the Victory, threatning to burn him and his Houſe with Fire. Jephthah endeavours to pacify them with good Words; but when this would not do, he fell upon them, gave them a total Overthrow, ſent ſome of his Forces to take the Paſſages of Jordan, and intercept their Retreat, where they were known by their Speech and then kill'd; ſo that two and forty thouſand of them loſt their Lives in that Day, and very few eſcap'd to bring home the News. After which he ſpent the reſt of his Days in Peace. He (s) rul'd the Iſraelites ſix Years in all, and was honourably bury'd in his own Country.

Anno Mundi 2863.

45. About the latter End of Jephthah's Government, we may ſuppoſe Jeſſe the Father of David to have been born, by Allowing ſeven and fifty Years between his Birth and the Birth of David, as in the preceding Examples of the ſame Genealogy. This will appear the more reaſonable, when we conſider, that David being (t) ſeventy Years old when he died, was born in the tenth Year of Saul's Reign, and Jeſſe his Father (u) went for an old man in the Days of Saul; ſo that his Bitth may be thus nearly computed.

46. After the Death of Jephthah, (x) Ibzan, who is generally ſuppos'd to have been born and bury'd in Bethlehem-Judah, ſucceeded him in the Government of the north and eaſt Part, and very probably might act under Eli in the civil Government of that Tribe. After he had govern'd the People ſeven Years, he was (y) ſucceeded by Elon of the Tribe of Zebulun, who govern'd them for the Space of ten Years, and was ſucceeded by (z) Abdon, who was of the Tribe of Ephraim, and govern'd eight Years, and died at the ſame Time with Eli the High Prieſt. In the Life Time of theſe Judges there was nothing remarkable done in the north and eaſt Parts of the Land of Canaan; ſo that the Scriptures only mention thoſe which ſucceeded Jephthah, and the numerous Iſſue of ſome of them, to ſhew that their Government at that Time was not hereditary.

47. However in the fifth Year of Ibzan, Samſon now begins to act in the ſouth and eaſt Parts of the Land of Canaan. He was guided (a) and directed by a particular Providence, and by the great Acts which he did, GOD made it appear, that it was not for want of Power, that he ſuffer'd his People to continue ſo long under the Oppreſſion of the Philiſtines. He was able (b) to make good his Promiſe, that one of them ſhould chaſe a thouſand, and two ſhould put ten thouſand to flight; but their Forſaking him was the Cauſe of his Forſaking them. However GOD being willing now to fulfil his Promiſe, that (c) Samſon ſhould begin to deliver Iſrael out of the hand of the Philiſtines; an Occaſion for this Purpoſe offer'd it ſelf in due Time. For he (d) went to Timnath, a City of his own Tribe, where he fell in Love with a Philiſtine, intending to make her his Wife; and being betroth'd to her, he (e) the next Year went to conſummate the Marriage: when he propoſes a Riddle to thirty Men of the Philiſtines, and lays a Wager of thirty Pieces of Linnen, and thirty Suits of Apparel, that they ſhould not tell the Meaning of it. They fearing to loſe the Wager, prevail on his Wife by Promiſes and Threatnings to perſuade Samſon to tell it her, upon which ſhe tells it to them. This enrages him ſo, that he goes to Aſhkelon a City of the Philiſtines, where he kills thirty of them, takes their Spoil, and ſo pays what he had loſt. Upon this he leaves her in a Rage, and goes to his Father's Houſe; and during his Abſence his Wife was given to one that was at the Wedding, who probably was the Governor of the Feaſt, and (f) ſo acted as the Friend of the Bridegroom; ſo that here was an Affront of the higheſt Nature knowingly and wilfully committed againſt him. The (g) next Year, when his Anger was over, Samſon intending to be fully reconcil'd, goes to viſit his Wife, and carries with him a Kid, which was delicious Fare in that Country, intending to be merry together; but finding how he was ſerv'd, he reſolv'd to be reveng'd for the Injury. For this Purpoſe (h) he caught three hundred wild Animals, and tying them Tail to Tail, he put a burning Torch between two Tails, and let them go into the Fields of the Philiſtines, by which Contrivance he burnt up their ſtanding Corn with the Vineyards and Olive-Trees. The Philiſtines hearing who did this, and upon what Provocation, burn Samſon's Father and his Wife with Fire, which probably was done by Burning their Houſe over their Heads. Samſon ſeeing this, breaks out into (i) an Expreſſion, which in the Hebrew is very obſcure, and ſeems (k) to ſhew him in a violent Paſſion, and perhaps the beſt Way to explain it is thus: If ye ſhall do after this Rate to thoſe who are leſs guilty, what will you do to me, who am the greateſt Aggreſſor? But to prevent this I will take my revenge upon you for this Fact, and after that I will forbear. And accordingly he ſlew a great many of them, and went and dwelt in the Top of a Rock call'd Etam in the Tribe of Judah, where the Aſcent was ſo narrow,

They reſolve to ſurrender him up to the Philiſtines, and bind him for this Purpoſe. When he came near them, the Cords, with which he was bound, were miraculouſly diſſolv'd, ſo that he caſt them off from his Arms; and providentially finding a freſh Jaw-Bone of an Aſs, he uſes it as a Weapon, and kills a thouſand Men, and from this Accident the Place was call'd Lehi, or A Jaw-bone, and ſometimes Ramath-Lehi, or, The Lifting up, or Caſting away of the Jaw-bone. Being very thirſty with the long Fight, he prays to GOD to relieve him, and immediately (m) there guſhes out a Stream of delicious Water from the neighbouring Place, where it is probable, that they afterward built a Well, and that the Water continu'd, for the Place was call'd En-hakkore, or, The Well of him that pray'd. After this (n) Samſon made nothing of the Philiſtines, but went publickly to a Town of theirs call'd Gaza, and took up his Lodgings there in a common Inn. The Governor of the Town having Notice of it, ſets Guards and Spies at the Gates to watch him, which Samſon hearing of, he riſes at Midnight, and takes the Doors, Frames, Locks, Bars and Hinges of the City Gate out of the Wall, and carry'd them on his Shoulders to a Hill near Hebron, and there he left them.

48. The Actions and Dangers before-mention'd, which happen'd to Samſon, made the Philiſtines afraid of him, and made him not willing to expoſe himſelf among the Philiſtines, ſo that nothing remarkable paſs'd for many Years. At laſt (o) he fell in Love with a Woman in the Valley of Sorek in the Tribe of Judah. The Name in Hebrew ſignifies a choice Vine, and it was remarkably famous for that Fruit. It was but a Mile and an half from Eſhcol, from whence the Spies brought a Cluſter of Grapes for a Sample of the Fruitfulneſs of the Country. This Woman was treacherous to him, and for the Promiſe of a great Reward allures him by many Intreaties to diſcover the Cauſe of his great Strength. He confeſſing that he was a Nazarite, and under GOD's Protection whilſt he obſerv'd his Vow, (which was not to be ſhaven) but no longer, ſhe caus'd them to cut off his Hair in his Sleep. Upon this the Philiſtines ſeize him, put out his Eyes, confine him to Priſon, and force him to grind for a Maintenance. After ſome Run of Time, the Philiſtines meet to offer a Sacrifice to their GOD Dagon, giving him the Glory, and ſaying, Our God hath deliver'd Samſon our enemy into our hand. Upon this they ſend for Samſon out of the Priſon-Houſe to mock at him, and to ſpeak reproachfully of the true GOD for his ſake. This puts Samſon in a Rage, ſo that he reſolv'd to deſtroy them, tho' he periſh'd in the Attempt; and having Hold of the Pillars, on which he ſeem'd to lean, he prays to GOD to aſſiſt him. GOD, to vindicate his own Honour, enables him to pull down the Pillars, on which this (p) Idol Temple ſtood, by which Means he deſtroy'd all the Philiſtines who were in the Houſe, and upon the Top of its flat Roof to the Number of three thouſand in all.

49. Thus died Samſon, of whom (q) Joſephus gives this Character: He was a Man of wonderful Strength and Courage, and to his immortal Honour, he employ'd his utmoſt Force to the Confuſion of his Enemies. It is true, that it was his Misfortune to be inveigl'd by Women; but he had alſo other excellent Qualities, which deſerv'd eternal Memory. His dead Body was under the Care of his Kindred, who bury'd it honourably among the Sepulchres of his Fathers.

50. It is obſervable, that when (r) Eli the High Prieſt was very old, he dwelt with the Ark at Shiloh in the Tribe of Ephraim, and that the Philiſtines at that Time did moſt grievouſly oppreſs the Iſraelites; and alſo that (s) Abdon the laſt of the Judges was of the City of Pirathon in the ſame Tribe, and not above twenty Miles diſtant toward the River Jordan, where he ſeems to have ſeated himſelf, that he might have a watchful Eye over the Ammonites, and ſo prevent their Coming any more into the Land of Canaan. He was the only Perſon of that Tribe, that judg'd Iſrael ſince the Time of Joſhua; and ſeems to have been choſen by the Approbation of Eli the High Prieſt, that ſo he might command over all in Military Affairs, and being near together, they might mutually conſult and aſſiſt each other, as Occaſion requir'd. At this Time Eli appoints his Sons Hophni and Phinehas to officiate as Prieſts in his ſtead. Theſe were notoriouſly wicked, in ſuch a ſcandalous Manner that they deſerv'd Death, and nothing leſs could appeaſe the Wrath of GOD for their Offences. Eli reproves them for it, but too gently. His Words were too mild, and he deliver'd them in too mild a Manner, for (t) he ſeems not ſo much as to frown upon them when he reprov'd them; however he did not ſuſpend them from the Office of the Prieſthood, until they did reform. This brought in a general Corruption of Manners, and therefore GOD reſolv'd to enter into Judgment for the ſame. But before he ſtrikes, he (u) ſends a Prophet to Eli, to reprove him for the Sins of his two Sons, and to foretel the Puniſhments which ſhould happen for the ſame, that GOD would take all Power and Authority from him and his Family, that his Poſterity ſhould die in their full Strength, and he ſhould behold the Tabernacle depriv'd of the Ark; that his two Sons ſhould die in one Day; and the Children of thoſe who were ſo wanton, that they could not be content, unleſs they had the choiceſt Parts of the Sacrifice for their Portion, ſhould fall into ſo low a Condition, as to beg their Bread. However in the Midſt of Judgment GOD remembers Mercy, and adds, (x) I will raiſe me up a faithful prieſt, that ſhall do all that is in my heart, and in my mind, and I will build him a ſure houſe, and he ſhall continue for ever. This in the higheſt Senſe belongs to none, but to our LORD JESUS CHRIST, who offer'd himſelf to the Father for us, and is our great High Prieſt for evermore. However it ſeems to be meant alſo of Zadok, who (y) was anointed by King Solomon in the Room of Abiathar, and whoſe Poſterity continu'd in that Office until the Captivity. And it is ſo worded, that they who liv'd before the Accompliſhment, might eaſily miſtake it as ſpoken of Samuel, and therefore be the more zealous for his Advancement. This not working a Reformation, GOD declares the ſame to Samuel in ſuch a Manner, that Eli could not but know, that it came from him, and therefore was more inquiſitive after it; upon which Samuel told him the whole Account. And Eli with an humble Reſignation adds, (z) It is the LORD; let him do what ſeemeth him good. Joſephus (a) ſuppoſeth this to have happen'd when Samuel was about twelve Years of Age, becauſe (b) at this Time he was call'd a Child; but ſince the Word may ſignify a Perſon of thirty Years of Age, (as hath been already mention'd) it may not be improper to fix it to that Time, that ſo the Prophecy may be the nearer to its Accompliſhment. However (c) after this Samuel was in very great Eſteem as a Prophet among all the People. There were many manifeſt Tokens that GOD favour'd him. The Chaldee Paraphraſe ſaith, that The WORD of the LORD was his help. He foretold many things by divine Inſpiration, and the Accompliſhment of them prov'd him to be a Prophet. And GOD revealing more and more of his Mind to him, the whole Country of Judea, from one End to the other, knew that Samuel was intended to be a principal Prophet among them. Thus did GOD reveal himſelf to Samuel in Shiloh, not by Dreams and Viſions only, but by an audible Voice. He was rais'd up to be a publick Inſtructor and Governor of the People, and tho' there had been others in the Land of Canaan, yet they were not with ſo high an Authority and publick Approbation. And therefore St. Peter, (d) mentioning the (e) famous Prophecy of Moſes concerning CHRIST, adds, All the prophets alſo from Samuel, and thoſe that follow after, as many as have ſpoken, have likewiſe foretold of thoſe days: As if he was the firſt eminent Prophet, whom the LORD had rais'd up to them after Moſes. Nay, Samuel ſeems viſibly to have ſeen CHRIST himſelf. For (f) it is ſaid, that The LORD revealed himſelf unto Samuel in Shiloh by the WORD of the LORD, even by that WORD, which (as (g) St. John ſaith) was in the beginning with GOD, and was GOD, and afterward was made fleſh, and dwelt among us. And therefore as Samuel ſaw him ſo clearly, and receiv'd many Revelations from him, it cannot be doubted, but that he ſpoke of him. And (h) the Jews tell us, that in the Days of Eli the Word of the LORD was ſcarce, and Viſions were ſeldom: But when Samuel appear'd, he not only was ready to inſtruct every one that came to him, but he alſo ſet up the Colleges of the Prophets, who were afterward ſettl'd in ſeveral Parts of the Country for the better Preſerving and Propagating the Knowledge of GOD among the People, ſo that many of the Iſraelites by his Means were endued with the ſame Spirit; and its Influence, which deſcended upon Samuel in Shiloh, reached unto others (becauſe of its Abundance) who were diſpos'd to receive it.

51. Our (i) learned Primate is of the Opinion, that Samſon having ſlain ſo many of the Philiſtines at his Death, the Iſraelites were encourag'd to act offenſively againſt them, believing and hoping that now the Deliverance, which (k) was foretold to be begun by him, ſhould be completed. They might remember the Prophesy in their Favour, which they were apt to do; but they forgat the Propheſy of Samuel, which was againſt them; and their Forgetfulneſs thereof, was the Cauſe that it was fulfill'd. And the Iſraelites being quiet in the northern and eaſtern Parts, it is probable, that thoſe in the ſouth and weſt Parts ſend for Abdon from Pirathon to join him with all his Forces. Accordingly they march to a Place, which was afterward (l) call'd Ebenezer for a particular Reaſon. The Philiſtines hearing this, march to Aphek, a Place in the Tribe of Judah, upon the Borders of their own Country. But a Battle happening, the Iſraelites loſt four thouſand Men; and conſulting together what they ſhould do, they reſolve to ſend for the Ark from Shiloh, as if they could confide in GOD's Help, when they liv'd in open Diſobedience to his Commands. But this being done without any Warrant from GOD, provok'd him, rather than procur'd his Preſence among them. Eli ſends his two Sons, Hophni and Phinehas, with the Ark. Joſephus ſaith, (m) that Eli parted very unwillingly with the Ark from the Tabernacle; but when he could not help it, he charg'd his Sons, who went along with it, rather to loſe their Lives, than ſuffer it to be taken. The Philiſtines reſolve now to fight the more deſperately, and ſo in the next Battle they kill thirty thouſand Iſraelites, and probably Abdon their General, and alſo the two Sons of Eli, as had before been propheſy'd, and alſo take the Ark of GOD, and carry it off; ſo that the Army being totally routed, and having no one to head them, did not retreat to the Camp with an Intention to renew the Fight, as they did before, but fled every one to their own Home. Eli hearing the News, tho' he was a very indulgent Father, yet he was highly commendable in this, that he was not ſo much affected with the Slaughter of the People, and the Death of his Sons, as with the Loſs of the Ark; which when he heard he fainted away, fell from his Seat, and ſo broke his Neck and died. He was a Man too indulgent to his Children, tho' otherwiſe adorn'd with many good Qualities, and had a great Regard for the Welfare of the People both in Church and State; and therefore tho' GOD puniſh'd his Fault, yet he ſeems to reward his other Virtues, in that his Sons ſucceeded in the Prieſthood for three Generations.

52. When the Wife of Phinehas (n) heard, that her Husband and her Father-in-Law were both dead, and the Ark of GOD was taken, ſhe fell in Travail of a Son, and liv'd long enough to call him (o) Ichabod, that is, Where is the Glory? or, There is no Glory. The Reaſon of which Name ſhe gives in this dying Speech, The Glory is departed from Iſrael, for the ark of GOD is taken. She had alſo another Son, call'd (p) Ahitub, who probably died before his Father and Grandfather, becauſe there is no mention made of his Acting as High Prieſt, and indeed there is no Notice taken of him, than as the Father of Ahijah and Abimelech, who ſucceeded each other in this Office, when Saul was King over Iſrael. Their Names were given them, when their Relations were in Proſperity, and ſhew them to be of aſpiring Tempers, the one ſignifying, The LORD is my Brother, and the other, The King is my Brother. However they being under Age to officiate at the Death of their great Grandfather Eli, and no one elſe caring to act, and the Judge in the other Country being dead, and Samuel being reſpected as a very great Prophet, was by Conſent of all to act (q) as High Prieſt, and as Judge in all the Land; and in his younger Years took a Circuit every Year for this Purpoſe; and living at other Times at Ramah in the Tribe of Benjamin, he builds an Altar in this his Place of Reſidence, becauſe after the Deſtruction of Shiloh there was no Declaration made by GOD, where he would have the Ark to be fix'd. And he thought it not proper, when they conſulted about publick Buſineſs for the Good of the People, they ſhould depart without a publick Invocation of GOD's Bleſſing and Direction, and Offering of Sacrifices for that Purpoſe.

53. In the mean Time the Philiſtines carry the (r) Ark of GOD in Triumph to Aſhdod, which ſeems to be their chief City, lying in the Middle of their five Principalities, and having a famous Temple, to which the Country reſorted to worſhip their GOD Dagon, an Idol, the upper Part whereof was like a Man, and the lower Part like a Fiſh. They bring this Ark into the Temple, and ſet it before Dagon like a Captive before the Conqueror; but when they came in the Morning, they found Dagon fallen down in a Poſture of the moſt humble Adoration. This they look'd upon as a mere Chance, and ſo ſet him again in his Place; but when they came the next Morning, Dagon was fallen down again, with his Head and Arms broken off, and only the fiſhy Part left before the Ark, the others being thrown at a great Diſtance, to ſhew that this Idol had neither Wiſdom nor Strength. Immediately upon this GOD ſmites the Men of Aſhdod with a Peſtilence, of which many died; and the reſt were afflicted with a violent bloody Flux, which brought them ſo low, that they were in daily Fear of Death. Thus the Pſalmiſt ſaith, (s) He ſmote his enemies in their hinder parts, and put them to a perpetual ſhame. After this they carry the Ark to Gath, and then to Ekron, who were alſo puniſh'd with the ſame Diſeaſes. At other Times they ſend the Ark into the Country Villages, and therefore the Hebrew (t) expreſſes it thus, The ark of the LORD was in the field of the Philiſtines; but this did not anſwer their Expectation, for a great Number of (u) Mice came up out of the Earth, and made a very great Waſte in all their Fields. Thus they try all Methods for the (x) Space of ſeven Months to keep the Ark among them, but to no Purpoſe. So that at laſt (y) upon mature Deliberation they agree together to ſend home the Ark, and ſend with it fit Preſents, even golden Images of the Parts afflicted with the Flux, and of the Mice which deſtroy'd the Country. Theſe they put into a Coffer, and place it on the Side of the Ark. And then they reſolv'd to try an Experiment, to know whether the GOD of Iſrael had ſmitten them or no, which was this: They make a new Cart, and tie two milch Cows to it, which had never been yok'd before, keep their Calves at home, and ſet the Cows (as Joſephus ſaith) in a Place where three Ways met, without any Guide, concluding, that if they went directly into the Iſraelites Country, and carry'd the Ark of GOD to its proper Place, it was he who afflicted them, or otherwiſe their Misfortunes aroſe from ſome other Cauſe. The Cows immediately took the Road to the Iſraelites Country, lowing as they went, and the Lords of the Philiſtines follow'd them, to obſerve them, till they came to Bethſhemeſh, a Town in the Tribe of Judah, and in the Confines of both Countries, and (z) a Town which belong'd to the Prieſts, whoſe Buſineſs it was to take Care of the Ark, and there they ſtood near a great Stone, which ſeems to have been the Boundaries of the two Countries. It happen'd that the Inhabitants were reaping their Wheat Harveſt, which being about Whitſontide, ſhews that the Victory of the Philiſtines, being ſeven Months before, was at the latter End of the former Year. The Inhabitants flock together with great Joy on this extraordinary Occaſion, and offer Sacrifices of Thankſgiving; and ſeeing the Preſents in the Coffer on the Outſide, were willing to ſee, if any thing was either plac'd within or taken away. This Fact was (a) poſitively forbidden, not only to the common People, but alſo to the Levites. But their Curioſity made them forget their Duty. The Philiſtines were (b) immediately deliver'd from their Diſeaſes, and the Plague of the Mice; and at the ſame Time the Joy of the Iſraelites was ſoon turn'd into Mourning, for GOD puniſh'd them for their Preſumption. Our Tranſlation tells us, (c) that GOD ſmote of the people fifty thouſand and threeſcore and ten men, which is a greater Number than thoſe, who were ſlain at their total Defeat. And as the Jews look on Bethſhemeſh but as a Village, ſo it is ſtrange, that ſuch a Number of Men could be brought together ſo ſoon in ſuch a Place, and ſo near the Enemies Country. The Words in the Hebrew run thus, He ſmote of the people threeſcore and ten men, fifty thouſand men. Joſephus (d) takes it to be threeſcore and ten men, and leaves out the fifty thouſand. Another Jew expounds (e) it thus, Together with the

Of theſe GOD ſmote ſeventy Men, that is, fifty out of a thouſand, or one in twenty, for Looking into the Ark which caus'd a general Lamentation among the reſt.

ſeventy men of Bethſhemeſh he ſmote in all ſeventy thouſand Men becauſe of the Ark, thus including thoſe who died among the Philiſtines. Another Interpretation, which ſeems to be the beſt, is (g) this, He ſmote threeſcore and ten men, fifty out of a thouſand men. GOD was ſo indulgent, as not to ſlay all that were guilty, but only ſeventy of them, obſerving this Proportion, that out of a thouſand Offenders he ſmote only fifty Perſons, that is, a twentieth Part; and thus out of fourteen hundred that deſerv'd Puniſhment, he ſmote only ſeventy. This puts the Inhabitants of Bethſhemeſh into a Conſternation, and therefore they ſend to the Men of Kirjath-jearim, a ſtrong City in the Tribe of Judah, which ſtood upon an Hill, to fetch it thither, where they thought it might be ſecure from any Incurſions of the Enemies. The Men of Kirjath-jearim receive it with the utmoſt Reſpect, expecting a Bleſſing would follow them on this Account, and ſet apart ſome Levites to attend it according to GOD's Direction. It could not be carry'd to Shiloh its antient Seat, becauſe the Philiſtines had deſtroy'd that Place, and the Tabernacle upon the Death of Eli was remov'd from thence to Nob, where it remain'd till the Death of Samuel. And after his Death it was carry'd to Gibeon. All which Time the Ark was at Kirjath-jearim, till David brought it firſt into the Houſe of Obed-edom, and then into his own City. After which the Tabernacle remain'd at Gibeon, till Solomon's Temple was built, for (h) there we read, that Solomon ſacrific'd after the Death of David, becauſe the Tabernacle remain'd there.

54. The Taking of the Ark had a different Effect on the Philiſtines and on the Iſraelites. The Philiſtines were ſtruck with ſuch a Terror, and Veneration for the GOD thereof, that they ſtirr'd no more to improve the Advantages of the Victory which they had thus gain'd, ſo that (i) all was quiet for twenty Years. The Iſraelites grew into a greater Contempt of Religion, becauſe GOD had (k) deliver'd his glory into captivity, and his ſtrength into the enemies hands, and perhaps being afraid to fetch the Ark from Kirjath-jearim, they fell again into Idolatry. The High Prieſt being under Age could not act, and no one car'd to act in his ſtead; and it was alſo uncertain where he ſhould act, the Tabernacle being in one Place and the Ark in another. In the mean Time Samuel acts as a Judge over all Iſrael, and (l) goes a yearly Circuit for this Purpoſe in the Tribes of Benjamin and Judah, and very probably into more diſtant Parts. However after (m) the Space of twenty Years, the Philiſtines now beginning to recruit their Armies, and the Iſraelites were awaken'd by a Senſe of their Danger to a Senſe of their Duty, and began to ſeek the Favour of GOD, and lament their Apoſtaſy from him. And when they were aſſembl'd at ſome ſolemn Feſtival, or perhaps ſummon'd to attend, Samuel exhorts them to put away all their Idols, and reſolve to ſerve GOD only, promiſing that he would pray to GOD for them, and they ſhould be deliver'd from their Enemies. They did according as they were directed, and obſerv'd a ſolemn Day of Faſting and Humiliation for that Purpoſe; and then they (n) pour'd out Water, as they us'd to do on the Feaſt of Tabernacles, to teſtify their joyful Senſe of GOD's Mercy. The Philiſtines imagin'd, that the Iſraelites met to conſult about a War, and therefore reſolv'd to ſurprize them, before they were prepar'd. The Iſraelites hearing of this, deſire Samuel to pray for them, who accordingly offer'd (o) a Burnt-offering to make Reconciliation for the People. At the ſame Time (p) the Philiſtines invade them from the South, and (*) the Tyrians from the North, ſo that their Diſtreſs ſeems greater than ever. But GOD, who ſhews his Power in our greateſt Neceſſities, (q) ſent a terrible Storm of Thunder and Lightning, which kill'd many of them, and affrighted the reſt, and (as (r) Joſephus ſaith) there was a violent Earthquake, and the Earth open'd in ſeveral Places, and ſwallow'd up ſome of them. So that the Iſraelites having Samuel for their Captain, purſu'd them, recover'd their Towns, and ſo diſhearten'd them, that they made no other Attempts of this Nature in Samuel's Time. This Victory was the more remarkable, becauſe it was in the ſame Place where they had been defeated twenty Years before. Upon which Samuel ſets up a Pillar for a Memorial of it, and calls it (s) Ebenezer, or The Stone of Help, ſaying, Hitherto hath the LORD helped us.

But his Sons not acting ſincerely, the Elders were diſſatisfy'd with their Proceedings. Samuel complains of this to GOD; GOD permits them to have their Humour, but orders Samuel to tell them the Miſeries of an arbitrary Government. The People perſiſt in their Reſolution of having a King, and GOD's Providence brings Saul to Samuel, and acquaints him, that he was the Perſon appointed for this Authority, and

It is obſervable, that Saul was anointed with (t) a Vial of Oil, a ſmall Quantity, to ſhew that his Kingdom ſhould continue but a little while; but David was anointed with (u) a Horn, a larger Quantity, to ſhew that his Kingdom ſhould continue from Generation to Generation. Saul keeps this as a Secret, and acts with a great Deal of Modeſty. But ſoon after Samuel appoints, that they ſhould caſt Lots publickly for this Office, and the Lot fell upon him, when he was not there. However they ſend for him, and when he was among them, he was taller by the Head than any of the reſt; upon which there was a great Acclamation, wiſhing him Proſperity. But Saul declines all Acting as their King, until the following Accident happen'd, that he could not avoid it.

CHAP. IV.

From the Anointing of Saul to the Dedication of the Temple by Solomon.

THE Philiſtines being quiet in the ſouth and weſt Parts of Canaan, (a) Nahaſh the King of the Children of Ammon makes War again with the Iſraelites, which was the Occaſion that they deſir'd a King, that (b) might fight their battles; and (as (c) Joſephus ſaith) within a Month after Saul was choſen King, Nahaſh lays Siege to Jabeſh-gilead, a Town on the other Side of Jordan, in the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, and near his own Country. The Inhabitants of Jabeſh-gilead being reduc'd to the laſt Extremity, propoſe to ſurrender on Terms: Nahaſh in an inſulting Manner propoſeth no other Terms, but to put out their right Eyes, and that this Puniſhment ſhould be a ſtanding Monument of Reproach to the Iſraelites, to ſhew that there was none who could relieve them. They deſire ſeven Days Time to ſend for Aſſiſtance, which was granted, upon a Suppoſition that none could be had. The Meſſengers come to (d) Gibeah, the Place where Saul was born and bred, and where he liv'd, and they bring the melancholy News. Saul feels an extraordinary Impulſe on him to raiſe an Army, and ſends to all the Iſraelites to join him, with ſevere Threatnings if they did not. The People join him according to his Deſire. Upon this he marches, and coming unawares upon the Enemy, he gives them a total Defeat, raiſes the Siege, and immediately the Iſraelites at his Return over Jordan declare him to be their King in a very ſolemn Manner. And ſoon after this, Samuel (e) teſtifies his Innocency and Integrity in the Execution of his Office, and ſeems to act no more as a High Prieſt, not being of the regular Line, and ſo he is ſucceeded in that Office by (f) Ahijah the Son of Ahitub, and Grandſon of Eli in the Line of Ithamar the Son of Aaron. Anno Mundi 2910.

2. A (g) Year having paſs'd between the Time that Saul was anointed to be King over Iſrael, and the Time when he obtain'd the Victory over the Ammonites, and ſo was confirm'd in the Kingdom, he reign'd two Years longer free from the Yoke of the Philiſtines. But when theſe other two Years were ended, the Philiſtines got the upper Hand again, and very much clip'd his Power and Authority. At this Time Jonathan the Son of Saul had the Command of a thouſand Men, with which he deſtroys a Gariſon of the Philiſtines, which was in Geba in the Tribe of Benjamin, and oppreſs'd them very much. The Philiſtines reſolve to be reveng'd for this, and gather together their whole Army, conſiſting of a vaſt Number, as appears only from this, that they had (h) thirty thouſand Carriages to carry their Baggage, Arms and Proviſion with them. We indeed tranſlate it Chariots, but the Word in the Hebrew ſignifies any thing that is drawn upon Wheels, or otherwiſe, it would be impoſſible that the Number could be ſo great. The Army of Saul hearing of ſuch vaſt Preparations, were very much terrify'd. Many of them hid themſelves in Lurking Holes, others fled beyond Jordan, and the reſt knew not what Anno Mundi 2912.

to do. Saul went with his Army to Gilgal, according as (i) Samuel had before directed him. His Words are these, Thou shalt go down before me to Gilgal, and behold I will come down unto thee to offer burnt-offerings, and to sacrifice peace-offerings, seven days shalt thou tarry, till I come to thee, and shew thee what thou shalt do. Some think the Words seven days ought to be join'd to what went before them, and that Samuel intended to offer Sacrifices so long. And indeed the Words (k) in the Hebrew may be thus render'd, And he tarried seven Days, instead of the Time until the solemn Feast which Samuel had appointed. And then it was an absolute Command to tarry till he came without Limitation. However if these Words related to the latter Part, Saul ought to have tarry'd till the Day was past, but instead of Tarrying for Samuel, he offer'd a Burnt-offering himself. For this Samuel reprov'd him, and told him, (l) that his Kingdom should not continue; and from this Time he seems to be in a distressed Condition, and to have lost that Authority which he had before, for his whole Army was (m) reduc'd to six hundred Men, so that he could not look his Enemies in the Face. In the mean Time the Philistines went out in Companies, and ravag'd the Country, and were so absolute, that they would (n) not suffer any Smith to dwell in the Land, so that the Soldiers had no Swords nor Spears wherewith to act offensively, Saul and Jonathan only excepted.

3. In the Midst of this deplorable State, Jonathan by an extraordinary Impulse from GOD (o) goes with his Armour-Bearer alone, attacks a Garison of the Philistines, and kills twenty of them in a small Spot of Ground, which a Yoke of Oxen could plow in one Day; the rest seeing this Slaughter, and concluding the Number of the Enemy to be far greater than they were, mistook their Friends for Enemies, and so destroy'd one another. Thus they had an Opportunity to arm themselves with the Plunder of the Field, and for this Reason (p) the Deliverance of the Nation is ascrib'd to him. How long this happen'd after Saul fell under GOD's Displeasure by Sacrificing, is not expresly mention'd; but there is this Reason to think, that the Distance was not great, because (q) the Number of his Army at both Times was exactly the same, consisting only of six hundred Men, and therefore it is probable, that they had only march'd from Gilgal to Gibeah, where they lay strongly intrench'd in a very advantageous Post, for Fear of being forc'd to a Battle. However this Success of Jonathan gave Saul an Opportunity of Recovering (*) his former Authority and Government, so that (r) the next Account which we have of his Army, is, that it consisted of two hundred and ten thousand Men; and whilst they were thus recruiting, he fights against all his Enemies one after another, the Moabites, the Ammonites, the Edomites, the Syrians of Zobah, the Philistines and the Amalekites, and was very successful in all his Enterprizes, delivering the Israelites from their Oppressors, tho' he was not able utterly to root out any of them; which made them enter into (s) a new Confederacy against the Israelites in the Reign of David.

Anno Mundi 2914.

4. About this Time the Reubenites on the other Side of Jordan also begin to enlarge their Conquests. They (t) raised an Army of four and forty thousand Men, so that it is probable, that the other Tribes on that Side of Jordan were concern'd in the Expedition, only the Reubenites being the most numerous, and descending from the eldest Son of Jacob, commanded the rest. They made War with the (u) Hagarens, who are also call'd Ishmaelites, as descending from Ishmael the Son of Hagar by Abraham. When their Stock was very much increas'd, so that they had not Pasturage enough for them, they resolv'd to enlarge their Country toward the East, and conquer'd these Ishmaelites, who were settl'd in Arabia-deserta, as far as the Entrance of that Wilderness which reaches to the River Euphrates, which they accordingly effected, and dwelt in their Land until the Time of their own Captivity by (x) Tiglah-pilezer King of Assyria. But the Victory was not so cheap as they expected, for the Ishmaelites who dwelt neares to them, having Notice of their Coming, send to their Neighbours (y) Jethur and Naphish, and Kedemah or Nadab, who were all descended from the same Father, but were before divided into little Kingdoms, to come and join them against a common Enemy; so that when the Reubenites expected only to fight against one, they were oblig'd to fight against them all. It seems that they consulted GOD, before they went upon this Expedition, and he encourag'd them to undertake it, and assisted them in it, so that they had all the Success, which they themselves could desire. However the Ishmaelites fought stoutly at the first Onset, and were too hard for the Israelites, which made them pray to GOD most earnestly in the Midst of the Fight, representing to him the pious Confidence which they plac'd in his almighty Power, and not in their Arms and warlike Skill. Upon this GOD gave the Israelites an intire Victory, induing them with extraordinary Courage, and daunting their Enemies. The Iſraelites took all their Cattle and Booty, and an hundred thouſand Captives of all Sorts, ſome of whom they ſold, and others they employ'd about their own Buſineſs; and ſo they poſſeſs'd that Country, until they were carry'd Captive by (z) Pekah the Son of Remaliah. In the ſame Manner the (a) half Tribe of Manaſſeh dwelt on the other Side of Jordan. They were (b) firſt poſſeſs'd of all the Kingdom of Og in Baſhan, from whence they extended their Territories unto the northern Parts of that Country. But the Gadites could make no Conqueſts, having the Reubenites on the South, the Manaſſites on the North, and the Deſarts of Arabia on the Eaſt.

6. The Iſraelites having thus beſtir'd themſelves on every Side, and got the better of all their Enemies, enjoy'd a ſettl'd Peace, ſo that we have no farther Account of their Actions for many Years. After this (e) Samuel by GOD's Direction orders Saul to deſtroy the Amalekites, for their ſevere Uſage of the Children of Iſrael at their firſt Coming into the Wilderneſs. For which Reaſon GOD himſelf had (f) made a Declaration of a perpetual War againſt them, and after that (g) renew'd it at their Entrance into the Land of Canaan, with a Charge not to forget it, and now order'd it to be put in Execution. Saul goes upon this Expedition, but contrary to his Orders, he ſpares the Cattle and other things of Value, and Agag their King, who was afterwards ſlain by Samuel's Orders. This ſo diſpleas'd GOD, that he declar'd that the Kingdom ſhould be taken from Saul, which was a great Affliction to Samuel for ſome Time, eſpecially becauſe GOD had not as yet declar'd, who ſhould ſucceed him. Upon this GOD (h) commands him to go to Bethlehem, and there privately to anoint David to be their King. After this (i) David was endued with a Spirit of Prudence to behave himſelf wiſely on all Occaſions, a Spirit of Courage, ſo that he dar'd to fight with a Lion and a Bear, and a Spirit of Propheſy, in which he was very eminent, and ſo completely qualify'd to be their King. On the other Hand, (k) Saul grew melancholy, timorous and ſuſpicious. He ſtarted when there was no Danger, and thereby became very unfit for Buſineſs. He was ſometimes furious and diſtracted, always full of Anxiety and Solicitude of Mind. His Courtiers and probably his Phyſicians perceiving this Diſorder, (l) adviſe him to the Uſe of Muſick; upon this David is ſent for as a fit Artiſt for this Purpoſe, who ſeems to have but one (m) Opportunity to try the Experiment, which ſucceeded according to Expectation. For immediately upon this the Philiſtines (n) bring their Army into the Field, ſo that the next Time Saul ſaw David, he (o) did not know him.

7. From this and ſeveral other Examples among the Jews and Greeks, there are many of the Opinion, that their Muſick did far exceed the beſt of our modern Compoſitions. But this is much eaſier ſaid than prov'd; and it is a difficult Matter to gueſs in what Manner it was perform'd. We know very exactly the Meaſures which the Greeks us'd in their Poetry. We know that they formerly ſang their Verſes, and that they have written (p) upon this Subject, of which there remain ſome Tracts; but all this hath not prevented its being loſt, inſomuch that it is impoſſible for us to know, what Airs they gave to the Odes of Pindar, and their Scenick Poets; only that they ſang the ſame Tune in their Στροφὴ, Strophe, or when they turn'd to the Audience on the right Hand, then in their Ἀντιστροφὴ, Antiſtrophe, when they turn'd to the left Hand, and then in their Ἐπωδὸς, Epodos, when they turn'd to the Middle of the Audience; and therefore tho' they took Verſes which conſiſted of any Number or Quantity of Syllables as they thought fit, yet in their ſeveral Repetitions they were confin'd to the ſame again without Variation. But the Jewiſh Muſick being of a much more early Date, being not particularly deſcrib'd by any Author, and the greateſt Criticks in the Hebrew Language not agreeing concerning their Poeſy, it is much more difficult to gueſs at their Muſick. For this Reaſon Boe- thius in his Treatiſe on this Subject, tho' he ſpeaks at large of that which was us'd among the Greeks; yet he wholly omits to mention any thing of the Jews. For this Reaſon (q) the famous Kircher, a Man ſo eminent in all Parts of Oriental Learning, tho' he deſcribes the Form of all the Jewiſh Inſtruments, yet he tells us nothing of their Tunes. And when he propos'd ſeveral Notes to anſwer (as he thought) the Accents in the Hebrew, yet leſt it might be miſtaken for an Eſſay of this Nature, he ſtiles it, The modern Muſick of the Hebrews. And (r) a very learned Author of our own Nation ſaith, It is certain, that the Jews had a ſet ſolemn Way of Muſical Service; but how to be compar'd unto, or drawn up to any Correſpondence with our Ways, I doubt (and more than ſo too) whether any Man is able to perform it. And therefore the Reader will excuſe a Digreſſion on this Subject.

8. Monſieur Le Clerc (s) tells us his Opinion in general Terms in theſe Words, If we ſhould ſay, that the Muſick of the antient Hebrews was not very regular, it is not improbable. They were a Nation entirely given to Agriculture, who had neither Theaters nor publick Diverſions after this Manner. All the publick Uſe which they made of their Muſick, conſiſted in Singing of ſacred Hymns, which David inſtituted, and nothing obligeth us to think, that this Muſick was harmonious and methodical. We know, that at this Day the Jews ſing very confuſedly in their Synagogues, and they read the Scriptures in Singing, be it Proſe or Verſe. The Mahometans ſing their Alcoran, which ariſeth from its being full of Verſes. The Proſe of the Hebrews hath ſome too, and it is perhaps for the ſame Reaſon, that the Jews ſing their Bible Time out of Mind, tho' they know not wherein the Poetry conſiſts.

9. But Kircher (t) on the other Hand thinks, that it was an exact Muſick, and gives his Opinion at large in this Manner, There is no Doubt, but that the Muſick of the Hebrews was moſt perfect in the Time of David and Solomon. For ſince David acted the Part of a Muſician from a Child, and was wonderfully affected with it, it was impoſſible, that when he was rais'd to the higheſt Degree of Honour, he ſhould not promote it to the utmoſt. And as we ought to believe, that Solomon was inſtructed of GOD in the Knowledge of all other things, ſo alſo of Muſick. For I do not ſee how that divine Building could be ſo compleatly made, according to all the Rules and Numbers of harmonical Proportion, without the greateſt Knowledge and Skill of Muſick. Certainly all the Veſſels of the Temple were plac'd in a wonderful Order, and eſpecially the Muſical Inſtruments were made with the moſt exquiſite Art, and fram'd with the greateſt Variety and Wiſdom; and he only can be ignorant hereof, who doth not underſtand the Order and Diſpoſition of every thing, which occur'd in this divine and wonderful Fabrick. Joſephus (u) tells us, It is moſt certain, that Solomon made four hundred thouſand Inſtruments for the Uſe of the Choir. From whence it naturally appears, that the Muſick of Solomon exceeded ours by many Degrees. Neither is it probable, that ſuch an innumerable Parcel of Muſical Inſtruments, made by the greateſt Skill, ſhould ſerve only for the Producing of ſome rude and inartificial Sounds, but we muſt believe, that it did equal the chief of our Inſtruments, and the Art of our beſt Organiſts. There was certainly a wonderful Order of Songs and Chanters, a wonderful Diſtribution of the Singers, and a wonderful Agreement of Words fitted to harmonious Notes. Neither is it likely, that all the Inſtruments of one Choir did perform their Parts in Uniſon, but that they made a various Harmony with an admirable and an ingenious Contexture of the upper Parts with their reſpective Baſſes.

10. The Reaſons alledg'd by ſo learned an Author do fully prove, that the Muſick of the Hebrews was not ſo mean, as Le Clerc would have it. But it is not probable, that it came near to that Perfection, wherewith this Science hath been improv'd in this laſt Age.

11. For firſt, It is not probable, that they had any Diviſions of many Notes to a Syllable, any Fuges or Repetitions of Words; but that they plainly ſang the ſame Words, as they lay before them in the Pſalms. Theſe may be juſtly reckon'd ſome of the Graces of our preſent Muſick, but if they had been in Uſe among the Jews, they would have render'd the Service ſo long, that it would have been a Wearineſs to perform their ordinary Tasks, or eſpecially their ſolemn Muſick on extraordinary Occaſions. The Jews had their daily Sacrifices, and Burning of Incenſe. They had their morning and evening Prayers. They read in their Synagogues out of the Law of Moſes every Sabbath Day, ſo as to read over the five Books every Year. They had alſo Leſſons out of the Prophets, and none of theſe things were to be left undone. And as to their Singing, they had a Cuſtom at the Paſſover to ſing the 113th Pſalm, with the five following, which they call'd The great Hallelujah. They had a ſet Pſalm for every Day in the Week, and on the Sabbath Day; and beſide the Pſalm for the Day, they ſang Part of Deut. 32, and Exod. 15. There was alſo an Aſcent of fifteen Steps or Stairs in the Temple between the Womens Court and the Mens at the Gate of Nicanor; and upon thoſe Steps did the Levites ſing the fifteen Pſalms, which immediately follow'd the hundred and nineteenth, upon each Step one, at the Feaſt of Tabernacles, whence (u) each Pſalm is call'd שיר המעלות, A Song of Degrees, or Steps; ſo that if their Muſick had been lengthen'd by theſe Additions, and Improvements which later Ages have made, it would have been a very tedious Service, and have requir'd more Time, than could have been allow'd for the Performance thereof.

12. Secondly, It is probable, that they had but one Part. For tho' there is mention, (x) that Solomon had men ſingers and women ſingers, and (y) that the ſons of the Levites join'd with them in Singing; yet they might only ſing the ſame Part in an Octave above the Men, as the Women and Boys naturally ſing in our Country Churches, and therefore they wanted the Harmony of a Conſort, or ſeveral Parts at the ſame Time, which is the Glory of all Muſick. If we ſhould ſuppoſe, that they had the Accents to guide them, yet theſe, being the ſame both for Men and Boys, could not intend a Variety of Parts. It ſeems impoſſible, that there ſhould be any ſuch Compoſition without the Knowledge of the Gammut, which is the Ground of all Muſick, in which the ſeven Letters do readily ſhew us the Concords and Diſcords in every Octave; and this was firſt invented by Guido Aretinus, about the Year of our LORD 960. Accordingly St. Auguſtine in the firſt Tome of his Works, writes no leſs than ſix Books concerning Muſick, but not a Word concerning any Variety of Parts, of which he could not but have taken Notice, had it been known either in or before his Time.

13. But leſt it ſhould be thought, that they had Variety of Parts in the firſt Temple, and loſt the ſame at the Captivity, there ſeems (z) to be Mention of the Contrary. It came to paſs, as the trumpeters and ſingers were as one, to make one ſound (in Hebrew קול אחד one Voice) to be heard in praiſing and thanking the LORD, and when they lift up this their voice with the trumpets and cymbals and inſtruments of muſick, and praiſed the LORD, ſaying, For he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever, that then the houſe was filled with a cloud, even the houſe of the LORD. Where we may obſerve, that this קול אחר one Voice or Part, is mention'd as the greateſt Excellency of the Jewiſh Muſick, and therefore it had not as yet arriv'd at a greater Perfection.

14. To this it may be objected, That the Greeks had their Scale of Muſick, their Διαπέντε, their Διαπασῶν, &c. and conſequently their Muſick of many Parts. In Anſwer to which it may be ſaid, that tho' we find Mention of ſeveral Diſtances in Muſick among the Greeks; yet they ſeem rather to be Leaps in a ſingle Part, than Concords in Compoſition. The Diſtances talk'd of among the Greeks are (a) the ſecond, the third, the fourth, the fifth, and the eighth. Now if theſe were deſign'd to ſignify the Concords, it was ill done to place the fourth, and worſe to place the ſecond among them; or if ſuch were admitted, it is a Wonder, that the ſixth (which is known to be a Concord) was refus'd. But if theſe were us'd to ſhew the Diſtances, by which a Voice may riſe or fall, it is no Wonder, that they left out the ſixth and ſeventh (being Diſtances not to be us'd without better Judgment and Deſign than thoſe Times would admit of) and mention'd the reſt as common in their Muſick.

15. The Scale of Muſick among the Greeks conſiſted but of fifteen Notes, or the Diſtance of two Octaves; the firſt from their Προσλαμβανόμενος (which was the Key of their Muſick, and always their loweſt Note) to their Μέση, or Middle Note, and the other from their Μέση, or Middle Note, to their Νήτη ὑπερβολαίων, or Higheſt Note; by which they only deſign'd to ſhew the utmoſt Extent of a ſingle natural Voice; and their ſeven Moods ſo much talk'd of, were no more than the ſeven (b) different Methods of Altering their Flats and Sharps plac'd at the Beginning of a Leſſon, or (as we call it) the Alteration of the Mi, which they therefore call'd Μεταβολὴ κατὰ τόνον. Beſides, the Names of their Notes in the upper Octave have no Affinity with the Names in the other. Whereas the Scale invented by Guido Aretinus conſiſted of twenty Notes (tho' our modern Compoſers in many Parts often exceed the Scale both above and below) and the Notes in every Octave begin with the ſame Letter, that we may thereby more readily compute the Concords and Diſcords. And laſtly, Had there been a Compoſition of many Parts among the Greeks, the learned Dr. Wallis, who took ſo much Pains herein, and was moſt curious in Finding out ſuch Difficulties, would, no Doubt, have met with ſome Footſteps thereof; but inſtead of any ſuch Diſcovery, he (c) plainly tells us the contrary.

16. It may alſo be objected, That (d) the Chaldeans had their סומפוניא, a Word plainly deriv'd from the Greek συμφωνία, or Symphony, which ſuppoſeth many Parts; and if it was ſo in Chaldea, we may conclude it to be the ſame in the Land of Canaan. But to this it may be anſwer'd, that the Word Συμφωνία in Greek, from whence the Chaldee Word is deriv'd, doth not ſignify a Conſort, but rather ſomething elſe ſounding with the Voice, σὺν φωνῇ, which is equally true of Inſtruments ſounding in Uniſon; and accordingly in our Tranſlation we render it a Dulcimer; and it is obſervable, that (e) the Jewiſh Commentators (who are the beſt Judges of this Matter) do all expound it of Inſtrumental and not of Vocal Muſick, and may therefore properly ſignify Inſtruments join'd with the Voice. This Joſephus (f) allows to be the Method of David, when he was with Saul, and that he ſang Hymns and Pſalms to the Harp, and this may be what the Septuagint (g) calls ψαλμὸς ὀργάνων, a Pſalm, or Singing with the Organ. Like to this is that Expreſſion (h) of Solomon, He had muſical Inſtruments, and that of all ſorts: In Hebrew שרה ושרות. Where we may obſerve, that theſe two Words are the ſame, only one is in the ſingular Number, and the other in the plural; and as they are deriv'd from the Verb שרר to deſtroy, they may ſignify ſuch an inſtrumental Muſick, which, when join'd to the Voice, will deſtroy the Words, that they cannot ſo clearly be underſtood. And therefore we are only told, (i) that Solomon had ſometimes vocal Muſick alone, as men ſingers and women ſingers, and ſometimes סומפוניא a Symphony of Inſtrumental Muſick in Uniſon added to it, ſometimes שרה, one only Inſtrument, and ſometimes שרות, or many join'd together at the ſame Time. And (k) the Servants of Saul, who would certainly have had the beſt which could have been procur'd, did not think of having many together, but only a ſingle Perſon, who was skill'd in this Science.

17. If it is ask'd, How this Muſick came to be ſo famous? It may be anſwer'd, Firſt, That it was not famous, eſpecially if we compare it with the modern Improvements. The Greeks tell us ſtrange but (l) falſe Stories of their Muſicians; but the Scriptures, not being us'd to ſuch romantick Expreſſions, affirm, that (m) the ear is not fill'd with hearing, and that (n) ſinging of ſongs to an heavy heart will avail little. So that we may ſuppoſe, that they had not the full Sound of the three Concords to the Baſs, as we have in our Compoſition of four Parts, neither could they always move the Paſſions thereby, and therefore it was not ſo famous as we are apt to imagine.

18. But Secondly, Tho' it came not nigh the Perfection of Muſick in this Age, yet it was famous, becauſe it far excell'd all the reſt in the World. Muſick, as well as all other Arts and Sciences, hath been wonderfully improv'd. Let us look back within the Memory of Man, and we ſhall ſcarcely find a Diviſion of many Notes to one Syllable us'd in Compoſition, and (o) a great Maſter in his Time diſapproving of it. Let us look back from thence to the Time of Queen Elizabeth, and there we find Morley the chief Muſician of his Age mentioning ſeveral Moods of Time, which are now known to be immuſical, and the Notes prick'd without Bars, as if they knew no Time at all. The Age before him had no Points or Fuges; before that all the Notes in the upper Parts were of an equal Length with thoſe in the Baſs, and for this Reaſon all muſical Compoſition was call'd Counterpoint. In the tenth Century the Gammut or Scale of Muſick was ſcarcely invented. Before that St. Auguſtine treats thereof as if it was only a graceful Pronunciation; and if we look but a little farther back, we have ſtill more Reaſon to believe, that ſuch a Performance, which would not now be admir'd, might then be reckon'd extraordinary. And therefore the Method by which Saul was cur'd, might probably be this: David's playing on the Harp might make Saul attentive to the Muſick, as ſomething very curious, and it might alſo chear his Spirits. Then he might add ſuch Words in Singing, as might be proper for ſuch a Purpoſe, with the greater Succeſs, and thus (p) Joſephus tells us, that he ſang Hymns and Pſalms upon his Harp. But above all, it was GOD alone who gave a Bleſſing to his Endeavours, otherwiſe he could not have been more ſucceſsful at this Time, than he was (q) at another.

(quantùm quidem ego perſentio) nonniſi unius (ut jam loquimur) Vocis: ut qui in eâ fuerit concentus, in Sonorum ſequelâ ſpectaretur, quem nempe faceret Sonus antecedens aliquis cum ſequente. —— Ea verò, quæ in hodiernâ Muſicâ conſpicitur, Partium (ut loquuntur) ſeu Vocum duarum, trium, quatuor, pluriumve inter ſe conſenſio (concinentibus inter ſe, qui ſimul audiuntur, Sonis) Veteribus erat (quantùm ego video) ignota.—— Continuarum (ut aiunt) Partium (ut ſunt apud nos Baſſus, Tenor, Contratenor, Diſcantus, &c.) alterâ alteri ſuccinente; aut etiam Diviſionum (ut loquuntur) ſeu Minuritionum cantui tardiori concinentium, ego in Veterum Muſicâ vix ulla veſtigia (haud certa ſaltem) deprehendo. playing

19. Immediately upon this a ſudden Occaſion happen'd to employ Saul's Thoughts another Way; for (r) the Philiſtines brought their Army into the Territories of the Iſraelites, and pitch'd in a Place of the Tribe of Judah, call'd Ephes-dammim, or The Coaſt of Blood, which probably was ſo call'd from the total Overthrow of their Army at this Time. The Iſraelites encamp upon an oppoſite Mountain with a Valley between them, ſo that they might fight at any Time, if both were reſolv'd upon a Battle, otherwiſe they had taken the Advantage of the Ground, that neither could be forc'd. Goliath the Giant, and Champion of the Philiſtines, comes every Day into the Valley, and challenges to fight with any one of the other Army. This continu'd (s) forty Days, during which Time both Armies remain'd in the ſame Camp. His (t) great Bulk frightens them all. Jeſſe ſends David by a ſpecial Providence to ſee his three Brethren, who declares his Readineſs to fight with this Giant. David having been anointed ſo privately, that none of his Brethren, but only his Father Jeſſe knew it; his eldeſt Brother was very angry at him for his Boldneſs. However he perſiſts in his Reſolution even before Saul. Saul tells him, (u) that he was not able to fight with him, for he was but a Youth, and the (x) Philiſtine diſdain'd him for the ſame Reaſon, and makes no Doubt of killing him immediately. But great Boaſting is not always ſucceſsful. There is (y) a GOD, who gives victory to kings, and not only delivered David his anointed ſervant from the peril of the ſword, but alſo enabl'd him to take off the Head of this Giant, and bring it with him into the Army. Upon this the Philiſtines quit their ſtrong Camp, and run away, and the Iſraelites gain an intire Victory over them, and purſue them into their own Country. David on this Occaſion ſhewing himſelf a Soldier, a Tent was provided for him, and at the Return from the Victory, the Armour of Goliath and his Sword was given to David, who lodg'd it there for ſome Time; and when the Tent was taken down, it was depoſited in the Tabernacle to remain there as a Monument of this Victory. Upon this David compoſeth the ninth Pſalm to praiſe GOD for his Mercies. Accordingly (z) the Title is tranſlated by ſome, To the chief Muſician upon the Death of the Champion; and the Chaldee Paraphraſe interprets it thus, Upon the Death of the Man, that came out between the two Armies.

20. It may ſeem ſtrange, that Saul ſhould not know David, who had ſo lately attended upon him at Court; and that Abner alſo could not tell who he was. To ſolve this ſome obſerve, that (a) he doth not ask, Who he was? but Who was his Father? having before (b) promis'd to make his Father's Houſe free in Iſrael. And therefore tho' he might remember him, yet he might forget his Family. However it is poſſible, that Saul might not know David; for in ſuch a Multitude of Buſineſs as Kings have, and among ſo many new Faces, which they ſee every Day, it was eaſy to forget a Man, whom he had probably ſeen but once before, when he was craz'd, and had a Diſtemper in his Head, as Saul had. David alſo came now in another Kind of Habit, than when he was ſent for to wait on Saul at Court; for he (c) was cloath'd as a Shepherd in a ruſtick Dreſs. He appear'd then in the ſoft Airs of a Muſician, and therefore was the leſs ſuſpected to come now as a Champion.

And as the common Size of Men is but half ſo high; ſo if every Part was proportionable to his Height, as probably it was, the Weight of his whole Body, or of each Limb, muſt be to others, as the Cube of* 2 is to the Cube of 1, or eight Times as much, and conſequently his Head was a ſufficient Burden for a Man to carry. The Weight of his Armour ſeems proportionable to his Bulk. The Weight of his Coat of Mail, Verſe 5, was 5000 Shekels of Braſs; ſo that as a Shekel weigh'd about half an Ounce of our common Weights, 16 of which goes to the Pound, it weigh'd about 156 Pound and a Quarter. The ſtaff of his ſpear, Verſe 7, was like a weaver's beam. The Spear's Head, ibid, weigh'd 600 Shekels, or 18 Pound and 3 Quarters. Hence the Weight of his whole Armour hath been thus computed. The Spear's Head 18 l. ¾. The Staff of the Spear 18 l. ¾. The Helmet 15 l. The Shield 30 l. The Coat of Mail 156 l. ¼. The Sword 4 l. ¼. Total 243 l. So that his Proportion of Strength and Stature being as 8 to 1, it would be equivalent to a Coat of 32 l. Weight for a common Perſon in this Age. (u) 1 Sam. 17. 32. (x) 1 Sam. 17. 42. (y) Pſal. 144. 10. See* Lightfoot, Vol. 1. Page 55, who tranſlates it, Upon the Death of the Champion. (a) 1 Sam. 17. 55, 56, 58. (b) 1 Sam. 17. 25. (c) 1 Sam. 17. 40.

And

And as for Abner, he being a military Man, and much abroad, might not have ſeen David, when he was at Court; or perhaps knowing that his three eldeſt Brethren were in the Army, and that David was not among the Number, tho' they both might know his Face, yet they could not call him to mind, as not expecting to ſee him at that Time.

21. The Age of David at the Time of this Victory may be thus computed. Firſt, It appears by the Story, that it was in the latter End of the ſame Year when he was anointed. Secondly, It was (d) forty Years before the Conſpiracy of Abſalom, and this Conſpiracy was eight Years before his Death, as will appear in its proper Place. As therefore David liv'd (e) ſeventy Years in all, ſo if eight and forty is taken out of them, it will appear, that he was two and twenty Years old at this Time, when (f) he was call'd a Youth, and a Stripling, and yet was of an Age to undertake ſo great an Exploit.

22. Jonathan the Son of Saul, hearing of and ſeeing the (g) Behaviour of David, took an intire Affection to him, and was his Friend for ever after, according to the utmoſt of his Power, in all his Difficulties. Saul alſo takes him into his Family, whereby their Acquaintance was increas'd. But this laſted not long; for as they went to Jeruſalem, where David (h) plac'd the Head of Goliath as a Monument of the Victory, the People came out to meet them with various Inſtruments of Muſick, ſinging a ſhort natural Rhythme, Saul hath ſlain his thouſands, and David his ten thouſands. This Preferring of David before Saul made him jealous. So that being in one of his Fits, and David playing on his Muſick to relieve him, he had certainly kill'd David with a Javelin, if he had not avoided the Blow. Saul now removes him from Court, and makes him Captain over a thouſand Men, with a Charge to act bravely, and promiſing him that upon the ſame he ſhould be his Son-in-Law, as he had offer'd before to him, who ſhould kill Goliath. But when all things were perform'd on David's Part, and the Time of Marriage was come, ſhe was baſely given to another. Michal, Saul's Daughter, falls in Love with David, and Saul conſents to the Match, on Condition, that he kill'd an hundred of the Philiſtines, expecting that he would be kill'd in the Attempt. David kills two hundred and eſcapes; ſo that the Match was now conſummated, which could not be avoided. David's Succeſs makes Saul ſtill more jealous, ſo that (i) he ſpeaks to his Son Jonathan and his Servants to kill David. Jonathan intercedes for David, and makes up the Difference. David is more ſucceſsful in the Wars, which makes Saul the more raging, and he endeavours to kill David with a Javelin in the ſame Manner as before; and after this he ſends Meſſengers to his Houſe to kill him. Upon this David compoſeth (k) the fifty ninth Pſalm. GOD hears his Prayers, and his Wife contrives a Method for him to eſcape. David upon this goes to Ramah, and dwells with Samuel. Saul ſends Men to kill him there, but they failing in their Deſign, he goes himſelf, but to as little Purpoſe. David finding that he could not be ſafe at Ramah, takes the Opportunity, whilſt Saul was there, to go to Gibeah, where Saul liv'd, and (l) conſult with Jonathan about his Safety. Jonathan promiſes to ſound his Father's Temper, and diſcover it to him, which he did with the Hazard of his own Life. For this Purpoſe they met at an appointed Time, at a Stone (m) call'd The Stone Ezel, or, The Stone of Travelling, which is ſuppos'd to have been ſet up, where ſeveral Roads met, to direct Travailers in their Way, and therefore a fit Place from whence David might make his Eſcape if he had been diſcover'd, there being alſo many Buſhes near, (n) where People might hide themſelves. Here Jonathan diſcovers to David his Father's Reſolution to kill him. So that he is now forc'd to a perpetual Baniſhment. Soon after this Jonathan had a Son, whom he call'd Mephiboſheth. This ſeems to be the Name by which he was call'd in private, tho' to avoid Saul's Anger, he was publickly (o) call'd Meribbaal. The Time when he was born is (p) plainly mention'd, Jonathan, Saul's ſon, had a ſon that was lame in his feet, and was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan's Death out of Jezreel, and his nurſe took him up and fled; and it came to paſs, as ſhe made haſte to flee, that he fell, and became lame, and his name was Mephiboſheth. That it happen'd at the Time of theſe Tranſactions, is evident from the Name, which ſignifies From the mouth of ſhame, or Becauſe of the ſhameful Words pronounced by the Mouth, occaſion'd by the reproachful Language of Saul to Jonathan, when he call'd him (q) a perverſe Rebel; for upon this (r) Jonathan aroſe from the table in fierce anger, and did eat no meat the ſecond day of the month; for he was griev'd for David, and becauſe his father had done him ſhame. He had put Jonathan to ſhame by his foul Language, and by Throwing a Javelin at him. And this might occaſion the Name of his Son, which was born at that Time.

23. David now flying from Saul, comes (s) to Nob. This was a Town in (t) the Tribe of Benjamin; and as ſome Part of Jeruſalem lay in that Tribe, ſo there are ſome, who have taken it for Jeruſalem. It is probable, that Saul brought the Tabernacle thither, becauſe it lay in his own Tribe; and tho' it is not reckon'd among the Cities of the Prieſts, yet the Prieſts reſorted thither in great Numbers, and ſettl'd there becauſe of the Tabernacle; and therefore it was afterward call'd, (u) The city of the Prieſts. It was near Jeruſalem, becauſe it may be ſuppos'd, that David put the Head of Goliath in one Place, and his Armour in the other at the ſame Time. So that David choſe to fly thither on a ſudden, expecting to have moſt Friends there, and particularly intending here to recommend himſelf and his Cauſe to GOD, and beg his Aſſiſtance and Protection. Ahimelech was the chief Perſon there at this Time, and tho' he is no where call'd The High Prieſt, but only (x) The Prieſt; yet being (y) the Son of Ahitub, who was (z) the Son of Phinehas the Son of Eli, he is generally ſuppos'd to be the Brother of Ahijah, and he being dead, to have ſucceeded him in the High Prieſthood. David prevails with Ahimelech to fetch Bread for himſelf and thoſe who were with him, and alſo the Sword of Goliath, which he had by him. But (a) ſeeing Doeg an Edomite there, who being a Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Religion, was made chief Shepherd to Saul, and very careful to diſcharge his Duty, (fearing his Maſter's Diſpleaſure, as (b) his Name ſeems to imply) David flees from thence in a great Hurry, knowing that he ſhould certainly be diſcover'd.

24. As this Fact is mention'd to be when Ahimelech was the High Prieſt; ſo the Jews take Occaſion to cavil at our SAVIOUR's (c) Words, where he ſpeaks of it as happening when Abiathar was the High Prieſt, who can only be ſuppos'd to ſucceed in that Office, when Ahimelech his Father and the reſt of the Prieſts were ſlain by King Saul; ſo that it happen'd before his Time. In Anſwer to which, It is not ſaid, In the Days when he was the High Prieſt, but In the Days when he liv'd, who was once the High Prieſt. The Words in the Greek admit of a much greater Latitude in Expreſſion, than as they are found in any Tranſlation, and may be better render'd, About the Time of Abiathar the High Prieſt. The Expreſſion is exactly the ſame with this (d), Joſias begat Jechonias and his Brethren, about the Time that they were carried away captive to Babylon. And yet it is evident, that there was a much greater Space of Time from the Birth of Jechonias and his Brethren to the Captivity, than there is from the Time that David came to Ahimelech, to the Time when Abiathar ſucceeded his Father as the High Prieſt.

25. David not thinking himſelf ſafe in Saul's Dominions, (e) flees in a Hurry to Achiſh King of Gath whom he might rather expect to have been his bitter Enemy than a real Friend. For this was the City of Goliath, whom he had ſlain, and whoſe Sword he had now about him. But perhaps he thought he ſhould not be known, or he knew Achiſh to be a very generous Perſon, or being now in Diſgrace with Saul, he thought the Philiſtines might take him to be Saul's Enemy, and that he would engage with them againſt him. Achiſh for ſome of theſe Reaſons receives him kindly. But the Philiſtines diſcover who he was, ſet Achiſh againſt him, and repeat the very Verſe, which the Iſraelites had before ſang in his Honour. This puts David into a great Surprize, that he could think of no Way to eſcape, but by Counterfeiting himſelf to be ſpeechleſs and out of his Wits, or like a natural Fool that never had any. He made Marks upon the Doors, and let his Spittle fall down on his Beard, and manag'd himſelf ſo, that Achiſh believ'd all to be real. In the Midſt of this he pens the fifty ſixth Pſalm, which Title we literally tranſlate, Upon Jonath-elem-rekokim, but (f) may be render'd thus, Concerning the Oppreſſion of the dumb one among Men afar off, when the Philiſtines took him in Gath, and perhaps he pens the thirty ninth alſo, in which he more plainly expreſſes his Dumbneſs, and his Danger of Death, and earneſtly prays to GOD to ſpare him for a little while. Achiſh blames his Officers for bringing ſuch a mad Man before him, and turns him away, which was what David wanted. Upon his Departure he compoſeth the thirty fourth Pſalm, praiſing GOD for ſo great a Deliverance, and exhorting others by his Example to fear him,

26. David (g) having been thus miraculouſly preſerv'd, goes away from Gath, to the Cave of Adullam, which was (h) a ſtrong Hold in the Tribe of Judah, and it being his own Tribe, he might hope to find ſome Friends there. Here he makes the hundred and forty ſecond Pſalm, as it appears by the Title. And in his (i) Prayer at this Time he complains how low he was now brought, that there was none would know him, nor any one to take Care of him, that he was in this Cave as in a Priſon, and if GOD would deliver him out of this miſerable Condition, then the Righteous would reſort unto him. Now (k) GOD hears his Prayers, and ſends his Friends and Kindred about him to be his Comfort, and ſeveral others to be his Guard. Among the reſt were (l) ſome Gadites, who came from beyond Jordan, and the Prophet Gad among them; ſo that David hath now an Army of four hundred Men, and a Prophet to inſtruct them. He had not been long there, before (m) the Philiſtines march with their Army into the Tribe of Judah, and encamp in the Valley of Rephaim on the north Side of the Cave, and not at a great Diſtance. The Philiſtines coming in the Time of Harveſt, deſtroy all the Corn, and tho' they ſecur'd him from Saul, as lying between both; yet they very much ſtreighten him for want of Proviſion. The Weather being at this Time very hot, he ſaid to ſome about him, (n) how glad he ſhould be, if he could have a Draught of Water out of the Well near the Gate of Bethlehem, little thinking that any one would hazard their Lives on ſuch an Occaſion. However Abiſhai the Brother of Joab, Benajah the Son of Jehoiada, and another Perſon, whoſe Name is not known, break thro' the Army of the Philiſtines, draw of the Water, and bring it to him. But now he look'd upon it no longer as Water, but as the Blood of thoſe Men, who fetch'd it with the Peril of their Lives. And becauſe the Blood of every thing belong'd to the LORD, and was proper to be offer'd to him, therefore he pour'd it out, as the Blood of the Sacrifices was pour'd out on a ſolemn Occaſion. The (o) Moabites being at this Time Enemies to Saul, David (p) applies to them that he might leave his Father and Mother in their Country during his Troubles, which was readily granted. And the Prophet Gad (q) adviſ'd him to retreat more ſouthward toward the Foreſt of Hareth, not only becauſe he might have Plenty of Proviſion, but the Providence of GOD ſo order'd it, that he might be near at Hand, upon an Occaſion which ſoon offer'd it ſelf, by which he might do his Country a very eminent Service.

27. For the Philiſtines having deſtroy'd the Harveſt, in their Return home (r) beſiege Keilah, a (s) Town in the Tribe of Judah, and carry off the Corn, which was in the neighbouring Stores. David enrag'd at this, inquires of Gad if he ſhould attempt to raiſe the Siege. Gad from the Mouth of GOD encourages him in his Intention, with a Promiſe of Succeſs. Upon this (t) David gains an intire Victory over them, takes the Plunder of the Field, and dwells in the City. When Saul (u) heard that David was diſcover'd, and the Men that went with him, he ſaid, GOD hath delivered mine enemy into mine hand, for he is ſhut in by entering into a town, that hath gates and bars. Upon this he gathers together his Army to beſiege Keilah, but before he marches he complains, that (x) his Subjects were not faithful to him on that Occaſion, but ſided with his Enemy, tho' he could give no particular Account of it. Doeg then tells him what he ſaw, when David came to Nob to Abimelech the High Prieſt, but repreſents his innocent Intentions, with all the falſe and aggravating Circumſtances that he could imagine. Saul ſends for Ahimelech, and charges him with it; Ahimelech excuſeth himſelf, owns the Fact, but pleads his Innocency. Saul would admit of no Excuſe, but commands Doeg to ſlay him and all his Relations, who were of the Family of Eli, ſo that eighty five Perſons periſh'd on this Occaſion, as had been foretold, firſt by (y) a more antient Prophet, and then (z) by Samuel. But not content with this, his Rage carried him ſo far, that he deſtroy'd the whole City of Nob, (a) both men and women, children and ſucklings, and oxen and aſſes with the edge of the ſword. Joſephus ſaith, that (b) on this Occaſion Doeg with a Band of Ruffians like himſelf, kill'd three hundred and eighty five Perſons, ſparing neither Age nor Sex, and laid the whole Town in Aſhes. At this Time he (c) ſlew the Gibeonites, who ſerv'd as (d) Hewers of Wood and Drawers of Water for the Prieſts and the Tabernacle, ſo that his Zeal to root out ſuch Strangers tranſported him to violate a ſolemn Oath, and perhaps to vindicate it, when it was done. Beſides, we may alſo ſuppoſe, that (*) he was very jealous of the Affection, which the Iſraelites had for David, and therefore he miſtruſted, that if he did not make a ſevere Example, they would all revolt from him. And as (†) Jealouſy is the Rage of a Man; ſo (*†) his Jealouſy for the children of Iſrael and Judah tranſported him far beyond his Zeal for GOD in the Caſe of the Amalekites. For then, when he had an abſolute Command to deſtroy all, he ſpar'd ſome; but here, when he had no Liberty to deſtroy any, he ſpar'd none. He deſtroy'd the Prieſts, and GOD anſwer'd him no more by Urim and Thummim. He deſtroy'd the Gibeonites by Sword, and after that he periſh'd by the Sword, and many of his Poſterity died for the (e) Fact. David hearing this, pens the (f) fifty ſecond Pſalm, in which he propheſies the utter Deſtruction of Doeg and his Family, which probably happen'd upon Mount Gilboa, when he and his Relations might all be near to Saul in the Battle, and ſo they periſh'd together.

28. Abiathar the Son of Ahimelech (being (g) left by his Father to keep the Sanctuary, when he and the reſt of the Prieſts went to wait upon Saul) hearing of this Slaughter, took the Ephod, unto which the Urim and Thummim with the Breaſt-plate were annex'd, and carries it to David to Keilah. David laments the Misfortune, owns it to be upon his Account, and promiſes to protect him; ſo that he had afterward both a Prophet and a Prieſt, and could the better know the Will of GOD upon all Emergencies. Saul having now got his Army together, (h) pretends to go againſt the Philiſtines, but his real Deſign was to go againſt David to Keilah, of which David having ſome Notice, conſults GOD by the Means of Abiathar and the Ephod, and being thereby inform'd, that Saul intended to come thither, and that the Inhabitants would be ſo ungrateful as to deliver him up, and having by this Action increas'd his Army, that they were at this Time ſix hundred Men, he marches into the Wilderneſs of Ziph, where he could better defend himſelf than in an open Country. Jonathan (i) without fearing his Father's Diſpleaſure, comes thither to him, comforts him, and renews their League of Friendſhip between them. The Ziphites (k) apply to Saul, tell him that David was among them, and promiſe to aſſiſt to the utmoſt of their Power to apprehend him. Upon this David pens the fifty fourth Pſalm, in which he prayeth to GOD to be deliver'd from them, and (l) diſappoints their Deſign, by Going into a remoter Part of the Wilderneſs of Maon. Saul having now Intelligence where David was, purſues him thither, ſo that there was only a Mountain between them; when Saul's Forces being far more numerous, were divided into ſeveral Parties to encompaſs the Mountain, that it might be impoſſible for David to eſcape. David obſerving their Motions, flees away with the utmoſt Haſte; and when there was but a ſtep between him and death, an Expreſs arrives in the Camp to deſire Saul to retreat with all his Forces, for the Philiſtines had invaded the Country. Upon this Saul march'd off, and David eſcap'd; and from this remarkable Accident the Place was call'd Selah-hammahlekoth, or The Rock of Diviſions, which parted both the Armies. It being now the latter End of the Year, David takes up his Abode in the Wilderneſs of Engedi, which Name ſignifies ſome remarkable Well, where the Goats were water'd. It was a barren, craggy, buſhy Place, where (m) none but wild Goats liv'd, and not far from the Dead Sea. Here he pens the ſixty third Pſalm, where from his being in a dry and thirſty Land, where no Water could be met with, he takes Occaſion to mention his Thirſt after GOD, and to appear in his Sanctuary. And praiſing him for his late Deliverance, he expreſſeth his Confidence, that he ſhould be preſerv'd for the Future.

29. The next Year the Philiſtines having retreated, Saul (n) marches again in Purſuit of David. David mov'd by a particular Providence, comes to a Cave with his Men, ſome (o) of which were very large in thoſe Parts, and it happening to be in the Country where Saul and his Army march'd, Saul went in to reſt himſelf in the Heat of the Day, little ſuſpecting that David would tarry in the high Way to thoſe Rocks, where he was going to ſeek for him. David and his Men could ſee Saul coming in by the Light at the Entrance of it, but he could not ſee them, becauſe it was dark in the remoter Parts. Saul lying down to ſleep, David's Men would fain have kill'd him, but he would not ſuffer it. However he cuts off the Skirt of Saul's Robe, to ſhew that he had him in his Power; and when Saul was gone to ſome Diſtance, David cries after him, Anno Mundi 2946.

and ſhews him his Skirt as a Token of his Innocency, with the moſt moving Language on that Occaſion. This turn'd Saul's Heart for the Preſent. And this Providence made Saul acknowledge, that David ſhould be King, and only deſir'd him to ſwear, that he would not deſtroy his Family, which he readily did. And ſo Saul went home with his Army, and David return'd to the ſtrong Holds of Engedi, not thinking himſelf ſafe in the open Country, for Fear of Saul's Inconſtancy. On this Occaſion he pens the fifty ſeventh Pſalm, in which he complains of his frequent Dangers, and praiſeth GOD for ſo great a Deliverance; and he entitles the Pſalm Al-taſhchith, or Thou ſhalt not deſtroy, to put him in Mind of his Oath on this Occaſion, notwithſtanding the Provocations mention'd in this Pſalm to the contrary.

30. The next Year (p) Samuel dies, which is (q) ſuppos'd to have been about two Years before the Death of Saul. However he had liv'd long enough to have known (r) Saul's owning David to be a King, according to his own Prediction. David loſing ſo good a Friend, thought it not ſafe to ſtay in thoſe Countries, but (s) goes to the Wilderneſs of Paran in the ſouthern Parts of Judea near to Arabia, into which he might ſoon flee, if there was Occaſion, where he ſtays for (t) a conſiderable Time. This was the antient Habitation of Kedar, the (u) Son of Iſhmael, and his Family. Here alſo David penn'd the hundred and twentieth Pſalm, in which he ſhews, how freſh the Calumnies of Doeg continu'd in his Memory; ſo that he complains of his Misfortunes (x) to be conſtrain'd to lead a wandering Life, and at laſt to have his habitation among the tents of Kedar. When David (y) was in the Wilderneſs of Maon, he was very kind to (z) Nabal a wealthy Man, who liv'd in thoſe Parts; and now being in Diſtreſs, and (a) hearing that Nabal had a great Feaſt at the Time of his Sheep-ſhearing, he ſends ſome of his Men, in the moſt ſubmiſſive Manner, to beg a Part of it. Nabal anſwers them with the utmoſt Contempt, and gives them a peremptory Denial. The Word (b) Nabal ſignifies a Fool, and he plainly ſhew'd himſelf ſo to be. In (c) Hebrew he is ſaid to be a Calebite, and as the Word כלב, or Caleb, ſignifies a Dog, ſo it hath been thought to ſignify his dogged Temper and Diſpoſition. David being in a Rage, raſhly vows in Revenge to deſtroy the whole Family. Abigail, Nabal's Wife, hearing of his Churliſhneſs, carries to David an acceptable Preſent of what he wanted; which David receiving, and now remembring his Raſhneſs, bleſſeth GOD, that by this Providence he was reſtrain'd from Doing what he intended. On this Occaſion we may ſuppoſe that he penn'd the fourteenth and fifty third Pſalms. In which he laments his being in Exile, and prays for a Deliverance. And tho' there are other (d) Words to ſignify a Fool, yet in both Places the Pſalmiſt ſeems to point at him by Name thus, Nabal hath ſaid in his heart, There is no GOD. At this Time he alſo pens the fifty eighth Pſalm, which he intitles Al-taſhchith, or Thou ſhalt not deſtroy, as referring to his not Deſtroying Nabal, whom he had threaten'd, and yet at laſt rejoicing that he deſtroy'd him not. He blames (e) in this Pſalm the Venomouſneſs of Nabal's Tongue that had revil'd him, and (f) the Deafneſs of his Ears, that would not hearken to the Voice of his Meſſengers, tho' they deliver'd their Meſſage in the moſt prudent Manner. He propheſieth, (g) that GOD ſhould ſuddenly take him away as with a Storm, before the Pots, ſet on the Fire for the Entertainment of the Sheep-ſhearers the next Day, ſhould feel any Heat from the Fire ſet under them to boil them. And (h) according as he was lively and in Proſperity, ſo the Wrath of GOD ſhould ſeize him like a tempeſt. This Prophecy was exactly fulfill'd, for the Morning after, and probably before they were out of Bed, however before they began to prepare the Entertainment for the following Day, his Wife Abigail told him all that had happen'd; and as ſoon as Nabal heard of his Danger, he fainted away, and was as cold as a Stone, being ſtill apprehenſive that it would fall upon him; ſo that he died in ten Days. Soon after this David (i) takes Abigail for a Wife, by whom (k) alſo he had a Son.

31. David

31. David being ſucceſsful by ſuch a wealthy Match, with the Addition of many Relations, ventures to advance with his Army as far (l) as the ſtrong Hold of Hachilah. But the Ziphites, who lay near him, and were always his Enemies, give Saul Intelligence of this, who forgetting that he ow'd his Life to David, now marches with an Army to kill him. Saul being near, David goes to a Place, where he might obſerve the Situation of the Army, and after that agrees with Abiſhai, who before had brought him the Water from Bethlehem, to go in Diſguiſe among them in the dead Time of the Night. Thus they come to Saul's Tent, at a Time when he and his Guards were all faſt aſleep. Abiſhai would have kill'd Saul, but David prevented it, and only took away the Spear and a Cruiſe of Water, which was near him, to ſhew what they could have done. This David ſhews to Saul at a Diſtance the next Day, which ſo turn'd his Heart, that he went back again to Gibeah, without doing any farther Miſchief. And David return'd to his former Camp.

Anno Mundi 2947.

32. After ſome Space of Time, David, finding that Saul was his Enemy, and that the Ziphites gave him a conſtant Intelligence, reſolv'd to tarry no longer in the Country, but (m) went with his Men to Achiſh the King of the Philiſtines, who dwelt at Gath. Achiſh receives him, and protects him, where he ſtays (n) a Year and four Months, and grew more and more in his Favour, inſomuch that (o) Achiſh gives David a Town call'd Ziklag to dwell in, which became the peculiar Inheritance of David and his Succeſſors, and (p) reſolving to make War with the Iſraelites, he intended to take David and his Men with him in the Army. And having gather'd his Army together, he pitch'd in Shunem (q) in the Tribe of Iſſachar, and Saul got his Army together to oppoſe them, and pitch'd in Mount Gilboa, from whence having a Proſpect of the Enemy, his Courage fail'd him, when he ſaw how numerous the Philiſtines were, and heard that David was among them, and reflected on all the Evil that he had done him. Upon this Saul takes all the Methods poſſible to know the Will of GOD in this Juncture, but having no Anſwer, he applies to a (r) Witch, which unlawful Practice was attended with a heavy Sentence, that the whole Army ſhould be routed, and Saul and his Sons ſhould be all ſlain in the Battle. The Philiſtines marching toward the Enemy, their (s) Generals obſerv'd David and his Men in the Rear with their King, which gave them a great Uneaſineſs, leſt they ſhould ſide with their own Countrymen in the Battle, and do them more Miſchief than an open Enemy, and therefore with ſome Difficulty they prevail upon Achiſh to ſend them all home. Thus GOD deliver'd him out of a very great Strait, either of being an Enemy to his Country, or falſe to his Friends and to his Truſt. And by the ſame good Providence he was ſent back to reſcue his Wives, and the Wives and Children of his Men, who were taken Captives.

Anno Mundi 2949.

33. When Saul was order'd by GOD (t) to deſtroy the Amalekites, and blot out their Name from under Heaven, he ſent to the (u) Kenites to depart out of the Country, and gave a good Reaſon for his Clemency. This Departure gave an Opportunity for the great Numbers of the Amalekites to depart out of the Country, and others to hide themſelves; ſo that tho' Saul deſtroy'd all that he could meet with, yet he did not deſtroy them all, but after his Retreat they alſo return'd into a Part of the Country. When (x) David was with Achiſh, he frequently invaded and plunder'd theſe Inhabitants, who hearing that David was now gone with Achiſh againſt the Iſraelites, take this Opportunity to be reveng'd. Accordingly they (y) burn the Town of Ziklag, which belong'd to David, take away all the Goods and Plunder, and carry off all the Women and Children, intending to ſell them for Slaves, or keep them as ſuch. So that David returning home finds no Home at all. His Men were ready to ſtone him for the Loſs of all that they had, and the whole Blame was laid at his Door. Upon this he conſults GOD by the Mediation of the High Prieſt, who encourages him to follow them, with a Promiſe that he ſhould recover all. In their March they meet with an Egyptian, who was left behind when the Army went off. By his Guidance David ſurprizes the Army, when they leaſt expected it, and gain'd an entire Victory, and taking his Share of the Booty, ſends Preſents to thoſe Places who had been kind to him in his Baniſhment, and help'd to maintain and protect him. And he was ſtill deſirous to oblige them, that they might more readily receive him, when the Time of the Promiſe came, in which he was to enjoy the Kingdom.

34. About the ſame Time (z) there happen'd the laſt and fatal Battle to Saul. The Battle ſeems to have begun in Jezreel, where the Iſraelites were routed, and maintain'd a running Fight, till they came to the Mountains of Gilboa, and here having the Advantage of the Ground they rally again, but with as little Succeſs as before. Saul and his Sons (a) did all that was poſſible for brave Men to do; but the Philiſtines aiming wholly at them, they were overpower'd with Numbers, and as they cut off one Party, another came upon them; ſo that Jonathan and two other of Saul's Sons were kill'd upon the Spot, and the whole Army was put into Confuſion. Saul defended himſelf as well as he could, but the ſmall Party which remain'd with him, being broken to Pieces by the Philiſtines Darts and Arrows, he found himſelf ſo weaken'd with his Wounds and Loſs of Blood, that he was not able to do Execution upon himſelf. The (b) Coat of Mail being made of many ſmall iron Rings, not only hinder'd him from running away, but when he fell on his own Sword, it went into one of theſe Rings, that it could not kill him, and was ſo faſten'd there, that he could not draw it out to give another Wound. Saul had before call'd to his Armour-Bearer, whom the Jews take to be Doeg, to kill him, but he refus'd it. And after that obſerving a young Man an Amalekite near him, he deſir'd him to perform this Office for him, which he did without Delay, and taking his Crown and Bracelets, he carry'd them off. When the Armour-Bearer ſaw that Saul was dead, he laid violent Hands on himſelf, And, (as Joſephus ſaith) there was not one Man of the King's Guard, that out-liv'd his Maſter' and ſo Doeg and his Family periſh'd together.

35. The next Day after the Battle, the Philiſtines coming into the Field to view the Dead, find the Bodies of Saul and his Sons among the reſt. They take off their Armour, cut off their Heads, and ſend Expreſſes to every Place to carry the News of the Victory. They ſend their Armour to the Temple of Aſhtaroth, put their Heads in the Temple of Dagon, and (c) expoſe their Bodies upon Gibbets in the moſt ignominious Manner under the Walls of Bethſhan, now call'd Scythopolis. The Inhabitants of Jabeſh-gilead retain'd a grateful Senſe of what Saul had done for them, when he deliver'd them from (d) the Inſults of Nahaſh, who threatned to put out all their right Eyes; and therefore hearing of this Indignity, a Party of their beſt Soldiers march'd all Night, and took their Bodies from the Gibbets, carrying them away to their own City, where they gave them a publick and an honourable Interment, and ſpent ſeven Days in Faſting and Humiliation on this ſad Occaſion.

36. This Battle with the Philiſtines happen'd when David was purſuing the Amalekites, upon which he (e) returns to Ziklag, probably giving the neceſſary Orders to rebuild it. He had been there but two full Days, before the Amalekite, who kill'd Saul, brings the Crown and the Bracelets to David, with the News that Saul and Jonathan were dead, expecting (f) a great Reward for his Intelligence; and to aſſure David of the Truth hereof, he tells him, that he kill'd Saul with his own Hand, and the Manner of it. David ask'd him twice who he was, and he anſwer'd, that he was an Amalekite, which was an aggravating Circumſtance, becauſe his Countrymen had lately done David and his Men ſo much Miſchief, and he was but juſt return'd from Taking his Revenge on them. David, tho' (g) he once wiſh'd that Saul might fall in Battle, was ſurpriz'd to find that it was really ſo. He could not but think, that what happen'd to Saul now both as a King and a General, might happen to him at another Time. And therefore he orders this Amalekite to be immediately ſlain, to ſhew his Diſlike of the Fact, and to deter others from being guilty of the ſame. And as the Egyptians penn'd a lamentable Ode call'd Maneros, to lament the untimely Death of their firſt King Mizraim; ſo David pens another of the ſame Nature to lament the Death of their firſt King Saul, in which he gives him the Character of a brave Warrior, and ſhews at the ſame Time the great Affection which he had for Jonathan, and the great Concern for the Loſs of him.

37. Upon this grand Accident David (h) being willing to take GOD's Advice and Direction, and reſolving to do nothing without it, enquires by Abiathar the High Prieſt (as he had often done before) whether he ſhould go up into the Tribe of Judah his own Tribe, and where he had moſt Friends, that ſo he might take Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom. GOD encourages him to go up, and particularly directs him to Hebron, an antient and principal City of that Tribe, where People might more conveniently and eaſily reſort to him. Here the principal Perſons of that Tribe come to him, and unanimouſly make him their King. Upon this he (i) ſends Meſſengers to the Inhabitants of Jabeſh-gilead, which lay on the other Side of Jordan, in the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, to thank them for their Kindneſs to the Family of Saul, to aſſure them of his Protecting them againſt the Philiſtines, informing them that the Tribe of Judah had

To prevent this, Abner the Captain of Saul's Army, having a Zeal for the Family, goes with Iſhboſheth, Saul's Son, over Jordan to Mahanaim, which lay in the neighbouring Tribe of Gad, and there he proclaims him King over all Iſrael. The Men of Jabeſh-gilead not declaring for David, as might have been expected on this Occaſion, Iſhboſheth (k) reigns two Years before there was any open Hoſtility between him and David. Iſhboſheth was an unactive Prince, and unfit to command, and David was willing to wait and ſee how GOD would diſpoſe of things in his Favour. At the End of two Years Abner takes the Adminiſtration of the Government upon himſelf, and begins the War, and therefore the Scripture doth not reckon the other (l) five Years and ſix Months as a Part of Iſhboſheth's Reign, becauſe he had only the Name of a King, but no Authority at all. In this War (m) David had always the better, and many of the Iſraelites fell off to him, which continually added to his Strength, and weaken'd the Houſe of Saul. Abner reſolves to begin the War in Hope of making himſelf abſolute if ſucceſsful; and for this End he marches with all his Forces, and paſſes over Jordan into Country of Benjamin his own Tribe to raiſe Recruits, and ſecure the Paſſes. Joab was then the Captain of David's Army, and hearing of this, marches to Gibeon, where Abner lay, and the Armies being in Sight of each other, Abner (n) challenges Joab to fight in the Beginning of the Day, hoping that by the Length of the Battle his Victory would be more complete. His Words are theſe, Let the young men ariſe, and play before us. Joab had too much Courage to refuſe it, and returns a ſuitable Anſwer. Abner ſends twelve Men over to begin Hoſtilities, and Joab ſends as many more to anſwer them. Theſe furiouſly engage with each other, and many of them were kill'd on both Sides. The oppoſite Armies ſeeing this, advance to the Relief of their own Men, ſo that there was a furious Fight the reſt of the Day. And from this Battle the Place was afterward call'd Helkath-hazzurim, which ſignifies, The field of ſtrong Men as hard and firm as Rocks or Flints. Abner being beaten retreats, and Aſahel follows him to kill him, or take him Priſoner. Abner knowing him deſires him to forbear, and at laſt tells him, that he muſt be forc'd to kill him againſt his Inclinations. Aſahel confiding in his own Strength, and refuſing the Offers of Peace, was ſlain by Abner for his Raſhneſs, and the reſt of the Army tarrying to take Care of the Body, gave Abner Time to retreat to a riſing Ground, by the Advantage of which he was ſecure from any farther Attack, and from thence he ſpeaks to Joab to forbear the Deſtruction of his Countrymen, who were deſcended from the ſame Father, and worſhipp'd the ſame GOD. Joab lays the Blame upon Abner's Challenge, and proteſts with (o) an Oath, ſaying, If thou hadſt not ſaid what thou didſt ſay in the Morning, Let the young men ariſe, and play before us, ſurely the people had gone away every one of them from his brother, and there had been never a blow ſtruck, but thou didſt provoke it. After this Joab reteats immediately with his Army, and upon a Review, he finds that he had loſt twenty Men in all, but had kill'd three hundred and ſixty of the Enemy; ſo he buries Aſahel in Bethlehem, and then marches back to David to Hebron, whilſt Abner and his Men repaſs the River Jordan, and go to Iſhboſheth to Mahanaim.

38. What paſt in the following Years is not recorded; but in the laſt Year of the Wars Iſhboſheth very (p) imprudently chargeth Abner with Lying with his Father's Concubine. This puts Abner into a great Rage, ſo that he revolts to David, and brings over moſt of the Tribe of Benjamin with him. Abner comes to David with an Aſſurance of his Fidelity. David entertains him with great Reſpect, and they agree upon Methods to bring all the Tribes of Iſrael in Subjection to David, and Abner departs to put the ſame in Execution. Joab hearing of this, and being jealous of being ſupplanted by Abner, endeavours to alienate the good Opinion of the King from him, but to no Purpoſe, and being alſo willing to revenge the Death of his Brother Aſahel, he ſends Expreſſes to call him back unknown to David, as if David had farther Buſineſs with him. Joab takes him aſide pretending to ſpeak with him privately, and kills him. David hearing of this, cauſeth Abner to be honourably bury'd, and attends himſelf upon the Ceremony. He faſts and laments for this Accident, aſſerts his Innocency, curſes Joab for the ſame, and declares, that it was out of his Power to puniſh Joab the Murderer for this Crime, becauſe his Kingdom was not as yet confirm'd. He was but newly call'd to it without any hereditary Right to ſuch an Authority, which made it more uncertain, than if it had been of a longer Date. Joab had alſo been faithful to him in his Adverſity, was an excellent Soldier, and had a great Power among the military Men; which made it very neceſſary for David to defer his Puniſh-

39. The Death of Abner did very ſenſibly (s) affect the People of Iſrael. Iſhboſheth was concern'd, having loſt his Supporter and Defender, and not knowing whom to truſt, after Abner had forſaken him. The Iſraelites were alſo concern'd, wiſhing well to David, and finding that by his Death the Treaty was broken off, and having none to manage it with that Authority and Prudence as Abner had. However it was not long before a ſudden Revolution happen'd; for

(t) Baanah and Rechab, who ſeem to be Captains of Iſhboſheth's Life-guard, contriv'd to murder him, as he was lying upon his Bed in the Heat of the Day, and brought his Head to David to Hebron. David, who would neither do nor ſuffer any ill thing to be done to gain the Crown, orders them to be kill'd, and expos'd as publick Traitors, and that Iſhboſheth's Head ſhould be honourably bury'd in Abner's Grave. Upon this (u) all the other Tribes of Iſrael ſend Ambaſſadors to David, to own him as their King, and ſo agree that he ſhould govern them juſtly and kindly, and they would obey him ſincerely and faithfully. There ſeems to be a Difficulty (x) of ſix Months in the Computation of David's Reign. For it is ſaid, that he reigned forty years, that is, In Hebron he reigned over Judah ſeven years and ſix months: and in Jeruſalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Iſrael and Judah, which make forty years and ſix months in the whole. But the Meaning of it ſeems to be thus: It was ſeven Years between the Time that David was made King over Judah at the Death of Saul, and when he was made King over Iſrael at the Death of Iſhboſheth. Whilſt he was King over Judah, the greateſt Part of his Reſidence was at Hebron; and whilſt he was King over Iſrael, the greateſt Part of his Reſidence was at Jeruſalem. But from the Time that he was made King over Iſrael, he tarried ſix Months at Hebron, which was till the Beginning of the following Year, before he went to take Jeruſalem, which was his firſt warlike Enterprize. For being inform'd, that the Jebuſites were in Poſſeſſion of the Fort of Zion, which was (y) the moſt noble Part, and commanded the reſt of the City, he reſolv'd to beſiege it. The Jebuſites imagin'd their Fortreſs to be ſo impregnable, that they treat him (z) with the utmoſt Contempt and Scorn. They ſet the Blind and the Lame upon the Walls, and ſay to him, Thou ſhalt not come hither, but the blind and the lame will drive thee away. The Blind and the Lame (a) repeat the ſame opprobious Language, and ſay of David, He ſhall not come into our houſe. David was ſo angry at this, that he makes a Vow to this Effect, (b) Whoever goes firſt, and ſmites the Jebuſites, and throws down into the ditch, that was under the Wall, the blind and the lame, which David hated, he ſhall be the captain general over the whole army. Joab hearing this ſtorms the Fort, and was the firſt that took it; and therefore tho' David might before have reſolv'd to diſmiſs him for the Murder of Abner, yet now he was oblig'd for the Sake of his Promiſe to confirm him in the Government. After this David dwelt in this ſtrong Hold, and call'd it (c) The City of David. But this Place being not big enough to contain the whole Court and all his Guards, and others who had Occaſion to reſort thither, he builds round about it for his own Conveniency, whilſt Joab repairs and fortifies the reſt of the City for the Conveniency of his Subjects. About this Time David pens the eighteenth Pſalm, being now deliver'd from the Family of Saul, and reſerves it to be conſtantly us'd upon the Occaſion of his other Victories, as may appear from the Title.

40. Abibalus having very lately ſet himſelf up to be the King of Tyre and Sidon, and the adjacent Country; and hearing how proſperous David was in all his Affairs, concludes, that a mutual Alliance might be for the Advantage of both the new Kingdoms; and very probably fearing leſt David ſhould endeavour to attack him (this being a Part of the Country poſſeſs'd like the reſt by the Poſterity of Canaan the Son of Ham) he (d) takes the Opportunity of David's Building to ſend him an acceptable Preſent of Cedar-Trees, and Carpenters and Maſons for this Purpoſe. David takes this very kindly, and accordingly an intire Friendſhip continu'd with them as long as they liv'd; ſo that he never aſſiſted the Philiſtines againſt David, and David never diſturb'd him in the quiet Poſſeſſion of his Dominions. Before this Time he had chang'd his Name to Hiram, that ſo it might be the ſtanding Name for him and his Succeſſors, as Pharaoh, and after that Ptolomy in Egypt, Abimelech among the Philiſtines, and Cæſar among the Roman Emperors. The Name in their Language (e) ſignifies, He lives, that is exalted, or Let him live who is exalted, or Let the exalted

exalted king live for ever And his Sending to David only under this Name is the Reaſon that this Name is only mention'd in Scripture.

41. The Philiſtines, hearing that David was made King of Iſrael, (f) endeavour to raiſe a large Army to ſuppreſs him, which they might be two Years in Raiſing; but finding that David was employ'd in Fortifying Jeruſalem, and had made a League with Abibalus, or Hiram King of Tyre, they thought it not proper to defer Hoſtilities any longer, ſo that they march to the Valley of Rephaim or (g) Giants, which lay weſt from Jeruſalem, not far from it, in the Tribe of Judah. David asking Counſel of GOD, was encourag'd to march againſt them with the Promiſe of a Victory, which he obtain'd, and ſaying, The LORD hath broken forth upon my enemies before me, as the breach of waters; the Place was afterward call'd Baal-perazim, or The Maſter of Breaches. Joſephus tells us, (h) that Syria and Phœnicia, and ſeveral other warlike Nations were all engag'd in this Confederacy, which cannot be meant of Abibalus or Hiram, but of ſuch Phœnicians as would not ſubmit to him, and therefore join'd with the Philiſtines firſt to ſubdue his Ally, and then to ſubdue him, before his Government could be ſettl'd. The Year after the Philiſtines bring (i) three Times as many into the Field, and depending on their Numbers encamp in the ſame Place. David conſults GOD again, who adviſeth him to fetch a Compaſs round to a Wood of Mulberry-Trees, where the Enemy could not ſuſpect them to be; and when he heard a Sound like an Army marching, then he ſhould march after it. This Noiſe affrighted the Philiſtines, and caus'd David to obtain a more complete Victory; ſo that he purſu'd them to Gazer, a Town upon their own Borders.

Anno Mundi 2959.

42. The Year after this, David finding no Shew of any farther Hoſtilities, reſolves (k) to bring the Ark of GOD from Kirjath-jearim to ſettle it in an honourable Place near to himſelf, and for this Reaſon he appoints thirty thouſand Men to be a Guard to it, in Caſe the Enemy ſhould attempt to ſurprize them. Thus the Ark (l) was brought to Jeruſalem, David himſelf marching foremoſt, and a Multitude of People following him, glorifying GOD with ſacred Hymns and Pſalms, and other delightful Airs, after the Faſhion of the Country, and dancing all the Way as they went to the Sound of Harps, Cymbals, and other muſical Inſtruments. It was now near ſeventy Years, ſince they had carry'd the Ark from Place to Place, and ſuch a Diſuſe made them forget the Manner of it, which ought (m) to have been carried upon the Shoulders of the Kohathites, and no Wagons were allow'd to them for this Purpoſe, but only Staves thro' the Rings of the Ark, and it (n) ought to have been cover'd by the Prieſts ſo as not to have been ſeen. But theſe Miſtakes occaſion'd another; for when they came to a (o) threſhing Floor, call'd The threſhing floor of Nachon, or a Stroke, and alſo (p) The threſhing floor of Chidon, or Deſtruction, Uzzah ſeeing the Ark ſhake, when they march'd along, and diſtruſting the Providence of GOD as able to ſupport it, took Hold of it to prevent its Falling; upon which he was puniſh'd with immediate Death. This gave Occaſion to the two former Names. And David alſo call'd it Perez-Uzzah, or The Breach upon Uzzah, thereby to put the Levites and all others in Mind of their Duty. Upon this Occaſion David uſeth the ſixty eighth Pſalm, beginning with the Words which Moſes had (q) appointed to be us'd, whenever the Ark was to be mov'd. David being afraid of farther Diſpleaſure from GOD, leaves (r) the Ark in the Houſe of Obed-edom, where it continues three Months. Obed-edom treating the Ark with all the Reverence due to it, was exceeding proſperous in all his Affairs, which encourages David to bring it to Jeruſalem. On this Occaſion David compoſeth the hundred thirty and ſecond Pſalm. In which he ſaith, (s) Ariſe, O LORD, into thy reſting-place, thou and the ark of thy ſtrength. And (t) then he adds, that We the Neighbours of Bethlehem, heard of the Ark in Ephrata their own Country, we found it in the fields of Jear or one of the Woods, from whence the City was call'd Kirjath-jearim, or The City of the Woods. There it was before, but (u) now the LORD hath choſen Zion, he hath deſired it for his habitation, ſaying, This is my reſt for ever, here will I dwell, for I have deſired it. And (x) he alſo prays, that GOD would fit and ſanctify the Prieſts for the preſent and future Service of the LORD, and that he will accept of the Face of his Anointed, ſo that there may be no more Breach among them, as there was at Perez-uzzah.

daily Service to be perform'd. For this Purpoſe he pens Pſal. 96, 105, and 106, of which Ezra gives a ſhort Account in the (z) Book of Chronicles; and that there might be a daily Portion of them, it is probable, that to theſe he added many more, ſuch as Pſal. 91, 93, 95, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 103, 121, 122, and 92, which is intituled A Pſalm or Song for the Sabbath Day. And Michal the Daughter of Saul deſpiſing David for his Piety and Zeal on this Occaſion, was (a) puniſh'd with Barrenneſs from that Time as long as ſhe liv'd.

44. In Comparing the Hiſtory of theſe Times, as it is recorded in the ſecond Book of Samuel and in the Chronicles, there ſeems at firſt View to be ſeveral Difficulties. Firſt, In the Catalogue of David's mighty Men. Of theſe three are (b) reckon'd to be the principal, three of a ſecond Rank, and thirty more of an inferior Order. The firſt of theſe call'd by Name Adino the Eznite. In Chronicles he is (c) call'd Jaſhobeam, or he that ſits with the People to ſhew his Office; and in Samuel he (d) is deſcrib'd by a like Title, which we tranſlate in Engliſh, He that ſate in the ſeat as a Judge among the People, and chief of the captains. He was the immediate (e) Son of Zabdiel. In Samuel he is call'd the Tachmonite, and in Chronicles the Hachmonite, (f) both which Words retain the ſame radical Letters more plainly in the Hebrew than in any other Tranſlation, and differ only by the Addition of a ſingle Letter in the Beginning, as it is uſual in that Language. The Word (g) in either Place may ſignify a wiſe Man, a Man of Learning, and given to Study; and then if it is taken as a common Name, all this Difficulty will be remov'd. In Samuel (h) it is ſaid, that he lift up his ſpear againſt eight hundred men, whom he ſlew at one time, but (i) in the Chronicles, He lift up his ſpear againſt three hundred ſlain by him at one time. To reconcile this ſome ſay, (k) he lift up his ſpear againſt eight hundred men at one time, and ſlew three hundred of them. Others, (l) After he had ſlain three hundred he was ſo little tired, that he ſlew as many more as made up eight hundred. Others, (m) he ſlew three hundred with his own hand, and thereby routed the enemy, and put them to flight, in which five hundred more were kill'd in the purſuit. But when we conſider, that (n) the Word in Hebrew will ſignify either to be kill'd, or to be wounded by a Spear or Sword, perhaps we may reconcile it thus, He lift up his ſpear againſt eight hundred men, which were either kill'd or wounded, three hundred of them were kill'd at one time, and the reſt were wounded. And thus the Word may be taken in a different Senſe in the different Texts. However the Jews reckon, (o) that theſe were two different Actions. He kill'd three hundred at one Time, and eight hundred at another. This, if admitted, reconciles both, and it is impoſſible to prove the contrary. The next was (p) Eliezer the Son of Dodo the Ahothite, of Bethlehem, and (q) a Benjamite. He ſeems (r) to have contracted an Intimacy with David at Ephes-dammim, when (s) he ſlew Goliath the Giant, and to have been always after that his faithful Friend. He ſeems alſo to have ſignaliz'd himſelf at (t) the Battle at Keilah, (u) challenging the Philiſtines to fight, and killing ſo many with his own Hand, that he diſhearten'd the reſt, ſo that David's little Army of four hundred Men had nothing to do, but to purſue the flying Enemy. The (x) third was Shammah the Hararite. He join'd with the other, when the (y) Philiſtines firſt pitch'd at Ephes-dammim. For at the Beginning of the Encampment, the Philiſtines ſent out a Troop to forage, who coming to a Ground (z) half full of Barley, and half full of Lentiles, that they might carry it off, theſe two, when the reſt fled away, (a) ſtood in the Midſt of the Ground, and defended it, and kill'd ſo many of the Philiſtines, that a ſtrong Party of the Army took Heart and join'd them, and obtain'd ſuch a Victory, that the Philiſtines would not venture at a pitch'd Battle, but only ſent out Goliath to challenge any ſingle Perſon. And it is probable, that ſuch a valiant Act done by a handful of Men under the Command of theſe two, being freſh in the Memory of the Philiſtines, ſo diſhearten'd them at the Death of Goliath, that they had not Courage to venture a general Battle, but (b) ran away at once. The firſt of the ſecondary three was (c) Abiſhai the Brother of Joab, who kill'd three hundred Men in one

Engagement

Engagement with his own Hands, perhaps at the Battle at Keilah, the Succeſs whereof made him ſo readily afterward (d) offer himſelf to go down with David to the Camp of Saul, when they took away the Spear and the Cruſe of Water which was at his Head. The next was (e) Benajah the Son of Jehoiada, who is ſaid to have done many famous Acts, probably with David alſo in the Wilderneſs. He ſlew two fierce and valiant Moabites, which ſeems to have been at one Encounter. And it is probable, that when (f) David went to the Cave of Adullam in the Depth of Winter, and in a ſnowy Day, Benajah went firſt into the Cave, where he found a Lion that had took Shelter there to defend himſelf from the Severity of the Weather, who being hungry for Want of his Prey, and ſeeing Benajah there, came with open Mouth to devour him. But ſuch was his Courage, that he ſlew the Lion, and ſo prevented any farther Miſchief. At another Time (g) he ſlew an Egyptian (h) nine Foot high, who (i) like Goliath had a Spear, the Staff of which was like a Weaver's Beam. And he went down to him with ſuch a Staff, as Men uſually walk with, and pluck'd the Spear out of the Egyptian's Hand, and ſlew him with his own Spear, which ſhew'd him to be a Man of great Strength and Courage, and very dextrous and expert in Military Affairs. Who the third of this Number was, is not expreſly ſaid, either in Samuel or Chronicles; but perhaps it might be (k) Adina the Son of Shiza, who was a Captain of the Reubenites, and had thirty Men with him. In Reckoning alſo the other valiant Men, there is a great Deal of Difference. In Samuel there are only thirty, but in the Chronicles they are ſeven and forty. But the Reaſon is this, the Book of the Chronicles gives an Account of the (l) Chief of the mighty men, which David had, who came from all Parts of the Land to make him King, with ſuch Forces that they could raiſe, and ſo when they had done what they intended, many of them were disbanded again, and went to their reſpective Habitations. But the Book of Samuel gives an Account of thoſe, who were with him in the latter Time of his Reign, and had ſerv'd him in the Army, and ſo their Number might well be leſſen'd. In theſe two Catalogues the Names are generally very different, but ſome of them are the ſame. And there is alſo a very good Reaſon for this: One (m) Catalogue was taken ſoon after David was made King over all Iſrael, the (n) other but a little while before his Death; ſo that there is a Space of thirty Years Diſtance. After theſe thirty Years ſome might be alive, and ſome dead and others put in their Places, and then of Courſe there muſt be an Alteration. And in (*) Samuel only Urijah might be mention'd among thoſe who were dead, becauſe a remarkable Part of the preceding Story depended on him. Beſides the Book of Samuel reckons up theſe ſix mighty Men, and adds by Name thirty more, and concludes at laſt, (o) that they are thirty and ſeven in all. But we are not told that all their Names are expreſs'd. Joab is left out, who was their General, and if we add his Name to the reſt, they will be thirty ſeven in all. He was a great Man, and inferior to none of theſe. But he had ſtain'd himſelf by the baſe Murder of Abner and Amaſa, which is generally ſuppos'd to be the Reaſon, why he had not the Honour to be put into the Number of thoſe Worthies, who ſerv'd David.

45. There ſeems alſo to be ſome Difficulty occaſion'd by the different Order in which theſe former Stories are plac'd in theſe Books. The Book of (p) Samuel firſt mentions the Story of Hiram's Kindneſs and Reſpect to David, of David's Children, and of two Battles with the Philiſtines, and then it relates the Fetching up of the Ark. But the Book of (q) Chronicles firſt relates the Fetching up of the Ark, and then thoſe Stories of Hiram's Kindneſs, David's Children, and the Philiſtines Battles. For the Methodizing therefore of theſe Stories into their proper Time and Order, they are to be taken thus.

David (r) conſults with the Captains of thouſands, which had came to him to Hebron, and had gone with him to Jeruſalem, about the Fetching up of the Ark. This is but a Conſultation and an Agreement about the Matter; but the thing is not yet done, becauſe all Iſrael is firſt to be ſent to about it, and a Time to be appointed, when they ſhall come in. Upon this the Companies now preſent depart to their own Houſes, till the Time appointed comes for that Purpoſe.

When (s) the Iſraelites were departed every one to their own Houſes, Hiram or Abibalus King of Tyre, hearing of the great Solemnity of David's Coronation, and of the Taking of Jeruſalem, ſends betimes to enter into a League with him, and preſents him with Cedar and Workmen to build him an Houſe. Upon this the ſacred Text relating David's Settlement and Proſperity, reckons up David's Marriages and Children, and reckons them up all together, tho' they were born in ſeveral Years.

In this Space of Time, between the People's Departing from David's Coronation, and their Meeting again to fetch up the Ark, David being now left of thoſe Multitudes, and Jeruſalem not yet fully fortify'd, the Philiſtines come twice to the Valley of Rephaim, which lies under Jeruſalem, to diſturb him in his Building, and, if poſſible, to deprive him of his Throne. But inſtead thereof he gains two Victories over them, and ſo he goes on to finiſh what he intended.

And (t) when he had thus finiſh'd his intended Buildings, he fixes a Day for the ſolemn Bringing up of the Ark to Jeruſalem, and the People meeting at the Time appointed, perform it with all the Demonſtrations of Joy and Satisfaction.

46. David having (u) a ſtately Houſe of Cedar built him, reflects upon the Meanneſs of GOD's Habitation in Compariſon of the Splendor of his own, and therefore reſolves to build a more magnificent Fabrick for GOD to dwell in, and communicates his Deſign to Nathan the Prophet. Nathan at firſt approves of it, but the following Night was commanded to forbid it, but with an Aſſurance, that GOD accepted of his ſincere Intentions, and promis'd that his Son ſhould ſucceed him, and build him a Temple, that his Poſterity ſhould reign for many Generations, and (x) the Throne of his Kingdom ſhould be eſtabliſhed for ever, which Words if taken in their full Extent, can belong to none but to CHRIST himſelf. It is probable, that David himſelf took it in this Senſe, and therefore he (y) penn'd the ſecond Pſalm to teſtify the ſame, and to comfort himſelf thereby, that the Rage of all his Enemies round about him ſhould be unſucceſsful, and he might alſo compoſe the 16th, 110th and 118th Pſalm at this Time, which ſpeak to the ſame Purpoſe. It is certain that he was very much tranſported at this News, as (z) his Confeſſion and Thankſgiving in the Temple ſufficiently ſhews; and as Nathan had (a) told him, that his own Son ſhould ſit upon his Throne; ſo he might alſo compoſe ſoon after the 72d Pſalm, to pray to GOD for him, and alſo to propheſy of the MESSIAS, who ſhould be born in a diſtant Generation, or (b) a great while to come. In Anno Mundi 2961.

his Thankſgiving in the Temple he ſaith, (c) And what can David ſay more to thee? and at the End of the other Pſalm it is added, (d) The prayers of David the ſon of Jeſſe are ended. After ſo clear a Manifeſtation of CHRIST to him, there was nothing more that he could deſire.

47. It being alſo reveal'd unto David at this Time, that the Son who ſhould ſucceed him, (e) ſhould be call'd Solomon, or Peaceable, becauſe GOD would give peace and quietneſs to Iſrael in his days, that he might the better build ſuch a Temple, David now reſolves to ſubdue his Enemies on every Side, to diſable them from giving any future Diſturbance. Of theſe, the firſt which he begins with, is the Philiſtines: They had invaded him (f) twice in the Beginning of his Reign, and now he invades them, and (g) takes from them the famous City of Gath, being the Reſidence of their Kings, and the Country round it. It was at this Time call'd (h) The Bridle of Ammah, becauſe it ſtood upon a Mountain call'd Ammah, and was a Bridle to curb the Tribe of Judah, and keep them in Obedience. Upon this all the neighbouring Countries enter into a Confederacy againſt David, as if they would deſtroy him at once. This occaſions his Penning the eighty third Pſalm, which he delivers (i) to Aſaph, the chief of the Singers at the Tabernacle, to be us'd in their conſtant Service, in which he complains to GOD of their Conſpiracies, and prays to him againſt them. For (as (k) he ſaith) they have conſulted together with one conſent, they are confederate againſt thee. The tabernacles of Edom, and the Iſhmaelites toward the South of Judea, the Moabites, and the Hagarenes, or the Iſhmaelites on the Eaſt, Gebal and Ammon, and Amalek; the Philiſtines, with the inhabitants of Tyre. But above all the Aſſyrian Monarchy was alſo join'd with them, and was as an arm to the children of Lot, the greateſt Support to the Moabites and Ammonites, and that on which they did chiefly depend, their Armies coming from Babylon and Chaldea for this Purpoſe. Upon this he immediately marches againſt (l) the Moabites (for his Caſe would not admit of a long Delay) and obtains a ſignal Victory, according to the Prophecy of Balaam, that (m) a Scepter ſhould ariſe out of Iſrael, and ſhould ſmite through the princes of Moab. And having taken a Anno Mundi 2961. Survey

Survey of every Part of the Country, he levels their ſtrong Holds and fortify'd Places with the Ground, dividing the Country into three Parts, condemning two of them to be deſtroy'd, and preſerving the third, that it might not be quite diſpeopl'd, becauſe they were the (n) Offſpring of righteous Lot the Brother of Abraham. This he calls (o) the meaſuring of the valley of Succoth. Neither can we ſuppoſe, that he would have exercis'd ſuch Severities againſt the other two Parts, if it had not been to terrify the other Nations from joining with the Aſſyrian Monarchy againſt their Neighbours. Immediately after this, he (p) falls upon the Ammonites, the (q) other Branch of Lot's Poſterity, and conquers them. Whether he us'd the ſame Severity upon them, as upon the Moabites, is not recorded, and it is moſt probable, that he did not. However it is certain, that he took (r) very valuable Spoils from all theſe Countries, and dedicated them, with all the Preſents that were given him, for the Uſe of the Temple, which was afterward to be built.

Anno Mundi 2962.

48. David by the Conqueſt of the Moabites and Ammonites having cut off all Communication between his Enemies in the South, and thoſe in the North, he proceeds to enlarge his Conqueſts toward the North, fearing that the Part of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, which lay near Nineveh, ſhould paſs over the Euphrates, and invade his Country, and probably calling to Mind (s) the Promiſe, which GOD had made to Abraham, that he would give unto his ſeed the whole land from the river of Egypt to the great river, the river Euphrates, he thought this a fit Time to take Poſſeſſion of it, and (t) to eſtabliſh his dominions in that Country. And if he was afraid of the Aſſyrian Monarchy on that Side, it is plain, that his Fears were well grounded. For (u) thoſe of Aram-naharaim, or the Syrians of Meſopotamia, who were ſubject to that Empire, paſſed over the Euphrates, and gave him (x) a terrible Battle. And as ſoon as he had conquer'd them, the (y) Syrians of Zobah under the Command of Hadadezer their King came upon him; ſo that in a ſecond Battle David conquer'd them alſo, who if they had been join'd together, muſt without an extraordinary divine Aſſiſtance have been too hard for him. In this Battle David takes from (z) Hadadezer twenty thouſand footmen as Priſoners, and a thouſand Chariots, and ſeven thouſand horſemen, that attended them, ſeven to a Chariot. He cuts the Sinews of all the Horſes except ſeven hundred, which he reſerves for the Uſe of an hundred Chariots. Upon this the (a) Syrians of Damaſcus come to ſuccour Hadadezer their Neighbour, and David in another Battle ſlew two and twenty thouſand Men, which facilitated the Conqueſt of their Country, ſo that David put Gariſons in that Part of Syria, which lay between Libanus and Antilibanus, the chief City whereof was Damaſcus, ſituated in a plea-Part of the Vale, which was plentifully water'd by five Rivers, the two principal of which deſcended from Mount Hermon, and are (b) call'd Abana and Pharpar; the firſt of theſe runs thro' the City, and divides it into two Parts, and the other runs by the Walls.

49. At this Time (c) Rezon the Son of Eliodah was a conſiderable Officer in Hadadezer's Army, who finding the Victory inclining on David's Side, revolted from his Maſter, and gathering as many as he could together, he makes himſelf their Captain. And it is probable that he liv'd after the Manner of the Arabians by Plunder and Robbery all the Days of David, and the greateſt Part of Solomon's Reign; until he, doting upon ſtrange Women, minded not the Defence of his Conqueſts. This Rezon obſerving, took the Advantage of it, and ſo he got again the Poſſeſſion of Damaſcus, and the neighbouring Country, and reign'd as a King over them, inſomuch that he and his Poſterity were bitter Enemies to the Family of David.

50. David having extended his Conqueſts in the North to the utmoſt Limits of the promis'd Land, endeavours after this to enlarge them toward the South. And the firſt that he encountred with, in all Probability, was the Philiſtines, his old implacable Enemies. Here alſo (d) happen'd a very ſharp Battle, in which David was ſo beſet, that his Spirits were quite tir'd; which Iſhbi-benob one of the Race of the Giants perceiving, he reſolv'd to take the Advantage, and kill David. He was ſo ſtrong, that his uſual Spear weigh'd 300 Shekels, or almoſt nineteen Pound Weight, and he had certainly kill'd him, if Abiſhai had not came in ſeaſonably to his Relief, who ſeems (e) to have conquer'd this Philiſtine, and have brought him down, but left it to David for his Honour to give him the laſt and fatal Stroke. Upon this the Generals oblige David (f) with an Oath to go no more into any Battle againſt their Enemies, leſt he ſhould be kill'd, and his Subjects, might loſe the Happineſs which they enjoy'd under his Adminiſtration.

51. The Edomites finding David engag'd in a War on the Weſt Side of Judea, attack him on the Eaſt. David labouring under ſuch Difficulties, was not willing to go far from the Army, that he might be ready to give his Advice upon any Emergency. Joab (g) marches as their General, and attacks the Edomites in a Place call'd, The Valley of Salt, lying in the Country of Idumea, where he kills twelve thouſand of their Men; but hearing that the Philiſtines were rallying of their Forces, he leaves Abiſhai his Brother to command in chief upon the Field of Battle, and marches with as many Men as he thought convenient againſt the Philiſtines. And David pens the ſixtieth Pſalm in Commemoration of this firſt Victory. Joab marching with the utmoſt Expedition againſt the Philiſtines, comes up to them in the Tribe of Ephraim, where another Fight happen'd, Gob being on his right Hand and Gezer on his left, and therefore (h) the Battle is ſaid to have been fought in both Places. In this Battle the Iſraelites ſeem to have had the Advantage, tho' there is nothing particularly related of it, only that (i) Sibbechai the Huſhathite, who was (k) one of David's Worthies, ſlew Saph, who was of the Race of the Giants. The Edomites finding that the Army was divided, ſend for (l) all the Syrians in the neighbouring Country of Arabia, and having thus recruited their Army, they fall upon Abiſhai, who was encamp'd with his Army in The Valley of Salt, but without that Succeſs which they expected. For Abiſhai in that Battle kills (m) of the Syrians and Edomites, who were thus join'd together, eighteen thouſand Men. Upon this they put Gariſons in (n) all the Country of Idumea, and the Edomites became Servants to David, according to (o) the antient Propheſy, that the elder brother ſhould ſerve the younger. And the Army marching back into their winter Quarters, David join'd them, and appear'd at the Head of them, ſo that (p) he was much extoll'd at his Return; for tho' he was not in the Army at the Time of the Engagements, yet as he was their King, and near at hand to give Directions, and returning with the reſt, whatever was done by Joab and Abiſhai, was aſcrib'd to him.

52. In this long Campaign, (q) which laſted ſix Months, Joab exercis'd great Severities againſt the Edomites, and after the ſecond Battle, when he had march'd back again from the Philiſtines, and had given an honourable Interment to thoſe of his own Soldiers, who were ſlain in the ſecond Battle under Abiſhai, he deſtroys every Male that he could meet with, thereby effectually to prevent another Revolt. But it was impoſſible to deſtroy them all, ſome fleeing away and others hiding themſelves. Among thoſe who fled there was Hadad the Edomite, one of the royal Family, who being very young, ſome of his Father's Servants hid him, until they had an Opportunity to flee to Midian, from whence they ſend to Egypt to know if Pharaoh would give them Entertainment and Protection. Pharaoh invites them not only to come into his Kingdom, but even to his Palace; where he aſſign'd him an Houſe, and kept a Table for him, that he might want for nothing. And to ſhew his great Eſteem, Pharaoh gave him to Wife the Siſter of his own Wife, by whom he had a Son that the Queen was extremely fond of, as if it had been her own. And this ſo ſtrengthen'd his Alliance with that Court, that it enabled him afterward to give Solomon a Diſturbance, when he leaſt expected it, and ſo regain'd the Country of Edom.

53. The next Year there ſeems to be (r) another Battle with the Amalekites, who were the ſtouteſt Soldiers of all the Idumeans, and might attempt to regain their Country; but not being aſſiſted by the reſt of their Countrymen were brought again more eaſily under Subjection; and they were now ſo ſeverely beaten, that we hear no more of them as a diſtinct Tribe from the reſt of the Idumeans. And there ſeems to be another Battle with the Philiſtines, when (*) Elhanan the Son of Jair, and Grandſon of (s) Dodo a Bethlehemite, ther of David's Worthies, ſlew Lahmi the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the ſtaff of whoſe ſpear was like a weaver's beam. And the following Year there ſeems to be another Battle at Gath between the Iſraelites and the Philiſtines, at which Time there was (t) a man of great ſtature, who had on every hand ſix fingers, and on every foot ſix toes, and was of the Race of the Giants; and when he defied Iſrael, Jonathan the ſon of (u) Shammah the third Son of Jeſſe, and the brother of David ſlew him. So that David being ſucceſsful in ſo many Victories, and having conquer'd the Philiſtines, Idumeans, Amalekites, Moabites, Ammonites and Syrians, he extended his Kingdom not only from (x) Sihor the River of Egypt,

Anno Mundi 2967.

55. Nahaſh the King of the Ammonites dying, David reſolv'd (d) to ſhew Kindneſs to the Son, who ſucceeded, for the Sake of former Obligations from the Father. This Nahaſh liv'd to a great Age, and came very early to the Throne. It was now eight and fifty Years, ſince he laid Siege to (e) Jabeſh-gilead, threaten'd to pluck out one of the Eyes of all the Inhabitants, and his Army was totally routed by Saul. This made (f) Saul afterward oppreſs the Ammonites, and therefore it is probable, that when David was perſecuted by Saul, Nahaſh might aſſiſt and relieve him, that thereby he might embarraſs Saul's Concerns the more. And this might be the Reaſon, that David, when he conquer'd the (g) Ammonites, did not uſe them ſo ſeverely, as he did the Moabites. David now ſends Meſſengers to Hanun the Son of Nahaſh to comfort him for the Loſs of his Father, and to aſſure him of his Friendſhip. The Counſellers of Hanun well knew, that David (h) had fought lately againſt their Country, and therefore they could not imagine, that he acted ſincerely in this Affair, but that he (i) rather ſent Men to obſerve where the City was weakeſt, and might be moſt eaſily aſſaulted and taken. Upon this Suppoſition the King treated theſe Ambaſſadors in the moſt ignominious Manner; and being (k) inform'd how heinouſly David reſented this Uſage, he raiſeth an Army with the utmoſt Expedition, and for this Purpoſe he hires from the Syrians of Zobah twenty thouſand Footmen, and from the (l) Men of Tob twelve thouſand Men, or thirty two thouſand in all, with (m) a proportionable Number of Chariots, and from (n) the King of Maacah a thouſand Men. Theſe pitch'd in (o) Medeba, a Town in the Country of the Amorites (who perhaps might be Confederates with them at this Time) near the Tribe of Reuben. David being now under (p) an Obligation not to go into the Army himſelf, did not think it prudent to ſtay, till they aſſaulted him in his own Country, but he ſends Joab, Abiſhai, and all the Army to invade theirs. The Ammonites drew up their Army before Rabbah, the Metropolis of their own Country, and Joab marches directly againſt them. Upon this the other Army march from Medeba, come behind him, and intercept his Retreat. Joab finding a Neceſſity of Fighting, being now preſs'd both in Front and Rear, divides his Army into two Parts, commands one himſelf, and gives the Command of the other to his Brother Abiſhai, with Directions, that if Occaſion requir'd, the Army which was worſted ſhould upon Notice be reliev'd by a Detachment from the other. Joab, with the principal Men of the Army, begins the Attack upon the Syrians, who could not ſo eaſily eſcape him, having the Waters of Nimrim behind them. He routs them with little Difficulty, being mercenary Men, and having no Regard to the Cauſe for which they fought; and the Ammonites principally relying on them, and ſeeing them run away, retire into Rabbah, and ſo ſecure themſelves, the Seaſon of the Year being ſo far ſpent, that it was too late to begin a Siege. Hadadezer the King of the Syrians fearing that David would fall upon him for Aſſiſting his Enemies, reſolves to be beforehand with him, and levies a new Army, conſiſting (as (q) Joſephus ſaith) of eighty thouſand Foot, and ſeven thouſand Horſe, not only out of Syria but alſo from Meſopotamia, and marches to Helam, or (r) Alamtha, a Town on the Borders of the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, intending to invade them in the following Spring. David brings the whole Army together, and gives Joab orders to march to prevent their Deſign, and therefore what was done by Joab at this time is attributed to David. Joab comes up with them, before they expected him; and an Engagement happening, he kills (s) ſeven thouſand Men, who attended ſeven hundred Chariots, ten Men to each Chariot, which ſo diſhearten'd the reſt, that he ſoon after kill'd (t) forty thouſand more, partly Horſe and partly Foot, with Shoback the General of the Army, who was ſlain upon the Spot. The ſeveral Kings, who had aſſiſted Hadadezer in this Expedition, fearing worſe Conſequences, made Peace with David and became Tributaries to him; ſo that (u) his Dominion was enlarg'd as far as Euphrates. And Hadadezer finding himſelf left deſtitute of his Confederates, aſſures David that he would give him no more Diſturbance, but would leave the Ammonites to ſhift for themſelves, as well as they could.

56. David having now but one Enemy to deal with, as ſoon as (x) the Spring came on, ſends Joab with the whole Army againſt the Ammonites, ſo that they lay the Country waſte, and kill all the People that they could meet with; and to make an End of all at once, they lay Siege to Rabbah the royal City, which was ſtrongly fortify'd both by Nature and Art, according to the beſt Skill in thoſe Times. At this (y) Time David was guilty of a very great Sin; for walking idly on the Top of his Palace, which was (z) flat in thoſe Countries, he ſees Bathſheba the Wife of Vrijah the Hittite (a Gentile by Nation, but a Proſelyte to the Jewiſh Religion) bathing her ſelf in the Garden. He ſends for her, and commits Adultery with her. She finding her ſelf with Child, ſends David an Account of it, deſiring him to conſult her Honour and Safety in the Concealing of it, for otherwiſe ſhe was liable to be ſton'd by the Laws of the Land. David ſends to Joab an Order, that Vrijah ſhould come to him, with a Deſign to ſend him home to his Wife; but all Methods for this Purpoſe proving ineffectual (Vrijah being ſuppos'd to have ſome Knowledge of it, and not willing to father that which was none of his own) David ſends an Order to Joab to ſet Vrijah in the hotteſt Battle, and retire from him that he might be kill'd. Vrijah was (a) Joab's Armour-Bearer, ſo that his Valour was well known. He is recorded (b) as one of David's Worthies, both in the Books of Samuel and Chronicles, and his Fidelity was ſo well known, that he was one of the King's Guard among the Cherethites and Pelethites, which was the Reaſon, that he had a Houſe ſo near the King. Joab puts Vrijah upon Storming a Gate, which was beſt defended, (c) promiſing to ſecond him with the whole Army upon the leaſt Poſſibility of Entrance, and earneſtly preſs'd him to maintain the Reputation which he had acquir'd with the King and with the Army, by Behaving himſelf bravely on this Occaſion. Vrijah with great Chearfulneſs undertook this Poſt, whilſt Joab gave his under Officers private Orders to withdraw, when they found themſelves in Danger, and ſo they left Vrijah to be cut in Pieces. He did all the Execution that was poſſible to be done by a ſingle Man againſt ſo many, but after ſeveral Wounds receiv'd, he fell like a Man of Honour, with his Face to the Enemy, ſome few of his Friends, who were not made privy to the Plot, innocently falling with him.

57. Joab ſends an Expreſs of this to the King, who (d) returns with Orders to caſt up Works for their greater Security, to be more reſolute, and aſſault the City with a greater Force, until they were Maſters of it, and then to raze it even with the Ground, and put all the Inhabitants to the Sword, without ſparing a Man. Bathſheba mourn'd for her Husband according to the uſual Time, which was (e) ſeven Days, and David ſoon after took her to be his Wife. Joab upon this aſſaults the City, and (f) takes the ſouthern Part of it, which lay near the Waters of Nimrim, ſo that it was impoſſible, that the upper Part could out long, it being ſupply'd with Water from the other, which (g) Supply was now cut off from them. Upon this Joab ſends an Expreſs to David, to acquaint him, that the City was reduc'd to the utmoſt Extremity, and there was no Danger of a Battle, and to deſire him to come in Perſon, that he might have the Honour of Taking the City. David brings with him a great Reinforcement, takes it by Storm, gives (h) the Plunder of it to his Soldiers, and reſerves for himſelf what belong'd to the King, among which his Crown was very remarkable. Our Tranſlation ſaith, (i) that it was taken from off the King's Head, and ſet upon David's Head, and that the Weight of it was a Talent of Gold, or an hundred and five and twenty Pound. This muſt have been too great a Weight for any one Man to carry. And therefore the Meaning muſt be, either that (k) it was plac'd upon Supporters over the Throne; and then they took the crown from over the king's head, the Place where he ſat on publick Occaſions, and it was plac'd in the ſame Manner over David's head, or elſe that the (l) Price or Value of it was ſo much, which at the Rate of four Pound Sterling to an Ounce, and twelve Ounces to a Pound Weight, comes to ſix thouſand Pounds of our Engliſh Money. The precious Stones might make the Value ſo great, tho' the Weight was leſs, and Joſephus ſaith, that (l) there was one Stone of great Price in the Middle of the Crown, which he calls a Sardonyx. Having thus taken the Spoil, he puts the Men to Death with exquiſite Torments; and all the reſt of the Ammonite Cities that ſtood out, as this did, were treated with the ſame Severity. David now returns to Jeruſalem in a triumphant Manner, and having thus ſpent the firſt twenty Years of his Reign in Wars, he reign'd the other twenty free from all foreign Enemies, and was continually heaping up immenſe Treaſures to be employ'd in the Building of the Temple.

58. The next Year Bathſheba was deliver'd of the Son, which was begotten by David in Adultery. And now GOD ſends Nathan the Prophet to awaken him to a Senſe of his Sin, by the Parable of (m) a rich Man, who took a Lamb from his Neighbour. David being angry at this Injuſtice, declares, that (n) the Man who did this deſerv'd Death, and that he ſhould reſtore the Lamb fourfold, according to (o) the Levitical Law in ſuch a Caſe. Nathan tells him, that he was the Man. David humbly confeſſeth his Sin, and pens the fifty firſt Pſalm as a Teſtimony of his ſincere Repentance, in which he prays to GOD to deliver him from Blood-guiltineſs, and cleanſe him from all his other Sins committed on that Occaſion. Nathan aſſures him, that tho' he had by this juſtly deſerv'd Death, yet GOD would not cut him off as he might have done. But he doth not remit the Reſtoring fourfold; for this Son by Bathſheba ſoon died, and Amnon, Abſalom and Adonijah, three other of his Sons, came to untimely Ends. Nathan alſo foretels, that as Urijah was ſlain by the Sword, ſo the Sword ſhould cut off ſeveral of his Family, as particularly the three laſt mention'd, that ſome one of his Children ſhould rebel againſt him, and his own Concubines ſhould be defil'd in a publick Manner. The Child by Bathſheba ſoon after fell ſick, David hoping that the Sentence was not abſolute, faſts and prays for the Child's Life; but when he was inform'd, that the Child was dead, he publickly acknowledges the Juſtice of GOD, he ſubmits to his holy Will, and prays that the remaining Afflictions might be mix'd with Mercy, and made profitable to him, and ſo he prepares himſelf to (p) bear the indignation of the LORD, becauſe he had ſinned againſt him. GOD hears his Prayers, and gives him (q) another Son by Bathſheba, inſtead of that which he had taken away, whom he calls Solomon or peaceable, becauſe at this Time he had Peace abroad, and eſpecially GOD was at Peace with him, and he might hope that this Son might according to the (r) Promiſe reign over Iſrael in Peace. GOD ſent alſo by (s) Nathan the Prophet, and call'd him Jedidiah, or The beloved of the LORD. The Scripture never calls him by this Name, but always Solomon, which Name the People lov'd, becauſe he built the Houſe of the LORD in peaceable Times. And ſoon after this, (t) David had another Son by Bathſheba, whom he call'd Nathan, after the Name of the Prophet, thereby teſtifying his Belief of the Promiſe, which Nathan had told him, when he brought him good Tidings, and his Repentance for that Sin which Nathan reprov'd, when he denounc'd GOD's Judgments. Of theſe two CHRIST was born, tho' in different Lines; Joſeph, the ſuppos'd Father, came from Solomon, as (u) St. Matthew relates it; and Mary, the real Mother, came from Nathan, as (x) it is in St. Luke.

59. Soon after this, the Juſtice of GOD afflicts the Family of David for his Adultery with Bathſheba, and the Murder of Urijah. Amnon his (y) eldeſt Son, and born to him in Hebron immediately after the Death of Saul, falls in Love (z) with Tamar a Daughter of David by Maacah the Daughter of Talmai King of Geſhur, and a Siſter to Abſalom. Amnon by the ſubtle and wicked Advice of Jonadab his Friend, finds out a way to deflour Tamar, and hating her afterward, he turns her away in a publick and ſhameful Manner. Abſalom her Brother receives her into his Houſe, and entertains her very kindly, ſhewing not the leaſt Sign of Reſentment for the Injury, which made every one believe, that he took no Notice of it. After (a) two Years, he invites all his Brethren to a Sheep-ſhearing Feaſt, when his Servants by his Direction take an Opportunity to kill Amnon. Abſalom knowing that David would reſent this, becauſe Amnon was the Heir to the Crown, flees to his Grandfather Talmai to Geſhur. The Length of Time having worn out David's Grief, and Joab perceiving that the King deſir'd to ſee Abſalom again, if he could find out a handſom Excuſe for ſuch a Purpoſe, he at (b) the End of three Years perſuades an elderly Woman of Tekoah to feign a Speech, by which David might be work'd upon to recal Abſalom from his Baniſhment. Joab introduceth her in to the King, who manages the Affair ſo artfully, that the King gives Orders to Joab to bring Abſalom to Jeruſalem. However tho' the King would not have him die for the Murder, and admitted him to live in the ſame City, yet he thought it not for his Honour to ſhew himſelf fully reconcil'd, but forbad him his Preſence.

60. There is one Difficulty concerning the Weight of (c) Abſalom's Hair, which upon this Occaſion is mention'd to be two hundred ſhekels. To ſolve this ſome alledge, that long Hair was a very great Ornament in thoſe Times, and they had ſeveral Ointments, which made it grow large and thick, and added to the Weight. That the Beard muſt alſo be included. The learned (d) Bochart hath alſo prov'd, that theſe ſhekels according to the king's weight were but three Pound and two Ounces. However this is too much, eſpecially if he cut it every Year, as the Tranſlations of the Scripture, or every eight Months, as (e) Joſephus mentions. However (f) Joſephus informs us, that the noble Guard, which attended King Solomon, had long Hair blowing about their Shoulders, and that they ſcatter'd in their Hair ſeveral little Particles of Gold, which made the Hair ſhine and ſparkle by the Reflection of the Sun upon it. And therefore we may ſuppoſe, that Abſalom had not only ſuch Particles of Gold, but alſo many precious Stones about his Head, to make him look more graceful at this Time. But ſecondly, It doth not appear from the Hebrew Text, that Abſalom weigh'd his Hair ſo often, but only at this one particular Time when he return'd to Jeruſalem. When Abſalom fled two Years before this from Jeruſalem, he pretended to a great Sorrow for his Crime, the better to carry on his Deſigns, and therefore (g) ſeems to vow, that he would be a Nazarite till his Return, one of the Conditions whereof was, that (h) he ſhould not have his Hair cut; and now returning back, he orders it to be cut accordingly, which ſeems to be the Reaſon, that his Cutting of it is mention'd in this Place, and not at the Time of his Death, where otherwiſe it might have been more properly inſerted. And therefore the Text it ſelf may be thus paraphras'd. And when he cut the hair of his head, (i) for it was from the end of the days, that he went from Jeruſalem, to the day when he returned, that he weighed it, becauſe (k) it was troubleſome by its Hanging over him, therefore he ſhaved it, and he weighed the hair of his head two hundred ſhekels, with (or including) every one of (l) the kingly or precious Stones, that he wore at that Time. So that theſe might make up the greateſt Weight, and then there will be no Neceſſity to ſuppoſe it (m) much above the common Size, or that it might (n) have been painful.

61. At the End of two Years, Abſalom (o) with ſome Difficulty prevail'd upon Joab to introduce him to the King, and upon his Humbling of himſelf and Begging Pardon, the King took him up from the Ground and kiſſed him, as a Token of perfect Reconciliation. This was a Sign of David's Affection, tho' Abſalom was unnatural, and made an ill Uſe of it. For (p) he endeavours to raiſe a Rebellion, by Taking upon him a great State and a ſplendid Equipage, Being over courteous to every Body, Complaining of the King's male Adminiſtration, and Wiſhing that he was the King, with a Promiſe that in ſuch a Caſe it ſhould be otherwiſe. By ſuch Inſinuations as theſe he gain'd to himſelf the Affections of the People, and inſenſibly alienated them from David; and when he ſaw that Matters were ripe for his Purpoſe, he (q) deſires Leave of the King to go to Hebron, pretending that he had vow'd in his Exile, that if GOD would bring him back to Jeruſalem, he would return his Thanks in that Place by a ſolemn Sacrifice. The King not miſtruſting his Deſigns, and being willing that all religious Exerciſes ſhould be punctually perform'd, freely gives him Leave to go thither. Hebron was the Place of his own Birth, where the royal Seat had been in the Beginning of David's Reign, and therefore Abſalom thought this the fitteſt Place for his Purpoſe. But he (*) ſent Spies into all the Tribes to exhort them to take up Arms for him, as ſoon as they ſhould hear that he was proclaim'd in Hebron. This drew on a general Inſurrection, and David being well inform'd of what had happen'd, thought it not ſafe to tarry at Jeruſalem, but raiſes all the Forces that he could, and ſo retreats. Zadok and Abiathar bring him the Ark of GOD to accompany him in his Diſtreſs, but he deſires them to carry it back, and tarry in Jeruſalem to give him Intelligence. He goes to the Top of the Mount of Olivet with all the Tokens of Sorrow and Affliction, and when he was there he worſhips GOD looking toward the Ark in the Houſe of GOD, which he could ſee from the Top of the Mount. And here he compoſes the third Pſalm. He had been before told, that Ahitophel was one in Confederacy with Abſalom, and pray'd, that GOD would defeat his Devices; and now he complains ſadly of the Multitude of his Enemies, that were againſt him, and the Multitude of his falſe Friends, who dar'd not to appear for him; and ſo he propheſies of the End both of Abſalom and Ahitophel in as plain Terms as if they had already been dead. (r) Thou haſt ſmitten mine enemies upon the cheek bone, Ahitophel with the Knot of the Rope, and Abſalom with the Bough of an Oak, Thou haſt broken the teeth or Spears of the ungodly in the Wood, and ſo render'd them uſeleſs. Upon this Huſhai one of his privy Counſellers comes to him, whom he orders to return to Abſalom, and gives him Directions for that Purpoſe.

62. David had not gone far from (s) the Mount of Olivet, before Ziba the Servant of Mephiboſheth brings to him two Aſſes loaded with very acceptable Preſents in this Neceſſity. David inquiring after Mephiboſheth, is impos'd upon by a falſe Story, as if he was a Traitor; ſo that he gives away Mephiboſheth's Land to Ziba, when he had no Power to diſpoſe of his own. This was the only unjuſt Act that he had done to the Houſe of Saul, and this ſeems to provoke one of the ſame Family to vent his Rage againſt him. For when David (t) came near Bahurim, a City in (u) the Tribe of Benjamin, intending to ſtay there for farther Intelligence, Shimei the Son of Gera, who was of that Race, and dwelt in that Town, came out, flung Stones at him, and curs'd him with all the bitter Reproaches that could be thought of. And when Abiſhai offer'd to go and kill him, David would not ſuffer it, but behaves himſelf with admirable Patience and Reſignation to the Will of GOD. However he compoſeth the ſeventh Pſalm, and repeats it in this Extremity. He calls him (x) Cuſh the Benjamite, by way of Deriſion, as alluding to Kiſh the Father of Saul, but he turns it to Cuſh an (y) accurſed Name, and the Father of a Blackmoor Nation, like in Colour to Shimei's Actions. In this Pſalm he (z) teſtifies his Innocency, that if he had been ſuch a bloody Man to the Houſe of Saul, as (a) was repreſented to be, nay, if he (b) had not ſav'd Saul's Life twice, whilſt he perſecuted him without Cauſe, he ſhould deſire no Favour; but ſince it was otherwiſe, he foretels his own Deliverance, and the (c) Deſtruction of this his Enemy.

63. And now David being at Bahurim near Jordan, whither he and the People came, wearied with Labour and Grief, and (d) having refreſh'd himſelf, he ſtays there for ſome Time, ſo that at the firſt Apprehenſion of Danger he might paſs over the Water and be gone. Here he pens (e) the forty ſecond and forty third Pſalms, in which he laments his neceſſary Abſence from the Sanctuary of GOD, and prays for the Liberty of going thither again. Thus (f) from the Land of Jordan he remembers the LORD; and his Looking on the Waters brings to Mind his own Miſery. There he obſerves the Waves rolling upon the Neck of one another, and the Deep making a Noiſe here and there in its Channels, and in its Falls. And (g) ſo (ſaith he) all thy billows and all thy waves tumble over me one after another. However (h) he ſtill comforts himſelf that it will be better. Abſalom is now come to Jeruſalem, where (i) he takes Poſſeſion of the King's Palace, and Huſhai comes to meet him, and deceives him with the utmoſt Aſſurances of Fidelity. Abſalom deſires the Advice of Ahitophel, who perſuades him to place a Tent on the Top of the Palace, and to lie publickly with his Father's Concubines, whom (k) he left behind him. By this inceſtuous Act (l) the Propheſy of Nathan was fulfill'd, tho' Ahitophel counſell'd him upon this View, that (m) his Soldiers might ſee, that there could be no Reconciliation, and therefore fight more deſparately to ſecure him in the Poſſeſſion of the Crown. This Counſel being follow'd, Ahitophel perſuades Abſalom (n) to give him the Command of twelve thouſand Men, with which he promiſes to ſurprize David, and kill him, which he might eaſily have done, if (as (o) Joſephus ſaith) his Army conſiſted only of four thouſand. This was approv'd of at firſt, but Abſalom deſires the Advice of Huſhai, who reſolv'd before to thwart with him, and tells him, that they would be much more ſure of Succeſs, if they march'd with the whole

Army, and himſelf at the Head of them. The Generals now approve of the Counſel of Huſhai as better than that of Ahitophel, and Huſhai ſends Ahimaaz and Jonathan the Sons of Zadok and Abiathar the Prieſt to David, to give him an Account of both, and to adviſe him to go over Jordan, leſt Abſalom ſhould alter his Mind, and fall upon them on a ſudden. Upon the Hearing of this, David compoſeth the fifty fifth Pſalm, in which (p) he laments his Miſery, occaſion'd by one of his Guides, Acquaintance and Privy Counſellers, and prays, that (q) Death may ſuddenly come upon him, which happen'd accordingly. For (r) David immediately paſs'd over Jordan. And when Ahitophel heard that David was out of Danger, he knew that his former as well as this laſt Advice muſt make David hate him, and that Delays would be the Ruin of Abſalom, and that he might be put to Death with the moſt exquiſite Torments; ſo that rather than be in Diſgrace with both, his Pride made him be his own Excecutioner. David being now beyond Jordan, had an Opportunity to raiſe more Forces in a quiet Country, and his Friends brought him in Proviſion, ſo that they were in good Heart, and deſir'd to put an End to the War by a general Battle. David was very deſirous to go himſelf in Perſon to this Battle, thinking that his former Obligation to the contrary related only to foreign Enemies. But his Generals would not ſuffer it: concluding that the Reaſon of it was ſtill the ſame or greater. The Deſign of his rebellious Subjects was only againſt his Life, and he was perſonally known to them more than to Strangers. Upon this he ſubmitted to their Opinion, and retreated into the City. And now Policy was neceſſary in this Engagement. For this Purpoſe (s) David divided his Men into three Bodies, under the Command of three Generals, who hearing that Abſalom was come over Jordan, and in his March toward them was coming thro' the Wood of Ephraim, reſolv'd to fight them in that Wood, where the Enemy might not diſcern their Numbers, where (t) their Spears were uſeleſs, where they could not engage but with equal Numbers, and Joab's Men being old experienc'd Soldiers, were ſure of Succeſs, againſt a raw undiſciplin'd Army; and in this Caſe the Front running away, eſpecially if attack'd in three Places at once, would terrify all the reſt. This happen'd according to their Deſire, and tho' in the Purſuit there were (u) Skirmiſhes in ſeveral Parts of the Country, yet there were more killed in the Woods than in the Plain. For Joab would not truſt his Men in the open Country, leſt the Enemy ſeeing how few they were might rally again, and over-power them with their Numbers. And it is probable alſo, that in this Confuſion Abſalom's Men might, by Miſtake, kill one another. Abſalom flying upon a Mule, one of the ſwifteſt of Beaſts, to ſave his Life, his Head was caught between two Boughs of an Oak, where he hung, having nothing to ſupport him, and his Senſes were ſo diſorder'd, and his Neck ſo wedg'd in between the Boughs, that he was not able to get himſelf at Liberty. Joab hearing of this, goes to the Place, and with ſome of his ſelect Men kills Abſalom in this Poſture. The Reaſon was, becauſe Joab thought himſelf not ſafe, as long as Abſalom liv'd. For ſome unquiet People, who were deeply engag'd in this Rebellion, might ſet him on the Throne by raiſing new Diſturbances, or David being old might ſoon die, and Abſalom in Courſe muſt ſucceed him, and then Joab muſt have been in Diſgrace, if he could have eſcap'd with his Life. Upon this Joab orders all his Soldiers to retreat, and ſent two Expreſſes to give the King an Account of it. The King was extremely (x) concern'd at the Death of his Son, who did not deſerve to live; which ſo diſhearten'd the whole Army, that they (y) were ready to revolt, to any one who would head them. Upon this Joab comes to the King, and uſes many harſh Expreſſions, which did not at all become a Subject, telling him in plain Terms, that (z) he loved his enemies, and hated his friends, and threatning that they would all forſake him, if he did not appear among them. The King was forc'd to comply, but reſented it ſo, that he intended to take the firſt Opportunity of Diſmiſſing Joab from being his General; and perceiving the Zeal of the Iſraelites, and eſpecially the Tribe of Judah for his Return, he ſends to Amaſa, the General of Abſalom's Forces, and one who had a great Intereſt in them, and tells him, that if he would (a) be faithful unto him at this Time, he ſhould have the Command of the Army as long as he liv'd. As ſoon as David (b) came back over Jordan, Shimei came to meet him, and crave Pardon, with a thouſand Men of his own Tribe, to ſhew by his Example what the reſt ſhould do, and that all Iſrael might ſee in him an eminent Inſtance either of David's Clemency or Severity, and behave themſelves accordingly. David well knew the Conſequence of this, and therefore when Abiſhai, and perhaps Joab joining with him, perſuaded David, that they might kill him; he (c) looks upon them as his Enemies in this, he declares a general Pardon, and that ſuch an univerſal Joy ſhould not be mix'd with Sorrow, and particularly that Shimei, however guilty, ſhould not be put to Death for any paſt Offences.

64. David (d) now intending to requite Barzillai's Kindneſs, deſires him to go along with him to Jeruſalem, where he ſhould be entertain'd at his Table, as his particular Friend; Barzillai deſires to be excus'd upon the Account of his great Age, but gives Liberty for his Son Chimham to go with him. The King agrees to that, and promiſes the good old Man, that he ſhould be kindly us'd, and whatever he ſhould ask ſhould be done for him. Barzillai asks for nothing but his own Quiet, and what David did for Chimham is uncertain: But as he had a Patrimony in Bethlehem, which was the Place of his Nativity; ſo (e) it is very probable, that he gave a Part of it to Chimham and his Heirs for ever; and that this was afterward call'd, The habitation of Chimham in the Days of Jeremiah.

65. When David (f) was paſs'd over Jordan, he was willing to make all poſſible Haſte to come to Jeruſalem; and the Tribe of Judah, his own Tribe, coming firſt to meet him, he to gratify them march'd on, not expecting the great Men of Iſrael, who were making ready in all Parts to wait upon him. The other Tribes reſented this as a Slight to them, who were as zealous for the King's Welfare as the reſt. This occaſion'd hot Words between them, and the Tribe of Judah was the hotteſt of the two. David was afraid of diſpleaſing either Party, and therefore did not intermeddle, which made the Men of Iſrael think, that he favour'd Judah, and was the Cauſe of a freſh Diſturbance ſoon after. However when David came to Jeruſalem, he purgeth and dedicateth his Houſe to the Service of GOD, which had been before polluted by Abſalom, and pens the thirtieth Pſalm on this Occaſion, in which he praiſeth GOD for his own Deliverance, and exhorts others to praiſe him from his Example.

66. When King David (g) came to Jeruſalem, Mephiboſheth came to him, as Shimei had done before; David ſeem'd to be angry, that he had not gone with him at firſt. Mephiboſheth tells David, how Ziba had impos'd upon him, that his Will was not equal to his Power, and that Ziba had rais'd falſe Accuſations againſt him. However he readily ſubmitted to the Sentence of Giving away his Land, and deſir'd no more than the King's Proſperity, and to be in his Favour as before. Ziba was not able to make any Excuſe, and David was ſo well ſatisfy'd in Mephiboſheth's Sincerity, and the Injury done him in his Eſtate, that (h) he could not endure to hear any more about it, but confirms his firſt Grant, that (i) Mephiboſheth ſhould have the whole Eſtate, and Ziba ſhould manure it for him, with a little Variation, to ſhew his Gratitude to Ziba, for (k) Bringing him ſuch acceptable Preſents in his Neceſſity. I have ſaid, or I have determin'd this already, or My firſt Grant ſhall ſtand: Only thou and Zibah divide one (l) Field, and let him take half. Mephiboſheth readily conſents that he ſhould take the whole Field, and ſo that Matter was adjuſted to the Satisfaction of all Parties.

67. But when the Contention happen'd between Iſrael and Judah, Sheba (m) a Benjamite, and very probably near of kin to Saul, ſets up for himſelf. He publickly declares, that the Tribe of Judah might have David for themſelves; and as he did not care for them, ſo they needed not to care for him. He alſo exhorts every Man by the Sound of the Trumpet to ſtand to their Arms, and take him for their General. This occaſions a new Inſurrection. David reſolving to lay Joab aſide, ſpeaks to Amaſa, according to his Promiſe, to Command the Army. By this the Men of Judah might ſee, that they might depend on the King's Word, and the Men of Iſrael might the ſooner be brought to Reaſon, when they ſaw their old General in the Field againſt them. The Army having a high Opinion of Joab, could not eaſily be brought together, ſo that Amaſa found more Difficulty in the Execution of his Truſt, than was expected. David being ſenſible of this, and yet willing to ſuppreſs Joab, orders Abiſhai his Brother, who was the next Commander in the Army, to take the Forces that were ready, and purſue after Sheba, until Amaſa could join them. Amaſa comes up to them at the great Stone in Gibeon, which was (n) forty Furlongs diſtant from Jeruſalem, and takes upon him the Command of the Army. Joab being preſent with his Brother, and not able to endure this, goes to Amaſa as a Friend, and treacherouſly kills him, and immediately proclaims himſelf the General of the Army. Sheba rambles about the Country from one City to another, to perſuade them to take up Arms againſt David, and Joab follows him to diſappoint his Deſigns. At laſt being driven into the fartheſt Part of Iſrael, he gets into Abel, a fortify'd Town in the Tribe of Naphthali, and the northern Parts of Judea; ſo that this was his laſt Refuge. His little Army was ſtrong enough to ſecure the City, tho' he had many Enemies there, and therefore Joab was under a Neceſſity of beſieging it. When the Siege was carry'd on ſo far, that Joab's Army had fill'd up the Trench, and ſtood at the Bottom of the Wall to batter it, and to throw it down; a Woman from the Wall treats with Joab about Terms. She tells him, that (o) at the Beginning of the Siege the People of Abel talk'd one to another in this Manner, 'Surely they will ask of 'us, if we will have Peace, and ſo we ſhall 'ſoon come to an Agreement, and make an 'End.' By this ſhe ſecretly remembers him of (p) a Rule in the Law, which commanded them to offer Peace to other Nations, when they came to beſiege them, and therefore much more to one of their own Cities. She declares her ſelf a true Friend to David, and that he had many more in the City, and therefore the Deſtroying of it would be an Injury to the Publick. Joab declares, that he had no Intention to deſtroy more than was neceſſary, and therefore if Sheba was deliver'd up, the reſt ſhould be ſafe. The Woman perſuades the Inhabitants to cut off his Head, and throw it over the Wall to Joab. Upon this he raiſes the Siege, and leaves every one at Liberty to go home without any Puniſhment. This was the laſt War in which David was engag'd; and after this he ſpent the reſt of his Days in Peace. So that now he compoſeth the fourth Pſalm, in which he checks the People for (q) Deſpiſing his Kingdom, and Hearkning after another, that was but Vanity and Lyes, as Abſalom's was at firſt, and Sheba's afterward. He (r) adviſeth the Children of Iſrael and Judah not to carry their Reſentments too far; but (s) tho' they were angry at one another, yet they ſhould not ſin, but (t) lay aſide this Paſſion before they ſlept. He profeſſeth, that (u) ſince the Time that his Corn and Wine and other Proviſion increas'd in his Camp, as (x) being brought to him by his Friends, his Heart had receiv'd a comfortable Confidence and Aſſurance of his being reſtor'd, and therefore he would ſtill depend on that Goodneſs and Providence, which had deliver'd him out of theſe Troubles, and wrought theſe good Beginnings for him.

68. The Year (y) after this the Harveſt failing, a Famine began in the Land, which laſted three Years. David ſuſpecting that GOD might ſtill puniſh him for thoſe Sins, which he committed in the Matter of Vrijah, inquires for what Sin ſo grievous a Puniſhment was inflicted. GOD ſoon comforts him, by letting him know, that it was upon the Account of Saul and his Family, becauſe they had ſlain the Gibeonites, at the Time when he kill'd the Prieſts at Nob. The Gibeonites being Drawers of Water, GOD puts the Iſraelites in Mind of their Offence by Withholding of Rain. David conſults the Gibeonites, and ſo they agree to hang ſeven of the Poſterity of Saul to atone for this Offence. It was a poſitive Law (z) given to to the Iſraelites, that if any Man was hang'd, he ſhould be bury'd before Night, but the Gibeonites being not of that Nation, thought themſelves not oblig'd to that Law, but expos'd their Bodies for a longer Time. This Execution was done in the (a) Beginning of Barley Harveſt, which happen'd immediately after the Paſſover, and was the third Year of the Famine. The Gibeonites intended to keep them hung up in this Manner until GOD ſhould ſend Rain, which Rizpah the Concubine of Saul, and Mother to two of thoſe who were hang'd being inform'd of, ſhe took Sackcloth, and made a Tent of it to dwell in, and ſpread ſome of it upon a Rock for her to lie upon near the Place; and having Servants to attend her, kept a conſtant Watch Day and Night to fright away the Birds and Beaſts from Offering any Injury to the dead Bodies, until GOD ſhould ſend them Rain, for Want of which they ſuffer'd by Famine. It is ſuppos'd, that not long after they had plentiful Showers of Rain, by which it appear'd, that GOD was appeas'd, and ſo Rizpah had the Liberty to take down the Bodies, and give them an honourable Interment. This noble Act of hers being told to David, he was mov'd thereby to take up the Bones of Saul and Jonathan his Son, who (b) had been bury'd five and thirty Years before, under a Tree at Jabeſh-gilead, and bury them alſo with their Anceſtors. And upon this GOD ſends Plenty together with Peace to the Country, and David ſolemnly repeats once more the (c) eighteenth Pſalm, which he had formerly penn'd, and frequently us'd before as a grateful Thankſgiving to GOD for all his Mercies.

that this Judgment might appear to be for their Sin, he (e) permitted David by the Inſtigation of the Devil, to fall into a leſs Sin, which might juſtly be attended with a leſs Calamity, and ſo reſtrain the People from Running into a greater. Now therefore David (as (f) Joſephus ſaith) reſolves upon Taking an Account, how many thouſand Men he could muſter out of all the People of Iſrael, forgetting the (g) Precept of Moſes, that as often as there ſhould be an Occaſion to number the People, there ſhould be an Obligation of half a Shekel for every Head to the LORD. Thus he ſeems to depart alſo from Truſting in GOD, who had ſo often deliver'd him, and to depend on Man, who without GOD's Aſſiſtance could do nothing. Dr. Lightfoot ſaith, that (h) David was now given up to a covetous Thought to number the People, that he might lay a Tax upon every Head. David orders Joab for this Purpoſe. Joab endeavours to excuſe himſelf, till David poſitively commands him to go about it; and ſo he ſpends nine Months and twenty Days, or all the Time in (i) the Year following the Famine, which was fit for this Expedition. Joab brings in the Number to the King. The Number of all Iſrael in (k) the Book of Chronicles were eleven hundred thouſand Men, and the Book of (l) Samuel ſaith, that they were only eight hundred thouſand; ſo that here are three hundred thouſand Difference. On the other Hand, the Book of (m) Samuel ſaith, that the Men of Judah were five hundred thouſand, and the Book of (n) Chronicles ſaith, that they were only four hundred and ſeventy thouſand; ſo that here alſo is thirty thouſand Difference. For the Reconciling of this great and double Diverſity, it is to be obſerv'd, that (o) there were four and twenty thouſand Soldiers and Officers, that attended David monthly, ſo many every Month, and theſe make in all two hundred and eighty eight thouſand. Theſe were like a ſtanding Guard about the King every Month, and ready for any ſudden Expedition. There were beſides theſe the Rulers of the Tribes, and the Officers under them, and therefore allowing a thouſand Officers to every twenty four thouſand (as we cannot well allow leſs) there will be the twelve thouſand wanting, which added to the two hundred eighty and eight thouſand, make juſt three hundred thouſand, and theſe were not (p) put into the Account in Samuel. Thus in the Tribe of Judah, if twenty four thouſand legionary Soldiers, and a thouſand Officers over them, be added to the four hundred and ſeventy thouſand, there will be but five thouſand wanting in the Number, and as this was David's own Tribe, and a Tribe which was faithful to him in all Difficulties and Troubles, it is no Wonder, if ſo many of them were employ'd in ſome other extraordinary Offices. Theſe Joab put not in the Account, becauſe their Number and Liſt had been long known, and becauſe (q) the King would not put a Tax upon his own Servants.

70. Among all this Number (r) Levi and Benjamin were not reckon'd. For Joab began fartheſt off firſt, and before (s) he came home to reckon them up, the Plague began among the People, and GOD cuts many of them off, whom David had made his Pride, and of whom it is probable, that he intended to make an Advantage. The Year was now juſt expiring, and Gad comes (t) on a particular Morning to David, to bring his Sin to his Remembrance, and offer him three Puniſhments for the ſame, leaving him to chooſe which he thinks fit. The Words of Gad are (u) theſe, Thus ſaith the LORD, Chooſe thee either three years famine, or three months to be deſtroy'd before thy enemies, or elſe three days the ſword of the LORD even the peſtilence in the land, and the angel of the LORD deſtroying throughout the coaſt of Iſrael. Thus the Years, the Months, and the Days agree in the Number three. In (x) the Book of Samuel it is ſaid to be ſeven Years of Famine, which could not begin from this Time, becauſe David did not live

ſo long after. And no Part of that could be a Puniſhment to him, which was to happen after his Deceaſe. So that this Variety is of good Uſe to fix the Year, in which this Numbring of the People happen'd. There had been already (y) three Years Famine for the Gibeonites, and this Year of Numbering the People was almoſt ended; and therefore the Queſtion was, Shall three Years of Famine come, to begin with the following Year, and ſo to be added to the three Years already paſt, and the preſent Year, and make up the Number ſeven in all. Anno Mundi 2986. David anſwers, I am in a great ſtraight. Let me fall into the hands of the LORD (for his mercies are great) but let me not fall into the hands of men. Thus he ſubmits to the Will of GOD in this Caſe, but ſeems to chooſe the Peſtilence rather than either of the other two. Accordingly GOD ſends a Peſtilence throughout the whole Kingdom, beginning in the Morning when David had conſented to it, and in the (z) extremeſt Parts of the Kingdom, ſtill making its Approaches nearer to Jeruſalem. The King and the Inhabitants of this City hearing of it, (a) clothed themſelves with Sackcloth, and cry'd to GOD with all Humility for Mercy. A little before the Offering up of (b) the evening Sacrifice, or the Time of evening Prayer being the ninth Hour of the Day, there appears an Angel in the Air over Jeruſalem with a drawn Sword in his Hand, as ready to deſtroy it. David upon this (c) cries for Mercy for the People, tho' Vengeance did light upon himſelf, and immediately departs, as (d) being afraid of ſome heavy Stroke. Upon this the Angel (e) commands Gad to direct David to go up and immediately build an Altar to the LORD in the threſhing Floor of Araunah the Jebuſite. This (f) happen'd to be on the Top of Mount Moriah near Jeruſalem, which Name ſignifies The LORD is my Teacher. It was the Place, where (g) Abraham intended to offer up his Son Iſaac on the Altar, and ſo conſecrated by the Father of this Nation for the Worſhip of GOD, and approv'd of by him from the Beginning. This Place David purchaſeth of Araunah in two ſeveral Parcels and for two ſeveral Sums. The very (h) Floor, and the Oxen, and Materials for Sacrifice, David bought of Araunah for (i) fifty Shekels of Silver, which was a very moderate Price, becauſe Araunah intended to have given it to him for nothing, and his (k) Liberality on this Occaſion is particularly taken Notice of. But the whole Circumference of the Top of the Mount, which was a very large Compaſs, and on which the Temple was afterward built, coſt him (l) ſix hundred Shekels of Gold, which was ſo conſiderable a Sum, that it probably purchaſed the whole Mountain. After this David having built an Altar here, about (m) the Time of the evening Sacrifice, he offer'd Burnt-offerings and Peace-offerings, and GOD, to ſhew his Approbation thereof, anſwer'd him from Heaven by Fire upon the Altar, and immediately commanded the Angel to put up his Sword into the Sheath thereof, and ſo the Plague ceaſed; and David knew, by this remarkable Providence, in general the Place, where the Temple ſhould be built, and in particular where the Altar was to be erected.

71. It is very probable, that at this Time GOD reveal'd to David the (n) exact Frame and Faſhion of the Temple, with all its Materials and Utenſils, and what Quantity ſhould be ſufficient for the Making of them; and that this was the Reaſon, that he purchas'd not only the threſhing Floor, on which he might build the Altar, but alſo the Top of the whole Mount for the Ground Plot of the Temple. He ſeems alſo to be completely qualify'd either for Projecting the whole Fabrick himſelf, or for directing another Perſon to project the ſame, which he afterward gave to Solomon as a Pattern for him to build by; ſo that he now ſeems to ſpend his whole Time in Providing whatever was neceſſary for this Purpoſe, and Sorting it out accordingly, and alſo in Settling the Number and the Method of the Officers, which were to attend upon it, and the Manner of the daily Service. Having provided Materials, he ſeems to be taken either with (o) a dead Palſy, or ſome other Diſtemper, which threaten'd his Life; for (p) his Blood was ſo chill'd, that he could not be warm in his Bed, much leſs when he was up. a great Feaſt near (s) Jeruſalem, at which Time they proclaim Adonijah King in the Room of his Father. Nathan the Prophet had before (t) told the King, that Solomon the Son of Bathſheba ſhould reign after him, and (u) the King had declar'd it ſolemnly to Bathſheba, but with ſuch Secrecy, that even (x) Nathan the Prophet knew nothing of it. Nathan acquaints Bathſheba, with what had happen'd, adviſing her to preſs the King to declare Solomon his Succeſſor, ſince things were come to that Extremity, that without it (y) all their Lives muſt be in Danger. Bathſheba preſſes the King for this Purpoſe, and Nathan ſeconds her. Upon this the King declares that Solomon ſhould ſucceed him, and order'd him to be anointed in ſuch a publick Manner, and with ſuch Ceremonies, as might ſhew his intire Approbation of it. Adonijah and his Gueſts hearing this roſe from Table, where they were ſitting, in a great Hurry, fearing to be ſurpriz'd, and cut off on a ſudden; ſo that the whole Contrivance was ſuppreſs'd for the preſent.

72. The Princes of the People (z) coming to congratulate King David on this Occaſion, and Solomon (a) being ſeated on the Throne, David (b) bleſſeth GOD for ſo great a Mercy, and takes the Opportunity to (c) inſtruct Solomon in the Promiſes, and in his Duty to build a Temple for GOD to reſide in, and (d) charges the Princes of the People to aſſiſt him therein. It is now very probable, that being in Peace and Plenty, he compos'd all the other Pſalms, which are ſaid to be made by him, and perhaps ſeveral others, which have no Name annex'd to them. However having that emergent Occaſion by Adonijah's Conſpiracy to anoint Solomon haſtily and privately, he afterward intends a more ſolemn and publick Coronation of him, and therefore (e) he calls together all the Heads and Rulers of the People to conſult about it. And as at the firſt Forming of the Iſraelites into a Commonwealth in the Wilderneſs they were number'd, the Levites were appointed for divine Service, and Directions were given to provide for the Building of the Sanctuary; ſo David takes the ſame Method. Firſt, he numbers (f) the Levites, and gives them final Directions concerning their Offices, and how they were to attend on the Service of the Temple. Then he (g) divides the Sons of Aaron into four and twenty Courſes, that one in each of theſe Courſes, according as (h) he was choſen by Lot, ſhould officiate a Week at a Time, and twice in a Year, under the Inſpection of the High Prieſt, who was to take Care, that this Order ſhould be obſerv'd in the Manner as it was preſcrib'd, none of them to anticipate their Courſe, but all to wait till their Time came. Thus every Courſe began on one Sabbath, and went out upon the next, before the Burning of the Incenſe at the morning Sacrifice, when the Shewbread was ſet upon the Table. The eighth of theſe Courſes was call'd (i) the Courſe of Abijah, in which Courſe Zecharias the Prieſt officiated, when the Angel (k) appear'd to him, and brought him the News of the Conception of St. John the Baptiſt. Theſe being ſettl'd, he (l) takes the Number and Offices of the Singers, and divides them alſo into four and twenty Courſes, each Courſe to ſerve a Week like the Prieſts, (m) twelve at a Time, ſo that they made (n) two hundred eighty eight in all. David having now (o) deliver'd the Pſalms, which he had compos'd, into the Hand of Aſaph and the reſt of the principal Singers, to be us'd as Occaſion did require, they were ſtirr'd up to imitate ſo noble an Example, and to compoſe ſeveral others. The Principal of theſe was (p) Aſaph, with (q) whoſe Words it is recorded, as well as with the Words of David, that the people ſang praiſes unto the LORD with gladneſs. He therefore may well be ſuppos'd to be the Author of (r) thoſe eleven Pſalms, which carry his Name in the Title. The ſecond was (s) Heman the Ezrahite, who was remarkably (t) famous for his Wiſdom, the (u) Grandchild of Samuel and a Prophet. One (x) Pſalm is expreſly aſcrib'd to him, and as (y) he was of the Stock and Line of Korah, ſo we may aſcribe (z) thoſe Pſalms to him, which are intitl'd, a Pſalm for the Sons of Korah. The next is (a) Jeduthun, who was the Author of (b) three Pſalms; and the other (c) is Ethan the Ezrahite, who (d) was a Levite of the Poſterity of Merari, and the Author of (e) a Pſalm which particularly makes (f) Mention of David, tho (g) it ſeems to have been penn'd, when (h) the Iſraelites revolted in the Reign of Rehoboam, and when the Author thereof muſt be of a very great Age.

73. Theſe being ſettl'd, and David (i) entring into the laſt Year of his Age, he now applies himſelf to ſettle the civil Affairs. And firſt he ſettles the (k) Judges, Magiſtrates and all inferior Officers, whoſe Buſineſs it was to puniſh all ſuch as did evil, and keep others to their Duty. Then he ſettles the (l) military Affairs, particularly the twelve Captains for every Month, with their Legions to attend on the King in their Turns; then (m) the Princes of the twelve Tribes, and afterward (n) ſeveral other Officers. When all things were thus ſettl'd, David ſummons together the Princes, Captains, Officers and Soldiers; and being now recover'd from his former Illneſs, he (o) ſtands upon his Feet, and in a ſolemn Oration, puts them in Mind of GOD's Goodneſs and Favour to him, and the Promiſe that Solomon ſhould ſucceed him; and therefore he exhorts them to ſerve GOD, and adviſe his Son to do the ſame, with the Promiſe of GOD's Favour if he did, and Threatnings of his Diſpleaſure if he did not. After this he encourageth his Son Solomon to build the Temple, and (p) gives him the Patterns which he had receiv'd, and the Gold and Silver and other Materials which he had prepar'd for this Purpoſe. After this, (q) by his Example and Perſuaſion, he prevail'd with the Princes and People to add ſomething of their own for the Building of this Temple, and when he found himſelf ſucceſsful herein, he concludes with a ſolemn Thankſgiving to GOD, and a Prayer, that he would enable Solomon to perfect what he had thus begun and intended. David now finding that he had no more to do in this World, and perceiving his Death to be near, appoints Solomon to act under him in all his Affairs as Regent, that ſo he might put an End to all Diſputes after his Deceaſe. Upon this there was a (r) ſolemn Sacrifice, and a very great Rejoicing of the People, and they made Solomon king the ſecond time, and anointed him in a ſolemn Manner, and agreed, that Zadok ſhould be the High Prieſt, in the Room of Abiathar, who had (s) publickly eſpous'd the Intereſt of Adonijah againſt him, and after this he ſat on the Throne in his Father's Life-time, and all the People ſubmitted themſelves to him. That which encourageth David and Solomon to diſplace Abiathar from the Office of High Prieſt, was the Propheſy of Samuel (t) againſt the Houſe of Eli, that GOD would cut off his arm, and the arm of his fathers houſe. That he who ſhould not be deſtroy'd, ſhould ſee the High Prieſthood taken from the Family, and thoſe who belong'd to it reduc'd to great Poverty. That there ſhould be (u) another in his Place, and (x) that they ſhould beg of him the meaneſt Penſion which was allow'd to thoſe Prieſts, who were to officiate, only to ſupply their Neceſſity. And thus (y) was the High Prieſthood remov'd again out of the Family of Ithamar, and tranſlated into that of Eleazar the other Son of Aaron. And David finding (z) a very ſenſible Decay, gives Solomon his laſt Exhortation to conform his Life to the Law of GOD, to put (a) Joab to Death for the Murders, which he had been guilty of; to (b) ſhew Kindneſs to the Sons of Barzillai; and tho' (c) he did not put Shimei to Death for his paſt Offences, yet whenever he ſhould again be guilty, that he ſhould have no Favour; and ſo (d) he dies, leaving Solomon in the peaceable and quiet Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom, who was now nineteen Years of Age, and therefore he is ſaid to be (e) young and tender, and he (f) calls himſelf a little child, in Compariſon of the great Truſt and Work which he had undertaken; tho' it is certain, that as he reign'd (g) but forty Years in all, ſo he was (h) the Father of Rehoboam the Year before, and therefore he muſt be more than ten Years of Age at this Time, as (i) ſome have imagin'd.

74. It is obſervable, that (k) when David prepar'd for the Building of the Temple, he ſet the Proſelytes or converted Gentiles at Work, to prepare and hew the Stones for it. This makes it an apter Type of the ſpiritual Temple, to be gather'd out of (l) all Nations under the Goſpel, and of which (m) the Prophet Iſaiah ſaith, The ſons of ſtrangers ſhall build up thy walls, and their kings ſhall miniſter unto thee: for in my wrath I ſmote thee, but in my favour had I mercy on thee. Therefore thy gates ſhall be open continually, they ſhall not be ſhut day nor night, that men may bring unto thee the forces of the Gentiles. For the nation and kingdom that will not ſerve thee, ſhall periſh; yea, thoſe nations ſhall be utterly waſted.

75. But

75. But the moſt ſurprizing of all is the vaſt Quantity of Materials, which David heap'd up together for this Purpoſe, in the thirty laſt Years of his Reign, or from the Time when (n) Nathan told him, that his Son Solomon ſhould build this Temple. He tells us, that (o) in his trouble he had prepar'd for the Houſe of the LORD an hundred thouſand talents of gold, and a thouſand thouſand talents of ſilver, and of braſs and iron without weight (for it was in abundance, timber alſo and ſtone he prepar'd) and he ſaid that Solomon (if Occaſion requir'd) might add thereto. To this he alſo added (p) three thouſand talents of gold of the gold of Ophir, and ſeven thouſand talents of refin'd ſilver, to overlay the walls of the houſes: And (q) the Princes and People encourag'd by his Example, gave of gold five thouſand talents and ten thouſand drachms, and of ſilver ten thouſand talents, and of braſs eighteen thouſand talents, and an hundred thouſand talents of iron; all which put together is (r) a moſt incredible Quantity. For the Raiſing of this Sum, it muſt be conſider'd, that David had (s) great Preſents of Veſſels of Silver, and Gold, and Braſs, beſides what (t) he had from all the Nations, which he conquer'd, particularly from Syria, from Moab, from the Ammonites, from the Philiſtines, from the Amalekites, and from the Spoil of Hadadezer Son of Rehab King of Zobah, all which he dedicated to the Treaſury for this Uſe. After that he took (u) Rabbah the Royal City, from whence he brought forth the Spoil in great Abundance; and beſide what he might raiſe from his own Subjects, all the Kings of the Eaſt, whom he thus conquer'd were Tributaries to him, and north and ſouth, from Sihor the River of Egypt thro' all the Land of Hamah, and ſo forward as far as the River Euphrates. Beſides, he had always accuſtom'd himſelf to (x) a very poor frugal Way of Living, that ſo he might ſave up as much as poſſible for this Purpoſe. But all this is far ſhort of a ſatisfactory Account. The Weight of a Talent was three thouſand Shekels. For when the Tabernacle was built, there were (y) 603550 Men, who offer'd half a Shekel each for the Uſe thereof, which was in all 301775 Shekels, and this is expreſly ſaid (z) to be an hundred Talents, and 1775 Shekels. Now no Number but 3000 will by Dividing 301775 produce 100, and leave 1775, for its Remainder. And Joſephus (a) tells us, that a Shekel contain'd four Attick Drachms, or the Weight of half an Ounce of Silver, which in our Money wants not much of half a Crown, and we may ſo reckon it without a ſenſible Difference, and therefore (b) a Talent, or 3000 Shekels, weigh'd 125 Pounds, which at 5 Shillings to the Ounce, and twelve Ounces to the Pound, was worth in Silver 375 Pounds; and if we (c) reckon Gold at 16 Times as much, or at 4 Pound for each Ounce, each Talent of Gold will be worth 6000 Pounds. According to this Account the Gold alone, which David gave at both Times, and the People added to it, will (d) amount to 648 Millions of our Sterling Money. To abate ſomething of the Value, it may be conſider'd that the Shekel, and conſequently the Talent was of two Sorts, either the King's Weight, which was of common Uſe in Buying and Selling, and was but half the Weight of the other, which belong'd to the Sanctuary, and therefore in this Place the common Talent muſt be meant, which weigh'd ſixty two Pounds and an half. Theſe were the Talents, which Gehazi (e) receiv'd of Naaman, when he bound two talents of ſilver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his ſervants, and they bear them before him. For a Talent of 125 Pound Weight, with a Change of Garments, would have been too heavy for one Man to have carry'd to any Diſtance. However the Sum will ſtill be too large, for according to this Computation it will amount to 324 Millions of Sterling Money in Gold. We muſt therefore have Recourſe to another Diſtinction, which is, that theſe Metals were of two Sorts, either in the Oar, or what they call'd pure or refin'd, ſo that wherever one of theſe Words is not added, the Metal as it is in the Oar is only meant. Thus David gave (f) 7000 Talents of refin'd Silver for the Uſe of the Temple, which Expreſſion not being us'd of any of the reſt, ſhews that it was, as it came out of the Earth. Thus it is ſaid (g) of the

Land

Land of Havilah, that there was Gold, or Golden Oar, and ſuch (h) the Navy of Solomon brought from Ophir. Such there was in thoſe Countries and in thoſe Days, tho' a long Demand thereof into all Parts of the World hath carryd off all the Oar, ſo that now there is only the Duſt remaining. This was refin'd, not in the Country where it was digg'd, but in the Country to which it was carry'd; and therefore we hear ſo much of (i) caſting Silver, (k) refin'd Silver, (l) the molten Calf, and (m) molten Images, whilſt the Iſraelites were in the Wilderneſs, and (n) the fining Pot for Silver, and the Furnace for Gold, and of (o) pure Gold, and (p) fine Gold at this Time, and in the Days of Solomon, and (q) of Caſting Braſs, and conſequently other Metals in the Clay-Ground for the Uſe of the Temple. The Difficulty is therefore what Abatement to make for the Refining the Gold and Silver from the Oar. Of this there is no Certainty, becauſe ſome Lumps may be better than others, not only in different Countries but even in the ſame; the Mines which are neareſt to the Surface the Earth, being richer than the reſt. However (r) there is one Text, by which we may give a Gueſs how to compute it, The words of the LORD are pure words: as ſilver tried in a furnace of earth, purified ſeven times. It may be doubted, whether the Word ſeven times is a juſt Tranſlation, ſince it is well known, that one Refining of Gold or Silver is as effectual as a thouſand. The Hebrew Word is only us'd (s) once more in the whole Book of Pſalms, where (t) the Chaldee Paraphraſe renders it One for ſeven, or One Part for ſeven; and if this is allow'd to be a juſt Proportion, the other Verſe may be render'd thus, As ſilver tried in a furnace of earth, and ſo purified, that only one Part in ſeven remains. Let us then take for granted, that a Talent of the Sanctuary was 125 Pound Weight, the common Talent muſt be half ſo much, or 62 ½ Pound. Let us then ſuppoſe it to be 63 Pound; in ſuch a Caſe after the Refining there will remain a ſeventh Part, or nine Pound of pure Gold or Silver to a Talent, and then the Treaſures which David heap'd up for this Uſe may be thus computed, which being divided by 30, the Number of Years, ſhews that David heap'd up two Millions and an half yearly for this Purpoſe.

As for (u) the Braſs, the Iron, the Wood, the Onyx Stones, the gliſtering Stones of divers Colours, all the other precious Stones, and the Marble, which David provided, there is no way to account for the Value of it; but if we may ſuppoſe, that the Whole thereof was equal to the Value of the Silver, he might alſo heap up one Year with another of ſuch Materials to the Value of a Million of Pounds Sterling for this Purpoſe.

76. According to this Computation we may gueſs at the Difference of the Gold and Silver provided for the Tabernacle in the Wilderneſs, and that for the Temple at Jeruſalem. The Gold and Silver provided for the Tabernacle was pure, becauſe (x) it conſiſted of their current Money, and the Weight was (y) according to the Weights of the Sanctuary; ſo that each Talent weigh'd about 125 Pound, and each Shekel about half an Ounce. So that (z) the Weight was thus,

	Pounds.	Oun.
Twenty nine Talents of Gold	3625	00
Seven hundred and thirty Shekels	31	03
Total of both	3656	03
Sterling Value of both	195500	00
An hundred Talents of Silver	12500	00
1777 Shekels of Silver	74	00
Total is	12574	00
Sterling Value of both	37722	00
Value both of Gold and Silver	233222	00

And therefore (a) the Value of the Gold and Silver provided for the Temple was above three hundred and twenty Times as much in Value, as that which was provided for the Sanctuary.

77. From hence we may be able to gueſs the Quantity of Gold, which was gather'd by a yearly Tax from his own Subjects, and all the Kings, which David had conquer'd, not only on the eaſt Side of the River Jordan, but alſo ſouthward from Sihor the River of Egypt, as far northward as the Entring in of Hamath, and the River Euphrates. We are (b) expreſly told, that the Weight of it was ſix hundred and threeſcore and ſix talents of gold; beſides that which chapmen and merchants brought, and all the kings of Arabia, and governors of the countreys, who by Trading into Canaan, brought gold and ſilver to Solomon. This we may ſuppoſe to be pure Gold, becauſe no Gatherers of Taxes would take the ſame in Oar, ſince the Value would be abſolutely uncertain. Theſe 666 Talents being the King's Talents of about 63 Pound Weight each, will amount to 41058 Pound Weight, which at 48 l. Sterling for each Pound, will amount to 2013984 Pounds in Value in the whole; and therefore it appears from hence, that David might, by a frugal Way of Living, raiſe in thirty Years Time the Quantity of Gold already mention'd. Beſide this, (c) Solomon went to Ezion-geber, and to Eloth at the ſea ſide in the land of Edom, where he built a Navy of large Ships, of the Faſhion of thoſe which had been formerly built at Tarſhiſh. And Hiram ſent him ſervants, who had knowledge of the ſea, and they went with the ſervants of Solomom to Ophir, and took from thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought them to king Solomon. This Weight we may ſuppoſe to be the King's Talent of about 63 Pound Weight, and that they brought it in Oar from Ophir, but refin'd it before they brought it to Solomon; and according to this Computation the Weight of the Gold will be 28350 of pure Gold, the Value will be 1360800 Pounds Sterling; and the Weight of the Gold in the Oar, brought home in the Ships will be 198450 Pounds, or about 99 Tun. (d) In the Book of Kings it is ſaid to be but four hundred and thirty talents. But if Solomon gave thirty Talents out of the firſt Sum to the Servants of Hiram for their Kindneſs (which we may well ſuppoſe) the other Sum will remain to be put into the Treaſury. King Solomon being therefore encourag'd by this Succeſs, ſends (e) the ſame Fleet frequently after to the ſame Place, who return'd once in three Years with the Product of the ſame Country. What the Value of their Freight was is not mention'd, being ſometimes more and ſometimes leſs; but we are expreſly told, that they brought with them at their Return Gold, and Silver, and Ivory, and Apes, and Peacocks.

(x) Exod. 39. 26. (y) Exod. 38. 24, 26. In this Senſe it is ſaid,* 1 Kings 22. 48. that Jehoſhaphat made ſhips of Tarſhiſh to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not, for the ſhips were broken at Ezion-geber. That Text in Chronicles is more obſcure; but if we look narrowly into the Hebrew Text, it may be tranſlated thus, For the Ships, which belong'd to the king, were ſailing veſſels of the Tarſhiſh Make, which went with the ſervants of Hiram; once in three years went theſe Ships of the Tarſhiſh Make, bringing the Merchandiſe before mention'd from Ophir, and the Parts adjacent, as the Product of thoſe Countries.

78. It might have been expected, that Solomon would have began the Building of the Temple in the firſt Year of his Reign, according to the expreſs Command of David his Father, who had provided all Materials for ſo great a Work; ſo that there was nothing wanting but (f) Timber and Stones, which might be had for Cutting them down, or Digging them up in the Foreſt of Lebanon, or the neighbouring Mountains. But the Reaſon was, becauſe Solomon reſolv'd to defray all the Expence of the Workmen at his own Coſt; and if there was any Overplus remaining of what David had dedicated for this Work, it ſhould (g) be put into the Treaſury of the Houſe of the LORD, and ſerve for Reparations, as Occaſion did require. And therefore he ſtood in Need of four Years Time to gather up ſo much Gold and Silver, as might be neceſſary for this Purpoſe, that there might afterward be no Delay. When he began to build, he had (h) threeſcore and ten thouſand Men that bare burdens, and fourſcore thouſand hewers in the mountains, he had alſo a levy of thirty thouſand men out of all Iſrael, who were a Month at Lebanon, and two Months at home, and (i) three thouſand and three hundred officers, who ruled over the people, that wrought in the work, and alſo three hundred ſuperior Officers, who were over thoſe other Officers, and took an Account of the whole to make the full Number of three thouſand and ſix hundred, as they are (k) mention'd in the Book of Chronicles. So that he could not have ſo few as an hundred and eighty thouſand Men in conſtant Pay, and theſe at (l) a Roman Peny, or ſeven Pence half Peny of our Money a Day (if we reckon two and fifty Weeks in the Year, and ſix working Days in the Week) will receive for their Pay above 1756000 Pounds Sterling every Year. This indeed Solomon could well afford, becauſe his annual Tax of 666 Talents of Gold came to ſomething more. But then we muſt conſider, that Solomon (m) liv'd in Peace, the (n) Furniture for all his Palaces was very coſtly, and his (o) Table was very magnificent, and every thing elſe proportionable to his Grandeur, whereas David had (p) been always us'd to a frugal Way of Living. Beſides Solomon had long before (q) married an Ammoniteſs, and ſoon after (r) he married the Daughter of Pharaoh King of Egypt. How far the Company, which came with them out of (s) theſe idolatrous Nations, might leſſen his Affection for ſo great a Work, we cannot tell; and in ſuch a Caſe, as he was ſo young, he might not begin it from a Principle of Zeal, but for Oſtentation, and therefore he might defer it the longer. However he had other Affairs of Conſequence to ſettle in the Beginning of his Reign, and he was not ſure how things would ſucceed at this Juncture. Tho' in David's Life Time he had (t) pardon'd Adonijah; yet as ſoon as David was dead, Adonijah (u) deſires that Abiſhag the Shunamite, who had lain with David during his Illneſs, might be his Wife, and deſires Bathſheba, Solomon's Mother, to ſollicit him for this Purpoſe. Solomon well knew, that no Subject ought to marry the Concubine of the King, and that the Granting of this would increaſe Adonijah's Pretenſions to the Crown, and therefore being jealous of his Deſigns, he order'd Benajah his (x) General to kill him, which was done accordingly.

Anno Mundi 2991.

79. It is probable, that after Abiathar had been turn'd out of the Prieſthood in (x) the Life-Time of David, he did not ſubmit to the Sentence, but continu'd to officiate; and therefore Solomon confines him to live upon an Eſtate, which he had in the Country, ſo that he could not come to Jeruſalem upon Pain of Death, and then (y) Zadok officiated in that Office without Moleſtation. Joab hearing of Adonijah's Death, and Abiathar's Baniſhment, fear'd that his Turn would be next, and therefore (z) he flees to the Altar, that the Sacredneſs of the Place might protect him. But this being (a) no Security in the Caſe of wilful Murder, and he, refuſing to come from thence, was there ſlain by the King's Order. After this he confines (b) Shimei to his Houſe in Jeruſalem, upon Pain of Death, if he went to any great Diſtance; to which Shimei conſented, and obſerv'd it for ſome Time.

80. Solomon being now ſecur'd in his Kingdom, (c) goes to Gibeon, where the Tabernacle and Altar were kept, which had been made in the Wilderneſs. Here he reſolves to expreſs his Thanks to GOD for all his Mercies in the moſt ſolemn Manner, and accordingly he offers a thouſand Burnt-offerings upon the Altar. The Night after GOD promis'd to grant him whatever he ask'd, and when he ask'd for Wiſdom to govern the People, GOD was ſo pleas'd with his Petition, that he alſo promis'd him Wiſdom and Honour; and Solomon, when he came to Jeruſalem, expreſs'd his Gratitude a ſecond Time, by Sacrificing before the Ark of the Covenant, which was

81. In the following Year (i) two Servants of Shimei, who had curs'd King David in his Trouble, fled from him to Gath; which Shimei hearing of, went thither from Jeruſalem, and brought them back with him. Solomon puts him in Mind of the Promiſe, which he had made three Years before upon pain of Death, not to undertake ſuch a Journey, and upon this he orders Benajah to kill him; which being done, the Kingdom was quiet and eaſy, free from both foreign and domeſtick Enemies; ſo that this was a proper Time to begin the Foundation of the Temple, which was juſtly eſteem'd to be one, or rather the Principal of all the Wonders of the World.

Anno Mundi 2994.

82. The Time when this Temple was begun, is (k) expreſly mention'd to be in the four hundred and eightieth year, after the children of Iſrael were come out of the land of Egypt. And as the Scripture particularly ſpecifies the Years from the Creation to this Time, ſo there can be no Diſpute concerning this Year in General, tho' there may be ſome Variation in Computing the Times between.

83. The Place, where the Temple was built, is well known to be at Jeruſalem, and particularly upon (l) the Top of Mount Moriah. The Building upon the Top thereof made an exact Square of 800 Cubits, or about 1460 Feet long on each ſide, exactly fronting the Eaſt, Weſt, North, and South. In the very Center whereof ſtood the Altar for the Burnt Sacrifices, on the (m) very Spot where the Threſhing Floor of Araunah the Jebuſite formerly ſtood, and where David offer'd up a Sacrifice to remove the Plague, and alſo where Abraham (n) bound Iſaac upon the Altar, with a Reſolution to offer him up alſo. For the Making of this Building firm and ſecure, there was a Neceſſity to begin the Foundation at the Bottom of the Mount Moriah; ſo that the ſides were three hundred and three and thirty Cubits, or about ſix hundred and eight Feet high, before they were rais'd to the Level of the Temple, which afforded a moſt noble Proſpect eſpecially to the Weſt toward the chief Part of the City of Jeruſalem. And ſome ſay, that (o) it hath been ſeen by thoſe, who have ſail'd on the Mediterranean Sea, which was five and forty Miles Diſtance. It is impoſſible to gueſs at the Work in Raiſing this Foundation, becauſe it is impoſſible to gueſs, how much of the Mountain muſt be fill'd up, and how much in the other Places muſt be taken away, to bring it to an exact Square for ſo great a Height. But when we conſider that there were 180000 Workmen employ'd for ſeven Years and an half, it is admirable what Buſineſs could be found for them; and when we think on the vaſt Fabrick, it is as admirable, how it could be compleated. Joſephus ſaith, (p) that the Foundation was laid prodigiouſly deep, and the Stones not only of the largeſt ſize, but hard, and firm enough to endure all Weathers, and Proof againſt the Worm. Beſides, they were ſo mortiſed one into another, and wedg'd into the Rock, that the Strength and Curioſity of the Baſis *was not leſs admirable, than the intended Superſtructure, and the one every Way anſwerable to the Beauty and Magnificence of the other. The Walls were all of a white Stone from the Ground to the Ceiling. In ſhort, the whole Frame was rais'd upon Stones poliſh'd to the higheſt Degree of Perfection, and ſo artificially put together, that there was no Joint to be diſcern'd, nor the leaſt Sign of a Hammer, or of any working Tool, that had ever came upon it. things things being ſo accommodated and adjuſted one Piece to another, that upon the whole Matter it look'd more like the Work of Providence and Nature, than the Product of Art or human Invention. And therefore the Diſciples might juſtly ſpeak of the whole with Admiration, (q) See, what manner of ſtones, and what buildings are here, tho' it was then much inferior to what it was at firſt.

84. If it might be lawful to add any Conjectures, to what ſo many eminent and learned Men have already mention'd on this Subject, I ſhould ſuppoſe two things. Firſt, That theſe Sides were curiouſly and exactly fram'd, that ſo the Sight of them might anſwer to the admirable Magnificence, which was upon the Top; and therefore they were not ſo very plain as they are commonly repreſented to be. Uniformity is the Grace of every Building, and if theſe Sides were not curiouſly fram'd, the lower Part of the Building could not be uniform with the upper. And Secondly, that the Altar of Burnt Offering, which ſtood in the Court of the Prieſts at the Door of the Temple, was a ſmall Draught or Repreſentation of the whole Fabrick. Little things are often the Reſemblance of greater; and greater things are often made from a ſmall Pattern. The ſilver Shrines, which (r) Demetrius made at Athens were nothing elſe but an Imitation of the great Temple of Diana. The Temple it ſelf had a great Affinity with the Tabernacle in the Wilderneſs. And Solomon is (s) ſuppos'd to pray in this Manner, Thou haſt commanded me to build a temple upon thy holy mount, and an altar in the city where thou dwelleſt, a reſemblauce of the holy tabernacle, which thou haſt prepar'd from the beginning. The whole Fabrick was often call'd הר אל Har-el, or The Mount of GOD; and the Altar was call'd אריאל Ariel, or The Lion of GOD. The Rabbins alſo (t) frequently call all the Sides by this Name, The Mount of GOD; and the Reaſons, which they give, why they call the Top Ariel, have little Satisfaction in them, viz. either becauſe the Holy Fire, that came down from Heaven, couched on it like a Lion; or becauſe of its Devouring ſo many Sacrifices like a Lion. And another Reaſon might perhaps be added, which is, They could not call the Altar directly, The Mount of GOD, but becauſe it had a Reſemblance of this Mount, therefore they at firſt contriv'd to call it by a Name, which did as much as poſſible reſemble the Name of the other. And more particularly, they call'd the Sides of the Altar Har-el, or The Mount of GOD, becauſe of the great Likeneſs, which the Sides of the one had to the Sides of the other.

85. If this Conjecture may be admitted, it will be eaſy to give an Account of the Building on the Sides of the Mount. The Altar being 24 Cubits broad on the Top, and ten Cubits high; and the Temple being 800 Cubits, or about 1460 Feet broad on the Top, the Proportion of the Height muſt be (u) 608 Feet high, and (x) near the ſame it is allow'd to be. Thus 61 Feet on the Side of the Temple may be allow'd alſo for the Space of a Cubit on the Side of the Altar. Now (y) the Altar at the Bottom was two and thirty Cubits, and conſequently the Foot of the Mount muſt be about 1947 Feet. From thence the Altar roſe one Cubit, and bench'd in one Cubit; and therefore the Side of the Mount roſe about 61 Feet, and bench'd in 61 Feet. So that at every ſuch Benching there was a Walk round, from whence a Proſpect of the Country might be ſeen. And that this was the Method of ſtately Buildings in former Times, appears by the Deſcription of the Tower of Babylon. The Altar now being thirty Cubits Square, did riſe five Cubits, and bench'd in one Cubit; and thus the Side of the Mount at the firſt Walk being 1625 Feet Square, did riſe 305 Feet, and bench'd in 64 Feet more. From thence the Altar being 28 Cubits Square, did riſe 3 Cubits, and bench'd in two Cubits, and thus the Temple being 1703 Feet ſquare did riſe 163 Feet, and bench'd in 122 Feet. From hence the Altar being 24 Feet ſquare did riſe one Cubit, which was to the Hearth, on which the Offerings were burnt; and from thence the Mount being 1460 Feet ſquare, did riſe to the ground-Plot, on which the Temple was built. According to this Account, there were (z) 1086101 Feet in each Side of the Building adjoining to the Mount, or 4344404 Feet in the four Sides; and if we may ſuppoſe, that (a) the 180000 Men might finiſh the ſame in four Julian Years, or in 1252 Working Days, it would require 52 Workmen to finiſh a Foot Square in a Day, which we need not to wonder at, if we conſider the vaſt Rocks which muſt be levell'd, the vaſt Caverns which must be fill'd up, the vast Height of some Parts of it, the vast Buttresses to support it, and the vast Quantity of Materials, which must be brought from a considerable Distance, particularly both Stones and Timber from the Forest of Lebanon, which was to be landed at Joppa, above forty Miles Distance from Jerusalem, and also that (d) it is reported, that there were Chambers in the Sides of the Mount sufficient to contain above 100000 Men; so that after the utmost Scrutiny the Number of Men employ'd, the Quantity of Materials prepar'd, the Length of Time in Building, and the Cost of Workmen seem to be well proportion'd to the Greatness of the Work, and what was possible to be done in those Days.

85. As for the Buttresses which were made for the Support of this Fabrick, they are allow'd to be six in each Side, and if we may allow them to be (e) a fifth Part of the Space between, which is a Proportion that the Scripture takes Notice of, each Buttress will take up a twenty sixth Part of the whole; so that the Top being 1460 Feet in the Side, each Buttress will be fifty six Feet broad at the Bottom, the Sides of the two outermost being plac'd under the upper Corner of the Building, and the others at equal Distances. Now it was customary for the Jews never to go in and out at the same Side of the Temple, because they would not turn their Backs upon it, and for the same Reason they chose to go out at the opposite Side; so that it is evident, that there were Stairs to go up and down at each Side of the Temple. These Stairs we may suppose to be upon these Buttresses, and if there were two Pair to each, with a Wall of about two Feet thick in the middle to part them, they might go up at each Corner, and land at each Bench, with a Walk of seven Feet broad including the Battlement, to prevent them from Falling thence, and there might be a winding Stairs at each Return. In this Case each Buttress would be 14 Feet less at the first Bench, 28 at the second, 42 at the third, and there would only be remaining 14 Feet more, for the Landing-Place on the Top of the Mount.

86. It hath been said, that this Temple hath afforded a delightful Prospect to such as have sail'd on the Mediterranean Sea at five and and forty Miles Distance. But this is impossible; for omitting all other Reasons, the Curve of the Earth at such a Distance is so great, that (f) a Building must be 1347 Feet high, that the Top thereof may be seen at such a Distance; and the Height of the Temple (g) could not possibly be seen above six and thirty Miles for the same Reason.

87. It may also be objected against this Platform, that the north and south Sides seem not to be near so high, as they are here represented. But in Answer to this, the Temple is now consider'd, as it was in the Days of Solomon, and not as it was in the Time of Josephus, at above a thousand Years Distance. There is Reason to believe, that the Rubbish, occasion'd by all Repairs, were thrown into the Valleys, which lie on the north and south; and there must be extraodinary Quantities, when the Temple was (h) plunder'd by Shishak, and also in the Reigns of (i) Jehoiakim and (k) Jehoiakin, and the (l) last Captivity in the Time of Zedekiah. When they return'd from the Captivity, they took a great Deal of Pains in (m) Repairing the Temple, and (n) a great Deal of the Rubbish carried off in Repairing the adjacent Walls of the City might be thrown in there. The same may be said, of what happen'd in (o) the Time of Judas Maccabeus, and after that, when (p) six and forty Years were spent in the Repair of this Fabrick. On the south Side lay (*) Mount Zion, furnish'd with many gallant Buildings, or the Palace, Court and City of David, and the famous Palace call'd The Forest of Lebanon built by Solomon, and what came from hence might help to fill the Ditch, and they might the more readily do it to make the Passage between the Palace and Temple more easy. On the north Side lay the Mount Acra, which was naturally higher than Moriah or the Temple, but (q) levell'd very much by the Aſmonæan Family in the Time their Reign, when the Valley between was very much rais'd and fill'd up with Earth, that the Temple might overtop the Buildings on Acra, and that the Going up from thence to the Temple might be the more plain and eaſy. And it is probable, that (r) the Propheſy of Iſaiah being miſunderſtood might contribute much to this Purpoſe, who ſaid, that every valley ſhould be exalted, and every mountain and hill ſhould be made low, and the crooked ſhould be made ſtraight, and the rough places plain. And the glory of the LORD ſhould be revealed, and all fleſh ſhould ſee it together; for the mouth of the LORD hath ſpoken it. This might be the Reaſon, that under the ſecond Temple there might be no Buttreſſes on the north Side, tho' the Valley might have been much deeper; and conſequently the Building might have been much otherwiſe, when it was finiſh'd by Solomon.

88. On the eaſt Side of the Altar there was a plain Aſcent of thirty two Cubits long and ſixteen Cubits broad, which was equal to the Foot of the Altar; and therefore this Aſcent to the Temple might be equal to the Foundation thereof, or 1947 Feet long. This Aſcent of the Altar was ſixteen Cubits broad, or half the Breadth of the Length, which landed on the upper Bench, and according to this Computation the Breadth of this Aſcent to the Temple might be 973 Feet. From this Aſcent to the Altar, there (s) was a Paſſage of a Cubit broad to the ſecond Bench, which was ſix Cubits high from the Ground; and according to the like Proportion from this Aſcent to the Temple there might be a Paſſage of ſixty one Feet broad on each Side, to go to the ſecond Walk round the Temple, which muſt be 366 Feet high from the Ground, and then the remaining Aſcent would be 1825 Feet broad. It is not impoſſible but this might be (t) the Aſcent, by which Solomon went up to the Houſe of the LORD, which the Queen of Sheba ſo very much admir'd, tho' it muſt be own'd, that the Septuagint and our beſt Commentators do favour another Opinion. In this Caſe the (u) Aſcent would not be very ſteep, and there might eaſily be three large Pair of Stairs, one in the Middle, and two at the Sides, that they who went up this Way, might land on the Top of the Mount. And if 62 Workmen were as neceſſary to finiſh a Foot Square in a Day in this, as in the other Building, the whole might be finiſh'd in about 288 Days; or thus the whole Frame as far as the Top of the Mount might be finiſh'd in about four Years Time, and the other three Years and an half might be ſpent upon that which is properly call'd The Temple. And this, tho' it is much leſs in Bulk, might take up a greater Time, becauſe of the great Height to which the Materials were to be brought, and eſpecially becauſe it conſiſted of the moſt curious Workmanſhip of all Sorts.

89. In the outer Part of the Square of the Temple there was a Battlement from one End to the other of about five Feet thick, and twenty Feet high, to prevent any Perſons from Falling down, and in this there were Windows made of gold Wire, from whence any Perſon might have a delightful Proſpect of the whole Country. Within this there was a Terrace-walk, which with the Battlement contain'd a ſixteenth Part of the whole Breadth on each Side, that is fifty Cubits, or about 91 Feet, ſo that what now remain'd was a Square of about 1765 Feet. Into this Court all Strangers might come without Diſtinction, ſo that here were the (x) Buyers and ſellers, and the tables of the money changers. This remaining Square was encompaſs'd with (y) Solomon's Porch, which was built upon Pillars 60 Feet high, and was a ſixteenth Part of the whole, or fifty Cubits in Breadth, where the People might conveniently walk, it being cover'd over as a Security againſt the Weather, and the outward Part incloſ'd alſo with a Wall for the ſame Purpoſe, in which there were Windows, from whence they might behold thoſe, who walk'd in the outward Walk. To this Porch there was an Aſcent of twenty Cubits or about 36 Feet high, being ſupported with Pillars of 30 Cubits or about 55 Feet high, ſo that the whole was 50 Cubits or about 91 Feet high from the Terrace-walk. On each Side of this Porch there were ſeveral Gates, and probably others to anſwer them in the inner Parts of the Temple. On the eaſt Side there was but one Gate, becauſe there were few or no Inhabitants of the City on that Side. This Gate was oppoſite to the grand Aſcent, and call'd (z) The Gate of Shuſhan, or the King's Gate. On the ſouth Side there were two Gates, one over againſt the King's Palace, and the other nearer to the common Part of the City, and each of theſe Gates was call'd (a) The Gate of Huldah. On the weſt Side there were four Gates, becauſe it lay oppoſite to the greateſt Part of the City. The two firſt were call'd (b) The Gate of Aſuppim, the third (c) Parbar Gate, and the fourth, (d) The Gate Shallecheth. The north Side had but one Gate, becauſe in Solomon's Time, the Mount

Acra

Acra which ſtood on that Side had a very deep Deſcent, ſo that they who came from thoſe Parts were generally oblig'd to go in at another Side, and this was call'd (e) The north Gate, and ſometimes Tedi or Tadde. Over this directly in the Middle there was a Gallery of twenty Cubits, or about 36 Feet high, containing a third Part of the Breadth, which had a Covering ſupported by three Rows of Pillars, but it was open all round to take a more beautiful Proſpect of the City and Country. Within this there was another open Square quite round, and bounded on every Side with Solomon's Porch; the Breadth of this was alſo fifty Cubits, or about 91 Feet. This was call'd, The Court of the Gentiles. Into this all might enter, who had embrac'd the Jewiſh Religion, of any Nation whatſoever, and were therefore call'd The Strangers which were within their gates; tho' they were not admitted into the inner Buildings, call'd The Court of Iſrael, or (f) The congregation of the LORD, until the Time appointed by the Law of Moſes. Theſe Squares ſeem to have been the Original of Building Quadrangles in Colleges, and particularly of ſquare Cloyſters or Walks in moſt Colleges, and eſpecially in Cathedral Churches. Thus the whole being 800 Cubits, and an Allowance being made of each Side of 50 Cubits for the Terrace-walk, 50 Cubits for Solomon's Porch, and 50 Cubits for the Court of the Gentiles, that is, 150 Cubits on each Side, or 300 in the Whole, there will ſtill remain a Square of 500 Cubits, which was call'd, The Court of the Iſraelites. This we muſt firſt divide into nine Squares, each Square conſiſting of an hundred Cubits in each Side, and encompaſs'd with Buildings of 50 Cubits in Breadth; ſo that oppoſite to each Front there were four Rows of ſuch Buildings, viz. two Rows to incloſe the nine Squares, and two others to divide the Squares from each other. So that theſe four Rows took up the Space of two hundred Cubits, and the three Squares 300 more, which was the whole Space. There was an Aſcent on either Side from the Court of the Gentiles to the Court of the Iſraelites. This, like Solomon's Porch, was inclos'd on the Out-ſide with a Wall, which went up to the Top of the Building, in which there were Windows, to look out from the Bottom upon thoſe who walk'd in the Court of the Gentiles, or in Solomon's Porch, and likewiſe for the Conveniency of the Chambers, which were join'd to it, in the ſame Building. In the Middle of the Side of this Square, which look'd toward the Eaſt, ſtood the Gate of Nicanor, call'd (g) the Upper Gate, and (h) the New Gate, and alſo (i) the beautiful Gate of the Temple. Before this Gate there was an Aſcent of fifteen Steps, and upon ſome ſolemn Occaſions the Levites ſang the 120th Pſalm, and the fourteen which immediately follow, as they went up, ſinging one Pſalm upon each Step; and hence each of theſe Pſalms is intitl'd, A Song of Degrees, or Steps. This, together with all the inner Buildings, were built upon Pillars of thirty Cubits, or about 55 Feet high, that ſo the whole Congregation of the Children of Iſrael might ſee the Burnt-offerings conſum'd with Fire on the Altar, and worſhip the LORD at the ſame Time; and it is certain, that if the Pillars were plac'd in equilateral Triangles, at a due Diſtance from each other, ſuch a Poſition would be fitteſt for ſuch a Purpoſe. Over theſe Pillars there was an arch'd Work of Stone to ſupport the Buildings, which were upon it. Theſe were (k) the chambers of the Prieſts, viz. thoſe that were round the Court of the Prieſts, and all the reſt were Chambers for the Levites, who officiated in their reſpective Courſes, and are ſuppos'd to be two Stories one above the other. Theſe were the Buildings deſcrib'd by the Prophet (l) Ezekiel; and tho' he makes them much larger than they really were, yet there is no Doubt, but the one was agreeable to the Pattern of the other. Theſe inner Buildings were divided into nine Quadrangles; the firſt of theſe at the Entrance, and the other ſix on the two Sides were call'd the Courts of the Iſraelites. They were enclos'd round by a Building ſet upon Pillars of twenty five Cubits broad, and ſeparated from each other by others of the ſame Nature, and the Sides of each Square were fifty Cubits in Length. The two innermoſt Squares oppoſite to the middle Entrance were not divided from each other like the reſt, ſo that it was in the Form of an Oblong of fifty Cubits broad, and an hundred and five and twenty Cubits long, and may be divided into two Parts, viz. The middle Part, and the inner Part. In the middle Part there was the Altar of Burnt-offering, which ſtood directly in the Center of the whole Building; and in the inner Part there was a ſtately Building, which ſometimes is ſtrictly call'd The Temple, and is the only Part particularly deſcrib'd in (m) the Books both of Kings and Chronicles. This Temple may be compar'd to a Church, with a Tower over the Porch at the Entrance, a middle Iſle, and two others on each

Side

Side, and the Chancel at the farther End. Before the Porch and Tower there was an Aſcent of twelve Steps, or about ſix Cubits. Upon the Aſcent there was the Porch or great Door, and over it the Tower, which is ſaid (n) to be twenty Cubits in Length, ten Cubits in Breadth, and an hundred and twenty Cubits in Height. This muſt be reckon'd not from the Court of the Prieſts, but from the Top of the Mount. Thus from the Top of the Terrace-walk, to the Level of Solomon's Porch, was thirty Cubits. From the Level of Solomon's Porch to the Level of the Courts, both of the Iſraelites and the Prieſts, were thirty Cubits more, or threeſcore in the whole. From the Level of theſe Courts, to the Top of the Tower, was threeſcore Cubits more, or about 109 Feet high, including the Steps, which were ſix Cubits, or about eleven Feet in the whole. On either Side of the Porch there was a Room call'd, The Chamber of the Knives, fifteen Cubits in Length, and ten Cubits in Breadth, equal to the Breadth of the Porch. Within the Porch there was the Body of the Temple twenty Cubits broad, and ſixty Cubits long, including the Holy of Holies, and thirty Cubits high from the Floor, or thirty ſix from the Court; over this there was an Arch in the Form of a Semicircle, which muſt therefore be ten Cubits high or forty ſix in all. Beyond this there was the Holy of Holies twenty Cubits broad, twenty Cubits long, and twenty Cubits high from the Floor, and over this an Arch like the other, ſo that it was ten Cubits lower than the Body of the Temple. From the Chamber of the Knives round the Temple, and the Holy of Holies, there were Chambers for the Prieſts, which cannot better be deſcrib'd than in the (o) expreſs Words of Scripture: Againſt the wall of the houſe he built chambers round about, againſt the walls of the houſe round about, both of the temple and the oracle: and he made chambers round about. The nethermoſt chamber was five cubits broad, and the middle was ſix cubits broad, and the third was ſeven cubits broad: for without in the wall of the houſe he made narrowed reſts round about, that the beams ſhould not be faſten'd in the walls of the houſe. The Chambers were five cubits high; and they went up with winding ſtairs on the Outſide into the middle chamber, and from the middle Chamber to the third, ſo that there ſeems to be Galleries to go to the Doors of the ſecond and third Stories. And over the Chambers there were made windows of narrow lights, or narrow without and broad within; ſo that the Temple on the Inſide muſt be but a dark Place, and it did thereby more fitly repreſent the Darkneſs of the Law, eſpecially when compar'd with the Goſpel.

90. There ſeems to be ſome Difficulty in the Computations between the Temple, as it was built by Solomon, and as it was rebuilt after the Captivity. It is certain, that when it was rebuilt, it was (p) as nothing, in Compariſon of what it was in its firſt Glory. And (q) many of the Prieſts and Levites, and chief of the fathers, who were antient men, that had ſeen the firſt houſe, when the foundation of this houſe was laid before their eyes, wept with a loud voice. However, this may be ſaid of the whole Pile of Building in general, and not of the Temple ſtrictly ſo call'd. As to the Temple ſtrictly ſo call'd, we cannot ſuppoſe the latter in any Reſpect to exceed the former. Now there are ſome things in (r) the Decree of Cyrus, in which at the firſt View it ſeem'd to exceed. Here the Breadth is ſaid to be threeſcore cubits, and (s) the Breadth of the other was but twenty Cubits. But as (t) the Word in the Decree of Cyrus which we tranſlate the Breadth, may ſignify the Length, and there is no other Account but this of its Length; ſo the Decree was given to make it of the (u) exact Length of the other, which was threeſcore Cubits. Secondly, The Decree of Cyrus directs the Height to be threeſcore Cubits; but (x) the Height of the other was but thirty Cubits, and if we add both the Steps, and the Arch which was over it, the whole will not bring it to ſuch a Height. In Anſwer to this it may be conſider'd, that the Decree of Cyrus mentions the Height of the higheſt Part or Tower, which (as it was before obſerv'd) was threeſcore Cubits, and ſo equal to this Height. This will help alſo to explain Joſephus, who had ſeen this ſecond Temple, and (y) ſaith of it, that it wanted to make it great, ſixty Cubits in Height, for ſo much higher was the firſt Temple, which Solomon built. But Joſephus judged, (z) that the Height of Solomon's Temple was an hundred and twenty Cubits high from the Court of the Prieſts, whereas this Height was to be reckon'd from the Top of the Mount, or the Terrace-walk, which was ſixty Cubits lower than the Court of the Prieſts, and conſequently both the Length and Height of the one might be equal to the other.

91. Let us now take a Proſpect of the whole Building from the Eaſt, as an Iſraelite went up the ſloping Aſcent. If he walk'd near the Side thereof he might have a Proſpect of the Side of the Mount; but if he went in the Middle, moſt of the Sides would be cover'd, and he would ſee before him the

Battlement

Battlement before the Terrace Walk of 800 Cubits long and twenty Cubits high, and with the ſame Part of the Buildings in their Order. Firſt Solomon's Porch ſeven Hundred Cubits long, and over that an open Walk of ſix hundred and ſixty Cubits long. Next beyond that appears the Court of the Iſraelites five hundred Cubits long, with four low Towers on the Top of it of twenty Cubits broad, one at each End and two in the Middle at an hundred Cubits Diſtance from each other, and between them at an equal Diſtance from each, there is the high Tower appearing in the Center; and at convenient Places he will ſee Contrivances of Feathers, made of Gold and Silver to turn with the Wind, and frighten the Birds from Pitching on any Part of the Temple. When ſuch a Perſon is enter'd within the Terrace Walk, the inner Buildings diſappear, and one of the Sides of Solomon's Porch appears, being ſeven hundred Cubits long, and fifty Cubits high. Before this Court there is a Building of Chambers advancing forward about four and twenty Cubits from the Foundation, and thirty Cubits high, or equal with the next Court, call'd the Court of the Gentiles; in this there are ſix Rows of Chambers above each other. Above this Solomon's Porch is twenty Cubits in Height, containing four Rows of Chambers, and over that appears an open Gallery of twenty Cubits high ſupported with Pillars, and about ſix hundred and ſixty Cubits long. And if ſuch a Perſon turns back, he will ſee the Battlements, as they have been already deſcrib'd; and at each End of the Porch in the reſpective Corners there were the Apartments for the Kitchens, containing an exact Square of Building from the Bottom to the Top, in which they dreſs'd the Proviſion for thoſe who lodg'd in the Chambers belonging to the Porch; ſo that there was an advanc'd Corner of about ſixteen Cubits, ſupported by two Rows of Pillars, that they who walk'd in either Side of the Porch might go round theſe Apartments, without being expos'd to the Injury of the Weather. When ſuch a Man is gone farther into the next Court, or the Court of the Gentiles, the Front before him is the outer Part of the Court of the Iſraelites, being the Side of a Square of five hundred Cubits. At the Bottom thereof there is the חיל Rampart or Incloſure, being ſix Cubits high, and a Walk on the Top of it of ten Cubits broad. Before the Foundation of the next Wall, there was the Gate of Nicanor, or the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, and alſo a Building of Chambers at about twenty Cubits diſtance, and about twenty five Cubits high, to raiſe it equal with the next Court, or the Courts of the Iſraelites, containing five Rows of Chambers. Above this is the Court of the Iſraelites, being five and twenty Cubits higher, and containing five more Rows of Chambers; and over this appears four low Towers, each of twenty Cubits Breadth, two at the outer Corners, and two more equally diſtant from the Center, and an hundred Cubits diſtant from each other. And if ſuch a Perſon turns back, he muſt ſee Solomon's Porch ſupported with four Rows of Pillars, of ten Cubits high, the fartheſt Part thereof being encompaſs'd with the Chambers of the Levites, there being over it alſo two Rows of Chambers, and over that the open Walk ſupported by Pillars, as it hath been already deſcrib'd. When ſuch a Perſon is enter'd into the Court of the Iſraelites, thro' the Beautiful Gate of the Temple, he ſees before him one of the nine Courts ſupported by Pillars of about fifteen Cubits high, ſo that under them he can ſee thro' all the other Courts, and alſo the Altar of Burnt-offering, and beyond it Part of the Porch of the Temple, with the Chambers of the Knives, and above it he can ſee the upper Part of the Tower ſtanding over the Porch, and two Rows of Chambers over the Pillars. And if ſuch a Man turns back, he will ſee the other Side of the ſame Square ſupported by Pillars of ten Cubits high, with three Rows of Chambers above them, and inclos'd with other Chambers, as before mention'd. And when ſuch a Man goes farther into the Court of the Prieſts, he will have a View of the Sides thereof like the Sides of the reſt, and a full View of the Temple ſtrictly ſo call'd, with its Porch ſtanding before him.

92. From what hath been mention'd, we may be able to gueſs at the Number of Chambers in the whole Building. As the uppermoſt of thoſe which were round the Temple were five Cubits high, and ſeven Cubits broad; ſo if we add the Space of a Cubit for the Wall between, and ſuppoſe all the reſt to be of the ſame Bigneſs, we may allow eight Cubits in Breadth, and five in Height for each Chamber. Now it is ſuppos'd, that there were about twelve thouſand Prieſts and Levites, or a thouſand for each Tribe, which attended in their Courſes upon the Service of the Temple, and lodg'd in theſe Apartments; and for Decency we may allow to each of them a particular Chamber, if we can tell where to find them.

1. Now the Sides of the Temple being 60 Cubits long, including the Holy of Holies, ſeven Chambers may be allow'd in each Row, or 21 in each Side, which will be 42 in both; and to theſe if we add five in a Row behind the Holy of Holies, or 15 in the Whole, the Number round the Temple will be 57.

2. The Buildings of every Square belonging to the Courts of the Iſraelites and the Prieſts, being fifty Cubits broad, there may well be allow'd four Rows of Chambers to every Story, or two Rows to each Side, with a large Gallery between, with large Sky-Lights on the Top, and Space ſufficient for Winding-Stairs to go up to each Story, with Galleries to each ſufficient for a Paſſage to each Door.

One of these Rows was call'd (a) inner chambers, or as it is in the Hebrew, There was a chamber within a chamber, because they went thro' one to enter into the other. And therefore the Court of the Priests being 250 Cubits long, there will be one and thirty Chambers in a Row, and two Stories high, or four Rows, there may be 124 in each Side, or 248 in both.

3. The inner Side being an hundred Cubits long, will contain twelve Chambers in a Row, and two Story high, or four Rows, the Number in the whole will be 48.

4. The outer Side being an hundred Cubits long, will also contain twelve Chambers in a Row, and two Story high, or four Rows, the Number in the whole will be 72.

5. The Sides of each of the Courts of the Israelites being like those of the Priests, each of the four Corner Courts having two outer Sides of 72 Chambers in each, and two inner Sides of 48 Chambers each, there will be 248 Chambers in each of these Courts, or 960 in the whole.

6. The three middle Courts between the outer Courts consisting of 72 Chambers in the outer Row, and three Sides of 48 Chambers in each Court, there will be 216 Chambers in one Court, or 648 in all the three.

7. The outside Wall of the Court of the Israelites being five hundred Cubits long, will contain 62 Chambers in a Row, and being 55 Cubits high, will contain 11 Stories, or 22 Rows; so that there will be in each Side 1364 Chambers, and 5456 in all the four Sides.

8. The outer Part of Solomon's Porch, being 700 Cubits long, will contain 87 Chambers in a Row, and being fifty Cubits high, will contain ten Stories or twenty Rows; so that there will be on each Side 1740 Chambers, and 6960 in all the four Sides. And therefore if we allow but one Window to a Chamber, yet it will be observable, that as the Cherubims, which attended the Divine Majesty, (b) were full of eyes all round about them; so the House, which was built for his more immediate Habitation, was full of Windows both within and without in the same Manner; and the Number of them may be thus computed.

The Remainder will be 12000 Chambers for the Priests and Levites.

93. As to the Manner of their Singing, it being only in a single Part, without Divisions of many Notes to one Syllable, or any such Variety, we may reasonably suppose, that (c) it did very much resemble that Part of our Cathedral Service, which we call The Chanting of the Psalms, especially when Men and Boys sing the same Part without a Bass, not excluding the other Variety of Responses, which we find in our Litany and also in our Morning and Evening Prayer. Thus we may suppose that (d) Our SAVIOUR sung an Hymn before he went to the Mount of Olives, and consequently that the (e) Primitive Church made no Alterations. Philo the Jew (f) saith, that the Essenes at Alexandria did some times sing together as in our Reading Psalms, and sometimes they harmoniously answer'd each other, as in our other Responses. Eusebius (g) saith, that the first Christians in those Parts, who were converted by St. Mark, sang Psalms and Hymns by a Precentor, the rest answering τὰ ἀκροτελεύτια, the Extremes of the Verses, as we do in the Litany. And the Apostolick Constitutions (h) describing the Manner of the Christian Service adds, After the reading the Lessons out of the old Testament let another sing the Psalms of David, and let the People answer τὰ ἀκροστίχια, the Extremes of the Verses. And it is (i) the Opinion of our Modern Divines, that we do in this agree with the antient Church. St. Augustine (k) assures us, that the Church of Alexandria, in the Time of Athanasius (and no Doubt before) did take Care, that the Reader of the Psalms should sing with so small an Alteration of the Voice, that it might be more like to Pronouncing than Singing, and consequently it did well agree with the plain Chanting of our Cathedral Service. And as to the Church of Jeruſalem, it is plain, that the Apoſtles, after they were inſpir'd with the HOLY GHOST, did frequent the Temple at the Hours of Prayer, when they alſo offer'd up their Sacrifices of Praiſe and Thankſgiving. And (l) as they thus approv'd of their inſtrumental Muſick and Manner of Singing; ſo it is probable, that they continu'd it in the Head Church, whether in Pella or the Ruins of Jeruſalem, after the Diſſolution of the Worſhip of the Temple. However, this is a Time, in which we have no Monuments, that can inform us to the contrary. From the Eaſtern Churches the Weſtern receiv'd the ſame Cuſtom of Singing or Chanting the Pſalms. We are (m) aſſur'd, that it was thus at Rome in the Time of Damaſus, the third Biſhop there, after the Reign of Conſtantine the great. And (n) Ambroſe Biſhop of Milan, who was ſomewhat before Damaſus, gives us ſome Hints thereof in his Time. And therefore as it increas'd in the Weſtern Churches, as ſoon as the Storms of Perſecution were blown over, ſo their Uniformity therein makes it the more probable, that they receiv'd it from the Churches of Alexandria.

94. Beſides, This is the Method, which the Jews at this Time do uſe in all their Services in the Synagogue, and in all Places, whether in London, in Holland, in Germany, &c. who as Buxtorf tells us (o) ſometimes obſcurely, and (p) ſometimes more plainly, do not read, but chant out the Hebrew Text. This they would never receive from the Chriſtians; and their Uniformity in all Nations ſince their Diſperſion ſhews, that they receiv'd it from their Anceſtors in Jeruſalem before that Time. And therefore as we may ſuppoſe, that this was the Method practis'd in the ſecond Temple, we may conclude, that it reſembled what was under the firſt. There were many, who (q) wept when they ſaw the ſecond Temple, becauſe it was ſo far inferior to the other, and they would alſo have expreſs'd their Concern, if they could have perceiv'd the Singing in the latter, to be different from that which they had heard in the former. They who ſaw the firſt Temple, may be ſuppos'd to give Directions (as far as they could remember) for the Continuing of the ſame Muſick without any Alterations. We are told, that (r) both the ſingers and the porters kept the ward of their GOD, and the ward of the purification, according to the command of David and of Solomon his ſon: For in the days of David and Aſaph of old there were chief of the ſingers, and ſongs of praiſe and thankſgiving unto GOD. And therefore, as they kept to all other Circumſtances, according as it was in the Time of David and of Solomon his Son; ſo we may conclude, that they kept as near as poſſible to the Muſick it ſelf.

95. But to deſcend to ſome Particulars. Firſt, They had their Precentor or Chanter, as we have in our Cathedrals. Neither is it unlikely, but that upon the Sabbath Days, or their publick Feaſts, they might have two, one on the one Side and the other on the other, and each of theſe might probably be elected into this Office according to his Merit. The Buſineſs of the Precentor was to ſing the firſt Verſe, or at leaſt the firſt Part thereof, that the reſt of his Brethren might know what Tune to ſing, and what Pitch to take, and join together in Performing the reſt of the Service. Accordingly (s) Kircher tells us, that in the Time of David there was a certain Captain or Maſter, who govern'd the reſt of the Singers, who had a better Voice, and a more exact Skill in Muſick; and to him David gave thoſe Pſalms, which were to be ſung to the muſical Inſtruments. The (t) firſt of theſe was call'd ראש התהלה, The principal to begin, or (u) שר המשא, The maſter of the Song; and ſuch might very probably Aſaph, Heman, Ethan and Jeduthun be. Such a one was (x) Chenaniah, the chief of the Levites in this Office, who inſtructed about the ſong, becauſe he was skilful. The other was (y) call'd משנה מאחיו, The ſecond from among his brethren. Theſe were diſtinct after the Captivity, ſince it is recorded, (z) that Mattaniah the ſon of Micah, the ſon of Zabdi, the ſon of Aſaph was the principal to begin the thankſgiving in prayer, and Bukbukiah the ſecond among his brethren. Neither can we ſuppoſe, that this was the firſt Inſtance of two Precentors; for when the Iſraelites prais'd GOD for their Deliverance at the Red Sea, Moſes was (a) Precentor to the Men, who made up the one Side of the Conſort, and Miriam to the Women, who made up the other. That it was thus in the Time of the first Temple, may be collected from (b) the Words of Nehemiah, who tells us, that in the days of David and Asaph of old there were chief (or Heads) of the singers (ראשי המשוררים, perhaps in the dual Number to signify two) and a song (שיר in the singular Number) of praise and thanksgiving unto GOD. Thus it was with (c) the Essenes at Alexandria, whom Philo mentions, who speaks frequently of their Hymns, and tells us, that after the Expounding of the Law, one being the first or chief riseth up, and sings an Hymn to GOD, which he performs with various Turnings and Windings of the Voice; and the rest do imitate the Chief in a decent Order, every one listning attentively or quietly, except at the End or Close of all, for then they all lift up their Voices without Distinction of Sex. Thus our Anthems, which are sung in a single Part, do end in a Chorus. And when all are risen up, there are two Consorts, and each of them have their Precentor over them, who excels the rest in Honour and Skill of Singing; and then they sing Hymns to the Praise of GOD. So that this was one of the most antient and uninterrupted Offices among them.

96. Secondly, They had Singing-Men, and Singing-Boys. The first of these is evident; and as for the other, we must not suppose, that the Word (d) בנים, Children or Sons, should be limited to the natural Sons of their Bodies, but to those who made up the Consort according to their Order; since this Word, as it is found in all the oriental Languages, will admit of a very great Latitude in its Translation. It is certain, that these Sons were Part of the Singers, and had they been the natural Sons, it is very strange, that in all the four and twenty Orders the chief, with his Sons and his Brethren, should be neither more nor less than twelve. These might sing, the Men in Unison together, and the Boys in the Octave above; such a Number were sufficient for this Purpose, and they were not willing to have more, lest some of them being out of Tune should spoil that (e) one Sound, which was the Perfection of their Musick. And as (f) David settl'd their Method and Orders, the small as well as the great, we need not wonder at their Equality. It is probable, that at first (g) the Sons of Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun might supply those Places (and therefore were more properly call'd בנים, Sons) who being ever with their Parents, might be sooner and better taught, and afterward such as succeeded them might be call'd by the same Name. And as the Singing-Men, who stood with the Precentor, are call'd his Brethren; so the Boys might as properly be call'd his Sons. However, that they had Singing-Boys in the Time of Solomon, will be more probable, if we do but allow the usual Musick at the Temple to equal at least, if not to exceed what he had at other Times for his more private Diversion, and what happen'd on other Occasions; and that he, who built so stately a Fabrick for the Worship of GOD, and made so many musical Instruments for its Use, would not suffer the Performance there to be inferior to any other. Now Solomon himself tells us, that (h) he had men singers and women singers among the Delights of the Children of Men. We are told, that (i) in the solemn Procession to the Sanctuary the singers go before, the players on instruments follow after, and among them were the damsels playing with timbrels. Thus at (k) the Red Sea the Women sang together with the Men; and therefore we must suppose, that the Women sang constantly in the Temple, of which there is not the least Proof; or else we must grant, that they had Boys, whose Voices are naturally of the same Pitch with the Women, to perform that Part commonly in the Temple, which the Women perform'd in private and on particular Occasions.

97. Thirdly, The Singers were generally Levites, and stood in the Desks when they sang, and the Singing-Boys stood directly under them.

98. Fourthly, Part of these Singers and their Boys were plac'd on one Side of the Choir, and Part on the other over against them, six on a Side upon common Days and twelve on a Side upon the Sabbath and principal Feasts, that so they might take their Parts by Turns. In Order to this they are said (l) to cast lots ward against ward, as well the small as the great, the teacher as the scholar; and that they might be the better distinguish'd, they were all cloth'd in (m) white Linen. Thus it was also after their Return from the Captivity. For then (n) there were the chief of the Levites, Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua the son of Kadmiel, with their brethren over against them, to praise and to give thanks according to the commandment of David the man of GOD, ward against ward. And when their Places were thus assign'd to them, they (o) were not at Liberty to remove from Side to Side. For the better Aſſigning unto them their Places, let us ſuppoſe that our Cathedrals do in many things, alt ho' not exactly, imitate the Temple at Jeruſalem. Accordingly at the firſt Entrance from the Eaſt upon the Top of the Mount there was the Terrace Walk, or a void Space before it. Within this there was (o) the Gate Shuſhan, or the King's Gate, opening into Solomon's Porch, or a large Cloiſters. Within this there was the Gate of Nicanor, or (p) the beautiful gate of the Temple, or the great Church Door, with Steps aſcending to it, on which they conſtantly ſang at the Feaſt of the Tabernacles. At the Entrance of this Gate there was a large Porch under the great Pile of Building, where there were Desks or Seats, and an Aſcent of four Steps, in all two Cubits and an half high, firſt into the firſt Rank and then into the next: and in theſe the Singers ſtood to perform their Duty, the Boys in the loweſt Rank, and the Men above them. Beyond this there was a Court of the Iſraelites, and then the Court of the Prieſts. Here was the Altar, and at ſome Diſtance beyond it was the great Porch at the Temple Door, ſo that between them was a plain Pavement, or (q) a Space between the porch and the altar, where the Prieſts were commanded to weep and ſay, Spare thy People, O LORD, being the Words which we uſe, when we read the Litany.

99. Fifthly, They ſang in their Turns, and anſwer'd one another; and therefore it is probable that one Side generally ſang one Verſe of a Pſalm, and the other ſang the other. The Eſſenes kept to this Cuſtom, who, as (r) Philo reports of them, did perform this Office ſometimes with one Voice, and ſometimes with all the reſt; or ſometimes altogether, and ſometimes with the oppoſite Voices anſwering each other. When our SAVIOUR inſtituted his laſt Supper, it is ſaid (s) that he ſang an hymn; and (t) Bullinger tells us, It is probable that CHRIST did ſo ſpeak firſt, that his words were receiv'd by them, and repeated in their Turn. And that the Primitive Chriſtians retain'd this Cuſtom, may not only be prov'd from their own writings, but alſo from the Teſtimony of (u) a Heathen, who giving an Account to Trajan the Emperor of their Behaviour in Time of Perſecution, when Singing would have been improper, mentions their Cuſtom of Speaking their Verſes to CHRIST as GOD among themſelves, and in their Turns; and no doubt they receiv'd this Practice from the Jewiſh Synagogues, and they had it from the Temple. However, we need not want due Proof, that the Jews did perform their ſolemn Singing by Antiphons or Interchangings. If we will allow the Songs, with which the Women receiv'd Saul, either to have been religious, or to have a Reſemblance of what was then perform'd before the Ark, and afterward in the Temple, it is expreſly recorded, (x) that they anſwered one another, and they ſang one to another. Beſides, This Way of Singing is the moſt antient that we find in Scripture. Thus Moſes (y) prais'd GOD; for he and the Children of Iſrael began the Song, I will ſing unto the LORD, for he hath triumphed glorioufly, the horſe and his rider hath he thrown into the ſea. And (z) then Miriam the Propheteſs, and all the Women, who went after her with Timbrels and Dances, anſwer'd to the Men, even to Moſes and his Company, ſaying the ſame Words, which they had ſaid before.

100. And as we have the firſt, ſo we have the beſt Examples, that can be deſir'd, even the bleſſed Angels and glorified Saints in the Kingdom of Heaven. Thus (a) one cried to another, Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD of hoſts. And a (b) Right Reverend Author obſerves, that the Church of GOD triumphant in Heaven is (c) conſtantly repreſented throughout the Revelations, as praiſing GOD in this Manner; and that there is no Queſtion, but this is ſpoken by an Alluſion to the Manner of the Churches praiſing GOD upon Earth.

101. Add to this, That the Frame and Compoſure of ſome Pſalms (more eſpecially Pſalms of Praiſe) are ſuch as do plainly diſcover, that they were divided into Parts, and ſang by Turns. Some (d) Pſalms do ſuddenly alter from an Extaſy of Joy to a Paſſion of Grief, or the contrary; and therefore one Paſſion is fit to be expreſs'd by one Man, and another by another. In (e) ſome Pſalms the Prieſt doth (as it were) ſpeak unto the People, and the People to the Prieſt, to the Tribe of Levi, or to the Houſe of Aaron: as when they call upon each other to praiſe GOD, or when the Prieſt bleſſeth the People; in the ſame Manner as after the Creed in our Liturgy, when the Miniſter ſaith, The LORD be with you, and the People anſwer, And with thy Spirit. Thus in (f) one Pſalm, the four firſt Verſes are proper in the Beginnings for the Prieſt, and in their Endings for the People. The Prieſt prays for them, The LORD hear thee in the day of trouble; and they anſwer, The name of the GOD of Jacob defend thee. He prays, Send thee help from his ſanctuary; and they anſwer, And ſtrengthen thee out of Zion. He prays, Remember all thy offerings; and they anſwer, And accept thy burnt ſacrifice. He prays, Grant thee according to thy own heart; and they anſwer, And fulfil all thy counſel. And then ſuch Expreſſions follow as may make a full Chorus, with (g) a Verſe proper for the Prieſt intermix'd with them. Some (h) Pſalms conſiſt of Queſtions to be made by one, and Anſwers to be return'd by another. One Pſalm (i) repeats theſe Words at the End of every Verſe, For his mercy endureth for ever; as if the former Part was expreſs'd only by one, and this was the conſtant Chorus. Another (k) Pſalm repeats four Times the ſame Words, which are a Subject very fit to be ſung by a whole Congregation, after they had heard the wonderful Works of GOD, declar'd to them in the other Parts of the ſame Pſalm, and (l) another repeats the ſame Verſe of Praiſe proper for a Chorus, tho' the Beginning of the Pſalm is a Petition for the Propagation of the Goſpel. Some (m) Pſalms repeat the ſame Word in ſuch a Manner, as if one was taking each Sentence from the Mouth of another, or the Scholar from the Maſter. And (n) others ſpeak of Praiſing GOD by particular Perſons or particular Inſtruments, and then conclude with a general Exhortation; ſo that theſe might be deſign'd to be repeated at the Beginning by ſome in their Turns, but to be ſung at the End by all. And as there are many Arguments to prove, that they might have the ſame or a like Diſtinction of Verſes in the Pſalms to what we have at this Time; ſo we may ſuppoſe, that in all the other Pſalms they anſwer'd one the other Verſe for Verſe, as we do in our Cathedrals.

102. But that they anſwer'd one another in this Manner, may be farther evident from the Uſe of the Hebrew Verb ענה, or to anſwer, in its proper and native Signification, which is alſo us'd for to ſing. When Moſes ſpake of them, that worſhipp'd the Golden Calf, he ſaid, (o) It is not the voice of them that ſhout for maſtery, nor the voice of them that cry for being overcome, but the voice of them that ſing do I hear; in Hebrew, the Voice of them that anſwer each other. So (p) in Iſrael's Song of the Well, Spring up, O well, ſing ye to it; in Hebrew, Anſwer ye to it. So in (q) the Pſalm where we tranſlate, Sing unto the LORD with thankſgiving; ſing praiſes upon the harp unto our GOD; in the Hebrew it is, Anſwer unto the LORD with thankſgiving. And in (r) Iſaiah, In that day ſing ye unto her, A vineyard of red wine; in the Hebrew it is, Anſwer ye unto her. Thus before the Captivity we have the concurrent Teſtimonies of Moſes, the Prophets, and the Pſalms concerning this Matter. And ſince the Captivity, there is (s) another Text, which may put all out of Doubt, where it is expreſly ſaid, And they anſwer'd each other in praiſes; and which we rightly tranſlate, And they ſang together by courſe, in praiſing and giving thanks unto the LORD, becauſe he is good, for his mercy endureth for ever towards Iſrael.

103. Neither was this Cuſtom only in Judæa, ſince the Prophet Jeremiah ſeems to (t) allude alſo to the ſame among the Medes, that when they came againſt Babylon, they ſhould lift up a ſhout againſt her; in Hebrew, They ſhall anſwer againſt thee with a ſhout. And the learned Dr. Pocock ſpeaks (u) of the ſame Verb, that when it is us'd for Singing, it is uſually underſtood of ſuch Singing in which one anſwers another, and adds, that according to this Notion, an antient Arabick Tranſlation out of the Hebrew, hath (x) theſe Words, فتجاوب بسرور And ſhe ſhall mutually anſwer there with mirth, with Songs, or in Singing. And certainly the Arabians would not have us'd this Phraſe in the Tranſlation of that Text, if it had not alluded to a Cuſtom among them.

104. And as it was the Practice of the Jews in other Places; ſo from them it came to be in Uſe among both Chriſtians and Heathens in the firſt Ages of the Goſpel. Pliny (y) tells us, what they did in Pontus and Bithynia under Trajan the Emperor. Socrates (z) makes Ignatius the firſt Biſhop of Antioch in Syria the Beginner thereof, even under the Apoſtles themſelves. St. Baſil (a) having brought in this Cuſtom in his Church, before they of Neocæſarea us'd it, Sabellius the Heretick, and Marcellus took Occaſion thereat to incenſe the Churches againſt him, as being the Author of new Devices in the Worſhip of GOD. Whereupon to avoid the Imputation of Novelty and Singularity, he alledgeth for that which he himſelf did, the Example of the Churches in Egypt, Libya, Thebes, Paleſtina, the Arabians, Phœnicians, Syrians, and Meſopotamians, and almoſt all thoſe who reverenc'd the Cuſtom of Singing Pſalms together. it in his Time; tho' it is probable, that they had heard and approv'd of this Method long before, ſince (c) Virgil ſeems to allude to it, when he ſaid, Alternis dicetis, amant alterna Camænæ.

105. Laſtly, When they thus anſwer'd each other, they us'd the ſame Method, which is common in our Cathedrals, and which we call The Chanting of the Pſalms. In this Service as us'd among us, there are two things obſervable, Firſt, The Chanting Part, and ſecondly, The middle and full Cloſes. The Chanting Part is ſung with ſhort Notes in Uniſon with each other, and is prick'd with Quavers in our Chanting Tunes. And becauſe there is no Alteration of Sound, therefore there is no regular Method of Pointing in that Part of our Pſalms, but the Stops are various, as the Senſe requires them. Thus in all that Part of the Hebrew Pſalms, the Jews have obſerv'd no Manner of Order or Uniformity in their Accents; which they would certainly have done, if in thoſe Parts they had deſign'd any other Method of Singing. That this was their Method, ſeems to be plainly intimated in (d) Scripture, where GOD complains of ſome, who were at Eaſe in Zion, who did chant to the ſound of the viol, and invent to themſelves inſtruments of muſick like David. Where we may obſerve, that this Chanting, as well as Inventing of Inſtruments is the Method which David us'd, and therefore it was without Doubt the Method in the Temple. Our Tranſlation not only favours this Conjecture; but it is more evident in the Hebrew. The Word (e) chant is פורטים, and comes from the Word פרט, a Particle, a ſmall or little Matter. And therefore in the Muſick the פורטים or Chanters did cut their Notes ſhort, as we do alſo in our chanting Tunes, and made them ſmall or little, not only like unto our Quavers, but alſo like unto that of David.

106. Secondly, In our Reading Pſalms, which are pointed as they are to be ſung in Churches, there is conſtantly plac'd a Colon in the Middle of every Verſe, and a Period at the End, which are our principal Stops; and are conſtantly plac'd in this Order, tho' the Senſe of many Texts may ſeem to require another Pointing. And in our Cathedral Service, the (f) Voices alter, before they come to a Colon or a Period, from an Uniſon, in Order to make two Cloſes, where theſe two Marks are plac'd, and accordingly the Notes are longer, and are uſually mark'd with Crotchets, and the laſt Note of all with a Minim or a Semibreve. The Hebrew Pſalms have alſo two principal Stops, which they call Athnach and Silluk, and are conſtantly plac'd in the ſame Method, and therefore we may ſuppoſe that it was for the ſame Reaſon. For firſt, the Words themſelves will naturally bear ſuch a Conſtruction. The Word (g) Silluk in Chaldee doth very properly ſignify the End; and (h) Athnach ſignifies a Reſpiration or Taking Breath, ſo that each of theſe Words in Muſick may ſignify A Cloſe. And Secondly, Theſe are (i) the only Notes or Accents, which change the Vowels in the Words, under which they are plac'd. And the Change, which they make is either by (k) Tranſpoſing of the Vowels ſo as to leave out a ſhort Syllable, which is not ſo proper at a Cloſe, or (l) by Changing a ſhorter Vowel into a longer. So that from hence we may conclude, That the Muſical Notes near theſe Accents, as well as Vowels, might be ſomething longer than in other Places; and conſequently the Method of Singing to which theſe two Accents (like our Colon and Period) ſeem to direct us, is obſerv'd in all the Chanting Tunes in our Cathedrals. Thus it ſeems to have been ſettl'd in the Days of David and Solomon; and thus it ſeems to have continu'd ever ſince.

107. Solomon having finiſh'd the Building of the Temple in the (m) eighth Month of the Year, when all the ſolemn Feaſts were over, was willing to have a publick Dedication thereof. For this Purpoſe it was neceſſary to give publick Notice for the chief Men of all the Tribes to attend, and allow Time for that Purpoſe. But the Winter coming on, it was thought impracticable to dedicate it that Year; ſo that it was deferr'd till the next, and agreed that it ſhould be done at a ſolemn Feaſt. The Feaſt pitch'd upon was (n) the Feaſt of the Tabernacles. This was a Feaſt firſt appointed in Commemoration of (o) the Children of Iſrael's dwelling in Booths, whilſt they were in the Wilderneſs, and of the Tabernacle which was built at that Time, where (p) GOD promis'd to meet the Children of Iſrael, to dwell among them, and to ſanctify the Place with his Glory, and therefore might well be reckon'd the fitteſt Seaſon for this Purpoſe. It was alſo the Time, in which CHRIST was appointed to be born, or as St. John ſaith, when (q) the WORD was to be made fleſh, and dwell, or fix his Tabernacle among us. And to this Solomon might have a particular Reſpect, when he ſaid, (r) But will GOD indeed dwell on the earth? Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee, how much leſs this houſe which I have built? On this Occaſion Solomon kept a publick Feaſt, beginning on the eighth Day of the ſeventh Month, when he twice (s) bleſſed the People, and made (t) a ſolemn Prayer to GOD, that he would have a Regard to this Houſe, and all thoſe who ſhould frequent it upon a religious Account. After this he (u) offers a Sacrifice of Peace-offering, conſiſting of two and twenty thouſand Oxen, and an hundred and twenty thouſand Sheep, of which the People had their Share to feaſt upon. At the end of ſeven Days, or on the fifteenth Day of the ſame Month, the Feaſt of Tabernacles began, and this Feaſt was continu'd for ſeven Days longer, which accordingly is call'd (x) ſeven days and ſeven days, even fourteen days. On the (y) eighth Day, which was (z) the laſt and great day of the Feaſt, and the two and twentieth Day of the Month, Solomon toward the Evening gave the People leave to depart; and they took their Leave of the King, and bleſſed GOD for all the Mercies, which he had ſhew'd to his People; and on (a) the three and twentieth Day of the ſame Month they went every one to their own Houſes with glad and joyful Hearts.

108. As the Courſes were thus ſettl'd by David for Number, and newly rank'd by Lot in their Order, and both were deſign'd for the Service of the Temple, when it ſhould be built, ſo it is not to be doubted but that they began their Rounds, when the Service of the Temple did firſt begin, which (b) Dr. Lightfoot ſuppoſeth to be on the Sabbath after the Feaſt of Tabernacles, which he alſo ſuppoſeth on this Year was on the two and twentieth Day of the Month. On ſuch a Suppoſition the eighth and fifteenth, which were alſo two of the moſt Solemn Days, muſt alſo happen upon the Sabbath. But in ſuch an extraordinary Caſe there would be more Work, than could poſſibly be conſiſtent with the Obſervation of the Sabbath, and therefore we may more reaſonably ſuppoſe the contrary. According to Calculation the Sabbath on this Year happen'd to be on the ſeventh Day, ſo that the firſt Day of Solomon's Feaſt, when there was ſo much Mirth, and the People flock'd from all Parts to Jeruſalem, was upon a Sunday; the firſt Day of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, when they ſet up their Booths, was upon a Sunday; the Day when Solomon bleſs'd the People, was upon a Sunday, even the ſame Day of the Week in which CHRIST was born, and roſe from the Dead, and the ſame Day of the Week (c) in which he enter'd in Triumph into Jeruſalem, when the People cried Hoſanna, and carry'd Branches of Trees before him, in the ſame Manner as was uſual on this Feaſt.

109. I ſhall conclude this Epocha with (d) this Obſervation of the learned Dr. Lightfoot. As it thus happen'd, that Solomon's Temple was finiſh'd and perfected in the Year of the World 3000, ſo it is probable, that this hath help'd to ſtrengthen that Opinion, which hath been taken up by ſome, That as the World was ſix Days in Creating, ſo it ſhall be ſix thouſand Years in Continuance, or in a State of Labour; and then ſhall come either an everlaſting Sabbath, or a thouſand Years of Reſt and Peace to the Church of GOD. And indeed, the Obſervation could not but pleaſe thoſe, who were pleas'd with this Opinion. For when they found, that the firſt three thouſand Years of the World did end in the Perfecting of the earthly Temple, it would make them conclude the bolder, that the other three thouſand ſhould immediately precede the Conſummation of the ſpiritual.

CHAP. V.

The CONCLUSION.

THUS have we gone thro' the Chronology of (a) 488 Years, from the Departure of the Iſraelites out of Egypt to the Finiſhing of the Temple built by Solomon, and the following Year of its Dedication. The Scripture tells us very plainly the round Sum, and hath divided it very nearly into leſſer Parcels.

	Years
As from the Going out of the Iſraelites from Egypt, to their (b) Entrance into the Land of Canaan,	40
From the Entrance into Canaan, until (c) Jephthah's Meſſage to the Ammonites, about	300
From Jephthah's Meſſage, to the Reign of David, about	96
David's (d) Reign	40
Solomon's (e) Reign to the Finiſhing of the Temple	11
To (f) the Dedication	1
Total is	488

2. The Scripture mentions ſeveral of theſe Years under Judges, ſeveral under Oppreſſors, ſeveral under the High Prieſts, and ſeveral under the Kings; but how to reduce them to their proper Times in the groſs Sum is exceeding difficult, and this Difficulty occaſions ſeveral Diſlocations in thoſe ſacred Writings. But for the better Giving an Account thereof it will be neceſſary to treat of the Particular Books as diſtinctly as poſſible from each other, beginning with the Book of Joſhua.

3. This Book gives us the Hiſtory of forty Years from the Time of the Entering into Canaan to the Death of their firſt Governor there. As ſoon as GOD had appointed Joſhua to ſucceed Moſes, had given him Inſtructions to obſerve the Book of the Law, to underſtand it, and to practiſe it, had deſcrib'd the Borders of the Land, and promis'd to aſſiſt him in the Conqueſt of it, Joſhua orders two Men to paſs over Jordan, and ſpy out the Land ſecretly, as it is recorded in the ſecond Chapter: and at their Return he gave the Iſraelites full Directions for their Paſſing over Jordan, as they are mention'd in the firſt Chapter. This Diſlocation was obſerv'd by our great Primate in his Annals, and is evident from (g) the Advice of Rahab to the Spies to abide in the Mountains three Days, and their Taking her Advice. Now it is mention'd (h) before, that Joſhua commanded the officers of the people, ſaying, Prepare your victuals, for within three days (or as ſoon as the three Days are ended) ye ſhall paſs over this Jordan. So that had this Command been given before the Spies were ſent, it muſt have been executed before they had return'd. However the HOLY GHOST was willing to place it in this Method, to connect the Eſtabliſhing of Joſhua by GOD as their Governour, with the firſt publick Acts that he did in his Government, and the ſolemn Promiſe of the People to obey him as ſuch; and alſo to join the Hiſtory of the Spies, who paſs'd over Jordan to view the Land, with the Hiſtory of the whole Multitude, who ſoon after paſs'd over to take Poſſeſſion of it.

4. In the (i) fifteenth, ſixteenth, ſeventeenth, and nineteenth Chapters of Joſhua, there are ſome things briefly related concerning the Tribes of Judah, Ephraim, Manaſſeh and Dan, which more properly belong to the Times of the Judges, and (k) are more largely mention'd there. However, nothing is more common, than to give an Abridgment at firſt, of what is intended to be more particularly deſcrib'd ſoon after. And we may obſerve from (l) the five laſt Verſes of this Book, that Joſhua himſelf was not the Author of the Book, which goes under his Name. So that it is moſt probable, that the Books of Joſhua, Judges, and Ruth were written by Samuel the Prophet, who omitted all the Stories of the High Prieſts in theſe Books, that he might have no Occaſion to mention any thing of himſelf, which was afterward done by another Hand, in the firſt of thoſe Books which go under his Name.

5. So that the true Chronological Reading thereof is thus,

First, Joſh. 1. 1 to 10.
Then Joſh. Chap. 2.
Then Joſh. 1. 10 to the End.
Then Joſh. Chap. 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, at the end of which Chapter it is ſaid, That (a) 480 Years from the Departure out of Egypt, to the Laying of the Foundation, 1 Kings 6. 1. Seven Years to the Finiſhing of it, 1 Kings 7. 38. and one Year to the Dedication. Compare 1 Kings 7. 38. and the Dedication following, 2 Chron. 7. 13. (b) Exod. 16. 35. Num. 14. 33, 34. Num. 32. 13. Num. 33. 38. Deut. 1. 3. Deut. 2. 7. Deut. 8. 2. Deut. 8. 2, 4. Deut. 29. 5. Joſh. 5. 6. Nehem. 9. 41. Pſal. 95. 10. Amos 2. 10. Amos 5. 25. Acts 7. 36, 42. Acts 13. 18. Heb. 3. 9, 17. (c) Judg. 11. 26. (d) 2 Sam. 5. 4, 5. 1 Kings 2. 11. 1 Chron. 29. 26, 27. (e) 1 Kings 6. 38. (f) 2 Chron. 7. 10. (g) Joſh. 2. 16. (h) Joſh. 1. 11. (i) Chap. 15, 16, 17, and 19. 40 to 49. (k) Judg. 1. 1 to 21, and 27, 28, 29, and Chap. 17. 18. (l) Joſh. 24 29 to the End.

the land had reſt from war; ſo that the Reubenites, the Gadites and the half Tribe of Manaſſeh did now return home to their Families, their Buſineſs being only to paſs over (m) arm'd with their Brethren, and accompany them in their Wars.

The next therefore in Order is Joſhua, Chap. 22. which was deferr'd to that Place, becauſe the ſacred Author, treating of what was done on the weſt Side of Jordan, was willing to diſpatch that Hiſtory, before he mention'd any thing, which happen'd on the other Side.

Then Joſhua, Chap. 12.

Then with thoſe Chapters of Joſhua, which treat concerning the Diviſion of the Land, and Settling the Tribes in their ſeveral Poſſeſſions, it may not be improper, nor unprofitable to read thoſe Chapters in the firſt Book of Chronicles that do mention the Fathers, and chief Men in every Tribe, and thoſe who were the Planters and Raiſers of Families in their ſeveral Poſſeſſions. And then reſerving (n) thoſe Particulars already mention'd to be read with the Book of Judges, the Remainder of the Book of Joſhua will ſtand thus.

With Joſh. 13. 1 to 24, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Reuben, read 1 Chron. 5. 1 to 11, and 5. 18 to 23.

With Joſh. 13. 24 to 29, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Gad, read 1 Chron. 5. 11 to 18.

With Joſh. 13. 29 to the End, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of the half Tribe of Manaſſeh beyond Jordan, read 1 Chron. 5. 29 to the End. And theſe Poſſeſſions being deſcrib'd before the Deſcriptions of the reſt, ſeems to argue, that they return'd to them, before the Land of Canaan was divided among the reſt.

With Joſh. Chap 14 and 15, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Judah, read 1 Chron. Chap. 2, 3, and Chap. 4. 1 to 24.

With Joſh. 16. 1 to 10, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Ephraim, read 1 Chron. 7. 20 to 30.

With Joſh. 17. 1 to 12, and 17. 14 to the End, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of the half Tribe of Manaſſeh in the Land of Canaan, read 1 Chron. 7. 14 to 20.

Then Joſh. 18. 1 to 11, and with Joſh. 18. 11 to the End, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Benjamin, read 1 Chron. 7. 6 to 13, and 1 Chron. 8. 1 to 33; and at the ſame Time with 1 Chron. 8. 33 to the End, read 1 Chron. 9. 35 to the End.

With Joſh. 19. 1 to 10, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Simeon, read 1 Chron. 4. 24 to the End.

With Joſh. 19. 10 to 17, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſion of Zebulun, there is nothing in the Book of Chronicles.

With Joſh. 19. 17 to 24, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſion of Iſſachar, read 1 Chron. 7. 1 to 6.

Wirh Joſh. 19. 24 to 32, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſion of Aſher, read 1 Chron. 7. 30 to the End.

With Joſh. 19. 32 to 40, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſion of Naphthali, read 1 Chron. 7. 13.

With Joſh. 19. 40 to 47, and Verſe 48, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of Dan, there is nothing in the Book of Chronicles.

Then Joſh. 19. 49, 50, 51.

Then with Joſhua Chap. 20 and 21, which deſcribes the Poſſeſſions of the Levites, read 1 Chron. Chap. 6. and Chap. 9. 1 to 35.

Then Joſh. Chap. 23 and 24.

6. The Book of Judges conſider'd by it ſelf, and compar'd with the Title which it bears, cannot well be reduc'd into a better Method. The five laſt Chapters, which treat of the Idolatry of the Tribe of Dan, and the Slaughter of the Benjamites, ought in a Chronological Order to be inſerted between the tenth and eleventh Verſes of the ſecond Chapter. The principal Reaſon of its being plac'd laſt is this, The HOLY GHOST was willing to deſcribe firſt the Actions of thoſe, who govern'd the greateſt Part of the whole Land before the Actions of any particular Tribe, which is moſt agreeable to the Title of the Book; and eſpecially their Actions againſt their Enemies before the Account of their Seditions one againſt another. This is the Method, which Lucius Florus took in his Epitome of the Roman Hiſtory, and for which he was never blam'd. However they who are more critical to inquire, why it ſhould be plac'd immediately after the Hiſtory of Samſon, and immediately before the Hiſtory of Samuel, may take the following Reaſons.

1. That the Reader obſerving (o) how their State Polity fail'd them in the Death of Samſon, who (p) was a Danite, might preſently be ſhew'd GOD's Juſtice in it, becauſe their Religion had firſt fail'd among the Danites.

2. That when he obſerves, that (q) eleven hundred Pieces of Silver were given by every Philiſtine for the Ruin of Samſon, he might preſently obſerve (r) the eleven hundred Pieces of Silver given by Micah's Mother for the Making of an Idol, which ruin'd Religion in Samſon's Tribe.

3. That the Story of Micah (s) of the Hill Country of Ephraim the firſt Deſtroyer of Religion, and the Story of Samuel of (t) the Hill Country of Ephraim, the firſt Reformer of Religion, might be plac'd near to each other.

But that the Stories contain'd in the five laſt Chapters of Judges could not be long (m) Numb. 32. 6 to 33. (n) Joſh. Chap. 15, 16, 17, and Chap. 19. 40 to 49. (o) Judg. 13. (p) Judg. 13. 1, 2, 3, 24, 25. (q) Judg. 16. 5. (r) Judg. 17. 2. (s) Judg. 17. 1. (t) 1 Sam. 1. 1.

after

after the Death of Joſhua, and are therefore rightly plac'd as before, will be evident from the following Reaſons.

1. The Danites were unſettl'd, when (u) the Stories of the ſeventeenth and eighteenth Chapters came to paſs, and therefore this could not be long after the Death of Joſhua.

2. Phinehas (x) the Son of Eleazar, who turn'd away the Wrath of GOD in the Wilderneſs, was (y) alive at the Battle of Gibeah.

3. The Wickedneſs of (z) Gibeah is (a) reckon'd to be their firſt Wickedneſs.

4. Deborah, who was (b) contemporary with Barak the third Judge, ſpeaks of the (c) forty thouſand in Iſrael, who periſh'd by Benjamin, as if neither Sword nor Spear had been among them.

5. Mahaneh Dan or The Camp of Dan, which (d) was ſo nam'd upon the March of the Danites, when they ſet up their Idolatry, is (e) mention'd in the Story of Samſon, tho' that Story is ſet before their March.

6. Dan is (f) omitted among the ſealed of the LORD, becauſe Idolatry firſt began in his Tribe, as was mention'd before.

7. Ehud may (g) be very well ſuppos'd to have been (h) one of the left handed Benjamites, and one of them who eſcap'd at the Rock of Rimmon; and he was the ſecond of the Judges.

8. After the Book of Judges, follows the Book of Ruth, the Hiſtory whereof is (i) expreſly ſaid to happen, in the days when the judges ruled, and therefore according to a Chronological Order ought to be inſerted among them. Its Subject is very different from the reſt, and for this Reaſon it is a diſtinct Book, and it is of ſo private a Nature, that at that Time among the Generality of People it might have been thought not worth the Recording. But we Chriſtians may plainly ſee the Wiſdom of GOD in Ordering this Book to be written. It had (k) been foretold to the Jews, that the MESSIAH ſhould be of the Tribe of Judah; and it was afterward reveal'd farther, that he ſhould be (l) of the Family of David; and therefore it was neceſſary for the full Underſtanding of theſe Propheſies, that a Hiſtory of the Family of David in that Tribe ſhould be written before theſe Propheſies ſhould be reveal'd, as it is ſuppos'd to be written by Samuel the Prophet upon his Anointing of David. Thus there could not be the leaſt Suſpicion of any Fraud or Deſign; and thus this Book, theſe Propheſies, and the Accompliſhment of them, ſerve to explain each other.

8. The true Place of Inſerting this Book is at (m) the Time of the Birth of Obed the Son of Boaz and Ruth, which is mention'd at the End of this Book, with the Genealogy from Pharez the Son of Judah to David, as Matters of Fact, and by St. Matthew as apply'd to CHRIST. In St. Matthew it is ſaid, (n) that Salmon begat Boaz of Rahab, and Boaz begat Obed of Ruth: and therefore taking it for granted (as it hath been already prov'd in the Beginning of this Book) that Boaz was born to Salmon by Rahab, about 42 Years after the Entrance into Canaan, and Obed was born to Boaz, when he was about 54 Years of Age, the Birth of Obed will happen about 96 Years after the Entrance into Canaan, which was in the Time when the Iſraelites had Reſt, under Othniel the firſt of the Judges, as it is Judg. 2. 9, 10, 11, and therefore the Book of Ruth will regularly follow thoſe Verſes.

9. As the Book of the Judges gives an Account of the civil and military State of the Iſraelites, and the firſt Book of Samuel gives an Account of their eccleſiaſtical State at the ſame Time; ſo it may be moſt proper to read firſt the one and then the other. However, he who will be ſo curious as to obſerve an exact Chronological Method, may intermix a Part of the firſt Book of Samuel, with the Book of Judges, in the following Manner.

Judges 1. 1 to 11.
Joſhua 14. 6 to the End.
With Judges 1. 11 to 16, read Joſhua 15. 13 to 21.
Judges 1. 22 to 27.
With Judges 1. 27, 28, read Joſhua 17. 11 to the End.

N. B. That tho' there are ſo many Diſlocations in Point of Time in the Books of Judges and the firſt Book of Samuel; yet the Hiſtory it ſelf could not be better laid, than as it is in the Scriptures. For there being ſome Judges in the north and eaſt Parts of Canaan, and others in the ſouth and weſt Parts, particularly there being ſeveral Judges in the North and Eaſt, whilſt Eli was both High Prieſt and Judge, and Samſon was a Warriour in the South and Weſt, it was neceſſary to give the Hiſtory of each of theſe diſtinct from one another, as alſo a diſtinct Account of their Wars abroad, and their Diſturbances at home, and alſo of their civil and eccleſiaſtical Affairs. And it is obſervable, that in the midſt of all this Variety there are ſeveral Hints, by which the Times of each Tranſaction may be reduc'd to their proper Order.

10. After this Time the Hiſtory of Saul is ſo intermix'd with the Hiſtory of David, that it will be neceſſary to take in ſeveral particular Pſalms penn'd on particular Occaſions. And from hence alſo to the Babyloniſh Captivity, and a little Time after, the Hiſtory of the Kings of Iſrael and Judah, is treated of not only in the Books of Samuel and the Kings, but alſo in the Books of Chronicles; ſo that it may be convenient to compare them together, as far as the Dedication of the Temple of Solomon, in the following Method.

1 Sam. Chap. 16, and 17. 1, 2, 3.
1 Chron. 13. 9, 10. 2 Sam. 23. 9, 10. This Story is mention'd by it ſelf, in theſe two Places, that the Story of David and Goliath might not be interrupted.

2 Sam. 23. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17. compar'd with 1 Chron. 11. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20. Here is the Place of David's Longing for the Water of Bethlehem, and the following Tranſactions, tho' it is reſerv'd for its proper Place in the Reckoning up of David's Worthies; ſince here it is more eſpecially intended to relate the Acts of David, and not of his Worthies. And all the other Acts, 2 Sam. 23. 8, 20, 21, and 1 Chron. 11. 10, 11, 22, 23, 24, 25. muſt either be plac'd here, or elſe it is impoſſible where to fix them.

1 Sam. Chap. 28 and 29, compar'd with 1 Chron. 12. 19, 20, 21, 22.
1 Sam. Chap. 30 and 31, compar'd with 1 Chron. Chap. 10.

The ſecond Book of Samuel, and the remaining Part of the firſt Book of the Chronicles, contain the Hiſtory of the Reign of David; ſo that it may not be improper to compare them together, with the reſt of the Pſalms, in the following Order.

2 Sam. Chap. 1, 2, 3, 4.
2 Sam. 5. 1 to 11, and 1 Chron. 11, throughout. Here in the Book of the Chronicles is an Account of David's Worthies, which Catalogue is alſo mention'd in the Book of Samuel, but with this Difference of Place, that in the Chronicles it is ſet at the Beginning of David's Reign, and in Samuel at the latter End, which is the Reaſon of ſo many Differences in their Names. The Book of Chronicles mentions thoſe Men, who had help'd David to his Settlement in the Kingdom; and the Book of Samuel mentions thoſe who had ſtuck to him all the Time of his Reign, or died in his Service, and ſo help'd to keep him in that Settlement: And to theſe are added ſeveral others in 1 Chron. 12. 23 to the End, where they are mention'd, who came alſo to Hebron for the ſame Purpoſe.

11. The Story which follows, contains a Difference in the Order, as it is laid down in theſe two Books. The Book of Samuel mentions firſt the Story of Hiram's Kindneſs and Reſpect to David, as alſo of David's Children, and two Battles with the Philiſtines; and then it relates the Fetching up of the Ark. But the Book of Chronicles firſt relates the Fetching up of the Ark, and then thoſe Stories of Hiram's Kindneſs, David's Children, and the Battles of the Philiſtines. But the Methodizing theſe Stories into their proper Time and Order will require, that they be taken thus,

1 Chron. 13. 1, 2, 3, 4.

David conſults with the Captains, that had come to him to Hebron, and had gone with him to Jeruſalem, about the Fetching up of the Ark. This was but a Conſultation and an Agreement about the Matter; but the thing is not done, for all Iſrael is to be ſent to firſt about it, and a Time to be appointed, when they ſhall come together.

Hereupon

Hereupon the Companies now preſent depart own Homes, until they ſhall have Notice of the Time appointed.

2 Sam. 5. 11 to the End. 1 Chron. 14 throughout.

When all the Iſraelites were departed to their own Houſes, Hiram King of Tyre, hearing of David's Coronation, and of the Taking of Jeruſalem, ſends betimes to him to enter into a League with him, and preſents him with Cedar and Workmen to build him an Houſe. Upon this David's Marriages and Children are reckon'd up, who tho' they were born in ſeveral Years, are all mention'd together, the better to give an Account at once of his Family and Proſperity.

In this Space, between the Peoples Departing from David's Coronation, and their Meeting again to fetch up the Ark, David being left of thoſe Multitudes, and Jeruſalem not yet fully fortified, the Philiſtines came twice to the Valley of Rephaim, which lay near Jeruſalem, thinking to ſurprize David, and he beats them both Times.

After this the People meet in a vaſt Number for the Fetching up of the Ark; and David pens a particular Pſalm for ſo ſolemn an Occaſion.

So that read 2 Sam. 6. 1, 2, 3.
Then Pſal. 68.
After that 2 Sam. 6. 4 to 12.
And with it 1 Chron. 13. 5 to the End.
2 Sam. 6. 12, with 1 Chron. 15. 1.
Then 1 Chron. 15. 2 to 15.

2 Sam 13 throughout.

2 Sam. 12. 24, 25. The Story of Solomon's Birth is join'd to the Story of the Child that died, that GOD's Reconciliation to David might be ſhewn immediately after the Relation of his Anger againſt him. His Anger was ſhewn in Taking away the Child, that was conceiv'd in Adultery. His Reconciliation is ſhewn by GOD's Delighting in a Child born in Marriage with the ſame Woman. Beſides, his Birth is mention'd before the Taking of Rabbah, tho' it was ſome Time after, becauſe the Text relating the Story of Bathſheba in its proper Place, would conclude it altogether.

1 Kings 3, to 22, and 1 Kings 11. 21, 22.

1 Kings 3. 22 to the End, and with this read 2 Chron. 1. 1 to 14.

Here the Story of the Death of Shimei is anticipated, and join'd to the Story of his Confinement, tho' it was three Years after, that the whole Account might be mention'd at once. So alſo the Story of Solomon's Marrying Pharaoh's Daughter is laid ſooner than its proper Time; for it was not before, but after Solomon's Going to Gibeon, and there Begging Wiſdom of GOD. But when we conſider the Scope of the Stories preceding, namely, the Death of Adonijah, Joab and Shimei, and the Excluſion of Abiathar from the Highprieſthood, the Reaſon of Solomon's Marriage with Pharaoh's Daughter being join'd with them will eaſily appear, becauſe the HOLY GHOST was willing to place together all the politick Ways of Solomon for the Eſtabliſhing of his Kingdom, which were theſe two, the Taking away thoſe that might diſquiet it home, and the Making a League and Affinity with powerful Princes abroad; and then it proceeds to tell the ſure and divine Way how to eſtabliſh it; and this is alſo mention'd to be of two Sorts, viz. Loving the LORD, and Begging Wiſdom of him.

13. The Hiſtory of the fourth Chapter of the firſt Book of Kings, and the latter Part of the firſt Chapter of the ſecond Book of Chronicles, is not of any fix'd or determinate Date, or tied to any one Year, but it may equally ſerve for many Years; for it ſheweth the Growth and Continuance of Solomon's Strength, Eſtabliſhment and Proſperity in his Kingdom, and the Evidence of his Wiſdom all his Life-time, till he declin'd to Idolatry. And therefore as for the Method and Place of it, it might have been laid in any Part of the Story, and this particular Inference might have been made of it, wherever it had been laid. However, it was very proper to lay it in the Beginning of this Hiſtory, that the general Matters relating to his Power and Proſperity might be concluded, before there is any Account of particular Actions. There is no Doubt, but the Tranſactions between Solomon King of Iſrael, and Hiram King of Tyre, were very early in Solomon's Reign, becauſe he would not loſe Time toward the Building of the Temple. But it was thought more proper to diſpatch the others before as general Subjects, that particular Stories might be the better treated of afterward, and receive no Interruption.

1 Kings Chap. 4 and 5, and 2 Chron. 1. 14, 15, 16, 17, and Chap. 2 throughout.

1 Kings 2. 39 to the End, and Chap. 3. 1, 2.

1 Kings 6 throughout, and Chap. 7. 13 to the End. 2 Chron. Chap. 3 and 4.

1 Kings Chap. 8 throughout, and 2 Chron. Chap. 5, 6, and 7 to Verſe 11.

If we compare 1 Kings 6. 38, with 1 Kings 7. 1, and 9, 10, it will appear, that Solomon began not to build his own Palaces, until the Temple was finiſh'd. However, the Story of thoſe Buildings, 1 Kings 7. 1 to 13. is immediately join'd to the Building of the Temple, that all Matters relating to Architecture might be laid together.

BOOK VI.

CHAP. I.

From the Dedication of the Temple of Solomon, to the Babyloniſh Captivity.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 1007.

FROM the Dedication of the Temple of Solomon in the twelfth Year of his Reign, to the Time of the (a) Taking of Jeruſalem in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, and the Carrying of the Jews Captives into Babylon, were four hundred and twenty Years.

2. This Space of Time is divided into two Parcels. Firſt, From the Dedication of the Temple, to the (b) Setting up of the Golden Calves by Jeroboam, or thirty Years; and ſecondly, From thence to the Babyloniſh Captivity, or three hundred and ninety Years.

3. The Time from the Dedication of the Temple, to the Setting up of the Golden Calves, is alſo divided into two Parts, viz. eight and twenty Years in the Time of Solomon the Father, and two Years in the Time of Rehoboam the Son. The 28 Years during the Reign of Solomon, is thus prov'd: Solomon reign'd (c) forty Years in all. In the (d) eleventh Year of his Reign, and the eighth Month, the Temple was finiſh'd; and in the (e) following Year, or the twelfth, and the ſeventh Month, the Dedication was completed; ſo that if theſe twelve are ſubtracted from forty, the Remainder is eight and twenty. As for the Year of Rehoboam's Reign, when the golden Calves were ſet up, all Chronologers, whom I know of, agree to place it in the firſt Year of his Reign; but I ſuppoſe it to have been in the ſecond. For let us ſuppoſe (as it is very probable) that Solomon died in the latter End of a Julian Year, or in the Winter. In the Beginning of the Spring in the next Year, when the Seaſon was fit for Travelling, Jeroboam was ſent for from Egypt. He comes. The People treat with Rehoboam. The Conferences are broken off. A Revolt enſues. Rehoboam ſends a Meſſage. Then he raiſeth an Army, and the Army is disbanded. Here is a Summer's Work. Jeroboam builds Penuel, and fortifies himſelf. Here is the Work for the following Winter. And then at the Paſſover, in the next or ſecond Year, and in the Spring, Jeroboam ſets up the golden Calves, to prevent the People from Going up to Jeruſalem. So that theſe two Years, added to the twenty eight beforemention'd, make thirty in all; and theſe 30 ſubtracted from the Year before CHRIST 1007, leave 977, for the Year in which theſe Calves were erected.

4. From the Setting up of the golden Calves, to the Babyloniſh Captivity, were

(a) 2 Kings 25. 2, 3, 4. 2 Chron. 36. 11. Jer. 52. 5, 6, 7. (b) 1 Kings 12. 28. (c) 1 Kings 11. 42. 2 Chron. 9. 30. (d) 1 Kings 6. 38. (e) 2 Chron. 7. 10.

three hundred and ninety Years. These Years are thus reckon'd up in a gross Sum by (f) the Prophet Ezekiel, I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity, according to the number of days, three hundred and ninety days; so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. And when thou shalt accomplish them, lie again on thy right side, and thou shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah forty days, I have appointed thee each day for a year. In Explaining of these Words all Commentators agree, First, That here is an exact Sum of three hundred and ninety Years mention'd; Secondly, That this Sum is to begin from the Year, when Jeroboam did first set up the golden Calves; And Thirdly, That these are not to be taken for two different and distinct Sums, as if it was 390 Years from the Setting up of the Golden Calves to the Captivating of the ten Tribes, in the Reign (g) of Hoshea King of Israel, and forty Years from thence to the Captivating of Judah, when (h) Jehoiakim was first carry'd away Captive by Nebuchadnezzar. For it was but two hundred Years, and a little above an half, between the two first Periods, and above an hundred Years between the two last; but the forty Years are to be reckon'd and counted within the three hundred and ninety, as the last Years of them, and mark'd out for some special Reason.

5. But where to end these three hundred and ninety Years is not so certainly agreed upon. Our learned Primate, Dr. Prideaux, and Marshal in his Chronological Tables, make them to end in the last Captivity of the ten Tribes by Nebuzaradan, the Captain of the Guards under Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, which was four Years after the last Destruction of Jerusalem in the eleventh Year of King Zedekiah. Thus they reckon, that (i) by this last Invasion into the Land of Israel, the Prophesies of Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel, and other Prophets relating thereto, were completed. Thus according to their Computation, they make this Epocha to contain just 390 Years. According to this they also reckon, (k) that from the eighteenth Year of Josiah, when the House of Judah enter'd into Covenant with GOD to walk wholly in his Ways, to this Time, will be just 40 Years; and so long GOD bore their Walking contrary to his Covenant. But now the stated Time of his Forbearance in Respect of both being fully completed, he completed also the Desolation of both in this last Captivity; in which both had an equal Share, Part of them, who were now carry'd away, being of the House of Judah, and Part of the House of Israel. If this Hypothesis is allow'd, it puts all the former Astronomical Calculations into Confusion; and therefore there is a Necessity of Making it to end when Jerusalem was taken by a long Siege and Famine, in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah. Of this (l) Dr. Prideaux gives this candid Account: There are others, who end both the Computations at the Destruction of Jerusalem; and to make their Hypothesis good, they begin the forty Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Judah, from the Mission of the Prophet Jeremiah to preach Repentance to them, that is, from the (m) thirteenth Year of Josiah, when he was first call'd to this Office; from which Time, to the last Year of Zedekiah, when Jerusalem was destroy'd, were exactly forty Years. And as to the 390 Years Forbearance of the House of Israel, according as they compute the Time from Jeroboam's Apostacy, they make this Period to fall exactly right also, that is, to contain just 390 Years from that Time to the Destruction of Jerusalem. And as to the Computing of the 40 Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Judah, from the Mission of Jeremiah to preach Repentance unto them, it must be acknowledg'd, that from thence to the Destruction of Jerusalem, the number of Years falls exactly right: and therefore since (n) the 120 Years of GOD's Forbearance of the old World is reckon'd from the like Mission of Noah to preach Repentance unto them, (he adds) I should be inclin'd to come into this Opinion, and reckon the forty Years of GOD's Forbearance of Judah, by the 40 Years of Jeremiah's like Preaching of Repentance unto them. But it cannot be conceiv'd, why Ezekiel should reckon the Time of his Mission by (o) an Æra from the eighteenth Year of Josiah, (For the thirtieth Year on which he saith, that he was call'd to the Prophetick Office, is certainly to be reckon'd from thence) unless it be with Respect to the 40 Years of GOD's Forbearance of the House of Judah, in his own Prophesies. In Answer to this it may be consider'd, that (p) Ezekiel was a Priest, and therefore (q) began to enter on the Execution of this Office at thirty Years of Age; and therefore (r) the thirtieth Year, which he mentions, may be the thirtieth Year of his own Life; which was a very remarkable Æra to him, because he began to officiate as a Priest, and was call'd to be a Prophet at the same Time. This learned Author (s) adds, That this Period related purely to the House of Iſrael, as contradiſtinct from the House of Judah in this Prophecy, and therefore it cannot be well interpreted to end in the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, in which the House of Iſrael had no Concern. For Jeruſalem was not within the Kingdom of Iſrael, but within the Kingdom of Judah, of which it was the Metropolis, and therefore the latter only and not the former had their Puniſhment in it. But this laſt equally affected both, and therefore here may well be ended the Reckoning, which belong'd to both. But in Anſwer to this, It affected the Children of Iſrael, as much as the Prophet had ſaid it ſhould. He ſaith, It ſhall be (t) a ſiege, and this Siege ſhall be a ſign unto the houſe of Iſrael. Our SAVIOUR ſpeaks in a parallel Caſe, (u) When ye ſhall ſee Jeruſalem compaſſed about with armies, then know that the deſolation thereof is nigh. And here was a like Sign to the Houſe of Iſrael, that when they ſaw Jeruſalem compaſſed about with Armies, they might know, that their Captivity could not be far off. But ſecondly, This laſt Captivity was ſo ſmall, ſo ſudden, and with ſuch little difficulty, that it doth not ſeem to anſwer the Solemnity and Grandeur, with which it is deſcrib'd in the Prophets. All the Account is (x) this, Whilſt Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre, Nebuzaradan the Captain of his Guards, being ſent out by him with Part of his Army, invaded the Land of Iſrael to take revenge, as it may be ſuppos'd, for the Death of Gedaliah, there being no other Reaſon, why he ſhould fall upon the poor Remains of thoſe miſerable People, whom he himſelf had left, and ſettled there. In which Expedition (y) Nebuzaradan ſeizing upon all the Race of Iſrael, that he could meet with in the Land, made them all Captives, and ſent them to Babylon. But they all amounted to no more than ſeven hundred and forty and five Perſons, becauſe all the reſt had before fled into Egypt. In this Expedition here was neither Siege, nor Famine; but the Prophet Ezekiel in the Chapter, where this Epocha is mention'd, ſpeaks ſo plainly of a Siege and Famine, and even the Siege of Jeruſalem, that there needs no more than the Comparing the Prophecy and Hiſtory, to ſhew how it was then fulfill'd. Thus, (z) Son of man, take thee a tile, and lay it before thee, and pourtray upon it the city, even Jeruſalem; and lay ſiege againſt it, and build a fort againſt it, and caſt a mount againſt it, and ſet battering rams againſt it, round about. Moreover, take unto thee an iron pan, and ſet it for a wall of iron between thee and the city, and ſet thy face againſt it, and it ſhall be beſieged, and thou ſhalt lay ſiege againſt it. (a) Therefore thou ſhalt ſet thy face toward the ſiege of Jeruſalem, and thou ſhalt propheſy againſt it, till thou haſt ended the days of thy ſiege. The Accompliſhment hereof is (b) as plainly mention'd: It came to paſs in the ninth year of the reign of Zedekiah, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his hoſt againſt Jeruſalem, and pitched againſt it, and they built forts againſt it round about. And the city was beſieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah. And the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled by night, by the way of the gate, between the two walls which is by the kings garden (now the Chaldeans were againſt the city round about) and the king went the way toward the plain. And the army of the Chaldeans purſued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho, and all his army was ſcatter'd from him. The Famine, during the Siege, was exactly (c) foretold in the ſame Place. Take alſo unto thee wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentiles, and millet, and fitches, and put them in one veſſel, and make thee bread thereof. And thy meat which thou ſhalt eat, ſhall be by weight twenty ſhekels a day: from time to time thou ſhalt eat it. Thou ſhalt alſo drink water by meaſure, the ſixth part of an hin; from time to time ſhalt thou drink. (d) Moreover he ſaid unto me, Son of man, behold, I will break the ſtaff of bread in Jeruſalem, and they ſhall eat bread by weight, and with care; and they ſhall drink water by meaſure, and with aſtoniſhment. That they may want bread and water, and be aſtoniſhed one with another, and conſume away for their iniquity. And this was exactly fulfill'd in the ſame Siege. For (e) in the eleventh year of king Zedekiah, on the ninth day of the fourth month, the famine prevailed, and was ſore in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land. So that the 390 Years do plainly end at this Time, when the City was taken, and the King and his People were carried Captives into Babylon, an Epocha celebrated in (f) the New Teſtament, as well as in the Old.

House

6. But for the (g) Dividing of theſe three hundred and ninety Years into Parcels, as the Books of Kings and Chronicles have done them, the ſureſt and cleareſt way is to make a Chronological Table of the collateral Kingdoms of Judah and Iſrael, whilſt they laſt together from Year to Year, as they will offer themſelves to parallel one another.

In theſe Tables ſome conſiderable Scruples will ariſe to the Student, as he goes along; which, unleſs he ſees and reſolves, he will never be able to make the Account right, and unleſs he hath ſuch a Chronological Table before him, as is here mention'd, he will never be able to ſee them, or find them out. By ſuch a Table as is thus made, it may be plainly obſerv'd, that ſometimes the Years are reckon'd compleat, and ſometimes current. But this will breed no Difficulty, ſince it is very common in Scripture ſometimes to compute by one Method, and ſometimes by the other, and the Drawing of ſuch a Table will every where plainly ſhew this Variety. But the Particulars, which are undermention'd, are much more obſcure, and will therefore juſtly challenge a more ſerious Study and Conſideration.

1. It is ſaid, that (h) Jeroboam reign'd two and twenty Years, and (i) Nadab his Son two Years, and yet (k) Nadab began to reign in the ſecond Year of Aſa, which was in the one and twentieth Year of Jeroboam, and ſo Nadab's two Years fall within the Sum of his Father's two and twenty.

Anſwer, The Reaſon of this Account is this, It is ſaid, (l) that the LORD ſtroke Jeroboam, and he died; that is, with ſome ill and languiſhing Diſeaſe, which continued till his Death, that he was not capable of Governing the Kingdom, and therefore he was forc'd to ſubſtitute his Son Nadab in his Life-time, about two Years before his Death, and ſo both the Father and the Son died in the ſame Year.

2. It is ſaid, (m) That Baaſha began to reign in the third Year of Aſa, and (n) reign'd four and twenty Years, and then it follows, that (o) he died in the ſix and twentieth Year of Aſa, as the Scripture reckons the Years current. And yet (p) in the ſix and thirtieth Year of Aſa, Baaſha came up, and made War againſt Judah. So that this War will ſeem to be made by him nine or ten Years after he was dead.

Anſwer, The Reſolution of this from the Original is eaſy. For that Text in the Chronicles means not, that Baaſha made War againſt Judah in the ſix and thirtieth Year of Aſa's Reign, but in the ſix and thirtieth Year of Aſa's Kingdom, that is, ſix and thirty Years from the Diviſion of the Tribes under Rehoboam. For Rehoboam reign'd ſeventeen Years from the firſt Diviſion, Abijam his Son reign'd three Years, and in the ſixteenth Year of Aſa, who ſucceded him, this War was made, which was ſix and thirty Years in all from the firſt Diviſion. So that the Hebrew Word מלכות ſhould there be render'd The Kingdom, and not The Reign, and then all would be plain and eaſy. Now the Text dates this War, not from the Time of Aſa's Reign, but from the Time of the Diviſion of the Tribes; becauſe tho' they were hitherto divided in Regard of their Kings, yet they were not totally divided in Regard of their Converſation with, and Affection to one another. For ſome of thoſe, who had revolted, did ſtill retain a good Liking to the Houſe of David. But Baaſha, to make the Diviſion ſure, builds Ramah, that none might go in or come out either to or from Aſa King of Judah. So that this was a ſecond Diviſion, and therefore the Text gives us an Account, how long Time it was diſtant from the firſt.

3. It is ſaid, (q) that In the one and thirtieth year of Aſa king of Judah began Omri to reign over Iſrael twelve years; ſix years reigned he in Tirzah. And yet (r) it is ſaid, That in the eight and thirtieth year of Aſa began Ahab the ſon of Omri to reign. So that the Queſtion is, How there can poſſibly be twelve Years Reign between Aſa's thirty firſt and thirty eighth?

Anſwer, Omri began to reign, as ſoon as ever he had ſlain Zimri, which was in the twenty ſeventh Year of Aſa; but he was not the ſole and intire King till his thirty firſt. For Tibni his Competitor and Cor-rival for the Crown held him in Agitation and Wars till Aſa's thirty firſt. And then he was overcome, and Omri was acknowledg'd as an abſolute King by Tibni's Soldiers; and ſo from thence forward he reign'd ſole King in Tirzah.

Reply, But there is ſtill a Doubt remaining, how Omri beginning his Monarchy in the thirty firſt Year of Aſa, and ending it in his thirty eighth, can be ſaid to have reign'd but ſix Years, whereas it was eight current?

Anſwer, The ſix Years compleat are only reckon'd. For the thirty firſt of Aſa was even ending, when Tibni was conquer'd, and the thirty eighth was but newly began, when Omri died.

4. The Beginning of the Reign of Joram the Son of Jehoſhaphat hath three Dates. The firſt is (s) in the ſeventeenth Year of the Reign of Jehoſhaphat his Father. The ſecond is (t) in the fifteenth Year of Joram the Son of Ahab, which was (u) in the two and twentieth Year of his Father Jehoſhaphat. And the third was at the Death of his Father Jehoſhaphat, which is mention'd (x) to be about three Years after.

Anſwer, But the Reſolution of this Ambiguity is this: The firſt Time he was made Viceroy, when his Father went out of the Land for the Recovery of Ramoth-gilead;

(h) 1 Kings 14. 20. (i) 1 Kings 15. 25. (k) Ibid. (l) 2 Chron. 13. 20. (m) 1 Kings 13. 28. (n) 1 Kings 13. 33. (o) 1 Kings 16. 8. (p) 2 Chron. 16. 1. (q) 1 Kings 16. 23. (r) 1 Kings 16. 29. (s) Compare 1 Kings 22. 51, and 2 Kings 1. 17, and 2 Kings 3. 1. (t) 2 Kings 8. 16. (u) Compare 1 Kings 22. 41, and 1 Kings 16. 29. (x) 2 Chron. 21. 1.

and

and becauſe Ahab the King of Iſrael went with him, therefore Ahaziah his Son was alſo made Viceroy in that Kingdom.

The ſecond Time he was alſo Viceroy again in his Father Jehoſhaphat's Abſence upon his (y) Expedition into Moab with Jehoram, and from this Time do (z) the ſacred Scriptures date the Beginning of his Reign. For Jehoſhaphat after this Time was very little at home, but abroad, either (a) going thro' his own Country to reduce the People to the true Religion, or fighting with (b) the Moabites and Ammonites, and other People to reduce them to Subjection, or at leaſt to force them to be quiet.

5. But there is a far greater Doubt, which ariſeth, when we come to caſt up the Times of his Son Ahaziah. For whereas (c) Joram was thirty and two Years old, when he began to reign, and he reign'd eight Years in Jeruſalem, and ſo he died when he was forty Years old, and immediately the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem ſet Ahaziah upon his Throne, who was his youngeſt Son; yet this Ahaziah was (d) two and forty Years old, when he began to reign, and ſo he will prove to be two Years older than his Father.

Anſwer, The Book of Chronicles doth not mean in this Place, that Ahaziah was ſo old, when he began to reign; for (e) the Book of the Kings tells us plainly, that he was but two and twenty at that Time. So that theſe two and forty Years have Reference to another thing, particularly to the Houſe of Omri, and not to the Age of Ahaziah. For if we count from the Beginning of the Reign of Omri, we ſhall find, that Ahaziah enter'd into his Reign in the two and fortieth Year from thence, as any one may readily perceive, who will peruſe ſuch a Chronological Table, as hath been mention'd.

The Original (f) Words therefore are not to be tranſlated, as we render them, Ahaziah was two and forty years old, but Ahaziah was the ſon of the two and forty years. And this was antiently obſerv'd in that Hiſtory among the Jews call'd Seder Olam, or The Order of the World.

Now the Reaſon, why his Reign is dated differently from all the reſt of the Kings of Judah, is, becauſe he did according to all the Wickedneſs of the Houſe of Omri; for (g) Athaliah his Mother was Ahab's Daughter, and ſhe both perverted her Husband Joram, and brought up this her Son Ahaziah in all the Idolatry of that wicked Houſe. And therefore Ahaziah is not thought fit to be reckon'd by the Line of the Kings of Judah, but by the Houſe of Omri and Ahab. Thus a particular Mark is ſet upon Joram by the Evangeliſt St. Matthew, who leaves out (h) the three ſucceeding Generations of Joram, viz. Ahaziah, Joaſh and Amaziah, and mentions Uzziah as the next. And he alone among all the Kings of Iſrael might be reckon'd in this Manner, becauſe in his Time the (i) whole Houſe of Ahab was cut off by Jehu, after (k) the Battle at the Field of Naboth the Jezreelite, where Joram the laſt King of Iſrael of the Houſe of Ahab, or Omri, was ſlain, and Ahaziah was ſlain with him, and two and forty of his Brethren periſh'd with the Houſe of Ahab.

6. There is one more Scruple ariſing concerning the Beginning of the Reign of this Ahaziah. For (l) the ſame Book of Kings ſaith, that he began to reign in the twelfth Year of Joram the Son of Ahab, and it tells us in (m) the next Chapter, that he began to reign in the eleventh Year of Joram the Son of Ahab.

Anſwer, The Anſwer to this Queſtion is eaſy to any one, who conſults ſuch a Chronological Table, as is mention'd. For by this it is very evident, that Joram reign'd one Year before his Father Ahab's Death. For in the twentieth Year of Ahab, which was the ſeventeenth Year of Jehoſhaphat, (n) Ahaziah

(y) 2 Kings Chap. 3. (z) 2 Kings 8. 17. 2 Chron. 21. 20. (a) 2 Chron. Chap. 19. (b) 2 Chron. Chap. 20. (c) 2 Kings 6. 17. 2 Chron. 21. 20. (d) 2 Chron. 22. 2. (e) 2 Kings 8. 26. (f) 2 Chron. 22. 2. בן ארבעים ושתים שנה אחזיהו במלכו. (g) 2 Kings 8. 18. (h) Matth. 1. 8. Here the three Deſcents are omitted, according to what the Pſalmiſt ſaith, Pſal. 37. 28. The ſeed of the wicked ſhall be cut off. See the Letter ע, which is the laſt Letter of צרע, The Seed, and of רשע, The Wicked, cut out of that acroſtical and alphabetical Pſalm at that very Place. Dr. Lightfoot, Vol. 1. Page 417. ſaith, That this Omiſſion is moſt divinely done from the Threatning of the ſecond Commandment, Thou ſhalt not commit idolatry, for I viſit the ſins of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation. Joram committed Idolatry like the Houſe of Ahab, for the Daughter of Ahab was his Wife, 2 Kings 8. 18. Therefore it is juſt with GOD to viſit that Sin upon his Children, in Sign of which he blots them out of this Line to the fourth Generation. It is the Manner of Scripture very often to leave out Mens Names from certain Stories and Records, to ſhew a Diſtaſte at ſome Evil in them. Thus all Cain's Poſterity is blotted out of the Book of Chronicles, as it was out of the World by the Flood. So Simeon is omitted in Moſes's Bleſſing, Deut. 33. for his Cruelty at Shechem and to Joſeph. So Dan at the Sealing of the LORD's People, Revel. Chap. 7, becauſe of Idolatry, which began in his Tribe, Judg. 18. So Joab from among David's Worthies, 2 Sam. 23. becauſe of his Bloodineſs to Amaſa and Abner. And ſuch another cloſe Intimation of GOD's Diſpleaſure at the Wickedneſs of Joram is to be ſeen 2 Chron. 22. 1, 2. where the Reign of his Son Ahaziah is not dated according to the Cuſtom and Manner of the other Kings of Judah, but by the Stile of the Continuance of the Houſe of Omri. He who deſires more concerning the Omiſſion of theſe three Kings by St. Matthew, may conſult Biſhop Kidder's Demonſtration of the MESSIAS, Book 2. Chap. 9. Page 124 to 130. the the Son-in-Law of Ahab did begin to reign in Judah, being made Viceroy when his Father (o) went to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead. There being (p) no Wars between Syria and Iſrael for three Years current, the firſt of theſe Years being Ahab's twentieth Year of his Reign he did little. The next Year being his one and twentieth, he makes his Son Joram his Viceroy, whilſt he was preparing for the Battle of Ramoth-gilead. Ahab in his two and twentieth Year died, and then Joram became an abſolute and intire King in his own Right, and therefore his Reign hath a double Reckoning. He acted as a Viceroy, and reign'd twelve Years in all, and as an intire King but eleven.

7. Amaziah began to reign (q) in the ſecond Year of Joaſh King of Iſrael, which was the eight and thirtieth Year of his Father Joaſh King of Judah, and three Years current before his Death. And the Reaſon was, becauſe his Father had caſt himſelf into ſo much (r) Miſery and Miſchief thro' his (s) Apoſtacy, after the Death of Jehoiada the High Prieſt, and (t) by the Murder of Zachariah the Prophet, that he was unfit and unable to manage the Kingdom.

8. As Uzziah or Azariah, the Son of this Amaziah, was but (u) ſixteen Years of Age, in the ſeven and twentieth Year of the Reign of Jeroboam the Second, when he began to reign; and as it appears by ſuch a Chronological Table, that he was but four Years old at his Father's Death; therefore the Throne was empty for twelve Years, and the Rule was manag'd by ſome Perſons as Potectors during the King's Minority, whoſe Names and Actions are not recorded.

9. There is alſo an Interregnum, or Vacancy of three and twenty Years in the Kingdom of Iſrael, between Jeroboam the Second, and Zechariah his Son; but the Reaſon of it is not eaſy to be determin'd. Perhaps it was occaſion'd by (x) Wars from abroad, which Jeroboam might have provok'd againſt his own Houſe, by the Conqueſt of Hamath and Damaſcus, or elſe by Seditions and Tumults at home; which is very probable, becauſe (y) he reign'd but ſix Months, and came to an untimely End, and his Poſterity loſt the Kingdom. But let the Cauſe be what it will, it is certain, that the Throne was ſo long without a King, ſince Jeroboam (z) beginning to reign in the fifteenth Year of Amaziah, and (a) reigning one and forty Years, died in the fifteenth Year of Uzziah, and (b) Zechariah began not to reign till the eight and thirtieth.

10. Hoſhea is ſaid (c) to ſlay Pekah in the twentieth Year of Jotham the Son of Uzziah, whereas (d) Jotham reign'd but ſixteen Years in all. But the Reaſon of this Accounting was, becauſe of the Wickedneſs of Ahaz, in whoſe Reign this Occurrence happen'd. For the HOLY GHOST choſe rather to reckon by pious Jotham then in the Duſt, than by idolatrous Ahaz then alive. For in the Slaughter of Pekah, GOD aveng'd upon Pekah the (e) Bloodſhed and Miſery, which he had brought upon Judah; for he had ſlain of the Men thereof an hundred and twenty thouſand in one Day. Now Ahaz had caus'd this Wrath upon the People by Withdrawing them from the true Worſhip of GOD, and therefore when GOD avengeth this Injury of his People upon Pekah, the Time of it is computed from Jotham, who was holy and upright, and not from wicked Ahaz, who had caus'd the Miſchief.

11. He who looks narrowly into the Chronology of theſe Times, may alſo diſcover another very great Difficulty about the Reckoning of this twentieth Year of Jotham, which is this: If (f) Pekah began to reign in the fiftieth or laſt Year of Uzziah, and reign'd twenty Years; and if (g) Jotham began to reign in the ſecond Year of Pekah, then the Year when Hoſhea ſlew him, was but the nineteenth Year of Jotham, and not the twentieth.

Anſwer, In this very Difficulty the ſacred Text hath fix'd the Time of Uzziah's becoming leprous, which is determin'd in no other Place; and it ſhews, that it was in the laſt Year of his Reign, when he offer'd to burn Incenſe in the Temple, and was ſtruck with the Leproſy (a Diſeaſe with which the Prieſts, who were to be the Judges of it, could not be infected) and (h) his Son Jotham was over the Houſe, judging the Land till the day of his Death. Now this laſt Year of Uzziah is counted for the firſt Year of Jotham, if we reckon him to reign twenty Years; ſo that tho' he began to reign, as abſolute and ſole King, in the ſecond Year of the Reign of Pekah; yet he began to reign as Viceroy during the Diſeaſe of his Father, which began in the Year before.

12. It is ſaid, (i) that Hoſhea the Son of Elah began to reign over Iſrael in the twelfth Year of Ahaz King of Judah, whereas he (k) had ſlain Pekah the Son of Remaliah in the twentieth Year from Jotham's Coming to the Throne, or in the fourth Year of Ahaz the Son; for Jotham the Father (l) reign'd

(o) 1 Kings 22. 29. (p) 1 Kings 22. 1. (q) 2 Kings 14. 1. (r) 2 Kings 12. 17, 18. 2 Chron. 24. 23, 24, 25, 26. (s) 2 Kings 12. 3 to 17. 2 Chron. 24. 15, 16, 17, 18, 19. but but ſixteen Years. This ſhews, that he obtain'd not the Crown immediately, but was eight Years, before he could ſettle it quietly upon his Head. It is probable, that in this Time Ahaz did diſquiet Iſrael, when Pekah his potent Enemy was dead, in Revenge of that Slaughter which he had made in Judah, and that he kept Hoſhea out of the Throne, and for this he might be call'd (m) the King of Iſrael, as well as for his Walking in the Ways of thoſe Kings.

13. It is ſaid, (n) that Hezekiah began to reign in the third Year of Hoſhea the Son of Elah. Now (o) Hoſhea began to reign in the twelfth Year of Ahaz; and therefore it is evident, that Hezekiah began to reign in the fourteenth Year of Ahaz his Father, and ſo he reign'd two or three Years before his Father's Death, who (p) reign'd ſixteen Years.

The Reaſon of this was becauſe of the Wickedneſs of Ahab, and becauſe of (q) the Miſeries and Intanglements, into which his Wickedneſs had brought him. And this ſhews the Zeal of Hezekiah in the Work of Reformation, becauſe he not only attempted it, but alſo made ſo great a Progreſs in it during the Life of his wicked Father.

14. There ariſeth another Doubt in the Computing of the Times of Hezekiah, as they are parallel with the Times of Hoſhea, For whereas Hezekiah began to reign in the third Year of the Reign of Hoſhea, as it is mention'd before; ſo according to this Computation the ſeventh of Hoſhea ſhould be counted for his fifth Year, and yet (r) it is call'd his fourth.

Anſwer, The Beginning of Hezekiah's Reign is of a double Date. He began indeed to be Viceroy, and to bear a Part of the Rule, in the third Year of Hoſhea, which was the fourteenth Year of his Father Ahaz; but the Time of that Year was but ſhort, in which he was in the Royalty, and he did little or nothing remarkable in that Year. But in the next Year, which was the fifteenth of Ahaz and the fourth Year of Hoſhea, on (s) the very firſt day of the Year, or the firſt day of the Month Niſan, he began the Reformation, and ſtirred bravely in the Reſtoring of Religion; and therefore this Year is own'd as the moſt remarkable and celebrated Year of his Dominion: And thus the ſeventh of Hoſhea, and his fourth, fall in together. In his (t) ſixth Year the ten Tribes are carry'd away Captives by Shalmanezer King of Aſſyria. And now the Parallels of the two Kingdoms of Judah and Iſrael are at an End; and the Times of the Kingdom of Judah lie henceforward in an eaſy and a continu'd Chronicle, without any great Scruple, until the Inhabitants were carried away Captives into Babylon.

15. Theſe are all the Difficulties, which relate to the Kings of Iſrael and Judah; but there remains another concerning the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. Daniel (u) ſpeaks of him by the Name of King of Babylon in the third Year of the Reign of Jehoiakim King of Judah. The Prophet Jeremiah ſaith, (x) that the fourth Year of Jehoiakim was the firſt Year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and the Aſſyrian Records do not make him King until two Years after that.

Anſwer, But as Daniel calls him King of Babylon, ſo he might have been admitted ſo late into the Soveraignty that he did very little that Year, and therefore his Reign is dated by the Jews from the next. But the true Anſwer is this, (y) In the third Year of Jehoiakim, Nabopollaſar King of Babylon finding that on Pharaoh-necho's Taking of Charchemiſh, all Syria and Paleſtina had revolted from him, and that he being old and infirm, was unable to march thither himſelf to reduce them, he took Nebuchadnezzar his Son into a Partnerſhip with him into the Empire, and (z) ſent him with an Army into thoſe Parts; and from hence Daniel's Computation of the Years of Nebuchadnezzar's Reign begins, that is, from the End of the third Year of the Reign of Jehoiakim. For it was about the End of the Year, that this was done, and therefore according to (a) the uſual Computation of the Jews, the fourth Year of Jehoiakim was the firſt Year of Nebuchadnezzar. But according to the Babylonians, his Reign was not reckon'd to begin till after his Father's Death, which happen'd two Years afterward. And this Computation even (b) Daniel himſelf reckons by, when he had been ſome Time in Babylon.

7. There are alſo two Difficulties in Explaining the (c) Account of the Prophet Jeremiah, who reckoning the Men that Nebuchadnezzar carry'd away Captive, ſaith, that in his ſeventh Year they were three thouſand and three and twenty Jews, and that in his eighteenth Year they were three thouſand and two and thirty carry'd away from Jeruſalem. For firſt, He never mentions in this Reckoning either the Captivity in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, which was the firſt Captivity, nor the Captivity of Jechoniah, in which moſt of the People were carry'd away And ſecondly, There is no Mention elſewhere of Nebuchadnezzar's Carrying away into Captivity from Jeruſalem either in

(m) 2 Chron. 28. 19. (n) 2 Kings 18. 1. (o) 2 Kings 17. 1. (p) 2 Kings 16. 2. (q) 2 Chron 28. 16, 17, 18, and 2 Chron. 29. 7, 8, 9. (r) 2 Kings 18. 9. (s) 2 Chron. 29. 3. his ſeventh Year, or in his eighteenth, but there is Mention made of (d) a Captivity in his eighth Year, and (e) in his nineteenth. In Anſwer to the firſt of theſe, The Prophet doth not ſpeak in general of all the Perſons, who were carry'd Captives, but particularly of ſuch as were both carry'd and put to Death; for this was the Deſign of his Diſcourſe in the Verſe immediately before. And for the Confirming of this Opinion, it is obſervable, that in theſe two Verſes he only mentions the Captives that were caus'd by the two open Rebellions of Jehoiakim and Zedekiah; and upon thoſe follow'd a Slaughter in cold Blood. But in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, when Daniel and his Fellows were taken Captives, there was no ſuch Slaughter, becauſe there was no ſuch Rebellion. So that by this very Conſideration, we may perceive what was the End of Jehoiakim, Jechoniah or (f) Coniah, againſt whom the Prophet Jeremiah threatned, that he ſhould be buried with the burial of an aſs, which being an unclean Beaſt, was drawn and caſt forth beyond the gates of Jeruſalem, or that he ſhould be kill'd with the reſt of the Captives, and ſo carry'd off together, and bury'd in a Pit, without any farther Ceremony.

The ſecond Difficulty hath in Part been already anſwer'd: For Nebuchadnezzar's firſt Year, in which he had the Command of the Aſſyrian Forces, was properly in Jehoiakim's third, and Daniel being in Babylon, (g) reckons it accordingly, which Reckoning is (h) us'd in Scripture in ſome other Places. But beſide this (i) his firſt Year was counted with Jehoiakim's fourth, becauſe this was the firſt Year, in which he had a Power over the Jews, and in which he had taken the Inhabitants of Jeruſalem Captives, and therefore it is thus taken Notice of, as the firſt over Iſrael, and the firſt of the Seventy, which is (k) a moſt remarkable Epocha in the ſacred Scripture.

Now Jehoiakim's Captivity was in Nebuchadnezzar's eighth, according to the firſt Date, but it is ſaid to be in his ſeventh, according to the ſecond Date; and the rather, becauſe Jehoiakin was carry'd Captive the ſame Year; and thus one was diſtinguiſh'd from the other. In the ſame Manner Zedekiah's Captivity was in the nineteenth Year of Nebuchadnezzar's Rule, according to the firſt Date, and in the eighteenth, according to the ſecond; which Year includes the Number of the Captives and Slain, whom Nebuchadnezzar caught of the Jews at the Siege of Jeruſalem, before (l) the King of Egypt rais'd it in the former Year; for we cannot imagine but that he caught ſome, and it is eaſy to ſuppoſe, how he would deal with them, becauſe they had been in an open Rebellion, and in Confederacy with the Egyptians againſt him.

8. The Particulars thus mention'd being duly obſerv'd, we may plainly find that the Captivity of Jeruſalem, which happen'd in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, was three hundred and ninety Years after the Setting up of the golden Calves by Jeroboam, as it was (m) particularly foretold by the Prophet Ezekiel; which being thirty Years after the Dedication of the Temple, the whole Sum is 420. This Sum being ſubtracted from the Year 1007, leaves 587 for the Diſtance between this Captivity, to the Year of the Birth of CHRIST 00, or 588 for the Space of Time to the Year of CHRIST 1, or that the Babyloniſh Captivity was in the Year of the Julian Period 4126, according to the unanimous Concurrence of our learned Primate, Dr. Prideaux, and Mr. Marſhall.

9. This Space of Time of 420 Years, is alſo divided into two remarkable Parts. Firſt, From the Time of the Dedication of the Temple, to the Beginning of the famous Aſtronomical Account of Time, call'd The Æra of Nabonaſſar, when the Aſſyrian Empire was diſſolv'd into two at the Death of Sardanapalus; from whence Ptolomy began his Canon of the Emperors at Babylon, and from whence the learned Dr. Prideaux began his admirable Connexion of the Hiſtory of the Old and New Teſtament, which was 261 Years. And ſecondly, The Space of 149 Years from the Æra of Nabonaſſar to the Babyloniſh Captivity; the Hiſtory of which, and the ſucceeding Times, is moſt excellently given us by the ſame Author.

CHAP. II.

The History of the World, from the Dedication of Solomon's Temple, to the famous Æra of Nabonaſſar.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 1007.

AFTER Solomon had built and conſecrated the Temple, he proceeded to erect ſuch other ſtately Fabricks as were proper for the Grandeur and Conveniency of himſelf and his Family. He ſpent but (a) ſeven Years and an half in Building the Temple, and twelve Years and an half, or (b) thirteen Years current, in Building the reſt; ſo that the whole (c) took up twenty Years compleat, or the firſt half of his Reign. Now tho' we cannot ſuppoſe that all his other Buildings did equal that of the Temple, yet the Reaſon why they took up more Time was, becauſe there was not ſo great a Zeal for the Finiſhing theſe, as for the other. David had alſo provided a vaſt Store of Materials, and a vaſt Sum of Money for Building the Temple, in the thirty laſt Years of his Reign; all this, with whatever elſe Solomon could ſpare, was ſpent, according as it was intended, ſo that all freſh Materials muſt be provided, and the Workmen muſt be paid out of Solomon's bare Revenue, which was increas'd by no Spoils or Conqueſts, and therefore many of the Workmen were diſmiſs'd, and ſo the Work went on the ſlower. In the Middle (as Father Lamy hath deſcrib'd it) there was the magnificent Palace call'd (d) The houſe of the foreſt of Lebanon, under which there was a large ſtately Hall an hundred Cubits long, and fifty Cubits broad, and thirty Cubits high, ſupported by threeſcore Pillars, (e) which ſtood in four Rows, fifteen in a Row; ſo that being tall and ſtraight, they look'd like the tall Cedars of the Foreſt of Lebanon, and gave Occaſion for the whole Fabrick to be call'd by this Name. Over this there is ſuppos'd to be another Fabrick of the ſame Nature, ſupported by three Rows of Pillars, and over this ſuch Rooms as were neceſſary for Servants and other Attendants. Before this Palace (f) there was a Porch ſupported by Pillars in the ſame Manner, lying in Length oppoſite to the other great Room, and advancing forward thirty Cubits more. This was the Room for his Guards, and (g) in this his Throne was plac'd, which was overlaid with pure Gold. On the right Side of this ſtately Building (h) his own Palace is ſuppos'd to ſtand, and on the left Side (i) the Palace which he built for Pharaoh's Daughter, whom he took for his Queen ſoon after he came to the Throne. Round the whole Building there is ſuppos'd to be a large Court, encompaſs'd with a Row of ſuch other Buildings, as were neceſſary for all Sorts of Offices which belong'd to the King. The whole was ſuppos'd to be an Oblong of 540 Cubits long, and 360 Cubits broad; ſo that it contain'd (k) above a Quarter of the Quantity of Ground on which the Buildings of the Temple ſtood, but not (l) not ſo much as a third Part.

2. Among all the Works of Braſs, which the Scripture tells us were caſt for the Service and Ornament of the Temple, there are three, which deſerve to be particularly conſider'd, viz. the two Pillars, the Sea, and the Lavers. As for the Pillars, it is ſaid, that (m) they were ſet up in the Porch of the Temple, one on the right Side, and the other on the left. It is (n) ſuppos'd, that Solomon had Reſpect to the Pillar of the Cloud, and the Pillar of Fire, which went before the Iſraelites, and conducted them in the Wilderneſs, and was the Token of the divine Providence over them; and that he ſet them up, hoping and praying that the divine Light, and the Cloud of his Glory, would vouchſafe to enter in there. And that by them GOD and his Providence would dwell among them in this Houſe. The Pillar on the right Hand repreſented the Pillar of the Cloud, and the Pillar on the left Hand repreſented the Pillar of Fire. Their Names were Jachin and Boaz, which Words ſignify Eſtabliſhment and Strength. Jachin ſignifies He will eſtabliſh, from (o) GOD's Promiſe to eſtabliſh the Throne of David, and his People Iſrael: And Boaz ſignifies Herein is Strength, either alluding to GOD's Promiſe, in which was all their Strength and Settlement, or rather to the Ark which was within, and (p) was call'd The Strength of the LORD.

In

In Reckoning the Height of theſe two Pillars, there is ſome Difference and Difficulty; for (q) in ſome Places it is ſaid, that the height of one pillar was eighteen cubits, and (r) in another Place it is ſaid, He made two pillars thirty five Cubits high. The Meaning hereof in one Place is, The height of each Pillar diſtinct was eighteen Cubits. But the Book of Chronicles reckons the Meaſure of them both jointly together, and ſaith, that they were five and thirty cubits long, that is, both together were ſo long, and ſeverally they were ſeventeen Cubits and an half apiece. Now the half Cubit, that was reckon'd above, when it is ſaid, that they were eighteen Cubits high apiece, was taken up within the Chapiter. For the Chapiter being a long maſſy Piece of Braſs ſet upon the Head of the Pillar, the Pillar muſt needs be let ſomething into it, as a Tenon into a Mortiſe to make it faſt, which Tenon was half a Cubit; ſo that the Pillar was eighteen Cubits high, but there were only ſeventeen and an half appearing. Beſides, it is often ſaid of (s) theſe Pillars, that the Chapiter, which was upon the Top of them, was five Cubits; and in (t) one Place it is ſaid, that the Height of the Chapiter was three Cubits. But this Difference ariſeth from this, That the Chapiters themſelves were five Cubits high apiece, but there (u) was Network wrought about them at their Bottom, which ſtood as a Crown about them upon the Top of the Pillars two Cubits broad, ſo that only three Cubits of the Chapiter it ſelf could be ſeen. In (x) the Book of Kings it is ſaid, that the Chapiters upon the two Pillars had alſo pomegranates above, and the pomegranates were two hundred in rows round about the other chapiter. That is, the Pomegranates in all were two hundred, or an hundred upon each. The Prophet Jeremiah ſaith, (y) that there were ninety and ſix pomegranates on a ſide, or רוחה ſideways, and all the pomegranates upon the network, were an hundred round about. That is, (z) the Pomegranates were toward the four Quarters of the World, which they ſometimes call רוחות השמים, or the Winds of Heaven. They were twenty four parrellel to each Side of the Pillar, which made ninety ſix in all, and one at each Corner, to fill up thoſe Squares, ſo that there was an hundred to each Pillar, and two hundred in all.

3. The next that was caſt was (a) the brazen Sea, ſo call'd not only from the Water that was in the Top of it, but alſo from what was ſeen at the Bottom, where the Prieſts waſh'd themſelves, and from whence they took Water for all other Uſes. Its Form is generally repreſented to us as an Hemiſphere, like a round Cup or Goblet, becauſe the Scripture tells us, that it was round about, and that there were ten cubits from the one brim to the other, and its height was five cubits. It ſtood upon twelve oxen, three looking toward the north, and three looking toward the weſt, and three looking toward the ſouth, and three looking toward the eaſt, and the ſea was ſet above upon them, and all their hinder parts were inward. Joſephus (b) adds, That there was a twiſted Pillar of one Cubit thick under the Middle of it for a Supporter. And the Oxen were plac'd in a Poſition lower behind than before, which was both an Eaſing to the Weight, and kept it firm and ſteady. We are alſo told, (c) that it contained two thouſand Baths, or about 250 Hogſheads of our common Meaſure. Now as a Cubit is (d) known to be 21.888 Inches; ſo the Diameter muſt be 218.88 Inches: And as the ſolid (e) Content of a Bath is 1747 Inches, or about 8 Gallons of our common Meaſure; ſo there is a great Difficulty to find Room to contain ſo much Water, or about (f) 3494000 Cubical Inches. To remove this Difficulty we may ſuppoſe, Firſt, that no Braſs in this Bulk might be above an Inch thick, and therefore tho' there was (g) an Hand Breadth, or 3.648 Inches for the Brim on the Top thereof, yet it was not ſo thick throughout; but this Brim might be deſign'd for Preventing the Water from Running over. This will enlarge the Sea, ſo that the Water ſhall be (h) 224.176 Inches from Side to Side, and make an Hemiſphere of that Bigneſs, which will accordingly contain (i) 1684 Baths, and no more.

To make up this Deficiency of* 316 Baths, let us ſuppoſe a Cavity in the Supporter mention'd by Joſephus, which might contain more. This may be the Reaſon, why the Contents of the Sea is not mention'd either in the Books of Kings or Chronicles, until after the Deſcription of the Oxen: And thus as the brazen Sea was of a prodigious Bigneſs; ſo might the brazen Oxen be of a proportionable Size.

4. And as there is a Difficulty to find, how this Sea could contain two thouſand Baths, ſo this Difficulty is increas'd in (k) the Book of Chronicles, where we are told, that it received and held three thouſand baths. In Anſwer to this it is agreed, that this whole Maſs conſiſted of two Parts, the (l) upper Part and the lower Part; the upper Part was the Sea it ſelf, and the lower Part was like a large round Baſon, into which the Water came by Cocks from the Sea. Thus it was in the Tabernacle in the Wilderneſs, (m) of which GOD ſpake to Moſes, Thou ſhalt alſo make a laver of braſs, and his foot alſo of braſs to waſh withal. For Aaron and his ſons ſhall waſh their hands and their feet thereat, and it ſhall be a ſtatute for ever unto him, and to his ſeed throughout their generations. As therefore the Utenſils in the Tabernacle reſembled thoſe in the Temple, and the ſame Ordinances were to continue; ſo there is no Doubt but Solomon had the ſame Conveniencies, only much larger, becauſe the Number of Prieſts to officiate therein was much greater. Eupolemus ſpeaks of it as (n) twenty Cubits broad every way; and perhaps his Meaning might be, That there was a ſolid Pavement within of ten Cubits, on which the Feet of the Oxen ſtood, and five Cubits of Water on each Side round about, ſo that it was twenty in all. And the Deſign being only for the Prieſts to waſh their Hands and Feet therein, it ought to be ſhallow to prevent any Miſchief, and broad, that many might come together to cleanſe themſelves. To theſe Waters (o) the Prophets and (p) St. John ſeem to allude. And Maimonides ſaith, that (q) Ben Catin made twelve Cocks to the Sea, thro' which the Water did flow, whereas before there were but two, that the Prieſts might waſh together. And there was a Receptacle round the Sea, in which there was always Water, which was call'd Its Baſe. And therefore, the (r) Author of the Chronicles ſpeaks both of the upper and lower Part together, and ſaith, that the brazen Sea, of which the Baſon was a Part, held three thouſand Baths, becauſe the Baſon held one; but the Author of the Book of Kings ſaith, that it held but two thouſand, becauſe he only ſpeaks of the upper Part, and takes no Notice of that which was below, which did not properly belong to the brazen Sea, but only to its Baſon or Baſe.

5. As to the Lavers, it is ſaid, that (s) one laver contain'd forty baths, and every laver was four cubits. Now if theſe were in the Form of an Hemiſphere, every Laver would contain (t) an hundred Baths; or if they were made in the Form of a Cylinder, whoſe Height is not mention'd, forty Baths would (u) fill about twelve Inches in Height in each of theſe. And theſe different Shapes might be the Reaſon of the different Expreſſions, in which it is ſaid, that the molten ſea was round all about, and (x) only that every laver was four cubits, but not that it was round all about.

6. There is another Difficulty concerning the molten Sea. It is ſaid (y) to be ten cubits from the one brim to the other, and round all about, and that a line of thirty cubits did compaſs it round about. Now if it was but a bare ten Cubits, the Line which compaſs'd it about (z) ought to be 31 $\frac{1}{7}$ Cubits. And as it was (a) an hand Breadth, or the ſixth Part of a Cubit thick; ſo the outer Part of the Brim muſt be 10 Cubits and about ſeven Inches, and conſequently the Line which did compaſs it about muſt be ſo much the longer. In Anſwer to this, it is not ſaid, that a Line of thirty Cubits did compaſs it round at the Brim; but that there was a particular Place in the Outſide of this Sea, where a Ring of Braſs of thirty Cubits round being caſt with this Sea did encompaſs it. There was without Doubt round the Brim ſome curious Work to ſet it off. Under this there (b) were contain 4 Baths or 32 Gallons, and a Cavity in each of the twelve Oxen ſufficient to contain 26 Baths, or 3 Hogſheads and two Baths, and then the whole would contain 2000, according as it is mention'd; and ſo there might be Conveyances with Pipes from the Feet of the Oxen, and the Bottom of the Supporter, to ſuch Cocks, which would let out the Water, as Occaſion ſhould require. Theſe were in the Shape of an Egg, ſo that they might ſomething reſemble the Back of an Ox, and at the lower Part of theſe there was the Figure of an Ox Head, from whoſe Mouth the Water is ſuppos'd to have guſh'd out, and therefore it is (c) ſaid to be the Similitude of Oxen, which did compaſs it round about. Of theſe there were two Rows, or ſix hundred of them in all, which were caſt at firſt with the Sea, and under this we may ſuppoſe that there was a Ring, whoſe round was three hundred Cubits, caſt in the ſame Manner, dividing the wrought from the plain Work. And as the Diameter of this Veſſel was ten Cubits and two Spans, or about ſeven Inches; ſo (d) a Line of thirty Cubits to compaſs the whole would be plac'd at ſuch a Diſtance from the Top, that if a Line from the Brim to the loweſt Point was divided into four Parts, one of theſe Parts would be above it, and three Parts below it.

7. Solomon being intent upon his ſtately Buildings, and having married ſeveral ſtrange Wives, ſeems by little and little to neglect the publick Worſhip of GOD, and therefore, as GOD had (e) appear'd to him when he was firſt entring upon his Kingdom, and had (f) anſwer'd his Prayer by the Fire and a Cloud; ſo now (g) he appears to him again to call back his wandering Thoughts to the Service of the Temple, that he being now come to the Height of Settlement and Security in his Kingdom, might not diſregard his divine and chief Benefactor. Accordingly GOD puts him in Mind of his former Prayer, at the Dedication of the Temple, and tells him, that it ſhould be the conſtant Place for religious Worſhip, with Promiſes of Bleſſings to him, as long as he continu'd in his Duty, and ſevere Threatnings both againſt him and the whole Nation, whenever they fell off to Idolatry.

8. Solomon having finiſh'd his Buildings, (h) reſolves to ſhew himſelf grateful to Hiram King of Tyre, and therefore he offers him twenty Cities in the Land of Galilee, adjoining to his own Country. Theſe were no Part of the Land of Canaan, as it was divided among the Iſraelites. For that being GOD's Heritage, could not be alienated, but ſeem to be Cities which had been conquer'd by David, and had not been as yet inhabited by the Iſraelites, but had been only Tributaries to them. However, ſome think that Solomon never intended to give Hiram a perpetual Right and Propriety in theſe Cities; but only the Poſſeſſion and Enjoyment of them, till the Debt was ſatisfy'd, which Solomon had contracted, by the Aſſiſtance, which Hiram afforded him in Building the Temple and his Palaces. Hiram coming to ſee theſe Cities, found them not to be ſuch as were agreeable to his Purpoſe and the Genius of his People. For the Tyrians were almoſt wholly addicted to Merchandize, being moſt commodiouſly ſituated for that Purpoſe, and therefore they would not remove from the Sea Coaſts to live in a Soil, which was very fat and deep, and requir'd a great deal of Labour to manure it, which they had not been accuſtom'd to. For this Reaſon he calls it The Land of Cabul, (i) that is, Diſpleaſing or Dirty, as (k) the Jews expound it. Hiram therefore returns them to Solomon again, but did not break off Friendſhip with him, and Solomon made him ſome other Recompence, which gave him much better Satisfaction. However Solomon coming thither, and finding that the (l) Syrians of Zobah in the Land of Hamath having been formerly conquer'd by David, had revolted from him, he (m) reduces them again to his Obedience. And the better to ſecure them, he builds Store Cities in the Country, in which he laid up Proviſions for War, and repairs the Cities which Hiram refus'd, placing the Iſraelites in them, and then he proceeds to repair all the other Cities, which were in the Land of Canaan, (n) employing thoſe Inhabitants which were not of the Children of Iſrael, in all the ſervile Labours, and placing the Iſraelites to be Surveyors of the Work, to attend upon his Perſon, to command in his Armies, and to carry on a Trade of Merchandize, that ſo he might make his Nation as famous, as rich and as flouriſhing, as was poſſible to be effected by human Policy. He alſo fits out a Fleet at Ezion-geber for Ophir, which return'd at certain Times with great Quantities of Gold, and Silver, and other very valuable Commodities.

9. Among all the Towns, which Solomon rebuilt, that of Gezer is the moſt remarkable, as (o) being firſt rebuilt by him; and the Story ſeems to be thus. Gezer was an antient Town in Canaan, ſo that (p) there was a King thereof when Joſhua conquer'd the Country. In the Diviſion of the Land it (q) fell to the Tribe of Ephraim, bordering upon the northern Part of the Country of the Philiſtines, and not far from the Mediterranean Shore. It was one of the (r) eight and forty Cities, which with their Suburbs were given to the Levites, and

(s) call'd

(s) call'd Gazara both by Joſephus and in the Maccabees, and is mention'd as not far from Joppa, Azotus and Jamnia. When the Ephraimites took Poſſeſſion of it, they ſuffer'd the (t) Canaanites to live there among them, who ſeem to have diſturb'd their Peace, and there was (u) a Battle near it in the Time of David; and it ſeems to have been taken from the Iſraelites at the End of his Reign. When Solomon came to the Throne, he did not ſeem inclinable to go to War (it being foretold, that he ſhould be a peaceable King) but to ſet himſelf about the Building the Temple, that being the Work to which he was more particularly call'd. When the Match was propos'd between Solomon and Pharaoh's Daughter the King of Egypt, who was the laſt of the twentieth Dynaſty, whoſe other Name is not known, he thought he could not do a more acceptable Service, or ſhew how uſeful his Alliance might be, better than by the Retaking of Gezer. For this Purpoſe he ſets out a large Fleet of Ships (for he could not come at them any other Way) and the Soldiers being (x) enrag'd at their obſtinate Defence burnt the City to the Ground, and ſlew all the Canaanites, that were in it. This is (y) ſuppos'd to be the firſt Expedition, that the Egyptians made out of their own Country from the Time of Seſoſtris's, or of Joſhua's Government, till this Time. However, Pharaoh after that begins to rebuild the Town, and when Solomon married his Daughter, he gave it to him as a Part of her Portion. And therefore out of Reſpect to her, when he began to repair and build the Cities in his Kingdom, this was the firſt.

10. The Warning which GOD had given to Solomon this ſecond Time, had a very good Effect upon him, and makes him zealous in his Service. The firſt Inſtance, which he ſhew'd of this Nature was (z) the Removal of his Queen out of the City of David, where ſhe firſt dwelt, to the ſtately Palace which he had prepar'd for her. And tho' other Reaſons might be given for this Action; yet Solomon (a) declares that he did it upon a religious Account. The Ark had been ſettled long in David's Houſe, and had a Tabernacle made for it, ſo that there ought to be a ſpecial Regard to the Place, where it had made its Abode. And Solomon would no longer ſuffer a Stranger (for ſo his Wife was, tho' proſelyted) to keep her Court there. For tho' ſhe had renounc'd Idolatry; yet it is not likely, that ſhe and all her Servants had embrac'd the Law of Moſes, and ſo they might many Ways defile a Place, which had been made ſacred by the divine Preſence. However to gratify his Queen, he (b) after that built Millo, in Honour to her, and for her Pleaſure and Conveniency, becauſe he had remov'd her to an Houſe near it. Upon this he (c) ſettl'd the daily Sacrifice of the Temple, and took Care, that the Law of Moſes ſhould be ſtrictly obſerv'd, which preſcrib'd, (d) what Offerings ſhould be offer'd up every Day, and (e) at the three ſolemn Feaſts, and he ſettl'd the Courſes of the Prieſts, the Levites, the Porters, Singers and others, in the ſame Method, which David had appointed.

11. Upon Solomon's bringing up his Queen to the Houſe that he had prepar'd for her, he is thought to compoſe the Book, which goes under the Name of the Canticles, or the Song of Solomon. He ſeems to have plac'd her firſt in the middle Building, call'd The houſe of the foreſt of Lebanon; and then to have remov'd her to her own Apartments, and therefore he ſaith, (f) Come with me from Lebanon, my Spouſe, with me from Lebanon, and (g) Thy noſe is as the tower of Lebanon. It is certain, that the beſt and moſt proper Aim of this Book was at a higher Matter than an earthly Marriage; however, he makes his Marriage with Pharaoh's Daughter a Type of that ſublime and ſpiritual Marriage between CHRIST and his Church, eſpecially the Gentiles. Thus (h) the Tower of Lebanon look'd toward Damaſcus, the Place where the great Apoſtle of the Gentiles (i) was converted, and began to preach CHRIST JESUS, that he was the ſon of GOD. Pharaoh's Daughter was an Heathen, and originally a Stranger to the Church of Iſrael; ſhe was alſo an African born, and ſo a (k) Blackmore, as ſhe ſpeaks of her ſelf in that Dialogue, and ſo ſhe was the fitter Type of what Solomon intended in every particular.

12. The Iſraelites being now buſy in Inriching themſelves by Merchandiſe abroad, Solomon employs himſelf at home in Compoſing of ſeveral Pieces both divine and human, which made him very famous for his Wiſdom, inſomuch that it is ſaid of him, (l) that he ſpake three thouſand proverbs, and his ſongs were a thouſand and five. And he ſpake of trees; from the cedar that is in Lebanon, even unto the hyſſop that ſpringeth out of the wall: he ſpake alſo of beaſts, and of fowl, and of creeping things, and of fiſhes. And there came all people to hear the wiſdom of Solomon, from all kings of the earth, who had heard of his wiſdom. All his Philoſophical Treatiſes are loſt, but what he wrote at this Time by divine Inſpiration is contain'd in the Book of Proverbs, which may be divided, as it lies, into ſeveral Parts. Thus, from the Beginning of the firſt Chapter to the End of the ninth ſeems to have been compil'd by him for the Inſtruction of his Son Reboboam, who being born in the laſt Year of David's Reign muſt now be at leaſt one and twenty Years of Age, and therefore capable to receive it, and it had been happy for him, if he had obſerv'd it. From the Beginning of the tenth Chapter to the latter End of the four and twentieth are Leſſons fram'd for the Inſtruction of others. From the Beginning of the five and twentieth Chapter, to the End of the nine and twentieth are Proverbs found in ſome antient Copy of his in the Time of Hezekiah, as Moſes his Copy of the Law was found in the Days of Joſiah. The thirtieth Chapter was written by Agur the Son of Jakeh, of whom there is no particular Account who he was, or when he liv'd, and therefore the Chapter may very properly be taken in, where it is plac'd, becauſe it is not poſſible to find a fitter Place for it. The laſt Chapter is ſome Part of it Bath-ſheba's Advice to Solomon, and ſome Part of it the Words of Solomon in her Commendation; for ſhe was a tender Mother to him, and we find nothing to beſpot her Character after his Birth. Her Words might (m) have been laid in her Story, and in Solomon's Minority; however they may properly be plac'd here; becauſe the Words of Solomon in Commendation of virtuous Women, as ſhe then appear'd to be, were written at the ſame Time with his other Proverbs, and ſo the Occaſion of the Words may be fitly join'd to the Words themſelves. Solomon is call'd Lemuel by his Mother, as alluding to Shemuel or Samuel a Son of his Mother's Vows, as (n) Solomon is here alſo affirm'd to be. She gives him many excellent Leſſons in his tender Years, proper to make him a good Man and a good King, which he tranſcribes, and in Return highly commends a virtuous Woman in an Acroſtick or an Alphabetical Oration, which concludes the Book.

13. Among the Foreigners, who came to hear the Wiſdom of Solomon, the Queen of Sheba is particularly mention'd, both in the (o) Old and (p) New Teſtament. She liv'd in the ſouthern Parts of Arabia Fœlix, near the Red Sea, which was therefore call'd the uttermoſt parts of the earth, becauſe there was no Travelling any farther that way by Land. It is ſuppos'd, that ſhe had ſome Tincture of reveal'd Religion from her pious Anceſtors, as deſcended from Abraham by Keturah, one of whoſe Sons begat (q) Sheba the firſt Planter of that Country. It is probable, that ſhe came to hear of Solomon's Character by the Ships that went to Ophir. For they ſail'd by her Coaſt, and ſpread his Fame there, as they did in all other Places where they touch'd, proclaiming his Magnificence, and eſpecially his Wiſdom, and the glorious Temple which he had built for the Worſhip of GOD. The Time of this Journey cannot poſſibly be fix'd any nearer, than by Suppoſing it to be about the Middle Time between the Finiſhing of his Buildings and the End of his Life. The Queſtions which ſhe ask'd ſeem'd to be about things pertaining to Piety and the Service of GOD. For our Saviour ſaith, that ſhe came to hear the wiſdom of Solomon, and ſhould therefore riſe up in Judgment againſt that Generation, who would not learn of him. And it is ſaid, (r) that the particular Fame, which ſhe had heard of Solomon, was concerning the Name of the LORD; and this moſt probably was the Occaſion of her Journey. She came to Jeruſalem with a very great Retinue, and with Camels, which brought Silver and Gold, and precious Stones in Abundance. Solomon anſwer'd all her Queſtions, and ſhew'd her the Temple, the Palace, and the Manner of his Attendance; upon which ſhe confeſs'd, that every thing was beyond what ſhe had heard, or could have been imagin'd; and after ſhe had given him very great and noble Preſents, and receiv'd others from him, which were not inconſiderable, ſhe return'd into her own Country with the utmoſt Satisfaction.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 988.

14. But Solomon in his latter Years not regarding the Law of Moſes as he did at firſt, brought himſelf, his Poſterity and Nation into all Manner of Miſchiefs. It was againſt the Law for (s) Kings to multiply Wives to themſelves, and eſpecially thoſe of ſtrange Nations; but Solomon now giving up himſelf to Pleaſure, and not obſerving this Law ſoon grew regardleſs of all the reſt, inſomuch that he not only tolerated their Idolatry, but even (t) he built an high Place for that Purpoſe. Indeed it is never ſaid of Pharaoh's Daughter that ſhe turn'd his Heart from the LORD, as the reſt did (for if ſhe had ſhe could not have been a Type of CHRIST) or that he ſet up Altars for her: which is an Argument that ſhe was proſelyted to the Jewiſh Religion, and continu'd in it. Solomon being drawn away, his Proſperity and Happineſs ſoon begin to change. Hadad being (u) return'd out of Egypt into Edom, recovers his own Country, denies to pay Tribute any longer, and ſets up for himſelf. Rezon the Son of Eliadah having liv'd hitherto by Plunder and Robbery, after the Manner of the Arabians, now (x) ſeizes upon Damaſcus, and makes himſelf King of all the Country thereabout, and theſe two confederating together, diſtreſs Solomon both in the North and South at the ſame Time. And now GOD vouchſafing no more to appear unto him, ſends a Prophet to him to tell him of his Sins, and to pronounce this heavy Judgment againſt him, that he would tear his Kingdom to Pieces, and give the greateſt Part of it to one of his own Servants. And as Nathan had before brought David to a Senſe of his Sin; ſo it is ſuppos'd, that this Prophet did the ſame by Solomon, ſo that his ſerious Reflexion on his paſt Life at this Time mov'd him to write the Book of Eccleſiaſtes, in the Beginning of which he (y) declares, that all the Things in which he delighted, were nothing but Vanity and Vexation; and at laſt he concludes with (z) this Obſervation, That the Fear of GOD, and the Keeping of his Commandments, is the Duty of all Men, Kings not excepted. For GOD ſhall bring every work into judgment, with every ſecret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil.

15. In the latter End of the Reign of Solomon, Zadok the High Prieſt died, being about eighty Years of Age, and was ſucceeded by his Son Ahimaaz, who was a (a) ſwift Runner, when Joab obtain'd the Victory over Abſalom, and over-ran Cuſhi to carry the firſt Intelligence. When the Conſpiracy was ſtrong, David depended (b) on his Fidelity to bring him the News of all that was tranſacted at Jeruſalem, which (c) he did with the Hazard of his own Life, and had no Way to eſcape but by Hiding in a Well, until they were gone by, who purſu'd him; ſo that David could ſay of him by Experience, that he was (d) a good man, and always faithful to his Intereſt. From this Circumſtance it may be ſuppos'd, that he was about fifty Years of Age when he was made High Prieſt, and continu'd in it about two and thirty Years.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 994.

16. In the laſt Year of Solomon's Reign, Semendis the King of Egypt dies, and was ſucceded by his Son Pſeuſennes, as Euſebius, or Shiſhak, as the Scripture calls him. He was a warlike Prince, and ſeems to have a particular Hatred againſt the Kings of the Houſe of David, ſo that he harbour'd all thoſe who might be inſtrumental to do them a Miſchief. Among the reſt of the Malecontents, the Principal was Jeroboam the Son of Nebat, who afterward procur'd a Revolt of the ten Tribes, and was made their King. In Solomon's Time he was the Overſeer of his Buildings, and the chief (e) Ruler of the Tribe of Joſeph, ſo that he was well known among them, and always look'd upon as a very active Man, and fit for Buſineſs. After GOD had told Solomon by the Prophet Ahijah, that he would rend the Kingdom from his Son, the ſame Prophet meets Jeroboam in the Field, and tells him, that theſe Kingdoms ſhould be given to him. Upon this Solomon deſign'd to kill Jeroboam, who to avoid his Fury flees into Egypt. There he tells Shiſhak the Uneaſineſs of the People, the Negligence of Solomon, and the Propheſy of Ahijah, and ſo they conſult together how to effect it, and enter into a mutual Confederacy for this Purpoſe.

17. It may ſeem ſtrange, that Solomon having marry'd the Daughter of Pharaoh King of Egypt, had not a ſufficient Intereſt in that Court to prevent ſuch Practices as theſe. But the Caſe was this, Hadad the King's Son of Edom was brought into Egypt at the Time of (f) the Conqueſt of that Country, which was ſome Years before (g) Solomon was born; ſo that in all Probability he was marry'd to the Siſter-in-Law of Pharaoh before Solomon came to the Crown, and therefore (h) living in the Family, and his Son being bred up with Pharaoh's Children, occaſion'd a greater Intimacy; ſo that it was not proper for Solomon to attempt a Miſunderſtanding between them. Beſides, when Hadad return'd into Edom, he might have had no other Deſign but the Living a private Life in his own Country, or if he had, Pharaoh might know nothing of it. As for the Caſe of Jeroboam, it was far different. Solomon had marry'd one of the Dynaſty of the Dioſpolites, whoſe Anceſtors liv'd at Thebes. But the Year in which Solomon finiſh'd the Temple there was a Revolution in Egypt, this Dynaſty or Succeſſion of Kings loſt the Throne, and was ſucceeded by that of the Taanites, of whom Semendis the Father of Shiſhak was the firſt King. Theſe kept their Court at Zoan, (i) an antient Town not far from the Borders of Canaan, ſo that it lay convenient to receive any who would come from thence. And therefore as it was the Intereſt of the former Kings to keep up a good Underſtanding with the Houſe of David; ſo now it was as much their Intereſt to embarraſs them, leſt their Joining with the depos'd Family in Egypt might occaſion another Revolution.

venient Place for ſuch a Purpoſe, as being in the Middle of the Kingdom. Here he ſeems to fix, to prevent an Inſurrection, tho' by this Method he gave the Malecontents a greater Opportunity of Carrying on a treaſonable Correſpondence in Egypt. This looks as if he had very little Zeal for the Temple at Jeruſalem, and the Service of GOD there. And as (k) his Mother was an Ammoniteſs, and theſe (l) Women had turn'd Solomon's Heart to have an Affection to the Idols of that Country; ſo it could not be expected, but that ſhe would breed up her own Son in the ſame Principles, or at leaſt make him look on all Religions as alike, and to be tolerated without Diſtinction. Jeroboam (m) hearing that Rehoboam was made King, and gone to live at Shechem, ſends to his Friends to offer them his Aſſiſtance at this Juncture. They ſend for him, and deſire him to act for them. Upon this (n) he comes into Canaan, where they meet with him, and concert Meaſures how to carry on their Deſigns in ſuch a Manner as might not be ſuſpected. Accordingly in the Spring of the following Year, Jeroboam and the chief of the Princes come to Shechem, where they deſire to be eas'd of the Taxes and Labours, which Solomon his Father had put upon them, and promiſe, that in ſuch a Caſe they would be his faithful Subjects. Rehoboam adviſes with the Counſellors of his Father, who perſuade him to give them good Words, and ſo to appeaſe the Tumult, and claim their Promiſe. After this he conſults others of his old Acquaintance, who perſuade him, that ſuch an Anſwer would look as if he was afraid of them, and that hard Words would frighten them to their Obedience. This Counſel Rehoboam follow'd, which ſo diſguſted the People, that they throw off all Allegiance, and declare for another King. Rehoboam ſends Adoram, who was over the Tribute, to appeaſe them, and probably to aſſure them, that their Taxes ſhould be leſſen'd. But it was now too late, for the People were ſo exaſperated, that they ſton'd him to Death without hearing what he had to ſay. Rehoboam finding by this Action, that they were in good Earneſt, and thinking himſelf no longer ſafe out of his own Tribe, he flees with the utmoſt Precipitation to Jeruſalem, by which Means he ſecures the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and the reſt of the Iſraelites ſet up Jeroboam to be their King. This ſeems to have been immediately before the Summer Solſtice, and therefore in Commemoration hereof, the Jews obſerve the three and twentieth Day of the third Month (reckoning from the Vernal Equinox) for an annual Feaſt. Upon this Rehoboam finding the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin to be faithful to him, as they had always been to the Houſe of David, he raiſes an Army of an hundred and fourſcore thouſand Men to fall upon the Iſraelites, and bring them back to his Allegiance, before their new King was fully ſettl'd upon the Throne. When they were ready to march, the Prophet Shemaiah, by the Direction of GOD, adviſeth them to deſiſt, and to return to their own Houſes, for he ſhould not bleſs their Endeavours with Succeſs. The People having a Senſe of Religion, perſuade Rehoboam not to engage any farther in ſuch a War, in which they could not but expect, that GOD would appear againſt them, and diſappoint all their Deſigns. Rehoboam hearkens to their Advice, and (o) is now intent only to ſecure himſelf in his preſent Poſſeſſions. For this Purpoſe he repairs and fortifies fifteen frontier Towns, that they might be a Security againſt thoſe who had revolted from him. He alſo builds ſeveral ſtrong Holds in the Heart of his Country, and furniſhes them with good Gariſons and Proviſions, that they might maintain a Siege. He alſo erected Magazines in ſeveral Cities, out of which the Soldiers on all Occaſions might be furniſh'd with Arms; and thus he took the utmoſt Precaution for the Security of the remaining Part of his Kingdom. And in this Manner his Subjects were employ'd during the following Winter.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 978.

19. Beſide this, he knew that many of the Iſraelites had a Zeal for their antient Religion, and the Worſhip of GOD in Jeruſalem, and therefore to encourage all ſuch to come and dwell in his Kingdom, he (p) keeps up the publick Worſhip, which occaſions many of them, and eſpecially the Prieſts and Levites, to quit their Habitations, and to fix in the Tribes of Judah and Benjamin, under Rehoboam.

20. In the mean Time Jeroboam was not idle, but he enlarg'd and beautified Shechem, where he was firſt made King, and made it his royal Seat for ſome Time; and after that he went to the other Side of Jordan, and repair'd Penuel, which (q) was antiently a fortify'd Place, and there he reſided for ſome Time, that he might the better gain the Affections of thoſe two Tribes and an half, or at leaſt (if Occaſion requir'd) he might force them to Subjection. And finding that ſome of the Iſraelites forſook him for the Sake of the Worſhip of GOD, he fear'd a total Revolt, when they went up to Jeruſalem, as all were oblig'd to do at the Feaſt of the Paſſover. To prevent this, he contrives an Alteration in Religion, and inſtead ſtead of Conſulting GOD, and Committing himſelf to him, who could and would have preſerv'd him in the Kingdom according to his Promiſe, he (r) took Counſel of ſuch as were govern'd only by Reaſons of State, and deſir'd to eſtabliſh themſelves by any wicked Inventions. The Alteration agreed upon was, that their Religion ſhould be according to the Egyptian Cuſtom, among whom Jeroboam had liv'd for ſome Time, the better to gain the Favour and Aſſiſtance of that People in Caſe of Need. And as the Egyptians had a couple of Oxen, which they worſhipp'd, viz. one call'd Apis at Memphis, the Metropolis of the upper Egypt, and another call'd Mnevis at Hierapolis, a principal Town of the lower; ſo he made two Calves of Gold, and plac'd one of them in Bethel, which was in the ſouth, and the other in Dan, which was in the north Part of the Country of Iſrael. And as (s) Bethel was in every Man's Opinion a ſacred Place, the Name it ſelf ſignifying The Houſe of GOD, and it having been conſecrated by Jacob, where GOD appear'd to him more than once; ſo Dan had been famous for (t) the Teraphim of Micah, unto which there had been a great Reſort for ſome Ages. For ſuch Reaſons as theſe he wav'd his royal City, which was Shechem, and choſe theſe two Places for the Reſidence of the divine Majeſty, whom he pretended that he did not forſake, but worſhipp'd in theſe Symbols of his Preſence. However this led them into ſoul Idolatry, it was the Sin, which Jeroboam is ſo often accus'd of in Scripture, and it began in the Year, from whence the Prophet Ezekiel dates the (u) Iniquity of the houſe of Iſrael, and reckons three hundred and ninety Years to the laſt Babyloniſh Captivity.

21. And as it is natural for People to fall from one Wickedneſs to another, ſo (x) when the Prieſts and Levites refus'd to offer Sacrifices before his Calves in Dan and Bethel, and had remov'd with their Effects into the Tribe of Judah, he caſt them out of their Offices and Poſſeſſions, and ſeiz'd upon the whole; and that he might ingratiate himſelf with his Subjects, he applies the Money to pleaſe his Favourites, and eaſe the reſt of their Taxes; and in their Places he officiated (y) ſometimes himſelf without any Call to it, and at other Times (z) he plac'd in other People without Diſtinction. And as at Jeruſalem the Prieſts and Levites were cloth'd in White, ſo here in Oppoſition many of them were cloth'd in Black, and from hence they were call'd (a) Chemarim or Blacks. And as the Jews had their Feaſt of Tabernacles on the fifteenth Day of the ſeventh Month; ſo he had a Feaſt on the fifteenth Day of the eighth, which he inſtituted of his own Accord. It is ſuppos'd, that this Feaſt being inſtituted by GOD after the Gathering in of the Fruits, which might be ſooner ripe in Jeruſalem than in the northern Parts of the Country, he pretended, that the eighth Month would be a better Time for it than the ſeventh, becauſe then they would be every where gather'd. However it is certain, that his chief Intention was to alienate the People from the Service at Jeruſalem. There are three Times mention'd, in which he perſonally attempted to offer upon the Altar: Firſt, At (b) Dan, where all Iſrael went to worſhip. Secondly, At (c) Bethel, when he offer'd a Sacrifice; and Thirdly, At the (d) ſame Place, where he attempted to offer Incenſe, but was prevented.

22. For when (e) he ſtood by the Altar for this Purpoſe, and probably at the Time of this laſt Feaſt, which he invented, there came a Prophet out of Judah, and propheſies againſt the Altar, that Joſiah, who was hereafter to reign in Judah, ſhould pollute it, and burn Mens Bones upon it; and as a Sign thereof, the Altar ſhould be rent, and the Aſhes pour'd out before it by a miraculous Power. Jeroboam being angry, ſtretch'd out his Hand, giving Directions to ſeize the Prophet, and his Hand was made ſo ſtiff, that he could not bring it back again; and the other Signs, which he had mention'd, were immediately fulfill'd. Upon this Jeroboam deſires the Aſſiſtance of the Prophet, by whoſe Prayer to GOD his Hand was reſtor'd again, and became as it was before. Here were Miracles upon Miracles, but nothing would convince one who was obſtiſtinately ſet to do evil. However it had ſuch an Effect upon him, that he (f) offer'd neither Incenſe nor Sacrifices any more, but yet (which was as bad) he deputed others to this Office. This Revolt of the ten Tribes, and their Setting up of Idolatry, and being reſtrain'd from Going to worſhip GOD at Jeruſalem, ſo ſenſibly afflicted (g) Heman the Ezrahite, one of the chief Singers in the Temple, that he ſeems to have had a very grievous Plunge of Melancholy, and therefore he pens the eighty eighth Pſalm, in which he complains moſt grievouſly of his pitiful Caſe, and at laſt concludes with (h) ſuch Words as ſeem to ſhew the Reaſon of it, My lovers and friends haſt thou put away from me, and hid my acquaintance out of my ſight.

23. Soon

23. Soon after (g) Abijah the Son of Jeroboam fell ſick, and Jeroboam perſuades his Queen to diſguiſe herſelf, and go to Ahijah the Prophet, who told him that he ſhould be King, that ſo they might know, what ſhould become of the Child. Ahijah was now blind, and therefore they thought he might eaſily be impos'd upon. But GOD diſcovers the whole to him, and he delivers the Meſſage as ſoon as he heard her coming, and before ſhe had diſcover'd herſelf, which was, That the Child ſhould die, as ſoon as ſhe came to the Gate of the City, that GOD would ſeverely puniſh the Family of Jeroboam, deſtroy them all by the Sword without Exception, inſomuch that none of them ſhould be buried; and this ſhould be done by a King of Iſrael, as ſoon as ever he came to the Throne. All which was fulfill'd by Baaſha the King of Iſrael, in the Year that Jeroboam died, as will be mention'd in its proper Place.

24. Rehoboam King of Iſrael in the mean Time (h) keeps up the publick Worſhip at Jeruſalem, more out of a Principle of State Policy, than of true Religion; ſo that it continu'd three Years. He ſaw, that by this Method many of Jeroboam's Subjects came over to him with all their Wealth. But when at the End of three Years he found it did not anſwer his Deſign, either becauſe all who had any Zeal for GOD had came already, or becauſe Jeroboam had ſo guarded all the Paſſes, that none could come, in the fourth Year of his Reign he throws off the Mask, and his evil Inclinations eſpecially (i) to Idolatry began to appear, having been educated that Way by his Mother, who was (k) an Ammoniteſs, and his (l) Example was ſoon follow'd by all his Subjects. The Scripture mentions it thus, that (m) when he thought himſelf ſafe and out of all Danger, he forſook the law of the LORD, and all his Subjects with him, For even (n) Judah did evil in the ſight of the LORD, and they provoked him to jealouſy with all their ſins, which they had commited, above all that their fathers had done. For they alſo built them high places, and images, and groves on every high hill, and under every green tree. And there were alſo Sodomites in the land, and they did according to all the abominations of the nations whom the LORD caſt out before the children of Iſrael. Such flagrant Impieties could not be long unpuniſh'd. For the next Year Shiſhak King of Egypt made an Expedition againſt Jeruſalem, being tempted thereto by the great Treaſures which David and Solomon had heap'd together. For this Expedition he gather'd together a very large Army not only out of Egypt, but alſo from the adjoining Country of Libya, from whence the whole Country of Africa took its Name. To theſe he added the Sukkyms, or a Nation who liv'd near the Red-Sea, and were call'd ſo, becauſe they liv'd in Caves and Dens of the Earth, which ſometimes in Hebrew are call'd סכות Succoth, and hence they were (o) call'd by the Greeks, Troglodytæ for the ſame Reaſon. There is no Doubt but this Matter had been concerted before between Shiſhak and Jeroboam, when he was in Egypt, and that Jeroboam had promis'd, that whenever Shiſhak would invade the Kingdom of Judah in the South, he would make a Diverſion in the North; but their Sins were not ſo ripe for Judgment, and therefore GOD's Providence diverted it till now. But now he comes with a vaſt Army, conſiſting of twelve hundred Chariots, and threeſcore thouſand Horſemen, and a proportionable Number of Footmen. Upon his entring into the Country he took the fenced Cities, which lay in his Way, and the Army being in no Condition to oppoſe his Progreſs, he marches directly to Jeruſalem, where the King and the Princes were gather'd together, as to a Place of greater Safety than the open Country. Upon this Shemaiah the Prophet acquaints them from the Mouth of GOD, that as they had forſaken him, ſo he would forſake them, and deliver them into the Hand of Shiſhak. The King and the Princes hearing this, humble themſelves, and ſorrowfully confeſs, that GOD had juſtly puniſh'd them for their Sins; and their Humiliation ſo far prevail'd with GOD, that he moderated his Anger, and reſpited the Deſtruction, which was coming upon them, and promis'd by his Prophet, that he would not ſuffer Shiſhak to do ſo much Miſchief as he intended. However he reſolv'd to let them feel the Difference between him and all other Lords and Maſters, and how much more happy they were, whilſt they continu'd to worſhip and ſerve him, than when they fell under a foreign Yoak. Shiſhak coming with ſo great an Army before Jeruſalem, the King yielded up the City (p) without Striking a Stroke. The Reaſon whereof may be this, Shiſhak ſeeing a large well fortify'd Town, could not but be willing to agree upon Articles. On the other hand, the Jews being firſt told by a Prophet, that they ſhould be deliver'd into his Hands, and that GOD would deliver them again, thought it would be in vain to reſiſt, and ſo made the beſt Terms for themſelves. The Terms ſeem to be, that they ſhould all have their Lives, and Shiſhak ſhould be content with the Plunder of the City and Country.

So

So that Shiſhak (q) took away all the treaſures of the houſe of the LORD, and all the treaſures of the kings houſe, and he carried away alſo the ſhields of gold, which Solomon had made. Inſtead of which King Rehoboam made ſhields of braſs, and committed them to the hands of the chief of the guard, that kept the entrance of the kings houſe. And when the king enter'd into the houſe of the LORD, the guard came and fetched them, and brought them again into the guard chamber. This ſhews into what a poor Condition the Kingdom of Judah was reduc'd. Theſe Shields were a Matter of State and Grandeur, and therefore it concern'd them, if they were able, to have them as grand as they were before; and as they were carry'd before the King to the Houſe of the LORD, it ſeem'd alſo to be a Matter of Religion, that the Value ſhould not be diminiſh'd. We are told, (r) that in Judah things went well. A Reformation was made in the whole Kingdom, and many good things were found among them in the midſt of their Corruption. We are told, that (s) Solomon made ſilver and gold at Jeruſalem as plenteous as ſtones; that (t) all his drinking veſſels were of gold, and all the veſſels of the houſe of the foreſt of Lebanon were of pure gold, and that none were of ſilver, becauſe it was nothing accounted of in the days of Solomon. Now (u) Solomon made three hundred ſhields of beaten gold, and three pound of gold went to one ſhield. This at four Pounds an Ounce, or forty eight Pounds Sterling to the Pound, amounts to no more than 43200; and therefore it was a miſerable Caſe, that they were reduc'd from ſo much Wealth to ſo much Poverty, that neither Reaſons of State nor Religion could raiſe ſo ſmall a Sum on ſo great an Occaſion At this Time (x) Ethan the Ezrahite (who was appointed by David with Heman, another of the ſame Family, to be two of the chief Singers in the Temple, and conſequently they muſt be of a (y) very great Age) compos'd the eighty ninth Pſalm, in which having ſpoken of (z) GOD's wonderful Care of his Church, and (a) his gracious and ſolemn Promiſes to the Houſe of David and his Poſterity, he complains (b) of contrary Events. Thou haſt caſt off and abhorred, thou haſt been wroth with thine anointed. Thou haſt made void the covenant of thy ſervant; thou haſt profaned his crown by caſting it to the ground. Thou haſt broken down all his hedges, thou haſt brought his ſtrong holds to ruin. All that paſs by the way ſpoil him; he is a reproach to his neighbours. Thou haſt ſet up the right hand of his adverſaries; thou haſt made all his enemies to rejoice. Thou haſt alſo turned the edge of his ſword; thou haſt not made him to ſtand in the battle. Thou haſt made his glory to ceaſe, and caſt his throne down to the ground. And at laſt he (c) expoſtulateth with GOD, and prayeth for Deliverance. LORD, where are thy former loving kindneſſes, which thou (d) ſweareſt unto David in thy truth? Remember, LORD, the reproach of thy ſervants; wherewith thine enemies have reproached, O LORD, wherewith they have reproached the footſteps of thine anointed. So that tho' Jeruſalem might be taken without Striking a Stroke; yet there ſeems to be a ſet Battle before Shiſhak came thither, in which the Subjects of Rehoboam were totally routed.

25. Tho' Shiſhak conquer'd the Kingdom of Judah; yet he did not meddle with the leaſt Part of the Kingdom of Iſrael, of which the Scripture Silence alone is a ſufficient Proof. Where the Scripture mentions the Sins of that Nation, it always mentions the Judgments which follow'd them, of which we need no farther Evidence than the Book of Judges. Now the Scripture fully tells us in many Places the Wickedneſs of Jeroboam, who made Iſrael to ſin; and therefore if the Country had been ravag'd by the Army, it would, no Doubt, have been mention'd as a Judgment for the ſame Reaſon. So that Shiſhak's Sparing Jeroboam's Kingdom (e) is an Argument, that he came againſt Judah by Jeroboam's Knowledge and Conſent, and probably by his Invitation, and that Matters might have been concerted long before for this Purpoſe. And that he did not abſolutely poſſeſs himſelf of the whole Country, and make it a Province tributary and ſubject to the King of Egypt, could be aſcrib'd only to the great Goodneſs of GOD. For unleſs GOD had diverted him, it was then in his Power to have extirpated the whole Nation. What diverted him is not ſaid. It might be ſome Diviſions and Inſurrections in Egypt; but as his Army conſiſted of ſeveral Nations, ſo it is moſt probable, that they differ'd among themſelves about the Dividing of ſo prodigious a Booty, and this made it neceſſary to withdraw out of an Enemy's Country, who could not but be expected to take the Advantage.

26. But as Solomon had a great Number of Wives and Concubines, who were the Cauſe of his Revolting from GOD, and of all his Misfortunes; ſo Rehoboam follow'd the ſame Example. He had (f) eighteen Wives and threeſcore Concubines, and by them he had eight and twenty Sons, and threeſcore Daughters. Many of theſe he had in the Life of Solomon, being (g) one and forty Years old at his Death; ſome of which Sons were ſo old in his Life-time, that (h) he made them Governors in chief of the fenced Cities in his Kingdom, and provided amply for them, that they might not be diſcontented, but live at Eaſe. However, he pitches upon his Son Abijah, being the eldeſt by his beloved Wife Maacah, to ſucceed him in the Throne, and thinking (i) ſeriouſly of this Matter, he diſperſes the reſt of his Sons into all Parts of the Country, that they might not be capable to raiſe a Rebellion, and the Kingdom might be confirm'd as he intended; which ſucceeded ſo well, that after (k) he had reign'd ſeventeen Years he died, and left his Son Abijah in the Poſſeſſion of the Throne.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 962.

27. Abijah exactly imitated his Father's Example. His Father had eighteen Wives, and (l) he had fourteen. His Father did not diſcountenance any Sort of Idolatry, neither did he. His Father after the Retreat of Shiſhak (m) reſtor'd the Service of the Temple, and (n) he continu'd the ſame. But becauſe this was not ſufficient (o) without Deſtroying the other, he is ſaid, (p) to have walked in all the ſins of his father, which he had done before him; and his heart was not preſent with the LORD his GOD as the heart of his father David. He conſidering, that (q) there had been wars between Jeroboam and Rehoboam his Father all the days of his life, reſolves (r) to put the Iſſue of all upon one deciſive Battle. For this Purpoſe he raiſes an Army of four hundred thouſand Men, ſo that according to (s) Joab's Computation moſt of the Men of his Kingdom were then preſent. With theſe he invaded the Kingdom of Iſrael, and march'd as far as the Hill Zemaraim in the Tribe of Ephraim, which was afterward call'd Samaria. Jeroboam finding Matters reduc'd to this Extremity, brings together all the Men in his Kingdom, being eight hundred thouſand Men, as they had been number'd in David's Time; ſo that here were the greateſt Armies which ever were brought into the Field. Abijah ſeeing them advancing toward him, and finding their Numbers to exceed what he could have imagin'd, and having the Advantage of the Ground, that he thought he could not be forc'd to fight, makes a long Speech, to ſee if Matters could be accommodated without Bloodſhed. Jeroboam little regarding his Speech, caus'd a ſtrong Detachment to march round, and intercept his Retreat, ſo that there was a Neceſſity of Fighting. Upon this all of Abijah's Army, who had any Senſe of Religion left, cried to GOD for his Aſſiſtance, and the Prieſts blew with the Trumpets, according as they had (t) been commanded, as a Sign, that they ſhould be remembred before the LORD their GOD, and ſaved from their enemies. The People hearing this Sound, and knowing the Meaning of it, gave a great Shout, as an aſſur'd Hope of Succeſs, which accordingly anſwer'd their Expectations; for in the Battle, which immediately follow'd, they kill'd five hundred thouſand of their Enemies, which was the greateſt Slaughter that was ever heard of, and a fifth Part more than they had in their own Army. Abijah purſues the Victory, and takes ſeveral Towns from Jeroboam, and particularly (u) Bethel, where he had lately ſet up one of the Calves. What he did by the Calf is not particularly mention'd, and therefore it is probable, that he left it ſtanding, that the People might worſhip it. The Scripture never fails to mention the good Deeds of the Kings of Judah, and particularly their Zeal againſt the Idolatry of the Houſe of Iſrael. The Book of Chronicles, which alone mentions the Taking of Bethel, is very favourable in the Character of the Kings of Judah. It ſaith nothing of David's Adultery with Bathſheba, or of Solomon's many Wives, or being ſeduc'd to Idolatry, and makes Abijah ſpeak (x) very much in his own Commendation, and wholly omits all his Failings, which may be the Reaſon, that he is there call'd Abijah, where the ſacred Name JAH is mention'd. But the Book of Kings ſaith, that in his Father Rehoboam's Time (y) Judah did evil in the ſight of the LORD, and they provoked him to jealouſy, with the ſins which they had committed, above all that their fathers had done. For they alſo built them high places and images and groves on every high hill, and under every green tree, and alſo (z) that this King walked in all the ſins of his father; and his heart was not perfect with the LORD his GOD, as the heart of Da- vid his father. And therefore in this Book the ſacred Word JAH is left out, and he is call'd Abijam. His not deſtroying Idolatry there is (a) ſuppos'd to be the Cauſe, that GOD ſhorten'd his Reign and Days; ſo that he liv'd not long to enjoy the Benefit of his Victory, but died (b) in the third Year of his Reign, leaving his Son Aſa to ſucceed him in the Kingdom. At this Time the Religion both of Iſrael and Judah ſeems to be State Policy. Rehoboam and Abijah (c) keep up the Worſhip of GOD at Jeruſalem to keep the Tribe of Judah to their Intereſt, and for the ſame Reaſon they (d) tolerate all Idolatry. Jeroboam ſets up the Golden Calves, for no other Reaſon but (e) to ſecure himſelf in the Kingdom; ſo that Abijah might keep up the ſame Worſhip upon the Frontiers of Iſrael, to bring their Hearts back again if they had any Zeal for this Idolatry, and therefore Jeroboam was now careful to prevent all Going up thither, by Fortifying the neighbouring Towns, ſo that his Subjects were oblig'd, if they would worſhip either of them, to (f) go as far as Dan, which was the remoteſt Part of his Kingdom. The Keeping up of the Calf in Bethel may be the Reaſon, that the Prophet Amos, upbraiding the People for Idolatry, ſaith, (g) Come to Bethel and tranſgreſs; and (h) GOD threatens by him to viſit the altars of Bethel, where Amaziah (i) was the Prieſt, and the Jews were forbidden (k) to ſeek to Bethel, becauſe when (l) Joſiah ſhould be King of Iſrael theſe Altars and Worſhip ſhould be deſtroy'd. And the Retaining this Worſhip ſeems to be the Reaſon, that (m) the Prophet Hoſea ſometimes inſtead of Calling it Bethel, or The Houſe of GOD, calls it Bethaven, or The Houſe of Iniquity.

28. In the twenty firſt Year of Jeroboam's Reign, GOD was pleas'd to viſit him (n) with ſome ſore and languiſhing Diſeaſe, that he could not manage the Concerns of the Kingdom, and therefore he was oblig'd to ſubſtitute his Son Nadab to reign with him in his Life-time, of whom we have only this Account, that (o) Nadab the ſon of Jeroboam began to reign over Iſrael in the ſecond year of Aſa king of Judah, and reigned over Iſrael two years. And he did evil in the ſight of the LORD, and walked in the way of his father, and in his ſin wherewith he made Iſrael to ſin. And Baaſha the ſon of Ahijah of the houſe of Iſſachar conſpired againſt him; and Baaſha ſmote him at Gibbethon, which belongeth to the Philiſtines (for Nadab and all Iſrael had laid ſiege to Gibbethon) Even in the third year of Aſa king of Judah did Baaſha ſlay him, and reigned in his ſtead. Gibbethon (p) was a City in the Tribe of Dan, and (q) given to the Levites, who quitted it, as they did the reſt of their Cities, when Jeroboam would not ſuffer them (r) to execute their Office, and the Philiſtines had ſeiz'd upon it, being adjoining to their Country. But Nadab now endeavour'd to recover it out of their Hands, as of Right belonging to him. However it is plain, that Jeroboam the Father and Nadab the Son died in one Year. And therefore the Propheſy of Ahijah, (s) that all Jeroboam's Poſterity ſhould be deſtroy'd without Diſtinction, and none ſhould be buried, may give ſome light to the Hiſtory. He doth not ſay, that Jeroboam ſhould not be buried; and the Scripture ſaying, that (t) he ſlept, or as it is in Hebrew, he lay down with his Fathers, plainly ſhews, that he was buried among them. It is therefore probable, that Baaſha conſpir'd againſt Jeroboam, and ſlew him at Tirzah, where (u) he liv'd. This being done, he takes all his Friends with him, and goes to the Army before Gibbethon, and the Friends and Relations of Jeroboam bury him with his Anceſtors. Baaſha being at Gibbethon, and having a ſtrong Party in the Army kills Nadab, and ſets up himſelf to govern. And then Baaſha to ſecure himſelf in the Throne, (x) ſmote all the houſe of Jeroboam, he left not to Jeroboam any that breathed, until he had deſtroyed him according to the word of the LORD, which he ſpake by his ſervant Ahijah the Shilonite; Becauſe of the ſins of Jeroboam, which he ſinned, and which he made Iſrael to ſin, by his provocation whereby he provoked the LORD GOD of Iſrael to anger.

of Judah. Asa, who (i) ſucceeded his Father and Grandfather, two wicked Kings, in the twentieth Year of Jeroboam, was of a different Temper. He made David his Pattern, and worſhipp'd GOD alone. In the Beginning of his Reign he ſeem'd (k) to have a firm and ſettl'd Peace, and made a good Uſe of it; for he built Cities of Defence in all the frontier Parts of his Kingdom, and train'd up all his Subjects in the Art of War, ſome with Targets and Spears, and ſome with Shields and Bows, to the Number of five hundred and fourſcore thouſand in all, that they might defend their own Neighbourhood, if it ſhould be invaded, and out of them there might an Army be rais'd, as Occaſion ſhould require. When he had put himſelf in the beſt Poſture of Defence, he ſeems now to be attack'd by Piritiades, who was then Emperor of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, who ſent Zerah the General of his Army with a prodigious Number of Forces. Our Tranſlation calls them (l) a thouſand thouſand, where perhaps a large certain Number may be put for one that is very great but uncertain. The Hebrew Phraſe may be tranſlated thus, (m) He came with a force, as of a thouſand thouſand men, or an irreſiſtible Force, ſo that what was wanting in Number was made up in Courage, Strength and Conduct. The Hebrew Text calls them (n) Cuſhites, and their General (o) a Cuſhite. Now it is certain, that neither the Cuſhites who are ſuppos'd to be in Æthiopia, nor the Cuſhites near the Red-Sea could bring ſuch an Army into the Field, and therefore it muſt mean the Aſſyrian Monarchy, which was firſt eſtabliſh'd by Nimrod the Son of Cuſh, and by his Offspring. Beſides, Zerah the Name of their General ſignifies (p) The Eaſt or Sunriſing, and therefore plainly intimates, that he came from thoſe Countries, or from Babylon, and not from the other Cuſhites, which lay ſouthward from the Land of Canaan. When his Army march'd, he could not invade the Kingdom of Judah from the North, becauſe the Tribes of Iſrael lay in his Way, and therefore he came from the ſouthern Parts, that ſo he might be reinforc'd with the Idumæans, Moabites, Egyptians, Philiſtines, and even (q) the Libyans, which lay more remote, and ſo ſwallow up all at once. With this Army he marches to (r) Mareſhah a City in (s) the ſouth Borders of the Tribe of Judah. Aſa hearing of this would not ſtay till they had enter'd his Country very far, but goes out to fight them, and ſeeing their Multitudes, put up a very earneſt Petition to GOD, who heard his Prayers and gave him ſuch a ſignal Victory, that he took all the Plunder of the Field, purſu'd them to Gezer a City of the Philiſtines, and took and ſpoil'd the Cities, that were round about it. They alſo took their Tents, their Cattle, their Sheep, and particularly their Camels, which join'd Zerah in his March from Babylon thro' Arabia, and ſo return'd in Triumph to Jeruſalem. This was (t) in the tenth Year of the Reign of Aſa, and after this he enjoy'd a Peace for five Years longer.

31. At this Time Azariah the Son of Oded a Prophet probably foreſeeing the Calamities, which were coming on that Kingdom by a War with the Iſraelites, encourages (u) Aſa to go on in the Worſhip and Service of GOD, with a Promiſe of Deliverance out of all their Troubles according to the Examples of former Ages. Aſa upon this takes Courage, and deſtroys all that (x) could be convicted of Sodomy (a Vice which begun in his Grandfather's Days) and brake all the Idols to Pieces which he could diſcover, and enters into a ſolemn Covenant with GOD to the great Satisfaction of his Subjects, that they ſhould all ſerve him in Truth and with perfect Hearts. And to ſhew his Impartiality, he (y) remov'd his own Mother Maacah from the Court, and forbad her coming near to his Queen, that ſhe might not be infected with her Idolatry; and underſtanding that his Mother had ſet up an Idol in a Grove, he cut it down, and ſtamp'd upon it, and having burnt it, he threw the Aſhes of it into the Brook Kidron, (z) as Moſes did by the molten Calf. He did all that he could; but he could not do all that he would. He took away all the High Places, in which they ſacrific'd to ſtrange Gods, but he could not take away thoſe in which the true GOD was worſhipp'd, the People having ſo univerſally and ſo long taken this Licenſe, that the Reſtraining of them to the Temple at Jeruſalem could not be attempted until the Days of Hezekiah. And having found that (a) his Father Abijah had by a Vow dedicated unto the LORD a Part of the Spoils, which he took in the War with Jeroboam, but did not live long enough to make it good, he fully perform'd the ſame; and having gotten a great Spoil in his War with the Ethiopians, he alſo devoted a conſiderable Part of it for the ſame Purpoſe, ſo that the ſacred Treaſury began to be augmented.

32. However at the End of this Year, being (b) the fifteenth Year of Aſa's Reign, or (c) the five and thirtieth Year from the Reign of Rehoboam, freſh Storms began to ariſe. Baaſha King of Iſrael now prepares to make War, and Aſa prepares to defend himſelf. The Occaſion of the Quarrel was Baaſha's Obſerving (d) that his Subjects revolted to Aſa in great Numbers, when they obſerv'd that GOD bleſs'd him with Succeſs upon his Advancement. This he was reſolv'd to endure no longer, and therefore early in the next Spring (e) he fortifies Ramah, a Town in the Tribe of Benjamin, not far from Bethel, which ſeems to have gone off together with the reſt of the Iſraelites to Jeroboam, the golden Calf being nearer to them than Jeruſalem. Thus he reſolves to cut off all Communication between his People and the People of Judah, the Place lying in ſuch a Strait, that a Fortification made there would hinder all Paſſing to and fro without Leave. His Deſign was to prevent the Iſraelites from Going to worſhip the golden Calf in Bethel, which he had firſt plac'd there, and that the curſed Stratagem he had firſt began, might not be turn'd to his Diſadvantage, and ſo alienate his Subjects from him. Aſa hearing of this, and Fearing worſe Conſequences, reſolves to give him a Diverſion, if poſſible, on the other Side. For this Purpoſe he ſends all the Silver and Gold, which he could ſpare of his own, and which he had devoted to pious Uſes, to Ben-hadad the King of Syria, who dwelt at Damaſcus, that ſo he might engage him in a new War with the King of Iſrael. Benhadad knowing that Baaſha's Forces were in the ſouthern Parts, falls immediately upon the northern, which lay neareſt to his own Dominions, and takes a great Part of the Tribe of Naphthali with the adjacent Countries. By this Method Aſa compaſs'd his Ends, it being not ſafe for Baaſha to let his Men continue in thoſe Parts, leſt he ſhould pay dear for it in another Place. Upon this Aſa ſummons all the People of the Country, who come and demoliſh all the Works, which were made at Ramah, a Town which he could not well keep, unleſs he had taken ſome other neighbouring Places, which he was not willing to do, leſt it might occaſion a long War, and he being much more deſirous to live in Peace. However he carried off the Timber, and what was fit for Uſe, and with thoſe Materials he fortify'd his frontier Towns in the Tribe of Benjamin to prevent a Surprize.

Anno ante CHTISTUM 943.

33. But Aſa's Sending to Ben-hadad the King of Syria for Succour was not to be excus'd at that Time. It was a Diſtruſt of the Goodneſs of GOD for Help, when he lately had ſuch an Experiment of his Aſſiſtance in Conquering that vaſt Army which came againſt him; and inſtead hereof he calls to his Aid an infidel and an impious King. GOD (f) ſends Hanani the Prophet to reprove him for this, and to tell him, that becauſe he relied on the Creature more than on the Creator, therefore the Remainder of his Life ſhould be ſpent in Wars and Troubles, and he ſhould not have that Succeſs which he expected. Aſa inſtead of Thanking or Rewarding the Prophet was angry at him, and put him in Priſon, which made his Caſe much worſe. And in the latter Part of his Reign being full of Pride and Paſſion, he (g) grew tyrannical over his own Subjects, which alienated their Affections from him, and ſo was the viſible Cauſe of his Troubles. What theſe Wars were, we are not particularly told, tho' without Doubt they (h) were between the Houſe of Iſrael and Judah, which at laſt ended without any famous Actions done on either ſide.

34. But to return to the Hiſtory of Baaſha. If we may ſuppoſe, that the (i) four and twenty Years of his Reign were complete Years, then as (k) he began to reign in the third Year of Aſa's Reign, ſo he died in the twenty ſeventh, which was the (l) very Year, that Elah his Son was ſlain; and then his Hiſtory, and that of Jeroboam his Predeceſſor, are ſo like, that it needs little more than the Alteration of Names to make the one ſerve for the other. Jeroboam made Iſrael to ſin; and Baaſha (m) walk'd in the Way of Jeroboam. Abijah (n) propheſied againſt Jeroboam, and Jehu the Son of Hanani (o) propheſies the very ſame Words againſt Baaſha. Nadab the Son of Jeroboam (p) reign'd two Years, and Elah the Son of Baaſha (q) did the ſame. Both the Fathers, and both their Sons, died in the ſame Year, after each of them had been their Father's Viceroys. And they were all ſlain by the Conſpiracy of him, who immediately ſeiz'd the Kingdom, and ſlew all their Poſterity, from the ſame Principle of human Policy, and in ſuch a Manner, that they had not the Favour of a decent Funeral. And more particularly, both (r) Nadab the Son of Je- roboam, and Elah the Son of Baaſha were ſlain, tho' at twenty four Years Diſtance, when the whole Army of the Iſraelites were encamp'd againſt Gibbethon, to take it from the Philiſtines. The Story is thus: Elah the Son of Baaſha, when he was deputed by his Father to reign under him, was a very unactive Prince, and wholly given to his Pleaſure. For this Reaſon there is no Mention made (r) of his Might, as (s) there was of his Father's. When the Army was at Gibbethon, he was not at the Head of them, (as (t) Nadab the Son of Jeroboam was) but (u) at Tirzah his Palace; and inſtead of Conſulting there what to do for the Carrying on the War, he ſeems to take no Care of any thing. So that on a particular Day (x) drinking himſelf drunk, he gave an Opportunity to Zimri, a conſiderable Commander in his Army, to conſpire againſt him and kill him, and by the Help of ſome Friends at Tirzah to uſurp the Throne. Immediately upon this he (y) ſlew all the houſe of Baaſha, (having probably ſlain both Father and Son together at that drunken Entertainment) and left them not any of their kinsfolks, nor of their friends. Thus did Zimri deſtroy all the houſe of Baaſha, according to the word of the LORD, which he ſpake againſt Baaſha by Jehu the prophet. For all the ſins of Baaſha, and the ſins of Elah his ſon, by which they ſinned, and by which they made Iſrael to ſin, in provoking the LORD GOD of Iſrael to anger with their vanities.

35. Whilſt Zimri was ſecuring his Intereſt at Tirzah, he took no Care to bring the Army at Gibbethon to declare for him; ſo that (z) when they heard the News, they declare Omri their General to be their King, who immediately raiſeth the Siege of Gibbethon, and came to beſiege Zimri in Tirzah, and having taken the City, Zimri finding no Hope goes into the Palace, burns it to the Ground, and periſhes in it. So that his Reign was but ſeven Days, and ſo many Days of Trouble and Vexation; which made Jezebel ſay to Jehu after the Murder of Ahab (a), Had Zimri peace, who ſlew his maſter? However (b) Omri found it not ſo eaſy to get to the Throne, as he expected, for half of the Iſraelites declar'd for Tibni the Son of Ginah to make him King, which occaſion'd a civil War for four Years, and makes a very different Computation of his Reign. In one Place it is ſaid, (c) that he was made King over Iſrael in the twenty and ſeventh Year of Aſa King of Judah, becauſe he was then declar'd King by the Army, and from hence his (d) twelve Years Reign is dated. In another Place it is ſaid, (e) that he began to reign over Iſrael in the thirty and firſt Year of Aſa, becauſe about the latter End of that Year he had ſlain Tibni, and ſo he reign'd without a Competitor. In this Year coming to Tirzah, which ſeems to have taken the Part of Tibni, and to have held out againſt him till that Time, and finding the royal Palace burnt, he, to ſhew his Reſentments, reſolv'd not to live among them, and accordingly (f) two Years after this he buys a Hill of Shemer, and there he builds a Palace where he liv'd, which was ſoon increas'd to a City, and made ever after the Reſidence of the King of Iſrael, and (g) the Place where he and his Succeſſors were afterward buried. And the Name of the Owner of it before he bought it being Shemer, he call'd it in Hebrew Shomeron, and from thence it was call'd Samaria by the Greeks, and in our Tranſlation. There is nothing more recorded of him, but that he was a wicked King, and (h) did worſe than all before him. For he not only walk'd in the Way of Jeroboam, but it is likely that he began to introduce other Idolatries, which are therefore call'd (i) the Works of the houſe of Ahab, and that he alſo compell'd the People to worſhip the Calves, and reſtrain'd them by ſevere Laws from Going up to Jeruſalem, which may be meant by (k) the ſtatutes of Omri. He died in (l) the thirty eighth Year of Aſa King of Judah, and was Succeeded by his Son Ahab. Anno ante CHRISTUM 928.

36. There is nothing more recorded of Aſa until (m) the thirty ninth Year of his Reign, when he was ſeiz'd with a violent Diſeaſe in his Feet. He is ſuppos'd to have put the Prophet's Feet in the Stocks; and by this he might know, that (n) in the ſame Manner that a Man ſins, he ſhall alſo be puniſh'd. If this might be his Opinion, then he could not but look upon GOD as his Enemy, and this might be the Reaſon, that in his Diſeaſe he ſought not to the LORD but to the Phyſicians, which he could not but think of, and perhaps too much, becauſe his own Name in the Chaldee Language ſignifies a Phyſician. Thus he ſtill put his Confidence in Man more than in GOD, which was the Cauſe that he died of that Diſtemper at two Years End, and was honourably buried by his Subjects, as a grateful Acknowledgment of the many Deliverances from their Enemies, which the Iſraelites obtain'd during his Reign. 37. Jehoſhaphat,

37. Jehoſhaphat, who ſucceeded his Father Aſa in Judah, was a good King, and (o) reign'd five and twenty Years; ſo that during the Reign of both, here was a conſiderable Space of Time to carry on a Reformation. He had a very generous Reſolution to promote the Worſhip of GOD, and all Goodneſs, and GOD bleſs'd him accordingly in all his Undertakings. He (p) put his Kingdom into a good Poſture of Defence againſt the King and People of Iſrael, who had given his Father ſo great a Diſturbance. In (q) the third Year of his Reign he ſent Prieſts and Levites to read and expound the Law of GOD to the People, and thereby to inſtruct them in the Knowledge and Practice of their Duty; and after this he (r) diſciplin'd all that were capable of Bearing Arms, and made them expert in the Art of War. Their Number in all is reckon'd (s) to be eleven hundred and ſixty thouſand Men, whereas (t) in David's Time the Men of Judah were but five hundred thouſand. But tho' it is not impoſſible, that in an hundred Years Time the Number of Inhabitants may be double to what they were before; yet there may be other Reaſons for their Increaſe. The Tribe of Benjamin is (u) reckon'd in the Number, becauſe they kept to the Houſe of David, and (x) Part of the Tribe of Ephraim, and (y) probably the Tribe of Simeon alſo, who were not (z) diſpers'd in other Parts of Iſrael, but lay in their own Country on the South of Judah, and at a very great Diſtance from thoſe which were under the Kings of Iſrael. And beſide this, when Jeroboam thruſt out (a) the Prieſts and Levites from Officiating in the Service of the LORD, they left his Country, and came to live under the Government of the Kings of Judah, as did all (b) others who were piouſly diſpos'd, when they found that they might be encourag'd in Worſhipping of GOD at Jeruſalem. Neither was the Providence of GOD wanting to provide for them; for the Philiſtines his Neighbours purchas'd their Peace by bringing him Preſents, and voluntarily paid their Tribute, which it is ſuppos'd that they had neglected in the Time of his Predeceſſors. And the Arabians, (c) whoſe Riches conſiſted in Cattle, put themſelves under his Protection, and brought him ſeven thouſand and ſeven hundred Rams, and as many He-goats every Year for a Preſent, beſides what he bought of them with his Money. About four Years after, Jehoſhaphat's Proſperity made him forget his Duty, for he marry'd his (d) Son Jehoram to Athaliah the Daughter of Ahab King of Iſrael, having a Conceit (as it is ſuppos'd) that by this Marriage he might again unite the two Kingdoms of Iſrael and Judah, tho' the Effect was only the Involving of him in Wars, and very great Troubles to his Family and his Kingdom, That this Marriage was ſolemniz'd about this Time is evident, becauſe the Year following Jehoram had a Son, who (e) at two and twenty Years of Age ſucceeded him in the Kingdom, as will appear in its proper Place.

38. This Ahab, whoſe Daughter the Son of Jehoſhaphat married, was a very wicked King, and a more abominable Idolater than his Father Omri. He (f) married Jezebel, the Daughter of Ethbaal King of the Zidonians. He is call'd by profane Writers (g) Ithobalus, both which Names ſignify The Strength of Baal, and is the eighth King in (h) the Catalogue of the Kings of Tyre. It is certain, that (i) from the Beginning Tyre and Sidon were ſubject to the ſame King, and it is probable, that both of them being famous Cities, and not far diſtant, he might ſometimes reſide at each. He was the Prieſt of Aſtarte, or Aſhtaroth, the Wife of Ham, and (k) the Goddeſs of the Zidonians. And as (l) Ham himſelf was by the Phænicians call'd Baal or Lord, becauſe he had reſided ſometimes among them as their King, ſo he was alſo worſhipp'd among them by the Name of Baal, and was the very ſame with the European Jupiter: And as Sidon was ſituated on the Sea, ſo this Baal was call'd by the Greeks, (m) The marine Jupiter. Jezebel being zealous this Way, ſeduces her Husband Ahab into the ſame Idolatry; and tho' he might think it a Diſhonour to worſhip a Woman, yet he made no Scruple to worſhip Baal, as being of his own Sex. For (n) he built a Temple for this God in Samaria, and ſet up an Altar, where he ſacrific'd to him. This was a much more direct Worſhipping and Serving other Gods, than any Idolatry which the Children of Iſrael had practis'd before him.

him. Beſides, Ahab (n) made a Grove, and this was another Abomination, that (o) GOD had commanded to be aboliſh'd. In ſuch Places all Manner of Impurities were acted, the more effectually to bring over all vile and debauch'd Perſons to ſuch a Religion as was agreeable to their Luſts. And the Encouragement of this was the Cauſe of all thoſe filthy Stories, which were recorded of their Gods in the heathen Poets. (p) In his Time Hiel, who liv'd at Bethel the very Seat of Idolatry, and one who is ſuppos'd to be deeply infected with it, built Jericho, notwithſtanding that Joſhua had (q) curs'd that Man who ſhould be guilty of it, it being devoted to GOD as the firſt Fruits of the Conqueſts of the Land of Canaan. It is probable, that Jezebel ſtirr'd him up to this in Contempt of the true GOD, and to let the World ſee, that all was as nothing which was mention'd in his Name. Hiel undertakes the Work, believing no other GOD but Baal, or at leaſt believing him to be ſuperior to all others. But he found to his Sorrow, that the Sentence which Joſhua had pronounc'd prov'd true, and that it was not in the Power of Baal to prevent it. For his eldeſt Son died when he laid the firſt Stone, and all the reſt of his Children one after another as the Building advanc'd, and at laſt his youngeſt Son died, when it was finiſh'd.

39. In the Midſt of this deplorable State, GOD was pleas'd to ſend them a Prophet call'd Elijah. The Prophet Malachi tells us, that (r) He (that is one like him) ſhould be the Forerunner of CHRIST, and prepare the Way before him. Our SAVIOUR himſelf ſaith, that (s) this was fulfill'd by John the Baptiſt, of whom an Angel ſaid to his Father, (t) that he ſhould go before him in the ſpirit and power of Elias. There is not the leaſt Mention of his Parents in Scripture; but as he was a Type of John the Baptiſt; ſo we may conclude, that (u) they were both righteous before GOD, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the LORD blameleſs, and (x) that he might be of the Race of the Prieſts. They took care to breed him up in the true Religion, of which his Name Elijahu in Hebrew is a ſufficient Demonſtration in thoſe terrible Times, which is compounded of three (y) Words, and ſignifies The LORD is my GOD. He being griev'd to ſee ſuch a general Apoſtaſy from the true Religion (z) prayed earneſtly to GOD to ſhew ſome viſible Token of his Diſpleaſure, and particularly that there might be a general Drought, which continued (a) for three years and ſix months, and he was ſo fully aſſur'd that GOD had heard his Prayer, that he (b) told Ahab, that all his falſe Prieſts and Prophets ſhould not be able to bring Rain, until he pray'd to GOD to ſend it. For the better Computing of this Time we muſt conſider, that as Egypt had uſually no Rain but was water'd by the River Nile; ſo the Land of Canaan had uſually no Rain, except twice a Year, which they call'd (c) the early and the latter rain. The firſt of theſe was in the Month Niſan, which anſwers to our March, and the other in the Month Marheſhvan, which anſwers to our October. Now this Drought began in the Beginning of October, and ended in the following April after three Years Diſtance, becauſe at that Time (d) Ahab and Obadiah went into all the land, unto all fountains of water and unto all brooks, to find graſs to ſave the horſes and mules alive, which they might better expect to find in the Spring than in the Fall of the Year. It is ſuppos'd, that Ahab imputed the Want of Rain at the firſt to a natural Cauſe which Elijah knew, but they did not, and therefore he did not ſeek to kill him. But before the Seaſon for the Rain in the Spring (e) Elijah thought it not ſafe to ſtay there any longer, and ſo by GOD's particular Direction he goes to the Brook Cherith, which is (f) ſuppos'd to be the River Kana (g) mention'd in Joſhua, on the eaſt Side of Jordan, above the Lake of Geneſareth, and ſo call'd from the Multitude of the Reeds, where Eliſha lay hid for ſome Time. At the Fall of the Leaf this Drought did not only affect the Land of Canaan but alſo the Kingdom of Tyre and Sidon, and therefore (h) Joſephus ſaith, that Menander ſpeaks of it in the Hiſtory of Ithobaal a King of the Tyrians, That in his Time there was an extream Drought for Want of Rain, that laſted from (i) the Month Hyperberetæus till the ſame Month again in the next Year, and that there were Prayers put up for the Averting of the Judgment, which were follow'd with mighty Claps of Thunder. During this Time Elijah was miraculouſly fed by the Ravens, who brought him both Bread and Meat twice a Day. After Elijah had (k) been there a full Year the Brook dried up, ſo that Elijah was forc'd to go to drink at the River Jordan, and he could no longer be hid in the Reeds. Upon this GOD (l) directs him to go to Zarephath or (m) Sarepta a City of Sidon, where he had order'd a widow Woman to entertain him. Elijah goes thither, and begs of her both Bread and Water. She complains of the Drought and of her Poverty, that ſhe had only a little Oil, and a ſmall Quantity of Meal. Elijah aſſures her that it ſhould be ſufficient until GOD ſhould ſend Rain, which happen'd accordingly, for both the Meal and the Oil, with which they made their Bread, were miraculouſly preſerv'd, until the following Autumn, when GOD for the ſake of the Prophet Elijah ſupplied that Country with Rain, tho' the Drought continu'd in the Land of Canaan. Elijah ſtays with this Widow two full Years, during which Time he (n) raiſeth her Son to Life as a grateful Reward for her Kindneſs. And (o) in the Beginning of the third Year, he goes from thence into the Land of Iſrael. There were five Months between the latter Rain in October and the early Rain in March. When this Time came there was no Rain in its uſual Seaſon. This increaſes the Conſternation of the Iſraelites, and now Ahab (p) gives Directions to Obadiah, and probably to many more of his Servants, to ſearch for Graſs near to all the Rivers and Springs, to ſupply their preſent Neceſſities; and to ſee that his Orders might be fully executed, he goes himſelf with ſome of them, particularly with Obadiah. It happen'd, that they parted at a particular Place, when Elijah meets Obadiah, and asks of him, that he might be admitted to ſpeak with Ahab; which being obtain'd, he deſires that there might be a Meeting of the principal People of Iſrael, and all the Prophets of Baal, and he would come to them at the ſame Time. Elijah had told them before, that there ſhould (q) be no Rain until he did particularly ſpeak of it. There had now been three full Years and above five Months ſince the Time that the Heavens had been ſhut up at the uſual Time of Rain, and all that Baal's Prieſts could do to obtain it was to no Purpoſe; ſo that in this Neceſſity all were willing to come, in Expectation of being reliev'd by ſome Method which Elijah ſhould propoſe. It was now near a Month before they could all be brought together, which made three Years and ſix Months in the whole. Elijah now propoſes an Experiment, by which they ſhould know who was the true GOD, either the LORD JEHOVAH or Baal, which was to prepare two Sacrifices, one for the Prieſts of Baal, and another for him; and when they had laid them upon the Wood, the true GOD ſhould be known by ſending Fire from Heaven to conſume it. The whole Multitude agree to this Propoſal, and the Prieſts of Baal begin to cry to him without any Succeſs. But upon Elijah's Prayer, all was conſum'd by Fire from Heaven. The People convinc'd by this Miracle, cry out unanimouſly, The LORD he is the GOD, The LORD he is the GOD. This happen'd to be near Mount Carmel, a Place bordering on the Mediterranean Sea, in the Tribe of Zebulun, to the north of the River Kiſhon. Elijah upon this orders all the People to ſeize the Prophets of Baal, which they did, as Cheats and Impoſtors, and brought them down to the River Kiſhon, where they were all ſlain; and it is probable, that their Bodies were thrown into the River, and Ahab could make no Oppoſition, being himſelf aſtoniſh'd at the Miracle. Upon this Elijah propheſies to Ahab, that there ſhould be Rain, and to obtain it he goes himſelf to the Top of Carmel, and tho' it was a Month beyond the uſual Seaſon of the former Rain, ſo that it could be the leſs expected, yet (r) he prayed again, and the heavens gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit, and they had in due Time as great a Plenty as they had before.

39. When Ahab had (s) told Jezebel by what Method Elijah had ſlain the Prophets, ſhe was in a Rage, and ſent him Word, that he had not above a Day to live, but his Life ſhould pay for theirs. Upon this he went to to the ſouthern Part of Judah to a Town call'd Beerſheba, but not thinking himſelf ſafe there, becauſe Jehoſhaphat the King of that Country had married his Son to a Daughter of Ahab, he goes from thence into the Wilderneſs, where he is directed by an Angel to go to Horeb the Mount of GOD, or the Place where GOD at firſt deliver'd his Law to Moſes. Here he comes to a Cave, and intending to ſpend the reſt of his Days there in a retir'd Life, he had a Viſion, which aſſur'd him, that the Number of the true Worſhippers of GOD were much greater than he imagin'd, and that GOD would take Vengeance on the Houſe of Ahab for their abominable Idolatry. For this End he is directed to return into Iſrael by the Way of Damaſcus, which was far round about, and there to declare Hazael to be King of Syria, and alſo Jehu to be King of Iſrael, and Eliſha to ſucceed him as a Prophet. Upon this Elijah fetches a Compaſs round the Dead Sea, and paſſing over Jordan about Bethabarah he goes to Abelmelolah, where Eliſha liv'd, which lay weſt from the Sea of Galilee in the Tribe of Zebulun. Here he finds Eliſha, who liv'd in that Town, at Plough, and caſts his Mantle upon him, which was a Sign that he ſhould be his Companion, and ſucceed him in the Prophetick Office. Eliſha knew the Meaning of this, and as ſoon as he could ſettle his Concerns, he goes with Elijah, and was his Servant as long as he liv'd, ſo that Elijah did not think it neceſſary to go to Damaſcus upon the Account of Hazael, or to ſpeak with Jehu in Iſrael, but he left thoſe Concerns to be tranſacted by Eliſha, when a fit Opportunity ſhould preſent. And as the Text ſaith, that (t) Eliſha miniſtred unto Elijah; ſo it is not improbable, but that he (u) maintain'd him at his Houſe, until he was call'd forth by GOD to a more publick Office.

40. In the eighteenth Year of Ahab's Reign Ben-hadad (x) the King of Syria raiſes a great Army with a Deſign to make War againſt Ahab. As his Name ſignifies The Son of Hadad; ſo ſome have ſuppos'd, that he was of the Family of Hadad the Edomite, who came (y) from Egypt in the End of Solomon's Reign to recover his own Country, but failing in that Deſign, he ſeiz'd upon Damaſcus, and was made King there. But as there is not the leaſt Proof hereof, and there was another (z) King of Edom at this Time; ſo we may rather ſuppoſe, that this King was of the Poſterity of Hadad the Edomite, and that the King of Damaſcus was of another Family. In the latter End of Solomon's Reign (a) Rezon the Son of Eliadah reign'd over Syria in Damaſcus, and as both he and Hadad were utter Enemies to Solomon, ſo we may ſuppoſe that there was an intire Friendſhip and a League between them. This might be the Cauſe, that a (b) Son in the Family of Rezon might be call'd Hadad, and one of his Children Ben-hadad. Or however, his Genealogy may be thus computed. This Ben-hadad was (c) the Son of Ben-hadad, another of the ſame Name, he was the Son of Tabrimon, the Son of Hezion, who is (d) ſuppos'd to be (e) Rezon the firſt King of Syria, who dwelt at Damaſcus. His Father had (f) taken ſeveral Cities from the Iſraelites, and had made them Tributaries to the Syrians. This Tribute it is probable Ahab refus'd to pay, and ſo Ben-hadad made War againſt him to force him to it. That he might make ſure Work at once, he marches with his Army to beſiege Samaria the capital City. In his March he ſends a haughty Meſſage to Ahab to demand all that belong'd to him for Satisfaction. Ahab being in no Condition to oppoſe him ſubmits to his Demand. This Submiſſion makes Ben-hadad more inſolent, and then he ſends another Meſſage to demand all that belong'd to his Subjects. Ahab before he would conſent to this, calls a general Council of the great Men of the Kingdom to adviſe what to do. He tells them how far he had complied, and he found, that nothing which he granted did give Satisfaction. His Subjects unanimouſly promiſe to ſtand by him to the laſt Extremity. Upon this Ben-hadad in a Rage threatens their utter Ruin, and orders his Soldiers to beſiege Samaria. A Prophet is ſent to Ahab from GOD, to aſſure him of a Victory, and by what Methods, which ſucceeded accordingly, and Ben-hadad himſelf was forc'd to flee to ſave his own Life. The Prophet comes again to the King, and adviſeth him to recruit his Army with the utmoſt Diligence becauſe the Syrians would make another Attempt in the Beginning of the next Year. The next Year Ahab, by the Prophet's Encouragement, obtains a ſecond Victory, and kill'd an hundred thouſand Footmen in one Day, in the Tribe of Aſher, not far from Tyre, where GOD, to ſhew that his Providence was engag'd againſt them, caus'd a Wall to fall down, and kill ſeven and twenty thouſand more of their Soldiers at one Time, which ſo frighten'd Ben-hadad, that he fled into a ſecret Place, where he thought he could not eaſily be found. Ben-hadad ſends Embaſſadors in the moſt humble Manner, to deſire a Peace, and offers to reſtore all the Country, which his Father Ben-hadad had (g) taken from Baaſha King of Iſrael, in the Tribe of Naphtali and the adjacent Country, and that he ſhould have ſeveral Privileges in Damaſcus their capital City, as a Token of their Homage and Subjection, and a Security of their good Behaviour. Ahab very raſhly makes a League with him, and ſends him home. Upon this a Prophet (h) reproves him, and tells him, that the Victory was GOD's, and the Spoil and Priſoners were his, and therefore he ought to have done nothing farther in this Matter without Conſulting of GOD; that if Ahab had conſulted him, the Anſwer would have been, that Ben-hadad ſhould have been kill'd, and his Dominions annex'd to the Kingdom of Iſrael. But becauſe he had acted otherwiſe, therefore his Life ſhould pay for the Life of Ben-hadad, for he ſhould be ſlain in a Battle with the Syrians, and inſtead of the Iſraelites being Maſters of the Syrians, when Hazael came to be their King, he ſhould take their Towns from them, and make Ravages in their Country.

41. The next Year after this (h) Ahab covets Naboth's Vineyard, and proposes to buy it of him. This Naboth refuses, because (i) the Law of Moses was against it. Jezebel contrives to have Naboth ston'd as a Traitor by a false Accusation, and so Ahab goes to take Possession. GOD sends Elijah to meet him there, whom Ahab, conscious of his Guilt, now looks upon to be his Enemy. Elijah declares himself an Enemy not to Ahab's Person but to his Vices, against which he declares this heavy Sentence, that (k) in the place where dogs licked up the blood of Naboth they should lick his blood; that all his Posterity should die by the Sword, and lie expos'd without the Honour of a decent Funeral, and that (l) the Dogs should eat Jezebel by the wall of Jezreel, where Naboth was judg'd and unjustly condemn'd. Ahab upon this shews great Tokens of Sorrow and Humiliation, insomuch that the Prophet Elijah was told by GOD, that the Sentence pronounc'd should not be executed in his Days, but in the (m) Days of his Son Jehoram, who was kill'd by Jehu, as it follows in the Course of the History; tho' (n) at the Death of Ahab there were sufficient Tokens to shew, that these Prophesies were not in vain.

42. In the next Year, which was (o) the third Year inclusive, after the Treaty of Ben-hadad, Jehoshaphat having an Affinity with Ahab, comes to Samaria to pay him a Visit. Ahab complains that Ben-hadad had not perform'd his Part of the Contract, and particularly, that Ramoth-gilead in the Tribe of Gad had not been surrender'd, and therefore since they had it not by fair Means, thay ought to take it by Force. Jehoshaphat declares, that he would go with him in Person to the Battle, and assist him with all his Army both Horse and Foot. They do nothing that Year, except the Raising of Forces for the next.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 900.

The next Year, being (p) three Years after the Treaty, and about the same Time of the Year, when Kings go out to Battle, or in the Spring, they take the Field. Jehoshaphat being willing to know the Event of this War, desires Ahab to enquire of the Prophets concerning it. Now there were (q) four hundred Prophets of the Groves, which did eat at Jezebel's Table, and were not destroy'd when Elijah slew the Prophets of Baal. These Ahab calls together, and asks of them, If he should go against Ramoth-gilead, or not? They all being (r) deluded by a lying Spirit, encourage him to go on, with a Promise of Success. Jehoshaphat's Design being to inquire of the Prophets of the LORD, not of Baal, asks, if there was not one of those to inquire of. Ahab tells him of Micaiah, but was with Difficulty persuaded to send for him, who speaks of Ahab's Death, and a succeeding Peace. Ahab to prevent this disguiseth himself, and places Jehoshaphat in his Room. The King of Syria had given a particular Command to his Generals to single out Ahab, and if possible to kill him, as the Author of the War. They mistake Jehoshaphat for the King of Israel, and all resolve to fall upon him. Jehoshaphat being in Danger cried to GOD, who (s) assisted him in his Need, and so order'd it, that when the Generals found, that he was not the King of Israel, they went from him in Pursuit of Ahab, and probably with an Agreement, that all Hostilities should cease on both Sides. However Ahab was wounded by a chance Arrow, so that the Blood ran into the Chariot, and he died in it. As soon as Jehoshaphat had receiv'd Advice thereof, he orders all the Army to retreat; and as soon as the Syrians heard of it, they also retreated, and so a Peace soon follow'd. The Guider of the Chariot brings the dead Body to Samaria, and washes the Chariot in (t) a Pool, which was near the Vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, where the Dogs lick'd up the Blood, which was mix'd with the Water, according as (u) Elijah had foretold.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 901.

43. It was a full Year before Ahab's Death, or (x) the seventeenth Year of Jehoshaphat King of Judah, when Ahab deputed his Son Ahaziah to rule as his Viceroy, from which Time his Reign is dated in Scripture. He reign'd but (y) two Years current; so that (z) his Brother Jehoram began to reign in the eighteenth Year of Jehoshaphat, which was the Year that his Father Ahab died, and probably very soon after his Death, if not before, and therefore this Year was reckon'd his first. This Ahaziah was a very wicked King, so addicted to Idolatry, that he (a) walked in the ways of his father Ahab, and of his mother Jezebel, and also in the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and he served Baal and worshipped him, and provoked to anger the LORD GOD of Israel, according to all that his father had done. Whilst Ahab and Jehoshaphat were at the Battle of Ramoth-gilead, he had (b) a Fall from an upper Chamber in Samaria, and was in a dangerous Condition. It is probable, that he conſulted the Prieſts of all the Gods, which he had worſhipp'd, but they not knowing what would happen were afraid to give their Opinion, leſt the Event ſhould not be according to their Expectation. Upon this he ſends to Baalzebub the God of Ekron, a City in the Country of the Philiſtines and fifty Miles diſtant from Samaria, to know if he ſhould recover. This is he who in the New Teſtament is call'd (c) Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils. His Name ſignifies The Lord of a Fly, and the moſt probable Conjecture is, that he was ſo call'd from the (d) Cure of a contagious Diſtemper. For Pliny tells us, that (e) there being a great Peſtilence in Africa, which was brought among them by a Multitude of Flies, it was extinguiſh'd by the Killing of them all, after they had ſacrific'd to the God Achore, a corrupted Word plainly deriv'd from Ekron. And if this was the Original of the Name, it is no Wonder, that Ahaziah ſent to enquire of him about his Sickneſs, ſince he was thought ſo powerful as to cure the Peſtilence. Elijah by the Appointment of GOD meets the Meſſengers, and turns them back with this Anſwer, that the King ſhould certainly die. The Meſſengers coming back much ſooner than it was expected, told the King upon Inquiry the Reaſon of it, and he knowing by their Deſcription that it was Elijah, who ſent this Meſſage, order'd a Captain and fifty Soldiers to apprehend him. Upon their approach Elijah commanded Fire to come down from Heaven and conſume them. This he did alſo by another Captain and his Company, but a third coming with more Humility, and begging his Life, Elijah went with him to Ahaziah the King, and told him from his own Mouth what he had before told the Meſſengers, and he died ſoon after, according as it had been foretold.

44. As Jehoram the Son of Ahab is (f) expreſly ſaid to begin his Reign in the eighteenth Year of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah, which was the Year before his Father died; ſo it appears from hence, that it was not long after Ahaziah was made Viceroy, that he receiv'd this Fall, which made him uncapable of Managing the Affairs of the Kingdom, and then his Brother Jehoram reign'd as another Deputy; ſo that there were three Kings in Iſrael at the ſame Time, namely, Ahab in the Field, Ahaziah in the Bed, an Jehoram in the Affairs of State; and there was another Jehoram, who was at the ſame Time deputed by Jehoſhaphat King of Judah to be his Deputy, and who alſo reign'd after his Deceaſe, and theſe two muſt be carefully diſtinguiſh'd from each other to avoid a Confuſion in the Hiſtory.

45. But to return to the Hiſtory of the Life of Jehoram the Son of Jehoſhaphat King of Judah. There are two remarkable Difficulties in Fixing the Occurrences of his Reign. The firſt is concerning the Letter, which (g) Elijah ſent him, which was after he had ſlain his Brethren, and had built high Places for the Worſhip of Idols. This is mention'd in the Book of Chronicles among the Occurrences of his Reign; and as his Life is mention'd in the (h) Book of Kings after the (i) Tranſlation of Elijah into Heaven; ſo the Jews do not ſcruple to affirm, that he ſent this Letter from Heaven. But this is to make ſuch a Miracle, the like whereof was never known before nor ſince; eſpecially ſince GOD might have deliver'd this Meſſage by his Prophet Eliſha, who was then alive. And therefore the Fixing of this, if poſſible, in the Time of Elijah's Life muſt be much better, as it will appear from the following Hiſtory. The other Difficulty is concerning the Time when (k) he ſlew his Brethren. For the Settling of this, it muſt be obſerv'd, that (l) the Shunammite, whoſe (m) Son Eliſha had reſtor'd to Life, was commanded by him to ſojourn in a ſtrange Country ſeven Years, and at the End thereof ſhe came back to King Jehoram, who order'd her Land, and the Profits thereof, to be reſtor'd to her. Now we are plainly told, that theſe inhuman Murders (n) were ſome of the firſt Acts which Jehoram did, when he was riſen up to the kingdom of his father. There are other ſubſequent Acts, which cannot take up leſs than twelve Years, and the Methodizing of them will ſet the whole Hiſtory in a due Light. In the firſt Year, he (o) kills all his Brethren, and (p) receives a terrible Letter from Elijah, who is ſoon after (q) tranſlated into Heaven, and (r) Eliſha ſucceeds him, who (s) promiſeth a Son to the Shunammite. In the next Year (t) the Shunammite hath a Son, according to the Promiſe of the Prophet. In the fifth Year, when this Son was able (u) to tell where his Pain was, and conſequently muſt be about three Years old, he went out to the Reapers, was taken ſick, and died, and was raiſed to Life again by the Prophet. Let us then ſuppoſe, that in the ſame Year the Prophet (x) advis'd her to go into a foreign Country, and ſtay there ſeven Years, yet it muſt be twelve Years in all at leaſt between Jehoram's Slaying his Brethren and his Death. Now the Reign of Jehoram the Son of Jehoſhaphat hath three Dates. The (y) laſt was at his Father's Death, who reign'd (z) five and twenty Years. But this could not be the true Time, becauſe Jehoram himſelf reign'd but five Years after. The ſecond Time was (a) in the fifth Year of Jehoram the Son of Ahab King of Iſrael, and this was in the two and twentieth Year of his Father Jehoſhaphat, when he (b) went upon the Expedition with Jehoram King of Iſrael againſt Moab. From this Time the (c) ſacred Text doth date the Beginning of his Reign. But this could not be the Time, becauſe according to this Computation, (d) he reign'd but eight Years. The firſt Date of his Reign was (e) when his Father Jehoſhaphat, in the ſeventeenth Year of his Reign, agreed with Ahab to raiſe Forces and join them together to go to Battle againſt the Syrians for the Recovery of Ramoth-gilead. At this Time (f) Ahab deputed his Son Ahaziah to reign over Iſrael under him in Samaria, and Jehoſhaphat deputed his Son Jehoram to reign over Judah under him in Jeruſalem. From this Time, to the Time of his Death, there were twelve Years, and this gives us but Time ſufficient for the Occurrences of his Reign, which have been already mention'd.

47. Jehoſhaphat had before this Time, for Reaſons of State without Regarding the Intereſt of Religion, (g) contracted an Affinity with Ahab King of Iſrael, and caus'd his Son Jehoram to marry Athaliah, Ahab's Daughter. She was of a proud and bloody Temper, and wholly addicted to Idolatry; ſo that ſhe was the very Picture of her Mother Jezebel. However, ſhe had Cunning enough to conceal it until an Opportunity preſented to ſhew it moſt effectually. After the Death of her Husband Jehoram, and (h) her Son Ahaziah, ſhe deſtroy'd all thoſe which he had left behind, and therefore may well be thought, like (i) Jezebel her ſelf, to ſtir up her Husband to commit thoſe Crimes of which he was guilty. Accordingly when Jehoſhaphat was gone from Jeruſalem to join the Army of Ahab, and had left his Son Jehoram to govern under him, ſo that (k) he was riſen up to the kingdom of his father, he ſtrengthned himſelf; that is, he got together a ſufficient Number of his Party, and then the firſt Act that he did was the Murder of all his Brethren, that none of them might diſturb him in the Poſſeſſion of the Throne, or give him the leaſt Oppoſition, when he intended to deſtroy the true Religion, and eſtabliſh Idolatry. He ſeems to have ſome Remorſe in Sparing their Children, as being too young to make the leaſt Oppoſition. He ſlew alſo ſeveral of the moſt eminent Perſons in the Country, ſuch as the Judges which were eſtabliſh'd by Jehoſhaphat, and other Officers, leſt they ſhould join with his Father and avenge the Death of his Brethren. Immediately upon this it is ſaid, that (l) he walked in the way of the kings of Iſrael, like as did the houſe of Ahab, for he had the daughter of Ahab to wife, and he did that which was evil in the ſight of the LORD. (m) Moreover he made high places in the mountains of Judah, for the Worſhip of ſtrange Gods, and cauſed the inhabitants of Jeruſalem to commit fornication. Some he intic'd by Promiſes and Encouragements, and others he prevail'd upon by Threatnings and Compulſions, to follow his Example. Upon this the Prophet Elijah (m) ſends him a Letter in theſe Words: Thus ſaith the LORD GOD of David thy father, Becauſe thou haſt not walked in the ways of Jehoſhaphat thy father, nor in the ways of Aſa king of Judah, but haſt walked in the ways of the kings of Iſrael, and haſt made Judah and Jeruſalem go a whoring like to the whoredoms of the houſe of Ahab; and haſt alſo ſlain thy brethren of thy fathers houſe, which were better than thy ſelf. Behold, with a great plague will the LORD ſmite thy people, and thy children, and thy wives, and all thy goods: And thou ſhalt have great ſickneſs by diſeaſe of thy bowels, until thy bowels fall out by reaſon of the ſickneſs day by day. What a great Grief muſt this be to Jehoſhaphat the King of Judah, to hear that all his Children, and his beſt Friends were ſlain, and that the Religion, which he had been zealous to eſtabliſh, was overturn'd at once, and that all this was occaſion'd by a Match of his own Making. And it muſt add to this Trouble, that at his Return from the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, Jehu the Son of Hanani the Prophet (n) came out to meet him, and imputes the Whole to his own Miſconduct in theſe Words, Shouldeſt thou help the ungodly, and love them that hate the LORD? therefore is this wrath upon thee from the LORD. However, to prevent an utter Deſpair, the Prophet thought fit to comfort him in the following Words, Nevertheleſs, there are good things found in thee, in that thou haſt taken away the groves out of the land, and prepared thine heart to ſeek GOD; ſo that the Troubles of this Life being ended, he might be happy in the other. For this Reaſon he is alſo call'd (o) the king of Iſrael, becauſe his Affinity and Society with Ahab the King of Iſrael had undone him, and he not only took more Care of that Kingdom than of his own, but he alſo loſt his own by it. Thus the Letter of Elijah the Prophet might come to Jeroboam King of Judah, about the ſame Time with the Death of Ahaziah the King of Iſrael, which he had foretold, and might be written from Samaria, as the fitteſt Place from whence it might be ſpeedily and ſafely convey'd to him, and ſo near the Taking up of Elijah into Heaven, that he knew there would not be Time enough to apprehend him for it. So that the Story (p) of Elijah's Aſcenſion into Heaven, is fitly plac'd (q) immediately after the Death of Ahaziah, becauſe it immediately ſucceeded it in Order of Time; and the Story of (r) Jehoram King of Iſrael immediately follows, that the HOLY GHOST in the Book of Kings might afterward mention the Acts of that King, and of Eliſha the Prophet, without any Interruption, and in the ſame Order of Time in which they happen'd.

48. As ſoon therefore as Elijah had propheſied againſt Ahaziah King of Iſrael, and ſent the Letter to Jehoram King of Judah, he departed from Samaria, and (s) went with Elijah to Gilgal, a Place near Jordan about five and twenty Miles from Samaria. Eliſha had (t) ſome Knowledge that Elijah would be miraculouſly taken from him, and therefore reſolves not to leave him. Elijah to try his Conſtancy propoſes to go back again to Bethel, a Journey of about twenty Miles, not far from the Road to Samaria; when they had been there they return again to Jericho, and ſo to Jordan. Elijah miraculouſly parts the Waters with his mantle about him, and ſo they go over; and ſeeing Eliſha's Conſtancy asks of him, what ſhould be done for him at their Parting, who immediately prays, Let a double portion of thy ſpirit be upon me. He was not ſo arrogant as to ask for twice as much as Elijah had, but for ſuch Portion of it as (u) the firſt-born in a Family had of a Father's Eſtate, or as much more as the reſt of the Sons of the Prophets, ſo as to be diſtinguiſh'd from them, as Elijah was. Elijah puts it upon this Teſt, If thou ſee me, when I am taken from thee, it ſhall be ſo unto thee; but if not, it ſhall not be ſo. Eliſha ſaw him, takes up the Mantle that fell from him, and parts the Waters of Jordan, as Elijah had done before, which made thoſe who ſaw it to ſay, The ſpirit of Elijah doth reſt upon Eliſha, and reſpect him accordingly. When he came to Jericho, they (x) complain'd to him, that the Water was unpleaſant, and the Ground was barren, which might probably be the Effect of (y) the Curſe, with which Joſhua had curſed it, and had happen'd to the Country (z) ever ſince Hiel the Bethelite had rebuilt that City. Eliſha heals the Waters and makes the Ground fruitful only by Pouring of Salt into the Spring, by which he farther manifeſted his Power of Working Miracles. After this he went to Bethel, where (a) the Prieſts of the golden Calf are ſuppos'd to ſtir up the Rabble, and to mock both at him as an Impoſtor, and at the Miracle of Elijah's Aſcenſion as a Fiction. So that the Idolaters laugh'd at him, call'd him Baldhead, as (b) a Character of Reproach, and bad him go up to Heaven, as Elijah was reported to do, that they might ſee it, and believe it, and be troubl'd with him no longer. This he look'd upon as a Contempt of GOD, whoſe Prophet he was, and therefore he curſed them in the name of the LORD, which had ſuch an Effect, that there came two She-bears out of the Wood, who had probably (c) been robb'd of their Whelps, and were therefore more fierce and outragious, and kill'd two and forty Perſons, who had no Power to withſtand them. From thence he went to Mount Carmel, where Elijah obtain'd the Rain, and where, it is probable, that he had many Diſciples. In his Way thither he paſs'd thro' (d) Shunem, where there was a rich Woman, who entertain'd him with the utmoſt Civility, and deſir'd him, that as often as he came that Way, he would take her Houſe for his Home. When he came to Carmel, he (e) multiplies the poor Widow's Oil, and enables her thereby to pay her Debts. In his Return from Carmel toward Samaria, he calls on this Shunammite, who had (f) provided for him a Room with all other Conveniencies for his Reception; and hearing that ſhe had no Son, and that her Husband was old, he promis'd her, that in a proper Time ſhe ſhould have a Son, which ſo tranſported her with Joy, that ſhe could hardly believe it.

49. However at the appointed Time, according to the Courſe of Nature, ſhe (g) had a Son, to her great Joy and Surprize. And Eliſha (h) travelling thro' Samaria, (i) comes again to Gilgal, where (k) he had been before. Here as they were (l) making Pottage in a Time of great Scarcity, one of the Company, inſtead of the Leaves of a wild Vine, which would have been pleaſant and wholeſome, brings in a Lapful of Coloquintida, which hath an offenſive Taſte, and a very purging Quality, and by Miſtake having cut them ſmall, throws them into the Pot. This made it ſo offenſive that they could not eat of it, and alſo they were apprehenſive of a Deſign to poiſon them; but mentioning it to Eliſha, he miraculouſly reſtores it to an inoffenſive Taſte and Quality, by the Adding of a ſmall Quantity of Meal to it. After this a Perſon (m) brings him a ſmall Preſent of Bread and firſt Fruits of the Corn. Eliſha like our SAVIOUR (n) orders the Loaves to be ſet before the Company for their Entertainment. His Servant, like the Apoſtles, cries out, What are they among ſo many. He tells them, that it ſhould be more than they could eat, and ſo it prov'd accordingly.

50. Whilſt Eliſha tarried at Gilgal, the King of Syria ſends (o) Naaman the General of his Army, being a Leper, with a Letter to him to cure him of his Diſtemper. Jehoram the King of Iſrael looks upon this to be the Seeking an Occaſion for a new War. Eliſha hearing of it undertakes the Cure, and directs him for this Purpoſe to waſh himſelf in the River Jordan. Naaman with ſome Difficulty was prevail'd upon to conſent to it, which he did, and was heal'd. He being ſenſible of the Miracle, offers a Preſent to Eliſha, which he generouſly refus'd, and upon this Naaman teſtifies his Reſolution for the Time to come, and his Concern for what was paſt. He ſeems to have gone into the Jewiſh Opinion, that (p) the Land of Iſrael was more holy than other Countries, and therefore (q) he deſires as much Earth as two Mules could draw, that he might build an Altar with it to the GOD of Iſrael, whom alone he ſhould worſhip for the Time to come. And as to the Time paſt he craves Pardon for that which he now owns to be a Fault, that his Maſter hath formerly gone into the Houſe of Rimmon to worſhip there and hath lean'd upon his Hand, (r) and I (ſaith he) have bowed my ſelf in the houſe of Rimmon; becauſe I have bowed my ſelf in the houſe of Rimmon, the LORD pardon thy ſervant in this thing. So that the Acknowledging of his paſt Fault was a ſufficient Promiſe that he would do ſo no more. Upon this Eliſha diſmiſs'd him. But Gehazi reſolving to make an Advantage to himſelf, follows after Naaman, and invents a Lye for this Purpoſe. Naaman gives him very generouſly two Talents of Silver, worth ſeven hundred and fifty Pounds Sterling of our Engliſh Mony, and two Suits of Apparel; and Gehazi denying this before Eliſha, the Leproſy of Naaman was inflicted on him for a Judgment.

51. The Fame of this Miracle (s) caus'd a greater Concourſe of People than the Place would hold, and the School of the Prophets increaſing under his Inſtructions, they deſire to build a more convenient Place, and whilſt they were about it, the Head of an Ax fell into the Water, which by Eliſha's Means was made to ſwim toward the Shore, and ſo it was recover'd again.

52. When Naaman was return'd home, and had refus'd to worſhip Rimmon, he was diſmiſs'd from being General of the Army, and therefore the King of Syria commanded it in Perſon, and being not us'd to ſuch Exerciſes, he (t) conſulted on all Occaſions with his General Officers; and going againſt the Iſraelites they concerted ſeveral Stratagems of War and Ambuſcades, from whence they hop'd to reap great Advantages, but to no Purpoſe. The King in the next Council of War is inform'd, that it muſt be Eliſha who diſcover'd all theſe Secrets, and that he was in Dothan, a City in the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, not far from Shechem and Samaria. Accordingly he ſends a great Army to take him there, who beſieg'd the City by Night, and the next Morning upon Eliſha's Prayer, were ſmitten with Blindneſs, that they could ſee but a very little Way before them. Eliſha tells them, that they were wrong, and he would lead them right. He leads them to Samaria; the Inhabitants open the Gates, and let them in, ſo that they were now incloſ'd in a wall'd Town, and wholly at the Mercy of the King of Iſrael, who could have deſtroy'd them all with Arrows from the Windows. Eliſha prays to GOD to reſtore their Sight again, by which Means they knew their Danger. The King of Iſrael ask'd Leave of Eliſha (u) with ſome Earneſtneſs to kill them. Eliſha refuſes it, and tells him, He would not be ſo cruel as to kill thoſe, whom he himſelf had taken Priſoners; and therefore much more were they to be ſpar'd, who were not his Priſoners, but GOD's, and were brought to him without Striking a Stroke. On the contrary, he adviſes him to entertain them with the utmoſt Civility, and ſend them back. They reporting what had happen'd, put the Army into ſo great a Conſternation, that they look'd upon all their Deſigns as impracticable Upon this they decamp'd, and went into their own Country, and the Syrian army came not (x) again, or return'd not for that Year into the land of Iſrael.

that he ſeems for ſome Time to ſerve him only, in Hope of future Succeſs by this Method. However GOD was willing to try him, and to ſhew, that temporal Proſperity was not always annex'd to his Service, eſpecially when his Service was perform'd for no other End; or that if he permitted grievous temporal Calamities to befal them for ſome Time, yet he would deliver thoſe who waited on him. For theſe Reaſons (y) he ſuffer'd Ben-hadad the King of Syria, to raiſe a very large Army, and to invade the Kingdom of Iſrael again the next Year. Ben hadad grew leſs ſenſible of thoſe Miracles, which ſo lately happen'd, and well knowing that the King of Iſrael was in no Condition to oppoſe him, he reſolves to put the Iſſue of all upon one deciſive Action, which was the Beſieging of Samaria their capital City. Here they carry on a deſperate Siege, and the King being there with the Inhabitants, and knowing that all was now at Stake, makes as deſperate a Defence, until Proviſions were ſo ſcarce, that (z) an aſſes head, which was an unclean Creature, and not to be eaten at all, had (a) they obſerv'd the Levitical Law, and was but coarſe Food at beſt, was ſold for as much Silver, as amounts to ten of our Engliſh Pounds; and the (b) fourth part of a cab of Fitches, which was no more than ſix Egg-ſhels could contain, and was but mean Fare, was ſold for as much Silver as would now amount to fifteen Shillings, and the Prophecy of Moſes, (c) that they ſhould eat the fleſh of their own children, began now to be fulfill'd, as (d) it was afterward in the laſt Siege of Jeruſalem. Upon this Jehoram the King of Iſrael was in (*) a Rage, and vows the Death of Eliſha the Prophet. When the Army was brought into Samaria, the King calls him (e) My Father; but now he calls him in Deriſion, Eliſha the ſon of Shaphat, or A mean Man of mean Parentage. This Deſign was reveal'd to Eliſha, and that the King would follow the Meſſengers to ſee it executed, and therefore he orders all the Doors to be ſhut, and an effectual Care to be taken to prevent it. The Reaſon of this furious Reſolution was, either becauſe Eliſha had hinder'd him from Smiting the great Army of the Syrians, when they were inclos'd in Samaria, which might have diſabled them from Bringing him into thoſe Straits, or becauſe Eliſha did not employ his Intereſt in GOD, as he expected, to bring them a Deliverance. But when he ſaw that he was diſappointed in his Deſign, then he look'd upon the GOD of Eliſha to be his Enemy, and that all theſe Misfortunes were owing to him. (f) And he ſaid, Behold, this evil is from the LORD. Why ſhould I wait on the LORD any longer? He thought it would be in vain to worſhip the LORD, as he had done for ſome Time, and therefore he would now worſhip the Idols of his Father, and ſee if they could deliver him in this great Neceſſity. Upon this Eliſha (g) propheſies to the King, that if he would have Patience for four and twenty Hours he ſhould ſee ſo great an alteration in Samaria, that the Quantity of about a Peck of fine Flower ſhould be ſold for half a Crown, and half a Buſhel of Barley for the ſame Price. A great Favourite, who ſtood by the King told him, that this was impoſſible; and Eliſha anſwer'd, that he ſhould ſee it, but he ſhould not eat of it. This Prophecy ſo alter'd the King's Temper, that he return'd back without attempting what he intended, and ſo waited for the Event.

54. In this great Famine, the Beſieged put out of the City all uſeleſs Perſons, that they might not eat up the Proviſion; and among them there were (h) four Lepers, who lay under the Walls, until they were ready to be ſtarv'd. Theſe reſolve at Midnight to go to the Camp of the Syrians. When they came thither, they find all the Tents ſtanding, and all their Proviſions and Riches in them; the Syrians having been affrighted with a Noiſe in the Air, as of an Army in full March, ready to fall upon them. Theſe Lepers bring the Account to the City. The Inhabitants go out in great Numbers, and bring in the Proviſion, ſo that it was ſold at the Price which Elijah mention'd, and at the Time foretold; and the Favourite, who did not believe it, was appointed to keep the Gate, which did lead from the City to the Camp, and prevent all Diſorders; but being not able at ſuch a Time to reſtrain an unruly Mob, they trampled upon him, and kill'd him, before he had an Opportunity to eat any Part of what he ſaw brought to the Market.

55. Eliſha now goes from Samaria to Carmel, not thinking it ſafe to ſtay any longer near Jehoram King of Iſrael, leſt he ſhould execute at another Time what he had now threatned. And the next Year, the Son of the Shunammite, whom Eliſha promis'd her, and who was now almoſt three Years old, was (i) carried out among the Reapers in the Time of Wheat-Harveſt, to divert both his Father and himſelf. he he was in the Field, he was taken with a violent Pain, and cried out to his Father, as a Child would in ſuch a Caſe, My head, my head. His Father orders him to be carried home to his Mother, where he ſat upon her knees until noon, and then he died. His Mother goes in all Haſte to Eliſha to Carmel, who returns with her, and upon his earneſt Prayer to GOD reſtor'd the Child to Life again. And he who views (k) the Text, may find Reaſon to believe, that the Harveſt proving very bad at that Time, he then ſpake to this Woman to ſojourn in a ſtrange Country, becauſe there would be a Famine for ſeven Years: and in Obedience to his Directions, the whole Family remov'd, and dwelt among the Philiſtines, till the Time was expir'd.

56. It may well be ſuppos'd that Jehoſhaphat the King of Judah was under a great deal of Trouble, having loſt all his Children except one; and his moſt faithful Friends and Counſellers, who were ſlain whilſt he was at the Battle at Ramoth-gilead. So that we hear no more of him till now, and upon the following Occaſion. David having (l) conquer'd the Moabites and the Edomites, and made them Tributaries, upon the Diviſion of the Kingdom, the Kings of Iſrael kept their Right over the Moabites, as neareſt to them, and the Kings of Judah kept their Right over the Edomites, as neareſt to them: and thoſe who govern'd them, tho' (m) they were call'd Kings, yet they (n) were in Reality only ſuch Deputies, as the Kings of Judah from Time to Time had plac'd over them. When Ahab was ſlain, Meſha the King of Moab took this Opportunity to rebel againſt Jehoram King of Iſrael, and (o) refus'd to pay a great Tribute of Sheep and Wool, which had formerly been punctually paid. Jehoram the Son of Ahab was now but in an ill State to oppoſe them, having been all this Time ſorely oppreſs'd by the Syrians. But the Syrians being miraculouſly defeated in theſe two laſt Attempts, ſeem to lay aſide all Thoughts of Invading Iſrael any more; ſo that Jehoram having now a fair Opportunity, is reſolv'd to regain the Conqueſts, which he had loſt. Accordingly he ſends to Jehoſhaphat to know whether he would aſſiſt him on this Occaſion, who return'd him the ſame Anſwer, that (p) he had before return'd to Ahab, viz. that both himſelf and all his Forces were ready to join him. Upon a deep Conſultation, they reſolve to march thro' the Wilderneſs of Edom for two Reaſons: Firſt Becauſe the Moabites were but weakly fortify'd on that Side, expecting to be attack'd on the Weſt or North by the King of Iſrael, and ſo preparing for it; but little expecting to be attack'd on the South or Eaſt by the King of Judah; and ſecondly, That Jehoſhaphat might take the King, or his Deputy, in Edom with him, together with all the Forces of that Country. This was in (q) the fifth Year of the Reign of Jehoram King of Iſrael, and conſequently the two and twentieth Year of Jehoſhaphat, when he makes his Son Jehoram King of Judah the ſecond Time to act in his Abſence, and from hence (r) the Scripture dates the eight Years of his Reign in Jeruſalem. When Matters were thus concerted, they begin their March, and reſolve to fetch a Compaſs of ſeven Days Journey, that they might come upon the Backs of the Moabites on the eaſt Side, where they could not expect them. But here their Politicks fail'd them. They went into Arabia deſerta in a Time of great Drought, ſo that they were all ready to periſh for Thirſt, whilſt the Moabites gave them no Diſturbance in their March, expecting what would be the Conſequence. In this Diſtreſs they knew not what to do. Jehoſhaphat being a good Man inquires for a Prophet of the LORD, that he might be conſulted. Eliſha happen'd to be among them, who had accompany'd the Army in their March from Samaria. He with Difficulty, and only for the Sake of Jehoſhaphat, was prevail'd upon to propheſy, commanding them to make the Valley full of Ditches, and aſſuring them, that tho' there ſhould be no Storms nor Rain, yet they ſhould have Plenty of Water in a miraculous Manner, which ſhould be follow'd with a glorious Victory. When the Moabites (s) knew that they were in thoſe Difficulties, which they expected, they advanc'd with their whole Army to take the Advantage, reſolving to attack them early in the Morning. Their Enemies being (t) in a Valley, and themſelves on an advanc'd Ground, when the Sun was riſen in the Eaſt, on which Side their Enemies were, the Angle of Incidence with the Rays upon the Water coming directly into their Faces, made it look red like Blood. They knowing that there was no Water in thoſe Parts, and that there had been no Rain, concluded that it was Blood indeed, and that their Enemies had quarrell'd among themſelves, and deſtroy'd one another, ſo that there was nothing to do but to take the Plunder. This made them run thither without any military Order, expecting that they who came firſt ſhould inrich themſelves moſt, and ſo they tir'd themſelves before they came to the Camp. Their Enemies ſeeing them come on in ſuch a wild Manner, lay down in their Ranks, that they might not be perceiv'd; and when they were near to one another, they (u) roſe up, and attack'd them in this Confuſion, and gain'd ſuch an intire Victory, that they purſu'd them into their own Country, and there they made a greater Havock of them, Plunpering their Cities, Deſtroying their Fields, Stopping up their Wells, and Cutting down their Trees.

57. In this Manner they advance to the Capital City of the Country, ſometimes (x) call'd Kir of Moab, ſometimes (y) Kir-hereſh, and (z) ſometimes Kir-hareſheth, and (a) Kirioth. This was a large City, and (b) ſtrongly fortify'd. However they raiſe ſuch Batteries againſt it, that they drove them that defended it from the Wall, and made great Breaches in it. The King of Moab (c) finding Matters reduc'd to the laſt Extremity, being beſieg'd in his own City, and knowing that a deſperate Diſeaſe muſt have a deſperate Cure, takes ſeven hundred of his choiceſt Men, and makes a Salley upon the Quarters of the King of Edom, with a Deſign to ſeize him in his Camp, but that was more than they could do. However (d) they came ſo near it, that the King of Moab took the eldeſt Son of the King of Edom, who it is ſuppos'd would have been eſtabliſh'd in the ſame Dignity by the King of Judah, after the Deceaſe of his Father; and when he brought him into the City, he offer'd him up upon the Wall for a Burnt-offering, in the Sight of the whole Army. This ſhew'd their great Indignation, or utmoſt Reſentment againſt their Enemies, and that they were reſolv'd to come to no Terms, but to ſell their Lives at the deareſt Rate; which the other Kings perceiving, thought that they had carried Matters far enough already, that the Seaſon was far ſpent, and they could not tell what the Conſequences might be, and ſo they raiſed the Siege, and went home before the Winter. Of this unnatural Sacrifice, the Prophet Amos ſpeaks in theſe Words, (e) Thus ſaith the LORD, For three tranſgreſſions of Moab, and for four, I will not turn away the puniſhment thereof; becauſe he burnt the bones of the king of Edom into lime. As therefore he had done, ſo ſhould it be done unto him. I will cut off the judge from the midſt thereof, and will ſlay all the princes thereof with him, ſaith the LORD. When this happen'd cannot be better known, than by (f) a Propheſy of Iſaiah, that Ar of Moab, and Kir of Moab, ſhould be laid waſte, and brought to ſilence, and particularly (g) within three years from the Date of his Propheſy, which was in the Beginning of Hezekiah's Reign, the glory of Moab ſhould be contemned, with all that great Multitude, and the Remnant ſhould be very ſmall and feeble. This ſeems to have been fulfill'd, in (h) the ſame Year wherein Samaria was firſt beſieg'd in the Reign of Hoſhea King of Iſrael. For (i) it ſeems moſt likely, that then Shalmanezer the King of Aſſyria, to ſecure himſelf from any Diſturbance on that Side, firſt invaded Moab, and having deſtroy'd theſe two Cities, brought all the reſt of the Country under his Subjection, and plac'd Gariſons therein ſufficient to put a Stop to all the Incurſions of the Arabians, which might that Way be made upon him, or otherwiſe he could not have been able to carry it on with Succeſs.

58. Jehoſhaphat being now made ſenſible, that (k) the Obtaining of Water, and the ſucceeding Victory, was wholly owing to the Zeal which he had ſhewn for the Worſhip of GOD, reſolves at his Return to bring in a Reformation to the utmoſt of his Power, and to ſuppreſs that idolatrous Worſhip which his Son Jehoram had promoted. For this Purpoſe he (l) travels thro' all his Country, from Beer-ſheba to Mount Ephraim, to bring back his Subjects to the LORD GOD of their Fathers. He places Judges in every City for this Purpoſe, and ſettles the Levites, the Prieſts, and the chief of the Fathers in Jeruſalem, and gives each of them their Charge, and orders them to be directed by Amariah the High Prieſt, in Matters of Religion, and concluded his Speeches to them all with this noble Expreſſion, Deal couragiouſly, and the LORD ſhall be with the good. Anno ante CHRISTUM 896.

59. It was not long after, that Amariah the High Prieſt died; but the Loſs was made up by the Succeeding of Johanan, who was alſo call'd Jehoiada, in that Dignity. The Names are very like one to the other, one ſignifies The LORD is gracious to us, and the other The LORD knoweth us. He was (m) a good Man, and always zealous in the Cauſe of Reformation; and that he might be the more ſucceſsful therein, he had the Bleſſing of ſo long a Life, that it was peculiar to him in that Age; for he did not die, until he was an hundred and thirty Years old.

60. But the Moabites were now reſolv'd to be reveng'd on Jehoſhaphat the King of Judah, for the great Misfortunes which they ſuſtain'd by his Joining with Jehoram King of Iſrael, and Invading their Country; and accordingly they reſolve to repay him in the ſame Manner. For this Reaſon they (n) enter into a League with the Anno ante CHRISTUM 895.

Ammonites,

Ammonites, and another People call'd (o) The Meunims, which lay near them both, and are ſometimes call'd the Maonites. They (p) alſo bring the Syrians into the ſame Confederacy, in Revenge for the Aſſiſtance, which Jehoſhaphat had given the King of Iſrael againſt them; and they take the Opportunity of Encouraging the Deputy of Edom, who was troubled for the barbarous Murder of his Son, to ſet up for himſelf, and afterward to be choſen by the People, as their King. His Living at (q) Mount Seir, the Place where (r) Eſau formerly dwelt, gave them a great Opportunity to carry on their Deſigns; for by this Means they had an eaſy Paſſage into the Country of Judah. Beſides, Jehoſhaphat depended on his Giving Intelligence of all the Tranſactions on that Side, but he gave him none, ſo that the firſt Account, which he heard of them, was, that (s) they were actually in his own Country, in Hazazon-tamar, which is Engedi, on the South of Judah, near the Dead Sea. This ſhews (†) the great indignation which the Moabites, the King or Deputy of Edom, and the People, had conceiv'd againſt both Iſrael and Judah; the firſt for Carrying Matters to ſuch Extremities, the ſecond for the Loſs of his Son, and the other for being forc'd out to the Wars, whenever the King of Judah thought fit to command them. So that all this happening together puts Jehoſhaphat into a terrible Conſternation, ſo that he (t) appointed ſolemn Faſtings and Prayers in all his Dominions, and he himſelf was perſonally preſent at thoſe Solemnities. GOD heard his humble Supplications, and order'd one of his Prophets to give Directions for a ſpeedy March, and to acquaint him, that he ſhould find them advanc'd farther into the Country, where they ſhould obtain a complete Victory without a Battle. The Confederates, hearing that Jehoſhaphat King of Judah was coming againſt them with his Army, divide themſelves into three Bodies, thinking that either of them were ſufficient to deal with him, wherever they found him. The Edomites being beſt acquainted with the Country, march farther on to (u) the Cliffs of Ziz, where they lay in (x) Ambuſcade among the Rocks for the Army of Jehoſhaphat. The Ammonites by Miſtake fall into the Ambuſcade, and ſo they fight with one another. The Moabites hearing the Noiſe, advance to the other Side of the Ambuſcade, where they hemm'd them in and deſtroy'd them all; and when this was done, they miſtook each other for Enemies, and deſtroy'd one another. So that when Jehoſhaphat came to the Field of Battle, he had nothing to do, but to ſeize upon the Plunder, which was ſo great that they were three Days in Carrying it off; and on the fourth Day they had a ſolemn Thankſgiving in the Field, which was perform'd with ſo much Joy, that the Name of the Place was call'd The Valley of Berachah, or of Bleſſing, becauſe there they bleſſed the LORD. This was the laſt War in which Jehoſhaphat was engag'd, and indeed he liv'd not long after. However he then enjoy'd a perfect Peace, and was under no Fear of any of his Enemies, which were round about him.

61. Upon this he endeavours (*) to promote the Riches of his Country by a foreign Trade. For this Purpoſe he enters into a League with Jehoram King of Iſrael, who was a very wicked King, to make a Fleet of Ships at Ezion-geber a Town upon the Red-Sea in the Country of Edom, that ſo they might go to Ophir and other Places in the Eaſt-Indies, to fetch home Gold, and other rich Commodities of that Country, as Solomon had done before him. Then Eliezer the ſon of Dodavah of Mareſhah propheſied againſt Jehoſhaphat ſaying, Becauſe thou haſt joined thy ſelf with Jehoram, the LORD hath broken thy works. And the ſhips were broken, that they were not able to go to Tarſhiſh. Here are two Difficulties in the Text. Firſt, That the Ships were made on the Shore of the Red-Sea to go to Tarſhiſh, whereas Tarſhiſh is a Town in Cilicia near the Kingdom of Tyre on the North of Canaan, and theſe Ships could not come thither, unleſs they had ſail'd round the Cape of Good Hope, and came into the Mediterranean Sea at the Straights of Gibraltar, which was impoſſible to be done in thoſe Times. In Anſwer to this, Theſe Ships might be call'd Ships of Tarſhiſh, becauſe they were very large and fit to carry Burdens, and ſo of the ſame Make with thoſe that were antiently built at Tarſhiſh. However, (y) the Learned Bochart ſuppoſes, that there was a Place call'd Tarſhiſh in the Indian Ocean near to the antient Ophir, which the Phœnicians call'd by the Name of Tarſhiſh or Tarteſſus in Spain, becauſe both Places lay at a conſiderable Diſtance, were acceſſible only by Sea, and the ſame Commodities came from both. The other Difficulty is, That he is call'd Ahaziah and not Jehoram in the Text. In Anſwer to this it muſt be allow'd, that the ſame Perſons in Scripture are frequently call'd by different Names, eſpecially if they are ſomething alike in Signification; and thus Jehoram might be call'd Ahaziah, ſince one Name ſignifies, The LORD

(o) This is ſuppos'd to be the Meaning of the Word מְעוּנִים by our beſt Commentators, and they are call'd Μινᾶιοι, both by Joſephus and the Septuagint. (p) 2 Chron. 20. 2. is is exalted, and the other, The LORD hath poſſeſſed. And Secondly, He might be call'd Ahaziah, becauſe this Act of his concerning Navigation did ſo exactly reſemble another of his Brother Ahaziah of the ſame Nature, that it will need a particular Inquiry into both Hiſtories to diſtinguiſh between them. When Jehoſhaphat came to the Throne, he had (z) Peace for many Years, and (a) his Tributes were conſtantly paid him. This made him (b) grow exceeding great and rich, and this put him upon an Attempt of Improving his Riches by Trading in the Red-Sea. For this Purpoſe (c) he built large Ships for Burden of a Tarſhiſh Make, to go to Ophir for Gold. After this (d) he goes down to Ahab to Samaria, where they agree to go againſt the Syrians to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead. Ahab preparing for this Expedition ſets up his Son Ahaziah to govern in his Abſence, in (e) the ſeventeenth Year of the Reign of Jehoſhaphat. When Jehoſhaphat was now at Samaria, Ahaziah (f) deſires of Jehoſhaphat that his Seamen might go with the other Seamen in the Ships, which Jehoſhaphat poſitively refus'd. Upon this Jehoſhaphat (g) goes to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, and Ahaziah ſtays in Samaria, ſo that they ſee one another no more. Ahaziah had not been long in his Authority but he had (h) a violent Fall, which confin'd him to his Bed, and was the Cauſe of his Death, and the next Year after (i) his Brother Jehoram was deputed as King during his Illneſs, and even before the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, and (k) Jehoſhaphat's Deſign miſcarried, for the ſhips were broken at Ezion-geber. In (l) the fifth Year of Jehoram King of Iſrael, Jehoſhaphat ſets his Son Jehoram to be Governor of Judah, and (m) goes againſt the Moabites. After this he (n) endeavours to reform his Kingdom. And (o) after this alſo he had the Battle with the Moabites and Ammonites, which was the laſt Time that he appear'd in the Field, for (p) then his realm was quiet, and his GOD gave him reſt round about. And then (q) after this alſo he aſſociated himſelf with the King of Iſrael to carry on a Trade of Merchandiſe, which (r) before he had utterly refus'd; and the Prophet told him, that (s) becauſe he had joined himſelf with that King the LORD had broken his works. So that in the Book of Chronicles Jehoram is call'd by the Name of Ahaziah in this Story, and what we find like it in the Book of Kings is a different Account, and there were ſeveral Years Diſtance between the one and the other. When Jehoſhaphat refus'd to be concern'd with the King of Iſrael he ſeem'd to act according to his own Inclinations; and when he complied, he ſeem'd to be influenc'd by his Son Jehoram, who was then in Deed the Governor of the Land, and of a different Temper.

62. When Jehoſhaphat had (t) liv'd five and twenty Years from the Time that he was made King of Judah, he died, leaving his Son Jehoram in the full Poſſeſſion of the Kingdom. He liv'd after this but four Years, and Part of another; and as he was a wicked Man, ſo every Year brought its Troubles. In his firſt Year (u) the Edomites revolted, and made themſelves a King; which ſeems to be the firſt Puniſhment inflicted on him for not following the Example of ſo good a Father, but Turning to Idols. Whether they made the Deputy a King, who firſt began the Revolt in the former Battle, or whether he was ſlain, and they choſe another, is uncertain. However they look'd upon the Death of Jehoſhaphat as a fit Opportunity for this Purpoſe; and by this the Propheſy of Iſaac almoſt a thouſand Years before, was now fulfill'd. His Words to his Son Eſau were theſe, (x) By thy ſword ſhalt thou live, and ſhalt ſerve thy brother Jacob; and it ſhall come to paſs when thou ſhalt have the dominion, that thou ſhalt break his yoak from off thy neck, by not Suffering his Deputy to govern over them, but by Setting up of a King of their own. To prevent this, Jehoram marches to the Frontiers of Edom, with as great a Force as he could raiſe, to reduce them to Obedience. The Edomites ſurrounded him with an Army ſuperior to his, and reduc'd him to a Neceſſity of Fighting. In this Neceſſity he made a Sally by Night with all his Forces, attack'd one Part of the Army by Surprize; and routing that, he made his Eſcape, whilſt the reſt being thus weaken'd, return'd to their Camp, leſt they alſo ſhould be overpower'd, and ſo ſtood upon their own Defence, that Jehoram could never after that recover the Dominion over them. The Reaſon why he could not purſue his Victory over the Edomites, and regain their Country, was, becauſe he had Buſineſs enough at home, for Libna (y), which (z) was a conſiderable City in the Tribe of Judah, and (a) belong'd to the Prieſts, revolted at the ſame time, and he could not tell but other neighbouring Cities might follow ſuch an Example. The Reaſon of this Revolt is (b) expreſly mention'd to be, becauſe he had forſaken the LORD GOD of his fathers, and had made high

Anno ante CHRISTUM 893.

63. This Revolt of the Edomites encourag'd (c) the Philiſtines to do the like; for they not only refus'd the Preſents, (d) which they brought to his Father, but they invaded his Kingdom on the weſt Side, expecting a Diverſion from the Edomites on the South. And the Arabians, who were near to the Cuſhites, which we tranſlate Ethiopians, acted their Part in the general Calamity. There were two People in Aſia call'd Cuſhites, one of them lying near the Red Sea, where Cuſh was firſt ſeated by his Father Ham, and the other near Babylon, whither Cuſh remov'd, and where his Son Nimrod began the Aſſyrian Monarchy. If it is taken in the firſt Senſe, then the neighbouring Arabians, who (*) paid tribute to Jehoſhaphat, now refuſe it, and join with the Edomites to throw of the Yoke. If it is taken in the other Senſe (as (e) our Great Commentator ſuppoſeth) it is an Argument, that the Aſſyrian Monarchy was then very powerful, that they could ſend ſuch an Army from their Neighbourhood, to act at ſuch a Diſtance as Judea on this Occaſion. But tho' it may be uncertain from whence they came; yet it is certain, that they (f) brake into the Kingdom of Jehoram; for his Soldiers were not able to defend it on both Sides. They ſeem to have made the main Army, and the Edomites, who (g) came up with them, were but as a Band of Men. They carry'd away all the Subſtance that was found in the King's Houſe, and all his Wives and Children, except Athaliah, who had hid her ſelf in ſome ſecret Place with her youngeſt Son Jehoahaz, who is (h) call'd Ahaziah, and (i) Azariah. They ſeem to have kept all the Booty to themſelves, but to have deliver'd the King's Wives and Children to the Edomites, who (k) ſlew them in cold Blood, expecting to deſtroy all their Enemies at once, and thereby the more effectually to ſecure their Country. This ſeems to be the Time, when (l) the Philiſtines (m) caught as many both in the Kingdom of Iſrael and Judah, as they could lay Hands on, not in open War, but by Cunning and Deceit, and therefore it is call'd, (n) a peaceable Captivity, or a perfect or abſolute Captivity, becauſe the Priſoners were deliver'd up to the Edomites to be ranſom'd upon no Terms, that thereby they might ſtrengthen the Revolt from the Kingdom of Judah. This ſeems to be the Time, when (o) the Tyrians did the ſame, and remembred not the brotherly covenant, or thoſe Leagues which were (p) firſt made between David and Hiram, and afterward (q) renew'd by Solomon; and they might eaſily have ſent their Priſoners from thence, either thro' Syria or by Shipping into the ſouthern Parts of the Country of Paleſtina, and ſo by the Borders of the Land of Egypt. And this alſo ſeems to be the Time when (r) Edom being aſſiſted with ſuch potent Allies, did purſue his brother with the ſword, and did caſt off all pity, and his anger did tear perpetually, and he kept his wrath for ever, ſo that he laid hold on all Opportunities of Diſtreſſing the Kingdom of Judah, as appear'd more particularly in the Days of Jehoſhaphat. The Cruelty of theſe People towards their Neighbours caus'd GOD to pronounce his Judgments againſt them by his Prophet Amos: Firſt againſt the Philiſtines, that (s) he would ſend a fire upon the wall of Gaza their capital City, which ſhould devour the palaces thereof. And he would cut off the inhabitant from Aſhdod, and him that holdeth the ſcepter from Aſhkelon, and he would turn his hand againſt Ekron, and the remnant of the Philiſtines ſhould periſh. This ſeem'd in Part to have been fulfill'd before the Propheſy of Amos, when (t) Uzziah King of Judah went forth and warred againſt the Philiſtines, and brake down the wall of Gath, and the wall of Jabneh, and the wall of Aſhdod, and built cities about Aſhdod and among the Philiſtines, and his GOD helped him, ſo that he was ſucceſsful. Accordingly the Words of the Propheſy may (u) be interpreted, And I have ſent a fire upon the wall of Gaza, and have cut off the Inhabitant from Aſhdod. And as the Prophets frequently ſpeak of things to come in the ſame Manner as if they were paſt or preſent; ſo it was farther fulfill'd in the Time of Hezekiah, who (x) ſmote the Philiſtines even unto Gaza and the borders thereof, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced Cities, or both in Town and Country, where they built little Cottages in which they watch'd their Flocks by Night. And therefore the Prophet Iſaiah (y) bids the Philiſtines not to rejoice, becauſe the Rod that ſmote them was broken, or Uzziah was dead, who had ſorely afflicted them, for Hezekiah ſhould come out of his Root, or be deſcended from him, who ſhould more grievouſly gall them. And it was more fully compleated, when (x) Sennacherib King of Aſſyria march'd againſt Egypt, and the better to open his Way into that Country, he ſent Tartan (y) one of his Generals before him, who fought againſt Aſhdod, and took it. Secondly, The Prophet Amos propheſied alſo againſt Tyre for this Reaſon, that (z) GOD would ſend a fire upon the wall of Tyrus, which ſhould devour the palaces thereof. This was alſo fulfill'd, when (a) Shalmanezer King of Aſſyria made War upon Tyre in the Reign of Elulæus their King, and having ſent an Army, invaded the whole Country of Phœnicia; and taking it very heinouſly to ſee the Tyrians to be the only People who diſputed his Authority, he ſent a large Fleet againſt them, which being beaten, the King of Aſſyria returns, and ſets Guards along the River, and upon all Springs and Aqueducts to keep the Tyrians from Water, which Diſtreſs continu'd for five Years, when they were forc'd to relieve themſelves by Pits of their own Digging. After this (b) Nebuchadnezzar continuing a long and terrible Siege of thirteen Years made himſelf Maſter of it, who finding but little Spoil therein to reward his Soldiers for their great Pains, was ſo enflam'd with Anger, that he razed the whole Town to the Ground, and ſlew all that he found therein. From which Time it never more recover'd its Glory, but the City on the Iſland became the Tyre which was afterward ſo famous, and this was ever after a Village call'd by the Name of Old Tyre. And Laſtly, The Prophet for the ſame Reaſons foretels the Deſtruction of Edom, that (c) GOD would ſend a fire upon Teman, their Capital City, which ſhould devour the palaces of Bozrah, a City in the Confines of Moab. This ſeems firſt to have been fulfill'd, when (d) Shalmanezer King of Aſſyria came againſt Samaria; and having conquer'd the Country of Moab, ravag'd and deſtroy'd the Country of Edom the neighbouring Kingdom, the better to ſecure himſelf from any Diſturbance on that Side. And alſo when Sennacherib King of Aſſyria went with his Forces into Egypt. For the ſame Reaſon that induc'd him to ſend Tartan into Aſhdod, would induce him to over-run all Idumæa, which lay directly in his Way, and would open a freer Communication with his own Country. And after this the Army of (e) Nebuchadnezzar ranſack'd the Country, when Tyre was taken, and when he march'd into Egypt, and his Soldiers were hungry for Want of Plunder, as it had been foretold by the Prophets (f) Obadiah and (g) Jeremiah, when the Accompliſhment thereof was nearer at hand.

64. The next Year the Propheſy of Elijah in his Letter took Effect, which was, that (h) Jehoram the King of Judah ſhould have a great ſickneſs by a diſeaſe of his Bowels, for (i) GOD ſmote him with ſuch a Diſorder in thoſe Parts as was incurable; ſo that in Proceſs of Time he who ſhew'd no Bowels of Compaſſion to his Brethren, might learn his Sin by his Puniſhment, and had no Bowels of his own. Anno ante CHRISTUM 892.

65. Elijah being order'd (k) to go to Damaſcus, and declare Hazael to be King of Syria, this Part is now to be done by Eliſha, who about this Time goes to this City for this Purpoſe. That it could not be long before the End of Jehoram's Reign is evident, becauſe we may ſuppoſe, that Hazael would omit no Time in Putting what Eliſha had foretold in Execution, and we read of nothing done till after theſe other Tranſactions. Eliſha being upon the Road to Damaſcus the Metropolis of all Syria, and (l) Ben-hadad the King thereof being ſick, ſends Hazael to go out and meet him, and inquire, Whether he ſhould recover of that Sickneſs? He had heard of the Cure of Naaman the General of his Army, and therefore had a greater Opinion of the Succeſs of this Meſſage. Eliſha tells Hazael, that that Diſtemper was not mortal of it ſelf; however the King ſhould die by ſome other Accident. Eliſha tells him alſo what Miſchief his Sword ſhould do in Iſrael, as it had been reveal'd to Elijah ſeveral Years before. Hazael excuſeth himſelf, and ſaith, that he was not ſuch a barbarous Creature as he was repreſented to be; to which Eliſha only adds, The LORD hath ſhewed me, that thou ſhalt be king over Syria. Hazael returns to his Maſter, conceals the Meſſage, and gives him good Hopes of Recovery; but the next Day he takes a thick Cloth, dips it in Water, puts it round his Face, and ſo ſtops his Breath and kills him, that it might look as if he had died a natural Death. And Benhadad being ſuppos'd to have no Son, and Hazael being in great Favour with the People, and eſpecially with the Soldiers, as a very active Man, was immediately declar'd to be his Succeſſor. 66. The Diſtemper of Jehoram King of Judah growing worſe and worſe, he begins to think that Eliſha might help him, and therefore he (m) inquires of Gehazi of all the great things which Eliſha had done. Gehazi was now telling him an affecting Story of the Shunammite's Son, whom he had reſtor'd to Life, when by GOD's particular Providence this very Perſon return'd at the End of the ſeven Years of Famine, and petition'd the King, that her Land might be reſtor'd to her again. Gehazi aſſur'd him, that this was the very Woman, ſo that the Story being confirm'd from her own Mouth, he orders all her Land, and the Profits thereof, to be reſtor'd accordingly. Whether Jehoram conſulted Eliſha afterwards concerning his Sickneſs is uncertain; but if he did, it is certain that it was to no Purpoſe; for (n) after a long Illneſs of two Years, occaſion'd by a Complication of Diſtempers, his Bowels fell out in a lamentable Manner, which ſhew'd a Puniſhment ſuitable to his horrid Wickedneſs. His Subjects themſelves did not wiſh that he ſhould live any longer, and were glad that his Reign was ſo ſhort. And tho' he died in Jeruſalem, yet they ſhew'd him the utmoſt Diſreſpect, becauſe they did not bury his Body among the Sepulchres of his Anceſtors, but in an obſcure Place.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 890.

67. Upon the Death of Jehoram King of Judah, (at the End of (o) the eleventh Year of the Reign of Jehoram King of Iſrael, and the beginning of the twelfth; or rather, when he had reign'd as Viceroy one Year, which made up twelve Years in all; but as an intire King but eleven, as it hath been mention'd before in the former Chapter) (p) his Son Ahaziah is declar'd his Succeſſor. He was a wicked Prince, and his Reign was but ſhort, for he did not govern a full Year. His Mother was the Daughter of Ahab, and was his Counſeller in all the Idolatry, which that curſed Family was ſubject to. She had alſo the greater Power over him, becauſe ſhe had ſav'd him together with her ſelf, when the other Wives and Children of Jehoram were carried away Captives. And tho' his Father was ſo bad, that there was no Need for any other to ſeduce him, whilſt he liv'd; yet after his Death, his Mother's Kindred thought it neceſſary to confirm him in his Idolatry, and in a ſtrict Alliance with the Kings of Iſrael, which was his Ruin.

68. For Hazael being now King of Syria reſolv'd to put in Execution all that had been propheſied of him, and having got a good Army together he invades the Frontiers of Iſrael. Jehoram the King thereof (q) ſends to Ahaziah King of Judah to join him with all his Forces, and ſo like Jehoſhaphat and Ahab, they march again to that unfortunate Place of Ramoth-gilead: they had not been long here before there was a Battle, in which neither Side was totally beaten. However Jehoram the King of Iſrael was wounded, ſo that it was thought proper to carry him to Jezreel, a Place as unlucky as the other, to be cur'd of his Wounds; but they not healing ſo faſt as was expected, Ahaziah his Nephew leaves the Army to pay him a Viſit, and to bear him Company.

69. There was now nothing wanting to compleat every thing, which was given in Charge to (r) Elijah at Horeb, but the Anointing of Jehu to be King of Iſrael; and this was a providential Time for it, when he was at the Head of the Army, and the two Kings were gone away, one wounded, and the other as if he had no Buſineſs there. Eliſha now commands one of his (s) Scholars to take a Box of Oil, and go to Ramoth-gilead, and there to anoint Jehu as King over Iſrael with the utmoſt Secrecy, and then to come away with the utmoſt Expedition. When he came thither, the Officers were in a grand Council of War, and Jehu at the Head of them as their General. The Prophet deſires to ſpeak with him in private, and did what he came about, repeating the Propheſies of (t) Elijah concerning the utter Deſtruction of the Houſe of Ahab, and directed him to put them all in Execution. The Officers preſs Jehu at his Return to tell what had paſs'd between him and the Prophet, which he at laſt told them. Upon this they declare him their King, and order all the Roads to be guarded, that King Jehoram and Ahaziah might not have the leaſt Intelligence of it. Jehu rides in a Chariot, and orders a ſtrong Body of Horſe to accompany him to Jezreel. A Watchman upon the Tower ſeeing them coming, gives Notice of it to the two Kings. They ſend out a Horſeman to know what was the Matter. Jehu orders him to ſtay with them. They ſend out another with the ſame Succeſs, and were told by the Watchman, that Jehu was in Perſon at the Head of this Party. The two Kings get their Chariots ready, and go in Perſon to meet them, and by GOD's ſpecial Providence met them near the Vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, and perhaps in (u) the very Place where Naboth was ſton'd. Jehoram and Ahaziah finding that there was a Conſpiracy, endeavour to ſave themſelves by Flight, but Jehu ſhot Jehoram with an Arrow thro' the Heart, as he was endeavouring to turn away, ſo that he died immediately, and was caſt by Jehu's Command into that very Ground, whilſt Jehu repeated the Words, that he himſelf and his Captain Bidkar heard Elijah ſpeak to Ahab of this Matter. Thus the Manner of Jehoram's Death is certain; but the Relation of the Death of Ahaziah is exceeding different in the Books of the Kings and Chronicles, ſo that there is a great deal of Difficulty to reconcile them together. In (x) the Book of Kings it is ſaid, that when Ahaziah ſaw the Death of Jehoram King of Iſrael, he fled by the way of the garden houſe, which was built upon Part of Naboth's Vineyard; and Jehu followed after him and ſaid, Smite him alſo in the chariot. And they did ſo at the going up to Gur, which is by Ibleam; and he fled to Megiddo, and died there. But in (y) the Book of Chronicles it is ſaid, That when Jehu was executing judgment upon the houſe of Ahab, and found the princes of Judah, even the ſons of the brethren of Ahaziah, that miniſtred to Ahaziah, he ſlew them. And he ſought Ahaziah, and they caught him (for he was hid in Samaria) and brought him to Jehu; and when they had ſlain him, they buried him. Now the Story in the Book of Kings is very ſhort, and laid in the Story of the Death of Jehoram, that the End of both the Kings may be mention'd together; but the Book of Chronicles ſhews the Order, as it will more evidently appear in the ſubſequent Hiſtory.

70. When Jehu therefore had ſlain Jehoram in the Field of Jezreel, whilſt Ahaziah and Jehoram were together, Ahaziah being ſurpriz'd at this unexpected Accident, and having no ſtrength to withſtand him, flees from thence (z) by the way of the garden Houſe, and gets into (a) Samaria, and hides himſelf there. Jehu (b) upon this marches to Jezreel, where he orders Jezebel to be kill'd, and trampl'd upon by the Horſes, and to be left in the Street, till her Body was eaten up by Dogs, which gave Jehu an Opportunity to tell the People, (c) how exactly the Propheſy of Elijah was fulfill'd. Jehu being now at Jezreel, ſends inſulting (d) Letters to the Rulers of the City, and thoſe who were fled thither. They return a very ſubmiſſive Anſwer, and he upon this orders them to kill all the Poſterity of Ahab, and come to him the next Day to Jezreel. Theſe Rulers kill them, and bring their Heads as a Proof of the Fact. Jehu (e) ſtill declares, that all this was done to fulfil the Prophecy of Elijah, which was ſtill freſh in their Memory. Upon this he ſlays all the Relations of Ahab, which were in Jezreel, and all his Officers; ſo that they who ſlew their Maſter's Sons, did not long ſurvive them: And after that he deſtroys all the Prieſts of Baal, whom he found there. Having finiſh'd this Work in Jezreel, he now goes on to proſecute the ſame in Samaria, which moſt needed Reformation, and to prevent a Surprize, he places Guards in all the Roads which led to that City. They who were upon the Road, which came from the South, ſeize upon (f) the Brother's Sons of Ahaziah King of Judah (who knew nothing of this Revolution) coming to Samaria. It is probable, that when Ahaziah King of Judah went out of his Kingdom, he left his Mother Athaliah the Governor. Theſe well knowing what Murders had been committed in the Family by her Inſtigation, did not think it ſafe to ſtay there, and came in a Body toward Samaria. What happen'd afterward ſhews, that their Fears were not ill grounded, only they fled from a more remote Danger into another, which they could not foreſee. This Guard brings them to Jehu, but conceals to whom they did belong, and ſo they miſtook them for their Friends, being only as yet Priſoners at large. Jehu (g) asks of them, Who are ye. They readily told him, that they were the Relations of Ahaziah, and add, We will go down for the peace or Security of the children of the king, and the children of the queen. Upon this Jehu commanded them to be apprehended; which being done, they were all put to Death at once. And as (h) they were related to the Family of Ahab by the Mother's Side, and he might alſo be afraid, that if they had liv'd, they might be aveng'd of him for the Death of Jehoram, Ahaziah, Jezebel, and their Children, whom they were going to ſee; ſo he puts them to Death for his own Security. This happen'd to be at a Place call'd The Shearing Houſe in the Road between Jezreel and Samaria.

71. When Jehu was gone a little farther on his Journey, he meets with (i) Jehonadab the Son of Rechab, a Man very well known for a pious Strictneſs in his Life and Converſation. Jehonadab coming to him (k) bleſſes him (as Melchizedek bleſſed Abraham returning from the Slaughter of the Kings) and wiſhes him good Succeſs, declaring that what he did was acceptable to GOD. Jehu on the other Hand profeſſes a great Love to him, and ask'd him, if he lov'd him ſincerely, and approv'd of all his Actions. Jehonadab declares clares with ſome Vehemency, that he did. Upon this at Jehu's Requeſt they ſhake Hands, as a Token of a hearty Affection. Jehu deſires, that he would ride with him in his own Chariot, which was a very great Honour and a Sign of a very great Eſteem, and adds this Expreſſion, Come with me, and ſee my Zeal for the LORD, to vindicate his Honour and fulfil his Commands. In this Manner they ride together to Samaria, where Jehu proceeds to execute GOD's Wrath againſt all the Relations of Ahab until he had totally deſtroy'd them. After this (l) he orders a ſtrict Search to be made for Ahaziah, who was hid in Samaria, becauſe the Paſſes were ſo well guarded, that he could not return into Judah. And when they had found him, they bring him to Jehu, who gives Orders, that (m) they ſhould carry him to Gur, which is beſide Ibleam, and there they ſhould kill him in his Chariot, that ſo his Servants might immediately carry off the Corpſe, and bury it. It is ſuppos'd, that his Father Joram had ſlain all his own Brethren in the ſame Place, as Ahab had ſlain Naboth in Jezreel, and therefore Jehu ſends him thither to ſhew the Juſtice of GOD on this Occaſion in Viſiting the ſins of the fathers upon the children. The Orders of Jehu being only Smite him, his Officers might think it enough to give him a mortal Wound there, or they might leave him for dead, having no Orders to take him out of his Chariot; ſo his Servants carry him to (n) Megiddo, the next Town in the Tribe of Iſſachar, where he died; and from thence they carried him in the chariot to Jeruſalem, and buried him in his ſepulcher with his fathers in the City of David; and Jehu freely permitted this Honour to be done him (which he denied to the Poſterity of Ahab) becauſe (o) he was deſcended from the good King Jehoſhaphat.

72. Tho Jonadab the Son of Rechab is allow'd to be a good Man; yet it doth not follow, that he reviv'd the antient Rules of the Rechabites mention'd by (p) the Prophet Jeremiah upon a religious, but only upon a political Account. The Story is this. The Rechabites were (q) of the Race of Hobab or Jethro the Kenite, Prieſt of Midian and Father in Law of Moſes. So that the Kenites were Midianites, and the Midianites were Dwellers in Tents from the Beginning. For firſt, The Arabians of thoſe Parts were ſuch at that Time, and are ſo at this Day. And Secondly, The Iſhmaelites and Midianites dwelt together, ſo that their Names are frequently us'd for each other. The (r) Merchants to whom Joſeph was ſold, are ſometimes call'd Iſhmaelites and ſometimes Midianites, as if they were but one People, and (s) the Midianites which Gideon vanquiſh'd, were call'd Iſhmaelites. Now it is certain, that the Iſhmaelites or Hagarenes dwelt in Tents, and (t) it is ſaid, That the Hagarites dwelt in Tents throughout all the eaſt land of Gilead, and ſome of theſe were (u) mention'd in Scripture by The Tents of Kedar. Such therefore as the Iſhmaelites were, ſuch we may ſuppoſe the Midianites to have been. And Habakkuk is (x) very full in Mentioning The tents of Cuſhan, or Arabia, and Curtains of the land of Midian. This antient Cuſtom was obſerv'd by the Midianitiſh Tribe of the Kenites, and by the Poſterity of Jethro or Hobab, after they came to live in Canaan. And we are (y) told accordingly, that Heber the Kenite, who was of the children of Hobab the father in law of Moſes, had ſevered himſelf from the Kenites, and pitch'd his tent in another Place. This Manner of Living they ſeem to have retain'd, as a Badge or Cognizance of the Nation from whence they were deſcended, and alſo that they might live more ſecurely in the Land, where they were Strangers, either from the envy of the Jews at home, or the Danger of Enemies abroad, to whom they ſhould be leſs ſubject, as having neither Houſes to be burnt, nor Lands to be taken from them, but only Cattle upon which they liv'd, and Tents, which they remov'd, as Opportunity ſerv'd for Paſture to feed them. Thus Abraham liv'd, whilſt he ſojourn'd in the Land of Canaan, and in Imitation of him this Cuſtom might be deriv'd to the Midianites, who were of his Poſterity. In Length of Time theſe Kenites were intic'd by the more pleaſant Living of the Iſraelites to think of Changing this Cuſtom of their Anceſtors, which occaſion'd this Jehonadab the Son of Rechab a famous Kenite to renew it again, and bind his Poſterity to obſerve it. For this End he forbad them altogether the Drinking of Wine, leſt the Deſire thereof might tempt them to plant Vineyards and build Houſes, as the Jews did, and ſo to forſake the Cuſtom of their Nation, as perhaps Licentiouſneſs of Wine had caus'd many of them to do. So that Jonadab only renew'd, what their Anceſtors had obſerv'd long before he was born; and his Authority prevail'd among them to continue it two hundred Years, after he was dead, not as a Matter of Religion, but as a mere civil Cuſtom. The Church of Rome makes a great Stir from this Example, to warrant the Monkiſh Affectation of Poverty. Had Mahomet been as cunning as they, he might alſo have urg'd the Text for a Prohibition of Wine. They may with equal Reaſon urge the Examples of the Tartars and the wild Arabians, who

73. But to return to the Hiſtory. When (a) Athaliah the Daughter of Ahab and Wife to Jehoram King of Judah had certain Intelligence that Jehu had ſlain her Son Ahaziah, ſhe being of a proud and bloody Temper, reſolves to take the Government upon her ſelf, and having no Child by Jehoram King of Judah, ſhe gets a Party of her own, and perhaps of ſuch as had fled out of the Kingdom of Iſrael for fear of Jehu, as they had been the true Friends of her Father Ahab, and her Brother Jehoram King of Iſrael, ſo ſhe could the better depend on their Fidelity. By their Aſſiſtance ſhe deſtroys all the Children, which were left to Jehoram by (b) any other Wife. Here was Deſtruction upon Deſtruction to the Royal Families, ſo that happy were they who came of a meaner Parentage. The whole Offſpring of Jeroboam, Baaſha and Ahab were cut off for their Idolatry, ſo that there was not one left. And the Kings of Judah having contracted an Affinity with the Houſe of Ahab, and being ſeduc'd by them to be guilty of the ſame, were ſo deſtroy'd by three ſucceſſive Maſſacres, that there was but one left. Firſt, Jehoram ſlew all his Brethren, then Jehu ſlew all his Brother's Children, which came to Samaria, and now Athaliah deſtroys all the reſt, which her Executioners could meet with. It happen'd, that Jehoiada the High Prieſt had married Jehoſhabeath the Siſter of Ahaziah by the Father's Side, but not by the Mother's; and whilſt they were employ'd in Killing the Children of Jehoram, ſhe ſteals away (c) Joaſh the Son of Ahaziah, and carries him away privately to her Husband Jehoiada, who keeps him undiſcover'd for ſix Years in one of the Chambers of the Temple; ſo that no one knew what was become of him, and every one concluded him to be kill'd among the reſt. And it is probable, that Ahaziah had no other Son; for he was but (d) three and twenty Years old, when he was kill'd. Athaliah takes upon her to govern the Kingdom, which ſhe did for ſix Years, but did nothing remarkable. All that is recorded of her in Scripture is, that (e) ſhe was a wicked Woman. The Jews ſay, that (f) ſhe was a publick Whore, and had ſeveral Baſtards, which were as bad as her ſelf.

74. Jehu being now ſeated on the Throne of Iſrael, makes Uſe of (g) Jehonadab the Son of Rechab as his Privy Counſeller and Director in Matters of Religion. And conſidering that he came to the Crown by the Prophecy of Eliſha, who told him of it in the Name of the LORD the true GOD of Iſrael, he reſolves to ſhew his (h) Zeal and Gratitude, by Rooting out the Worſhip of Baal; and there is no Doubt but Jehonadab, being a good Man, encourag'd him in it. To carry on (i) this Deſign, he declares a Day for a ſolemn Sacrifice to Baal, requiring all his Worſhippers to be preſent at that Time, under the Penalty, that whoſoever was wanting he ſhould not live; ſo that it was Death to all that came, and Death to all that ſtaid away. When they were all together in the Temple of Baal, and the adjoining Courts, Jehu order'd (k) fourſcore Officers to fall upon them with all their Forces, which they did, and ſo deſtroy'd them. After this they went into (l) the adjoining City, call'd The city of the houſe of Baal, and there they deſtroy'd as many as they could find. Then they ſhew'd the utmoſt Contempt to all the Images in Breaking them down, and Burning them publickly, that all might ſee, that they were not able to help themſelves. Upon this they demoliſh the Temple, and that the Place might always be deſpis'd, they made it a Jakes, whither Men uſually went to eaſe Nature. By this Act Jehu deſtroy'd Baal, ſo that he was never worſhipp'd any more in the Kingdom of Iſrael, but they were perfectly freed from this Sort of Idolatry; and thus what was began by Omri the Father of Ahab, was intirely rooted out again with his Poſterity. This Act of his was ſo pleaſing to GOD, that he declar'd to Jehu by (m) a Prophet, that his children of the fourth generation ſhould ſit on the throne of Iſrael; ſo that his partial Obedience was not without its Reward, which would have been greater, if he had been as zealous in other things as he was in this. But Policy prevail'd againſt Religion, and perſuaded him to continue the old Idolatry, when he had deſtroy'd the new. He ſeems to be carried away with this Notion, that the Calves which (n) Jeroboam ſet up, were the Repreſentations of the true GOD of Iſrael, which brought them up out of the Land of Egypt (and therefore he (o) calls the Worſhippers of them, the worſhippers of the LORD) and that the Worſhip paid to other Deities was only the Worſhip of other Gods. And he might alſo be afraid, as his Predeceſſors were, that if he deſtroy'd the Calves, as he had deſtroy'd Baal, the People would return to the Houſe of David. For the ſame Reaſon his Succeſſors continu'd the ſame Worſhip, until the twentieth Year of Pekah the Son of Remaliah, when (p) it is ſaid, That Tiglah-pileſer King of Aſſyria, came and took away the Golden Calf, which was in Dan, and departed. And (q) in the Reign of Ahaz GOD ſtirr'd up the Spirit of the King of Aſſyria, ſo that he carried away the Golden Calf that was in Bethel, and departed. This ſeems to be the Fulfilling of (r) the Prophet Hoſhea, That the Inhabitants of Samaria ſhould fear, becauſe of the calves of Bethaven; for the people thereof ſhould mourn over it, and the prieſts thereof that rejoyced on it, ſhould mourn for the glory thereof, becauſe it was departed from it. It ſhould be alſo carried unto Aſſyria for a preſent to (s) a heathen King, that ſhould plead the cauſe of the GOD of Iſrael. And thus the high places of Aven, and the ſin of Iſrael ſhould be deſtroy'd. So that when (t) the Children of Iſrael were carried Captives by Shalmanezer King of Aſſyria, who plac'd the People of other Nations there inſtead of them, ſome of the Inhabitants worſhipp'd the true GOD without any Repreſentations, and others worſhipp'd the Gods of their reſpective Countries, and we hear no more of the golden Calves.

75. But GOD, to ſhew Jehu that he was angry at him for his other Idolatry, (u) ſtirr'd up Hazael the King of Syria to invade his Country. He took ſeveral of their frontier Towns, and thereby he open'd a Way to make great Ravages in many other Places. He took from them that Part which lay beyond Jordan, to which the Iſraelites could not ſo eaſily ſend Reinforcements, and which was expos'd to the Syrians, who dwelt round Damaſcus. This Kingdom they formerly took from Sihon and Og, and ſo the firſt that they conquer'd was the firſt that they loſt. But tho' Hazael was rais'd (x) like the King of Aſſyria to be the Rod of GOD's Anger, and to take Vengeance on a wicked and obſtinate People, and was (y) declar'd King for this Purpoſe; yet he meant hereby only to gratify his private Ambition, and to inrich himſelf, without any Regard to the Glory of GOD, whoſe Inſtrument he was: and after he had conquer'd the Country, he exercis'd great Severities upon them, which is deſcrib'd by (z) the Threſhing of Gilead with threſhing inſtruments of iron: And therefore GOD (a) threatens to burn the Rod, when the chaſtiſement was over, and ſend ſuch a fire into the houſe of Hazael, as ſhould devour the palaces of Ben-hadad, which was (b) the Name of his Son, and the (c) common Name by which the Kings of Syria were call'd. This was in Part fulfill'd in the Days of his Son Ben-hadad, whom (d) Jehoaſh the Grandſon of Jehu beat in three ſet Battles, and regain'd all that his Father, and probably a great Part of what his Grandfather had formerly loſt. And after this (e) when the Aſſyrian Monarchy was ſettl'd at Nineveh under Tiglah-pileſer, he march'd with a great Army into Syria, where having ſlain Rezin in Battle he took Damaſcus, and reduc'd all that Country under his Dominion. And hereby he put an End to the Kingdom of the Syrians in Damaſcus, after it had laſted there for ten Generations from the Time of Rezon the Son of Eliadah, who (f) firſt founded it, when Solomon was King of Iſrael, and ſo the palaces of Damaſcus were devour'd.

76. It is very probable, that about the the ſame Time the Children of Ammon (g) aſſiſted Hazael King of Syria to oppreſs and conquer the Tribes on the other Side Jordan, and ſo to attack them on two Sides at once, upon this Condition, that each Kingdom might enlarge their border, or keep what they could get. For this Purpoſe they were very cruel in their Conqueſts, deſtroying all that they could meet with, and ripping up the women with child in Gilead, who could do them no Harm. Some interpret it, They divided, or broke thro' the mountains, as Hannibal paſs'd over the Alps to enter into Italy. But as we find no ſuch Mountains between the Ammonites and the Land of Gilead; ſo we may ſuppoſe, that our Tranſlation doth beſt expreſs the Senſe of (h) the Original. For this Reaſon the Prophet Amos (i) denounceth a heavy Judgment alſo againſt the Children of Ammon. I will kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah, their capital City, and it ſhall devour the palaces thereof with ſhouting in the day of battle, and with a tempeſt in the day of the whirlwind. And their king ſhall go into captivity, he and his princes together, ſaith the LORD. This was alſo fulfill'd, when (k) Nebuchadnezzer lay at the Siege of Tyre, and ſent Nebuzaradan the Captain of his Guard againſt the Ammonites, who having deſtroy'd Rabbah their royal City, and made great Deſolations therein by Fire and Sword, carried their King and their Princes and moſt of the chief of the Land into Captivity, which was done by Way of a juſt Revenge, for the Part which (l) they had in the Murder of Gedeliah the King of Babylon's Governor in the Land of Iſrael.

77. When Athaliah had (m) reign'd ſix Years, and Joaſh was (n) ſeven Years old, Jehoiada the High Prieſt, knowing that there was no Commiſſion from GOD to place a Woman upon the Throne of Iſrael, but only a King, and thinking that he had a ſufficient Authority to dethrone her, and ſet up Joaſh, he firſt tries the Inclinations of (o) the People, and finding them to be according to his own Deſire, he brings Joaſh into one of the publick Courts of the Temple; and having got together a ſufficient Number of Forces, ſupplied them with Weapons, and plac'd them in the beſt Poſture of Defence, he brings out Joaſh from the Place, where he had been hid, and with an univerſal Conſent anoints him, becauſe his Right had been interrupted, and ſo he is declar'd King. Athaliah hearing the Noiſe, comes into the Temple in haſte, and finding Joaſh plac'd as King, ſhe cries out Treaſon, Treaſon, expecting that her Preſence would have frighten'd the People again to her Obedience. But this happen'd contrary to her Intention; for Jehoiada the High Prieſt gave Orders to apprehend her as a Traitor, which they did, and took her out of the ſacred Ground, and brought her to a Stable Gate belonging to the Palace, and there they kill'd her, with (p) an univerſal Joy and Satisfaction, becauſe they were deliver'd from her Tyranny. Joaſh being thus ſeated on the Throne makes (q) a Covenant with the People, that they ſhould reſtore the true Worſhip of GOD, continue in it, and root out all Idolatry, and then he makes another between himſelf and all the People, that he ſhould govern according to law, and they ſhould be obedient to him. Upon this they riſe, and deſtroy the Temple of Baal, and break down his Images, and his Altars, which had (r) been ſet up by Jehoram, and (s) continued by Ahaziah, and without Doubt by Athaliah alſo. And they kill Mattan his Prieſt before his Altar, to ſhew he was not able to revenge it, inſomuch that we hear no no more of his Worſhip in Judah until (t) the Reign of Manaſſeh. After this he ſettles all the Service of the Temple, in the ſame Manner as it was appointed in the Days of David and Solomon, which occaſion'd an univerſal Joy to all thoſe, who had any Senſe of Religion; and to confirm him the more in this Reſolution Jehoaida took Care, that he was married to Wives of his own Temper.

78. The Temple of Solomon being very much out of Repair, ever ſince the Reign of Jehoſhaphat, occaſion'd by the Neglect and Wickedneſs of thoſe Kings who ſucceeded him, and were related to the Houſe of Ahab, (u) King Joaſh in Gratitude to GOD, who had preſerv'd him there, reſolv'd to have it repair'd, and accordingly commanded what Money ſhould be ſet apart for that Purpoſe. But when there was Reaſon to think, that they who were concern'd did not act with that Diligence and Faithfulneſs, as might be expected, (x) Jehoiada the High Prieſt took a Cheſt, and bor'd a Hole in the Top of it, and ſet it by the Altar, that it might all be brought thither, and taken from thence to be laid out for this Uſe, and ſo by good Management the whole Fabrick was repair'd.

79. About this Time Jehu the King of Iſrael dies. Tho' he had deſtroy'd Baal out of Iſrael, yet he ſtuck to the Worſhip of the golden Calf; which ſo provok'd GOD to Anger, that his Affairs ſeem to grow worſe and worſe, and we hear not of any remarkable Action done by him. At his Death he was ſucceeded by (y) his Son Jehoahaz, who follow'd the Idolatry of his Father. This caus'd GOD to ſuffer Hazael King of Syria, to (z) ravage all the Country, killing ſome, and carrying others into Captivity, inſomuch that they were in a deplorable Condition, and had ſuch a few Soldiers left, that there was no Poſſibility of Keeping the Field. Now therefore Jehoahaz prays unto GOD to take Pity upon them, and GOD reſolves to give them a longer Space for Repentance, and rais'd up Joaſh the Son of Jehoahaz King of Iſrael, to put a Check to this inſulting Enemy. It is probable, that his Father made him General of all his Forces for ſome Time, ſo that he was very active, and took Care to put every thing in the beſt Poſture of Defence; and therefore he is call'd (a) a Saviour rais'd up for Iſrael. And being bleſs'd with ſuch good Succeſs, his Father (b) made him King in the thirty ſeventh Year of the Reign of Joaſh King of Judah, which was three Years before his own Death.

of Age, and was honourably buried in the City of David among the Kings of Judah, not only becauſe he married the Daughter of a King, but eſpecially becauſe he had been an Inſtrument in Reſtoring the divine Worſhip (which now they were ſenſible was a great Happineſs) and alſo in Repairing the Breaches of the Temple, and Procuring the Bleſſing of GOD; ſo that they had a great Degree of Peace and Proſperity during his Life, which was the more remarkable, becauſe his neighbouring Kingdom was ſo haraſs'd by the Syrians. He was ſucceeded in this Dignity by his Son Zechariah, who liv'd not long to enjoy it.

81. For after the Deceaſe of Jehoiada, ſeveral of the Princes of Judah, who were Idolaters in their Hearts, having Admittance to King Joaſh, and pretending the utmoſt Civility and Allegiance, deſir'd that they might have the Liberty to worſhip ſuch Idols as they thought moſt convenient, and eſpecially any Repreſentations of the true GOD which might be ſet up in any other Part of his Kingdom. The King was overcome by their Inſinuations, and gave them Liberty, which made a great Alteration in the Face of Religion; ſo that the Service of the Temple was neglected; and GOD reſolv'd to puniſh that Kingdom for the Vindicating of his own Honour. However, he gives them Notice of their Sin and Danger by Sending ſeveral Prophets to them; but this working no Reformation, he inſpires Zechariah the High Prieſt, and orders him to deliver the ſame Meſſage. He takes the Opportunity of one of the publick Feaſts, when there was the greateſt Concourſe of People, and ſtood in a Place, where he could be beſt heard, and then he perſuades them to amend their Lives, as the only Way to proſper; telling them alſo, that becauſe they had forſaken the LORD, he would alſo forſake them. The King little remembring the Kindneſs of his Father and Mother, to whom he ow'd his own Life, and being enrag'd at this Meſſage, gives Orders to deſtroy the Son; but the Number of the Worſhippers of GOD being ſo great on that Occaſion that they could not do it publickly, a Party of Men fit for this Purpoſe contrive to do it in a private Manner, and watching their Opportunity, they ſtone him with Stones in one of the Courts of the Temple, whoſe dying Words were, The LORD look upon it, and requite it. There are ſome of good Authority, who look upon this Zechariah to be the Perſon of whom our SAVIOUR ſpoke, when (d) he ſaid to the Jews, Behold, I ſend unto you prophets and wiſe men, and ſcribes, and ſome of them ye ſhall kill and crucify, and ſome of them ye ſhall ſcourge in your ſynagogues, and perſecute them from city to city; That upon you may come all the righteous blood ſhed upon the earth, from the blood of righteous Abel, unto the blood of Zacharias the ſon of Barachias, whom ye ſlew between the temple and the altar. But as our SAVIOUR begins with Abel the firſt Inſtance; ſo we may ſuppoſe that he concluded with the laſt. And as he here ſpeaks of future things, ſo this may be one Inſtance among the reſt, and the Naming the Name both of Father and Son is ſuch an Inſtance of his Knowledge, the like whereof was never given by any other. We may therefore conclude, that the Zacharias, which our SAVIOUR ſpeaks of, was one whom (e) Joſephus mentions in the Time of the Jewiſh Wars, and of whom he gives us this Account, That he was the Son of Baruch, a Man of the firſt Rank, a Friend to all good Men, and an Enemy to the Wicked, a Man who had very great Authority, Virtue and Wealth. This Zacharias the Zealots look'd upon as a Man ſo very popular, that they themſelves could not be ſafe, without Taking away his Life. For this Purpoſe they bring him before a Court of their own Setting up, and falſely accuſe him of a Conſpiracy to betray Jeruſalem to the Romans, and treating with Veſpaſian about it. When the Court, contrary to their own Expectation, had declar'd him innocent, two of the greateſt Ruffians of the Company fall outrageouſly upon Zecharias, and murder him in the Middle of the Temple, with this inſolent Raillery in their Mouths, Now we have given you your Diſcharge too, and you are much ſurer of this, than you were of the other. And ſo they caſt his Body down the Precipice of the Mountain.

82. The Year after the Murder of Zechariah the Son of Jehoiada, GOD enters into Judgment for it. Accordingly the Army of Hazael King of Syria paſſes over Jordan, and marches directly (f) into the Kingdom of Judah, where they deſtroy all the Princes and chief Rulers from among the People, and ſend the Spoil of them to the King to Damaſcus: and thus they who were the Beginners and Headers of this Apoſtacy from GOD, were ſingled out to be puniſh'd for the ſame. The Text (g) ſaith, That the army of the Syrians came with a ſmall company of men, expecting only a private Ravage, and the LORD delivered a very great hoſt into their hand beyond their Expectation; becauſe they had forſaken the LORD GOD of their fathers; ſo they executed judgment againſt Joaſh. maſcus, joins the Army in Perſon, and over-runs the whole Country except Jeruſalem, of which there is this Inſtance, that (h) he went againſt Gath, a Town of the Philiſtines, in the fartheſt Part of the Kingdom, and took it, and reſolv'd in his Retreat to beſiege Jeruſalem, and by Taking that to annex all to his own Dominions. To prevent this, (i) Jehoaſh King of Judah, took all the hallowed things, that Jehoſhaphat, and Jehoram, and Ahaziah his fathers, kings of Judah had dedicated, and his own hallowed things, and all the gold which was found in the treaſures of the houſe of the LORD, and the kings houſe, and ſent it as a Preſent to Hazael king of Syria: and upon this he rais'd the Siege of Jeruſalem, and went back to his own Kingdom.

83. During this Time, the Judgments of GOD did in a particular Manner follow Joaſh King of Judah for his Apoſtacy, and the Murder of Zechariah. The beſt of his Subjects began to ſlight and diſregard him; and as his Kingdom was infeſted with Wars, ſo his Body was over-run with bad Diſtempers, which render'd him unfit and unable to manage the Kingdom; and therefore in the ſecond Year of Joaſh King of Iſrael, and two Years before his own Death, he (k) makes his Son Amaziah King in his Stead. And in the ſame Manner Jehoahaz King of Iſrael ſeeing the ſucceſs of his Son Joaſh in Putting a Stop to the Arms of Hazael King of Syria, in the (l) thirty ſeventh Year of the Reign of Joaſh King of Judah, and about three Years before his own Death, he makes his Son Joaſh King of Iſrael; ſo that here were four Kings reigning together at the ſame Time in the two Kingdoms.

84. But when the Syrians were departed out of Judah, the (m) Diſtempers of Joaſh the King grew worſe and worſe, ſo that when he was confin'd to his Bed, two of his own Servants conſpir'd againſt him and kill'd him. And it is obſervable, that as his Father married the Daughter of Ahab, who was of an idolatrous Family; ſo the Mother of one of theſe Conſpirators was a Moabiteſs, and the Mother of the other was an Ammoniteſs, who came from two idolatrous Nations: and thus the provoking Sin may be eaſily learnt by the Authors of the Puniſhment.

85. Amaziah, who ſucceeded Joaſh King of Judah in the Throne, was a good King in the Beginning of his Reign, tho' he ſeems to have ſome Difficulty to ſecure himſelf in the peaceable Poſſeſſion of it. This might be occaſion'd by a Conſpiracy to ſet up another King in the Room of him that was murder'd. However, when he had overcome this Oppoſition, it is ſaid, that (n) he ſlew his ſervants, that had ſlain the king his father. But the children of the murderers he ſlew not, according to that which was written in the law of Moſes, ſaying, (o) The fathers ſhall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers, but every man ſhall be put to death for his own ſin. Thus (p) he did that which was right in the ſight of the LORD, and might take Care to let the World know that it was ſo, when it was not done with a perfect Heart, from a Principle of Religion, but only of worldly Politicks, to ſecure himſelf in the Kingdom. About this (q) Time Hazael the King of Syria dies, and was ſucceeded by his Son Ben-hadad. He had been King for about fifty Years, and had been always a terrible Scourge to the Kingdom of Iſrael, and ſometimes alſo to that of Judah; ſo that his Death was a great Mercy to both Kingdoms, and (r) was repreſented ſo in Scripture: For the LORD was gracious unto them, and had compaſſion on them, and had reſpect unto them, becauſe of his covenant with Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, and would not deſtroy them, neither caſt he them from his preſence as yet.

86. Soon after this Eliſha, who had now been a Prophet for about ſixty Years, was (s) taken ill of his laſt Sickneſs; and Joaſh King of Iſrael hearing of this, and knowing how many things he had foretold, pays him a Viſit, to hear from him if poſſible, what ſhould happen to his own Kingdom. Joaſh comes to him, and laments the Loſs, which he was likely to have of ſo great a Defender, equal to all the Chariots and Horſemen which were in Iſrael. Eliſha directs him to ſhoot an Arrow eaſtward, out of the Window; upon which he ſaid, The arrow of the LORD*'s deliverance, and the arrow of deliverance from Syria* (whoſe Conqueſts at that Time lay eaſtward) for thou ſhalt ſmite the Syrians in Aphek, till thou haſt conſum'd them. There were two Apheks, one (t) in the Tribe of Judah, near Gath, which the Syrians had lately taken. But it is improbable, that this could be meant, becauſe the Iſraelites could not go thither, without Marching thro' the whole Kingdom of Judah, which would not be ſuffer'd. The other was (u) in the Tribe of Aſher in the north of Canaan; and this being near to Syria, we may ſuppoſe, that the firſt Battle was fought there with ſuch Succeſs, that the Syrians were driven out of the Country, tho' we have no particular Account of it. After this he bids Joaſh to ſhoot the Arrows againſt the Ground, which he did three Times, and Eliſha told him, that it was a Sign of three Victories and no more.

87. Eliſha being ſoon after dead and buried, there was nothing done that Year. The next Year (x) the Moabites, being probably in Confederacy with the Syrians, invade the Iſraelites in the Spring; and as the Iſraelites were carrying a dead Man to his Grave, they ſpied a Company of the Moabites coming againſt them. Upon this they roll'd the Stone away from Eliſha's Sepulchre, and put the dead Body into it; and when the Body touch'd Eliſha's Corps, it ſtood up, and was in perfect Health. This was enough to convince a Sadducee of the Reſurrection of the Body, to confirm the Nation in a Belief, that what the Prophet had foretold ſhould come to paſs, and to put Life and Vigour into the moſt feeble Soldier, with an aſſured Hope of three ſucceſſive Victories. However, the Succeſs anſwer'd the Predictions; for (y) Jehoaſh took again out of the hand of Ben-hadad the ſon of Hazael, the cities which he had taken out of the hand of Jehoahaz his father by war; three times did Joaſh beat him, and recover'd the cities of Iſrael. Where theſe Battles were fought is uncertain, but it is probable that they were on the other Side Jordan, and that he recover'd all that was loſt on that Side thereby; of which there ſeems to be this Proof, that (z) all the Seed of Iſrael were afterward carried away Captives out of the Land by Shalmanezer King of Aſſyria, the Kingdom of Judah excepted. This Joſephus (a) expreſly calls the Tranſportation of the ten Tribes, whereas if theſe had not been recover'd, they muſt have been ſeven and an half and no more.

88. Amaziah King of Judah being ſeated on the Throne, (b) raiſes an Army in his Kingdom to conquer the Edomites, who before had revolted; and thinking his own Subjects not ſtrong enough for this Expedition, he hires an hundred thouſand Men of the King of Iſrael, paying to him a Talent for every thouſand beſide their Pay. Theſe by the Direction of the Prophet were diſmiſs'd, and the Mony loſt; but returning back, and (c) taking it very heinouſly to be ſo treated, they fall upon ſome of the Cities of Judah, kill three thouſand Men, and carry off what Plunder they could meet with. Soon after this he gather'd all his Forces together, commanded them in Perſon, and march'd to a Place in the Country of Edom call'd the Valley of Salt, either from the Salt Springs, or from the Quantity of Salt which was digg'd there; and there in a pitch'd Battle he kill'd ten thouſand of the Edomites, and took ten thouſand Priſoners. After this he march'd to Selah the Metropolis of Arabia Petræa, which he alſo became Maſter of. Selah in Hebrew is the ſame with Petra in Greek, and ſignifies a Rock upon which the City ſtood. Hagar alſo, or סלע in Arabick, ſignifies a Mountain, and the Arabians call'd it ſo from the rocky mountain which was near this Place, and which St. Paul alſo (d) calls Hagar: and this King call'd the Place Joktheel, which Name continu'd afterward, and ſignifies The Obedience to GOD, as an Acknowledgment, that the Poſſeſſion of it was a Reward of his Obedience to the Prophet, who requir'd him to diſmiſs all the Forces that he had hir'd of the Iſraelites: and from the Top of this Rock he ſeems to have thrown down in cold Blood the ten thouſand Priſoners whom he took, ſo that they were all broken to Pieces. But ſuch was the Sottiſhneſs of Amaziah, that having conquer'd the Country of Edom, he was (e) conquer'd by their Idols, which he brought with him into his own Country, and there he worſhipp'd them. A Prophet had adviſ'd him before to diſmiſs the Iſraelites, becauſe they were Idolaters; and what could he now think, who was ſuch an Idolater himſelf? Soon after the ſame, or another Prophet expoſtulateth with him in theſe Words, Why haſt thou ſought after the gods of the people, who could not deliver their own people out of thy hand? Amaziah not being able to anſwer him by Reaſon, anſwers him by Threatnings, telling him, that he had nothing to do in this Matter, and if he did not forbear, it ſhould be the worſe for him. Upon this the Prophet deſiſts, and only lets him know, that his Obſtinacy was a ſure Sign, that GOD would enter into Judgment for it.

However, Amaziah being puff'd with this Succeſs, and thinking that he could carry all before him, is reſolv'd to be reveng'd on the Iſraelites, for the Damage which their Soldiers did him in their return to their own Country; and therefore (f) he ſends a threatning Meſſage to Jehoahaz King of Iſ- rael. Jehoahaz ſends him a contemptible Anſwer, and adviſeth him to tarry at home. Amaziah was the more enrag'd at this, and immediately marches with his Army to fight Jehoahaz, who not tarrying till he came up, meets him at Beth-ſhemeſh in his own Country and totally routs him. Here he takes Amaziah Priſoner, and brings him to Jeruſalem, letting (g) the Inhabitants know, that he would ſlay him before their Eyes, if they did not immediately open their Gates to him. The Inhabitants, not willing to loſe their King, let in Jehoahaz their Enemy, who takes all the Gold and Silver, and all the Veſſels that were found in the Houſe of the LORD, and in the Treaſures of the King's Houſe, lays a Tax upon the Land, and carries off Hoſtages for the Security of the Payment. And that in Caſe of Non payment the City might lie open to his Invaſion, he breaks down all the Fortifications from the Gate of Ephraim, which lies upon the North looking toward Iſrael to the Corner Gate, about four hundred Cubits, or ſome thing more than a Furlong: and ſo he returns to Samaria to defend himſelf againſt the Syrians, whom he had (h) beaten, as Eliſha had (i) foretold, but not conſumed them, ſo that they continu'd to be a formidable Enemy.

90. In the (k) fifteenth Year of Amaziah, Jeroboam the ſecond was ſeated on the Throne of Iſrael by his Father Joaſh, who ſeems to but in an ill State of Health, and died the Year following. He reign'd one and forty Years, and was a very valiant King, and bent his whole Force againſt Syria, from whence he expected the greateſt Danger, the Kingdom of Judah being now Tributaries to him, and in no Condition to oppoſe him. He (l) reſtor'd a large Territory, which other Kings had taken from his Predeceſſors, even all the Country from Libanus on the North, to the Lake Aſphaltites on the South, but eſpecially on the Eaſt of Jordan, thereby enlarging thoſe Conqueſts, which Jehoaſh had (m) formerly made: And whereas (n) Hamath and Damaſcus had been Tributaries to the Kings of Judah in the Days of David and Solomon, but had revolted from Iſrael, he (o) conquer'd them again, and made them Tributaries to him, as they had formerly been to ſome of his Predeceſſors. The great Cauſe of theſe Succeſſes was (p) the Encouragement of the Prophet Jonah the Son of Amittai, who was afterward ſent to forewarn the Ninevites of their Deſtruction. From him we may obſerve the Falſhood of that Calumny which (q) the Phariſees urg'd againſt our SAVIOUR, Art thou alſo of Galilee? Search and look; for out of Galilee ariſeth no prophet. The Words of (r) Iſaiah, as they are (s) quoted by St. Matthew from the Septuagint, are full to the contrary, and fuller (t) in the Hebrew Text. The land of Zebulun, and the land of Nephthalim, by the way of the Sea beyond Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles. The people which ſate in darkneſs, ſaw a great light: and to them which ſate in the region and ſhadow of death, light is ſprung up. Beſides, the Prophet Jonah, by whoſe Name one of the Books of the old Teſtament is call'd, was (u) of Gath-hepher, a Town (x) in Zebulun, and (as St. Hierome tells us) toward Tiberias in Galilee; ſo that if they had ſearch'd farther, they might have found another inſtance of their Miſtake.

91. As to Amaziah King of Judah, (y) tho' he liv'd ſeveral Years after his Defeat by the King of Iſrael; yet he did nothing emarkable, and was in very little Credit with his People. The City of Jeruſalem having been expos'd to Reproach by the great Breach made in the Wall, and ſpoil'd of its beſt Ornaments, and ſome of their Children carried away as Hoſtages for their good Behaviour, he was ſo odious among them, that they form'd a Conſpiracy againſt his Life. This coming to his Knowledge, he fled to Lachiſh a Town on the Frontiers of the Philiſtines. Upon this they ſent ſome of the Traitors thither, who (z) undertook to murder him privately, and effected it accordingly. His Friends hearing of this, carry his Corpſe to Jeruſalem, and there bury it honourably among his Anceſtors.

92. His Son Azariah being (a) ſixteen Years old ſucceeds him in the Throne, in the ſeven and twentieth Year of the Reign of Jeroboam the ſecond, King of Iſrael. He is call'd Uzziah (b) in the Book of Chronicles and among the Prophets, and ſometimes alſo (c) in the Book of Kings, where he is generally call'd Azariah, and (d) Ozias by St. Matthew. And it is no Wonder, that he ſhould be call'd by both Names, becauſe they are ſo much alike, one ſignifying The LORD is my ſtrength, and the other The LORD hath helped me. He muſt be born in the eleventh Year of Jeroboam the ſecond, who began his Reign in (e) the fifteenth Year of Amaziah, ſo that he was born in the five and twentieth Year of his Father's Reign, which was but four Years before his Death, and there was an Interregnum or Vacancy of twelve Years between the Death of his Father and the Beginning of his Reign. It is probable, that the Conſpirators, who had ſlain his Father, ſet up for themſelves, whilſt he was young and friendleſs, and turn'd the Government into a Democracy; but this being not according to their Conſtitution, and ſo a State of Confuſion, and nothing remarkable being done all this Time, there is no Notice taken of it in Scripture until the End of it, when another Party prevail'd to ſet the King upon the Throne, and turn the Government again into a Monarchy.

93. The Hiſtory of the Reign of Uzziah from the Beginning of it to his laſt Year is (f) briefly touch'd upon in the Book of Kings, and (g) more largely in the Chronicles, in ſo plain a ſtyle, that nothing is wanting to be added, but the (h) Words of Joſephus, who ſaith, that he was naturally a Man of great Juſtice, brave, provident and induſtrious. In the Beginning of his Reign he made War upon the Philiſtines, and having taken Gath, Jabneh and Aſhdod by Storm, he demoliſh'd their Walls, and built Cities in the Country thereabout to keep them in Subjection. The Reaſon whereof probably was, becauſe the Philiſtines join'd with the Conſpirators and Malecontents of his Kingdom; and therefore having ſubdued the one, he reſolv'd as ſoon as poſſible to ſubdue the other, and keep them in Subjection. After this he made another Expedition againſt the Arabians upon the Borders of Egypt, and built Eloth, a Town upon the Red-Sea, to carry on a Trade of Merchandiſe, and committed it to the Guard of a ſtrong Gariſon. After this he conquer'd the Meunims, who liv'd in thoſe Deſerts, and ſo terrified the Ammonites, that they alſo became Tributaries to him. Thus he reduc'd the whole Country as far as the Frontiers of Egypt under his Power, and after that he reſolv'd to put the City of Jeruſalem in a good Poſture of Defence; ſo that where the Walls were ruinous or decay'd, whether by Age or by the Neglect of former Governors, he built them new, and he alſo repair'd that Breach, which the King of Iſrael had made, when Amaziah was his Priſoner, at his triumphant Entrance into the City. He erected alſo ſeveral Towers of an hundred and fifty Cubits in Height, and built Caſtles and ſtrong Forts for the ſecurity of the open Country, beſide a great many Aqueducts, Ciſterns and Baſons for the Relief of his Herds and Cattle, whereof the Number was incredible, the Country being naturally diſpos'd for Paſture. He was himſelf alſo a great Lover of Tillage, Planting, Gardening, Nurſeries, and all Sorts of Husbandry. As to the military Part, he had an Army of three hundred and ſeventy thouſand ſelect Men, under the Command of two thouſand brave and experienc'd Officers, and well arm'd with Swords and Bucklers, brazen Corſlets, Bows and Slings, and train'd up to the Exerciſe of Arms, and the Drawing up of Armies after the moſt advantageous Way of martial Diſcipline. He had ſeveral Machines and Engines alſo for Battery, and Caſting of Stones and Darts, beſide Hooks and other Inſtruments for Beſieging. But his Head was at laſt ſo taken up with the Vanity of theſe Preparations and Deſigns, that the Arrogance of his Ambition for a tranſitory and an earthly Glory took him quite off from the Thoughts of everlaſting Happineſs, and from the Duties of Holineſs and Religion in the Worſhip and Service of Almighty GOD; inſomuch that he fail'd in his Integrity after the Example of his Father, out of an Impotency of Mind, that was not able to bear up againſt the Tide of a conſtant Courſe of Proſperity and Succeſs.

94. But as GOD was not willing to leave himſelf without Witneſs in theſe idolatrous and corrupt Times, but rais'd up Prophets to declare his Will both to the Houſe of (i) Iſrael and (k) Judah; ſo now he begins to raiſe up Prophets of an higher Nature, even ſuch who ſhould leave their Writings behind them, to make up the remaining Part of the old Teſtament. The firſt of theſe was the Prophet Hoſea, and ſo (l) he teſtifies of himſelf, that the beginning of the Word of the LORD was by him. Aud thus as under an Hoſea (m) Iſrael enter'd into the Land of Canaan, and (n) under an Hoſhea they were carried thence; ſo GOD rais'd up an Hoſea the firſt of theſe Prophets to tax their Unthankfulneſs for the one, and to foretel the Fearfulneſs of the other. The Date of his Propheſy tells us, that it was in the Days (o) of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah, and in the Days of Jeroboam the Son of Joaſh King of Iſrael. Now as Jeroboam died in (p) the fifteenth Year of the Reign of Uzziah, ſo from hence it is evident, that he began to propheſy in one of thoſe fifteen Years. The following Occurrences in the Time of Jeroboam's Reign will lead us to conjecture, that Hoſea began to propheſy in the third Year of Uzziah's Reign; and we may learn from his Prophesy it self, that some of it was written in the (q) ninth Year of Hezekiah's Reign, when Shalmanezer King of Assyria came up against Samaria, and having kill'd many of the Inhabitants of a Place call'd Betharbel in a barbarous Manner to terrify the rest, he carried the King and the People Captives into Assyria. This the Prophet describes in this Manner, (r) As Shalman spoil'd Betharbel in the day of battle, the mother was dash'd in pieces with her children; and (s) GOD also describes it thus, I gave to Israel a king, or to be a distinct Kingdom in the Time of Jeroboam, in mine anger, to the House of Judah, and took this Monarchy or King away in my wrath to the Kingdom of Israel. So that according to this Reckoning he was a Prophet for eighty four Years together. And as in the Beginning of his Prophesy he was of an Age fit for (t) Marriage, which we cannot suppose to be less than sixteen Years, so he must be at least an hundred Years old at the End. And thus, as GOD had (u) prolong'd the Life of Jehoiada the High Priest to be an hundred and thirty Years old; so he prolong'd the Lives of others, who were eminently holy, or whom he call'd forth to more eminent Services.

95. His two first Chapters plainly shew, that they were declar'd by him in the Beginning of his Prophesying; and the two next may well be suppos'd to be of the same Date, as appears by the Subject of them. In the (x) first Chapter, GOD in a Parable orders him to marry an adulterous Wife, and so he takes Gomer the Daughter of Diblaim, a Name which may be thus interpreted, A compleat and final Desolation, the Effect of a general Corruption, like (y) decay'd Figs, which are good for nothing. In this Parable he is suppos'd to have Children, by whose Names he foretels several Calamities. First, the Ruin (z) of the House of Jehu by calling the first Son Jezreel, and threatning to avenge the Blood spilt in that Place. Secondly, The Ruin (a) of the Kingdom of Israel typified by a Daughter call'd Lo-ruhamah, or One who had not obtain'd mercy. For before these Times when Hosea began to prophesy, GOD had pitied Israel very much, and (b) eas'd them in a great Measure of their Troubles and Afflictions. But now he would do so no more; tho' he would yet pity and save Judah (c) not by bow and sword, but by an Angel in the Days of Hezekiah, who destroy'd Senacherib's Army. Thirdly, he foretels the Destruction (d) of the House of Judah under the Type of the third Son call'd Lo-ammi, or Not my people, giving this as a Reason, For ye are not my people, and I will not be your GOD: After this he foretels, that the Gentiles (e) should be call'd in, and become one People under one King, the LORD JESUS CHRIST, when they should say to the Gentiles, Ammi, Ye are my people, and call each Woman Ruhamah, or One who had obtained mercy. In the second Chapter he particularizes upon those Heads, which were mention'd before, and proceeds to shew the Reason and Manner of the Rejection of the Jews, and the Happiness of the Church in the Calling of the Gentiles; so that these two Chapters seem to be written about the same Time. The third and fourth Chapters cannot be of a much later Date, because he (f) foretels the Plague of Locusts, in the same Manner with Joel and Amos, describing it as the others had also done. In the third Chapter, under the Parable of another Marriage with an adulterous Wife, he foretels the Iniquity of the People after their Return from Babylon into their own Land, and their State in their present Rejection, when they neither follow'd Idols nor GOD, and when neither as a Wife they adher'd to GOD, nor yet to any other God, as to another Husband. The fourth Chapter speaks of the Jews as they were at that Time, and shews their Wickedness, and what Judgments were coming upon them, exhorting them to beware. And here he dates their Wickedness from (g) the Murder of Zechariah the Son of Jehoiada, when they so brake out, that (h) blood touched blood, and the Blood of the Sacrificer was mingl'd with the Blood of the Sacrifice, and they were grown so incorrigible, that (i) they strove at that Time with the priest, to whom if they had hearken'd, they might have repented. So that it cannot be put much farther back, because it was intended as a Reproof to them who were then alive.

96. Soon after this the Prophet Joel began to prophesy. The Time when he began, is not expresly mention'd; but the Subject of his Prophesy will give us a near Approach to it, because he speaks of the same Plague of Locusts, of Drought, and of Fire, that the Prophet Amos mentions, and therefore they could not be far distant. He sadly laments (k) in his two first Chapters the miserable Famine and grievous Condition, that the People were brought into thro' the Plague of Locusts and Drought, and describes the Caterpillers, Palmer-worms, and Locusts, whom he calls The Northern Army, as if they were an Army of Men indeed. However he concludes afterward with comfortable Promiſes of Rain after the Drought, and flouriſhing Trees and Times after the Locuſts. And upon that Diſcourſe of the Reſtitution of temporal Bleſſings, he proceeds to ſpeak of ſpiritual Bleſſings in the Days of CHRIST, in the Gift of Tongues, and the Wonders which ſhould attend his Death, and go before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. And then he ſeems to conclude the third Chapter with things that are yet to come concerning the Converſion of the Jews, their Entering into the Land of Canaan, the Deſtruction of all their Enemies, and the glorious State of the Church which ſhonld afterward follow to the End of the World.

97. Next after theſe two Prophets, in the ſame Order as they are rank'd in the old Teſtament, follow'd the Propheſy of Amos. It was all ſpoken in the Days of Jeroboam and in the Days of Uzziah, when they liv'd together, and there is not the leaſt Mention of his Propheſying in the Days of any other King. He tells us (k) almoſt at the End of his Book, that Jeroboam King of Iſrael was then alive, and Amaziah the Prieſt of Bethel would have ſtirr'd him up againſt Amos as againſt a Traitor. However he denounceth ſevere Judgments againſt this falſe Prophet, he repeats what he had before mention'd of the Captivity of Iſrael, and continues to propheſy, as he did before. Thus when they had been brought very low by their Enemies, and their Miſeries were become exceeding great, even then GOD would not deſtroy them, but tries them with one Kindneſs more, and gives them a great Eaſe and Deliverance by Jeroboam the ſecond. But when both King and People continu'd in the Idolatry of Jeroboam the firſt, and in the Wickedneſs of their own Ways, GOD ſends theſe Prophets among them to forewarn them of their Danger, and foretel their final Deſtruction, thereby to induce them to Repentance. He declares, that (l) by Education he was neither a prophet, nor a prophet's ſon, that is, neither a Tutor nor a Scholar in the Schools of the Prophets, but a Shepherd of Tekoa, and of a rude Breeding; yet like the Galilean Fiſhermen he becomes a glorious Scholar in the School of GOD, and a glorious Teacher in the Congregation of Iſrael. He began to propheſy (m) two Years before the Earthquake, and his firſt Propheſy is of it, That the LORD will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jeruſalem, and the habitations of the ſhepherds ſhall mourn, and the top of Carmel ſhall wither; that (n) the LORD ſhould ſmite the winter houſe with the ſummer houſe, and (o) the lintel of the door of the idolatrous Temple ſhould be ſmitten, and (p) the poſts ſhould ſhake, and there ſhould be a Rent in the Temple of Bethel, when GOD came to viſit them, as there was in the Temple of Jeruſalem at the Death of CHRIST. He utters the Judgments of GOD againſt ſix Nations for the Crimes already mention'd, and declares thoſe Calamities, that ſhould ſoon follow them. In each Place he ſpeaks of three or four tranſgreſſions, putting a ſet Number inſtead of a great many, and concludes them all under an irreverſable Decree of Deſtruction. And the Senſe of the whole runs thus. (q) The LORD will roar from Zion, and utter his voice from Jeruſalem. And (r) thus ſaith the LORD, Becauſe of the many Tranſgreſſions of theſe Nations (s) I will not revoke the voice, which hath been ſpoken; but the Judgments denounc'd ſhall certainly light upon each of them, of which the Earthquake ſhall be an undoubted Token. And at laſt he (t) ſpeaks of the Reſtoring the Church of GOD among the Jews, and the happy Acceſſion of the Gentiles into it, in ſuch plain Terms, that when the Apoſtles (u) diſcours'd of Admitting them without Circumciſion, we read of no other Text which they mention'd but this, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will ſet it up: That the reſidue of men might ſeek after the LORD, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is call'd, ſaith the LORD, who doth all theſe things.

98. We are expreſly told (x) that two Years after the Propheſying of Amos began, an Earthquake happen'd, which was ſo terrible, that it brought them to their Wits Ends, and made them flee to ſave their Lives, but they knew not whither. We have no Account of this Earthquake either in the Books of Kings or Chronicles; but (y) the Prophet Zechariah ſpeaks of it, as if it was a proverbial Speech in his Time, which was above two hundred and fifty Years after; Ye ſhall flee, as when ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah. This was attended with a great Noiſe, which made it more terrible, and (z) call'd by the Prophet Amos, The Roaring of the LORD, and the Uttering of his Voice; and ſome think, that (a) the Prophet Joel alſo foretold it in theſe Words, The earth ſhall quake, and the heavens ſhall tremble. And the LORD ſhall utter his voice before his army: for he is ſtrong, that executeth his word, for the day of the LORD is great and very terrible, and who can abide it? But it is more probable, that theſe Words ſpeak rather of the Invaſion of Judea by Senacherib King of Aſſyria, or of their Captivity by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, and the Judgments which ſhould happen at that Time. This Earthquake was as the Beginning of their Deſolation, and the Shaking of the Earth was a Sign unto them, that their State and Kingdom ſhould ſuddenly be ſhaken. It was both in the Days of Jeroboam the ſecond, and in the Days of Uzziah, as (a) Amos particularly mentions; and therefore it was neither in the Year when Uzziah was ſmitten with Leproſy, nor in the Year when he died, as the Jews imagine, but long before.

99. After this there ſeem to follow four Judgments of leſs Terror, but of longer Continuance in the four ſucceſſive Years. The Prophet Joel deſcribes them as ſuch, that (b) the like had not happen'd in the Time of any of the oldeſt Men then alive, or in the Time of their Fathers. The firſt of theſe was the Palmer-worm, the ſecond the Locuſt, the third was the Canker-worm, and the fourth the Caterpiller. Beſide theſe, which might have been fulfill'd in a literal Senſe, it is probable, that the Prophet Joel might alſo refer to the four Monarchies, the Aſſyrian, the Perſian, the Grecian, and the Roman; the three firſt acted their Parts againſt both Iſrael and Judah in their Turns, and the laſt came, and utterly deſtroy'd them; and it muſt be own'd, that what was literally ſpoken of the one, might alſo be figuratively ſpoken of the other. Soon after this comes a fifth Plague (c) of Graſhoppers. The other four ſeem to have come in the Time of the Harveſt, and theſe ſeem to come immediately after the laſt, as ſoon as the Harveſt was over, in the beginning of the ſhooting up of the latter growth after the king's mowings. Thus when the Fields and Trees were laden with Corn and Fruit, theſe (d) laid the vines waſte, and barked the fig-trees; theſe (e) cauſed the harveſt of the field to periſh, and the trees to wither, ſo that (f) there was not corn and wine ſufficient for a meat-offering, and a drink-offering in the houſe of the LORD. Then did (g) the beaſts groan, the herds of the cattle were perplexed, becauſe they had no paſture, and the flocks of ſheep were made deſolate. The (h) land did mourn, and every one that dwelt therein did languiſh, with the beaſts of the field and the fowls of heaven. The Prophet Joel ſeems to call the fourth Plague, or the Caterpillers, (i) the northern army, as if they were an Army of Men indeed; ſo that if we take his Words in that Senſe, the Locuſts and Caterpillers fled firſt into the north Part of the Land, from toward Syria and Hamath, and kept, as it were, in a Body devouring all before them, as they went along to the ſouth Part; and there, as they were facing about to go off below the Point of the Dead Sea, they were famiſh'd in the Wilderneſs, ſo that like (k) the Frogs in Egypt they were offenſive to the whole Country. Thus (l) they were driven into a land barren and deſolate, with their faces toward the eaſt ſea, and their hinder parts toward the utmoſt or the Mediterranean ſea; and their ſtink, and their ill ſavour came up into the Noſtrils of the Inhabitants.

100. The heavy Plague of Graſhoppers, which follow'd the Caterpillers, being alſo (m) remov'd by the Prayer of Amos, the Sins of the People cried for another; and therefore the LORD (n) called to contend by fire, or by an extream Drought, with which were mix'd fearful Flaſhes of Lightning, which fell from Heaven, as (o) it did before in Egypt; ſo that (p) the flames devoured all the paſtures of the wilderneſs, and burnt up all the trees of the field. At this Time ſome Cities were (q) utterly conſum'd, and the reſt eſcap'd ſo narrowly, that they were as a firebrand pluckt out of the burning; and unleſs (r) there had been a few good People in the Land, who by their Prayers and Tears turn'd away the Wrath of GOD, the whole Kingdom had been left like Sodom and Gomorrah, as a ſtanding Monument of GOD's Vengeance. At this Time (s) not only ſeveral of the Rivers of Waters were dried up, but alſo (t) the Lakes upon the River Jordan were devour'd by the Heat, and a Part of them were eaten up, and (u) many of the Fiſh were deſtroyed. This being alſo (x) diverted by the Prayer of Amos, and probably of other Prophets and good Men, GOD reſolv'd (y) upon one Judgment more, even their Captivity in Babaylon, and therefore he ſhews the Cauſes of it, and the Neceſſity thereof, and (z) bids them prepare for it; and then he proceeds, as (a) with a Line, to meaſure them out for Deſtruction, and decrees, that the high Places of Iſrael ſhould be deſolate, and the Sanctuaries of Iſrael ſhould be laid waſte, and he would riſe up againſt the Houſe of Jeroboam with the Sword, when the Promiſe (b) to his Great Grandfather Jehu was fulfill'd, and which accordingly (c) happen'd in the next Generation. GOD therefore (d) reſolving to puniſh no more at preſent for their provoking Impieties, takes another Method, and raiſes up a Race of Prophets continually and ſucceſſively among them both in Iſrael and Judah; ſo that he did not leave himſelf without Witneſs, but he gave them Warning, Threatning, Inſtruction and Exhortation from Time to Time by thoſe already mention'd, and thoſe who follow after. This they did not only by Word of Mouth, bnt they alſo committed what they ſaid to Writing, and to Poſterity, that all Generations to come might ſee the Abomination and Ingratitude of that People, (e) written as it were with a pen of iron, and with a point of a diamond; and all others might read and fear, and do no more ſo wickedly.

101. The next in Order both of Time, and in the Old Teſtament, was Obadiah. Many of the Jewiſh Writers affirm, that this was the Obadiah, who liv'd in the Time of Ahab, and who (f) hid an hundred prophets from the Rage of Jezebel, and fed them with bread and water. But nothing is more common with them, than to confound Names and Times. However in this they contradict themſelves, when they truly affirm from (g) expreſs Scripture, that The beginning of the word of the LORD was by Hoſea. Or he was the firſt Prophet, who left any thing behind him in Writing. But there is another Objection againſt this Opinion. He is there only call'd A fearer of the LORD; but if he had been a Prophet, he would certainly have been call'd a Prophet, becauſe it was a more honourable Title. Beſides, it would have been impoſſible for Obadiah to have eſcap'd, when Jezebel ſought to deſtroy all the LORD's Prophets, becauſe he was always at Court, and under Jezebel's Eye. If this Obadiah had been the Courtier of Ahab, it had been very eaſy to tell in what Time and Place to lay his Propheſy: but as he was not, and there is no other of this Name mention'd in the Scripture, who can lay the leaſt Claim to it; ſo we are ſtill to ſeek, who this Prophet was, and in what Time he liv'd. There are therefore others (h), who place him as far back as the Babyloniſh Captivity, becauſe it appears by his Propheſy, that (i) at that Time Judah and Jeruſalem had been under a very great Calamity and Captivity, and Edom in particular had help'd to promote their Miſery; Strangers had carry'd away Captive the Forces of Jeruſalem, and Foreigners had enter'd into her Gates, and caſt Lots upon her, and Edom in particular was one of them. This occaſion'd all the Threatnings in this Propheſy to be directed againſt that Country. And it is certain, that at the Taking of Jeruſalem by the Babylonians, the (k) Edomites were buſy to help on the Ruin, and cried, Raſe it, raſe it, even to the foundations thereof. Now if this Propheſy refers to that Time, it ſhould regularly be plac'd after that of the Prophet Jeremiah. But there are other Arguments to prove, that it was of a ſooner Date: Firſt, Becauſe there is no Mention of any ſuch Prophet at or after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, when all the Men of the beſt Note and Eminency are very carefully reckon'd up. And ſecondly, Becauſe he mentions only the Captivity of Judah and Iſrael in (l) Zarephath and Sepharad; not in France and Spain, as the Words are commonly interpreted, but in Sarepta, a City of Zidon, and ſome other Place thereabout, or in Edom, of ſo ſmall a Note, that the Name is not once more mention'd in all the Scriptures; and it puzzles the beſt Geographers and Commentators to tell where it lay. Now if this Propheſy had been after the Babylonians had deſtroy'd Jeruſalem, it had been more proper to have ſpoken of the Captivity of Iſrael in Aſſyria, and of Judah in Babylon, and not of a ſmall Parcel of Captives in two very ſmall Towns or Places. The only Way therefore to fix the Time of this Prophet, is to compare his Propheſy againſt Edom, with what the Prophet Amos ſaith on the ſame Subject; and then we muſt conclude, that this malicious Carriage of the Edomites againſt Judah and Jeruſalem, was (m) either when it was ſack'd by Shiſhak King of Egypt, which ſeems to be at too far a Diſtance, or rather (n) when the Philiſtines and Arabians invaded Judah, and (o) the Edomites revolted from them at the ſame Time. Theſe Captives of Iſrael and Judah in Sarepta and Sepharad were the ſame, which (p) the Prophet Amos ſpeaks of as taken by thoſe of Tyre to be deliver'd up to Edom, as it hath been already mention'd in the Life of that Prophet. For this Reaſon the Prophet Joel (p) declares, that Edom ſhould be a deſolate wilderneſs; and Oba- diah ſaith, (r) that the Captivity of Jeruſalem, which is in Sepharad, ſhall poſſeſs the cities of the ſouth: which is the ſame that the Prophet Amos (s) ſaith of Edom, that GOD would ſend a fire upon Teman, which ſhould devour the palaces of Bozrah, ſince both the Names have the ſame Signification. However he (t) foretels on this Occaſion the great Acceſſion which ſhould be to the Church of GOD in the Goſpel Times, That upon mount Zion there ſhould be a deliverance, and it ſhould be holy; or to uſe the Words of the Prophet Iſaiah, (u) In the laſt days the mountain of the LORD*'s houſe ſhall be eſtabliſhed in the top of the mountains, and ſhall be exalted above the hills, and all nations ſhall flow unto it.* And (x) a very remarkable SAVIOUR, or CHRIST JESUS, ſhall come unto mount Zion, to judge the mount of Eſau, or the Nations of the Gentiles, and the kingdom ſhall be the LORD's; or as the (y) Angel ſaid to the Virgin Mary, He ſhall be great, and ſhall be called the Son of the higheſt; and the LORD ſhall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he ſhall reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there ſhall be no end.

102. There is little more recorded of Jeroboam the ſecond King of Iſrael, but that after he had deliver'd his Kingdom from thoſe, who had them for ſome Time in Subjection, and ſo was (z) a Saviour to them, (a) he enlarg'd their Conqueſts on the north Side, and recover'd Hamath and Damaſcus from the Syrians, and annex'd it to the Kingdom of Iſrael. When David was King of the twelve Tribes, he (b) fought againſt the Syrians, and brought them into Subjection to him; and accordingly he put Gariſons into Damaſcus and Hamath, and left them under (c) the Juriſdiction of his Son Solomon. When Solomon fell off to Idolatry, Rezon with an Army that he had got together, (d) took that Country from him, and reign'd in Damaſcus; and now Jeroboam poſſeſs'd himſelf of it again, and by his Valour made it as ſubject to Iſrael as it had been to Judah. And after he had (e) reign'd one and forty Years with great Succeſs, he died, and was honourably bury'd with his Anceſtors. But he left the Government in ſuch a Confuſion, from Cauſes unknown (either thro' Wars abroad, which Jeroboam might have provok'd againſt his Houſe by (f) the Conqueſt of Hamath and Damaſcus, or from Wars at home, as appears by (g) the unfortunate End of his Succeſſor) that after his Deceaſe there was an Interregnum or Vacancy of the Throne for the Space of two and twenty Years. However, it is certain, that they were ſo long without a King, becauſe (h) Jeroboam began to reign in the fifteenth Year of Amaziah King of Judah, and died in the fifteenth Year of King Uzziah, having reign'd fourteen Years contemporary with Amaziah, who reign'd (i) nine and twenty Years, and twelve Years, during which Time there was a Vacancy in the Throne of Judah, and fifteen Years in the Reign of Uzziah, which make up the one and forty Years of his Reign, and his Son (k) Zechariah began not to reign till the eight and thirtieth Year of the Reign of Uzziah King of Judah.

103. During the Time of this Interregnum in Iſrael, there were two extraordinary Prophets. The firſt of theſe was (l) Jonah the Son of Amittai. He had propheſied (m) before in the Life-time of Jeroboam; and now he is ſent upon another Errand after his Death. The Time when he propheſied is gueſs'd at from the Words of his (n) Propheſy, Yet forty days and Nineveh ſhall be overthrown. If we take theſe Words in a literal Senſe for only the Space of forty Days, as Jonah himſelf underſtood them, they were not accompliſh'd. For (o) GOD ſaw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and GOD repented of the evil, that he had ſaid he would do unto them, and he did it not. Jonah was in ſuch Expectation of the Accompliſhment of what he ſaid, that (p) he made a Booth on the eaſt Side of the City, and there he waited to ſee, in what Manner this Deſtruction ſhould happen. And when he was diſappointed of his Expectation, he (q) wiſh'd for Death rather than Life, leſt he ſhould go under the Diſreputation, and perhaps the Puniſhment of being a falſe Prophet, until GOD (r) convinc'd him by a familiar Example, that it was but reaſonable to ſpare ſo populous a City. If we take theſe Words to ſignify forty Years, one Day for a Year, and that the Overthrowing of Nineveh may not ſignify its final Deſtruction, but only the Overthrow of that (s) antient Empire of the Aſſyrians, whoſe Reſidence was at Nineveh, which had govern'd Aſia for above thirteen hundred Years, and was deſtroy'd under their effeminate King Sardanapalus; then the Propheſy phesy might be literally fulfill'd, and the Fulfilling of it will lead us to the Year, in which it was spoken. However, tho' the Prophesy of Jonah was not fulfill'd at the End of forty Days, as he expected, and at the End of forty Years there was only an Overturning of the Monarchy, and not of the City; yet his being miraculously preserv'd in the Whale's Belly procur'd him such a Credit, that it was believ'd, tho' the Time was uncertain. Thus when Tobit gave Instructions to his Son Tobias, he puts (s) this among the rest, And now, my son, depart out of Nineveh, because those things, which the prophet Jonas spake, shall surely come to pass. And it is said of Tobias, (t) that before he died, he heard of the destruction of Nineveh, which was taken by Nabuchodonosor and Ahasheuerus; and before his death he rejoiced over Nineveh. These two being (u) related by Marriage, enter'd into a Confederacy against the Assyrians; and joining their Forces together they besieg'd this City, and after having taken the Place, and slain Saracus the King, they utterly destroy'd that great and antient City: and from that Time Babylon became the sole Metropolis of the Assyrian Empire, so that afterward their Kings always resided there. For altho there was another City which was erected out of its Ruins, and for a long Time bore the same Name, and is now call'd Mausul; yet it never attain'd to the Grandeur and Glory of the former. This City is situated on the west Side of the Tigris, which was a Part of the Suburbs of old Nineveh; but the Town it self stood on the east Side, where some of its Ruins of vast Extent are to be seen at this Day. And thus the Prophesies not only of (x) Jonah, but also of (y) Nahum, and (z) Zephaniah against it were fulfill'd. Thus when Hosea, Joel and Amos had foretold the Rejection and Ruin both of Israel and Judah, and when Obadiah had foretold the Desolation of Esau the next Kinsman, and when the Seed of Jacob and Esau was decreed to be cast off, it was a seasonable Time to send Jonah to preach to the Gentiles. At first he declines this Message, and (a) resolves to flee out of the Land of Israel, thinking that none were call'd to be Prophets but in that Country, and so he should escape from being sent any more. For this Purpose he resolves to go to Tarsus a City in Cilicia, where the great Apostle of the Gentiles was (b) afterward born, and which at this Time was under the Dominion of Nineveh it self. The Cause of his Fleeing thither is suppos'd to be his Knowing, that the Coming in of the Gentiles would be the Casting off of the Jews; and he was unwilling to be the Instrument and Promoter of it. However, after he was cast into the Sea to appease the Wrath of GOD shewn by a violent Storm, he comes to Shore in the Belly of a Whale. Thus he was a Type of the Death of CHRIST, which could only appease the Wrath of GOD conceiv'd against the Sins of the whole World, and also (c) of his Burial and Resurrection. After this he was (d) sent again upon the same Message, which he dar'd not now to refuse; and the Repentance of (e) the Ninevites upon his Preaching, made the Obstinacy of the Jews more inexcusable.

104. Two Years after the Preaching of Jonah to the Ninevites, the Prophet Isaiah is commanded to preach unto the Jews. He begins his Prophesy like Hosea and Amos, In the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah kings of Judah; but he doth not add, And in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, because Jeroboam was now dead, and there was no King of Israel at this Time. The Reason why it is plac'd here is a Prophesy of his, that (f) within threescore and five Years Ephraim shall be broken, that it be not a people. The Difficulty of this Text is to know to what it refers; for if we know where it ends, we certainly know when it began. Now the ten Tribes being often comprehended under the Name of Ephraim, this Text hath by many been suppos'd to refer to the Captivity of them (g) by Shalmanazer King of Assyria, in the ninth Year of Hoshea's and the sixth Year of Hezekiah's Reign, when it seems to have been literally fulfill'd. And if so, then it cannot be dated from the Time when Isaiah utter'd this Prophesy in the Time of Ahaz; since from the first Year of Ahaz, to the Breaking of Ephraim, was but twenty Years. Neither can it be dated from the Beginning of Amos's Prophesy; for he began in Jeroboam's Time, and from the last Year of Jeroboam's Reign, to the Breaking of Ephraim, was above seventy Years. And therefore it must be counted from the Time, when Isaiah himself began to prophesy, which must accordingly be in the three and twentieth Year of Uzziah's Reign. He began to prophesy then, and had so continu'd all the Reign of Jotham; and it was now the Reign of Ahaz, and GOD fixeth this his Term for Ephraim's Kingdom. So that if we count from the Beginning of this his Prophesy sixty five Years forward, it brings us to the Time when the ten Tribes were carry'd away Captives. Now the Reasons of Computing from thence rather than from any other Time, may be two. First, Because this was near the middle Time of the Revolt of the ten Tribes to the Destruction of the Temple, which contain'd the Space of three hundred and ninety Years, as they are (h) reckon'd up by the Prophet Ezekiel; and the HOLY GHOST usually divides so remarkable an Epocha into two equal Parts. Thus from the Promise given to Abraham to (i) the Fulfilling it, were four huudred and thirty Years; and of these there were two hundred and fifteen Years to the Going down of Jacob into Egypt, and as many to their Deliverance thence. And in this Epocha from Israel's Sin to Israel's Punishment, which consisted of three hundred and ninety Years, there were an hundred ninety five Years to the first Admonition of this great Prophet, and as many more to their grand Captivity. And Secondly, This will carry a near Resemblance between the two great Prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah. For as (k) the Beginning of his Prophesy was a Sign to the House of Judah, that at (l) the End of forty Years from thence, Jerusalem should be destroy'd; so the Beginning of Isaiah's Prophesy was a Sign to the ten Tribes, that (m) at the End of sixty five Years their Captivity should happen; and (n) if they did not believe what he had said in the whole Course of his Ministry (which they did not) then they should not be established. There is another Interpretation given of this Text by (o) learned Men, which I shall not dispute; but if it is admitted, we have no Way to fix the Time, when Isaiah began to prophesy, but only in general, that it was in the seven and thirty Year's Space between the Death of Jeroboam King of Israel, and the Death of Uzziah King of Judah.

105. However if this Interpretation is admitted, and (p) the Arabick Historian can be depended upon, we may easily compute the Time of this Prophet. He tells us, that he was an hundred and twenty Years old when he died, and he was a Prophet eighty five Years. According to this Account, his last Prophesy was in the twenty seventh Year of Hezekiah King of Judah, or two Years before his Death: And as he is suppos'd to be put to Death in (q) the first Year of Manasseh's Reign, so he had no Revelations from GOD for three Years before; he was therefore six Years younger than King Uzziah, and born two Years after the Death of his Father and Predecessor Amaziah King of Judah. The Story of his Death is, (r) that Manasseh made an Idol, which had four Faces, and order'd it to be worshipp'd. And when Isaiah endeavour'd to dissuade him from such an Idolatry, he order'd him to be tied between two Beams, and so to be sawn asunder. This was an old Tradition among both (s) Jews and (t) Arabians; and St. Paul in (u) his Epistle to the Hebrews, reckoning that of being sawn asunder among the Torments undergone by the Prophets and Martyrs of foregoing Times, he is (x) generally thought to have referr'd hereto, especially because we know of no other Instance, to which he can refer. But tho' he prophesied so long in the Days of Uzziah; yet there are only the five first Chapters recorded, of all that he saw or spoke until the last Year of his Reign.

106. Some time after this the Olympick Games were settled in Greece, to be kept every four Years. The Use of them at that Time was to train up the Youth in warlike and active Exercises, that if Occasion requir'd, they might be more capable to do their Country Service in the Field, and be advanc'd to such Stations without Partiality, as they were thought to be most capable of. But the Use of them since hath been to fix a Method of the History of the Greeks, who continu'd afterward to reckon by the Olympiads; so that when it was known in what particular Year of any particular Olympiad any remarkable Transaction happen'd, it was easy to reduce it to the Æras kept in any other Part of the World. Varro the most learned Person among the Romans both for History and Antiquity, reckon'd (y) three sorts of Time: The first from the Beginning of Mankind to the first Flood, which he call'd uncertain, because no Account could be given of it from any Heathen Writer. The other from the first Flood to the first Olympiad, which he call'd fabulous, because many strange Stories were reported to have been done by the Gods in those Times, and they were hardly digested into any Method or Order. The last was from the first Olympiad till his Time, which he call'd historical, because from thence all Transactions were laid in their proper Places. Thus (z) Justin Martyr saith, That nothing of History was written exactly by the Greeks before the Olympiads; and we are told the same in (a) Eusebius, that until that Time every thing was confus'd, and no one Part could be made to agree with the other. These Games and Exercises were first instituted about four hundred and forty Years before by Hercules, not the Son of Jupiter and Alcmena so much celebrated by the Greek and Latin Poets, but one of the Priests of Cybele call'd Idæi Dactyli and Corybantes, who first came to Greece from Ida a Mountain in Phrygia, and brought in many superstitious Rites into that Country. He is said to have measur'd the Length of the Race by his own Foot, by which Pythagoras found out the Stature and proportionable Strength of his Body. They took their Name not from the Mountain of Olympus, but from the City Olympia since call'd Pisa, near to Elis a City of Peloponnesus, where they were celebrated in the adjacent Plains near the River Alpheus. Here was also the Temple of Jupiter, which had vast Treasures belonging to it, by Reason of the Oracles, which were given there, and these Games which were celebrated near it in Honour of this Pagan Deity. And here was (b) also his Statue made by Phidias, which was reckon'd to be one of the Wonders of the World, and from whence he was call'd Jupiter Olympius. After the Death of Hercules these Games were discontinued for many Years, till Iphitus establish'd them by Advice from the Oracle of Apollo, Lycurgus their Lawgiver being then living. This happen'd three and twenty Years before the Building of Rome according to the Varronian Account, and four and twenty Years before it according to the Capitolian Account, and nine and twenty Years before the grand Æra of Nabonassar, from whence the learned Dr. Prideaux began his famous History. Being thus settl'd they were continu'd by the Grecians till the Time of Constantine the Great, who upon his Professing himself a Christian slighted first the Ludi seculares, and afterward all the other Games, as Monuments of Pagan Superstition, so that they were less and less in Esteem, and either in the Time of Theodosius the Great, or before, they were utterly unfrequented, and so they came to nothing.

107. These Games were formerly perform'd at the End of every four Years, where the Youth of Greece contended for the Mastery in five Sorts of Exercises, which lasted for five Days, one of them for each Day, viz. The Cæstus or Whorlebat, Running either on Foot, on Horseback, or in Chariots; The Quoit, Leaping, and Wrestling. Hither also came Orators, Poets and Musicians, and all who thought themselves excellent in any laudable Quality, to make a Trial of their Skill; and the very Criers, who proclaim'd the Victories, contended which of them should get the Honour of having the most audible Voice. Neither were mean Persons only concern'd, but even Kings themselves were Competitors for the Victory: of which there is this Instance, that Hiero King of Syracuse came thither to try his Fortune, and won one of the Horse-Races; which caus'd Pindar, the most celebrated Poet, to dedicate his first Olympick to him on that Occasion. The Inhabitants of Elis were the Presidents of those Games, whose impartial Proceeding in giving Sentence according to Merit hath been highly commended. The Conqueror was call'd Olympionices. The Reward, which he had, was only a Garland of Palm or Olive, with many external Tokens of Respect and Eſteem, as to be attended by the People with loud Acclamations, whilſt he rode into the City in a Coach, and the Wall was broken down, to give him a full Entrance at the Breach. He was alſo ſure of Employing the beſt Poets on this Occaſion, who took care to rank him among the Gods, and ſometimes the grave Hiſtorians thought it worthy of their Obſervation; ſo that to be crown'd there was reckon'd as glorious as to triumph at Rome. The firſt who came off Conqueror was Coræbus an Inhabitant of Elis; but the firſt who was crown'd, was Diocles of Meſſena, the ſeventh Victor in Order, after the Oracle of Apollo was conſulted for that Purpoſe. Horace (c) ſpeaking of theſe Victors, compares them to the Gods. And when Diagoras had ſeen three of his Sons crown'd for their Victories in thoſe Games, one ran to him with this Congratulation, Die, Diagoras, for thou ſhalt not aſcend into Heaven; as if there could be no greater Happineſs on Earth, than what had already befall'n him. There were indeed four Games in Greece, the Olympian, the Pythian, the Nemæan, and the Iſthmian; but theſe were reckon'd to excel all the reſt; inſomuch that (d) Pindar is poſitive, That to ſay, there was any other Conteſt ſo noble as the Olympick, is the ſame thing, as to pretend, that there was ſome other Luminary in Heaven, and in the Day Time, of equal Glory with the Sun. The Athenians reckon'd their Years by Lunar Months. The firſt Month was call'd Hecatombaion, and was that Month, whoſe full Moon, or fifteenth Day happen'd immediately after the Sun's Entrance into Cancer, or the Summer Solſtice. From the eleventh to the fifteenth Day incluſively theſe Games continu'd; and on the ſixteenth Day they determin'd, who were the Conquerors in the reſpective Exerciſes. So that ſtrictly ſpeaking, every Olympick Year belongs to two Julian Years; for the firſt ſix Months from July to January belong to the firſt, and the other ſix Months from January to July belong to the ſecond; tho' moſt Authors ſpeak of the Olympiads, as if they began on the firſt Day of January, and reckon that to be the Year of the ſaid Olympiad, which began in the reſpective Julian Year. So that as the Greeks did afterward count by the Olympiads, the Aſſyrians by the Æra of Nabonaſſar, the Romans from the Building of Rome, they may eaſily be reduc'd to each other, or to any other ſucceeding Æra, as in the following Table.

(b) This Statue is describ'd by Pausanias in this Manner: It is made sitting on a Throne of Gold and Ivory, with a Crown on his Head, which seems to be made of Olive-Branches. In his right Hand he holds an Image of Victory made also of Ivory, which hath a Crown upon its head Dress of massy Gold; and in his left Hand he hath a Scepter made of a Mixture of all Metals together, with an Eagle on the Top of it. The Shoes and Stockings of Jupiter are all of Gold, and the rest of the Drapery is of the same, and adorn'd with the Figures of Animals, and a great many Flower-de-luces. The Throne it self is embellish'd with Ivory, Ebony, Gold, precious Stones, and a Multitude of emboss'd Figures; and at the four Feet or Pedestals of the Throne are four Victories, and two others at the two Feet of the Statue. At the two Feet on the fore Side of the Throne on the one Side are the Figures of Sphinxes, who are carrying off some Theban Youths; and on the other Side are represented the Figures of the Children of Niobe, whom Apollo and Diana shot to Death with their Arrows. Between the Feet of this Throne is represented Theseus, and the rest of the Heroes who accompany'd Hercules to the War against the Amazons, beside many Athletæ. All the Place about the Throne is adorn'd with Pictures representing Hercules's Labours, with many other of the most famous Historical Subjects. On the upper Part of the Throne Phidias on one Side plac'd the Graces, and on the other Side the Hours, because both these were the Daughters of Jupiter, according to the Poets. On the Footstool of the Statue are plac'd golden Lions, and a Representation of the Combat of Theseus against the Amazons. On the Basis are several golden Figures, viz. of the Sun going into his Chariot, of Jupiter and Juno, of the Graces, Mercury, Vesta, and Venus, who hath Cupid standing by her. Beside these there are also those of Apollo, Diana, Minerva, Hercules, Amphitrite, Neptune and the Moon, who is represented sitting upon a Horse. This is the Substance of what Pausanias saith of this famous Statue. But notwithstanding that this Workmanship was the Wonder of all the Antients, and the Curiosity of seeing it might increase the Number of those who came to the Olympick Games; yet Strabo finds great Fault with it for Want of a due Proportion, because it was of such a prodigious Bigness, that if it had stood upright, it must have made a Hole in the Roof of the Temple. A small Picture hereof may be seen in the Book call'd The Pantheon; and an Image of Jupiter of about four Inches high taken from the Original, like Demetrius's Silver Shrines, or little Pictures of Diana's Temple, Acts 19. 24. was lately found in Wiltshire, with the rest of the Roman Penates.

108. And thus the first Year of CHRIST's Birth according to the Vulgar Account, happen'd to be (e) in the first Year of the 195th Olympiad, in the (f) 754th Year of the Building of Rome according to the Varronian Account, in the (g) 753d Year according to the Capitolian Account, and in the (h) 747th Year of the Æra of Nabonassar.

109. During this Time the Want of a King in Israel could not but occasion the utmost Confusion, insomuch that a Party of Men being weary of it, at last place Zechariah the Son of Jeroboam upon the Throne. He was a wicked King, and follow'd the (i) Steps of his Ancestors, but he did not live long to enjoy the Government. For as one Party was for him, so another was against him, which was (k) headed by Shallum the Son of Jabesh. It is uncertain who he was, or what was the Pretence of his Conspiracy; but he carried it on privately and subtilly, until he was strong enough to compass his Ends, and then making an open Assault upon the King's Person, he kill'd him, and so seiz'd upon the Throne. Thus notwithstanding their perpetual Provocations, GOD faithfully kept his Promise, which he had made to Jehu, that (l) his Sons of the fourth Generation, Jehoahaz, Jehoash, Jeroboam and Zechariah should sit upon the Throne of Israel. But now this Shallum put an End to this Family, and so fulfill'd (m) the Prophesy of Hosea, Yet a little while, and I will avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel. Thus also (n) the Prophesy of Amos was fulfill'd, The sanctuaries of Israel shall be laid waste, and I will rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 769.

110. But it was not long, before Shallum was serv'd, as he had serv'd his Predecessor. The Kingdom was then infested with civil Wars, and Menahem (o) was the General of all the Forces of King Zechariah, and employ'd to reduce the Kingdom to his Obedience, and was besieging Tirzah for this Purpose. Tirzah was a large City and of great Consequence, having once been the Metropolis of the Kingdom. Menahem hearing what Shallum had done, raises the Siege of Tirzah, and marches directly to Samaria, where he beats the Army of Shallum, puts him to the Sword, and makes himself King by his own Authority. Thus Shallum reign'd but a Month, and what he got by Violence, was lost in the same Manner. After this Victory Menahem marches again to the Siege of Tirzah, not as their General but as their King. The Inhabitants, knowing he had no Title to the Kingdom, refus'd to open their Gates to him; so that he took it by Force and spoil'd it, and all the Country round about till he came to Tiphsah. Being flush'd with Success, and these Inhabitants acting like the other, he took this Town also in the same Manner, but used them more cruelly. For he put all to the Sword, without sparing Man, Woman or Child, to the highest Degree of Cruelty (as Josephus saith) that ever was heard of; for he exercis'd that mercileſs Rigor and Inhumanity toward his own Country men, which would have been unpardonable toward the worst of Barbarians themselves. By these Methods he thought to terrify the whole Kingdom, that none might dare to withstand him. He reign'd ten Years over Israel, but (p) his Reign was not much easier afterward, than it was at first; so that tho' his Name signifies A Comforter, yet his Actions shew him to be the worst of Tyrants.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 768.

111. The Assyrian Monarchy had now been quiet for above an hundred and fifty Years from the Time that (q) Zerah the Cushite had been their General, in the Reign of Asa King of Judah; but now they begin to stir. For Pul their Emperor, resolving to take the Advantage of these Distractions, marches with his Army, and invades the Kingdom of Israel (r) on the other Side of Jordan, which lay nearest to Babylon. Here he makes a terrible Havock of the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half Tribe of Manasseh, and was (s) the first that began the Transportation of them out of their own Country. He had now reign'd one and forty Years, and was the Father of Sardanapalus, at whose Death the Monarchy was lost from the Family, and divided into two Parts, the Assyrian and the Babylonian. He was call'd Sardanapalus or Sardan-Pul with his Father's Name annex'd to his own, as Merodach King of Babylon was (t) call'd Merodach-Baladan, because he was the Son of Baladan. This Pul is call'd Acracarnes by Julius Africanus, Ocrazapes by Eusebius, Cyndaraxes by Stephanus, Anacyndaraxes by Strabo, Arrianus and Suidas, and Anabaxares by others. he

he was the King, who proclaimed a faſt, aroſe from his throne, laid his Robe from him, cover'd himſelf with ſackloth, ſate in aſhes, and publiſh'd this Decree by the Advice of his Nobles, Let neither man nor beaſt, herd nor flock taſte any thing, let them not feed, nor drink water. But let man and beaſt be covered with ſackcloth, and cry mightily unto GOD; yea, let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands. And accordingly GOD ſaw their works, and GOD repented of the evil, that he ſaid he would do unto them; and he did it not; and ſeems in particular to bleſs this King for his Piety with a Courſe of Proſperity, as long as he liv'd. As theſe Kings ſometimes reſided at Babylon, and ſometimes at Nineveh, ſo it is probable, that he, to avoid GOD's Judgments, remov'd from Nineveh to Babylon, where he ſtaid the remaining Part of his Reign; which made him lie more conveniently to attack the Iſraelites on the other Side of Jordan. Thus did the men of Nineveh riſe up in judgment againſt the men of that generation. A Pagan Nation that repented, was rais'd up by GOD to take Vengeance on Iſrael, which continu'd impenitent; and a merciful Emperor was the Inſtrument to humble a cruel Tyrant. Menahem the King of Iſrael was in a great ſtraight what to do at this Juncture. He knew, that if he march'd againſt the Aſſyrians with his whole Army, he was ſo hated for his Cruelty, that his own Subjects would revolt from him; and if he did not, the Aſſyrian Army would overrun the Country. In this Difficulty he ſends Ambaſſadors to the King of Aſſyria to treat with him not only of a Peace, but to purchaſe his Friendſhip, ſo as to eſtabliſh his own Authority in his Kingdom. The Terms agreed upon were, that the King of Aſſyria ſhould keep all the Spoil and Captives, that he had got, for his own Uſe, and Menahem ſhould give a thouſand Talents, to be divided (x) equally among all the Soldiers of the Aſſyrian Army. As therefore they receiv'd fifty Shekels for each Man, and (y) three thouſand Shekels make a Talent, ſo it is (z) obſervable from thence, that the Aſſyrian Army conſiſted of threeſcore thouſand Men. Menahem now thinking it high Time to ingratiate himſelf with the People, eaſes the common Sort of the Tax, and (a) lays it upon the Rich, according to the Proportion of their Wealth; which being rais'd, he gives it to the King of Aſſyria, who returns back to Babylon flush'd with all the Effects of a Victory, without ſtriking a Stroke. Beſide this, Menahem had a farther End in giving ſo much Money to the King of Aſſyria, which was (b) to confirm the kingdom in his hand, or to enter into a League offenſive and defenſive with him againſt his own rebellious Subjects; which was the viſible Reaſon of his Continuing ſo long in the Poſſeſſion of the Throne. Hoſea (c) upbraids them for this Action in theſe Words, When Ephraim ſaw ſickneſs, and Judah ſaw his wound, then went Ephraim to the Aſſyrian, and ſent to the King that ſhould plead, or fight for him; yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound. This he frequently (d) taxes them with, and (e) frequently threatens them for the ſame, that therefore the (f) Aſſyrian ſhould be their king, and (g) they ſhould eat unclean things in the land of Aſſyria; which was all fullfill'd, when (h) Shalmanezer carried them away Captives into that Land.

112. The Year after this, Pul the King of Aſſyria dies, in a good old Age, bleſs'd with Proſperity, and leaving his Empire in a wealthy and flouriſhing Condition to his Son Sardan-Pul or Sardanapalus, who govern'd it for twenty Years. In the Beginning of his Reign he ſeems to be an active Prince; for it is ſaid, that (i) he built Anchialus and Tarſus in one Day, or rather repair'd the Ruins of both at the ſame Time. Theſe were two Towns in Cilicia; and the firſt of theſe in Gratitude for his Kindneſs erected a Stately Tomb, and ſet up his Statue to preſerve his Memory, when it might have given an Offence to their new Governors. After this we do not find, that he did any thing remarkable; but thinking that a conſtant Courſe of Proſperity was entail'd upon him, he gave himſelf to all Manner of Effeminacy and Idleneſs, which was the Ruin of him and his Kingdom, as will be mention'd in its proper Place. Anno ante CHRISTUM 766.

113. After Menahem had reign'd ten Years in Iſrael, he died, leaving (k) his Son Pekahiah to ſucceed him. The Kingdom of Iſrael was at this Time involv'd in ſuch great Troubles and Confuſions, that it was a Year before Pekahiah his Son could ſucceed him. This is evident, becauſe (l) Menahem began to reign over Iſrael in the nine and thirtieth Year of Azariah or Uzziah King of Judah, and reign'd ten Years; ſo that died in the nine and fortieth Year of that Anno ante CHRISTUM 758.

King's

King's Reign, and yet it was (m) the fiftieth Year of the ſame King, before Pekahiah began to reign over Iſrael in Samaria. What was the Cauſe of this Interregnum for a Year is not well known. The moſt probable is the Intereſt of his Succeſſor, who might raiſe a Party to keep him out of the Throne; which ſoon after grew ſo ſtrong as to take away his Life. However, all his Troubles did not make him better; for he was the wicked Son of a wicked Father, and he only ſurviv'd him for two Years; ſo that his Reign was ſhort, and he periſh'd by ſuch a Conſpiracy as his Father had made againſt Shallum. Joſephus ſaith, that (n) he was cut to Pieces with ſeveral of his Friends about him at a publick Feaſt, by the treaſonable Practice of Pekah the Son of Remaliah, one of his principal Officers, who ſeiz'd upon the Government, and reign'd about twenty Years; and at laſt he left it a difficult Queſtion to determine, Whether he was more remarkable for his Impiety toward GOD, or for his Injuſtice toward Man. So that Joſephus ſeems to be of the Opinion, that Argob and Arieh, and the fifty Gileadites mention'd to be with them, were Courtiers and Guards about the King, and were all ſlain at that Time. Others (o) think, that the King was a Gadite, and that Pekah the Son of Remaliah was a Gileadite; ſo that theſe two great Men aſſiſted him in the Conſpiracy, and the Gileadites join'd with them in the Execution of it.

114. The Victories and long Proſperity of Uzziah King of Judah make him proud. The (p) Text ſaith, that his Heart was lifted up to his Deſtruction, or the Loſs of all his Authority; ſo that he could act no longer as King, but was forc'd to place his Son Jotham to reign in his Stead. In his Pride he reſolves to take upon him not only the Office of a King, but alſo the Office of a Prieſt, and ſo he loſt both. For this Purpoſe he goes into the Temple of the LORD to burn Incenſe upon the Altar, which was before the Holy of Holies. It is hard to give an Account, what ſhould tempt him to this Folly. Some think, that he had a vain Ambition to imitate the heathen Princes, who in many Places executed the Prieſts Office. Others think, that he was puff'd up with Pride, becauſe he had not only a Son Jotham, but a Grandſon alſo. But the moſt probable Reaſon might be, (q) becauſe his Wife was Jeruſhah the Daughter of Zadok the High Prieſt; and therefore as he was related to the Family, he might think, that he had alſo a Right to the Office. Upon this his Nephew Azariah takes fourſcore Men with him, who had a Zeal for the Honour of GOD, and went into the Temple with a full Reſolution to prevent it. This they attempt by all the Intreaties and Arguments, that they were Maſters of. They repreſent to him, that he invaded the Office of the Prieſts, who were conſecrated to this Service, but he was not, and therefore he ought not to meddle with it; that he ſhould get no Honour, but loſe very much, by Aſpiring to this Dignity, which GOD had plac'd in other Hands; and that he had gone too far already, and offended the divine Majeſty by Going into the Holy Place, and therefore they beſeech him to proceed no farther, and probably ſurrounded the Altar, ſo that he could not come to it without offering Violence to them. All this had no Effect upon King Uzziah, but rather put him into a greater Paſſion, becauſe he was hinder'd in what he intended; and whilſt he preſs'd forward for ſuch a raſh Purpoſe, the Leproſy appear'd in his Forehead, where it could not be conceal'd, but was evident to all that endeavour'd to keep him from the Altar. This makes them more intent to hinder him; and as ſoon as he was ſenſible of it, he himſelf haſted to be gone, ſo that there needed no more Arguments for this Purpoſe; and he could not but acknowledge the Juſtice of GOD on his Preſumption, and was afraid of a worſe Puniſhment, if he had ſtay'd there any longer. Now in this Caſe it was a Part of the Law of Moſes, that every (r) Leper was an unclean Perſon, and every one that (s) touch'd him, or any of his Clothes was unclean; and therefore (t) whilſt they were in the Wilderneſs, all ſuch Perſons were excluded out of the Camp, and (u) when they were in the Land of Canaan they were alſo excluded from the wall'd Cities. For this Reaſon he was (x) remov'd to a private Country Houſe, where he was ſhut up from all Converſation of Men, and ſo continu'd as long as he liv'd, whilſt his Son Jotham not only manag'd all the Affairs of his Family, but he alſo govern'd the People as a King during the Illneſs of his Father.

115. It is certain that the Smiting of Uzziah with the Leproſy happen'd in the laſt Year of his Reign and not before, and it will evidently appear ſo to be by Solving two Difficulties in Chronology, which ariſe from the Text, (y) where it is ſaid, that Hoſhea ſlew Pekah in the twentieth year of Jotham's Reign. The firſt Queſtion is, How that can be ſaid to be done in Jotham's twentieth Year, when it is certain, (z) that he reign'd but ſixteen Years in all? In anſwer to this we muſt conſider, That we are there told, how (a) Pekah loſeth all Gilead and Galilee before he died, and that he was ſlain by the Sword, ſo that Revenge is now taking upon Pekah for all his Cruelty againſt Judah. Now this Cruelty began in Jotham's Time, and therefore it is reckon'd from Jotham's Reign. Beſides, this Revenge is not taken for the Sake of Ahaz, who provok'd GOD to ſend more Judgments, but for the Piety of Jotham, who prevail'd with GOD to think upon Mercy. In the Slaughter of Pekah GOD avengeth (b) the Slaughter and Miſery that he had caus'd in Judah; for he had ſlain an hundred and twenty thouſand of them in one Day. Now Ahaz had caus'd this Wrath upon the People by Seducing them to Idolatry; and therefore when GOD avengeth this Injury of his People upon Pekah, the Time of it is computed not from Ahaz, who had caus'd the Miſchief, and was then alive, but from Jotham, who was holy and upright, tho' then in the Grave. The other Difficulty is, that if Pekah began to reign in the two and fiftieth or laſt (c) Year of Uzziah, and if Jotham began to reign in the ſecond (d) Year of Pekah, then the twentieth Year of Pekah, when Hoſhea ſlew him, was but the nineteenth of Jotham and not the twentieth. In Anſwer to this we muſt obſerve, that the Reign of Jotham hath a double Date, either from the Death of his Father Uzziah, or from his being ſmitten with Leproſy. If we reckon from the Death of his Father, when he reign'd in his own Right, then his twentieth Year was but the nineteenth Year of Pekah; but if we reckon it from the Time, that his Father was ſmitten with Leproſy, then the twentieth Year of the one will be the twentieth Year of the other, and ſo they began to reign together in the (e) fifty ſecond or laſt Year of his Father Uzziah, and in his Father's Right. And here (f) the holy Text doth clearly place it, The LORD ſmote the king with leproſy, ſo that he was a leper unto the day of his death, and Jotham the kings ſon was over the houſe judging the people of the land.

116. In this laſt (g) Year of King Uzziah's Reign, the Prophet Iſaiah ſees the Glory of the LORD in the Temple, when it was fill'd with Smoke, as a Sign that it ſhould be deſtroy'd; and the Angels call'd Seraphims or Burning Creatures do proclaim the Trinity and ſay, Holy, Holy, Holy is the LORD of hoſts, the whole earth is full of his glory. Upon this he is ſent with a Commiſſion to declare the Obſtinacy of the Jews, and their utter Deſolation as the Effect thereof. The Words are repeated in (h) each of the Evangeliſts, in the Acts of the Apoſtles, and by St. Paul in the Epiſtle to the Romans: Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but underſtand not; and ſee ye indeed, but perceive not. Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and ſhut their eyes; leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and convert, and be healed. Upon this the Prophet asks, How long ſhall this Obſtinancy continue? And the Anſwer is, Until the cities be waſted without inhabitant, and the houſes without man, and the land be utterly deſolate, and the LORD ſhall have removed men far away, and (i) the forſaken Women or Widows are multiplied in the land. This many interpret of the Babyloniſh Captivity. But ſince the Obſtinacy of the Jews is ſo often blam'd in the New Teſtament, in the Words of the Prophet before mention'd, we may rather refer the Accompliſhment of this Threatning to the final Deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Romans. However the Prophet tells us, that the Jews ſhall be call'd again, they ſhall return unto the LORD, and ſhall be holy to him, like the Tenth or Tythes in the Law, which were eaten by the Prieſts, and the holy ſeed ſhall be (k) the Prop or Support thereof. Some reckon, that the holy ſeed ſignified many pious and good Men, for whoſe Sake GOD would have Mercy on the Nation. But as St. John (l) quotes the Verſe before mention'd, and adds, Theſe things ſaid Eſaias, when he ſaw the glory of CHRIST, and ſpake of him; ſo we may conclude, that the Glory which he ſaw of him, was what he mentions in the firſt Part of the Chapter, or the Glory of JEHOVAH, the eternal and infinite GOD: And that he ſpoke of him in this latter Part, that (m) the holy ſeed, which ſhould be born of the Virgin Mary, and be call'd the SON of GOD, this Oak or (n) Branch, ſhould in due Time be the Support of this his People, and (o) they ſhould ſtay themſelves upon this GOD of Iſrael, whoſe Name is The LORD of hoſts.

117. In this laſt Year of the (p) Reign of Uzziah, his Son Jotham began to reign. His Mother was the Daughter of Zadok the High Prieſt; and as he had the beſt of Education, ſo he was the beſt of Kings. He is (q) ſaid to do that which is right in the ſight of the LORD, according to all Anno ante CHRISTUM 755.

that his father Uzziah did. His Father Uzziah had but one Fault recorded, which was his Presuming to offer Incense in the Temple, thinking he might have a Right to it, as marrying the Daughter of the High Priest. But his Son Jotham took Warning by his Father's Miscarriage, and (r) tho' he was the Grandson of this High Priest, and in Reality of his Blood; yet (s) he wav'd this Privilege, and did not once presume to enter into the Temple for this Purpose; so that there is not the least Blemish recorded throughout his whole Reign, as there is of the best Kings of Judah. His People were wicked, which was a great Hindrance to his good Designs. For (t) the high places were not removed, where the People continu'd to sacrifice and burn incense to the LORD, tho' contrary to his Law, who had declar'd that all this Service should only be perform'd at Jerusalem. It is probable, that he intended to reform this Abuse, but it was not in his Power; and the Doing of it was reserv'd for his Grandson Hezekiah. For this Purpose he sets himself to the Repairing of the Temple, particularly the (u) high gate of the house of the LORD, which (x) was between the Temple and the Palace, and the Way by which he himself must come up to worship. This was built at first by Solomon, but many think, that he added a very glorious and magnificent Structure to it. It is probable, that this was done in the fifth Year of his Reign, and the Solving a Difficulty concerning the Age of Hezekiah may lead us to this Conjecture. The Difficulty is this: His Son Ahaz was (y) twenty years old, when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen Years, so that he died, when he was six and thirty Years old; and Hezekiah his son (z) reigned in his stead, who was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and therefore could be but eleven Years younger than his Father. To solve this Difficulty the famous Bochart tells us, (a) That tho' such Instances are unusual, yet they sometimes happen, and of these he mentions several. Others take other Methods, of which (b) Bishop Patrick hath given us a particular Account, and at last leaves it very doubtful. However all these suppose, that Hezekiah did not begin to reign till the Death of Ahaz; and therefore the Difficulty is much increas'd, when we consider, that he reign'd two Years before the Death of his Father. For (c) he began to reign in the third Year of Hoshea the Son of Elah; and (d) as he began in the twelfth Year of Ahaz, so it is evident, that Hezekiah began in his fourteenth Year, and so reign'd two or three Years with his Father Ahaz; and according to this Account there can be but nine Years Distance between the Age of the one and the other. To solve this Difficulty it is observable, that the (e) Words both in Kings and Chronicles may be thus translated, Hezekiah was the son of the five and twentieth year, when he began to reign; and so it may not refer to the Age of his Life, but to some other remarkable Transaction, which may be guess'd at from the Context. We have already had an Instance of this Nature in Ahaziah King of Judah, which I cannot but repeat on this Occasion. He is said to be (f) two and forty years old, when he began to reign. His Father Joram (g) was thirty and two years old, when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years; so that he was forty Years old when he died, and as soon as he was dead the Inhabitants of Jerusalem set up his Son Ahaziah on the Throne, who according to this Account was two Years older than his Father. It is therefore the Meaning of this Text, that Ahaziah was the Son of the two and fortieth Year when he began to reign, not from the Date of his Life, but from the Setting up the Kingdom of Israel in the House of Omri, whose Works he follow'd, and to whom he was related, as hath been already mention'd. Thus Hezekiah was (h) the Son of the five and twentieth year, not from his Birth, but from some other Epocha, which we may gather from (i) the following History. His first Action in the first year of his reign and the first month, was his opening the doors of the house of the LORD, and repairing them, and bringing in the Levites to attend on the Service of the Temple, of which we have a large Account in two whole Chapters. This was done at that Time, and therefore the five and twenty Years refer us to the Time, when it was first intended by his Grandfather Jotham, and he began to repair and beautify the Temple for this Purpose, which accordingly happen'd in the fifth Year of his Reign.

118. As this happen'd in Asia, so it is remarkable, that the Building of Rome in Europe, from whence the famous Æra throughout the whole Empire began, happen'd in the same Year. places places it the Year before, and the Capitolian places it this Year; but both theſe may be eaſily reconciled. It was cuſtomary in thoſe Times, when they began to build a City, to go round it with a Plow, and to make a Furrow where the Walls were to be built, but to leave a void Space for the Gates. The Year before, they thus mark'd out the City, digg'd the Foundation for the Walls, and provided Stones, Timber and other Materials; and this Year they laid the Foundation; ſo that the Computation might eaſily be begun from either Year, tho' the Capitolian is the general Account. The Story is this: After the (l) Taking of Troy, Æneas with his Son Aſcanius, and as many Men as he could get together, ſail'd to Italy. Æneas landing in Italy was (m) at firſt oppos'd by Latinus King of the Latines or Aborigines, who being beaten in a Battle makes Peace with him, and admits him and his Men to live in his Kingdom. This Provoking Turnus the King of the Rutuli, occaſion'd a freſh War, in which Æneas killing Turnus with his own Hand was ſo reſpected by Latinus, that he gave him Lavinia his only Child for a Wife. When Æneas was dead, his Wife Lavinia being great with Child, and fearing the Power of Aſcanius, fled into the Woods, where ſhe was deliver'd of a Son call'd Silvius for this Reaſon, and alſo Poſthumus, becauſe he was born after his Father's Funeral. This Flight and Hardſhip of Lavinia was ſo reſented by the People, that Aſcanius was oblig'd to recal her, and did ever after treat her as a Queen and a Mother, and caus'd her Son Silvius Poſthumus to be honourably educated. After this, Aſcanius, to avoid all Occaſions of Diſagreement, left to his Mother-in-Law the City of Lavinium, which Æneas had built, and call'd after her Name; and built the City call'd Alba-longa, where he reign'd, and ſeem'd to be very much delighted with the Situation of the Place. After the Death of Aſcanius there happen'd a Contention between Silvius the Son of Æneas, and Iulus the Son of Aſcanius about the Kingdom; but the Relations of Lavinia having a great Intereſt in the Country, the Matter was amically compos'd, that Silvius Poſthumus ſhould enjoy the Kingdom, and Iulus ſhould enjoy the Prieſthood, and ſo the Kingdom continu'd in the other Family for many Generations, and every ſucceeding King was accordingly call'd Silvius. Of this Race Latinus the Grandſon founded many Towns in the Borders of Latium, who ſtanding very much upon the Honour of their Original, were afterward call'd Priſci Latini. Tiberinus, another of the ſame Race, is ſuppos'd by ſome to have given the Name to (n) the River Tiber. The Mountain of Aventinus is ſuppos'd to be call'd (o) ſo from Aventinus, another of that Family, who was buried there. Julius the Brother of Aventinus is reckon'd to be the Father of another Julius, and Grandfather of Julius Proculus, who left Alba and dwelt with Romulus in Rome. Numitor the eldeſt Son of Procas was depriv'd of his Kingdom by his Brother Amulius, by whom alſo his Son Ægeſthus was ſlain, and Ilia his Daughter was made a Prieſteſs of the Goddeſs Veſta, that ſo the Race of Numitor might be cut off, ſhe being hereby oblig'd to a perpetual Virginity. However, a Soldier found Means to get her with Child, and to conceal the Diſgrace, the Report was, that this was done by Mars the God of War. At laſt ſhe was deliver'd of two Children Romulus and Remus, whom their Uncle Amulius commanded to be drown'd, and their Mother to be bury'd alive; which was the Puniſhment that the Law inflicted, when the Veſtal Virgins broke their Chaſtity. It is uncertain, whether this Puniſhment was inflicted, or the Mother was pardon'd at the Intreaty of Antho the Daughter of Amulius. The Children were commanded to be thrown into the River Tiber and drown'd; but the Stream being low, and the Shore deep with Mud, they were left in the Flags. It happen'd, that a Woman call'd Lupa found them before they were dead, and ſuckled them, which gave Occaſion to the Story, that they were nurs'd by a ſhe Wolf, who bringing them home to Fauſtulus the King's Shepherd at that Time, he gives the Charge of them to his Wife Laurentia, and ſo they were both preſerv'd. As ſoon as they came of a fit Age, they liv'd Shepherds Lives, and being naturally of valiant Tempers, they began, like Nimrod, at firſt to hunt wild Beaſts, and then to ſeize on thoſe who plunder'd the Country, and divide the Booty among the Shepherds. By this Method they gather'd a great Number of Youth together, who were employ'd ſometimes in Hunting, ſometimes in ſeizing of Thieves, and ſometimes in other warlike Paſtimes and Diverſions. A Company of Robbers inrag'd at this, ſet upon Romulus and Remus. Romulus defends himſelf, and Remus is taken Priſoner, and deliver'd to King Amulius to be put to Death, under Pretence of Robbing the Fields of their Grandfather Numitor. Amulius ſends Remus to Numitor to be executed for the Fact. In the mean Time Fauſtulus knowing the former Decree of Amulius to kill the two Brothers, and that it happen'd to be at the Time when he ſav'd them, he had a full Perſuaſion that theſe were the two, but was unwilling to diſcover it till a fit Opportunity preſented. Remus being brought to Numitor, who hearing that they were Twins, and comparing their Age and Temper, he concludes, that they muſt be his Grandchildren; and upon Inquiry, he was ſo far confirm'd in it, that he could hardly forbear to ſpeak of it. However they carry on a Plot againſt Amulius, that Romulus ſhould bring his Men privately into the City, and when they were all got together, they ſhould attack Amulius's Palace on a ſudden; and Remus ſhould aſſiſt him with all the Forces, that he could get together, into the Houſe of Numitor. The Plot ſucceeds, Amulius is kill'd, and (as Lucius Florus ſaith) thrown down from the Top of the Palace. Numitor congratulates his two Grandchildren upon this Succeſs, and declares in a full Aſſembly the Wickedneſs of his Brother Amulius to him, that theſe were his two Grandchildren, how they were born, how they were bred up, and how they came to be diſcover'd; that Amulius was kill'd, and he was the Contriver of it. The Multitude immediately declare Numitor their King, and had Romulus and Remus in the greateſt Eſteem. And now, to perpetuate the Memory of their Preſervation, they reſolve to build a City in the Place where they were preſerv'd. The Albanians, Latins and Shepherds agree to aſſiſt them in it, with a firm Perſuaſion, that the other Towns in Italy would in Time give Way to it. Theſe being Twins, and it not being known who was the eldeſt, they agree to determine by the Flight of Birds, who ſhould give the Name, and who ſhould reign firſt. Romulus goes to the Mount Palatinus, and Remus to the Mount Aventinus for this Purpoſe. Remus firſt ſees ſix Vultures, and Romulus after that ſees twelve. Lucius Florus ſaith, that Romulus by this got the better, and builds the City, being full of Hopes, that it would be remarkable for warlike Affairs, becauſe theſe were Birds accuſtom'd to Blood and Violence; and that at firſt they only ſurrounded it with a Trench, which when Remus made ſport at, and leap'd over it for this Purpoſe, he was kill'd, and as ſome thought, by the Command of his Brother Romulus. Thus he was the firſt Sacrifice, and dedicated it with his own Blood, as a Token of the Blood which ſhould be ſhed by this City in all future Ages. Livy and others report this as the Death of Remus; but they add another Story, which is, that a Diſpute aroſe concerning the Sovereignty. Remus claim'd it, becauſe he ſaw the firſt Vultures, and Romulus becauſe he ſaw the greateſt Number. This occaſion'd many hard Words, and ſo they fell from thence to Blows, when Remus was kill'd, whoſe Death put an effectual End to the Controverſy. Romulus being now to name the City, and be their King, would not call it Romula from his own Name, it being a Diminutive, but Roma or Rome, from whence his own Name was deriv'd, and which in Greek ſignifies Strength. When the City was thus built, it wanted Inhabitants. There was a Grove near, and Romulus orders it to be a Place of Refuge for all Malefactors. This brings together a great Number of Men from all Nations, and they who could live in no other Place were protected here. Thus (as Florus obſerves) Romulus gather'd together one Body out of various Elements, and ſo it came to be call'd The People of Rome. But this being a Company of Men, could laſt but for one Age, and therefore they deſire to marry among their Neighbours. This being refus'd, they take Wives by Force. For this Purpoſe they counterfeit Sports and Paſtimes; and when the Virgins came thither to ſee and divert themſelves, they were ſeiz'd by Force, and carry'd into the City, and ſo became Wives to thoſe who wanted them; which was an Act ſo like to that of the (p) Benjamites in the Time of the Judges, as if they had copy'd from the ſame Original. The Parents make Wars to bring back their Daughters, and ſome of their Towns were conquer'd upon this Occaſion. At laſt when the Wars rag'd more and more, the Roman Wives, who had been thus taken, come with their Hair torn, and in all the Poſtures of Sorrow, acquainting their Parents that they had been us'd civilly, and that if Matters were carry'd to ſuch Extremities, nothing could be expected on either Side but Ruin and Deſtruction. The Parents, being overcome with their Prayers, Tears and Arguments, lay aſide their Reſentments, and enter into a Treaty with their Sons-in-Law, which ſucceeded ſo well, that many of them came with all their Wealth and liv'd in Rome. So that from a ſmall Beginning, it gradually increas'd to be the Head and Seat of the Roman Empire, firſt in temporal and then in eccleſiaſtical Affairs; and what various Changes and Chances it hath ſuſtain'd, as alſo what Miſchiefs it hath occaſion'd in all Parts of the World, hath been the Subject of all ſucceeding Hiſtorians.

119. After Jotham King of Judah had built a Part of the Temple, and beautified and repair'd the reſt, his next Buſineſs was to ſet and keep all other things in Order, and to rectify what he found amiſs. Firſt, He built and repair'd the (q) Wall from the Temple toward the South, where the Tower of Ophel was ſituated. After this he built or repair'd ſeveral Cities, which were in the Mountains of Judah, and ſeveral Caſtles and Towers in the Foreſts; ſo that he took Care to fortify his Kingdom ſtrongly on all Sides againſt his Enemies.

120. About this Time (r) Micah utters the two first Chapters of his Prophesy, which he saw concerning Jerusalem and Samaria; in which he complains of their many Sins, particularly their Oppression, Injustice and Idolatry, and endeavours to stir them up to Repentance, as the only Method to avoid GOD's threatned Judgments. He is particularly said to prophesy in the Days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, but not in the Days of Uzziah like those already mention'd. He was a Morasthite, or of Mareshah in (s) the Tribe of Judah bordering upon the Philistines. He mourns sadly for the Captivity of the ten Tribes, which now drew near, and for the Misery of Jerusalem, which was not far off. He frequently useth (t) the Words of the Prophet Isaiah; but it is hard to guess in many Places, who spake them first. In some Parts of his Prophesy he is very obscure and terrible; and in other Places he is very plain and comfortable. He speaks glorious things of CHRIST, first (u) of his Ascension, and (x) then of his Kingdom. He names (y) the Town, where he should be born, (z) the Enlargement of his Church under the Gospel, his (a) Power in it, and (b) the Peace that should be under it. And as he mentions no particular historical Transactions; so it is difficult to tell what Chapters were deliver'd in each of the Kings Time. The only Way of Conjecture is this: As he (c) prophesied in Jotham's Time; so we may place his two first Chapters there. And as (d) Part of his third Chapter is said by the Prophet Jeremiah (e) to have been spoken in the Days of Hezekiah; so the rest that follows may more probably be laid there, than in any other Place.

121. The first Enemy which was rais'd against Jotham was (f) the Ammonites. This People had (g) been intirely subdued by David, but by this Time they had recover'd so much Strength, that they invaded the Country of Judah. Jotham therefore marches against them, and drives them into their own Country, where they were reduc'd to such a Necessity, that to buy their Peace they were forc'd to pay every Year an hundred Talents of Silver, and ten thousand Measures of Wheat, and as many of Barley. This they did three Years, but afterward they found an Opportunity to ease themselves of this Burden, the Children of Judah being reduc'd to great Difficulties by other Enemies. For (h) in the last Year of his Reign Rezin the King of Syria, and Pekah the Son of Remaliah King of Israel, enter'd into a Confederacy against Judah, and made Preparations for War, which oblig'd Jotham (i) to march against them with his Army. What Success he had herein is uncertain, only the Ammonites took this Opportunity to throw off the Taxes impos'd upon them; and the Confederacy of these two Kings, thus began, reduc'd the Kingdom of Judah to the last Extremity, and Jotham was engag'd in Wars to the Time of his Death.

122. The Assyrian Monarchy having continu'd 1300 Years, as (m) Justin tells us, or (n) upwards according to Dr. Prideaux, or (o) more particularly 1360 Years, as we are inform'd by Diodorus Siculus, was dissolv'd in the Reign of Jotham, at the Death of Sardanapalus, on the following Occasion. This Emperor, as (p) all the Historians tell us, exceeded all his Predecessors in Sloth and Luxury. He wallow'd in Pleasure and wanton Dalliances, he cloth'd himself in Woman's Attire, he spun fine Wool and Purple among his Concubines, and was seen of none out of his Family. He painted his Face, and deck'd his Body more like a Strumpet than a King; he imitated a Woman's Voice, and proceeded to such a Degree of Voluptuousness and sordid Uncleanness, that he compos'd Verses in Praise of his Manner of Life, with a Command that after his Death they should be inscrib'd on his Tomb. Arbaces, the General of the Median Forces, was stir'd up by Belesis the Governor of Babylon to destroy the Assyrian Empire; and they agreed among themselves, that if they could effect it, Belesis should enjoy Babylon, Chaldea and Arabia, and Arbaces should enjoy all the rest. Belesis was a Babylonian Priest, skill'd in Astrology and Divination, and constantly assur'd the other of Success; who being fully persuaded of the Truth of what was foretold, takes all possible Methods to effect it, enters into an Association with the rest of the Governors of the Provinces for this Purpose, and endeavours by Feasting and all sorts of Insinuations to gain their Affections. When all things were ripe, he corrupts one of the Eunuchs, by Giving him a Cup of Gold, to be introduc'd into the King's Presence; and seeing his Lasciviousness and Effeminacy, he despis'd him as a vile and worthless Wretch, and thought it much more easy to accomplish his Design. He declaring this to all his Acquaintance, they agree together, persuade the Medes to invade the Assyrian Empire, and draw in the Persians in Hope of Liberty to join in the Confederacy. Belesis also persuades the Babylonians to revolt, and gains the King of Arabia, who was his Friend, and had been his Guest, for a Confederate; and when they were united, their Army is reported to have consisted of four hundred thousand Men: Then they call a Council of War to consider what was fit to be done.

Lasci-

123. Sardanapalus is now rouz'd from his Sloth, and draws forth the Forces of the rest of the Provinces against the Enemy, whom he beats in three pitch'd Battles. In the first, he pursues them to the Mountains seventy Furlongs beyond Nineveh. In the second he beats them so, that they were upon the Point of returning Home, and were only prevail'd upon to stay by Belesis's assuring them, that the Gods had promis'd to reward their Labours with the desir'd Success. In the third Fight Arbaces himself was wounded, and his Army pursu'd as far as the Mountains of Babylon. Belesis having now lost his Credit, could give general Promises no longer; and therefore lying all Night Stargazing in the open Field, he assur'd them the next Morning, that if they would continue together but five Days longer, the Gods had promis'd a mighty Change, and that every thing should take a different Turn. The Army being hardly persuaded to wait so long, News was brought on a sudden, that great Forces were at Hand to join the King from Bactria, which made it still worse; and Arbaces had nothing to do but to march against them, and by all Methods to persuade them to a Revolt, which succeeded even beyond their Hopes, and gave another Turn to the Face of Affairs. Sardanapalus knowing nothing of this, and puff'd up with his former Successes, was indulging his Sloth and Idleness, and preparing Beasts for Sacrifices, with Plenty of Wine, and other things necessary to feast and entertain his Soldiers. Arbaces having receiv'd Intelligence by Deserters, that the Army seem'd secure, and was already overcome with Surfeiting and Drunkenness, fell upon them on a sudden in the Night; and surprizing them in the utmost Confusion, he broke into the Camp, where he made a terrible Slaughter of most of them, and forc'd the rest into the City. Upon this Sardanapalus's Courage fail'd him, and he commits the Charge of the whole Army to Salamenus the Queen's Brother, and takes upon himself to defend the City of Nineveh. Arbaces now pays him in his Turn, and defeats his Forces once in the open Field, and the second Time before the Walls of the City; in which last Engagement Salamenus was kill'd, and almost all his Army lost, being driven head-long into the River Tigris; so that the Number of the slain was so great, that the River was reported to have been dyed with Blood, and to have retain'd the Colour for a great Distance, and a long Course together.

124. Sardanapalus having no other Hopes, makes all necessary Preparations to sustain a Siege, which he was the more encourag'd to do by an antient Prophesy, That Nineveh could never be taken by Force, till the River became its Enemy; which he thought impossible, and therefore he resolv'd to hold out, till Succours, which he had sent for out of all his Provinces, should come to his Assistance. Arbaces on the other Hand was much encourag'd by his Success, and carries on the Siege with the utmost Vigour, which signified but little, because of the prodigious Strength of the Walls, being an hundred Feet high, and so broad, that three Chariots might go together upon them in a Rank, and especially because all imaginable Care had been taken to provide every thing necessary for a long Defence. The Siege lasted two Years without a prospect of Taking it on the one Side, or of Relief on the other. It happen'd the third Year, that the Tigris being overflow'd with continual Rains came up into a Part of the City, and tore down the Wall twenty Furlongs in Length. Sardanapalus hereupon concluding that the Oracle was accomplish'd, because the River was an apparent Enemy to the City, despair'd of Success; and therefore to prevent his Falling into the Hands of his exasperated Subjects, he caus'd (q) a large Pile of Wood to be made in the Court of his Palace, where he heap'd together all his Gold, Silver and Royal Apparel; and inclosing his Eunuchs and Concubines in an Apartment within the Pile, he caus'd it to be set on Fire, and burnt himself and them together, which the Historians (who (r) omit his Victories) represent as the only valiant Action of his Life. Arbaces and his Army being inform'd of this, enter'd thro' the Breach of the Wall, and took the City; upon which he was cloth'd with a Royal Robe, and the ſole Authority was committed to him: which being done, he rewarded all his Followers according to their Merit, and being put in Mind of his Promiſe, he confirm'd Beleſis as Governor in Chief of Babylonia, Chaldea and Arabia, and took the reſt of the Empire to himſelf, which put an End to the Aſſyrian Monarchy.

125. When Beleſis came to Babylon, and was made their King or Emperor, being well skill'd in Aſtronomy, he ſet himſelf to rectify the Chaldean Year, which ſeems to have ſtood unalterable from the Flood till then. Their antient Year (s) conſiſted of three hundred and ſixty Days, or twelve Months, thirty Days to a Month. This being five Days and a Quarter leſs than the Revolution of the Sun to the ſame Point of the Æquinox, the Egyptians in the Time of Thoth their ſecond King, and Grandſon of Ham, added five Days to the Year, ſo that every Year conſiſted exactly of three hundred and ſixty five Days; and in every four Years there was one Day leſs than in ſo many Julian Years, which made the Beginning of the Year in a (t) great Length of Time run thro' all the four Seaſons. The Chaldeans to prevent this Inconveniency, that the Year might always begin in the Autumn, once in about ſix Years added an Embolimean Month, (as the Jews did ſeven Times in nineteen Years) which made the Years unequal. In large Epochas when they reckon'd a Day for a Year, this made a conſiderable alteration. The Chaldean זמן, or Time, conſiſted of three hundred and ſixty Years, and their Month of Years conſiſted of thirty Years. This makes the Time and Times and half a Time mention'd by (u) Daniel, and fix'd by St. John for the Duration of Antichriſt, to be (x) forty and two Months, or (y) one thouſand two hundred and ſixty Days, to be ſo many Years; and his (z) Dividing of a Time to be a Month or thirty Years. And thus the (a) ſeven Times, which he mentions in the Caſe of Nebuchadnezzar, were ſeven of theſe common Years, each conſiſting of three hundred and ſixty Days: and by this Computation we muſt reckon his (b) ſeventy Weeks by which he points out the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem. Their Year of Years was alſo of two Sorts, either this laſt Chaldean Year, or three hundred and ſixty five Years, viz. a Julian Year of Years conſiſting of three hundred and ſixty five Years and a Quarter, as it is us'd (c) by St. John in his Deſcription of the Time, in which the Turks ſhould be a Plague to Europe, and enlarge their Conqueſts on this Side. Beleſis being acquainted with the Egyptian Aſtronomers, and finding that their Year was equal, reduces the Babylonian Year to the ſame Standard, and makes it to conſiſt of three hundred and ſixty five Days, which was divided into twelve Months of thirty Days each, and five Days, which they call'd Επαγομεναι or added thereto at the End of the Year. Thus he not only brings in the Form of this Year, but even (d) the Months are call'd by the old Egyptian Account; ſo that Mizraim and Thoth, two antient Kings of that Country, gave Names to two Months in the new Babylonian Monarchy. It happen'd at this Time that the Egyptian Year began on the ſix and twentieth Day of February, according to the Julian Account brought back to that Time; and thus it was ſettl'd at Babylon. So that by Leaving out the Biſſextile Day it began every fourth Year a Day ſooner; and in the 523d Year of this Account two of theſe Years began in the ſame Julian Year, one on the firſt of January, and the other on the laſt Day of December. Beleſis, who is alſo call'd Nabonaſſar, order'd this Alteration to begin from the firſt Year of his Reign, and therefore it was call'd The famous Æra of Nabonaſſar. This Computation of the civil Year continu'd in Ægypt to the Death of Antony and Cleopatra, and was afterward in Uſe among the Mathematicians and Aſtronomers to the Time of Ptolemy, who made his Mathematical Canon by this Account, from the firſt Beginning of this Æra to the Death of Antoninus Pius the Roman Emperor, who died in the Year of CHRIST 161; and is juſtly eſteem'd (e) as the ſureſt and moſt uſeful Guide of antient Chronology, where the ſacred Hiſtorians are ſilent; from the Date whereof the learned Dr. Prideaux began his moſt admirable Connexion of the Old and New Teſtament with the neighbouring Nations.

CHAP. III.

Short Obſervations to the Time of the Babyloniſh Captivity.

THUS have we, thro' the Bleſſing of GOD, gone thro' a ſhort Account of the Hiſtory of the World from the Creation, as far as it related to that of the Sacred Scriptures, until the Time in which it hath been perform'd by a moſt incomparable Hand. And therefore from the firſt Year of the Reign of Ahaz, to the Babyloniſh Captivity, there only remains ſome ſhort Obſervations, chiefly neceſſary for the Fixing of the Time, when the Prophets ſpoke the remaining Parts of their Propheſies.

1. The Syrians and Iſraelites having oppreſs'd the Kingdom of Judah in the laſt Year of Jotham's Reign, and having laid Siege to Jeruſalem, in the Year after his Death, it is evident, (a) that the Prophet Iſaiah is now ſent by GOD to comfort Ahaz, and aſſure him, that they ſhould not prevail. And therefore this is the Place to take in the ſeventh Chapter of his Propheſy, where theſe Promiſes are given. Anno 739.

2. The ſame Year, and probably ſoon after, is the Date of the eighth Chapter. The People of Iſrael at this Time rejoic'd in the (b) Aſſiſtance of Rezin King of Syria, and in the Succeſs of Pekah the Son of Remaliah their own King. In the laſt Chapter the Prophet had promis'd Deliverance to Judah from theſe their Enemies, whom he calls (c) the Tails of theſe ſmoking firebrands, as being almoſt conſum'd, and ready to ſmoke their laſt; and his Son (d) Shear-jaſhub is with him, which ſignifies A Remnant ſhall return. In this Chapter (e) a Propheteſs hath a Son, and ſhe is directed by Iſaiah to call him Maher-ſhalal-haſh-baz, or In making ſpeed to the ſpoil he haſtens to the prey. And gives this Reaſon, For before the child ſhall have knowledge to cry, My father and my mother, the riches of Damaſcus, and the ſpoil of Samaria, ſhall be taken away before the face of the king of Aſſyria. This was accordingly fulfill'd; for in the ſecond Year after this Ahaz calls in Tiglath-pileſer King of Aſſyria to his Help, who (f) ſlays Rezin King of Damaſcus, and leads Part of Iſrael into Captivity: and the Year following (g) Pekah King of Iſrael is ſlain by Hoſhea, and Judah is deliver'd from both, as Iſaiah had foretold. Anno 739.

3. Another Reaſon, why theſe two Chapters are dated the Year after Jotham's Death, when Ahaz was ſole King, is (h) the Propheſy mention'd therein, that within threeſcore and five years Ephraim ſhould be broken, that it be not a people. For ſixty five Years after, which was in the twenty fourth Year of Manaſſeh's Reign, (i) Eſarhaddon King of Aſſyria having alſo made himſelf Maſter of Babylon, after he had ſettl'd all his Affairs in Syria, march'd into the Land of Iſrael, and there taking Captive all thoſe who were the Remains of the Captivity (excepting only ſome few, who eſcap'd his Hands, and continu'd ſtill in the Land) carry'd them away into Babylon and Aſſyria. And then to prevent the Land from becoming deſolate, he brought others from (k) Babylon, and from Cuthah, and from Avah and Hamath and Sepharvaim, to dwell in the Cities of Samaria in their ſtead. And ſo the ten Tribes of Iſrael, who had ſeparated from the Houſe of David, were brought to a full and utter Deſtruction, and never after that recover'd themſelves again.

4. The ninth Chapter of Iſaiah was ſpoken or written at the ſame Time with the eighth, as may evidently appear to any one who will read the laſt Verſe of the one and the firſt of the other. In the eighth Chapter he ſpeaks of the Calamities, which ſhould befall Iſrael and Judah from Shalmanezer and Sennacherib the Kings of Aſſyria, and the Deliverance that ſhould happen in due Time. In the End of the eighth Chapter he foretels the Babyloniſh Captivity, and ſaith, that at that Time they ſhall look unto the earth; and behold trouble, and darkneſs, dimneſs of anguiſh, and they ſhall be driven to darkneſs. In the ninth Chapter he ſpeaks of a more glorious Deliverance than the firſt, and particularly to the Land of Zebulun and the Land of Naphtali, that the dimneſs ſhall not be ſuch as was in her firſt Vexation. The Land of Galilee, or of Zebulun and Naphtali, had the hard Misfortune to be firſt in that Calamity, which befel their Nation by the Aſſyrians; of which we (l) have this Account, That In the days of Pekah king of Iſrael came Tiglath-pileſer king of Aſſyria, and took Ijon and Abel beth-maachah, and Janoah, and Kedeſh, and Hazor and Gilead Anno 739.

(all these, except Janoah and Gilead, were Cities of Naphtali) and Galilee, and all the land of Naphtali, and carried them captive to Assyria. From this Calamity, which then newly happen'd, the Prophet takes Occasion to comfort them, with this Assurance, that after another like Calamity, which should be worse for some time, they should have a sufficient Recompence, in the first and chief Share of the Messiah, which was to come. As at the (m) first time he made vile (or debased) the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali; so in the latter time he shall make it glorious. (If the Reason hereof is ask'd, the Reason follows) The way of the sea by Jordan, in Galilee of the gentiles, the people, that walked in the darkness of Affliction, hath seen a great light; they that dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. Thou hast multiplied the nations, and increas'd the joy thereof. And the Reason of it is plain, For unto us a child is born, and unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called, Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty GOD, The Father (or Author) of eternity, The prince of peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end; upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the LORD of hosts shall perform this. This is he, that should enlighten the Province of Galilee, or the Land of Zebulun and Naphtali with the Glory of his Presence, and make it a sufficient Amends for what it suffer'd before the rest of the Country of Israel by the Hand of the King of Assyria.

5. At this Time the seventeenth Chapter of this Prophet must be plac'd. It not only speaks of the same Subject with the three before-mention'd, even the final Ruin of Damascus and Ephraim; but (u) it speaks also of Damascus and Ephraim, as join'd together in one Confederacy to invade the Kingdom of Judah, which happen'd not till the End of the Reign of Jotham, and the Beginning of the Reign of Ahaz. And as it could not be plac'd sooner for this Reason, so it cannot be plac'd much later; because it (o) foretels the Ruin of Damascus, and the Kingdom of Syria, which was (p) effected by Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria in the fourth Year of Ahaz's Reign. The Reason why this Chapter is plac'd so far back in this Book, is, because there are many Prophesies against several Countries laid there together, and when it pleas'd GOD to threaten the neighbouring Kingdoms, Damascus and Israel could not be without their Share. Thus the three Chapters of Isaiah (*) first mention'd are plac'd in their Order of Time, as particular Declarations of GOD's Judgments against these two Places; and (†) the other Chapters are plac'd, where they may accompany other Threatnings.

6. In the same Year we may also date the twenty eighth Chapter of the same Prophet. Ephraim was now (q) a crown of pride, and full of drunkards. They thought themselves secure by the Assistance of Rezin King of Syria, and therefore he foretels the Destruction of Ephraim or Israel by Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria, which he had before call'd (r) the razor that was hired (s) by Ahaz to shave Galilee, Gilead and Damascus; and in a little Time after lighted on him that hired it. So that the Conquest of Israel by him happening the following Year, this Prophesy must be spoken at this Time; tho' it is plac'd at a farther Distance, that the Threatnings against this Kingdom might come in among the Threatnings against other Places.

Anno 738.

7. Ahaz his Seeking (t) to the King of Assyria for Help, and Revolting from GOD, occasions the Publishing the fifth and sixth Chapters of the Prophet Hosea. In (u) the fifth Chapter he reproves both Ephraim and Judah for this Fault, and threatens them both with Judgments; and in (x) the next Chapter he invites and exhorts them to Repentance with the Promise of a Blessing. He blames Ephraim or Israel more particularly for Relying upon Assyria, tho' Judah was under the same Sin, and subject to the same Reproof; because Israel was first (y) in the Fault under Menahem, and (z) then Judah under Ahaz; and (a) Israel was first punish'd in the Time of Pekah, and (b) then Judah in the Time of Hezekiah.

8. In the twelfth Year (c) of Ahaz King of Judah, Hoshea began to reign over Israel in Samaria. And (d) in the fourteenth Year of Ahaz, Tiglath-pileser King of Assyria died, after he had reign'd nineteen Years, and Shalmaneser his Son (who in Tobit is call'd Enemassar, and in Hosea Shalmon) reign'd in his Stead, and as soon as he was settl'd in the Throne, he came into Syria and Palestina, and there he subjects Samaria to his Dominions, and makes Hoshea the King to become his Vassal, and pay Tribute to him. This is the Time, when as the Prophet Iſaiah (e) ſaid, he had ſubdued the Idols of that Country, and intended to make Samaria as abſolutely under his Power, as Damaſcus was at that Time, and threaten'd to do the ſame to Jeruſalem; which he did in the following Year, being the fourteenth of Ahaz, and the third of Hoſhea. This is therefore the Time, that the Prophet Iſaiah (f) threatens, that he ſhould do the like to Jeruſalem. And indeed he doth it: (g) He came up to Ajath, he paſſed to Migron, at Michmaſh he laid up his carriages; They took up their lodgings at Geba, all which were Cities within the Dominion of Ahaz. They went over the paſſage, that had been ſtraitly kept as a Frontier, between the Kingdom of Samaria and the Kingdom of Judah. Ramah of Benjamin was afraid, and the Inhabitants of Gibeah, where Saul was born, in the ſame Tribe fled away. Thus Shalmaneſer came up to Jeruſalem and ſubdu'd Ahaz. Theſe were the (h) ſtrong Waters, which did overflow Judah, and the ſwift Conqueſts, which took in the whole Land, where (i) Emmanuel or CHRIST was afterwards to be born; ſo that the Promiſe afforded no preſent Security, but there were (k) ſuch Days, that had not been ſeen ſince the Revolt of the ten Tribes. This diſmal Calamity good King Hezekiah mentions, as ſoon as he endeavour'd to reform the People. (l) Our fathers have fallen by the ſword, and our ſons and daughters and wives are in captivity. And (m) be ye not like your fathers, and like your brethren, which treſpaſſed againſt the LORD GOD of their fathers, who therefore gave them up to deſolation, as ye ſee. This firſt Expedition of Shalmaneſer King of Aſſyria againſt Samaria and Jeruſalem is what the Prophet Hoſea takes Notice of, where he ſaith, (n) that Shalmon ſpoiled Betharbel in the day of battle, and us'd ſuch Cruelties, that the Mother was daſhed in pieces upon her children. And therefore as he ſpoil'd Betharbel in his firſt Expedition againſt Samaria and Jeruſalem, ſo he ſhould ſpoil Bethel in his ſecond, when the ten Tribes were carried away Captives. And as in the Beginning of the Reign of Ahaz, when Judah was greatly diſtreſs'd by Rezin and Pekah, the Prophet Iſaiah comforts them with the Promiſe of the MESSIAH; ſo he takes the ſame Method at this Time, and whilſt they are brought into the moſt deſpicable Condition by Shalmaneſer, he (o) foretels the Deſtruction of both the Empires of Babylon and Aſſyria, and the Joy that ſhould be occaſion'd thereby, and particularly the peaceable Kingdom of CHRIST, the Branch out of the Root of Jeſſe, the victorious Reſtoration of Iſrael, with the Bringing in of the Gentiles, and the great Thankſgiving upon that Occaſion.

9. The many Troubles, which happen'd in Judah this Year brought Ahaz in ſo low a Condition, that he could not manage the Affairs of the Kingdom, and therefore he makes Hezekiah to be King. Dr. Lightfoot (p) ſuppoſes, that Shalmaneſer not only conquer'd, but alſo depos'd Ahaz, and made him become a private Man, and ſet up Hezekiah his Son on the Throne in his Stead. At this Time the third Year of Hoſhea, and the fourteenth of Ahaz was almoſt expir'd, and every thing was in ſuch a Confuſion, that Hezekiah was capable of Doing very little; ſo that his Reign is very ſeldom computed from this Year, but from the next. And thus (q) Hoſhea's ſeventh is ſaid to be Hezekiah's fourth, and Hoſhea's ninth is ſaid to be his ſixth. The Judgments of GOD had ſo awaken'd Hezekiah to a Senſe of his Duty that he reſolv'd to reform the Kingdom, as the only Way to find Mercy, and his Father Ahaz was reduc'd ſo low by his Misfortunes, that he might perceive it to be the Hand of GOD againſt him, and therefore he either dar'd not, or was in no Condition to oppoſe it. The (r) firſt Day of this new Year from whence the firſt Year of Hezekiah's Reign is dated, he opens the Doors of the Houſe of the LORD, which his Father Ahaz had ſhut up, and brings in the Prieſts and the Levites to perform divine Worſhip, in the Manner that GOD had appointed. He caſts out thoſe Defilements, which his Father Ahaz had brought into the Temple, before he had ſhut it up; and (s) the Houſe and Court are cleans'd in eight Days, when by Sacrifices (t) they make a new Dedication. And it is alſo ſuppos'd, (u) that in Purging and Cleanſing of the Temple at this Time, a Copy of the latter Part of Solomon's Proverbs was found, and was afterwards tranſcrib'd by ſome of Hezekiah's Servants out of the old Manuſcript, which was much ſoil'd and defac'd by Time and Neglect. In the ſame Chapter the Prophet alſo hath a (x) triumphant Inſulting over Babylon, and deſcribes its Deſtruction in a very terrible Manner. He here joins it with the Propheſies againſt Aſſyria, becauſe when they were accompliſh'd, Babylon and Aſſyria (y) made but one Monarchy, having been united under Eſar-haddon the Son of Sennacherib King of Aſſyria. He ſaith, (z) that GOD

ſhould break the ſtaff of this wicked Empire, and the ſcepter of the rulers, which was fulfill'd, when Belſhazzar was ſlain; for (a) this Empire did never after bear any more Rule. He alſo foretells, that (b) GOD would cut off from that City the name and remnant, ſon and (c) Grandſon, which was alſo fulfill'd, when (d) Evilmerodach the Son of Nebuchadnezzar (who took Jeruſalem and carried the Jews Captives) was ſlain by a Conſpiracy of his own Relations, and (e) Belſhazzer his Grandſon was ſlain by Cyrus. He propheſies alſo, (f) that GOD would make it a poſſeſſion for the bittern, and pools of water. This was alſo accompliſh'd, when Cyrus broke down (g) the great Bank or Dam, which was built by (h) Nebuchadnezzar between the River and the Canal, and ſo turn'd the Rivers of Babylon, that they overflow'd the Country, and left the Channels dry, ſo that he enter'd that way into the City with his Army. He alſo tells us, (i) that Babylon the beauty of the Chaldeans excellency ſhould be utterly overthrown, and never inhabited any more, but be full of doleful Creatures, wild Beaſts, and deſolate of other Inhabitants. And (k) in the Day when GOD ſhould take vengeance, and in the year of recompenſes for the controverſy of Zion, her Enemies ſhould be made deſolate in the ſame Manner; which was exactly fulfill'd not long after. For (l) when Seleucia was built on the Tigris, and the River Euphrates was thus drain'd near Babylon, ſo as to be render'd ſhallow and unnavigable, and the Country hereby was made unhealthy, the Inhabitants ſoon forſook it, ſo that it was brought to an utter Deſolation; and the wild Beaſts, and eſpecially the venemous Creatures which are thereabout (againſt which there is no Fence) make it too dangerous for any Traveller ſo much as to go and ſee its Ruins.

10. The Year after this (m) Ahaz dies, and the Prophet Iſaiah publiſheth (n) the latter Part of his fourteenth Chapter; in which he threatens the Philiſtines, that whereas (o) Uzziah had been a Serpent to them, and had ſtung them very grievouſly, and when he was dead, they (p) inſulted over Ahaz, yet now (q) Hezekiah ſhould prove a Cockatrice to them, and ſhould ſmite them again. That GOD ſhould firſt (r) bring upon them a Famine, and then Hezekiah's Sword, and after that (s) the northern Power ſhould utterly diſſolve them. But that (t) the terrible Meſſengers of the Aſſyrian Nation, as Rabſhakeh and Rabſaris and others, when they came againſt Jeruſalem, ſhould receive this Anſwer, That the LORD hath founded Zion, the poor of his people ſhould truſt in it, and the Aſſyrian Army ſhould not prevail againſt it.

Anno 726. Ahaz 16. Hezekiah 2.

11. The ſame Year the Prophet Iſaiah publiſh'd his fifteenth and ſixteenth Chapters againſt Moab, that (u) Ar and Kir-hareſheth two principal Cities of that Country ſhould be deſtroy'd, and the reſt of it brought into Contempt, Ruin and Deſolation. The Prophet tells us, that all this ſhould be accompliſh'd within the Space of three Years, and it was accompliſh'd accordingly in the fifth Year of Hezekiah's Reign immediately before the Siege of Samaria. For then (x) Shalmaneſer to ſecure himſelf from any Diſturbance on that Side, firſt invaded Moab and having deſtroy'd theſe two Cities, brought all the reſt of that Country under his Subjection, and plac'd Gariſons in it ſufficient to ſtop all Incurſions of the Arabs, which might that Way be made upon him, before he would begin that Siege. For otherwiſe he could not hope to carry it on with Succeſs.

12. The next Year the Prophet Hoſea publiſh'd (y) the eight laſt Chapters of his Propheſy, as it may appear from theſe Reaſons. Firſt, It was after (z) the firſt Expedition of Shalmaneſer againſt Samaria and Jeruſalem, when he deſtroy'd Betharbel and before his ſecond Expedition, when he took Samaria, and deſtroy'd Bethel. Secondly, The common and conſtant (a) Speech, that the Prophet makes to Ephraim and Samaria in every Chapter, ſhews, that theſe things were ſpoken to the ten Tribes, before they were carry'd away Captives, which happen'd but three Years after this Date. And Thirdly, The Prophet blames them (b) for Depending upon Egypt, and threatens to puniſh them for the ſame. In the Beginning of this Year, or the End of the former, (c) Hoſhea King of Iſrael enters into a Confederacy with So King of Egypt, hoping by his Aſſiſtance to ſhake off the Yoke of Aſſyria, and in Confidence hereof he withdrew his Subjection from Shalmaneſer, and would pay him no more Tribute, nor bring any more Preſents to him, as he had formerly us'd to do. For this he is blam'd as a thing paſt. And ſoon after in this Year, Shalmaneſer came and beſieg'd Samaria, which was the Puniſhment threatned; and therefore theſe Propheſies muſt be plac'd between the one and the other.

13. Samaria being now beſieg'd, having in vain depended upon Egypt, the Prophet Iſaiah publiſheth his eighteenth and nineteenth Chapters againſt that Country, on whom they ſo much depended. He calls it the (d) land ſhadowing with wings, becauſe their Fleets on the Red Sea, when the Sails were ſpread, look'd like Wings, or rather the Sails were to Ships as Wings to Birds to help them forward. He calls it alſo (e) the Land, which is beyond the rivers of Cuſh, becauſe Cuſh lay upon one Side of the Red-Sea, and Egypt on the other. He alſo propheſies, that the Tribe of Judah ſhould go down to Egypt in ſuch great Numbers, that (f) they ſhould fill five Cities with the language of Canaan, as they did (g) immediately after the Captivity, in the Time of the Prophet Jeremiah; and that (h) every one of theſe ſhould alſo prove Cities of deſtruction, or be given up to be deſtroy'd, as it was (i) alſo foretold by the Prophet Jeremiah, and accompliſh'd by (k) Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. However he propheſies, that in due Time (l) Egypt, Aſſyria and Iſrael ſhould unite, and come to the Obedience of the Goſpel.

Anno 723. Hezeki 24.

14. The Kingdom of Judah living in Peace for about ten Years longer, and a Reformation being carry'd on with good Succeſs, the Prophet Iſaiah had no farther Viſion from GOD, which he thought fit to publiſh. The next was on this Occaſion: In the fourteenth Year of King Hezekiah's Reign, (m) Sennacherib King of Aſſyria (whom Iſaiah (n) call'd Sargon) came up with a great Army againſt the fenced Cities of Judah, and took ſeveral of them, and laid Siege to Lachiſh, threatning Jeruſalem next. Hezekiah comes to Terms of Accommodation, which Sennacherib obſerv'd for a little while, and march'd againſt Egypt; and the better to open his Way into that Country, he ſends (o) Tartan, one of his Generals, before him, to take Aſhdod or Azotus; from the Taking of which Place the Prophet dates the Beginning of the War, which he had with the Egyptians. In which, according as it had been foretold, he much afflicted that People for three Years together, and carry'd Multitudes of them into Captivity. Iſaiah is now (p) in Sackcloth, and mourning for the Captivity of the ten Tribes, which had ſo lately happen'd: and now he threatens Egypt and (q) Cuſh, that they ſhould be both taken Captives, and ſhamefully us'd by the Aſſyrian. And thus when Sennacherib march'd into Egypt, he (r) laid Siege to Libnah, a Town in the Wilderneſs (s) (where the Iſraelites once encamp'd) to open alſo a Communication on the other Side of the Dead Sea. Upon this (t) Tirhakah King of Cuſh comes againſt him with his Army, and was vanquiſh'd by him, ſo that (u) his Nation was puniſh'd inſtead of Judah.

Anno 714. Hezeki 14.

15. At the ſame Time was alſo the Propheſy of Iſaiah mention'd in the twenty firſt Chapter. The Date is plain, that (x) it was within a Year before the glory of Kedar did fail, or Sennacherib, having conquer'd Tirhakah King of Cuſh, extended his Conqueſts into Arabia and Idumea. He had before ſpoken largely and fully concerning the Fall of the King of Aſſyria; and now he proceeds to tell the Fall of the other Monarchy, which ſtarted up at the ſame Time, or that of Babylon. That (y) its Conqueſt in the Time of Nebuchadnezzar ſhould be ſwift like a Whirlwind, and come from the Deſarts of Arabia; that the Medes and Perſians ſhould deſtroy it, and all Sighing occaſion'd from that Empire ſhould ceaſe. By a (z) couple of Chariots and a couple of Horſemen of different Beaſts, he deſcribes theſe two Nations, and particularly Cyrus and Darius; and foretels the Ruin of Belſhazzar by them. That (a) his Height of Pleaſure and Banqueting ſhould be turn'd into Fear; and whilſt they were furniſhing the Tables, there ſhould be an Alarm of War, and ſo Babylon ſhould fall, and the Images of the Gods, which were (b) ſo lately prais'd, ſhould be broken to Pieces. But this being at a Diſtance, he returns to thoſe things which were nigh at hand: That (c) Idumea ſhould be over-run, as in one Day; and (d) the Arabian Tents ſhould be ſo ſpoil'd, that they ſhould be forc'd to lodge in the open Foreſt; and they ſhould flee away in ſuch Haſte, as to leave all behind them, and be forc'd to beg Bread and Water of their Neighbours.

16. Immediately upon this the Prophet (e) ſpeaks of the Calamity that ſhould follow, even the Invaſion of Judea by the Aſſyrian Army, which was made vaſtly large by the (f) Addition of many Forces from Elam or Perſia, and Kir or Media; that the choiceſt valleys ſhould be full of chariots, and the horſemen ſhould ſet themſelves in array againſt their fenced Cities. That their Men ſhould not only (g) be ſlain with the Sword, but alſo many ſhould die by Famine. That the Invaſion of the Army ſhould cauſe Husbandry to be neglected. That the Nation ſhould be troubled for it (h) Days above (or ſomething more than) a year. For the Year when they were there, they devour'd all, and the following Year was the Sabbatical Year. This made them generally lament for the deſirable Vintage, the pleaſant fields, and fruitful vines; inſomuch that the Prophet was oblig'd (i) to promiſe them a Supply from GOD's immediate Providence, whilſt they diſcharg'd their Duty. Ye ſhall eat this year ſuch as groweth of it ſelf, and the ſecond year that which ſpringeth of the ſame; and in the third year ſow ye, and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof. He alſo (k) propheſies the Diſplacing of Shebna from being over the Houſhold, and the Placing Eliakim in his Room; and therefore he calls him (l) Eliakim, who was (or was to be) over the houſhold, becauſe the Propheſy might be depended upon, as certainly as if it was fulfill'd already. The Completion happen'd (m) in this Manner. When Manaſſeh was on the Throne, Shebna being a very wicked Man was a fit Perſon to ſerve his evil Luſts and Inclinations, and therefore was made his firſt Miniſter of State in the Beginning of his Reign; and Eliakim, who was of a contrary Character, was laid aſide. When Manaſſeh was carry'd Captive to Babylon, Shebna was carry'd with him, and (n) there detain'd till his Death. So that Manaſſeh, upon his Repentance and Return to Jeruſalem, having reſolv'd upon other Methods, puts the Government of all Affairs into the Hands of Eliakim. Upon this the Prophet Iſaiah (o) ſpeaks of him, and his ſupreme Management, as a Type of CHRIST and his Kingdom. St. John himſelf alludes hereto in (p) very plain Terms, and the Names are very ſignificant for this Purpoſe. Eliakim is in Hebrew, My GOD ſhall ariſe, and Hilkiah ſignifies The LORD is my Portion.

17. To the ſame Time we may alſo refer (q) ſeveral of the following Chapters. In the two and twentieth Chapter he had foretold the Miſery and Perplexity of Judea by Sennacherib's Army, before the Angel deſtroy'd it; and now in the twenty fourth Chapter he declares the final Deſolation of it by Nebuchadnezzar, as he had before mention'd the Captivity of Ephraim by Shalmaneſer King of Aſſyria in the twenty eighth Chapter; and ſoon after (r) mentions the heavy Judgments, which ſhould light upon Tyre. In the twenty fifth Chapter he mentions the great Joy which ſhould be to the Church of GOD after each of theſe Deliverances, the Song of Praiſe which ſhould be ſpoken at that Time, and the Glory, which ſhould be given to GOD for his Judgments, for his gracious Benefits to his People, and for their glorious Deliverance. And in (s) the next Chapter he exhorts the People of Judah to truſt in GOD, and wait on him, that he will exert his Power in the worſt of Times, pull down their Enemies, and give them Peace and Proſperity. In (t) the following Chapter he ſpeaks again of the Deliverance of his Church and People from Babylon, which being encompaſs'd with large Rivers, he compares to (u) the Leviathan or Whale, that ſports himſelf in the great Waters; and in (x) another Song he ſpeaks of the great Care of GOD over his People, that all his Judgments were but in Mercy, and only deſign'd for their Amendment; and that in the Days of the MESSIAH the (y) Gentiles ſhould become one Church with the Jews, and ſhould alſo worſhip the ſame LORD, who dwelt at Jeruſalem. Thus he mixes many ſweet and gracious Promiſes among his Threatnings; and in the twenty ninth Chapter, ſpoken about the ſame Time, he takes the ſame Method. He calls (z) the Altar at Jeruſalem Ariel, or The Lion of GOD; and calls Jeruſalem it ſelf by the ſame Name, the one being remarkable for Devouring Sacrifices by Fire, and the other as remarkable for Devouring of Men by Slaughter. And now he threatens, that GOD would diſtreſs Ariel the City, and it ſhould be as Ariel the Altar, with Abundance of Slain about it. However he tells them, that after this, tho' they ſhould be thus beſieg'd by Nebuchadnezzar; yet they ſhould obtain a glorious Deliverance at the laſt, when his Empire ſhould be overturn'd by the Medes and Perſians. He tells them, that the Cauſes of theſe Judgments were (a) their Senſeleſneſs and (b) deep Hypocriſy, but (c) after their Return from their Captivity they ſhould be an holy People.

18. The Aſſyrians, invading the Kingdom of Judah on the north Side, make them full of Perplexity and Terror; and therefore they ſend to the South for Succours from Egypt, depending much on their Aſſiſtance. For this (d) Rabſhakeh blames them in his Speech, that they put their Truſt in Egypt for chariots and for horſemen. Upon this he tells them, that this ſhould prove but (e) like the ſtaff of a broken reed, upon which if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it; for ſo ſhall Pharaoh king of Egypt be, to all that truſt in him. This he ſpeaks like a Prophet; but a greater Prophet than he blames them (f) for the ſame Crime in his thirtieth and thirty firſt Chapters, and tells them, that all this Policy ſhould ſtand them in no Stead, and (g) the Egyptians themſelves ſhould be deſtroy'd by the Aſſyrian Army. However the Prophet tells them (h) here, and in (i) another Place, that GOD had heard the Blaſphemies of Rabſhakeh, and would defend this City, for his own name's ſake, and for his ſervant David's ſake, either David himſelf, or CHRIST the ſon of David, who is (k) ſometimes call'd by this Name; and he would take Vengeance upon the Aſſyrians. The Miſery and Oppreſſion of this northern Army firſt under Shalmaneſer, and then under Sennacherib, had been very long and very great, ſo that (l) they had eaten the bread of adverſity, and drank the waters of affliction, and their teachers had been removed into corners: But as the (m) Stream of the Aſſyrian did reach even to the neck, or reduce things to the utmoſt Extremity; ſo ſhould (n) GOD's Anger do the ſame to him. But they of Jeruſalem ſhould (o) have a ſong as in the night Time, when an holy ſolemnity, or the Paſſover was kept. For they then (p) ſang an Hymn, becauſe their Deliverance out of Egypt happen'd in the (q) Night; and thus their Deliverance from Aſſyria ſhould happen at the ſame Time. And (r) through the voice of the LORD, or (s) his Angel, ſhould the Aſſyrian be beaten down, who ſmote them with a rod; and this ſhould be (t) in the Valley of Tophet the Son of Hinnom, near Jeruſalem on the South Side, whither he came from (u) Lachiſh, Libnah and Cuſh, and where he encamp'd (x) before he could form the Siege of that Place. Thus (y) the Aſſyrian ſhould fall with the ſword, neither of a mean man, nor of a mighty man, but of the mighty GOD; and (z) both he and his Princes ſhould return to his ſtrong hold (a) of Nineveh for fear. So that theſe Particulars mention'd in theſe Chapters, to comfort the People of Judah in their Fears, and before they were accompliſh'd, do plainly ſhew, that this is the proper Time when they were ſpoken, and that they are plac'd in their proper Order.

19. Immediately upon this he (b) promiſeth the Bleſſings, which ſhould attend the Kingdom of CHRIST, as a farther Means to comfort them, and an Aſſurance that they ſhould not be caſt off. Thus he mixeth Promiſes with the Threatnings, and foretels the greateſt Comforts, when they had the greateſt Need of them. In the mean While he intermixes the ſad Times, which they ſhould ſuffer, whilſt the Aſſyrian Army did carry all before them: That (c) he ſhould deſtroy the Vintage and the Husbandry, that he ſhould make (d) the High Ways waſte, and ſhould break (e) the covenant which he had made with Hezekiah, becauſe he deſpiſed all their ſtrong Cities, and valued no Forces, which could be ſent againſt him. However the Prophet ſaith, that there ſhould (f) be glorious Times again, not only at this Deliverance, but alſo at the Inſpiration of the Apoſtles, when (g) GOD ſhould pour out his ſpirit upon all fleſh. That after this (h) the Enemies of the People of GOD ſhould be deſtroy'd, and his faithful Servants (i) ſhould be in a happy Condition. That (k) the Inhabitants of Idumea, who had been their conſtant Enemies, and had help'd forward their Deſolation, ſhould alſo be made deſolate. That (l) all theſe things were ſure and certain; And (m) at laſt he concludes with the joyful and flouriſhing State of the Kingdom of CHRIST, and the great Privileges belonging to thoſe, who ſhould embrace the Goſpel.

20. Here alſo may be plac'd the five laſt Chapters of the Prophecy of Micah. Tho' he is ſaid (n) to propheſy in the Days of Jotham and Ahaz; yet the laſt Verſe of the third Chapter is (o) own'd by the Men in Jeremiah's Time to have been utter'd in the Days of Hezekiah. And here may that whole Chapter, and all the reſt that follow it, be very properly plac'd. He ſeems (p) to ſpeak of the Siege of Jeruſalem as nigh at Hand, ſo that it was high Time to raiſe Forces to defend themſelves. He ſpeaks of Rabſhakeh's Blaſphemy againſt GOD, and his Reproaching of Hezekiah, that they ſhould ſmite the judge of Iſrael with the rod upon the cheek; and foretels the (q) Glory, Peace and (r) Victory of the Church of CHRIST and his (s) Kingdom; that (t) tho' her Number was ſmall and their Corruption great, yet (u) ſhe might put her Truſt (x) in his Mercies, that ſhe ſhould (y) triumph, and (z) her Enemies ſhould be confounded; That the promis'd (a) MESSIAH might be a Security to them, them, (a) as it was to Ahaz. And tho' their Enemies thought to triumph, and to deſtroy the City of Jeruſalem; yet it ſhould be ſo far from being inſulted over by them, that (b) the little Town of Bethlehem ſhould produce ſuch a Governor, as ſhould tread down both the Aſſyrian and all other Enemies of his Church under his Feet. Thus CHRIST's being born of a Virgin was a Sign to Ahaz, and his being born in Bethlehem was a Sign to his Son Hezekiah, that no Enemy ſhould prevail to root out the Family of David, nor deſtroy the Country, where David was born. Thus alſo is (c) Judah call'd The valley of viſion, becauſe in this Year, when there was the greateſt Occaſion for it, before Sennacherib came againſt Jeruſalem, GOD was pleas'd to reveal himſelf in a greater Meaſure by his Prophets. For eighteen Chapters were publiſh'd this Year by Iſaiah, and five by Micah, the like whereof was never known in one Year before nor ſince.

21. The Prophet Iſaiah having foretold theſe things, proceeds afterward (d) to give us the Hiſtory of them, how they were accompliſh'd, in the ſame Manner as it was alſo related (e) both in the Books of Kings and Chronicles: And ſoon after this in the ſame Year he had the Propheſy againſt Tyre mention'd in the twenty third Chapter, and there was a very fit Occaſion for it. The Tyrians (f) had a few Years before with twelve Ships only, beaten the Aſſyrian and Phœnician Fleets both join'd together. Upon this Shalmaneſer ſent his Army to beſiege it by Land. However they valiantly held out for five Years, or till the Year before this, at the End whereof Shalmaneſer dying the Siege was rais'd. This Succeſs puff'd them up with Pride, and made them grow inſolent. Iſaiah then ſpeaks of (g) her Rejoycing, (h) the Pride of her glory, and calls her (i) the joyous and the crowning City, whoſe merchants were princes; and ſpeaks alſo of her miſerable Overthrow, and Going into Captivity. He (k) bids them take Example by the land of the Chaldeans or Babylon. This people was not till the Aſſyrian founded it, or (l) Nimrod made it a Monarchy, who afterward went into Aſſyria, and built Nineveh the Metropolis thereof, and dwelt there. This Aſſyrian form'd it for them who dwelt in the wilderneſs, or for the Offspring of his Father Cuſh, who were firſt ſeated in Arabia; they ſet up the towers thereof, and they raiſed up the palaces. And this Aſſyrian Monarchy now divided from the other (m) ſhall in Time bring the other to Ruin, as it afterward happen'd in (n) the Time of Eſarhaddon King of Aſſyria. And therefore when they ſaw the Fulfilling of one Propheſy againſt another Kingdom, they might expect the Fulfilling of the other againſt themſelves. That the Date of this Propheſy muſt begin at this Time, may be obſerv'd from (o) the Words themſelves, as they lie in the Original: And ſo it is in this day that Tyre is forgotten ſeventy years according to the days of one king, or (p) the firſt King, who was to ſucceed Hezekiah. This is the firſt ſeventy Years here mention'd, beginning (q) at the fourteenth Year of Hezekiah, who (r) reign'd fifteen Years longer, and ending at the Death of Manaſſeh, who (s) reign'd five and fifty Years, which made up ſeventy in all. During this Time Tyre was forgotten. The long Siege made the neighbouring Nations traffick with other Cities, and ſo their Trade was loſt for the preſent. After the End of this Seventy Years, then Tyre did (t) ſing as an harlot. Her Trade began again with all the Kingdoms, as it was before, and was very remarkable in (u) the Days of Ezekiel. When theſe ſeventy Years were paſt, then the Deſtruction of Tyre came on as it had been foretold, and (x) Nebuchadnezzar after a Siege of thirteen Years ſlew all the Inhabitants, which he found therein, and raſed the City to the Ground; and thus the Town in the Iſland became the City, whilſt the other was (y) laid waſte, and ſo it continu'd in a State of Servitude under the Babylonians for ſeventy Years longer. At the End of this Term GOD viſited Tyre again, (z) according to the Propheſy of Iſaiah, when it was reſtor'd to (a) its antient Privileges, and allow'd to have a King of their own by Darius the Son of Hyſtaſpes; ſo that they ſoon recover'd their former Proſperity, and the Trade which they had before. After this the Prophet ſaith, that her (b) merchandiſe and her gain ſhould be holy to the LORD. Many among them ſhould be converted to the Chriſtian Faith, and the Diſperſing her Merchandize ſhould be a Means of Propagating the Goſpel. Thus it was (c) in the Apoſtles Days, and (d) Tyre and Sydon repented at their Preaching, tho' the mighty works were not done in them, which had been done in Judea. It is not impoſſible, but this Prophetick Chapter may be plac'd in its proper Order; but if it was ſpoken at this Time, it might be plac'd, where it is, that the Propheſies againſt thoſe Countries, which lay ſo near together, might alſo lie together, and the Threatnings of divine Vengeance might be plac'd (as it were) in one Body.

22. After this the Prophet Iſaiah (e) gives an hiſtorical Account of Hezekiah's Sickneſs and Recovery, and the King of Babylon's Sending a Meſſenger to congratulate him thereon; and after that he publiſheth the (f) remaining Part of his Book in the Life-time of (g) Hezekiah, but without any particular Mark to direct us to the Year, when any of it was ſpoken.

23. Soon after this we may date the Propheſy of Nahum. It was (h) all upon one Subject, The burden of Nineveh; and therefore we may ſuppoſe it to be all publiſh'd at one Time. It was (i) after Sennacherib had invaded Egypt, in the fourteenth Year of Hezekiah's Reign; for (k) he ſpeaks of the Deſtruction of No Ammon or Thebes at that Time, as a thing paſt, where he tells us, that her Inhabitants were carry'd into Captivity, her young Children daſh'd in Pieces in the Top of her Streets, and her great Men divided by Lot among the Conquerors, and put in Chains to be led away as Slaves and Captives. It was when (l) Egypt and Ethiopia were her Strength; and at this Time an Ethiopian King reign'd over Egypt, ſo that both Countries were as one, and mutually help'd each other. It was after the (m) Blaſphemy of Rabſhakeh, whom he deſcribes as (n) one come out of Nineveh, and a wicked counſellor, who imagined evil againſt the LORD. It was before the Death of (o) Sennacherib, which he (p) thus deſcribes, I will break his yoak from off thee, and will burſt thy bonds in ſunder. And the LORD hath given a commandment concerning thee, that no more of thy Name be ſown: Out of the houſe of thy gods will I cut off the graven image and the molten image; I will make thy grave, for thou art vile. So that his Flight out of Judah was his Diſgrace, and his Idol Temple ſhould be his Deſtruction, which happen'd alſo in the twenty ſecond Year of Hezekiah. The King of Aſſyria, who dwelt at Nineveh, had been a great Oppreſſor of Judah, and therefore the whole Scope of the Prophet is to foretel the Deſtruction of that City, which happen'd in the twenty ninth Year of King Joſiah. For (q) Chyniladanus (being driven from Babylon by Nabopollaſar who ſucceeded him) he afterward fix'd at Nineveh, where he was beſieg'd by his Succeſſor at Babylon, who, with the Aſſiſtance of Cyaxares the King of the Medes, took and utterly deſtroy'd that great and antient City; ſo that for the future Babylon became the ſole Metropolis of the Aſſyrian Empire, and the Propheſy of Nahum was intirely fullfill'd.

Anno 710.

24. As there was the Space of 1656 Years from the Creation of the World to the Flood, ſo the ſame Space of Time was again ended in the Beginning of Manaſſeh's Reign over Judah. We find, that long before this the World was peopled in the Eaſt of Aſia, as far as China, and in the Weſt of Europe as far as Cadiz or Hercules's Pillars, and in Africa as far as Tangier, and the Coaſt of Guinea; and that they brought vaſt Armies into the Field: ſo that nothing hinders a Belief, that all theſe three Parts of the World were inhabited before this Time. And as the Men born before the Flood did (r) generally live above nine hundred Years, in which they had more Time to increaſe and multiply, but ſince the Flood, there were (s) none who liv'd to the Age of five hundred Years, and their Lives were ſoon cut ſhorter and ſhorter, ſo that eighty Years was (t) a great Age in the Time of Moſes, as it hath been ever ſince; we cannot therefore but conclude, that the World was as populous, or rather more, at the Flood, as it was in Manaſſeh's Reign. And tho' Noah before the Flood might live near the Place inhabited by our firſt Parents, and the Ark might afterward land near the ſame; yet the Flood, which deſtroy'd (u) all Mankind at that Time, muſt needs be univerſal.

25. After the Reign of Hezekiah there aroſe no Prophet until the Time of Joſiah, in the (x) thirteenth Year of whoſe Reign the Prophet Jeremiah was call'd to this Office, and publiſh'd his firſt Chapter. GOD had forborn long, after the others had ceas'd; and ſince, in the Time which he had given them for Repentance, they grew worſe and worſe, he tells them now, that he (y) would haſten the Puniſhments, which he had ſo long threaten'd. From this Time, to the laſt Captivity under Zedekiah, is exactly forty Years, and ſo long (z) GOD is ſaid to bear the Iniquity of the Houſe of Judah under ſuch powerful Preaching, which had been intermitted many Years before. The Chapters which follow after the firſt to the End of the twelfth, are ſuppos'd to have been in the laſt Year of King Joſiah's Reign; and the thirteenth and fourteenth in the firſt Year of the Reign of his Succeſſor Jehoiakim. The Reaſon is, that there is a frequent Mention in these Chapters Anno of a great Drought or Want of Rain.

608. This is mention'd in the first of these (a) Chapters to be in the Days of the first of these Kings, and in the two other (b) Chapters to be in the Days of the other. This we may well suppose to be the same Drought, and either that it continu'd two Years, or at least in Part of these two Kings Reigns.

26. About the End of Josiah's Reign, we may place the Prophet Habakkuk.
Anno As he is set in the Scriptures before
608. Zephaniah; so we may suppose, that when these Books were settl'd by Ezra in their Order, there was Reason to think, that he was the first in Order of Time. He is suppos'd by some to have liv'd in the Time of Manasseh; and for this Purpose they apply to him and Nahum, (c) what is mention'd in the Book of Kings: The LORD spake by his servants the prophets, saying, Because Manasseh king of Judah hath done these abominations, therefore I am bringing evil upon Judah and Jerusalem, that whosoever heareth of it, both his ears shall tingle: which they reckon to be the same in Effect with (d) what this Prophet saith, Behold ye, and regard, and wonder marvellously, for I will work a work in your days, which ye will not believe, tho' it be told you. For lo, I raise up the Chaldeans. This may in general Terms be said of Habakkuk and Zephaniah; but will not prove, that therefore either of them liv'd in the Reign of this King; and neither of them mention his Name. On the other Hand, these Words do rather refer to the Prophesy of Jeremiah, who (e) mentions this very Name: And I will cause them to be removed into all kingdoms of the earth; because of Manasseh king of Judah, for that which he did in Jerusalem: And yet it is certain, that Jeremiah did not begin to prophesy in Manasseh's Reign, but (f) in the thirteenth Year of Josiah his Successor. We may therefore better place
Anno the Prophet Habakkuk near the End
610. of the Reign of Josiah, and the Prophet Zephaniah soon after; and so (g) they will both fall in with the Anno Prophesies of Jeremiah. It is cer-
609. tain, that (h) they prophesy'd the same things, which Jeremiah did, and upon the same Occasion, which is (i) Destruction and Desolation upon Judah and Jerusalem, because of the heinous Sins which they were guilty of. Zephaniah doth not name the Babylonians or Chaldeans, who were to be the Executioners of GOD's Wrath upon them, as (k) Jeremiah and (l) Habakkuk do. But then he tells us, that (m) this great day was near, and (n) the Punishment should be inflicted on the princes, and the king's children, who were then alive. As for Habakkuk, neither the Time in which he liv'd, nor the Parents, from whom he was descended, are any where nam'd in Scripture. But the Prophesying of the Coming of the Chaldeans, in the same Manner as Jeremiah did, gives Reason to conjecture, that he liv'd at the same Time. It is expresly said of Zephaniah, that (o) he prophesied in the Days of Josiah; and in his Pedegree his Father's Great Grandfather is (p) call'd Hezekiah, which some take to be Hezekiah King of Judah, and therefore reckon him to have been of the Royal Family. If so, he must spring from a younger Brother of Manasseh; and as (q) Manasseh at this Time would have been an hundred Years old, so let us suppose the younger Brother to be four Years younger, and allow two and twenty Years of Age to each of the three Generations, it will bring Zephaniah to be (r) thirty Years old at this Time, which is the Time in which they enter'd upon the Priests Office; and the Year in which the next Prophet, or Ezekiel, was call'd to both, as will appear in its proper Place.

27. There is another Reason to date the eleventh Chapter of the Prophet Jeremiah in Josiah's Reign, because (s) he speaks of the Covenant, which (t) that King had made with the People to serve the LORD, and walk according to the Law of Moses, which was found and read to them. This Covenant he exhorts them religiously to keep, and reproves them for Disobeying it. The twelfth Chapter is also of the same Date, as (u) referring to the same thing. Thus also (x) the eleventh Chapter mentions a Conspiracy of the Men of Annathoth against Jeremiah, and (y) the twelfth seems to speak of it, as a thing but newly past. The fourteenth and six following Chapters were written in the Beginning of the Reign of Jehoiakim, and (z) foretel the Captivity, which happen'd at the (a) latter End of his third, or (b) Beginning of his fourth Year; and theſe (c) are ſuppos'd to be the words of the LORD, which he ſpake by one of his ſervants the prophets. And he plainly intimates, (d) that this firſt Violence and Spoil had not yet happen'd, but (e) he was a Shame, a Reproach, and a Deriſion daily, becauſe what he had propheſied was not accompliſh'd.

28. After theſe follow the twenty ſixth and (f) Part of the twenty ſeventh Chapter. They are both dated in the (g) beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah. This Beginning of his Reign doth not ſignify the firſt Year, but may be taken in a larger Senſe for either of his three firſt Years. Of this we have an Inſtance in his Succeſſor Zedekiah, where (h) the fourth Year is call'd The beginning of his reign. The Reaſon of both theſe Expreſſions is, becauſe of the double Condition and Change that theſe Kings underwent in the Time of their Reign. Jehoiakim for about three Years reign'd by a Deputation from Pharaoh-necho King of Egypt, but the reſt of his Time he reign'd by a Deputation from Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon. In the ſame Manner (i) the fourth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah is call'd The beginning of his reign. Becauſe his firſt ſeven Years he reign'd in Subjection to the King of Babylon; but the reſt of his Time he reign'd as rebelling and caſting off the Babylonian Yoke: ſo that the Time of either of theſe Kings, before this Change and Alteration befel them, is call'd The beginning of their reign, and what happen'd afterward may be call'd The latter End of it.

29. In the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, which was (k) the firſt Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar according to the Jewiſh Account, Jeremiah (l) reproves the Diſobedience of the Jews, and foretels the ſeventy Years Captivity, which accordingly began this Year, and after that the Deſtruction of Babylon. Under the Type of a Cup of Wine he ſhews the Indignation of GOD againſt Jeruſalem and all the Nations round about it, and at laſt againſt Sheſhach or Babylon it ſelf. This is mention'd in the twenty fifth Chapter; and immediately upon this he publiſheth the forty ſixth Chapter, in which he foretels (m) the Overthrow of the Egyptian Army by Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon at Carchemiſh by the River Euphrates, and alſo his Conqueſt of Egypt immediately after. He begins (n) this Chapter with The word of the LORD, which came againſt the Gentiles; and therefore this being a comprehenſive Expreſſion, may take in the reſt of the following Chapters on the ſame Subject, as particularly the forty ſeventh and forty ninth Chapters, which have not any ſpecial Date annex'd to them.

30. Soon after this, and in (o) the ſame Year, Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon (p) having beaten the Army of Pharaoh-necho King of Egypt, and retaken Carchemiſh, march'd toward Syria and Paleſtina to recover thoſe Provinces again to the Babylonian Empire; on whoſe Approach (q) the Rechabites finding no Security from this Invaſion of the open Country, retir'd for their Safety toward Jeruſalem, where was tranſacted between them and Jeremiah what we find related in his thirty fifth Chapter. This is plac'd ſo far back, that all the Propheſies relating to the Diſobedience of the Jews to GOD, might be firſt laid together, and they be made more inexcuſable by the Obedience of the Rechabites to Jonadab their Father. Moſt Authors have plac'd Nebuchadnezzar's Coming againſt Judea in the Year before; but Dr. Prideaux hath given good Reaſons, (r) why it ought to be plac'd in this Year. Anno 605.

31. This Year alſo (s) Baruch writes the Propheſy of Jeremiah in a Book, and reads it in the Houſe of the LORD upon the Day of a ſolemn Faſt, ſuppos'd to be the Day of Expiation, or the tenth Day of the ſeventh Month. This Chapter lies after many Propheſies in the Time of Zedekiah; but the Reaſon is, that all (t) the Propheſies relating to the Babyloniſh Captivity might be firſt plac'd together, and then (u) the Relation of Jeremiah's Sufferings might be added in the ſame Manner; after that (x) other hiſtorical Tranſactions, and then (y) the particular Propheſies againſt other Nations, with GOD's Mercies toward Judah and Jeruſalem, and ſo (z) conclude the Book with the Hiſtory of Zedekiah's Reign and Captivity. And thus among the Sufferings of Jeremiah this of Baruch is plac'd firſt, becauſe it was firſt in Order.

32. But Baruch being (a) very much affrighted at the Threatnings of the Roll, which he had thus wrote and publickly read, the Propheſy which we have in the forty fifth Chapter of Jeremiah, was ſent from GOD to comfort him, and to aſſure him, that in the Midſt of all the Calamities, Deſtructions and Deſolations which ſhould befal that Country, he ſhould have a comfortable Subſiſtence, and his Life ſhould be preſerv'd wherever he went. Thus this Chapter ſeems at firſt Sight to be put very much out of its proper Place: But the Looking back into the forty third and forty fourth Chapters, and Conſidering the Scope and Deſign of them, will let us ſee the Reaſon not only for this, but alſo for the following Chapter. Upon Johanan's Carrying the People into Egypt contrary to the expreſs Word of GOD, Jeremiah declares ſad things (c) againſt the Jews now in that Country. At this Time Johanan had (d) carry'd Baruch with him into Egypt, together with Jeremiah, that if the Deſtruction threaten'd did come upon that Country, they ſhould periſh with it, or otherwiſe they ſhould be put to Death as falſe Prophets. So that as the Story of Jethro's (e) Coming to the Camp of the Iſraelites is mention'd immediately after the Curſe pronounc'd againſt Amalek (tho' it happen'd at another Time) to ſhew, that he himſelf fell not under that Curſe, tho' he liv'd in that Nation; ſo the Propheſy of Baruch's Safety in Egypt is plac'd after ſome Propheſies relating to the Deſtruction of the Country, to ſhew, that this was a particular Exception to the general Rule.

33. After the Inſertion of this comfortable Word for Baruch in Egypt, is plac'd (as was before-mention'd) the forty ſixth Chapter, beginning the Propheſies of Jeremiah againſt other Nations. It is plac'd the firſt of theſe, as being ſpoken long before the reſt, even in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim's Reign, that ſo all the Threatnings againſt Egypt, tho' deliver'd at ſeveral Times, might be plac'd together. And alſo, that the Accompliſhment of this Propheſy deliver'd in Jehoiakim's Time, and ſoon after fulfill'd upon Pharaoh-necho's Army, might be a Confirmation, that Iſrael in Egypt muſt expect the like Truth of the Propheſies deliver'd to them there, which mention'd the like Deſtruction to come upon it by Nebuchadnezzar.

34. Baruch having read the Roll (as is before related) in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, and in the ſeventh Month, which anſwers in Part to our September, the City of Jeruſalem was taken (f) in the ninth Month, which anſwers in Part to our November. At the Time of this Captivity (g) Daniel and his three Companions were carry'd into Babylon, as he himſelf (h) mentions, when their Names were alter'd, for they (i) call'd him Belteſhazzar, and the other three Shadrach, Meſhech and Abednego.

35. This Year was the firſt of the ſeventy Years Captivity (k) ſo often ſpoken of; at the End of which came the Decree of Cyrus for the Return of the Jews and the Rebuilding of the Temple. For the right Computation of which it muſt be conſider'd, that there were three Captivities of Jeruſalem by the Babylonians. The firſt was in the fourth Year of (l) Jehoiakim, the other in the Year of (m) Jehoiachin, and the third in the eleventh Year of (n) Zedekiah. Now it is plain, that the firſt of theſe ſeventy Years began from the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, becauſe it is moſt proper to begin the ſeventy Years Captivity in Babylon, from the firſt Time that any Captivity in Babylon did begin, rather than from the laſt. And ſecondly, Becauſe it is propheſy'd, (o) that not only the Jews, but alſo all Nations round about them, ſhould ſerve the King of Babylon ſeventy Years. So that theſe ſeventy Years may be counted as the Time and Space ſince the abſolute Monarchy of Babylon, and they are to begin from the Beginning of Nebuchadnezzar's Reign, the firſt Monarch.

Anno 605.

36. It cannot be denied, but another Difficulty occurs, becauſe the Beginning of Nebuchadnezzar's Monarchy is (p) fix'd to be in the third Year of the Reign of Jehoiakim, and not in his fourth. But the Anſwer is, that he began to reign over other Nations in the third Year, but over Jeruſalem in the fourth. So that the ſeventy Years over one might be compleat, but the ſeventy Years over the other might be only current. Or it may be thus anſwer'd, That as theſe two Epochas began, ſo they ended almoſt a Year later. For the Babyloniſh Power ceas'd over other Nations, the very Night that Babylon was taken by Cyrus, and Belſhazzar ſlain; but the Reſtoration of the Jews did not begin, until Cyrus was ſettl'd (q) in full Power over the whole Empire, which took up ſome Time, and after that iſſu'd out his (r) Proclamation for that Purpoſe.

37. There is yet another Difficulty remaining. For (s) in Daniel it is ſaid, that in the third year of Jehoiakim king of Judah came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon unto Jeruſalem, and beſieged it; and it is certain, that he took it, in the ſame Year that he beſieg'd it. But the Words in the Hebrew expreſs it to be in the third year of the kingdom. For the Explaining whereof we muſt have recourſe to (t) the Hiſtory, which is thus: Pharaoh-necho put Jehoahaz in bands at Riblah in the land of Hamath, that he might not reign in Jeruſalem. And Pharaoh-necho made Eliakim the ſon of Joſiah king in the room of Joſiah his father, whom he had ſlain at Megiddo, and changed his name to Jehoiakim. Had the People of the Land been able to have made him King it would have been done immediately; but it being out of their Power, Pharaoh did it when he thought convenient, which was the Year following. So that the Date of his Reign might begin from the Captivity of his Brother; but the Date of his Kingdom, which Daniel mentions, began in the following Year, when he was (t) ſettled in it.

36. At the End of the fourth Year of Jehoiakim King of Judah (u) Daniel and his three Companions betake themſelves to an Auſterity of Life, but once more to be paralell'd in all the Scripture, and that was in John the Baptiſt. But tho' they had refus'd the Court Diet, yet their Countenances did appear fairer and fatter in Fleſh than the reſt, to ſhew, that Man did not live by bread alone, but by an over-ruling Providence.

37. In the fifth Year of Jehoiakim King of Judah, and the ninth Month, (x) upon another Faſt Day Baruch reads the Roll again in the Temple; which being told to the King, he ſends for it, and order'd it to be read before him. Upon which being in a Rage he firſt cuts it in Pieces, and then burns it; which occaſion'd (y) a ſevere Propheſy againſt him, and (z) the Writing of another with many Additions. Anno 604.

38. Toward the End of the fifth Year of Jehoiakim (a) Nabopollaſar the King of Babylon, and Father of Nebuchadnezzar, dies; upon which he haſtens the neareſt Way to Babylon, leaving the Groſs of his Army with the Priſoners and Prey to be brought after him, and ſucceeded his Father in the whole Empire, over which he reign'd three and forty Years, the firſt of which begins from the twenty firſt Day of January following, which is the Babyloniſh Account; from which the Jewiſh Account differs two Years, as reckoning his Reign from the Time in which he was admitted to be a Partner with his Father. From hence we have a double Computation of the Years of his Reign, the Jewiſh and the Babylonian. Daniel being in Babylon follows the latter; but all other Parts of Scripture, which mention him, follow the other.

39. In the Beginning of the ſeventh Year of Jehoiakim, which was the ſecond Year of Nebuchadnezzar according to the Babyloniſh Account, and the fourth according to the Jewiſh Account, at (b) the End of three Years Daniel and his Companions were brought before the King, and receiv'd into Favour. In the ſame Year according to the Babyloniſh, but the fifth according to the Jewiſh Account, Daniel (c) reveal'd to Nebuchadnezzar his Dream, upon which he was advanc'd to great Honour, and made chief of the Governors over all the wiſe Men, and chief Ruler over all the Province of Babylon, and one of the chief Lords of the Council, who always continu'd in the King's Court, he being then about the Age of two and twenty. Upon this he (d) recommended his three Companions, who were accordingly preferr'd to Places of honourable Truſt under him in the ſame Province. Anno 602.

40. The ſame Year (e) Jehoiakim, after he had (f) ſerv'd the King of Babylon three Years, rebell'd againſt him, and enter'd into a Confederacy with Pharaoh-necheh for this Purpoſe. Nebuchadnezzar being engag'd in other Affairs, could not proſecute the War, until the (g) eleventh Year of Jehoiakim's Reign, when his Army being join'd together, beſieg'd him in Jeruſalem. At this Time Jehoiakim, making a Sally upon them, was kill'd with the Sword, and his dead Body was caſt out into the high Way without one of the Gates of Jeruſalem, allowing it no other Burial than that of an Aſs, as (h) the Prophet Jeremiah had foretold, which was to be caſt out into a Place of the greateſt Contempt, there to rot and be conſum'd to Duſt in the open Air. This Captivity happen'd in the ſeventh Year of Nebuchadnezzar, in which it is ſaid, That he carry'd away Captive (i) three thouſand Jews and three and twenty: and the Prophet Jeremiah places this Account with two others of the ſame Nature, becauſe he would mention all the Captives which were carry'd away, and had not been mention'd in any other Part of Scripture. And thus it is diſtinguiſh'd from the Captivity of Jehoiachin in the (k) eighth Year of Nebuchadnezzar, in which he carry'd away above eighteen thouſand. Anno 598.

41. Jehoiakim being dead, is ſucceeded by his Son. He is call'd (l) Jechoniah, or (m) Jehoiachin, both Names ſignifying The LORD ſhall eſtabliſh, the Nominative Caſe being before the Verb in the one and after it in the other. He is alſo call'd (n) Coniah, or The LORD is my Eſtabliſhment. He was no ſooner ſeated on the Throne, but he was tumbled from it. This the Prophet Jeremiah mentions at large in the thirteenth Chapter, where he laments his Fate in (o) very heavy Expreſſions: Mine eye ſhall weep ſore and run down with tears, becauſe the LORD's flock is carried away captive. Say ye to the king, and to the queen, or to the King's Mother, Humble your ſelves, ſit down; for your principalities ſhall come down, even the crown of your glory. How this was fulfill'd, appears only from (f) the Repetition of the Hiſtory. Nebuchadnezzar came againſt the city of Jeruſalem, and his ſervants did beſiege it. And Jehoiachin the king of Judah went out to the king of Babylon, he and his mother, and his ſervants, and his princes, and his officers; and the king of Babylon took him in the eighth year of his reign. And he carried away all Jeruſalem, and all the princes, and all the mighty men of valour, even ten thouſand captives, and all the crafts-men and ſmiths: none remained, ſave the pooreſt part of the people of the land. And he carried away Jehoiachin into Babylon, and the king's mother, and the king's wives, and his officers, and the mighty of the land, thoſe carried he into captivity, from Jeruſalem to Babylon. And all the men of might even ſeven thouſand, and crafts-men, and ſmiths a thouſand, all that were ſtrong and apt for war, even them the king of Babylon brought captive to Babylon. Here the Accompliſhment of the Propheſy is plain; but why it was plac'd ſo early is not eaſy to be determin'd. Perhaps the Reaſon might be, becauſe the laſt (g) Verſe of the foregoing Chapter threatens in general, that GOD would utterly pluck up and deſtroy that Nation; and this is plac'd after it as another Propheſy how this Deſolation ſhould begin. Beſides, in the former Chapters, he (h) frequently taxes them as a fooliſh people, and without underſtanding; and this Chapter refers to the Captivity, where they ſeem branded as ſuch. For tho' the Maſorites render it (i) All the mighty of the land, yet the Text calls them The Fools of the Land. To this may be added, that the twenty ſecond Chapter of the Prophet Jeremiah ſeems to have three Dates. The firſt is in the Beginning of the Reign of Jehoiakim, ſoon after the Death of Joſiah, when (k) all Iſrael, and particularly the Prophet Jeremiah, lamented his unfortunate End; and (l) the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the Valley of Negiddo, where he was ſlain, became a Proverb to ſignify a very great Lamentation. But now (m) Shallum or (n) Jehoahaz the Son and Succeſſor of Joſiah being carry'd away Captive into Egypt, exhorts them to turn the Stream of their Sorrow another Way: (o) Weep not for the dead, or for good King Joſiah now in Peace, neither bemoan him; but weep ſore for Shallum or Jehoahaz, who is carried away; for he ſhall return no more, nor ſee his native country. Upon this the Prophet Jeremiah exhorts King Jehoiakim to Repentance and Amendment, both with Promiſes and Threatnings. But neither this nor the firſt Captivity having any Influence upon him; but his Reſtoration making him more proud and ſecure, the Prophet now denounces (p) only Threatnings which were fulfill'd in the laſt Year of his Reign, when he was (q) bound in Chains to be carry'd as a Captive into Babylon, and had been carry'd away, if (r) his ſudden Death had not prevented it. Upon the Settling of (s) Jehoiachin or (t) Coniah upon the Throne, the Prophet declares the ſame Judgments againſt him, which about three Months after were executed accordingly, and he was carry'd to Babylon. So that his Speaking not only of the Captivity of Jehoahaz, but alſo of Jehoiakim the Father, and Jehoiachin the Son, which were ſo like each other, and happen'd ſo ſoon after, may be the principal Reaſon that they are plac'd together in the ſame Chapter.

Anno 598.

42. Beſides this there is another Propheſy (u) againſt Jehoiachin by the Name of Coniah, in which his Captivity is foretold, and the Failing of Solomon's Houſe in him, almoſt in the ſame Terms with the other. And I will caſt thee out, and thy mother that bare thee into another country, where ye were not born, and there ſhall ye die. This very properly follows what was mention'd before of the Death of his Father, becauſe there was but three Months Diſtance between the one and the other. And thus, when (x) the dead Body of Jehoiakim was caſt out in the day time to the heat, and in the night to the froſt, it was not long before he had none of his Seed to ſit upon the throne of David.

Anno 598.

43. That the three Months of Jehoiachin's Reign are included in the laſt Year of Jehoiakim's or his Father's Reign, is evident, becauſe (y) the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, and the nineteenth of Nebuchadnezzar, do fall in together. And it is alſo ſaid, that (z) when the year was expired, Nebuchadnezzar ſent and brought him to Babylon. In this Captivity (a) Mordecai the Uncle of Eſther was carry'd away out of the Land of Judah; and ſo was alſo the Prophet Ezekiel the Son of Buzi of the Houſe of Aaron; and therefore from thence he dates the Account of his Propheſies, and ſometimes calls it (b) the year of king Jehoiachin's captivity, and ſometimes (c) the year of our captivity.

44. In

44. In Comparing the Story of Jehoiachin there appears one remarkable Scruple: For (d) the Book of Chronicles ſaith, he was eight years old, when he began to reign, and (e) the Book of Kings ſaith, that he was eighteen. Now we muſt not expect Propriety in Expreſſions, which are ſo very different; but the one is to be taken properly, that he was eighteen years old, when he began to reign, and the other that he was the ſon of the eighth year, after ſome other Reckoning. Thus this refers us to the Year, when the firſt Captivity of Judah did begin; for the Beginning of his Reign was in the (f) eighth Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar, which was alſo the eighth of the ſeventy Years Captivity ſo often mention'd. An Inſtance of the ſame Nature we have in Ahaziah, where (g) one Book ſaith, that he was two and forty years old, when he began to reign, and the other (h) only ſaith, that he was two and twenty.

45. But the Prophet Jeremiah having threatned the Deſtruction of Solomon's Houſe, he calls the (i) Earth, Earth, Earth to hear the word of the LORD; that the earthly Kingdom was now to decay, and therefore a Kingdom of another Nature was to be expected. Accordingly he deſcribes this King and Kingdom in (k) the next Chapter; ſo that when he had foretold the Ruin of Solomon's Houſe, and the Failure of the earthly Kingdom in the Houſe of David in the former Chapter, he ſpeaks of the MESSIAH, who ſhould be of his Seed, and the everlaſting Kingdom, which he ſhould govern. And then he pronounceth Woes againſt thoſe curſed Shepherds and Paſtors, who had caus'd the Kingdom to be remov'd from the Seed of David, and brought the Temple of Solomon to Ruin.

46. The following Year Zedekiah is made King, and liv'd a wicked Life, as (l) the Prophet Jeremiah deſcribes him. He was in Reality (m) the Uncle of Jehoiachin his Predeceſſor, and fifteen Years (*) younger than his Brother Jehoiakim, who had reign'd before; and therefore he was (n) call'd Mattaniah, or The Gift of the LORD, as born when his Father was of a conſiderable Age. He is alſo call'd (o) the Brother of Jehoiachin, that is his Kinſman, and (p) his Son, as ſucceeding him in the Throne. When the King of Babylon made him King inſtead of his Nephew, he took a ſolemn Oath, that he would be true and faithful to him; and therefore the King of Babylon chang'd his Name to Zedekiah, or The Juſtice of the LORD, intending thereby to put him in Mind of the divine Vengeance, that would light upon him, if he ſhould break the Oath, which he had ſo ſolemnly taken.

Anno 597.

47. In this firſt Year of (q) the Reign of Zedekiah, when (r) Nebuchadnezzar had carry'd ſo many of the People into Captivity, the Prophet Jeremiah ſaw (s) a Viſion of two Baskets of Figs, the one very good, and the other very bad. The good Figs were a Type of thoſe, who were carry'd away Captives, ſhewing the Care which GOD had over them, and that in due Time they ſhould return; and the bad Figs were a Type of thoſe who ſtay'd behind, and ſignify'd their Deſtruction.

48. As the (t) fourth Year of Zedekiah is call'd the beginning of his reign, for a Reaſon already mention'd; ſo we may take the ſame Expreſſion in other Places in the ſame Senſe. Accordingly in this fourth Year, the Prophet Jeremiah had (u) reveal'd to him the Confuſion which ſhould be brought upon Elam (a Kingdom lying upon the River Ulai, being (x) the Poſterity of Elam the Son of Shem) and the Reſtoration which GOD would give to it, which came to paſs accordingly. For (y) it was firſt conquer'd by Nebuchadnezzar; but afterward joining with Cyrus to conquer thoſe who had conquer'd them, it ſo proſper'd afterward, that Shuſhan, the chief City of that Province, was made the Metropolis of the Perſian Empire, and had the Throne of the Kingdom erected in it. This Propheſy is plac'd ſo far back, that it might be laid with others of the ſame Nature, and the Threatnings againſt all the foreign Nations might be read together. Elam (z) join'd with Babylon againſt Judea, and is therefore join'd here with (a) the Propheſies againſt Babylon it ſelf.

Anno 594.

49. In the Beginning of the Reign of Jehoiakim, Jeremiah was (b) commanded to make Yokes, and Bands, and put them upon his own Neck, in Token of Judah's Subjection to the King of Babylon. This happen'd in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim's Reign. The Prediction was before Nebuchadnezzar was King of Babylon, or the Name of Zedekiah was thought of, as an Heir to the Kingdom of Judah. However the Prophet was farther admoniſh'd, that when ſuch Kings by Name ſhould enjoy their reſpective Kingdoms, and the Edomites,

Moabites,

Moabites, Ammonites, Tyrians, Zidonians and others, ſhould ſend Embaſſadors to Zedekiah, probably to conſult about Shaking off the Babyloniſh Yoke, he ſhould deliver theſe Yokes to them, to be ſent to their reſpective Maſters, as a Token that they muſt certainly be in Subjection, and that their Endeavours to the contrary ſhould be of no Effect, until the Time of their Deliverance came. He is alſo commanded to (c) deliver the ſame Meſſage to Zedekiah. This is the Subject of the twenty ſeventh Chapter, and was in the fourth Year of this King's Reign, as the firſt Verſe of the following Chapter doth plainly date it.

50. For it was the (d) very ſame Year, when Hananiah propheſy'd falſely at Jeruſalem the Reſtoring of the Captivity within two Years, and brake the Yoke, which was upon the Prophet Jeremiah's Neck. This was call'd a Teaching Rebellion againſt the LORD, and for this Crime he is ſtruck dead within two Months.

51. At the ſame Time the Prophet (e) denounces heavy Judgments againſt the Moabites, (f) Ammonites, and (g) Edomites, who propos'd this Confederacy with Zedekiah; and as theſe had in their Turns been utter Enemies to both Judah and Iſrael, ſo he foretels the Judgments of GOD againſt their other Enemies, ſuch as (h) Damaſcus, Kedar and Hazor. If theſe Chapters were not ſpoken at this Time, it is impoſſible to fix them to any certain Year; but they are plac'd where we find them, that all the Propheſies relating to foreign Countries might be laid together. However, what the Prophet did and ſpoke in this Manner had ſuch an Influence upon Zedekiah and the other Kings, that they did not then enter into (i) the League which was propos'd at that Time, until it was ſtrengthen'd by the Addition of the Egyptians and other Nations to it. But what the Prophet ſpoke of theſe Countries, was afterward fulfill'd. For whilſt Nebuchadnezzar (k) lay at the Siege of Tyre, Nebuzaradan march'd againſt the Ammonites, and having deſtroy'd Rabbah their royal City, he carry'd their King and their Princes, and moſt of the chief of the Land, into Captivity; which was done by a juſt Revenge for the Part, which they had in the Murder of Gedaliah the King of Babylon's Governor in the Land of Iſrael. At the ſame Time alſo the other neighbouring Nations, ſuch as the Philiſtines, the Moabites, the Edomites, and the Zidonians ſeem alſo to be haraſs'd and broken by the Excurſions of the Babylonians, and to have all theſe Judgments executed, which not only this Prophet, but (l) Ezekiel alſo had denounc'd againſt them. However the Prophet Jeremiah foretels, that GOD would bring again another captivity both upon (m) Moab and (n) Ammon. This if taken in a literal Senſe is ſuppos'd to be fulfill'd, when (o) Judas Maccabæus and his Brother Jonathan obtain'd ſeveral Victories over the Edomites and Ammonites, and brought them into Subjection; and after that, when Hyrcanus (p) made himſelf Maſter of the Edomites, and forc'd them to embrace the Jewiſh Religion, by which Means they were incorporated into the ſame Nation, and the very Name was ſoon after loſt. Others there are, who interpret it of the Converſion of theſe Nations in the laſt days to the Faith of CHRIST, and ſo ſubmitting themſelves to him.

52. The League being thus broken off, Zedekiah ſends a very ſolemn Embaſſage to Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon by (q) Seraiah and ſeveral others, to aſſure him of their Fidelity, and to prevent all Miſunderſtandings. Thus this Seraiah was a (r) quiet prince, or the chief of thoſe which were ſent to treat of Peace; and went in the behalf of Zedekiah, as the Margin of our Bibles tranſlates it, it being not likely, that he would venture himſelf in Perſon at this Juncture. Jeremiah takes this Opportunity to ſend two Letters to the Jews, who were there in Captivity. Of the firſt he ſeems to ſend a Duplicate, one by (*) Elaſah the Son of Shaphan, and the other by Gemariah the Son of Hilkiah, to perſuade the Jews to frame their Hearts, and compoſe their Minds for the ſeventy Years Captivity, with an Aſſurance, that they ſhould afterward return to their own Land. There were two falſe Prophets there, call'd Ahab and Zedekiah, who withſtood this, and would fain perſuade the People to the contrary; and therefore Jeremiah propheſies of them, that they ſhould be roaſted alive. A third writes to Jeruſalem againſt him, to have him puniſh'd, whoſe Name was Shemaiah; and therefore Jeremiah propheſies againſt him alſo, that he ſhould be puniſh'd in Babylon, and die there.

53. However Jeremiah propheſying of (s) the Return out of Babylon, takes this Occaſion to ſpeak more largely of the Calling home, not only of the two, but alſo of the ten Tribes, to the Kingdom of CHRIST. Now tho' it is uncertain, whether he ſent theſe two Chapters to Babylon with the reſt, yet there is no Doubt, but they lie in their proper Place, where he is foretelling of the People's Return, and makes the one to be an Introduction to the other.

(c) Jer. 27. 12 to the End. (d) Jer. Chap. 28. (e) Jer. Chap. 48. (f) Jer. 49. 1 to 7. (g) Jer. 49. 7 to 23. (h) Jer. 49. 23 to 34. (i) Prideaux, Anno 598. (k) Prideaux, Anno 584. (l) Ezek. Chap. 25. (m) Jer. 48. 47. (n) Jer. 49. 6. (o) Joſephus Jewiſh Antiq. Book 12. Chap. 12. Prideaux, Anno 164. (p) Joſephus *Jewiſh Antiq. 54. The

54. The other Letter, which he ſends to the Jews at Babylon, is a Propheſy (t) of the Deſtruction of the City it ſelf, and frequently intermixes the glorious Deliverances of the Jews. This is laid as the Concluſion of his whole Propheſy, as the greateſt Comfort to his People, and the moſt glorious Deliverance of all. This he delivers to Seraiah the Brother of Baruch, commanding him (u) that when he ſhould come to Babylon, he ſhould read it upon the Banks of Euphrates; and when he ſhould there make an End of Reading it, he ſhould bind a Stone to it, and caſt it into the Middle of the River, to ſignify thereby, that as that ſhould ſink, ſo ſhould Babylon alſo ſink, and never riſe any more: which hath been fully verify'd; for about two thouſand Years are now paſt, ſince Babylon hath been wholly deſolate and without an Inhabitant. Whether Seraiah did according to this Direction, is not recorded. It is probable, that he did not. He might think, that ſuch an Action would abſolutely ſpoil all his Negotiation, and exaſperate both Nebuchadnezzar and Zedekiah againſt him to the higheſt Degree. He might alſo look upon the Words as figuratively and not literally ſpoken; and the Deſtroying ſuch a Letter as this, when the bare Sinking of a Stone would as effectually have repreſented what was intended, might give an Occaſion for ſuch an Interpretation.

55. In the (x) fifth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, which was alſo the fifth Year of Jehoiachin's Captivity into Babylon, and the thirtieth Year from the Finding the Law of Moſes in the Temple, and the great Reformation which follow'd thereupon in the eighteenth Year of King Joſiah, and as may alſo be very well ſuppos'd, in the thirtieth Year of the Age of Ezekiel (he being (y) a Prieſt, and that being (z) the Age when the Prieſts enter'd upon their Function) he was call'd to be a Prophet among the Jews in their Captivity. He was by the River Chebar in Chaldea, where he ſeeth the Heavens open'd, as CHRIST at the ſame Age had the Heavens open'd to him (a) by the River of Jordan. This Year was alſo reveal'd to him the three hundred and ninety Years of GOD's Forbearance of the Houſe of Iſrael, and his forty Years Forbearance with the Houſe of Judah, and the Judgments which GOD would afterward inflict upon both, as they are contain'd in the firſt ſeven Chapters of his Propheſy.

Anno 593.

56. This Year alſo Zedekiah King of Judah having the Proſpect of a grear Aſſiſtance from Egypt, and depending thereon, ſecretly contrives a Rebellion againſt the King of Babylon, and enters into Negotiations for that Purpoſe. The Reaſons of Dating it this Year are firſt, Becauſe the fourth Year of Zedekiah is call'd (b) The beginning of his reign; which ſhews his Condition till now to be unchang'd, and alſo becauſe the Prophet Ezekiel in (c) the next Year pronounceth (d) very terrible Judgments againſt Zedekiah for Violating his Oath and Allegiance to the King of Babylon, and Seeking to Egypt for Help and Strength, that he might rebel againſt him. For in the next Year, which was (e) the ſixth Year of Jehoiachin's and Ezekiel's Captivity, and the ſixth Year of King Zedekiah's Reign, GOD foreſhew'd by Types and Revelations to this Prophet, (f) the Taking of Jeruſalem by the Chaldeans, Zedekiah's Flight from thence by Night, the Putting out his Eyes, and his Impriſonment and Death at Babylon, and alſo the Carrying away of the Jews into Captivity, the Deſolation of their Country, and the many and great Calamities which ſhould befal them for their Iniquities. All which is contain'd between the Beginning of the eighth, and the End of the nineteenth Chapters.

Anno 592.

57. In the (g) ſeventh Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, which was alſo the ſeventh Year of Jehoiachin's and Ezekiel's Captivity, this Prophet had his twentieth and three following Chapters reveal'd to him. In which GOD declares, that he will be conſulted no more by the Elders of Iſrael, but reckons up all their Abominations, and ſpeaks of the Judgments which were now haſtening to come upon them. A (h) Sword is ſharpen'd to be reveng'd on Jeruſalem firſt, and Rabbah afterward; and Nebuchadnezzar is preparing to act againſt them both. It ſeems that the King of Ammon, like Zedekiah, had prov'd a Traitor to the King of Babylon; and this made him (i) in Doubt for ſome Time, which of the two he ſhould firſt fall upon. In the Midſt thereof this Prophet declares, that (k) they ſhould be gather'd by the Goſpel. And (l) tho' the Day of Vengeance was coming on this profane wicked Prince of Iſrael, and he would overturn, overturn, overturn the Crown; yet it ſhould only be till CHRIST ſhould come, whoſe Right it is, and GOD would give it him, ſo that he ſhould (m) reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever, and of his kingdom there ſhould be no end.

58. The next Year being the 124th Sabbatical Year, and the Year before the Siege of Jeruſalem, Zedekiah, the Princes and the People, being terrify'd by the ſad Declarations of theſe two Prophets, make a Shew of a Reformation; and for this Purpoſe they agree (n) to proclaim a Liberty for their Servants, according to (o) the Law of Moſes.

Anno 590.

59. In the ninth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, and of Ezekiel's Captivity, in the tenth Month, and upon the tenth Day of the Month, in the very Depth of Winter, Nebuchadnezzar lays Siege to Jeruſalem. This (p) Day is particularly taken Notice of, as (q) having been a conſtant Day of Faſting for this ſad Occaſion; and alſo (r) becauſe on this very Day Ezekiel was told of it in Chaldea, when by the Type of a boiling Pot was foreſhewn the diſmal Deſtruction, which ſhould thereby be brought upon that People; and by the Parable of a beloved Wife, for whom no Mourning was to be made, was ſhewn, that the Calamity of the Jews for the Ruin of their City and Temple, which was their Delight, ſhould be beyond all Sorrow. However he ſaith in the (s) next Chapter, that GOD would take Vengeance upon the Ammonites, Edomites, Moabites and Philiſtines for their Inſolency upon this Occaſion.

Anno 589.

60. Upon the Incamping of the Chaldeans againſt the City, Zedekiah the King (t) inquires of the Prophet Jeremiah, what would be the Event of this Siege; who tells him, that the Beſiegers would certainly be abſolute Maſters of the City, burn it with Fire, take him Priſoner, and carry him to Babylon, that he alſo ſhould die there, and that there was no Way to eſcape but by an immediate Surrender. This Chapter is put much before its proper Time for a particular Reaſon. In the Chapter immediately before, Paſhur the Son of Immer in the Time of Jehoiakim (u) ſets Jeremiah in the Stocks for Foretelling the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem by the Babylonians; and now (x) Paſhur the Son of Malchiah, in the Reign of Zedekiah, ſeeks to Jeremiah for a Remedy againſt the Babylonians, who had made good his Propheſy ſo far, that they had beſieg'd Jeruſalem. It is very remarkable, that one Paſhur ſhould thus oppoſe Jeremiah's Propheſying, and another ſhould thus aſſert it. And for the better Obſerving thereof, the Chapters which contain theſe two Stories, are plac'd together.

Anno 588.

61. In the Beginning of the tenth Year of Zedekiah, the (y) Prophet Jeremiah being under his Diſpleaſure for what he had mention'd, was ſhut up in Priſon; and whilſt he was there, he (z) purchas'd of Hananeel, his Uncle's Son, a Field in Anathoth, thereby to ſhew, that tho' Judah and Jeruſalem ſhould be laid deſolate, and the Inhabitants led into Captivity; yet there ſhould be a Reſtoration, when Lands and Poſſeſſions ſhould be again enjoy'd by the legal Owners, as in former Times.

62. In this Spring Pharaoh-Hophrah the King of Egypt, according to his League, marches with his whole Army to raiſe the Siege of Jeruſalem. But being willing to enlarge his own Conqueſts, he takes (a) Gaza from the Philiſtines, thereby ſhewing, that he only minded his own Intereſt, without any Regard to his Confederate. This Town lay next to him in his March, being not far from the River Sihor, the Bounds of his own Country, and in the ſouth Part of Paleſtina. But before this (b) the Prophet Jeremiah foretels the Deſtruction of the Philiſtines, not from them, but from others who ſhould come out of the North, as it afterward happen'd, when Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre, as is already mention'd. This Chapter is plac'd immediately after the Propheſy againſt (c) Egypt, as being its next Neighbour, and before (d) the Propheſies againſt other Countries, that they might all lie together.

63. Whilſt Jeremiah was ſhut up in Priſon, he had a (e) gracious Promiſe, that the Captives ſhould return again into their own Land, where they ſhould have a joyful State, and a ſettl'd Government. That CHRIST ſhould come of the Seed of David, who ſhould be both GOD and Man, or The LORD our righteouſneſs. And under him there ſhould be the Continuance of a Kingdom and a Prieſthood. That all this was ſure and certain, and ſhould laſt till Day and Night ſhould come to an End.

64. Jeremiah had not been long in Priſon, but he was releas'd again. Upon which GOD commands him to (f) go once more to Zedekiah with the ſame Meſſage, that the Babylonians, who were now beſieging the City, ſhould certainly take it, and burn it with Fire, that he ſhould be their Priſoner, carry'd to Babylon, and ſhould die there. However he ſhould die a natural Death, and have an honourable Burial; which ſeems to be a Favour granted by the King of Babylon, in Conſideration that he had once been a King like himſelf.

65. Pharaoh-Hophrah King of Egypt minding his own Intereſt more than the diſtreſs'd Condition of Zedekiah, and tarrying to reduce the ſouthern Parts of Paleſtina under his own Subjection, Nebuchadnezzar raiſes the (g) Siege of Jeruſalem to give him Battle, before he advanc'd farther into the Country. And before he went upon this Expedition, he (h) ſent all the Captive Jews, which he had then in his Camp, to Babylon, the Number of which were eight hundred and two and thirty Perſons.

66. The Inhabitants of Judah, thinking that the Chaldeans would return no more to the Siege of Jeruſalem, ſhew their Hypocriſy, and repent of the Covenant of Reformation, which they had made, when they were in Fear of them, and cauſe (i) every Man his Servant, and every Man his Handmaid, whom they had ſet at Liberty, to return again into Servitude, contrary to the Law of GOD, and the Covenant which they had lately enter'd into. For which (k) inhuman and unjuſt Act, and their Breach of the Covenant (l) ſo lately made with GOD, Jeremiah proclaim'd a Liberty to the Sword, and to the Famine, and to the Peſtilence, to execute the Wrath of GOD upon them and their King, and their Princes, and all Judah and Jeruſalem, to their utter Deſtruction.

67. Upon the Departure of the Chaldeans from Jeruſalem, (m) Zedekiah (who ſeems to have ſome Regret) ſends Jehucal the Son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah the Son of Maaſejah the Prieſt, to enquire of the LORD by Jeremiah for himſelf and his People. To whom this Prophet returns an Anſwer from GOD, that the Egyptians, whom they did depend upon, would certainly deceive them, that their Army would return into Egypt without Giving them any Help at all, and that the Chaldeans would again renew the Siege, take the City, and burn it with Fire. Thus the thirty ſeventh Chapter of Jeremiah regularly follows the thirty fourth, the Reaſon of the Interpoſition of the thirty fifth and thirty ſixth having been mention'd already.

68. Whilſt the (n) Chaldeans were yet abſent from Jeruſalem, (o) Jeremiah prepares to retire to Anathoth his native Place, that he might avoid the Siege, which he knew would be renew'd on the Return of the Chaldeans from their Expedition againſt the Egyptians, and puts himſelf on his Journey thither: but as he was paſſing the Gate of the City, that led that Way, the Captain of the Guard ſeiz'd him for a Deſerter, as if his Intentions were to go over to the Chaldeans; upon which he was again put into Priſon in the Houſe of Jonathan the Scribe, where he continu'd for a conſiderable Time.

69. But the Egyptians upon the Coming up of the Chaldeans againſt them, dar'd not to ſtay and engage with ſo numerous and well diſciplin'd an Army, and fluſh'd with Succeſs; for (as the (p) Prophet Jeremiah had foretold) they retir'd again to their own Country, and treacherouſly left Zedekiah and his People to periſh in the War, in which they were now engag'd. Upon this (q) the Prophet Ezekiel reproaches them for their Perfidiouſneſs, in thus becoming a broken Reed to thoſe, whom by Oaths and Covenants they had made to lean and confide on them, and denounces GOD's Judgments upon them to be executed both upon King and People, in War, Confuſion and Deſolation, for the forty Years immediately following, as a Puniſhment for this Crime. And (r) he alſo foretold, that after that they ſhould ſink low, and become a baſe mean People, and ſhould no more have a Prince of their own to reign over them. Which, as (s) the learned Dr. Prideaux obſerves) hath accordingly came to paſs. For not long after the Expiration of the forty Years, they were made a Province of the Perſian Empire, and have been govern'd by Strangers ever ſince. On the Failure of the Perſian Empire, they became ſubject to the Macedonians, and after them to the Romans, and after the Romans to the Saracens, and then to the Mamalukes, and they are now a Province of the Turkiſh Empire.

70. In this Chapter of Ezekiel, which denounceth theſe Threatnings againſt Egypt, there is a viſible Diſlocation. It is dated in (t) the tenth year, the tenth month, and twelfth day of the month; but (u) the three former Chapters are dated in the eleventh Year, the (x) next Propheſy is at a very conſiderable Diſtance, and (y) thoſe which follow, are alſo in the eleventh Year. But the Reaſon of this Miſplacing is eaſy to be apprehended: For firſt, This Propheſy againſt Egypt was in the tenth Year, as moſt properly meeting with it in the very Height of its Pride, and of Jeruſalem's carnal Confidence in it. It ſeem'd to be now on Foot to raiſe the Siege of Jeruſalem, and Jeruſalem with all its Hope did rely upon it. So that at this very Time GOD declares, that it ſhould come to nothing, and the Hope of the Jews ſhould be utterly diſappointed. Secondly, The Reaſon of Setting this Propheſy againſt Egypt, in the tenth Year after the Propheſy againſt Tyre, which was in the eleventh Year, is becauſe Tyre was firſt to be deſtroy'd, and Egypt was to be (z) the Wages of Nebuchadnezzar for Deſtroying Tyre. And that this might be obſerv'd the better, the Threatning of the Deſtruction of Tyre, which was given after but executed before, (g) Jer. 37. 5. (h) Jer. 52. 29. (i) Jer. 34. 10, 11. (k) Jer. 34. 12 to the End. (l) Jer. 34. 10. (m) Jer. 37. 1 to 11. (n) Jer. 37. 11 to 15. (o) Jer. 37. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. is ſet before the Threatning of the Deſtruction of Egypt, which was indeed ſpoken firſt, but executed after the other.

71. The Egyptians being retreated, Nebuchadnezzar (a) returns again to the Siege of Jeruſalem, and Zedekiah (b) ſends for Jeremiah out of the Priſon, to conſult with him what Word he had from GOD concerning the preſent Poſture of his Affairs. To which he found, that there was no other Anſwer, but that he ſhould be deliver'd up to the King of Babylon. However the Prophet ſo far prevail'd at this Time, that he was remov'd out of the publick Priſon to the Priſon of the King's Court, where he had an Allowance of a certain Portion of Bread out of the common Store, till the City was taken.

72. Zedekiah being now reduc'd to the laſt Extremities, ſends (c) again to Jeremiah to enquire farther of him concerning the preſent War. The Chapter, which gives an Account hereof, is plac'd much before its proper Date, for a Reaſon already mention'd. Jeremiah anſwers, that GOD was much provok'd againſt him and his People for their Iniquities, and would therefore fight againſt the City, and ſmite it. That they who continu'd in the City ſhould periſh by the Sword, Famine and Peſtilence, and they who went out to the Chaldeans, ſhould have their Lives given them for a Prey. Several of the Princes and chief Commanders (d) being enrag'd at this Anſwer, preſs the King againſt Jeremiah, as one who weaken'd the Hands of the Men of War and all the People; ſo that he being deliver'd over to them, they caſt him into a Dungeon, where he muſt have periſh'd, if (e) Ebed-melech an Eunuch of the Court had not interceded for him, and ſo deliver'd him thence. For which charitable Act he had (f) a Promiſe ſent him from GOD of Mercy and Deliverance. This Prophecy happen'd before the Taking of the City, tho' it is plac'd after it; becauſe when the HOLY GHOST had ſhew'd the Safety of Jeremiah in the common Deſtruction, he was willing to add the Safety of Ebed-melech according to Jeremiah's Prophecy.

73. After this Zedekiah ſends for (g) Jeremiah into the Temple, and there ſecretly inquires of him; but he could get no other Anſwer from him, than what had been told him before, only an Aſſurance, that if he would immediately deliver up himſelf unto the King of Babylon's Generals, who commanded in the Siege, it might be the Means of Saving both himſelf and the City. Zedekiah inſtead of Hearkening to him was offended at his plain and honeſt Anſwer, and ſo ſends him back to Priſon, and after that conſults no more with him.

74. And now the fatal Year comes on, which compleated the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the Captivity of the Tribe of Judah, in which the three hundred and ninety Years of (h) Ezekiel's Prophecy from the Setting up of the Golden Calf, and the (i) forty Years Forbearance of the Houſe of Judah, under the Preaching of the Prophet Jeremiah, ended. On the firſt Day of this Year the Prophet Ezekiel declares GOD's Judgments (k) againſt Tyre for their Inſulting over the Calamities of Judah and Jeruſalem, foretelling that the ſame Miſeries ſhould be brought upon them by the ſame Nebuchadnezzar, into whoſe Hands GOD would deliver them. On the (l) ſeventh Day of the ſame Month, this Prophet ſpeaks alſo of the Fall of Egypt, that GOD would bring the King of Babylon againſt them, and deliver them into his Hands. And on (m) the firſt Day of the third Month he hath another Prophecy to the ſame Purpoſe, in which he adds, that notwithſtanding their Greatneſs and Pride, they ſhould no more eſcape his avenging Hand, than the Aſſyrian had done before them, who were higher and greater than they. Anno 587.

75. In (n) the ninth Day of the fourth Month, as it is related by the Prophet Jeremiah, and alſo in (o) the Books of Kings and Chronicles, the City of Jeruſalem was taken by the Chaldeans after they had ſat down before it for about the Space of a Year; and ſo reduc'd it not only by the Sword, but alſo by (p) Famine, as (q) the Prophet Ezekiel had foretold. At this Time Nebuchadnezzar (r) gave a particular Charge to Nebuzaradan his General to take Care of Jeremiah, who immediately gives Orders to looſe him out of Priſon, and after that he was treated by them with the utmoſt Reſpect and Eſteem.

76. On the ſeventh Day of the fifth Month (s) Nebuzaradan the General comes to Jeruſalem, plunders the Temple, Palace and other Houſes of the City; and on the tenth Day of the ſame Month he burns all with Fire, overthrows all the Walls and Forts, till he had made it an abſolute Deſolation; and ſends all the Spoils to Babylon, with the chief of the Inhabitants, leaving only the Poor of the Land to be employ'd in Husbandry, over whom he makes Gedaliah the Son of Ahikam their Governor.

77. Upon this ſad Miſery which befel Jeruſalem, the Prophet Jeremiah compoſeth his Lamentations in the moſt doleful and elegant Manner. All the Chapters in this Book, except the laſt, proceed in an Alphabetical Order at the Beginning of each Verſe like the 119th and ſome other Pſalms, and the third Chapter repeats each Letter three Times. Only in all the Alphabets, except the firſt Chapter, there is a viſible Diſlocation between the two Letters ע Ain and פ Pe, by Interchanging of them contrary to the conſtant Method. The Letter ע Ain ſignifies ſeventy; and the Tranſpoſition ſeems to ſhew the Confuſion, in which the Prophet was, when he conſider'd, that this Captivity ſhould laſt ſeventy Years.

78. After Nebuzaradan had thus deſtroy'd this famous City, he reſolves to return to his Maſter, but firſt makes a Rendezvouz at Ramah, where he diſpoſeth of ſome of his Priſoners for Enlargement, particularly Jeremiah and Ebed-melech. He enlarg'd Jeremiah, by the King of Babylon's Orders, who no Doubt heard of all his Propheſies relating to himſelf. And he diſcharg'd Ebed-melech upon the Interceſſion of Jeremiah, and Repreſenting him as the Inſtrument of Preſerving him in the Dungeon. After this he goes forward to Riblah, and there he brings his Captives, being ſeventy two in Number, to Nebuchadnezzar the King, who orders them all to be put to Death. There is a Difference between this Account in the Books of Kings and Jeremiah. The Book of Kings ſaith, that (t) Nebuzaradan took away from Jeruſalem, Seraiah, Zephaniah, three Porters, a chief Officer over the Army, and the chief Secretary of the Army, five Men that were near the King, and ſixty Men of the Land; that is, five out of the Temple, two out of the City, five out of the Court, and ſixty out of the Country; and brought them to Riblah, and there the King of Babylon ſlew them. The Prophet Jeremiah agrees exactly in (u) all the Account but this, that he ſaith, he took away ſeven Men that were near the King; which he did indeed, but ſlew only five of them, for Jeremiah and Ebed-melech eſcap'd, as was mention'd already.

79. In this Captivity (x) Seraiah the High Prieſt was taken and ſlain, ſo that he and Zephaniah the ſecond Prieſt or Sagan came to an End, as fatal as Hophni and Phinehas (y) had done at the Ruin of Shiloh. This Seraiah is ſuppos'd to have been the immediate Father of Ezra, for (z) no other Reaſon but becauſe Ezra is call'd The ſon of Seraiah. But this is very unlikely. If Ezra was born the Year that this Seraiah died, he muſt have liv'd to an extreme Age, ſince an hundred and forty three Years after we find him (a) compleating an Edition of the Law of GOD, by having it fairly written out in the Chaldean Character, and (b) afterward reading publickly in it, and explaining it from Morning to Mid-day; which could hardly be perform'd by any one except in the full Vigour of his Age. Ezra was indeed the Son of Seraiah, and alſo of this Seraiah, and yet there might be four Generations between them. In the ſame Genealogy (c) Azariah is ſaid to be the Son of Merajoth, to avoid a Multiplicity of Names; tho' in (d) the Book of Chronicles there are ſeven Generations between them. And as ſeven were omitted whilſt the Temple was ſtanding, and the High Prieſts were in Eſteem, ſo for the ſame Reaſon we may ſuppoſe others to be omitted, when the Temple was deſtroy'd, and the Office ceas'd.

80. What happen'd in the remaining Part of this unfortunate Year is mention'd by the Prophet Jeremiah (e) at the End of his Propheſies relating to Judah and Jeruſalem, and before thoſe which related to other Nations. The reſt of the Story is this: After Nebuzaradan the General had looſed Jeremiah from his Bonds at Ramah, he gave him free Liberty to go either to Babylon or to Judea, with a Promiſe that he ſhould be taken Care of in either Place. Jeremiah upon (f) the immediate Direction of GOD goes to Judea, to Gedaliah the Governor there. At this Time all thoſe who for Fear of the Chaldeans had taken Refuge among the neighbouring Nations, or hid themſelves in Woods and Deſarts, come alſo to him He aſſures them of his Protection, and ſo they apply themſelves to ſow their Ground, dreſs their Vineyards and do all other Acts of Husbandry.

81. But Iſhmael, one of the royal Family, (g) treacherouſly kills Gedaliah, with a Deſign to make himſelf King, in the ſeventh Month, or about two Months after the Burning of the Temple. This he conceal'd for a little while; and the next Day meeting with fourſcore Men, who came with a religious Deſign to worſhip GOD on the Place, where the Ruins of the Temple ſtood, he (h) craftily drew them to Mizpeh, and there he ſlew them all, except ten Men, who offer'd their Stores to ſave their Lives. Iſhmael fearing that he was not ſtrong enough to keep Poſſeſſion of the Country, takes all the Captives, and reſolves to go over to the Ammonites for Protection. Johanan hearing of this, heads (i) all the Forces that he could get together, overtakes him in his March, and recovers the Captives; ſo that Iſhmael only eſcap'd with eight Men, and fled to the Ammonites. Johanan fearing the Anger of the King of Babylon, reſolves to flee with the Remainder of the Jews into Egypt for Protection. Jere- miah (k) endeavours to diſſuade him from it, with the Promiſe of Safety in their own Country, and threatning their Deſtruction in the other; but all his Endeavours are to no Purpoſe. They all go into Egypt, and carry Jeremiah with them: When they came there, Jeremiah (l) foreſhews by a Type the Conqueſt of Egypt by the Babylonians, as it afterward happen'd ſoon after the Taking of Tyre.

82. The Jews being now ſettl'd in Egypt, fall in a little Time to a common and open Idolatry, the Worſhipping of the Moon, whom they call'd The Queen of Heaven. Jeremiah (m) now tells them, how they were lately made deſolate for their former Crimes of this Nature, and threatens the utter (n) Deſtruction of thoſe, who committed Idolatry in Egypt. The Men who heard him, declare that they would not hearken to what he ſaid, but go on in the ſame Method; they vindicate their Wives for the ſame Crime; their Wives publickly own it, and that it was by the Conſent and Approbation of their Husbands. Upon which he threatens them, that GOD would deſtroy them with the Sword and with the Famine, and only a very few ſhould eſcape to be living Monuments of this Vengeance; and as a Sign of this, Egypt and the King thereof ſhould be deſtroy'd by the King of Babylon, as Judah and her King had been before. There is Anno 586. no certain Time when to date theſe Tranſactions. This might poſſibly have been in the Year after the Jews went to Egypt; for (o) we find them very obſtinate at that Time. However, the Hiſtory is ſet in its proper Place as immediately following the reſt, that all the Propheſies relating to Egypt might come together.

83. In the next Chapter it is ſaid (p) that Baruch had written theſe words at the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the ſon of Joſiah king of Judah. This at firſt View ſeems very unlikely; for the ſix Chapters immediately before are a plain Hiſtory, and could not be written till after the Facts; but the fourth Year of Jehoiakim was eighteen Years before. In Anſwer to this it may be ſaid, That the Hebrew Text may be thus tranſlated, Baruch had written theſe things at the mouth of Jeremiah. That is, All this is the ſame, which Baruch wrote eighteen Years before, as he had it from the Mouth of Jeremiah. Jeremiah utter'd Propheſies to this Purpoſe in the fourth Year of Jehoiakim, that Jeruſalem ſhould be deſtroy'd, that the Land ſhould be left deſolate, and the People carried Captives, and the Vengeance of GOD ſhould follow them, until they did repent and amend. All this we find to be fully accompliſh'd in theſe Chapters. The Deſign thereof is therefore to ſhew the Truth of thoſe things, which that wretched King Jehoiakim would not believe, but (q) burnt the Book in the Fire. And this is the Subject of the other Copy, that (r) Baruch wrote, when the firſt was burnt.

(k) Jer. Chap. 42, and 43. 1 to 8. (l) Jer. 43. 8 to the End. (m) Jer. 44. 1 to 11. (n) Jer. 44. 11 to the End. (o) Jer. 42. 19 to the End, and Chap. 43. 1, 2, 3, 4. (p) Jer. 45. 1. (q) Jer. 36. 22, 23. (r) Jer. 36. 32.

But the fourteenth Year of Hezekiah beginning this Year before Seed Time, the Prophet encourages them in the moſt difficult Times to ſow, that they might reap, and plant Vineyards, that they might eat the Fruit thereof, which they did accordingly. (a) By this we may obſerve, how populous the World might have been long before this Time without a Miracle. For let us ſuppoſe, that there were only three Generations in an hundred Years, and that each Father had two Sons and two Daughters, which is the leaſt that can be ſuppos'd to make an Increaſe. In this Caſe there would be four and twenty Generations from the Departure out of Egypt to this Time. And accordingly from one Man might ſpring a Million of each Sex, as appears by Doubling the Number in each Generation. And as there were 600000 Men, who went out of Egypt, how great might the Number be in the whole World even at that Time?

CHAP. IV.

The CONCLUSION.

AS the Books of the Kings treat of the Kings both of Judah and Iſrael, and the ſecond Book of the Chronicles treats of the Kings of Iſrael according to their natural Succeſſion; ſo there happen but few Diſlocations, and it will be the more eaſy to compare them both together. In which it will be obſervable, that ſome Hiſtories of the Tranſactions of the Kings of Judah are generally repeated in both. Sometimes the Hiſtory is ſhorter in one Book and larger in the other, and ſometimes ſome Hiſtories are wholly omitted in one Book, which are plainly and fully ſpoken to in the other; ſo that the Comparing of both together will the better illuſtrate both, and fix the Method of the whole. Which may be done in the following Order, from the Dedication of the Temple, to the Time when the Prophets began to propheſy, whoſe Writings are preſerv'd in the Books of the Holy Scriptures, which go under their Names. And this will beſt appear, when the whole is rang'd in a Chronological Order after this Manner.

Anno ante CHRISTUM 1007. 1 Kings 7. 1 to 13. which is mention'd before the Story of the Dedication, though it was done after it, that the Account of all Solomon's Buildings might be laid together.

Anno 994. 1 Kings 9. 1 to 10, and 2 Chron. 7. 11 to the End. 1 Kings 9. 10 to 25, and 2 Chron. 8. 1 to 11. At this Time the Book of the Canticles comes moſt properly in, as being the Time, when Solomon wrote it.

1 Kings 9. 25 to the End, and Chap. 10 throughout, and 2 Chron. 7. 12 to the End, and Chap. 8 throughout.

Then the Book of Proverbs comes naturally in, as being the Time, in which Solomon is ſuppos'd to have made the greateſt Part of them.

Anno 988. 1 Kings 10 throughout, and 2 Chron. 9. 1 to 29.

1 Kings 11. 1 to 14. and then the Book of Eccleſiaſtes. Solomon being ſuppos'd to have recover'd himſelf by Repentance after the Admonition of the Prophet there mention'd.

1 Kings 11. 14 to 41.

1 Kings 11. 41, 42, 43, and 2 Chron. 9. 29, 30, 31.

Anno 978. 1 Kings 12. 1 to 25, and 2 Chron. 10 throughout, and Chap. 11. 1, 2, 3, 4.

Anno 977. 1 Kings 12. 25 to the End, and 2 Chron. 11. 5 to the End. At the latter End of this Chapter in the Chronicles Rehoboam's Marriages are reckon'd up, and we are told, that he deſired many wives. As this was the Fault of Solomon, and as Rehoboam was one and forty Years old, when he began to reign; ſo without Doubt he took ſeveral of them during the Life of his Father, and therefore this Story might have come in after, 1 Kings 11. 8. It is probable alſo, that he took ſome of them after the Retreat of Shiſhak. And the Expreſſion, 2 Chron. 11. 17. They ſtrengthned the kingdom of Judah, and made Rehoboam the ſon of Solomon ſtrong, ſeems to direct us to ſuch Affinities, and to a like Expreſſion 2 Chron. 12. 13. where the ſame Story might be added, if there was any Need of a Repetition. However it is very properly plac'd where it is, becauſe the former Verſes ſpeak of his Eſtabliſhment and Proſperity, all which Particulars are now mention'd before the Story of his Declining. And as we are told immediately after, 2 Chron. 12. 1. that he forſook the law of the LORD, and all Iſrael with him, which brought in the following Calamities by Shiſhak King of Egypt; ſo the Mentioning of his many Wives immediately before may teach us to obſerve, that this was the original Cauſe of all the Wickedneſs and Idolatry in the Reign of Rehoboam, in the ſame Manner as it had been before in the Days of his Father Solomon.

Anno 977. 1 Kings Chap. 13, after which follows the eighty eighth Pſalm, which was written by Heman the Ezrahite, when he was grievouſly troubled for the fatal Breach between the Houſe of Iſrael and Judah, and for the Neglect of the Worſhip of GOD occaſion'd thereby, Verſe 18.

Anno 975. 1 Kings 14. 1 to 25, and 2 Chron. 12. 1.

Anno 974. 1 Kings 14. 25 to the End, and 2 Chron 12. 2 to the End. After this follows the eighty ninth Pſalm, which was written by Ethan the Ezrahite, in which he puts GOD in mind of his Promiſe to the Houſe of David, complains that the Events did not anſwer his Expectation, and prays for Deliverance from theſe Troubles.

Anno 962. 1 Kings 15. 1 to 9, and 2 Chron. 13 throughout.

Anno 959. 1 Kings 15. 9 to the End, and 2 Chron. Chap. 14, 15, 16.

Anno 958. 1 Kings Chap. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, and 21. 1 to 41.

Anno 918. After this 1 Kings 22. 41 to 43, and 2 Chron. 20. 31, 32, 33, 34, which contains the ſhort Hiſtory of Jehoſhaphat, and might have been plac'd any where; but it is plac'd plac'd where we find it, becauſe of the following Tranſactions with Ahaziah King of Iſrael.

2 Chron. Chap. 17.

Anno 902. 1 Kings 22. 1 to 41. 2 Chron. Chap. 18, and 2 Kings Chap. 1. which is nearly contemporary with it. For when Jehoſhaphat went to the Battle at Ramoth-gilead, he left his Son Jehoram to govern the Kingdom, and Ahab did the ſame by Ahaziah his Son; ſo that his Fall from the Lattice, and the Battle, happen'd near the ſame Time.

The Stories of Elijah the Prophet in the firſt Book of Kings are plac'd in their proper Order; but the Story of *Elijah*s being taken up into Heaven, 2 Kings Chap. 2. is plac'd before its real Time, that it might be connected with the preceding Story concerning him and Ahaziah in the End of the former Chapter. The true Method and Reaſon of it hath been already mention'd, and therefore needs not to be repeated.

Eliſha ſucceeding Elijah in the Prophetick Office, and the Power of Working Miracles, manifeſts the ſame in the next Chapter, 2 Kings 3. 11 to 20. by Procuring Water for Jehoſhaphat King of Judah, Jehoram King of Iſrael, and the King or Deputy of Edom, after they had gone ſeven Days in the Wilderneſs, and were diſtreſs'd for Want of it; and by the Promiſe of a Victory, which ſucceeded accordingly the next Day. Immediately upon this there follows ſeveral remarkable Stories of Eliſha, 2 Kings Chap. 4, 5. and 6, Verſe 1 to 8. which are not in their proper Order of Time, becauſe the HOLY GHOST would give an Account of all theſe Particulars at once, and leave the others to be related with the reſpective Hiſtories of the Kings of Iſrael and Judah, to which they properly belong, as they are in 2 Kings 6. 8 to the End. Chap. 7, Chap. 9. 1, 2, 3, and Chap. 13. 14 to 22. The true Method is thus:

Anno 902. 2 Kings 3. 1. Ahaziah being ill of his Fall, was unable to manage the Affairs of the Kingdom, and therefore Ahab conſtitutes his other Son Jehoram to act as his Viceroy in his Abſence. Jehoſhaphat alſo appoints his Son Jehoram to act in the ſame Manner.

2 Chron. 21. 1, 2, 3, 4. Jehoram Viceroy of Judah immediately upon this deſtroys all his Brethren.

2 Chron. 21. 12, 13, 14, 15. Upon this Elijah writes him a terrible Letter, threatning him with a ſore Diſeaſe, which is plac'd at the End of his Reign, that the Propheſy and the Accompliſhment might be read together.

2 Kings Chap. 2. Soon after this Elijah is tranſlated up into Heaven, and Eliſha begins to work Miracles.

2 Kings 4. 1 to 18. Eliſha works more Miracles, and promiſes a Son to the Shunammite.

Anno 899. 2 Kings 4. 38 to the End. Chap. 5, 6, 7. Eliſha works more Miracles.

Anno 897. 2 Kings 4. 18 to 38. 2 Kings 8. 1, 2. The Shunammite's Son is reſtor'd to Life. This is plac'd ſo, that the whole Story thereof may be read together.

Anno 897. 2 Kings 8. 16, 17, 18, 19. 2 Chron. 21. 5, 6, 7. Jehoſhaphat makes Jehoram Viceroy of Judah again.

2 Kings 3 4 to the End. Upon this Jehoſhaphat takes Eliſha with him into the Field, and goes with the Kings of Iſrael and Edom againſt the Moabites. This is plac'd ſo near, that it may lie nearer to the other Acts of Jehoſhaphat, mention'd in the latter End of the other Book, and might not be mix'd with the Acts of his Son Jehoram.

Anno 896. 2 Chron. Chap. 19. Jehoſhaphat at his Return viſits his Kingdoms.

Anno 895. 2 Chron. 20 throughout. Jehoſhaphat obtains a Victory over the Moabites, Ammonites, and others, and promotes a foreign Trade.

Anno 894. 2 Kings 8. 20, 21, 22. 2 Chron. 21. 8, 9, 10, 11.

Anno 893. 2 Chron. 21. 16, 17.

Anno 892. 2 Kings 8. 23, 24. 2 Chron. 21. 18, 19, 20.

Anno 890. 2 Kings 8. 3, 4, 5, 6. and 2 Kings 8. 7 to 16.

2 Kings 8. 25 to the End, and 2 Chron. 22. 1, 2, 3, 4.

2 Kings 9 to Verſe 29. 2 Chron. 22. 5 to 10.

2 Kings 9. 29 to the End, and Chap. 10. 1 to 15.

Anno 889. 2 Kings 11. 1, 2, 3. This is poſtpon'd, that the Hiſtory of Jehu might be taken in all at once in the former Chapter, 2 Chron. 21. 10, 11, 12.

Anno 888, and 887. 2 Kings 10. 15 to 35.

Anno 883. 2 Kings 11. 4 to the End, and 2 Kings 12. 1, 2, 3. 2 Chron. 23 throughout, and 24. 1, 2, 3.

Anno 862. 2 Kings 12. 4, 5, 6. 2 Chron. 24. 4 to 10. After this comes the Death of Jehu, 2 Kings 10. 35, 36. which was plac'd before in the Hiſtory of his Life.

Anno 861. 2 Kings 12. 6 to 17, and 2 Chron. 24. 10 to 15. Jehoahaz ſucceeds Jehu, 2 Kings 13. 1, 2.

Anno 858. 2 Kings 13. 3 to 8.

Anno 857. 2 Kings 13. 10 to 14.

Anno 845. 2 Chron. 24. 17 to 23. 2 Kings 13. 1, 8, 9.

Anno 844. 2 Kings 12. 19, 20, 21. 2 Chron. 24. 23 to the End.

Anno 843. 2 Kings 14. 1 to 8, and 2 Chron. 25. 1, 2, 3, 4. 2 Kings 13. 22, 23, 24.

Anno 841. 2 Kings 13. 14 to 20.

Anno 840. 2 Kings 13. 20, 21.

Anno 839. 2 Kings 13. 25. The Reaſon why all theſe Texts are not plac'd in an exact Chronological Order, is for the better Connexion of the Hiſtory.

BOOK

CHAP. I.

From the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem to the Birth of CHRIST.

ALL (a) our lateſt and beſt Chronologers agree, that from the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, the Burning of the Temple, and the Captivity of the Jews, in the eleventh Year of the Reign of Zedekiah, and the ſeventeenth Year of Nebuchadnezzar according to the Babylonian Account, to the Birth of CHRIST according to the Vulgar Account, there were 588 Years, and in this they agree with the Canon of Ptolemy, which is the ſureſt Meaſure of Time, in all thoſe Caſes where the Scriptures are ſilent. And as they reckon this Number to the Year of CHRIST 1, whoſe Julian Period is 4714; ſo we may reckon 587 Years to the Year of CHRIST 00, whoſe Julian Period is 4713.

2. This Space of Time is divided into two Parts. The firſt Part contains the Space from the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem to the End of the Scripture Hiſtory of the Old Teſtament, or the laſt of the Prophets, or Malachi, being (b) about 160 Years, and the other begins from thence, and ends at the Birth of CHRIST, which contains about 427 Years.

3. To begin with the firſt of theſe: In the firſt Year of the Captivity of Jehoiachin and Ezekiel, and the eighteenth Year of Nebuchadnezzar King of Babylon, in the tenth Month, and the fifth Day of the Month, there (c) comes a Perſon from Jeruſalem to the Prophet Ezekiel then in Babylon, giving him an Account of the Manner how the City was taken and burnt, and the Condition of the Jews at that Time. This was almoſt a Year and an half after the Fact, ſo that we cannot ſuppoſe it to be the firſt Time that the Prophet heard of it; tho' it might be the firſt Time that any one of thoſe, who were left behind, came afterward to Babylon, and diſcours'd with him on this Subject. This Meſſenger is ſaid to be one who had eſcaped out of Jeruſalem, and therefore it is probable, that he came from thence after the Murder of Gedaliah, when Johanan had driven Iſhmael out of the Land, and was reſolving to go into Egypt. Upon this his Mouth was opened again to propheſy to his own People, which he had not done before ſince the Day that Nebuchadnezzar firſt laid Siege to Jeruſalem, tho' he had propheſy'd many heavy Calamities againſt other Countries, as appears in the former Chapters. In this Chapter he propheſies the utter Deſolation of thoſe who were then in the Land, and herein he ſeems to contradict the Prophet Jeremiah, who (d) propheſy'd Safety to them who dwelt in Judea, and Deſtruction to thoſe who went into Egypt. In Anſwer to which it muſt be conſider'd, that this Propheſy might be ſpoken before Johanan and the Forces went into Egypt; and tho' he propheſies of the Deſolation of thoſe who were then in their own Country, yet he doth not ſay that it ſhould happen in their own Country, but it might be fulfill'd in Egypt. Beſides, he propheſies againſt thoſe who (e) ſtood upon their ſword, and reſolv'd to defend themſelves by Force of Arms; who claim'd a Right to the Land from their Father Abraham, independent of any other, and that the Land was given to them for an inheritance; and therefore the Propheſy might be fulfill'd upon them when they were in Egypt, tho' the poor People of the Land (who apply'd themſelves to Husbandry, ſubmitted to the King of Babylon, and intermeddled not in State Affairs) were in Peace and Quiet, according to the Propheſy of Jeremiah. However, the Prophet Jeremiah propheſy'd only Safety to Johanan and his Forces, if they ſtay'd in the Land of Canaan, but ſaid nothing of the reſt. And therefore when they went to Egypt, the Promiſe was of no Effect, but they were afterward deſtroy'd by Nebuchadnezzar, as he told them; and four Years after their great Captivity, the poor Remainder of the Land were alſo carry'd to Babylon by the ſame Monarch: and tho' their Perſons might be ſafe, yet their Land was made deſolate of its former Inhabitants, which is all that the Prophet Ezekiel mentions.

4. In the ſame Year the Prophet Ezekiel (f) had a Propheſy againſt Egypt, on the firſt Day of the laſt Month, and (g) another to the ſame Purpoſe on the fifteenth Day of the ſame Month. The Diſlocation of this Chapter is eaſily ſeen; for the Chapter already mention'd, which follows it, was dated in the twelfth Month, and this in the tenth of the ſame Year. But the Reaſon of it is very plain; becauſe there are ſeveral Propheſies againſt Egypt and other Countries immediately before; and this is alſo brought to them, that they may all lie together.

5. We may therefore ſuppoſe, that it was very early in the Spring, or rather in the Winter, that Johanan the Son of Kareah, and the People that were left, fearing the King of Babylon, becauſe of the Murder of Gedaliah, departed from Mizpah to (h) fly into the Land of Egypt, and came to Bethlehem in their Way thither. Here they (i) ſtopp'd for ſome Time, and conſulted the Prophet Jeremiah (whom they had carried with them) about their intended Journey, deſiring him to inquire of GOD concerning them, who after ten Days receiv'd an Anſwer, aſſuring them of Safety in Judea, and Deſtruction if they went into Egypt. But all this had no Effect with them. For they purſu'd their firſt Reſolution, and (k) took Jeremiah and Baruch, and carry'd them with them. Upon this the Prophet (l) when he came thither, foretels by a Type the Deſtruction of the King of Egypt, and the Conqueſt of the Country by the Babylonians. All which happen'd within twenty Years after, (m) exactly as it had been foretold.

6. The Jews, who went into Egypt, gave themſelves wholly up to Idolatry, (n) worſhipping the Moon under the Title of the Queen of Heaven, and the other falſe Deities of the Land, and burning Incenſe to them without any Regard to the LORD their GOD. The Women make Cakes for ſuch a Purpoſe, and declare that their Husbands were privy to it; and the Men vindicate their Wives in this Practice, and teſtify their Reſolution of Going on as they had began. The Prophet Jeremiah cries aloud againſt them; but all being of no Effect, the (o) Word of the LORD comes to him, declaring their utter Deſtruction by the Sword and by the Famine, except only ſome few, who ſhould make their Eſcape into the Land of Judah. And it was alſo declar'd as a Sign thereof, that Pharaoh-hophra King of Egypt ſhould be given into the Hand of his Enemies, in the ſame Manner as Zedekiah had been given into the Hands of Nebuchadnezzar; and then they might be aſſur'd, that all thoſe Words, which GOD had ſpoken againſt them, ſhould be fulfill'd upon them. But all this working no Reformation, GOD ceas'd to ſtrive with them in this Manner; and ſo we hear nothing more in Scripture of the Prophet Jeremiah.

7. About the ſame Time Nebuchadnezzar return'd to Babylon, with the Spoils which he had taken, and out of them he ſoon after (p) made the Golden Image in Honour of Bel his God, which he ſet up in the Plains of Dura. The Refuſing to worſhip it, was the Cauſe that Shadrach, Meſhach and Abed-nego were caſt into the burning fiery Furnace; but upon their miraculous Preſervation they were advanc'd higher in the Province of Babylon, and Nebuchadnezzar publiſh'd a Decree, that no one, upon Pain of Death, ſhould ſpeak againſt the GOD, who had thus deliver'd them. Anno 585.

8. Soon after this we may ſuppoſe, that the Prophet Ezekiel had the thirty fourth and five following Chapters reveal'd to him. They are upon different Subjects, and therefore may be ſuppos'd to be penn'd at different Times; however we may take them at large to have been wrote between the twelfth Year of the Captivity of Jehoiachin, which was the Date of the thirty third Chapter, and the five and twentieth Year of the ſame, which was the Date of the fortieth. They all contain Comfort to the Jews, their be- Anno 584. to 572.

9. In the three and twentieth Year of the Reign of Nebuchadnezzar, according to the Jewiſh Account, whilſt he lay at the Siege of Tyre, he ſent Nebuzaradan the Captain of his Guard with Part of the Army to invade the Land of Iſrael, and revenge the Death of Gedaliah, who ſeiz'd on all the Race of Iſrael that he could meet with, made them Captives, and ſent them to Babylon; ſo that in the Midſt of all, their Lives were preſerv'd, and they periſh'd neither by Sword nor by Famine, as they afterward did, who went into Egypt. But they all (q) amounted to no more than 745 Perſons, the reſt being all fled away before. So that here is the laſt Blow given to the Jews by the Babylonians; and Judea and Jeruſalem is in full and complete Captivity: At which Time we may ſuppoſe, that the Prophet Ezekiel compos'd the hundred and thirty ſeventh Pſalm, which deſcrib'd the Poſture, Sorrow and Scorn of theſe captiv'd People; and withal, foretels the Deſtruction of Babylon at the appointed Time, and alſo of the Edomites, who acted their Parts in this diſmal Tragedy. Anno 583.

10. In the five and twentieth Year of the Captivity of Jehoiachin and Ezekiel, and the fourteenth from the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem in the eleventh Year of Zedekiah, GOD ſhews this Prophet the Viſion, which he deſcribes in his nine laſt Chapters, of a new Temple bigger than all the old Jeruſalem, and a new Jeruſalem bigger than all the Land of Canaan. Theſe very Dimenſions ſhew, that theſe things cannot literally but muſt ſpiritually be underſtood of the Goſpel Times, when both Jews and Gentiles ſhall be call'd, and as the Prophet Iſaiah (r) ſpeaks more clearly, when the mountain of the LORD's houſe ſhall be eſtabliſhed and exalted above the hills, and all nations ſhall flow unto it. Anno 573.

11. The following Year, Nebuchadnezzar made himſelf Maſter of Tyre, after a Siege of thirteen Years Continuance, where he lay (s) till every head was bald, and every ſhoulder peeled, by the Length and Hardſhip of the War. The Prophet Ezekiel hath another Propheſy againſt Egypt, upon (t) the firſt Day of the next Year, or in the Beginning of the Spring, in which he promiſeth Nebuchadnezzar the Spoils of Egypt (as a Recompence for his hard Service) which he conquers the ſame Year with little or no Oppoſition. At this Time moſt of the Jews, who had fled thither, fell into his Hands. Many of them he ſlew, and carry'd others Captives with him into Babylon. The few that eſcap'd, ſav'd themſelves by Fleeing out of Egypt, and afterward ſettl'd in their own Land at the End of the Captvity; and thus their Deſolation ſpoken of by (u) the Prophet Jeremiah was fully accompliſh'd. This is alſo the laſt Propheſy, which we have of the Prophet Ezekiel. And tho' in Order of Time it ſhould be plac'd at the End of the Book; yet it is plac'd in the Middle, that all the Propheſies againſt Egypt might come together, and the Book might conclude with thoſe which were laſt to be fulfill'd, and contain'd a more glorious Subject. Anno 572. Anno 571.

12. Two Years after this Nebuchadnezzar being return'd from his Egyptian Expedition to Babylon, had there the Dream of (x) the wonderful great Tree, and the Cutting down thereof, which (as Daniel interpreted it) ſignify'd ſuch a Diſorder in his Senſes, that he abandon'd all Company, and liv'd in the open Fields for the Space of (y) almoſt ſeven Years, at the End of which his Underſtanding returning to him, he was reinſtated in his Kingdom, and by a publick Decree he (z) acknowledg'd GOD's Almighty Power in his Puniſhment, and magnify'd the divine Mercy in his Reſtoration. Anno 569. Anno 562. Anno 561.

13. After this Nebuchadnezzar liv'd but one Year, and died in the (a) ſeven and thirtieth Year of the Captivity of Jehoiachin King of Judah, and Evil-merodach coming to the Throne, releas'd him out of Priſon, and entertain'd him at his Table as long as he liv'd. And as this King reign'd but two Years, ſo we may conclude, that either this, or the following Year, was the Year in which Jehoiachin died. Anno 560. Anno 559.

14. After Evil-merodach ſucceeded Nerigliſſar, and then Belſhazzar. In the firſt Year of his Reign (b) Daniel hath a Viſion of the four Monarchies under the Repreſentation of four Beaſts; and after that he had a Viſion of the Deſtruction of the (c) Perſian Empire by Alexander the Great, repreſented to him in the ſame Manner, in the third Year of the ſame King's Reign, under the Repreſentation of a Ram and an Hegoat. ginning ginning of the Book, and the prophetical Part in the End.

15. In the ſeventeenth or laſt Year of the Reign of Belſhazzar, he was beſieg'd in Babylon; and very much confiding in the Strength of the Place, he order'd the Veſſels to be brought before him, which had been taken away from the Temple at Jeruſalem, and upon this Occaſion he (d) prais'd their own Pagan Deities, as the Cauſe of all their Proſperity. Upon this a Hand-writing on the Wall put him into a great Conſternation, which Daniel interpreted to foreſhew the Loſs of his Kingdom. Accordingly he was (e) ſlain the ſame Night, and Darius the Mede is ſaid to have taken the Kingdom; ſo that the Government of it is ſometimes attributed to Darius and ſometimes to Cyrus. The Caſe was this: Darius was the (f) Uncle of Cyrus, and had in his own proper Right the ſupreme Dominion of Media. Cyrus was a Perſian by his Father, but the Nephew of Darius King of Media by his Mother; and he joining his Uncle with an Army of Perſians, which came to his Aſſiſtance, was made the General of both, and ſo commanded at the Siege of Babylon. When this City was taken by (g) Cyrus, as long as Darius his Uncle liv'd, he allow'd him a joint Title with himſelf in the Empire, becauſe it was all gain'd by his Valour, and out of Deference to him yielded him the firſt Place of Honour in it. So that the whole Power of the Army, and the chief Conduct of all Affairs, being ſtill in the Hand of Cyrus, he only was look'd upon as the ſupreme Head of the Empire, which he had erected, and therefore there is no Notice at all taken of Darius in the Canon of Ptolemy. But immediately after the Death of Belſhazzar (who is there call'd Nabonadius) Cyrus is plac'd as the next Succeſſor. However Cyrus being abſent from Babylon two Years in his Syrian, Egyptian, and other Expeditions, according to the Scripture Account the two firſt Years from the Death of Belſhazzar is attributed to Darius the Mede, and the following Years to Cyrus the Perſian.

Anno 538.

16. As ſoon as Cyrus had ſettl'd his Affairs at Babylon, he (h) went into Perſia, and on his Return thro' Media he marry'd the Daughter of his Uncle Darius, having with her the Reverſion of the Kingdom of Media after her Father's Death; by which Means the Medes and Perſians were united into one Empire. Upon this Darius and Cyrus return to Babylon, and there conſulted together for the Settling of the whole Empire; and having (i) divided it into an hundred and twenty Provinces, they diſtributed the Government of them among thoſe, who had born with Cyrus the chief Burden of the War, and had deſerv'd beſt from him. Over theſe were appointed three Preſidents, who conſtantly reſiding at Court were to receive of them from Time to Time an Account of all Particulars relating to their reſpective Governments, and ſend back to them the King's Orders on all Occaſions. Over theſe Daniel was made the firſt, which drew upon him the Envy of the other two, and ſeveral of the Governors conſulted together and laid that Snare for him, which caſt him into the Lions Den. But he being deliver'd from thence by a Miracle, this malicious Contrivance ended in the Deſtruction of all its Authors, and Daniel was immediately ſettl'd in the Favour of Darius and Cyrus, and proſper'd greatly in their Time, which was as long as he liv'd.

Anno 537.

17. This Deliverance of Daniel from the Lions Den, made him think more ſeriouſly of the approaching Deliverance of the Jews from their Captivity; and therefore comparing what was ſaid in (k) the Prophet Jeremiah, that they ſhould continue in this State for ſeventy Years, and finding that the Time was now expiring, he (l) earneſtly prays to GOD that he would remember his People, and grant Reſtoration to Jeruſalem, and make his Face to ſhine again upon the holy City, and the Sanctuary, which he had plac'd there. Upon this he had an Aſſurance given him by the Angel Gabriel, not only of the Deliverance of Judah from their temporal Captivity under the Babylonians, but alſo of a much greater Redemption, which GOD would give his Church from their ſpiritual Captivity under Sin and Satan; and after this the Deſtruction of the Legal Temple by the Romans, to make Way for the Evangelical. For the Accompliſhment of which, the Angel fixes ſeventy Weeks in general, or four hundred and ninety Years of Chaldean Times, to begin (m) from the commandment to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem. Theſe ſeventy Weeks are again divided into ſeven weeks, or 49 Years, threeſcore and two weeks, or 434 Years or Times, and one week, or ſeven Years or Times, which is alſo divided into two equal Parts, each conſiſting of about three Years and an half. This is allow'd to be the cleareſt Propheſy concerning the Coming of the MESSIAH, and (n) his Cutting off, as it is expreſly call'd, of any which we have in the Old Teſtament. It fixes ſo many Chronological Periods, and is ſo full for the Confutation of the Jews, and the Confirmation of Chriſtians, that there is a Neceſſity to ſay ſomething to it on this Occaſion.

and

18. The Date from whence this Epocha of Years is to begin, is expreſs'd in theſe Words, (o) Know therefore, and underſtand, that it ſhall commence from the going forth of the commandment to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem. But concerning the Time when this Date began there are various Opinions, becauſe there are four Commandments.

19. The firſt Command is the Decree of Cyrus for the Building of the Temple, when the ſeventy Years of the Jewiſh Captivity were juſt ended, according as the Prophet Iſaiah (p) had ſpoke of him by Name almoſt two hundred Years before. The Hiſtory hereof is (q) fully related by Ezra in theſe Words. Now in the firſt year of Cyrus king of Perſia (that the word of the LORD by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled) the LORD ſtirred up the ſpirit of Cyrus king of Perſia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it alſo in writing, ſaying, Thus ſaith Cyrus king of Perſia, The LORD GOD of heaven hath given me all the kingdoms of the earth, and he hath charged me to build him an houſe at Jeruſalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? His GOD be with him, and let him go up to Jeruſalem, which is in Judah, and build the houſe of the LORD GOD of Iſrael (he is the GOD, which is in Jeruſalem). And whoſoever remaineth in any place where he ſojourneth, let the men of his place help him with ſilver, and with gold, and with goods and with beaſts, beſides the free-will offering for the houſe of GOD that is in Jeruſalem. This at firſt View looks ſo clear, that the learned Dr. Lightfoot (r) aſſerts from hence, That from the Return of the Jews out of Babel to the Death of CHRIST are 490 Years, and he adds, That it needeth as little to confirm it, as to tell that ſeventy times ſeven is four hundred and ninety. But ſince it is evident that there are 568 Years from the Date of this Proclamation to the Death of CHRIST, this Opinion hath been generally and with good Reaſon rejected.

20. The ſecond Commandment, was from the third Year of the Reign of Darius the Son of Hyſtaſpes, when upon (s) a Search made, the Decree of Cyrus, dated ſeventeen Years before for the Building of the Temple, was found, and therefore he not only confirm'd it, but alſo gave an Order for the Compleating of it. But this was only a Subſequent of the former; and ſince neither the ſixty ninth or ſeventy Weeks of Years ended with any remarkable Occurrence, it was never taken to be the Date of this Epocha.

21. The third Commandment was dated in the ſeventh Year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, at which Time he gave a Commiſſion to Ezra, that he and all the Jews which were in his Kingdom might go up to Jeruſalem, and ſettle all the Service of the Temple, and defray a conſiderable Part of the Charges out of his royal Revenue. From this Time to the Death of CHRIST are exactly 490 Years; ſo that the learned Dr. Prideaux dates it from this Time, and hath (t) given us a large Diſſertation on this Subject; and he hath the general Stream of all Writers on this Subject concurring with him. Anno 458.

22. Againſt this Opinion there are two Objections. Firſt, That it ought to commence from (u) a commandment to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem, which muſt ſignify either the City, or the Temple: Now in all this Commiſſion here is no Command for either, but only to ſettle the Service there; neither do we find, that Ezra was any way concern'd in any Building when he came thither, but only acted as a Prieſt and a Reformer of their Religion; and Dr. Prideaux himſelf tells us, that theſe Words to reſtore and build Jeruſalem are not to be underſtood literally, but figuratively, for the Reſettling of the State of the Jews, as well the political as eccleſiaſtical, and the Reſtoring of both according to the Law of Moſes. The Command for Building the Temple was given 78 Years before, and the Command for the Building of the City was given 13 Years after. And ſecondly, This makes ſeventy full Weeks from the Date of this Command to the Crucifixion of our bleſſed SAVIOUR, whereas he, who obſerves the Text, will find, that there are but (x) ſeven Weeks, and (y) threeſcore and two weeks, or ſixty nine Weeks in all between the one and the other, and that (z) the laſt Week related to ſomething, which was to follow after it.

23. The fourth or laſt Commandment was that of (a) Artaxerxes Longimanus to Nehemiah, in the twentieth Year of his Reign, and thirteen Years after the other, upon this Occaſion. Nehemiah (b) was the Cupbearer to this King, when being inform'd by ſome who came from Judah, that the Walls of Jeruſalem were broken down, and the Gates were burnt with fire, he mourned, faſted and prayed before GOD for this ſad Calamity. When he went in afterward to wait on the King, according to Cuſtom, the King perceiv'd his Sadneſs, and ask'd him the Reaſon of it. Upon this he tells the King the whole Truth. The King gives him Leave to go to Jeruſalem, and to repair whatever was deficient; ſo that he immediately goes thither, and encourages the Jews, who proceed with all poſſible Unanimity, to repair and build the Walls, which (c) were put in a Poſture of Defence, in two and fifty Days, and then they proceed to rebuild the Towers and the Streets, and repair the Temple, which took up more time, becauſe they were not in ſo much Haſte. From this Date the learned Biſhop Lloyd the late Biſhop of Worceſter began the Date of Daniel's ſeventy Weeks. This he makes to conſiſt alſo of 490 Years; and for this Purpoſe he takes the Space of 69 Weeks, which in the Text is divided into ſeven Weeks and ſixty two Weeks, for the Space of Time between the Date of this Commiſſion and the Crucifixion of our SAVIOUR, and makes the laſt Week to refer to the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the Temple by the Romans almoſt forty Years after. According to this Account there will be four hundred eighty three Years in this Epocha of ſixty Weeks; but there really were but four hundred and ſeventy five. To ſolve this Difficulty he ſaith, that we muſt not reckon by Julian Years conſiſting of three hundred ſixty five Days and a Quarter, but by the antient Chaldean Year, which (d) conſiſted only of three hundred and ſixty Days, and then every thing agrees exactly as he hath ſtated it. For the Supporting of this Expoſition, there are (e) three Rules laid down to be obſerv'd in a Work of this Nature. Firſt, One Place of Scripture muſt never be ſo interpreted, as that by the Conſequence of, or Inferences from it, the ſame ſhall by ſuch Expoſition or Inference be made to oppoſe another. Secondly, Expreſs Characters in the Text muſt always cloſely be adher'd to, and expounded as given in the Letter of them, unleſs there appears very evident Cauſe for the contrary. But eſpecially they muſt be always ſo expounded, when other Scriptures do expreſly point out and immediately warrant ſuch an Expoſition. And thirdly, The Canon of Ptolemy, as it ought ever to be the Chronologer's Guide in Point of Time, coincident with Scripture Times in any Scripture Expoſition; ſo it ought to be a Rule to him once and always in the Chronological Expoſition of the Propheſy before us. And as theſe are Rules, which no one can reject; ſo according to them the Expoſition of this learned Prelate will bear the Teſt.

Reaſon

24. However it muſt be own'd, that there are ſome Objections againſt it. The firſt is, that for above two hundred Years before Daniel ſaw this Viſion, the Chaldeans had us'd a Year of 365 and not of 360 Days, which began from the Year of Nabonaſſar: and therefore allowing that Daniel counted by Chaldean Years; yet he ought to count by the Years then in Uſe. In Anſwer to this, we find that Daniel hath two different Accounts in his Book, one of theſe he calls Times both in that Part of the Book which is written in (f) Hebrew, and the Part which is written in (g) Chaldee, and the other he calls (h) Years. This Time was the Space of the antient Chaldean Year, or 360 Days; but the Word which ſignify'd a Year was the (i) Revolution of the Sun to the ſame Point of the Ecliptick, which then was ſuppos'd to be in the Space of 365 Days. Now Daniel mentioning only ſeventy Weeks, or ſo many Times ſeven, and not having particularly expreſs'd either Times or Years, we are at Liberty to interpret it of either, according as it will beſt ſuit with the Events there foretold. To this it is farther objected, that ſuppoſing they went according to theſe antient Chaldean Years, yet the Chaldeans once in ſix Years added an intercalary Month, that ſo the Year might begin at the ſame Seaſon; and therefore this Account muſt alſo take in theſe Months according to their conſtant Way of Reckoning. But this is denied in this Caſe, becauſe in a long Series of Time ſuch a Year as this their Time would be the ſame with their Year or Revolution; whereas in this Book it is mention'd as ſomething of a diſtinct Nature from the other. And that this Space, according to Daniel's Reckoning, conſiſted of twelve Months, each Month having only thirty Days, or of 360 Days, without the Addition of five Days in a Year, or a Month in ſix Years, will be evident from the Expreſſion which he uſeth (k) of A Time, and I am prevented in this Matter by a far better Hand; and the Reader will be ſo far from a juſt Cauſe of Complaint for my Omitting it, that he is like to be a greater Gainer upon that Account. A very Reverend and Learned Prelate of this Church, who did many Years ago take this Argument upon himſelf, hath given me Leave to aſſure the Reader, that he will finiſh it. This Prelate his Lordſhip aſſur'd me was Dr. Lloyd the late Biſhop of Worceſter; ſo that it was what he had long labour'd in, and to which he had given the finiſhing Stroke. It is publiſh'd in Marſhall's Chronological Tables, and appears to be every Way becoming ſo great an Author. (e) Marſhall's Treatiſe, Introduction Page 13. two Times, and half a Time. This (l) St. John ſometimes uſes, and being the beſt Commentator thereon, he calls it ſometimes (m) forty and two months, and at other Times, (n) one thouſand two hundred and ſixty days, allowing each Day for a Year. If then this is Daniel's Way of Reckoning in the larger Space of 1260 Days, each Day ſignifying a Time, we may be allow'd to put the ſame Conſtruction upon the ſeventy Weeks, or the 490 Times, which he himſelf alſo mentions. Beſides, that the Chaldean Word זמן, and the other Word עדן, which anſwers to the Hebrew Word עת, doth ſignify a determinate Quantity of Time, and muſt not be taken in Daniel for an indefinite Space, appears from what he ſaith (*) of the four Empires, they had their dominion taken away, but their lives were prolonged for a ſeaſon and a time. Here both the Words are us'd, and if they ſignify only as we tranſlate them, nothing can be more obſcure. But if one of theſe Words ſignifies a Time in the larger Senſe (as (†) St. John uſes it) conſiſting of three hundred and ſixty Years; and if the other Word ſignifies a Time in a ſtricter Senſe (as (‡) Daniel uſes it in another Place) for three hundred and ſixty Days, the Meaning will be abſolute and poſitive, and they, who ſhall live near the Time, may accordingly expect the Accompliſhment. And if he had only meant a ſelect Number of Years, or annual Revolutions, he might have expreſs'd himſelf in other Words without the leaſt Obſcurity.

25. I may alſo add, that there is a plain Intimation in the Text it ſelf, that we are to go by this Way of Reckoning. The Word (o) Times, which Daniel mentions (and is expounded by St. John) is us'd in the Text of this (p) Propheſy; and why not in the ſame Senſe? From the Commiſſion of Nehemiah to repair the Walls and the City, to the complete Finiſhing of it, is ſaid to be ſeven Weeks, or 49 of theſe Times. After this it ſhould ſtand in its Glory for many Years, or threeſcore and two weeks, or 434 of theſe Spaces, the ſtreet ſhall be built again and the wall. Our Tranſlation adds, even in troublous times; but we may venture upon another Expoſition of the Words. The Hebrew Word צוק ſignifies, a leſſer Space of Quantity or Time; and therefore we may well render it, in (or according to) the leſſer Computation of Times, which Daniel uſes, and St. John explains, and not according to the longer Computation of Years. Others may put what Interpretation they pleaſe upon the Words, but I ſee no Reaſon why they ſhould reject this; and if this is admitted, the Controverſy is ended.

26. Another Objection which is made againſt this Account of Weeks, is, That it puts the laſt Week at too great a Diſtance from the other ſixty nine; whereas they ought to be join'd together as in all other Inſtances of this Nature. In anſwer to this it is ſufficient to ſay, That this Propheſy is ſo explain'd by the greateſt Commentator in the World, I mean our bleſſed LORD and SAVIOUR. Daniel ſpeaking of what ſhould happen in this laſt Week, ſaith as we render it, And for the overſpreading of abominations he ſhall make it deſolate. Theſe Words, (as they ſtand (q) in the Hebrew) may be thus tranſlated, And becauſe of abominations upon the wing of the Temple, there ſhall be a deſtroyer. Theſe Words were quoted by our SAVIOUR, and the two Evangeliſts, who repeat them from his Mouth, take the two laſt of them as tranſlated by the Septuagint, Βδέλυγμα τῆς ἐρημώσεως, The Abomination of Deſolation. The whole Sentence runs thus, (r) When ye therefore ſhall ſee the abomination of deſolation ſpoken of by Daniel the prophet ſtand in the holy place (or (s) where it ought not) (whoſo readeth let him underſtand) then let them which be in Judea flee to the mountains. (t) For theſe be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfill'd. The Chriſtians at that Time, who were taught the Meaning of theſe Words of CHRIST from the Apoſtles themſelves, underſtood them in this Senſe; and therefore when Titus Veſpaſian without any viſible Reaſon rais'd the Siege of Jeruſalem, they all remov'd from thence to a Town call'd Pella, on the other Side of Jordan, and ſo were preſerv'd in the Midſt of the following utter Deſtruction both of City and Temple.

27. For the Explaining of this Propheſy we muſt conſider, that the Word which is here render'd Abominations, is in the Moſaical Law originally appropriated to that Set of Pollutions that ſprang from Bodies, either alive or dead, which were unclean, as may be plainly prov'd from ſeveral Paſſages in (u) Leviticus, where the Word is us'd. The other (*) more common Word ſignifies an abominable thing of a moral as well as a legal Nature, and more frequently the former; and even when it relates to legal Pollutions, it is not often us'd with Reference to any particular ſort of them. And accordingly it is obſervable, that in (x) Ezekiel, where both ſorts of Abominations are hinted at, the two Hebrew Words are ſet down. So that the Abomination mention'd by Daniel was occaſion'd by the Pollution of dead Bodies. These were על כנף, upon the Wing, as it is in Hebrew, or ἐπὶ τὸ ἱερὸν, upon the Temple, as it is in the Septuagint, or upon the Wing of the Temple, as we may expound it from both. The Hebrew Word properly signifies the Wing of a Bird, which is spread out to a considerable Distance from the Body, when the Bird flees; and thence by a Metaphor it came to signify the Battlements of the Buildings round the Courts, which were at a Distance from the Temple, strictly so call'd. Thus (y) St. Matthew and St. Luke say, that our SAVIOUR when tempted was plac'd ἐπὶ τὸ πτερύγιον, not upon the Pinnacle, where his standing must have been miraculous, but upon the Wing or Battlement of the Temple, from whence his Casting himself down must be a voluntary Act.

28. Now Josephus informs us, that this was actually fulfill'd in the last Siege of Jerusalem. Among the rest there were two Parties in the City; one was for Accomodating Matters with an Enemy so vastly superior to them in Power, and from whom nothing less than utter Ruin was to be expected at last, and others were as violent against it. The chief and most mischievous who were against it, were a Crew of Robbers, who for their seeming Concern for the Honour of GOD, which they could not bear to see prostituted to a Gentile Power, were call'd Zealots. This Gang of Men had seiz'd upon these Parts of the Temple, and fortify'd them. There were great Quantities of Engines, which had been left in the Country by Cestius Gallus the Syrian Governor, when he besieg'd the City about three Years before. With some of these they shot from the Battlements or Wings of the Temple; and with others they were shot at, and kill'd upon the Battlements, so that the Temple became polluted with the blood of the slain, that were within it. This was literally an abominable thing, the daily Service was intermitted, and the Sanctuary according to the Jewish Notion of the Word was become desolate. There was never the like Instance recorded in History before, whilst the Battlements were standing, and there can never happen the like again, because these Battlements are destroy'd. So that there is the best Authority in the World to postpone (z) this last of Daniel's Weeks until the Destruction of Jerusalem, when it was most exactly fulfill'd.

29. From what hath been said, I shall only add a short Exposition of this remarkable Prophesy, leaving it to the Reader to judge of it. (a) GOD hath appointed a certain Period of Time for general Events to happen therein, which he hath divided into seventy weeks. As a Week consists of seven Days; so each of these consists of seven Chaldean Times, which are not exact Years, but in each of them there were three hundred and sixty Days, being the most antient Length of the Chaldean Year, before the other five Days were added.

(a) Verse 24. Seventy weeks are determined

(b) In this Space of Time GOD hath determined to restrain the Power of the extended Guilt of Adam's first Sin, by the Coming of CHRIST, or the second Adam, who should take it away.

(b) to finish the transgression,

(c) And also fully to put away the Guilt of all our Sins, by his Suffering in our Nature for them upon the Cross, which was a full, perfect, and sufficient Satisfaction for the Sins of the whole World.

(c) and to make an End of sins,

(d) Hereby he hath reconcil'd us to GOD, and fully freed us from the Punishment due to Sin, as if we had never done any thing amiss, or had made a full Satisfaction in our own Persons.

(d) and to make reconciliation for iniquity,

(e) And also by his perfect Fulfilling of the whole Law, he hath purchas'd for us a Title to everlasting Happiness in the Kingdom of Heaven: so that as his Sufferings imputed to us do fully free us from the Punishment, his Righteousness being also imputed to us shall be sufficient to purchase this Reward for us.

(e) and to bring in everlasting righteousness,

(f) Thus all those Visions and Prophesies mention'd in the Law, and even in the Gospel (which without CHRIST we could have no Title to) are seal'd, confirm'd, and made over to us, and we may confidently expect the Performance of all on GOD's Part, if we fail not in ours.

(g) For this Purpose the CHRIST, or MESSIAH, shall come in this Space of Time, who shall be The most holy one of GOD, and shall be anointed with the HOLY GHOST, and with sufficient Power to perform all those Offices of a Mediator between GOD and Man, by the original Holiness of his Birth, by the perfect Obedience of his Life, by the bitter Sufferings of his Death, and his continual Intercession for us.

(h) But that there may be no Mistake in this Computation, it is necessary to consider, that it is not to begin from the Command of Cyrus to repair and build the Temple, as Daniel might imagine, it being then in his Thoughts, because he, Verse 2, knew that the Time was nigh. Nor from the Command of Artaxerxes in the ſeventh Year of his Reign to Ezra to ſettle the daily Service there; but (i) from the Commandment and Leave given by Artaxerxes to Nehemiah, in the twentieth Year of his Reign, and the firſt Day of the firſt Month, that he ſhould repair all the Walls and Fortifications of Jeruſalem, which he did accordingly with the utmoſt Expedition. (k) From this Date to the Death of the MESSIAH afterward mentioned, there ſhall be ſixty nine of theſe Weeks, or ſo many Times ſeven of the Chaldean Epochas of 360 Days. But theſe ſhall be divided into two Parts, the firſt containing ſeven Weeks, and the other containing ſixty two Weeks. By the End of theſe firſt ſeven Weeks, or 49 Chaldean Times, all (l) the Wall ſhall be built, the Towers ſhall be rais'd upon it, and all the Streets and Houſes ſhall be in ſo flouriſhing a Condition, that there will be no Occaſion of any farther Buildings. And therefore they who live at the End of this Period, when they ſee the firſt Part of this Propheſy fulfill'd, may certainly expect the Fulfilling of the other at its appointed Time, (m) provided they reckon according to the ſhort Computation of Chaldean Times, which conſiſted of 360 Days, and not according to the larger Computation of Chaldean Years, which conſiſted of 365 Days. But (n) immediately after the Expiration of theſe ſixty and two Weeks, added to the other ſeven, at the Time of the following Paſſover, the MESSIAH ſhall be crucify'd. However (o) this curſed Death like a Malefactor ſhall not be for any Crime of his own; but as a propitiatory Sacrifice for the Sins of the World. And (p) this cruel Act of the Jews ſhall ſo provoke the Juſtice of GOD againſt them, that the People who ſhall be ſubject to the Empire then at its Height, but as yet not eſtabliſh'd, or the Romans, ſhall take away both (q) their Place and Nation. They ſhall deſtroy the City of Jeruſalem, and burn the Temple, leaving both but a Heap of Ruins. The (r) Roman Forces ſhall come into Judea like an overflowing Inundation, ſweeping all before it. And as there ſhall be a War upon them for their Cutting off of the MESSIAH; ſo it ſhall be the moſt fatal and final to them, and ſhall end in the intire Subverſion of their Church and State.

(s) This is the laſt Week of the ſeventy, and plac'd at a Diſtance of Time from the reſt. In which for the more effectual Carrying on of this Judgment of GOD upon the Jewiſh Nation, the Romans ſhall make a firm Covenant with many Nations, and be at Peace with them, and ſo they ſhall begin to proſecute the War in the firſt Part of this Week, or Period of ſeven Chaldean Times. And (t) in (u) the other half, or the latter Part of this Period, the Romans ſhall lay a cloſe Siege to Jeruſalem, ſo that it can have no Communication with the reſt of the Country. This will cauſe the daily Sacrifices and Oblations to ceaſe at the Temple. The Zealots ſhall (x) ſeize the Houſe of GOD, and ſtand upon the Battlements in an hoſtile Manner, ſo that they ſhall kill others, and ſome of them ſhall be kill'd there; and thus their dead Bodies, which is an Abomination according to the Levitical Law, ſhall be upon the Battlements of the Temple. And the firſt Inſtance of this Nature ſhall be a ſure Sign of the Deſolation both of City and Temple, and both of Church and State. (y) This ſhall continue until the Time that GOD ſhall have compleated his Vengeance upon the Jews for this their Fact, both in Reſpect of the Jewiſh People being deſolate, and the Roman Empire the Deſolaters. (a) Thus (b) Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down of the gentiles, until the time of the gentiles are fulfilled, when GOD will execute theſe Judgments no longer, but have Mercy upon both. The Jews ſhall be call'd, and the Gentiles ſhall return with them to the Knowledge of CHRIST as their GOD, and the Obedience of the Goſpel.

30. Upon

30. Upon the Death of Darius, Cyrus became (c) the ſole and abſolute Monarch of the Perſian Empire, who in the Beginning of his Reign publiſh'd a Decree for the Reſtoring of all the Captive Jews and Iſraelites to their own Country, with full Liberty to rebuild their City and Temple. He alſo reſtor'd all the Veſſels of Gold and Silver, and other Utenſils, which had been taken from thence, and (d) deliver'd them by the Hand of Mithredath his Treaſurer to Sheſhbazzar, as he was call'd by the Chaldeans, or Zerubbabel, as he was call'd by his own Countrymen. In Summing up of theſe Veſſels there is ſome Difficulty. For there is a (e) particular Sum given only of two thouſand four hundred and ninety nine, and yet the next Verſe ſums them up to be five thouſand and four hundred. To this it hath been anſwer'd, that the Text particularizeth only thoſe, which were of a greater Size, but ſums up the whole Number of all. And this Diſtinction is made in Scripture, where (f) Nebuchadnezzar is ſaid to have brought all the Veſſels of the Houſe of GOD to Babylon, both great and ſmall. Others tranſlate the Words, other veſſels a thouſand, not as we do, but other veſſels by thouſands, that is, all other veſſels were four thouſand, wanting but one hundred. However there may be alſo this Diſtinction: The Veſſels of Gold and Silver are firſt particularly accounted for, and then the Veſſels of Braſs or other Materials made up the whole Sum. Or, The Veſſels of the Temple are particularly accounted for; but there were others, which belong'd to the Palaces, and other Houſes in Jeruſalem not before mention'd, which made up a greater Number, and were reſtor'd at the ſame Time.

Anno 535.

31. But there is a far greater Difficulty in the Number of thoſe, who went up from Babylon to Jeruſalem, as they are mention'd in (g) the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah. In Anſwer to which we muſt obſerve, Firſt, That theſe two Accounts were taken at two different Times. What we find in Ezra, was taken when they were in Babylon, and form'd themſelves into different Companies in order march regularly toward Jeruſalem. This Account was taken by Zerubbabel, or ſome other Perſon, who had the chief Command at that Time, and lodg'd in the Records at Babylon, from whence Ezra tranſcrib'd it, and brought it up with him to Jeruſalem. The other Account was taken by ſome other Perſon, when they were return'd to Jeruſalem, and lodg'd in the Records there, where Nehemiah found it, when he (h) intended to make a new Genealogy. To this Account in Ezra he annexes the Sum total, as he found it in the Record at Jeruſalem; and this makes the Number of the (i) whole congregation, their men ſervants, their maid ſervants, ſinging men and ſinging women, their horſes, mules and camels ſo exactly to agree. Theſe in both Accounts are divided into ſeveral Companies, by which we muſt not mean their natural Children; for many of their Names are Names of Places, as the Children of Gibeon, of Jericho, the Men of Bethlehem, Anathoth, Bethel and Ai, &c. who were taken from thence, liv'd together in the Captivity, and return'd to dwell again in the ſame Cities. Others were Names of Men who commanded the reſpective Companies, whoſe Numbers are reckon'd up, and by an uſual Metaphor in the oriental Languages are call'd their Children. Where therefore the Numbers in Ezra are greater than thoſe in Nehemiah, as happens only in (k) five Inſtances, it is ſuppos'd, that the reſt alter'd their Minds, or died by the Way, or remov'd into other Companies, either as they themſelves thought fit, or for ſome particular Reaſons, which happen'd in their March. The Leaders in Ezra, which (l) are omitted in Nehemiah, may be ſuppos'd to have (m) been incorporated into other Companies in their March. And where the Numbers in Nehemiah are greater than thoſe in Ezra, thoſe Companies may be ſuppos'd to have been occaſionally join'd by other Perſons, as they return'd home, which makes (n) the Number in Nehemiah greater than that in Ezra. And as to the general Number in Ezra and Nehemiah, which is ſaid to be forty two thouſand three hundred and ſixty, but the particular Numbers ſumm'd up together are much leſs; for that in Ezra amounts only to 29818, and that in Nehemiah to 31031: The Reaſon is this, They are (o) only the Tribes of Judah, Benjamin and Levi, which are reckon'd up by their Families in both theſe Places, the reſt being of the other Tribes of Iſrael, are number'd only in the groſs Sum, which makes it ſo much exceed the Particulars in both the Computations.

32. The Jews returning from their Captivity with joyful Hearts, began to ſet up the Altar on the (q) firſt Day of the ſeventh Month, which anſwers in Part to our September, and then they (r) kept the Feaſt of Tabernacles on the fifteenth Day of the ſame Month. In the (s) ſecond Month of the next Year, or about April, they began to lay the Foundation of the Temple, which had a different Effect upon thoſe who beheld it. The younger People rejoic'd to ſee it go forward at any Rate; and the elder People, who had ſeen the former Temple, wept to ſee how far this was inferior to it, inſomuch that it could not be diſtinguiſh'd which was greateſt, either the Joy of the one, or the Sorrow of the other. The (t) Prophet Haggai owns, that it was as nothing in compariſon of the firſt, eſpecially in the Eyes of thoſe who had ſeen both. The Fund, which they rais'd for it, was but ſmall, and therefore the Building muſt be proportionable. It was (u) threeſcore and one thouſand Drams of Gold, and five thouſand Drams of Silver, and an hundred Prieſts Garments, which hath been thus (x) computed: That every Dram of Gold is worth about ten Shillings of our Money, at the Rate of four Pounds an Ounce. And every (y) Pound or Mina of Silver worth ſeven Pounds and ten Shillings, becauſe it contain'd 60 Shekels, and every Shekel is (z) about half a Crown in Value. So that according to this Computation, the Gold was worth 30000 l. 10 s. and the Silver 37500 l. or the whole 67500 l. 10 s. For the Raiſing of this Money, it is ſuppos'd, that they who ſtay'd behind contributed, as well as they who return'd, or elſe it would not have been poſſible to have rais'd ſo much.

Anno 534.

33. The Samaritans finding the Building go forward, (a) offer their Aſſiſtance, but with a real Deſign to hinder it. But being refus'd, they do them all the Miſchief poſſible at the Court of Cyrus in (b) the third Year of his Reign. By theſe Methods they very much retarded the Work of the Temple, which Daniel being inform'd of, gave himſelf up to (c) Faſting and Mourning for three Weeks together. After this, upon the (d) the twenty fourth Day of the firſt Month, he ſaw the Viſion concerning the Succeſſion of the Kings of Perſia, the Empire of the Macedonians, and the Conqueſt of the Romans, with the (e) happy State of the Church, which ſhould ſucceed them, of which the three laſt Chapters give us an Account. This is the laſt that we hear of him; and he being of a very great Age at that Time, it cannot be ſuppos'd that he liv'd much longer.

Anno 533.

34. Cyrus being dead, and Cambyſes (who (f) in Scripture is call'd Abaſuerus) ſucceeding him, the Enemies of the Jews apply to him in the ſame Manner as before, ſo that the Building of the Temple went on heavily during his Reign.

Anno 528.

35. Cambyſes being dead, was ſucceeded by Smerdis, who was of the Sect of the Magi, and in Scripture is call'd (g) Artaxerxes. He reign'd but ſeven Months. However, the Samaritans write a Letter to him againſt the Jews, which is recorded (h) at large by Ezra. Upon which he ſends a poſitive Order to put a Stop both to the Building of the Temple and the Repairing of the City, ſo that there was nothing more done in the remaining Part of his Reign.

Anno 521.

36. It is obſervable, that (i) one Verſe in Jeremiah, a (k) great Part of Daniel, and (l) Part of Ezra, are written in Chaldee, but all the reſt of the Old Teſtament is in the Hebrew Language. And the Reaſons for it are either general or particular. The Reaſons in general are the great Affinity of both Languages; the Neceſſity of its being in Uſe among the Jews as they were ſubject to the Babylonian Empire, where the Chaldee was the original Language; and that the Learning of it for the compleat Underſtanding of the Hebrew Bible might open a Way for a greater Progreſs in other Oriental Studies. The Reaſon in particular for the Verſe (m) in Jeremiah is, becauſe the Prophet telling the Jews what they ſhould ſpeak to the Chaldeans againſt their Idolatry, would not expreſs it in a Tongue unknown to them, but in their native Language. As for Daniel, he begins in Hebrew, but (n) when he mentions the Speech of the Chaldeans to the King, he mentions it in the Chaldean Language, to ſhew that we ſhould not content our ſelves with Tranſlations, but have Recourſe to the Original. From this Place to the End of the ſeventh Chapter he writes in Chaldee, and after that in Hebrew, becauſe he would regiſter in the Chaldean Language the Affairs that fell under the Chaldean Monarchy. But as ſoon as the Kingdom is deſtroy'd, he will have no more to do with the Language, but applies himſelf to write in his own native Tongue the Hebrew; ſince GOD would not have the Perſic, under which Language he now was, to be the Original of any Part of Scripture, as having not the leaſt Affinity with the Hebrew. As for Ezra, he begins his Book in Hebrew, but (o) afterwards he copies the original Letter, which was in Chaldee, with the Letter of Artaxerxes in Anſwer thereto, as alſo the Letter to Darius, and his Anſwer, and all the intermediate Verſes, and what follows to the nineteenth Verſe of the ſixth Chapter, it being all proper to be ſent to Babylon, as it undoubtedly was, that on other Occaſions, when their Caſe was thus fairly ſtated from the original Records, they might expect the greater Favour. And indeed the following Verſes in the ſame Chapter would be no Way proper for ſuch a Deſign, and were therefore written in Hebrew. There only remains in the Chaldee Language the (p) gracious Commiſſion of Artaxerxes to Ezra himſelf, which it was moſt proper to preſerve in its Original for the Reaſons already mention'd.

37. Artaxerxes being dead, was ſucceeded by Darius the Son of Hyſtaſpes, when the Edict of his Predeceſſor ceas'd, and the Jews were again at Liberty to rebuild the Temple; but upon their Neglect of it, GOD (q) ſmote the Land with Barrenneſs, ſo that both the Vintage and the Harveſt fail'd them. The Occaſion of their Delay was (*) ſome treacherous Jews, who were hir'd by the Enemy, and were always diſcouraging the Work with this proverbial Expreſſion, (r) The time is not yet come, that the houſe ſhould be built. To prevent the Effects of which, GOD (s) ſtirs up the Prophet Haggai, on the first day of the ſixth month in the ſecond year of the Reign of Darius, who reproves (t) the People for the Neglecting this Building, tells them, that this was the particular Reaſon of GOD's Judgments upon them, and ſtirs them up to go on with the Work. Upon this, on (u) the twenty fourth Day of the ſame Month, (x) Zerubbabel the Governor, and Joſhua the High Prieſt, make Preparation to go on with the Building, and (y) Haggai promiſes GOD's Aſſiſtance to them in this Undertaking; and for their Encouragement, (z) in the one and twentieth day of the ſeventh month, he tells them, that the Glory of this ſecond Temple ſhould exceed that of the firſt; becauſe CHRIST, the deſire of all nations, ſhould come, and honour it with his Preſence.

Anno 519.

And in (a) the ſecond day of the eighth month, the Prophet Zechariah begins to exhort them to turn unto GOD, that ſo they might be qualify'd for thoſe other gracious Promiſes, which he ſhould afterward give them. On the (b) four and twentieth Day of the ninth Month they begin to lay the Stones in the Walls of the Temple, and to raiſe the Building; for on theſe three Months laſt, they had only prepar'd Materials; and on this Day Haggai had two Viſions, (c) one of them to tell the Jews, that hitherto their Sins had hinder'd the Succeſs of the Work, and (d) the other being a Promiſe to Zerubbabel, that he ſhould go on and proſper in Spite of all Oppoſition; and with this he ends the Book.

38. At this Time the Babyloniſh Year, according to the Æra of Nabonaſſar, began on the third Day of January, from whence they began to reckon the third Year of Darius. Tatnai, and other Enemies of the Jews, (e) endeavour to hinder the Building by Threatnings and other Artifices; but theſe having no Effect, they (f) write a Letter to Darius the King againſt them, and deſire him to ſearch, whether they had any Order from Cyrus for this Purpoſe, as they pretended. The Jews being now much concern'd at this unexpected Difficulty, had great Need of a Prophet to ſupport them; and GOD, who never fails thoſe, who truſt in him in Time of Need, declares his Will by the Prophet Zechariah, on the (g) twenty fourth Day of the eleventh Month of the ſame Year, which is about the Beginning of our February. All this is contain'd in the Book of his Propheſies, from the ſeventh Verſe of the firſt Chaprer to the ninth Verſe of the ſixth. In which he expreſſeth the Mercy, that GOD would ſhew to his People in the Reſtoration and Redemption of Sion, and the Vengeance which he would execute upon thoſe who had oppreſs'd them. And ſoon after he had the Viſion of what is contain'd in the latter Part of the ſame Chapter; wherein by Crowns made for the Head of Joſhua the High Prieſt, is ſhew'd the Church, the Prieſthood, and Kingdom of CHRIST under the Name of the BRANCH, and the happy Converſion of the Gentiles to him.

Anno 518.

39. Darius having (h) receiv'd this Letter, order'd a Search to be made in the Perſian Records, where the Decree of Cyrus for the Building of the Temple was found; and upon this he gives a full and ample Direction, that they ſhould go on with all Expedition, and that their Enemies ſhould give them no Disturbance. This Answer coming the Beginning of the next Year, set all Hands to work. And so every thing succeeded beyond their Hopes. At the latter End of the same Year, (i) on the fourth Day of the ninth Month, which answers in Part to our November, some Messengers come from the Jews at Babylon to inquire of Zechariah concerning their Fasts, whether they should continue them or lay them down, because every thing went on so prosperously, the Temple was almost finish'd, and they could not well observe some of them without giving Umbrage to their Enemies in the Land, where they were Captives. Now the (k) Fasts, which they observ'd, were these.

Anno 517.

The Fast in the ninth Day of the fourth Month, because (l) the City was then broken up.

The Fast on the seventh Day of the fifth Month, because (m) the Temple was then burnt.

The Fast on the thirtieth Day of the seventh Month, because (o) Gedaliah was then slain, and all the Jews dispers'd.

And the Fast on the tenth Day of the tenth Month, because (p) the Siege of Jerusalem did then begin.

Zechariah reproves their (q) Fasting, as done more out of Custom than Conscience, but gives them no particular Direction either to continue or discontinue it. He adviseth them to a Reformation, and tells them, that their Sins were the Cause of their Captivity. However, (r) GOD would restore Jerusalem again to her former Prosperity. That if they went on with the Building of the Temple he would bless them with Peace and Plenty; and if they continu'd obedient to his Laws, their Mourning should be turn'd into Joy, and all other Nations should confess that their GOD was among them.

Under such Encouragements as these, they went on so successfully, that the Temple was (s) finish'd on the third Day of the twelfth Month, which answers to our February, in the sixth Year of the Reign of King Darius; so that they kept the Dedication of it at that Time, and the Feast of the Passover and of unleaven'd Bread in the following Month with the utmost Joy and Solemnity.

Anno 514.

40. Soon after this Zechariah (t) is suppos'd to publish the remaining Part of his Prophesy. In the Beginning hereof, he tells them of GOD's (u) Care over them, and exhorts them (x) to rejoice in Hope of the Coming of CHRIST among them, that he should have a (y) peaceable and flourishing Kingdom, and (z) they should have Victory, Success and Plenty. He speaks of the (a) Conversion of St. Paul, and the (b) Gospel beginning at Hadrach and Damascus, and that (c) Antioch in Hamath should be famous upon the same Account, where (d) the Disciples were first call'd Christians. He speaks of (e) CHRIST's Riding into Jerusalem upon an Ass, of his (f) confounding the three Shepherds, the Pharisees, Sadducees and Essenes, of his (g) being sold for thirty Pieces of Silver, of (h) his Disciples being scatter'd from him, of (i) the Conversion of many of the Jews, who should mourn over him, whom they had pierced, and that (k) the rest, who continu'd obstinately in their Unbelief, should bring Destruction upon themselves, their Temple, their City, and their Nation, that (l) Asia and Africa should be left in Ignorance and Superstition, when his Worship should be in Europe, tho' the Worshippers should be in a poor and an afflicted Condition; but when (m) the appointed Day of the LORD shall come, there shall be a general Reformation, and all the Enemies of his Church shall submit themselves to the Obedience of the Gospel. Tho' it is more probable, that (n) the six last Chapters at the End of the Prophet Zechariah, were written by the Prophet Jeremiah, and plac'd there by a Mistake of the last Compiler of the Old Testament. Let it be written by either, and plac'd in any Book, it must be of divine Authority. St. Matthew seems to determine it this Way, who quoting (o) a Text out of these Chapters, and telling (p) how it was fulfill'd, when the chief priest took the thirty pieces of silver, and bought with them the potters field to bury strangers in, he saith, that this was spoken by Jeremiah the Prophet. And he might have had good Authority at that Time for such an Assertion. It is certain, (q) that such things are contain'd in these Chapters, as agree well with the Time of Jeremiah, but by no Means with the Time of Zechariah. He propheſies (r) that the pride of Aſſyria ſhall be brought down, and the ſcepter of Egypt ſhall depart. This had not happen'd in the Time of Jeremiah; but before Zechariah's Time the Aſſyrians were overturn'd by the Perſian Monarchy, the Egyptians were alſo over-ran by Nebuchadnezzar, and Pharaoh-Hophrah their King had loſt his Crown. He alſo propheſies (s) againſt the Cities of the Philiſtines, particularly Askelon, Gaza and Ekron, that they ſhould ſee the Deſtruction of Tyre, and fear, and be very ſorrowful, and their Expectation ſhould be aſham'd, and particularly, that the King ſhould periſh from Gaza, and Askelon ſhould not be inhabited, and the Pride of the Philiſtines, or Egypt, on whom they depended, ſhould be cut off. This agrees well with the Cup of (t) GOD's Fury, which Jeremiah was commanded to make all the Nations to drink of, particularly all the Kings of the Land of the Philiſtines, and Aſhkelon, and Azzah or Gaza, and Ekron, and the Remnant of Aſhdod. This (u) the Prophet Jeremiah ſeems to hint at, when he dates his Propheſy againſt the Philiſtines, before the Time that Pharaoh King of Egypt ſmote Gaza, whilſt Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Jeruſalem, and where he ſpeaks of the Accompliſhment of all the reſt by waters, which ſhould ariſe up out of the north, or whilſt Nebuchadnezzar lay at the Siege of Tyre; for this was the Fountain, from whence the Streams did flow, which over-ran all the Countries, particularly the Land of the Philiſtines, to make Way for his better Marching into Egypt. And when (as he farther added) Baldneſs was come upon Gaza, and Aſhkelon was cut off with the remnant of their valley, and the LORD had given a charge to the Sword to come againſt Aſhkelon, and againſt the ſea-ſhore. Thus the Prophet Zephaniah (x) tells us, that Gaza ſhall be forſaken, and Aſhkelon a deſolation; they ſhall drive out Aſhdod at the noon day, and Ekron ſhall be rooted up; which he joins with the Judgments that ſhould come upon Moab and Ammon. And thus (y) during this Siege of Tyre, the Philiſtines, Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites and Zidonians, ſeem alſo to have been broken, and harraſs'd by the Excurſions of the Babylonians, and to have had all thoſe ſevere Judgments executed upon them, which we find in the Propheſies of Jeremiah and Ezekiel to have been denounc'd againſt them. Thus theſe Propheſies againſt Gaza, Aſhdod, Aſhkelon and the Philiſtines, mention'd at the End of the Prophet Zechariah, agree very well to the Time of Jeremiah, but cannot well be put farther off; which makes it puzzle our beſt Hiſtorians and Commentators to find the Time, when they were accompliſh'd. Beſides, the Prophet hath (z) another remarkable Expreſſion, Ye ſhall flee, like as when ye fled from before the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah. This the Prophet Jeremiah might report, as a Calamity, which their Fathers might have told ſome of them in their Time; and thus it is mention'd as more freſh in their Memories. But to ſpeak of it in this Manner an hundred and thirty Years later in the Time of Zechariah, doth not ſeem ſo applicable to the Prophet's Deſign, eſpecially ſince the (a) Flight of King Zedekiah and his Forces, when Jeruſalem was taken, would have been as full to the Purpoſe, and much more freſh in their Memories. As therefore the Prophet in theſe Chapters ſpeaks very largely of the MESSIAH; ſo they might be of the ſame Date with, and properly be ſet immediately after (b) thoſe other Chapters, where the Prophet Jeremiah treats of the ſame Subject in the fourth Year of the Reign of Zedekiah. And the Reaſon of the Miſtake in Placing it thus might be, that Simon the Son of Onias laſt Compiler of the ſacred Canon might meet with this Propheſy without Name and without Date, and ſuppoſing that Ezra had collected all the Propheſies of Jeremiah then extant, he might without any farther Conſideration conclude, that it was written by the Prophet Zechariah, after the other Books of Scripture had been plac'd in their Order, and ſo he might add it to the End of this Book, where we now find it.

41. After this we have no farther Scripture Hiſtory for the Space of three and fifty Years; when the Book of Eſther begins, (c) in the third Year of the Reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, who is (d) there call'd Ahaſuerus; who having conquer'd great Difficulties, (e) appointed a ſolemn Rejoicing for an hundred and eighty Days in the City of Shuſhan. At this Time Ahaſuerus, or Artaxerxes, being diſoblig'd by his Queen Vaſhti, puts her away, and four Years after in the (f) ſeventh Year of his Reign, he takes Eſther for his Queen. At this Time two of the King's Chamberlains intended probably to have promoted ſome other Perſon to this Dignity, and being diſappointed in their Deſign, could not but expect to be out of Favour; to prevent which, they conſpir'd againſt the Life of the King, and it being diſcover'd by Mordecai the Queen's Uncle, they were both executed for the ſame.

42. But tho' the Marriage was deferr'd, yet we may conclude, that Eſther was in very great Favour with the King before that; for in the Beginning of this Year (g) Ezra obtain'd of the King and his ſeven Counſellors a very ample Commiſſion to return to Jeruſalem, with all his Nation, who were willing to accompany him thither, that they might reſtore and ſettle the State, reform the Church of the Jews, and regulate and govern both according to their own Laws. This extraordinary Favour muſt have been the Effect of ſome extraordinary Intereſt; and there is none which can be gueſs'd at except hers. On the firſt Day of the firſt Month, which anſwers to ſome Day of March, (h) Ezra ſets out from Babylon to go to Jeruſalem. On the ninth, tenth, and eleventh Days he muſters his Company, and keeps a Faſt at the River (i) Ahava, that ran to a Town of the ſame Name. This could not be many Days Journey from Shuſhan; and as the Name is loſt, ſo we may conjecture, that it was the River Caprus, that runs into the Tigris, which lay neareſt to him, and where he might ſtay to be join'd by others from Media. On the twelfth Day of this Month he (k) begins to march; but marching ſlowly, he came not to Jeruſalem till the firſt Day of (l) the fifth Month, on the fourth Day of which Month he (m) delivers out by Weight all the Gold and Silver that he had brought with him for an Offering from the King, and from his Princes, and from the Iſraelites in Babylon. What the (n) King, and his Counſellors, and his Lords offer'd on this Occaſion is not mention'd; but ſuppoſing it came to the Value of 23744 l. together with the ſilver Veſſels, which weigh'd an hundred Talents, and the Golden Veſſels of the ſame Weight, and the two Veſſels of fine Copper, as precious as Gold; yet after all, the Offerings of the Iſraelites in Babylon will appear to be twelve Times as much, as what was offer'd when Cyrus granted the Decree 78 Years before. For the Value of that was but 67500 l. 10 s. as it hath been already mention'd; whereas (o) the 650 Talents of Silver amount to 243750 l. and the (p) 100 Talents of Gold amount to 600000 l. which make 843750 l. in the whole, and is twelve Times as much as the former Sum, beſide the Exceſs already mention'd. This ſhews, that after their Captivity was ended, the Jews, which continu'd in Babylon, were in a much more flouriſhing Condition under the Favour of the following Emperors, than they were before; and it is an Argument of GOD's being with them, and proſpering them in this ſtrange Land, according as he had (q) before frequently mention'd by his Prophets.

43. There is one Difficulty remaining, which is, that the ſame Emperor is call'd Artaxerxes in Ezra, and Ahaſuerus in Eſther, which is an Argument, that he was not the ſame Perſon. To this it may be anſwer'd, That in his own Empire of Chaldea he was call'd Artaxerxes; but in Judea he was call'd Ahaſuerus. Accordingly Ezra, writing ſome Part of his Book in the Chaldean Language, and having Occaſion to tranſlate the original Letter, at large, where his Name was mention'd, was oblig'd to ſpeak of him throughout his whole Book, as he found him there. But the Author of the Book of Ezra, writing only in Hebrew, and having no Occaſion to mention any ſuch Record, ſpeaks of him only by that Name, by which he was moſt commonly known among the Jews.

44. On the (r) the tenth Day of the tenth Month of the ſame Year, this King Ahaſuerus, or Artaxerxes, made Eſther his Queen, and makes a great Feaſt, and a Releaſe of ſome Taxes, and gave Gifts to others, that ſo it might be done with the greater Solemnity. This encourages Ezra to go on (s) with the Reforming of the People, according to the Commiſſion which the King had given him in the former Part of the ſame Year. And tho' there is no Doubt, but he rectify'd many other Abuſes; yet (t) the only one recorded is their Marrying of ſtrange Wives contrary to the Law of Moſes. He iſſued out a Proclamation for this Purpoſe (u) on the twentieth Day of the ninth Month, or in December. They began to inquire into it (x) about eleven Days after, or the firſt Day of the tenth Month, which took them up three Months Time; ſo that the whole was not finiſh'd till the firſt Day of the firſt Month, or the Spring in the following Year, which concludes the Book of Ezra. Anno 456. Anno 456.

45. Haman being promoted to the chief Honour at Court, in (y) the twelfth Year of this King's Reign, forms a Plot to deſtroy all the Jews for the Sake of Mordecai, who paid him not ſo great a Reſpect as he intended. For this Purpoſe he calls together his Diviners to find out the moſt lucky Day for Executing the ſame. They meet as he deſir'd Anno 452.

Thus (a) the lot was caſt, and the whole diſpoſal thereof was from the LORD, whoſe Providence determin'd it for the laſt Month of all, and in the mean Time the Service which Mordecai did, was diſcover'd; he was advanc'd, Haman was executed, and an (b) annual Thankſgiving was afterward enjoin'd to be obſerv'd by the Jews for ſo great a Deliverance, as it is related in the Book of Eſther.

Anno 451.

46 After this Ezra proceeds to take Care, that the Law ſhould be read and expounded to all the Jews, that they might know their Duty, and practiſe it accordingly, and that Copies thereof ſhould be written out and diſperſed for this Purpoſe; and places thoſe Books, which were receiv'd as of divine Authority, in the moſt proper Method, that they might lie all together, and ſo the better be preſerv'd in future Ages.

47. In the (c) twentieth Year of Artaxerxes, in the Month Chiſleu, which anſwers in Part to our November and December, Nehemiah had an Information by one, who came from Jeruſalem, that the whole City lay in a deplorable Condition, that the Walls (d) were broken down, and the gates burnt with fire. This was a very great Grief to him, and he waited for an Opportunity to lay this Caſe before the King, which he had not till (e) the Spring in the Month Niſan, or the firſt Month of the Jewiſh Year, according to their ſacred Account. At this Time he was the King's Cup-bearer, and a great Favourite with him; ſo that when he deliver'd the Cup into the King's Hand, he laid hold on that Opportunity, and obtain'd (f) a Commiſſion to go thither, and take Care of all the Repairs. This Daniel calls (g) the going forth of the commandment to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem, and from hence he dates the Beginning of his ſeventy Weeks, relating to the MESSIAH. The King ask'd him, (h) How long he would be abſent? And he fix'd a ſet Time for his Return. This Commiſſion (i) was dated in the Month Niſan, or the firſt of the Jewiſh Months, which was in the Spring of the Year. It was about four Months before he could ſettle every one to his Work, which they afterward follow'd with ſuch Expedition, that the (k) Wall was put in a Poſture of Defence in the Space of two and fifty Days, or more particularly on the twenty fifth Day of the Month Elul, which anſwers to the Beginning of our September. At this Time he regulates the Abuſe concerning the Exacting of Uſury from their poor Brethren, (l) contrary to their Law, he ſettles their Genealogies, takes Care that the Law ſhould be read diſtinctly to the People, in Purſuance of which they obſerv'd the Feaſt of Tabernacles in the following Month according to Order. After this they obſerve a ſolemn Faſt, and make a Confeſſion of GOD's Goodneſs to them, and their Ingratitude to him, and enter into a ſolemn Covenant to ſerve him better for the Time to come, to which the chief of them both ſign'd and ſeal'd. And that Jeruſalem might not be deſtitute of Inhabitants, they choſe out every tenth Man by Lot to dwell there, whilſt the reſt took Care to manure the Country. All which is contain'd in the eleven firſt Chapters of the Book of Nehemiah, which plainly appears to be written by himſelf. After this they (m) make a ſolemn Proceſſion upon the Walls of Jeruſalem, to teſtify their Joy, that they were ſo ſoon and ſo compleatly finiſh'd, and Nehemiah ſettl'd the Prieſts and Levites in their Order, to perform the daily Service of the Temple for the future.

48. What Day of the Year this Commiſſion was granted to Nehemiah is no where expreſs'd, and therefore we may ſuppoſe it to have been on or about the twenty firſt Day of April, according to the Julian Year, as the learned Biſhop of Worceſter hath plac'd it, or rather ſome Time later. Whatever Decree was made by the (n) Emperor of the Medes and Perſians was unalterable, and therefore they would do nothing haſtily. Beſides, this Court was generally ſlow in its Proceedings. Ahaſuerus (o) rul'd over an hundred and ſeven and twenty Provinces, even from India to Ethiopia; and therefore he had a Multiplicity of Buſineſs, and a Multiplicity of Hands, thro which any Buneſs was to go after his Directions, before it came to him for his Hand and Seal. And how dilatory their Proceedings were, may be gueſs'd at by this ſingle Inſtance, that tho' Nehemiah (p) heard of the Deſolation of Jeruſalem in the Month Chiſleu, or the ninth Month; yet it was (q) the firſt Month of the following Year, or Niſan, that is, four Months Diſtance, before he could ſo much as ſpeak to the King about it. Beſides, we may conclude, that when Nehemiah had the Decree or Commandment granted him to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem, he would loſe no Time to go thither; and as he had a ſet Time fix'd for his Return, ſo he would go thither with all Expedition; and as he had only (q) Captains of the army, and horſemen with him, who could be ready at a Day's Warning, and make long Marches, ſo he might have gone from Babylon to Jeruſalem in the Space of thirty Week Days, at the Rate of 23 Miles in a Day, the Diſtance being not above 690 Miles in all. We may alſo ſuppoſe, that as ſoon as he came thither, and produc'd his Commiſſion, the Jews would immediately begin to build. Now as the Wall was finiſhed on (r) the twenty fifth Day of the Month Elul, or the ſixth Month, in two and fifty days; ſo it was begun on the third Day of the Month Ab, or the fifth Month. And therefore ſince the Month Niſan in this Year ended on the fourteenth Day of April, and it is uncertain on what Day of the Month Nehemiah ſpoke to the King; ſo we cannot allow leſs than a Weeks Time from the End of the Month to the Date of the Commiſſion, becauſe in ſuch a Caſe Nehemiah would have been at Jeruſalem, and the Jews would have began to build the Walls before the Time expreſly mention'd. For the Finding out the Day on which the Month Niſan began on this Year, and conſequently when it ended, we may conclude, that the Jews being now return'd from Babylon, and being acquainted with the common Aſtronomical Methods us'd in that Country, might from thence bring the Length of the Months ſince in Uſe among them; that is, for the firſt Month to conſiſt of thirty Days, and the next of nine and twenty, and ſo ſucceſſively to the End of the Year. And the Year conſiſting in this Manner of Lunar Months, they began it from the firſt Appearance of that Moon after Sun-ſet, whoſe Full happen'd immediately after the Autumnal Equinox. From hence the Chaldeans computed it, before the Æra of Nabonaſſar was in Uſe. From hence the Jews computed it ever ſince the Time of Rabbi Hiliel about the Year of CHRIST 358 to this Time, who brought in no new Method for the civil Year, but only improv'd the old; and therefore Nehemiah being now in Babylon, might compute from the Babyloniſh antient Method; or if he reckon'd from an Obſervation in the following Spring, it would only make the Month to begin about two Days ſooner at the moſt. Now before the Date of this Commiſſion the Sun came to the Autumnal Equinox on the twenty ninth Day of September according to the Julian Account. The Moon, which began the Year, chang'd on the 17th Day of September, about Midnight, in the Longitude of Jeruſalem. At this Time the Moon being ſlow in Motion, in ſwift deſcending Signs, and having a great South Latitude, could not be ſeen on the nineteenth Day in the Evening, as appears by the following Calculation. The firſt Evening of her Viſibility was therefore September 20; ſo that the firſt Day of their civil Year was September 21, and the firſt Day of the Month Niſan, in the following Year, being Biſſextile, happen'd on the ſixteenth Day of March. In this famous Year it is alſo remarkable, that the Year of the Julian Period being 4269, the Number for the Cycle of the Sun was 13, and conſequently the Dominical Letter for that Part of the Year was E. This ſhews that the ſixteenth Day of March, or the Day of the new Month, on which their ſacred Year did certainly begin, was upon a Sunday, even on that Day of the Week, on which our LORD roſe from the Dead, and conſecrated it as a Sabbath to be obſerv'd by Chriſtians. And thus the Rejoicing at this New Moon, which preceded the Commiſſion of Nehemiah to reſtore and to build Jeruſalem, may put us in Mind of the great Cauſe which we have to rejoice for the New Covenant, that GOD hath confirm'd to us on the ſame Day of the Week; whereby we are reconcil'd to him, and reſtor'd to greater Privileges than thoſe which we had loſt, eſpecially as we are Members of the New Jeruſalem, which is from above, and is the mother of us all.

According to this Computation, their Work was finiſh'd on Thurſday the fourth Day of September; ſo that on the Day following they prepar'd for their Sabbath, or Day of Reſt, which could not but be obſerv'd at that Time with the utmoſt Solemnity.

49. How long Nehemiah had Leave to be abſent, is no where expreſly ſaid. It is evident, that all theſe things were done in the ſame Year, and ſo the Months, in which they were ſaid to be done, do exactly follow each other. This makes it probable, that the Time, or זמן, here mention'd, being a Chaldean Word, implies the antient Space of a Chaldean Time, or 360 Days. And accordingly he might ſet out from Jeruſalem in the Winter, and ſo return to Babylon in the Spring, according to the Space of 360 Days, or Time appointed. Anno 443.

50. During the Abſence of Nehemiah, there were (s) great Abuſes committed in the Temple, in Permitting of Strangers of other Nations, and particularly Tobijah an Ammonite, who was (t) always their Enemy, to lodge there. All this was occaſion'd by the Jews marrying with Women of other Nations, before they turn'd Proſelytes, and were obliged to obſerve the Law of Moſes; and this was (u) look'd upon to be (x) contrary to their Law. Nehemiah hearing of this, obtain'd Leave again of (y) Artaxerxes in the thirty ſecond Year of his Reign, to come into Judæa; and there being no ſet Time for his Return, we may ſuppoſe, that he then reſign'd his Office at Court, and ſpent the reſt of his Days at Jeruſalem, where (z) we find him very zealous in Reforming all Abuſes, particularly Ordering all the Chambers of the Temple to be cleans'd, Appointing the Prieſts and Levites in their Offices, and Taking Care, that their Revenues ſhould be particularly paid them. He gives a more ſtrict Charge for the better Obſerving of the Sabbath, and rectifies their Marriages with ſtrange Women, and ſo he continues promoting the Glory of GOD, and the Welfare of that Nation. Anno 432.

51. About this Time liv'd the Prophet Malachi. It is certain, that he was the laſt of all the Prophets of the Old Teſtament, and that the Temple was all finiſh'd, and every thing relating to it was reſtor'd before he propheſy'd. He ſpeaks (a) of the Altar, the (b) Sacrifices, and (c) the Table of the LORD, as in his Time, and tells them for their Encouragement, that (d) the LORD, or the MESSIAH, whom they did ſeek or expect, ſhould ſuddenly come to his temple; in this agreeing with the Prophet Haggai, but only placing it at a nearer Diſtance. Neither doth he charge the Jews with Neglecting to build the Temple, or encourage them to go on in it, as Haggai and Zechariah did, but he only blames their Neglecting what did belong to the true Worſhip of GOD in it, ſince it was built. It is certain, that he liv'd in the Times of Corruption, the Beginning of which is mention'd by Nehemiah. Both (e) Ezra and (f) Nehemiah complain much of the Jews marrying with ſtrange Wives, and expreſs what they did to prevent it. The Prophet Malachi ſpeaks (g) fully againſt this, and to prevent it, he declares (h) againſt Polygamy, and (i) Putting away their Wives for every Cauſe, almoſt in the ſame Language with our SAVIOUR in (k) the Goſpel. Nehemiah (l) obſerv'd, that the Portions of the Levites had not been given them, and he contended with the Rulers about it, and made Treaſurers over the Stores to regulate this Abuſe. The Prophet Malachi taxes the Jews, that (m) they had robbed GOD in tythes and offerings; and to prevent it, he orders them to bring all their tythes into the ſtore-houſe. Nehemiah (n) redreſſeth the Profanation of the Sabbath, and when that was done, the Prophet Malachi (o) reproves their Unwillingneſs to perform their Duties. Ezra the Anno 424.

Prieſt, and Nehemiah, (o) bring the People into a ſtrict Covenant with GOD, and (p) the Prophet Malachi reproves them for their Corrupting this Covenant of Levi; and therefore he could not utter his Propheſy many Years after this Time. He concludes with (q) Turning them to the Study of Moſes and the Old Teſtament, that they might not expect any new Revelations, and (r) ſpeaks of Elijah the Prophet, or (s) John the Baptiſt, and that he ſhould come immediately before that great and dreadful Time of CHRIST's Appearing in the Fleſh, and before he ſhould ſmite the Land of Canaan with a Curſe, and take away both their place and nation. Before his Departure out of the World, the Spirit of Propheſy departed alſo, and was a Stranger among the Jews until the Publication, that (t) the kingdom of GOD was at hand, or the MESSIAS was born among them. This is a plain Evidence, that the Apocryphal Books, which were written in the Times between, were not written by divine Inſpiration, like the other Scriptures, and therefore need not to be conſider'd at this Time.

52. There is indeed one Part of (u) Nehemiah, which ſeems to be of a much later Date, becauſe therein is twice Mention made of (x) Jaddua the High Prieſt, who met Alexander the Great when he came to Jeruſalem. It is plain that Nehemiah could not live ſo long as this; ſince from the Time that he had his Commiſſion to repair Jeruſalem, in the twentieth Year of Artaxerxes, when he could not but be of a conſiderable Age, to the firſt Year when Jaddua was High Prieſt, was 104 Years. It is juſtly ſuppos'd therefore by (y) others, that this was inſerted into the Book of Nehemiah by Simon the High Prieſt, who was the Son of Onias, and was ſirnam'd the Juſt, and of whom the Author of (z) Eccleſiaſticus gives us an excellent and a deſerved Character. The Interruption which is made thereby, in the Senſe and Connexion of that Book, doth plainly ſhew it. And it may be farther confirm'd by (a) the laſt Verſe thereof, in which the Author having reckon'd up ſeveral Names, adds theſe Words, Theſe were in the days of Joiakim the ſon of Jeſhua, the ſon of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah the governour, and of Ezra the prieſt, the ſcribe. It would be ſtrange for Nehemiah to write of himſelf in this Manner, and implies him to be as certainly dead, as the reſt were in the Days of Jaddua the High Prieſt, or the Time when this was wrote. The whole is of no great Moment, containing only a Catalogue of the Prieſts and Levites, which came up from Babylon with Zerubbabel, as alſo the Succeſſion of the High Prieſts, and the chief of the Levites. It ſeems to be inſerted by Simon, that he might have an Opportunity of Recording the Names of the High Prieſts from the Return out of Babylon, to the Time of his own Grandfather, and thought moſt proper to inſert them here, after the Catalogue of the principal Men, who were choſen by Lot to dwell at Jeruſalem.

Anno 444. 340.

53. As for Simon the High Prieſt, the Story is thus: He (b) was the Preſident of the Great Synagogue, which reſided at Jeruſalem, and conſiſted of an hundred and twenty Elders, who ſucceeding ſome after others in a continual Series from the Return of the Jews out of Babylon to this Time, labour'd in the Reſtoring of the Jewiſh Church and State in that Country; and in order to this, the Holy Scriptures being the Rule, by which they were to walk, their chief Care and Study was to make a true Collection of the Scriptures, and publiſh them accurately to the People. Ezra and the Men of the great Synagogue, who liv'd in his Time, completed it till then. The Books, which were afterward added, were the two Books of Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Eſther and Malachi. It is plain, that theſe could not be put into the Canon by Ezra; for four of theſe Books (that is, the two Books of Chronicles, and the Books of Ezra and Eſther) are ſuppos'd to be written by himſelf. The Book of Nehemiah was written after his Time, and ſo moſt likely was the Book of Malachi alſo. So that a later Date muſt be aſſign'd for their Inſertion into the Canon, and none is more likely than that of Simon the Juſt, who is ſaid to be the laſt of the Men of the great Synagogue, and ſo might ſettle theſe ſacred Books in the ſame Order that we find them in our Hebrew Bibles. And tho' the Spirit of Propheſy, as it related to future Events, or immediate Revelations was now ceas'd; yet in a bare Collection of Names he might be ſo aſſiſted, as to make no Miſtake, and likewiſe be directed to inſert them, where they are. For we may ſafely conclude, that he being ſo pious and good a Man, would never have done it, without a ſufficient Warrant for ſuch a Purpoſe.

BOOK VIII. and LAST.

CHAP. I.

From the Birth of CHRIST to the Compleating of the Canon of the New Teſtament.

WHEN the Time was (a) fully come, which GOD by his Providence had fore-ordain'd, and by his Prophets had foretold, he ſent his SON our LORD and SAVIOUR JESUS CHRIST into the World, who accordingly was conceiv'd by the HOLY GHOST, and born of the Virgin Mary. The Deſign of his Coming was to fulfil all the Types and Propheſies which related to him, to put an End to the Jewiſh Law, to deliver us out of that miſerable State, into which we had been plung'd by the Fall of our firſt Parents, to ſatisfy divine Juſtice for the Sins of the World by his Sufferings, to purchaſe for us an Inheritance in the Kingdom of Heaven by his Obedience, and to be a Mediator between GOD the FATHER and us, both in Reſpect of Interceſſion and Redemption. The Time when he was born was remarkable upon ſeveral Accounts. It was when (b) Daniel's ſeventy weeks were almoſt ended, according to the lateſt and largeſt Computation. It was whilſt the ſecond Temple was ſtanding; ſo that (as the (c) Prophet Malachi ſaid) The LORD, whom the Jews did ſeek, did come into it; and this (as the (d) Prophet Haggai foretold) made the glory of that latter houſe to be greater than that of the former, becauſe he, who was the deſire of all nations, came and honour'd it with his Preſence. It was at a Time when the Jewiſh Polity was in a low Condition; for (as (e) Jacob had mention'd long before) the ſcepter was departed from Judah, and Herod an Idumæan was ſet upon the Throne, and ſoon after it was made a Province of the Roman Empire. Beſides, there was no longer a lawgiver of that Tribe, but they were ſo wholly govern'd by the Decrees of the Senate of Rome, that foreign Puniſhments, ſuch as Crucifixion, unknown in the Law of Moſes, were inflicted on Malefactors, and it (f) was not lawful for the Jews to put any man to death, but they were oblig'd to apply to the Roman Governors on ſuch Occaſions. It was at a Time, when there was a general Expectation of his Birth, and upon the Rumour thereof Herod inquires, (g) where CHRIST is born, not in the leaſt doubting, but that it was really ſo; and the Anſwer return'd by the chief Prieſts and Scribes, intimates that they did acquieſce in the ſame Opinion. And St. John's Diſciples ask, (h) Art thou he that is come? or muſt we look for another of the ſame Nature? And this made (i) Anna the Propheteſs ſpeak of him in particular to all thoſe, who at that Time looked for redemption in Jeruſalem, tho' they could not tell how it ſhould be accompliſh'd. There was alſo an Expectation of the ſame Nature in the Gentile World, both Eaſt and Weſt. The (k) wiſe men came from the eaſt, ſaying, Where is he that is born king of the Jews? For we have ſeen his ſtar in the eaſt, and are come to worſhip him. Joſephus (l) tells us of a Propheſy, that in thoſe days there ſhould come one out of Judea, who ſhould have the command of the whole world; and that this was the chief Motive to their unfortunate War with the Romans. This is the ſame Word for Word, which (m) Suetonius ſaith, was an antient and a conſtant Opinion, and the common Report was, that it would be fulfill'd at that Time. And (n) Tacitus another Roman Hiſtorian gives us the ſame Account of ſuch an Expectation. It is ſaid, that (o) Auguſtus Ceſar, in whoſe Time our SAVIOUR was born, ſent to the Oracle, to know who ſhould reign after him, and that the Devil, who ſpake from thence, return'd this Anſwer, That an Hebrew Child had commanded him to depart from his Seat, and remitted him to his ſad Doom, and that therefore they ſhould forbear from Making any farther Addreſſes to him. And what (p) Virgil applies to the Son of Pollio, was taken from ſome Propheſies among the Romans, which pointed at our SAVIOUR as the Son of GOD, who at that Time ſhould come down from Heaven, and take away the Sins of the whole World. It was at a Time, when Auguſtus Ceſar was Emperor of Rome, and conſequently of all the known Countries, who was the juſteſt and beſt of all the Heathens, that ever ſway'd the Scepter. And it was at ſuch a Time of his Reign, when the Temple of Janus was ſhut up in Rome, tho' it was always open whilſt there were any Wars. This happen'd only five Times, from the firſt Building of Rome till then, which contain'd the Space of ſeven hundred and fifty Years. The (q) firſt Time was in the Reign of Numa. The ſecond (r) at the End of the firſt Carthaginian War. The third (s) when Auguſtus had vanquiſh'd Anthony and Cleopatra, and reduc'd thereby the whole Empire to a quiet Submiſſion to him, which happen'd nine and twenty Years before the Birth of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Account. The fourth Time (t) was four Years after, when Auguſtus return'd from the War, which he had with the Cantabrians in Spain. And the fifth Time (u) was in this Year, under the Reign of the ſame Auguſtus. For now there was a general Peace all over the World, and that which made it more remarkable was, that it continu'd for twelve Years together. So that now (x) Mercy and truth did meet together; and righteouſneſs and peace did kiſs each other. Truth did ſpring out of the earth, and righteouſneſs did look down from heaven. And all theſe did go before the (y) Child that now was born, and the ſon, which now was given, and who was called in a more eminent Manner The prince of peace, and (z) The LORD our righteouſneſs. And more particularly it was at a Time, when Auguſtus Ceſar had iſſu'd out a Decree, for the Taking a Deſcription, or Survey of the whole Roman Empire, containing an Account of all the Perſons, Poſſeſſions, and Eſtates therein, and the Taxes iſſuable from them. And it was this Year executed in Judea, in the ſame Manner as St. Luke relates. This occaſion'd Jo-Joſeph and Mary to go to Bethlehem, there to be regiſter'd among their own Relations, and by this Providence our SAVIOUR was born in that City, according as it was (a) foretold by the Prophet Micah, and indiſputably own'd to be (b) of the houſe and lineage of David, exactly as it was written in (c) the Pſalms, and (d) other Places of Scripture concerning him. In this Reſpect the Providence of GOD was more remarkable, when we conſider, that Auguſtus Ceſar had decreed about eight and twenty Years before the Birth of CHRIST, that (e) there ſhould have been an Enrolling of the whole Empire, and proclaim'd it in Tarracon a City of Spain, after the Cantabri had been reduc'd by him; for he conceiv'd that to be a fit Time, when the Roman Empire ſeem'd to be at Quiet. His Deſign was to know the Strength or Weakneſs of every Province, that he might the better govern them in Time of Peace, and what Number of Forces could ſuppreſs them in Caſe of an Inſurrection. But finding afterward ſome unexpected Commotions, he deferr'd it to the fourth Year before the real Time in which CHRIST was born. So long had the Taking of this Deſcription or Survey been Carrying on thro' Syria, Cæloſyria, Phænicia and Judæa, before it came to Bethlehem. Had it been done before, there might have been no need of it now; and then Joſeph and Mary would neither have had the Occaſion of Going from Nazareth to their native City, or of being enroll'd. But what ſhall we ſay to theſe things? Every Particular as the LORD's doing, and it may well be wonderful in our eyes.

2. How long it was ſince the Birth of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Computation, to this Time, is well known to every one. But the firſt Year from whence it began, inſtead of being one Year, happens to be three Years and ſeventy nine Days later than the real Time. This Difference proceeded from hence, that it was not till the 527th Year according to that Computation, when it was firſt brought into Uſe. Till then ſome reckon'd by the Æra of Nabonaſſar, ſome from the firſt Olympiad, ſome from the Building of Rome, and ſome by other Accounts. But at this Time (f) Dionyſius Exiguus, a Scythian by Birth, and then a Roman Abbot, was the firſt Author of it; and Beda, our Countryman, taking it from him, us'd it in all his Writings; and the Recommendation which he gave it thereby, hath made it of common Uſe among Chriſtians ever ſince, eſpecially in theſe weſtern Parts. If all Chriſtians had computed their Time by it from the Beginning of the Church of CHRIST, there could have then been no Miſtake. But it being ſo long after his Incarnation before this Æra of it was ever us'd, it is no Wonder, that it happen'd not to be rightly fix'd at the firſt Attempt. The Reaſon of Fixing it in this Manner was this: It evidently appears from (g) St. Luke, that in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Ceſar John the ſon of Zachariah came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptiſm of repentance for the remiſſion of ſins. Upon this our SAVIOUR was baptiz'd of him, when (h) he began to be about thirty years of age. After this St. John reckons four Paſſovers during the publick Miniſtry of CHRIST, who was crucify'd on the laſt of them. The Day of the Paſſover on which he was crucify'd, happening this Year to be upon a Friday, or (i) the day of their preparation, when the ſabbath drew on, was a convincing Argument, that this was the Year of his Crucifixion, as it really was; and from thence it was concluded, that he was crucify'd on the Paſſover, in the thirty third Year of his Age.

3. The Diſcovery of the Miſtake, which happen'd concerning the Year of his Birth, was occaſion'd by a more ſtrict Inquiry into the Roman Hiſtory, by which it (k) appears, that Herod died ſome Time before the Birth of CHRIST, according to this Computation, in a Year, when the Moon was ſuppos'd to have been eclips'd in the Spring, and as (l) Joſephus intimates, between that and the following Paſſover, five Days after the Death of Antipater, four and thirty Years after the Expulſion of Antigonus, and in the thirty ſeventh Year of his being declar'd King of the Jews by the Romans. Whereas it is plain from (m) Scripture, that this Herod intended the Murder of our SAVIOUR, deſtroy'd all the Children of Bethlehem for his Sake, and died, after he had been carry'd into Egypt to avoid the ſame Fate.

4. To ſet this Matter right we muſt own (as (n) St. Luke tells us) that the word of GOD firſt came to John the ſon of Zacharias in the fifteenth year of Tiberius Ceſar Emperor of Rome. But then it muſt be obſerv'd, that this fifteenth Year of Tiberius could not be his fifteenth Year from the Death of Auguſtus his Predeceſſor, as Dionyſius reckon'd it, becauſe it is not conſiſtent with the Death of Herod: And beſides, in this Caſe there would have been but four Years for the Miniſtry of John the Baptiſt, and the perſonal Miniſtry of CHRIST put both together, which Time would have been too narrow a Space for the Actions, which are recorded of them both in the Goſpels. Beſides, in ſo ſhort a Time as muſt be allow'd to the Miniſtry of John in this Caſe, it is not likely, that he ſhould have acquir'd that great Fame, as appears not only (o) by the Goſpels, but alſo from (p) the Writings of Joſephus the Hiſtorian, that he had obtain'd not only in Judæa and Galilee, but alſo throughout the circumjacent Regions before his Death. The fifteenth Year therefore of the Reign of Tiberius Ceſar, (q) in which John the Baptiſt began to preach, muſt be reckon'd from that Time, when he, being the Daughter of Livia by a former Husband, and now Wife to Auguſtus, began to reign jointly with him, and was, according to (r) Velleius Paterculus, and (s) Suetonius, admitted by him into a Copartnerſhip with him in the Empire; and by a Law (which Auguſtus caus'd to be propos'd and enacted by the Conſuls) had conferr'd on him an equal Power in the Government of the Provinces with Auguſtus himſelf. This was in the 41ſt Year of the Reign of Auguſtus Ceſar, and three Years before his Death, which makes the Difference of the three Years already mention'd. For from that Time the publick Acts went in his Name, as well as in the Name of Auguſtus, eſpecially in the Imperial Provinces, of which (t) Syria was one. And therefore from that Time the Years of his Reign were reckon'd in thoſe Provinces. And this happen'd, as (u) the moſt learned Archbiſhop Uſher obſerves, in the Year of the Julian Period 4725, and the fifteenth Year from thence brings us to the Year of the Julian Period 4739, in which the Word of GOD came to John the Baptiſt, and the Preaching of the Goſpel firſt began. And then it was, that CHRIST by his Forerunner manifeſted his Coming, and made his firſt Appearance in that great Work of our Salvation, on which he was ſent; and ſoon after was (x) baptiz'd of John in the River of Jordan, when he enter'd upon the thirtieth Year of his Age, or was juſt turn'd of nine and twenty. So that from the Year of the Julian Period 4739, by ſubſtracting 29, the Remainder is 4710, or the Year of the World 4005, which was the real Year of CHRIST's Birth, or Annus Æræ Chriſtianæ 00.

and

6. This Year is remarkable, becauſe it happen'd to be the Year of Jubilee. The Time of the Year is alſo as remarkeble, as being on the fifteenth Day of the Month Tiſri, or the Day when the Feaſt of Tabernacles began, which was a plain Type of our SAVIOUR's Incarnation, when, as (y) St John ſaith, he was made fleſh, ὁ ἐσκήνωσεν ἐν ἡμῖν, and pitched his tabernacle among us. The Day alſo was as remarkable, being that Year on the ſeventh Day of October, which happen'd to be a Sunday, and the ſame Day of the Week which he intended to conſecrate by his Reſurrection, as the Day of the Chriſtian Sabbath. On this Day he was born. At this Time the Shepherds having kept a Watch over their Flocks by Night, heard the Angels ſay unto them, Fear not, for behold I bring unto you glad tidings of great joy, which ſhall be unto all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a SAVIOUR, which is CHRIST the LORD. At this Time the multitude of the heavenly hoſt praiſed GOD and ſaid, Glory be to GOD on high, and on earth peace, and good will to men. On this Day the Shepherds came to Bethlehem in haſte, and found Joſeph and Mary, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had ſeen him, they made known abroad the ſaying, which was told them concerning this child. And thus when the Sound of the Rams-Horns, as commanded in the Year of Jubilee but five Days before, had publiſh'd a Liberty to Servants, and that the Lands which had been alienated ſhould be reſtor'd to their antient Owners; even then the Angels from Heaven declare our Redemption and Liberty from the Tyranny of Sin and Satan, and that we ſhould be reſtor'd to all the Privileges which we had formerly loſt. But this being mention'd more at large in the fourth Book, and in a Chapter on this Subject, needs not to be again repeated.

7. The Time of our SAVIOUR's Birth being fix'd, and alſo the Year of his Crucifixion, there are ſeveral other Particulars depending thereon, which may eaſily be fix'd alſo. Thus the Angel appear'd to Zacharias (z) ſix Months before our SAVIOUR's Conception, and fifteen Months before his Birth. Zacharias was (a) a Prieſt of the courſe of Abia, which was (b) the eighth Courſe, and (c) as he executed the prieſts office before GOD in the order of his courſe according to the prieſts office, the angel of the LORD appeared to him. This Courſe began in the former Year, on (d) Saturday the twenty fourth Day of June, and ended on Saturday the firſt Day of July, Anno Mundi 4004. About the eighth Day of July Elizabeth conceives. About the firſt Day of January in the following Year Anno Mundi 4005, the Virgin Mary (e) receives the Meſſage from the Angel, and ſhe alſo conceives. Upon the 13th of April, or the Day of the Feaſt of unleavened Bread, John the Baptiſt was born. Upon the ſeventh Day of October, or the firſt Day of the Feaſt of Tabernacles, our SAVIOUR was born. On the fourteenth Day of October, the two and twentieth Day of the ſeventh Month, or the laſt Day of the Feaſt, (f) he was circumcis'd. On the fortieth Day after his Birth, or the fifteenth Day of November, he was (g) brought to be preſented in the Temple to GOD, on the Day that his Mother was purify'd, according to (h) the Law of Moſes. Soon after this Joſeph his Father was (i) warn'd to flee with him, and his Mother into Egypt. And about a Year after, or ſomething more, or upon the twenty eighth of December (at leaſt nothing appears to the contrary) the Children in and about Bethlehem were ſlain for his Sake.

Immediately upon this, Herod, who order'd this Maſſacre, was ſeiz'd with a violent Diſtemper, of which he died not long before the Paſſover, in the ſecond Year following the Birth of CHRIST, which happen'd on or about the twentieth Day of April. The ſame Summer (k) Joſeph returns from Egypt, and dwells at Nazareth. When our SAVIOUR was (l) twelve Years of Age, he diſputeth with the Doctors in the Temple. When he was entring upon the thirtieth Year of his Age, he was (m) baptiz'd by St. John in the River Jordan, ſoon after he had begun the Courſe of his Miniſtry, which St. Mark calls (n) The beginning of the goſpel of JESUS CHRIST the SON of GOD. Three Years after this our SAVIOUR begins alſo to preach, and work Miracles, about the Feaſt of Tabernacles, when he enter'd upon the thirty third Year of his Age, and continu'd ſo to do for the Space of three Years and an half, until the Time of the Paſſover, when he was crucify'd. For the Methodizing of all theſe Actions, we muſt obſerve, That St. Mark is allow'd by all to have plac'd thoſe which he mentions in their exact Order. He was at Jeruſalem when he wrote it, the Place where all theſe things were done, and wrote by the Direction of St. Peter, who was the Apoſtle of the Circumciſion, and reſided there, and therefore had the fitteſt Opportunity for that Purpoſe. St. Mark being very ſhort, St. Matthew takes many of thoſe Stories, and adds to them ſeveral others, which had been omitted. It is plain, that St. Mark's Goſpel was by him, when he wrote his own, becauſe he not only mentions the ſame Stories, but alſo uſeth in many Places the very ſame Words. He alſo obſerves an exact Chronological Order, except from the End of the ſeventh Chapter (o) to the Beginning of the fourteenth, where he makes a Variation, that he might firſt place together the Miracles of OUR SAVIOUR for the Good of the Bodies of others, and after that his Commiſſioning his Apoſtles to preach, and his own Preaching for the Good of their Souls. St. Luke writes by the Direction of St. Paul, and had the Goſpels of St Matthew and St. Mark before him at the ſame Time, and accordingly he takes ſome Stories out of the one, and ſome out of the other, and is of ſingular Uſe to reduce into their proper Order thoſe Stories of St. Matthew, which are omitted by St. Mark. He alſo follows an exact Order. His fourth Chapter begins with the Account of CHRIST's Temptation in the Wilderneſs, in the ſame Manner with St. Matthew; then he adds ſeveral Stories, which were recited by the other Evangeliſts, and then proceeds to a (p) particular Account of many things omitted by them, which happen'd not long before OUR SAVIOUR's Crucifixion. St. John writes after the reſt, and it is probable, that he had the Writings of the other three before him at that Time. His chief Deſign was to mention thoſe Particulars which the others had omitted, and therefore he takes Care to ſpeak of different Actions and Diſcourſes. Thus there is a wonderful Harmony in theſe Evangeliſts, which plainly ſhews the wonderful Wiſdom of GOD in Directing them in ſuch a Manner. Beſides, the things, in which they vary, are very remarkable. The Hiſtory in the Minority of CHRIST, which was mention'd by St. Matthew, receives very conſiderable Additions from St. Luke; ſo that there was no Neceſſity for St. Mark or St. John to ſay any more on that Subject. St. Matthew recites his Genealogy from Joſeph, and St. Luke from the Virgin Mary, that there might be no Diſpute of either Side. Theſe Accounts plainly prove him to be Man, in Oppoſition to ſome Hereſies which afterward ſprang up, and therefore it was more neceſſary, that St. John in the Beginning of his Goſpel ſhould aſſert his Divinity, as he did in Oppoſition to the Hereſies which were actually ſprang up when he wrote. The chief Particulars which they all relate, are his Paſſion, Death and Reſurrection. And it was neceſſary that theſe things ſhould be mention'd by all, being the grand Articles of our Faith, and the Foundation of all our Hope. As for the Settling the whole in a Chronological Order, it muſt be obſerv'd, Firſt, That where two or three Evangeliſts have join'd any one Story to ſome other either before or after, they have laid it in its proper Place. Thus the Story of St. Peter's Denial of CHRIST muſt be laid where (q) St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke hath plac'd it, and (r) St. John varies from them for a particular Reaſon. Secondly, Where St. Matthew varies from the others, he muſt be rectify'd by St. Mark or St. Luke, as in the Chapters above-mention'd. Thirdly, That all thoſe Stories, which were related by two of them in the ſame Manner, and with the ſame Circumſtances, as we find them referr'd to in the Margin of our Bibles, were the ſame Stories, and not acted at different Times, except the excellent Sermon mention'd by (s) St. Matthew and (t) St. Luke, which are very much alike, but may be diſtinguiſh'd by theſe following Circumſtances: The one was (u) ſpoken from a Mountain, the other (x) from a Plain. The one was ſpoken (y) before the Calling of the twelve Apoſtles, and the other was (z) after it. The one is generally own'd to be his firſt Diſcourſe, when (a) the People came not to hear him, but to be heal'd of their Diſeaſes, and accordingly (b) were aſtoniſh'd when they found that his Preaching was not inferior to his other Miracles. So that the firſt of theſe Diſcourſes muſt be before the firſt Paſſover, and the other was (c) after it. As for the particular Times of theſe Tranſactions, it is plain, that (d) St. John mentions his Crucifixion to have been on the Day of the Paſſover, which was on the fourteenth Day of the firſt Month, or on the full Moon, and this Year happen'd upon a Friday, becauſe it was the Day of the Preparation for the Sabbath; and this is allow'd by all to have been Anno Chriſti 33, according to the Vulgar Account. As for a more particular Diſtinction of the Years of OUR SAVIOUR's Miniſtry, St. Luke divides his Goſpel into five Parts. Firſt, From the Time of his Entrance thereon (e) to the firſt Sabbath after the firſt Sabbath of his firſt Year. Secondly, What happen'd on that Sabbath. Thirdly, What happen'd on (f) the Sabbath following. Fourthly, What (g) happen'd after that, until his Crucifixion was near: And laſtly. What (h) happen'd near his Crucifixion. And this St. John more exactly divides into the Space from the Beginning to (i) the firſt Paſſover, then (k) to the ſecond, then (l) to the third, then (m) to the Feaſt of Tabernacles in the ſeventh Month, then to (n) the Feaſt of the Dedication in the ninth Month, then (o) to the ſixth Day before his laſt Paſſover. After this it is (p) unanimouſly agreed, that he reſted in the Grave on the Day after the Paſſover, or on the Jewiſh Sabbath, and (q) roſe from the Dead on the firſt Day of the Week, being Sunday, or the Day following, when he appear'd to his Diſciples. The (r) Sunday following he appear'd to them again. Forty Days after his Reſurrection, he (s) aſcended into Heaven. After that (t) Matthias was choſen to be an Apoſtle. Fifty Days after his Reſurrection, or on (u) Sunday the Day of Pentecoſt the Apoſtles were inſpir'd with the HOLY GHOST. And ſome Part of their Preaching is mention'd to be before (x) the Dearth in the Reign of Claudius Ceſar, and ſome Part to be after it. St. Paul gives us (y) ſeveral Hints to diſtinguiſh the Tranſactions of his Miniſtry. And St. John (z) ſaith, that he wrote his Revelations, when he was baniſh'd into Patmos, which (a) is generally allow'd to be in the Reign of Domitian Emperor of Rome, and in the 96th Year of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Account. All theſe are Guides and Helps to direct us in Fixing the Chronology of the New Teſtament, as it will more evidently appear in the following Tables. They who are willing to be acquainted with the ſacred Hiſtory of the New Teſtament (as every one ought to be) may conſult the divinely inſpired Writers themſelves with the beſt Succeſs; and if they are willing to add others of human Compoſure to them, they may be abundantly furniſh'd from the Right Reverend Biſhop Taylor in his Life of CHRIST, and the Learned Dr. Cave in his Lives of the Apoſtles, or from (b) other Authors, who have written on the ſame Subject, and whoſe Works are printed in our own Language.

(k) Matth. 2. 19 to the End. (l) Luke 2. 41, 42. (m) Matth. 3. 13 to the End. Mark 1. 9, and Luke 3. 21. (n) Mark 1. 1. (o) Or more particularly to Chap. 13. 53. (p) Luke 9. 51. (q) Matth. 26. 69 to the End. Mark 14. 66 to the End. Luke 22. 54 to 63. (r) John 13. 36 to the End. (s) Matth. Chap. 5, 6, 7. (t) Luke 6. 20 to the End. (u) Matth. 5. 1. (x) Luke 6. 17.

8. The Time of the Birth of our SAVIOUR being fix'd, there remains but one Difficulty more, which is concerning the Time of the Death of Herod. They who have plac'd it on the ſeventh Day of the Month Chiſleu, or about the latter End of our November, depend only on the Authority of a Jewiſh Calendar, which is not ſufficient to bear the Weight laid upon it, it being uncertain when it was written, or by whom, or upon what Deſign. And as the Jews were the worſt of Chronologers, ſo they were the bittereſt Enemies of the New Teſtament; and therefore the Author might add this to make its Hiſtory the more ſuſpected. Joſephus, one of their own Nation, (c) gives us a better and more impartial Account of this Matter. He ſaith (d) that Herod intending to deſtroy his own Son Antipater, was diverted, by a ſudden Fit of Sickneſs, from the Execution of it. After this he grew every day weaker and weaker. His Diſeaſe was an univerſal Pain from Head to Foot, a violent Fever, an intolerable Itching all over his Body, Cholick, Dropſical Humours, Wind in his Stomach, ſome Parts of his Body putrify'd and crawling with Worms, Difficulty of Breathing, broken Sighs, Contraction of the Nerves, and Convulſions in all Parts. The Jews themſelves look'd upon it as a Judgment from GOD for his many Barbarities, and we Chriſtians may add in particular, for the Murder of the innocent Children at Bethlehem, which happen'd not long before. In the Midſt of this Judas the Son of Sariphæus, and Matthias the Son of Margalothus, ſtirr'd up the People to pull down the golden Eagle of a prodigious Weight and Value, which Herod had caus'd to be ſet up over the Portal of the Temple, as a Profanation of that holy Place. Whilſt they were making an Oration for this Purpoſe, a falſe Rumour was ſpread abroad, that the King was dead; upon which the Mob roſe, tore down the Eagle at Noon-day, and cut it to Pieces with their Axes, in the Sight of a vaſt Multitude. The Soldiers by Force ſuppreſs the Tumult, and ſeize the two Leaders, and many others with them; and Herod orders the two Leaders of the Faction to be burnt alive, and that the Heads of thoſe who were taken together, ſhould be ſtruck off by the common Hangman, which was done accordingly; and the Night following the Moon ſuffer'd an Eclipſe. After this Herod tries all Sorts of Remedies in Hope of a Cure. His Phyſicians advis'd him to go over Jordan to the hot Baths of Callirrhoe, which empty themſelves into the Lake of Aſphaltites. Whilſt he was here, his Embaſſadors brought him Word from Auguſtus Ceſar, that Antipater was left to Herod to do as he pleas'd, either by Death or Baniſhment. Upon this there was a ſecond Report of the King's Death, which Antipater believing, treats with his Keeper with large Offers and Promiſes for his Diſcharge, who telling the whole to Herod, he orders one of the Guards to go that very Moment and kill him; and he himſelf liv'd but five Days longer, having firſt alter'd his Will, and declar'd Archelaus his Succeſſor, provided the ſame was confirm'd by Auguſtus Ceſar. His Death was kept ſecret for a little while, but as ſoon as it was known, a Tumult little leſs than a Rebellion was rais'd againſt Archelaus, upon the Account of thoſe who were executed for Pulling down the Golden Eagle, which made a terrible Uproar in the Temple in the Time of the Paſſover. So that the Time of his Death was near the Paſſover, and in a Year when there was an Eclipſe of the Moon about two or three Months before.

9. It is certain, that this Eclipſe did not happen in the Year immediately after our SAVIOUR's Birth, or of the Julian Period 4711. This Year a new Moon happen'd at Jeruſalem on the 15th Day of February, at about forty Minutes after one of the Clock. At this Time the Moon was ſo near the Node, that ſhe had but five Seconds of North Latitude. So that here was a very large and total Eclipſe of the Sun, but it happen'd to be ſo much to the South of Jeruſalem, as not to be viſible there at all; and at the Full both before and after the Latitude of the Moon was ſo great, that there was no Eclipſe.

10. But it is very probable, that this Eclipſe happen'd in the Year after, upon the 20th Day of January. At this Time the Sun did ſet at Jeruſalem at four Minutes paſt five of the Clock, and the Middle of the Eclipſe was about two Minutes before. The Moon roſe totally eclips'd, and continu'd ſo for a conſiderable Time, and did not recover her Light until above an Hour and an half after, when it was totally dark; and therefore it happen'd at a Time when moſt People might obſerve it, and was three Months before the Paſſover. There was indeed a total Eclipſe of the Moon, and much more central than the other; on the tenth Day of January, in the Year following. But as it was at too great a Diſtance from the Birth of our SAVIOUR; ſo the Middle thereof happening at Jeruſalem about half an Hour after two of the Clock in the Morning, and being when the Inhabitants were in their Beds, there were but few, who could make their Obſervations of it, ſo as to remember it for ſo long a Time after. And as for thoſe which happen'd after the Birth of CHRIST, according to the Vulgar Account, they are all at too great a Diſtance from the Paſſover to correſpond with the Hiſtory of Joſephus, which in this Caſe may be of undoubted Credit.

11. The true Matter of Fact is therefore this: Our SAVIOUR being born on the ſeventh Day of October as aforeſaid in the 4710th Year of the Julian Period, was circumcis'd on the eighth Day, and preſented in the Temple on the fortieth Day after, according to the Law of Moſes. All this was done before the wiſe Men came from the Eaſt to Jeruſalem, to enquire concerning him; for upon their Coming, Herod the King, and the whole City, were under ſuch a Conſternation, that it would not have been any Way ſafe for Joſeph and his Mother to have adventur'd thither with him, and ſo they (a) return to their own City Nazareth. Some time after, and perhaps in the Spring, the wiſe Men came from the Eaſt, to enquire where they might find him that was born King of the Jews? Herod enquires of the Scribes, where he ſhould be born? They tell him, In Bethlehem. He ſends the wiſe Men to Bethlehem. We do not read whether they went thither or not, but only that they follow'd the Guidance of the Star, till it came and ſtood over the Houſe, where the young Child was; which might have been in Nazareth as well as Bethlehem. When they ſee him, they offer him Gold, and Frankincenſe and Myrrh. This muſt be after the Preſenting of him in the Temple; for otherwiſe the Gold which they brought, muſt have been ſufficient to purchaſe a Lamb for the Purification of the Bleſſed Virgin, which the Law of Moſes did (b) poſitively require, inſtead of (c) the Pair of Turtle Doves, or two young Pigeons. Joſeph and Mary being warn'd by an Angel, and having ſufficient to live upon by this wonderful Providence, depart into Egypt with the young Child, and Herod waits for the Return of the wiſe Men to the End of the Year. When our SAVIOUR was enter'd on the ſecond Year of his Age, Herod could wait no longer, but orders all the Children in and about Bethlehem, under two Years old, to be ſlain, ſuppoſing that CHRIST being of a middle Age could not eſcape. Soon after this Herod was taken ill of a very ſtrange Diſtemper, which every one look'd upon as a Judgment from GOD. Judas and Matthias incenſe the People to deſtroy the Golden Eagle ſet up before the Portal of the Temple, and were burnt alive for the ſame. This happen'd on the twentieth Day of January; upon which Evening the Moon was eclips'd. Herod grows worſe and worſe, alters his Will, and declares Archelaus his Succeſſor. He dies. His Death is kept ſecret for a few Days, but known a little before the Paſſover, which this Year happen'd about the nineteenth Day of April, when a violent Tumult was rais'd in the Temple to embroil the Government, before it was ſettl'd. As ſoon as it was ſuppreſs'd, Archelaus goes to Rome to have his Father's Will confirm'd by Auguſtus Ceſar, and leaves the Care of his Kingdom and Family in his Abſence to his Brother Philip. Auguſtus confirms the Will, and Archelaus comes back to his Kingdom as faſt as he could. Whilſt Philip govern'd, Joſeph returns out of Egypt, but coming to the Frontiers of Judea, he hears that Archelaus was come back, and had taken the Government upon him. This makes him afraid to go thither, and ſo he fetches a Compaſs round, and with the Virgin and our SAVIOUR he takes up his Abode at Nazareth, which muſt therefore moſt probably be in October, in the Beginning of the third Year of CHRIST's Life. Thus the Scripture Hiſtory is conſiſtent with it ſelf, and with other Authors, and is moſt fully confirm'd by Aſtronomical Obſervations.

10. There hath been a late Controverſy ſtarted concerning the Day, on which our SAVIOUR ſuffer'd, whether it was upon the fourteenth or fifteenth Day of the firſt Month Niſan or Abib. It is certain, that the Feaſt of the Paſſover was upon the fourteenth Day of this Month, when they (d) kill'd the Lamb; and to this St. Paul alludes, when he ſaith, (e) that CHRIST our Paſſover is ſacrific'd for us; and St. Peter alſo, when he ſaith, (f) that we are redeem'd by the precious blood of CHRIST JESUS, as a lamb without blemiſh, and without ſpot, which was exactly true of (g) the Lambs ſlain at that Time. And St. John alludes to the ſame, when he tells us, (h) that the Scripture was fulfill'd, which was written of him, A bone of him ſhall not be broken. Beſides, he tells us plainly, that on the Day of his Crucifixion, (i) the Jews went not themſelves into the judgment-hall, leſt they ſhould (k) be defiled, but that they alſo might eat the Paſſover. The Argument to the contrary is, that (l) CHRIST did eat the Paſſover the Night before with his Diſciples; and therefore that was the fourteenth Day. But to this it is anſwer'd, (m) that as in (n) extraordinary Caſes the Paſſover was deferr'd for a Month; ſo ſometimes in ſuch Caſes it was anticipated for a Day before. This made the Diſtinction between that Paſſover, which was ſacrificial, and that which was commemorative. Now JESUS knew, that he was to die the next Day, and therefore not being to live to the legal Time, he anticipated it, and muſt have done ſo, or not have kept it at all. There was a Neceſſity for him to keep the commemorative Paſſover, that he might inſtitute his own Supper inſtead thereof, and as a Commemoration of ſomething elſe. So that in this Caſe he did all that was poſſible for him to do; and he was ſo far from Breaking the Law of GOD, that he did what was allowable in Caſes of Neceſſity. Thus (o) JESUS ſaith to his Diſciples, Go into the city to ſuch a man, and ſay unto him, The maſter ſaith, My time is at hand, I will keep the paſſover at thy houſe with my diſciples. What we render I will keep, is ποιῶ in the preſent Tenſe, I do keep; that is, I cannot ſtay to the following Day, when the Paſchal Lamb is to be ſacrific'd; but intend forthwith (my time being at hand) to keep the Paſſover with my Diſciples. 'Tis farther obſerv'd, that JESUS is ſaid to eat the Paſſover, but not to ſacrifice it. So that tho' it is granted, that the ſacrificial Paſſover could not be kept out of the legal and appointed Time; yet this doth not infer, but our SAVIOUR might obſerve that which was commemorative. But this Difficulty may alſo be ſolv'd by an Aſtronomical Calculation. It is allow'd by all, that he was crucified on Friday the third Day of April, Anno Chriſti 33, according to the Vulgar Account. If this was the fifteenth Day of the Month, then the Moon muſt have been viſible on the nineteenth Day of March in the Evening immediately before. But if it was the fourteenth, then the Moon was not viſible until the twentieth Day of the ſame Month. I have therefore added the Calculations for both theſe Times with the utmoſt Exactneſs from Mr. Whiſton's Aſtronomical Tables; by which it will more fully appear, that they are not only out in Divinity, but alſo in their Mathematicks, who affirm that our SAVIOUR was crucified on the fifteenth Day; but that it was really on the fourteenth: And ſo he died, when the Paſchal Lamb was ſlain, as the Apoſtles plainly ſhew us in the New Teſtament.

From these two Tables it evidently appears, First, That it was impossible for the new Moon to be seen at Jerusalem on the nineteenth Day of March immediately before the Crucifixion of Our SAVIOUR, and consequently that the Month could not begin on the following Day. For the Difference of the Oblique Descension of the Sun and Moon at the Time of Visibility being but $3^{d}.\ 28^{m}.$ it so happen'd, that when the Moon might have been visible at her setting by Reason of a proper Distance from the Sun, she had been under the Horizon, above half an Hour before. On the other hand it appears, that the next Evening, or on the twentieth Day of March at the time of Visibility the Difference of the Oblique Descensions was $20^{d}.\ 09^{m}.$ occasion'd by the swift Motion of the Moon, her North Latitude, and her being in a Sign of very slow Descension, so that she did not set until an Hour and a Quarter after the Sun: Thus the Moon was very visible on this Evening; and therefore the Month began on the twenty first Day of March, and Our SAVIOUR being crucified on Friday the third Day of April following, was crucified on the fourteenth and not on the fifteenth Day of the said Month.

By other Calculations too tedious to be here inserted it appears, that on the said nineteenth Day of the Month, there was a total Eclipse of the Sun in the more remote southern Parts of the World, and that the Shadow approach'd nearer and nearer to Jerusalem; and therefore when the Sun did set in that City, it was totally eclipsed in the more southern Parts at the same Time, and soon after the Shadow left the Earth. Now no one can imagine, that the Sun can be totally eclipsed in one Part of the World, and the Light of the New Moon can be visible in another Part at the same Time.

Hence it is evident, that Our Blessed LORD and SAVIOUR was crucified on the fourteenth Day of the Jewish Month Nisan or Abib, even upon the Day when the Jews killed and eat the Paschal Lamb: And tho' he kept the Passover the night before; yet even that was most agreeable to the literal Sence of the Hebrew Text, where the Words ירח and חדש, which we translate A Month, are more applicable to the Conjunction than the φάσις, and do properly signify the Moon or the Renovation, which we call the Change; on the fourteenth Day after which, our SAVIOUR observ'd the Passover, as the Jews observed it the Day following, being the fourteenth after the Moon's Appearance.

(g) The Calling of Andrew and Peter is by St. Mark plac'd before its proper Order, which is after Verſe 39, becauſe he having given an Account of St. John's Preaching immediately before, proceeds to give an Account of the two of his Diſciples, which only are mention'd by Name, before he ſpeaks of the Hiſtory of CHRIST's Preaching and Miracles, which he afterward placeth all together without Interruption.

N. B. That there are no other Diſlocations in the remaining Part of St. Mark, St. Luke, and St. John. Thoſe which happen in St. Matthew ſhall be ſpoken of as we come to them, and are eaſily rectify'd by Comparing them with the parallel Hiſtories in the other Evangeliſts.

(h) As this Diſcourſe of St. Matthew is of the ſame Nature with that of St. Luke, Chap. 6. 20 to the End; ſo it hath been ſuppos'd, that they were ſpoken at the ſame Time, and this Suppoſition hath introduc'd very great Diſlocations in St. Matthew. But tho' the Subject is much the ſame, yet it is moſt probable, that they were ſpoken at different Times. For that of St. Matthew was ſpoken on a Mountain, Matth. 5. 1. that of St. Luke on a Plain, Luke 6. 17. In St. Matthew it is ſaid, that he ſat when he ſpake it, Matth. 5. 1. but St. Luke ſaith, that he ſtood at that Time, Luke 6. 17. St. Matthew mentions it before the Election of the Apoſtles, Matth. 10. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. but St. Luke after it, Luke 6. 13, 14, 15, 16. In St. Matthew we may ſuppoſe it to be ſpoken before the ſecond Paſſover, John 5. 1. and in Galilee, Matth. 4. 23. before CHRIST. came to Jeruſalem, John 5. 1. In St. Luke it is plac'd at leaſt three Sabbaths after the ſame Paſſover, Luke 6. 1, 6. when he return'd from Jeruſalem to Capernaum, Luke 7. 1. and ſo went forward to Nain, Luke 7. 11. in his Journey toward other Parts of Galilee. And therefore this being admitted, we need not ſuppoſe any Diſlocation of this Part of the Hiſtory either of St. Matthew or St. Luke; but the Particulars in both, which are both immediately before and after theſe excellent Diſcourſes, are plac'd in their proper Order.

			Peter travelling among the Chriſtians in thoſe Parts came to Lydda, Saron and Joppa, where he raiſeth Tabitha to Life, had a Viſion, that the Gentiles were to be admitted into the Church, converts Cornelius, and baptizeth him and his Houſhold, Acts 9. 32 to the End, and 10 throughout.
4047	39	4752	After ſome ſtay at Caſarea he goes to Jeruſalem, and being blam'd for baptizing Cornelius, he gives a ſatisfactory Anſwer, Acts 11. 1 to 19.
4049	41	4754	Caius Caligula the fourth Roman Emperor dies, January 24. and is ſucceeded by Claudius, (Acts 11. 28.)
			The Goſpel being now preach'd at Antioch not only to the Jews, but alſo to the Greeks, (Acts 11. 19, 20, 21.) the Church of Jeruſalem ſends Barnabas thither, who being a Prophet (as the Name ſignifies, Acts 4. 36.) had Power to officiate in the Church, which an inferior Miniſter could not do, (Acts 15. 32, 35.) He exhorts them to Perſeverance, Acts 11. 22, 23, 24.
4050	42	4755	Saul returns from Cilicia to Tarſus. Barnabas ſeeing the Number of Diſciples at Antioch too great for one Aſſembly, goes to Tarſus, and brings Saul thither to help him, Acts 11. 25.
4051	43	4756	Saul and Barnabas were together at Antioch a whole Year, where the Diſciples were firſt call'd Chriſtians, Acts 11. 26. Here it is ſuppoſ'd, that Luke was converted to be one of their Diſciples.
4052	44	4757	A Famine happening, the Chriſtians at Antioch ſend Relief to thoſe in Judea by Barnabas and Saul, Acts 11. 27, 28, 29, 30.
			Herod kills James, and impriſons Peter, who is deliver'd by an Angel, Acts 12. 1 to Part of 19.

4052	44	4757	After the Paſſover Herod goes to Cæſarea, where he is cried up for a GOD, and dies miſerably, Acts 11. Part of 19 to 24.
			Saul and Barnabas return to Antioch, and take with them John, whoſe Sirname was Mark, Acts 12. 24, 25. He was the Brother of Mary, at whoſe Houſe Peter had his Congregation, when he was at Jeruſalem, (Acts 12. 12.) Barnabas was Mark's Uncle by the Mother's Side, (Col. 4. 10.)
			All this Time Saul and Barnabas officiated only in an inferior Order; ſo that there being as yet no Apoſtle at Antioch, but only five Prophets and Teachers, the HOLY GHOST order'd the other three to ſeparate theſe to the work, to which he had called them, that is, to be Apoſtles, as it appear'd afterward, (Acts 14. 4, 14.) For as ſuch they travell'd, and preach'd and planted Churches. All this Time the Miniſters, whom they made in all theſe Churches, were Prophets, and Teachers, and diſtinguiſh'd from the reſt by the Gifts, which they had receiv'd at the Laying on of Hands. This was the firſt publick Call of St. Paul to his Miniſtry fourteen full Years before he wrote his ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians, (2 Cor. 12. 2.) and therefore he mentions to them the Call which he had nine Years before this at his firſt Converſion, as a more extraordinary Call than this, (Acts 9. 6. Acts 22. 14, 15, and Acts 26. 16, 17, 18, 19, 20.) See Anno CHRISTI 35, Numb. 11. and Cave's Life of St. Paul, (1 Cor. 9. 1, and 1 Cor. 15. 8.) Acts 12. 1, 2, 3.
			About this Time it is ſuppos'd, that St. Matthew wrote his Goſpel a little before the Apoſtles left Jeruſalem, to go and preach in the ſeveral Countries, to which every one was appointed.
			Soon after this it is ſuppos'd, that the Apoſtles were diſpers'd for this Purpoſe.
			Saul and Barnabas go from Antioch to Seleucia, and Cyprus, and then to Salamis, where at Paphos he converts Sergius Paulus the Deputy, and is afterward call'd Paul inſtead of Saul, Acts 13. 4 to 13.
4053	45	4758	Paul and Barnabas go from Paphos to Perga in Pamphylia. There Mark forſakes them, and returns to Jeruſalem, probably to find out Peter, who firſt made him a Chriſtian, and therefore calls him his Son, Acts 13. 13.
4053	45	4758	Mark being now with Peter at Jeruſalem, abridg'd the Goſpel of Matthew by Peter's Direction, plac'd it in a more Chronological Order, eſpecially from Chap. 8, to Chap. 15. In this Contraction he us'd many Greek Words and Phraſes, which were in the other. This is the Goſpel, which goes under the Name of St. Mark, and by Tertullian, adverſus Marcion. Lib. 4. is affirm'd to be St. Peter's.
			Paul and Barnabas go from Perga to Antioch in Piſidia, and preaching there and at Antioch, the Goſpel was publiſhed throughout the Country, Acts 13, 14, to 50.
4054	46	4759	Being driven from thence they come to Iconium, where many were converted, where they alſo abode for a conſiderable Time, but upon an intended Perſecution againſt them, they fled to Lyſtra, and thence to Derbe, where the Inhabitants would have worſhip'd them as Gods, and afterward ſton'd St. Paul, till they thought him to be dead, Acts 13. 50. to the End, and 14. 1. to 20. From thence they go to Derbe, Acts 14. 20. Timothy was now converted by St. Paul.
4055	47	4760	From Derbe they go back again to Lyſtra and Iconium, and from thence to Antioch in Piſidia, viſiting and confirming all thoſe Churches, which they had before planted, and ordaining Elders in every Church. Thro' Piſidia they went forward to Attalia, and ſo to Antioch in Syria, where they tarried for a conſiderable Time.
4056	48	4761	A Diſpute ariſeth in the Church of Antioch about the neceſſity of Circumciſion, Acts 15. 1.
4057	49	4762	Herod King of Chalcis dies, and is ſucceeded by Agrippa. Felix comes this Year to Samaria.
			The Apoſtles meet in Council at Jeruſalem, and determine, that the Gentiles were not obliged to Circumciſion and the Moſaical Law, Acts 15. 1 to 33. and ſent back Paul and Barnabas, who came to conſult them about it with their Determination, Acts 15. 1. to 33. who took Judas and Silas with them from Jeruſalem. Paul and Barnabas going thro' Phœnicia and Samaria to Jeruſalem declare

They took Titus with them on this Occaſion, (Gal. 2. 1 to 9.) who had been converted by St. Paul ſome time before, (Tit. 1. 4.) they were all kindly receiv'd by James, Peter and John, (Gal. 2. 9, 10.) After this Judas returns to Jeruſalem, and Silas tarries at Antioch, Acts 15. 33, 34, 35.
4058	50	4763	Peter comes to Antioch, where Paul had a ſharp Contention with him, but Barnabas complied with him, (Gal. 1. 11 to the End.) This begins a Miſunderſtanding between Paul and Barnabas. So that when they intended to viſit the Churches, Barnabas reſolv'd to take Mark with him in his Travels, as being a near Relation, (Col. 4. 10.) but Paul was againſt it, becauſe he had forſaken them at Perga in Pamphylia. Upon this they part-d, and Barnabas took Mark, and ſail'd to Cyprus, and Paul took Silas with him thro' Syria and Cilicia, Acts 15. 36 to the End.
			From thence Paul comes to Derbe and Lyſtra, and from thence he takes Timothy with him. So that St. Paul, who was himſelf of the firſt Order, or an Apoſtle, (Acts 14. 4, 14.) and as ſuch had been own'd the Year before by the Apoſtles at Jeruſalem, (Gal. 2. 9.) had now with him Silas, who was of the ſecond Order, or a Prophet, (Acts 15. 32.) and Timothy of the third Order, or an Evangeliſt, (2 Tim. 4. 5.) who before was a Diſciple, and went now as Paul's Deacon, (Acts 19. 22, and 1 Theſſ. 3. 2.) Acts 16. 1 to 5.
4059	51	4764	Now the Churches increaſed in Number daily, Paul and Silas and Timothy went together throughout Phrygia, Galatia and Myſia to Troas, Acts 16. 5 to 11. Here Luke joins them, for he now ſpeaks of himſelf as one of the Company (Verſe 10. 16.) From Troas Paul and his Company went over to Macedonia, and form'd a Church at Philippi, Acts 16. 11 to 16. Here Paul furniſheth Luke with Materials to write the Goſpel; and Luke ſtays at Philippi, till Paul came thither again, Anno Chriſti 58, (Compare Acts 16. 17, and 20. 5, 6.) After ſome ſtay here Paul and Silas are taken, whipt and impriſon'd, but being miraculouſly deliver'd they were let go, and went thro' Amphipolis and Apollonia to Theſſalonica, where they made many Converts, Acts 11. 16 to the End, and 17. 1 to 5.
4060	52	4765	A Tumult happening at Theſſalonica, Paul and Silas go to Beræa, and Timotheus follows them. Many are converted, but another Tumult riſing, Paul leaves Silas and Timothy there with Orders to come to him to Athens, Acts 17. 5 to 16. Hearing of ſome Diſorders among the Theſſalonians, he ſends Silas and Timothy thither to put all things right, (1 Theſſ. 3. 1 to 6.) At Athens he diſputes with the Philoſophers and converts ſeveral there. And ſo goes to Corinth, Acts 17. 16 to the End, and 18. 1.
4060	52	4765	Silas and Timothy return to Paul to Corinth, upon which Paul writes the firſt Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, in the Name of them all three, viz. Paul an Apoſtle, Silas or Silvanus a Prophet, and Timothy an Evangeliſt, (1 Theſſ. 1. 1.)
			Felix was made Procurator of Judea, which he held with Samaria and Galilee, (Acts 24. 24 to the End.)
			Claudius Ceſar now publiſheth his Edict for the Expulſion of the Jews from Rome, (Acts 18. 2.) Suetonius in Claudio. Claudius takes away Chalcis from King Agrippa, after he had enjoy'd it almoſt four Years, and in the Room of it he gives him Ituræa and Batanæa, Joſephus Jewiſh Ant. Book 20. Chap. 5, and Wars of the Jews, Book 2. Chap. 11.
			Paul finds Aquila and Priſcilla at Corinth. Silas and Timothy come thither to him, Acts 18. 2 to 7. So that now the Word of GOD is preached there by Paul and Silas and Timothy, (2 Cor. 1. 19.) Paul converts Criſpus, and ſtays at Corinth a Year and an half, (Acts 18. 7 to 12.)
4061	53	4766	Gallio being the elder Brother of Annæus Seneca is made Proconſul of Achaia.
4061	53	4766	Paul writes the ſecond Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians from Corinth, whilſt Silas and Timothy are with him in all their Names, (2 Theſſ. 1. 1.) This is the laſt Act that we hear of Silas, tho' it is probable, that he ſtay'd with Paul all the Time that he was at Corinth.
			Paul is accuſed by the Jews before Gallio, and diſmiſs'd, Acts 18. 12 to 18. Claudius the fifth Roman Emperor dies Oct. 13, and is ſucceeded by Nero.

A Continuation of the laſt TABLE.

Year of the World.	Vulgar Year of CHRIST.	Year of the Julian Period.	The Hiſtory, and Texts of Scripture.
4062	54	4767	In the Beginning of this Year, after a Year and ſix Months Stay at Corinth, Paul ſail'd from thence to Epheſus, having Priſcilla and Aquila with him; leaving them there he went to Cæſarea and ſo to the Paſſover at Jeruſalem, Acts 18. 18 to Part of 22. which this Year happen'd to be on Sunday April 11, as appears from (a) the Epitome of the Calculation.
4062	54	4767	From Jeruſalem Paul went down to Antioch in Syria. In the mean Time an Alexandrian Jew nam'd Apollos came to Epheſus, and being inſtructed by Aquila and Priſcilla he came from thence to Corinth. At this Time alſo Paul went thro' Galatia and Phrygia, encouraging the Diſciples, and whilſt Apollos was at Corinth, Paul went again to Epheſus, to encourage that Church alſo, which he ſeems to have planted the Year before, and he is therefore ſuppos'd to be the firſt Apoſtle that preach'd at Epheſus, (Rom. 15. 20, 21. 2 Cor. 10. 15, 16.) Acts 18, Part of Verſe 22, to 19. 2. The HOLY GHOST is there given by his Hands, which they knew nothing of before. And their Number, till he came, was but twelve. He begins to teach in the School of Tyrannus, Acts 19. 2 to 10. Felix now married Druſilla Siſter to King Agrippa. Joſephus Jewiſh Ant. Book 20. Chap. 5. (Acts 24. 24.) Claudius Ceſar dies, Octob. 13. being poiſon'd by his Wife Agrippina, and Nero ſucceeds him.
4063	55	4768	Whilſt Apollos was now at Corinth, Peter is ſaid to have come thither, and to have gone from thence to Rome, and form'd a Church there. (So Clemens in his Epiſtle to the Corinthians) and to have made Linus the firſt Biſhop of that Place. Others, who deny that Peter was ever at Rome, and that he only preached to the Jews, (Gal. 2. 7, 8.) ſay, that two Years after, when Paul wrote his Epiſtle to the Romans, it is probable, that there had been yet no Apoſtle with them, and they ſeem not to have been form'd into a Church at that Time, (Compare Rom. 1. 7, with 1 Cor. 1. 2. 2 Cor. 1. 1. Gal. 1. 2. Phil. 1. 1. 1 Theſſ. 1. 1. 2 Theſſ. 1. 1.) Paul in his Epiſtle to them tells them, that he had for many years greatly deſired to come to them, (Rom. 15. 4, 9, 23, 32.) And whilſt he was at Epheſus he purpoſed, after he had been at Jeruſalem to ſee Rome, (Acts 19. 21.) but he came not thither until ſix Years after. Paul continues ſtill at Epheſus, and preaches this Year and part of the next in the School of Tyrannus: So that all Aſia the leſs had CHRIST preached among them, Acts 19. 10 to 21. Felix is now confirm'd in the Government, which he had under Claudius, except four Cities, which Nero gave to King Agrippa, Joſephus Jewiſh Ant. Book 20. Chap. 5.
4064	56	4769	At this Time St. Luke is ſuppoſed to have wrote his Goſpel. There is no Doubt, but it was between the Years of CHRIST 51 and 58, being then at Philippi, from the Informations which he had from them, who had ſeen OUR SAVIOUR, (Luke 1. 2.) and from what Paul had told him of ſuch things, that he had receiv'd from CHRIST himſelf, which Paul inſiſts on 4064	56	4769	in many Places, eſpecially 1 Cor. 11.23. No doubt, this Goſpel was written before the firſt Epiſtle of Paul to the Corinthians, as it appears from (1 Cor. 15. 5.) compar'd with (Luke 24. 12, 33, 36.) This Paul delivered to them, (1 Cor. 15. 3.) And there is no Mention in Matthew or Mark of CHRIST's being ſeen after his Reſurrection firſt of Cephas, and then of the twelve; but we have it only in Luke. And therefore it is probable, that this was the Goſpel, which Paul calls My goſpel, (Rom. 2. 16, and 16. 25, and 1 Tim. 2. 8.) And what he quotes as Scripture in 1 Tim. 5. 18. it is probable was taken out of Luke 10. 7.

4065	57	4770	Paul continues now in Aſia, Acts 19. 21, 22. and perhaps at Epheſus. During his Stay there, Apollos with the other Brethren (1 Cor. 7. 1, and 16. 12, 17.) come thither with an Epiſtle to him from the Corinthians. Apollos had now left Corinth moſt probably upon the Account of the Schiſm there, (1 Cor. 1. 11.) and he might now introduce the reſt of the Chriſtians to Paul as beſt acquainted with him. Paul had before ſent his two Diſciples Timothy and Eraſtus into Macedonia to viſit them in his Abſence, (Acts 19. 22.) who probably had came with him from Corinth three Years before, and upon their Return he ſends Timothy to Corinth, (1 Cor. 4. 17.) ſo that he was not with Paul, but only Soſthenes, when he wrote this firſt Epiſtle, (1 Cor. 1. 1.) Titus and Luke might probably attend the Brethren, (1 Cor. 16. 17.) at their Return with this Epiſtle, (2 Cor. 12. 18) Apollos was not diſpoſed to go with them, (1 Cor. 16. 12.) perhaps fearing leſt his Preſence might increaſe the Schiſm, which was rais'd on his Account. At this Time alſo it is ſuppoſed, that Paul wrote his Epiſtle to the Galatians, who were corrupted with Judaiſm, or the Hereſy mention'd, (Acts 15. 1.)
4066	58	4771	At the End of the former Year, or rather at the Beginning of the next, Paul had Thoughts of Tarrying at Epheſus till Penteceſt, which happen'd on Sunday the twenty firſt Day of May (d) according to Calculation, (1 Cor. 16. 8.) but being driven away by Demetrius he went from thence to Troas, (2 Cor. 2. 12.) and ſo to Macedonia, (2 Cor. 2. 13.) Acts 19. 21 to the End, and 20. 1, 2. Still intending for Corinth, (1 Cor. 16. 6, 7.) to ſet things right in the Churches there, (1 Cor. 4. 19, 20, 21, and 11. 34.) Going over thoſe Parts where he had been formerly, he now ordains theſe Biſhops and Deacons, which he afterward mention'd, (Philip. 1. 1.) He came to Greece, and there he tarried three Months, purpoſing again for Maccedonia, (2 Cor. 1. 15. 16.) He comes to Philippi, where Luke joyns him again, and was with him till the End of the Hiſtory recorded in the Acts. For now, (Acts 20. 6.) and always after, he reckons himſelf as one of the Number. Timothy was now return'd to Paul at Philippi (Acts 20. 4.) and joins with him whilſt he was in Greece in Writing the ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians, (2 Cor. 1. 1.) after Titus had came from them, and given an Account of the good Succeſs of the firſt, (2 Cor. 7. 5, 6, 7, 13 to the End, and 12. 18. It was ſent thither by Titus, 2 Cor. 8. 6, 16, 17, 23, and Luke, whoſe Goſpel was now publiſhed, and therefore Paul ſaith of him, (2 Cor. 8. 18.) that his praiſe was in the goſpel throughout all the churches. Soon after this when Timothy was with Paul, (Rom. 16. 21.) in Greece, and he intended to go from Greece to Jeruſalem, (Rom. 15. 25.) he writes the Epiſtle to the Romans.

From Troas Paul goes on for Jeruſalem, Acts 20. 3 to 13. He goes to Aſſos, and Mitylene, and ſo to Miletus, Acts 20. 13, 14, 15. Being in great Haſte to go to Jeruſalem, he would not call at Epheſus, but ſent for the Elders of the Church to him at Miletum, where he takes a final Leave of them, Acts 20. 16 to the End. He goes to Tyre, Ptolemais and Ceſarea, and is diſſuaded from going to Jeruſalem but to no Purpoſe, Acts 21. 1 to 17. For he endeavours to be at Jeruſalem on the Day of Pentecoſt (Acts 20. 16.) which he at firſt intended to have ſpent at Epheſus, (1 Cor. 16. 8.)
			An Egyptian Magician with the Ruffians, which he had got together, was now routed by Felix on Mount Olivet. He and four thouſand more ſaved themſelves by Flying into the Wilderneſs, (Acts 21. 38.) Joſephus Jewiſh Ant. Book 20. Chap. 6.
			Paul taking ſome of his Company with him into the Temple at Jeruſalem, the Jews ſuppoſed, that Trophimus an Epheſian Gentile, (Acts 20.4.) whom they had ſeen with him in the City, was one of them. From hence began all his Troubles at Jeruſalem. From Jeruſalem he was ſent Priſoner to Ceſarea. There he was accus'd before Felix by Tertullus, and anſwer'd for himſelf. He was now a Priſoner at large, and preached CHRIST to Felix and his Wife Druſilla, Acts 21. 17 to the End, and Chap. 22, 23, 24 to Verſe 27.
4068	60	4773	Felix is now turn'd out of his Government, and bound over to anſwer ſeveral Accuſations of male Adminiſtration, which the Jews laid to his Charge, Joſephus Jewiſh Ant. Book 20. Chap. 7.
4067 or 4068	59 or 60	4772 or 4773	About this Time James the Brother of our LORD and Biſhop of Jeruſalem, is ſuppoſed to have wrote his Epiſtle to the ſcatter'd Jews, (James 1. 1.) It is ſuppoſed, (from James 5, 5 and 6.) that he foreſaw his own Martyrdom; but it is more probable, from (James 5. 7, 8, 9. compar'd with Matth. 16. 28, and Math. 24. 32, 33, 34, and the other Evangeliſts) that he might foreſee the approaching Deſtruction of Jeruſalem.
4068	60	4773	About this Time Peter is ſuppos'd to have wrote his firſt Epiſtle to the Jews, who were diſperſed in the five Countries mention'd by him, (1 Pet. 1. 1.) He wrote it from Babylon in Egypt, and Mark was with him at the ſame Time, and it was ſent by Silvanus, (1 Pet. 5. 12.) and therefore it was written after the two Epiſtles to the Theſſalonians, and after Paul had preached at Corinth, (Acts 18. 1 to 18.) for then Silvanus was with him, (1 Theſſ. 1. 1. 2 Theſſ. 1. 1. and 2 Cor. 1. 19.) and not long before the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, (1 Pet. 4. 7.)
			Portius Feſtus ſucceeds Felix in his Government of Judea, being two Years after Paul was accus'd by Tertullus, Acts 24. 27.
4068	60	4773	Feſtus hears the Accuſation of the Jews againſt Paul, and ſeem'd willing to deliver him up to them. Upon this he appeals to Ceſar. However he had another Hearing before King Agrippa, and had been ſet at Liberty, if his Appeal had not prevented it, Acts Chap. 25 and 26. Upon this Appeal he was ſent away by Sea to Rome, and in this Voyage he was caſt away upon Melita now call'd Malta, Acts Chap. 27 and 28. 1 to 11.
4069	61	4774	After three Months ſtay at Malta, he went from thence by Syracuſe, Rhegium, and Puteoli, for Rome, whither he came about February in this Year. His Impriſonment was with great Liberty from the Beginning to the End of the ſecond

Year,

A Continuation of the laſt TABLE.

4069	61	4774	Year, for he dwelt in his own hired Houſe, where he received all that came in unto him, and preached the Kingdom of GOD, or the Chriſtian Religion, with all Confidence, no Man forbidding him, Acts 28. 11 to the End.
4070	62	4775	On the ſecond Day of the Feaſt of unleavened Bread, which this Year happen'd on Tueſday the thirteenth Day of April, James the Brother of our LORD, called the juſt, and Biſhop of Jeruſalem, was martyred by Ananus the High Prieſt, who three Months after was turn'd out by King Agrippa for this Fact, for he ſeem'd now to favour the Chriſtians, Acts 26. 28, 32. At his Death the Chriſtians at Jeruſalem fled from thence to Pella, a City of Decapolis beyond Jordan, and ſo eſcaped the Deſtruction of that City, Euſebii Hiſt. Eccleſiaſt. lib. 3. cap. 11. Feſtus dies in Judea, and Abinus ſucceeds him in the Government. Paul at the End of this Year, having preached two full years in his own hired houſe, and having a Proſpect of his Liberty, writes four Epiſtles in the following Order. Firſt, To the Philippians joining Timothy with himſelf in the Title of this Epiſtle; ſo that he alſo was then at Rome. In this Epiſtle he ſaith, that his Bonds in CHRIST were made manifeſt in Ceſar's Court, and to all others, Phil. 1. 13. and that there were Saints in Ceſar's Houſhold. Secondly, To the Epheſians, and to others alſo, whom the Apoſtle had not ſeen, nor they him, Eph. 1. 15, and 3. 2. This Epiſtle ſeems to have been a circular Epiſtle, which being ſent firſt to Epheſus, was from thence to be communicated to all thoſe imperfect Aſiatick Churches. Theſe were firſt planted by Prophets and Evangeliſts, who were all very probably Paul's Diſciples, and had a great Veneration for him, tho' he had no particular Authority over them, as he had over others, upon the Account of their being converted by himſelf. Of this Epiſtle Paul ſent a Copy to Laodicea, and order'd it to be ſent from thence to the Coloſſians, Col. 4. 16. Next he writes to the Coloſſians, joining alſo Timothy with himſelf. In this Epiſtle, Col. 1. 23. he ſaith, that the Goſpel had now been preached to every creature under heaven, that is, throughout the Roman Empire. And therefore it is probable, that before this Time he had ſent ſome to preach in Spain. The Occaſion of this Epiſtle was the News of their being tainted with a Mixture of Gentile Philoſophy and Judaiſm, which ſeems to be the Occaſion of Epaphras his coming to Rome, Col. 1. 3 to 12. He was of that Country, Col. 4. 12. and having been probably converted by Paul, he had alſo converted theſe Coloſſians to the Chriſtian Religion, Col. 4. 12, 13. But his Authority not being ſufficient to caſt out thoſe Errors, he deſir'd Paul's Aſſiſtance, and therefore went to Rome to beg the Favour of this Epiſtle. After this he writes to Philemon his fellow labourer at this Time, Verſe 1. that is a Prophet, who officiated at the Church Aſſembly in his own Houſe. Philemon was a Coloſſian, Philem. Ver. 21, 22, 23. and therefore it is probable, that this Epiſtle was ſent by Epaphras and Oneſimus, or by Oneſimus ſoon after, who had been a Servant to Philemon, and ran from him to Rome, with ſome of the Goods which he had ſtolen, but attending on Paul's Preaching, was converted by him, and having been very uſeful to him, was now ſent back again with this Epiſtle to his Maſter, Philem. Verſe 10 to 21. Luke now writes The Acts of the Apoſtles. Had he wrote later, he would probably have continu'd the Hiſtory longer. So that he might ſtay in Italy, when Paul went from thence, until his Return; but having publiſhed the Book before, he would not add any more to it. Paul had now an Intention of ſending Timothy to the Philippians in a very little while, hoping himſelf alſo to go ſhortly to them, Philip. 2. 19, 23, 24.
4071	63	4776	Paul being now in Italy waited for the coming of Timothy to him, who had been a Priſoner at Rome, as well as he, but was now ſet at Liberty, Heb. 13. 22. So that at this Time he wrote the Epiſtle to the Hebrews, promiſing to come to them, and bring Timothy with him, Ibid. That Paul was the Author of this Epiſtle is plain from Heb. 13. 23. where the Writer calls Timothy his Brother, as St. Paul doth in other Places, 2 Cor. 1. 1. Col. 1. 1. Philem. Verſe 1. He that wrote it mentions his Bonds, Heb. 10. 34. as St. Paul uſed to do, Acts 20. 23, and 26. 29. Epheſ. 6. 20. Phil. 1. 7, 13, 14, 16. Col. 4. 3, 18. 2 Tim. 2. 9. Philem. Verſe 10 and 13. A farther Argument is the Agreement of the Quotation, Heb. 10. 30, with St. Paul's Quotation, Rom. 12. 19. The Manner of Arguing is 4071	63	4776	the ſame, with what we find in the other Epiſtles of St. Paul, and not like to thoſe of the other Apoſtles, and ſhews a great Skill in the Jewiſh Learning of thoſe Times, as St. Paul had, being brought up at the Feet of Gamaliel, and at one Time very zealous for the Traditions of the Elders, Acts 22.3. *Gal.*1.14. Such of theſe he alſo quotes, *Col.*2. 20,21,22. Beſides, he tells us, 2 *Theſſ.*3.17,18. That this Salutation of his is his token in every Epiſtle, The grace of our LORD JESUS CHRIST be with you all, Amen. This he alſo uſes, Rom. 16.24. 1 Cor. 16. 23. 2 Cor. 13. 14. *Gal.*6.18. Epheſ. 6. 24. *Philip.*4.23. Col. 4.18. 1 Theſſ. 5. 28. 1 *Tim.*6.21. 2 Tim. 4. 22. Tit. 3. 15. Philem. Verſe 25, and Heb. 13. 25. but it is never uſed by Peter, James, John or Jude. The only Objection is, becauſe his Name is not ſet to it, as it is to his other Epiſtles. This will as well prove, that it was wrote by no body, becauſe there is no Name annexed to it. But there are Reaſons, Why he ſhould conceal his Name in this, and not in the reſt. The reſt were wrote to thoſe of the Uncircumciſion, and to Gentiles, of whom he was the Apoſtle, Acts 22.21. Gal. 2.7, 8. 2 Tim. 4.17. And as he knew the conſtant Violence of the Jews againſt him; ſo he might have Reaſon to think, that the Setting of his Name to this Epiſtle would have effectually prevented all the good, which he intended by it.

			Soon after the Writing of this Epiſtle it is ſuppoſed by ſome, that St. Paul went from Italy, and preached the Goſpel in Spain, Rom. 15.24, 28. and the learned Biſhop Stillingfleet, in his Origines Britannicæ, takes a great deal of Pains to prove, that he went from thence and preached the Goſpel here in England.
			At the End of this Year, or the Beginning of the next, Paul and Timothy going for Judea ſail'd to Crete.
4072	64	4777	Paul having preach'd for ſome time in Crete, now probably ordain'd Titus Biſhop of the Church there, and left him there to ordain Elders in every City according to his Direction, Tit. 1. 5. It is probable, that Paul and Timothy now ſail'd from Crete to Judea, according to his Intention, Heb. 12.23. Thence he went into Aſia, and ſo Timothy went to Epheſus, and Paul to the Coloſſians, whom he had never yet ſeen, tho' he had deſign'd it, Philem. Ver. 21, 22.23. There he made ſome Stay with Apphia and Archippus, Philem. Ver. 2. the latter of which was a Teacher in that Church, Col. 4.17. Thence going on his Way to Macedonia he call'd at Epheſus, and there he left Timothy with Authority over the Teachers, 1 Tim. 1.3. having firſt excommunicated Hymenæus and Alexander, 1 Tim. 1. 20.
			At this Time Nero having ſet Rome on Fire, threw the Odium of it upon the Chriſtians, and had them all put to Death, that could be found there. Thus he became the Author of the firſt Perſecution of the Church from the Roman Emperors.
4073	65	4778	Paul went from Epheſus to Macedonia, 1 Tim. 1.3. and from thence as he deſign'd for Philippi, Phil. 1. 19, 23, 24. There he ſtay'd according to his Intention, Phil. 1.25. And he afterward winter'd at Nicopolis, not the City in Macedonia, but in Epirus.
4073	65	4778	At this Time St. Paul writes his firſt Epiſtle to Timothy, who continu'd ſtill at Epheſus. He doth not mention the Place, from whence he wrote it. However it is ſuppos'd, that it was wrote, whilſt he was in Macedonia.
			Now alſo he wrote to Titus.
4074	66	4779	From Nicopolis Paul went again to Corinth, and there he left Eraſtus, 2 Tim. 4.20. He was alſo at Troas, 2 Tim. 4, 13. and at Miletum, where he left Trophimus ſick, 2 Tim. 4. 20.
4075	67	4780	Paul ventures again to Rome, the Perſecution being over above two Years before, and Nero being alſo in Greece; but Nero left Helius to govern there, who was as great a Perſecutor as himſelf. However Paul was ſo well known at Rome, that he could not be hid. He was therefore taken, and kept a cloſe Priſoner, not as formerly, Acts 28. inſomuch that Oneſiphorus could not find him out but with great Difficulty, 2 Tim. 1.17. Helius having a full Power given him by Nero to act in all Matters, as he pleaſed, even without Conſulting him, calls Paul to a Trial before him for his Life, and not as formerly for his Religion. None of his Friends dared to appear for, or with him; but all forſook

4075	67	4780	ſook him, 2 Tim. 4. 16. However GOD deliver'd him out of the mouth of Helius this devouring Lion, 2 Tim. 4. 16. After this firſt Apology at Rome before Helius, Paul wrote the ſecond Epiſtle to Timothy, being now in Bonds, 2 Tim. 1. 8, and 2. 9. and in near Expectation of his Death, 2 Tim. 4. 6. He deſir'd Timothy to be with him without Fail before Winter, and to bring Mark with him, who was now at Epheſus, 2 Tim. 4. 9, 11, 21. Luke the Evangeliſt was with him at this Time, and this is the laſt Time that we hear of him.
4075	67	4780	Peter being now at Babylon in Egypt, writes his ſecond Epiſtle a little before his Martyrdom.
4076	68	4781	Nero returns in January out of Greece into Italy. In April he came to Rome. June 9. he kills himſelf. Galba the ſeventh Roman Emperor ſucceeds him, and reigns ſeven Months and ſeven Days. St. Paul is martyr'd at Rome under the Governors in Nero's Abſence on the 23d Day of February. St. Peter is now ſaid by the Weſtern Church to have ſuffer'd with St. Paul at Rome. But there are others, who think that he died in the Eaſt; and ſome ſay, that he never was at Rome in all his Life Time.
4077	69	4782	Jan. 10. Vitellius adopts Piſo, and makes him Ceſar. Jan. 15. Galba and Piſo are both kill'd by Otho the eighth Roman Emperor, who reign'd three Months and two Days. April 16. Otho kill'd himſelf, and was ſucceeded by Vitellius the ninth Roman Emperor, who reign'd eight Months and five Days. Againſt him came the Eaſtern Armies ſet up by Veſpaſian. Vitellius dies Dec. 20, and Flavius Veſpaſian the tenth Roman Emperor ſucceeds him. Here it may be obſerved, that the firſt Propheſy of St. John in the Revelations, Chap. 6. 1, 2. mentioning the Conqueſt of CHRIST in the Succeſs of the Goſpel throughout the Roman Empire, and the Deſtruction of his Enemies, ſeems to point at this Veſpaſian as the Inſtrument in the Eaſt for this Purpoſe. The Scene, upon which theſe Viſions appear'd, was the Encampment of the Iſraelites in the Wilderneſs. The Tribe of Judah pitch'd upon the Eaſt, Num. 2. 3. whoſe Enſign was a Lion. Thus the Face of the Cherub in Ezekiel toward the Eaſt, Chap. 1. 4, 6, 10, and 10. 14. was the Face of a Lion, and this Animal from the Eaſt, exhorts St. John to come thither and behold it. Here CHRIST began his Kingdom, and here Veſpaſian his Inſtrument went forth conquering and to conquer, until his Enemies in thoſe Parts were totally ſubdued. Mede, Page 437, and Page 442. and Whiſton on the Revelations, Page 35, and 135. Not long after the Death of Peter and Paul, whilſt the Temple was yet ſtanding at Jeruſalem, Clemens Romanus wrote his Epiſtle to the Corinthians. He was an Acquaintance of Paul, Phil. 4. 3. and his Companion, and about this Time he ſucceeded Anacletus as Biſhop of Rome.
4078	70	4783	Clemens being Biſhop of Rome, Hermas (who was an Acquaintance of Paul, Rom. 16. 14.) is ſuppoſed to have written his Paſtor. Others think, that it was not written till the ſecond Century. Jeruſalem and the Temple are now deſtroyed by the Romans, as our SAVIOUR had foretold, Matth. Chap. 24. Mark Chap. 13, and Luke Chap. 12, 17, and 21.
4079	71	4784	Barnabas is ſuppoſed by ſome to have wrote his Epiſtle about this Time, tho' there is greater Reaſon to look upon it as a ſpurious Piece. Jude did now more probably write his Epiſtle. It ſeems to be deſign'd againſt the Ebionites, who now broke out in the Country round about Pella. It is very plain, that Jude wrote after Peter's Death, at leaſt after he had wrote his ſecond Epiſtle, ſince Verſe 3 to 17. he ſpeaks of that as actually fulfill'd, which 2 Pet. 1. 1. to 20. was only foretold. And if this Epiſtle had been written later than this Year, it is highly probable, that this Apoſtle in his Inſcription would have made mention of his Couſin Simon the Son of Cleophas, who was living and made Biſhop of Jeruſalem in the next Year, as he made mention of his Brother James the former Biſhop, who in ſuch a Caſe muſt have been dead, when he wrote it.
4080	72	4785	The Apoſtles, who were now alive, met at Jeruſalem, and in Council choſe Simeon the Son of Cleophas (mention'd in John 19. 25.) to fill up the See yet vacant. Euſeb. Eccleſ. Hiſt. lib. 3. cap. 11.

Year of the World.	Vulgar Year of CHRIST.	Year of the Julian Period.	The Hiſtory, and Texts of Scripture.
4087	79	4792	Flavius Veſpaſian dies, Jan. 24, and is ſucceeded by Titus Veſpaſian the eleventh Roman Emperor.
4088	80	4793	Cerinthus about this Time vents his Hereſy.
4089	81	4794	Titus Veſpaſian dies, Sep. 13, and Domitian the twelfth Roman Emperor, and laſt of the Cæſars ſucceeds him.
4091	83	4796	Euariſtus ſucceeded Clemens in the See of Rome.
4099	91	4804	Alexander ſucceeded him, and was Biſhop till the Year of CHRIST 101. This Year, or in the next, it is probable, that St. John did write his firſt Epiſtle, and ſoon after his ſecond and third.
4103	95	4808	This Year St. John was baniſh'd into the Iſle of Patmos, Rev. 1. 9.
4104	96	4809	This Year St. John ſaw his Revelations in the Iſle of Patmos, Rev. 1. 9, 10. and wrote them at the ſame Time. Domitian the twelfth Roman Emperor dies on the eighteenth Day of September, and Cocceius Nerva ſucceeds him. St. John return'd from the Iſle of Patmos to Epheſus, aud from thence he went to exhort the neighbouring Parts of the Gentiles. In ſome Places he ordain'd Biſhops, in others he form'd whole Churches, and in all of them he ordain'd ſuch Perſons, as were ſignified to him by the HOLY GHOST, to be fit for the Miniſtry.
4106	98	4811	After the Return of St. John to Epheſus, he did now at the Requeſt of the Biſhops of Aſia write his Goſpel, particularly againſt the Cerinthians and Nicolaitans. Nerva dies on the twenty ſixth Day of January, and Trajan is made Emperor of Rome. The ſecond Seal or Propheſy of St. John in the Revelations Chap. 6. 3, 4. points to him, and his Succeſſor Adrian. He is repreſented by the ſecond Animal, or an Ox on the left Side, or toward the Weſt, which was the Standard of the Tribe of Ephraim on the ſame Side, Num. 2. 18. Thus Trajan was born in the utmoſt Parts of the Weſt, even in Spain, and was the firſt Roman Emperor, who was not an Italian. The Propheſy now was, that Peace ſhould be taken away from the earth. And the many Wars and Slaughters during the Reign of thoſe two Emperors ſufficiently confirm the Truth of it, Mede, Page 442. Whiſton, Page 137.
4108	100	4813	St. John dies, in the third Year of Trajan the Emperor.

An

An Appendix to the laſt TABLE, concerning the laſt of Daniel's ſeventy Weeks, Dan. 9. 24, 27, or the ſingle Week, or a Week by itſelf, as the Word ſometimes ſignifies, Joſh. 22. 20. 2 Sam. 7. 23. 2 Chron. 18. 7. taken out of Marſhall's Chronology, TABLE 4, publiſh'd by the Direction of the learned Dr. Lloyd, late Biſhop of Worceſter.

It is very obſervable, That whereas the Prophet Daniel all along in his Prayer had call'd Jeruſalem and the Jewiſh Nation GOD's City and People, as if they were ſo by an indefeaſible Right, the Angel in his Anſwer to Daniel would by no means allow of that. But on the contrary he calls them Daniel's People, and not GOD's. He tells them in the Beginning of this Prophecy, Dan. 9. 24. Seventy weeks are determined for THY People, and for THY holy city. And ſo again, Chap. 10. 14, and Chap. 12. 1. The Reaſon of this is plain in the twenty ſixth Verſe: There the Angel foretelling what ſhould follow after the Death of the MESSIAH the Prince, which was to be after 69 of the 70 Weeks, he ſhews, that after the End of the Weeks they ſhould be NOT אין לו HIS, which Words are explain'd by thoſe that follow עם נגיד הבא The Prince's future People; ſhewing that thoſe that were to come in their ſtead, the MESSIAH's, or The Prince's future People, were they that ſhould deſtroy the city and the ſanctuary; by which Expreſſion he plainly means the Romans.

The Calling of this future People, as far as the Hiſtory is given us, we have in the Acts of the Apoſtles. Therein it appears, how according to Our SAVIOUR's Propheſy, Matth. 24. 14. The goſpel was publiſhed in all the Roman world; and that even in the Apoſtles Time. After that it is ſaid in our SAVIOUR's Propheſy, that then the end ſhall come; meaning the End which was foretold by Daniel the Prophet, as it follows in the fifteenth Verſe; when according to his Words, The abomination of deſolation ſhould ſtand in the holy place. That was to be the laſt of the ſeventy Weeks, being the שבוע אחר, That ſingle Week ſpoken of in the laſt Verſe of this Propheſy. Here it is to be ſhew'd, from what Year, Month and Day we are to date the Beginning of that Week. The End of it is known to have been at the Setting up of the Roman Idols on the Battlements of the Temple; which (as will be preſently ſhewn) was on the tenth Day of Auguſt, in the Vulgar Year of CHRIST 70. From thence it is not hard to climb up to the Beginning of the Week, there being in every one of theſe Weeks 7 Times 360, or 2520 Days. But it is eaſier to aſcend by five Days in every ordinary Year of the Julian Calendar, and ſix Days in every Biſſextile, as it will appear here below. By theſe Steps, going up from Anno Domini 70, Auguſt 10, every Year 360 Days for 7 Years together, we ſhall come up to the ſixteenth Day of September, in the Vulgar Year of CHRIST 63. Therefore that Day is ſet down in this Table for the certain Time of the Beginning of Daniel's שבוע אחר the ſingle Week, as we render it; within the Compaſs of which Week all thoſe things happen'd, which are contain'd in the laſt Verſe of this Propheſy.

Years of the ſingle Week.	Year of the Vulgar Æra of CHRIST.
I	63	Sept. 16. Now began the ſingle Week appointed by GOD for the Deſtroying of the City and Temple at Jeruſalem, and therein for the Diſſolving of the Jewiſh Church. In this ſingle Week the MESSIAH's future People, or the Romans, were to make a firm Covenant with many. Accordingly they did ſo in this Year, and as near as can be judg'd at this very Time of the Year, their General Corbulo now making Peace with the Kings of the Parthians, Medes and Armenians, Taciti Annalium lib. 15. Sect. 30, & 31. Dion lib. 62. adds alſo with the King of the Adiabeni.
II	64	Sept. 10. Now began the ſecond Year of the Single Week. Of which Tacitus ſaith, Annal. lib. 15. Sect. 46. that there was never ſo firm a Peace as now. His Words are theſe, Haud alias tam immota pax. He had great Reaſon to ſay this; for tho' this Peace was made when he was very young, yet when he wrote this, which was about forty Years after, he ſaw, that in all that Time the Romans had never open War with any of thoſe Kings, or their Succeſſors.
III	65	Sept. 5. Now began the third Year of the ſingle Week, in which according to the Conditions of that Peace Tiridates King of Armenia and his Queen took a nine Months Journey to Rome; where he laid down his Crown at Nero's Feet, and received it again at his Hands, Taciti Annalium lib. 16. Sect. 23, et 24. Dion lib. 63. All the other Kings ſent their Sons as Hoſtages to Rome with him, Dion lib. 63.
IV	66	Auguſt 31. Now began the Fourth Year of the ſingle Week. In the Month of October this Year, being the Thirteenth Year of Nero's Reign, Janus his Temple was ſhut up in Token of a general Peace.

An Appendix to the last TABLE.

Years of the ſingle Week.	Year of the Vulgar Æra of CHRIST.
IV	66	Now on Febr. 28. began the latter Half of the Single Week, in the End of which the Jewiſh Sacrifices and Oblations were to ceaſe, Dan. 9. 27. and after that was to follow the Burning of the Temple, and the Setting up of the Roman Idols upon the Battlements there, according to Daniel's Propheſy, Ibid. It was now about March that Veſpaſian enter'd into a War with the Jews, being ſent by Nero for that Purpoſe. It was between Winter and Spring according to Joſephus, Wars of the Jews, Book 7.
V	67	Auguſt 26. Now began the Fifth Year of the Single Week, in which Veſpaſian went on with the War, and ſubdued all Galilee, Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 4. Chap. 4.
VI	68	Auguſt 20. Now began the Sixth Year of the Single Week, in which the Change in the Empire caus'd a Slackning of the War with the Jews, Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 5. Chap. 6. And yet in this Year Veſpaſian reduc'd all the reſt of Paleſtina except Jeruſalem, and three or four ſtrong Holds in Peræa, Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 5. Chap. 8.
VII	69	Auguſt 15. Now began the Seventh Year of the Single Week, or the laſt of the Years in Daniel's ſeventy Weeks, in which Veſpaſian purſuing his Hopes of the Empire, left the War in Paleſtina to his Son Titus, who proſecuted it vigorouſly. Joſephus, Wars of the Jews, Book 5. Chap. 14.
VIII	70	A little before the Paſſover, which in this Year was April 13. Titus began the Siege of Jeruſalem, Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 6. Chap. 11. Into which he ſhut up an innumerable Multitude of People, that were come thither to the Feaſt. There were reckon'd 110000 of them to have died in the Siege, and in the Taking of the Temple and the City, and 97000 taken Captives. The ſeventeenth Day of July following, the Daily ſacrifice ceaſed according to Dan. 9. 27. Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 7. Chap. 4. and thereby an End was put to the Worſhip of GOD in his Temple. The tenth Day of Auguſt following, the Temple was ſet on Fire, Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 7. Chap, 9. and whilſt it was burning, the Roman Soldiers ſet upon the Battlements of the outer Wall their Idols, or the Standards of their Legions, every Standard having on it the Image of the tutelar God of that Legion: And after this they ſacrific'd to them according to their idolatrous Manner. Joſephus, ibid. The latter of theſe Events was certainly the End of the Half Week, and ſo of the Whole. For it was not only Unconſecrating and Deſtroying the Temple of GOD, and the Alienating of the Place from him to the Devil; but therewith it was the utter Diſſolving of the Jewiſh Church. Soon after that, the Lower City was burnt, Joſephus Wars of the Jews, Book 7. Chap. 14. On the eighth Day of September following, the Upper City was taken, Joſephus ibid. Chap. 16. Then all was thrown down to the Ground, except a Part of the Wall, and two or three Towers, and the Plough was drawn over the Ground, on which the City and Temple had ſtood, to ſhew, that the Romans meant this to be a final Deſtruction, and ſuch as had been foretold in this Propheſy; and to ſhew alſo more particularly, that there was not one Stone left upon another, according to our SAVIOUR's Propheſies of the City, Luke 19. 41 to 45, and of the Temple, Matth. 24. 1, 2. Mark 13. 1, 2, and Luke 21. 5, 6.

CHAP. I.

AS the Men in the Old World generally lived above 900 Years which is ten Times as long as oldeſt People in this Age; ſo it may be ſuppoſed, that their Stature might be ten Times as high, as thoſe in theſe Days, or at leaſt much bigger in Proportion; and the Bones of Men of a prodigious Size, which have been formerly reported to have been digg'd up in ſeveral Places of the World, ſeem to favour ſuch a Conjecture. It is ſaid, (a) that there were giants in the earth in thoſe days; but as their Stature was extraordinary, ſo there is no way to compute it. The common Size may be better gueſs'd at from the Dimenſions of the Ark, which Noah built, (b) the length whereof was five hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits. It is plain, that this was a Meaſure in the Old World, and the Word itſelf intimates, that the Length thereof was the common Meaſure from the Elbow to the End of the Middle Finger, from whence it took its Name in all Languages, and more particularly thoſe of the Eaſt. Ham the Son of Noah, who was preſerv'd in the Ark, was well acquainted with this Meaſure; and no Doubt, but it was agreeable to his own Stature, and to the Ark itſelf when it reſted upon the Mountains of Ararat. There is no Doubt, but that Ham, when he came into Egypt with Mizraim his Son, brought with him the antient Meaſures, having a Neceſſity to make Uſe of ſome, that every one might be reſtor'd to his own Lands after the Overflowings of the Nile, and neither having Time nor the leaſt Neceſſity of Making any Alterations. Civil (c) Government cannot be ſuppos'd to be without determinate Meaſures and Weights; nor is there any Reaſon to believe, that Ham or Mizraim in the Life-Time of Noah could be unacquainted with thoſe which he uſed, or could ſee any Cauſe to alter them in his Life-Time, becauſe the Meaſures would in ſuch a Caſe be made diſproportionable to his own Stature. Egypt is ſuppoſed to have been inhabited 190 Years before the Death of Noah, and the Inhabitants had, no Doubt, frequent Commerce with him and his Deſcendants dwelling in other Lands; and ſuch a Commerce would be facilitated by Keeping up the ſame Meaſures; but it muſt be made more troubleſome, if not totally be broken off by the Change of them. Had the Cubit been different, it would have been in vain for Moſes to have deſcribed his Meaſures by a Word, the Senſe whereof was unknown, or if he had ſpoken of the Meaſures in the Country different from thoſe, they would not upon Reduction, have fallen into ſuch round even Numbers, as he hath deſcribed them. Now our learned Countryman Mr. Greaves travelling into Egypt, meaſuring the Pyramids by our Engliſh Foot, and comparing it with the Number of Cubits mentioned by the antient Writers, found, that the Egyptian Cubit was 21.888 Inches. Now it is obſerv'd, that in the moſt comely ſhap'd human Bodies the Length from the Elbow to the End of the Middle Finger, being four Times repeated, gives us the Talnels or Stature of a Man. Thus in later Times when the common Height was ſix Feet, the Cubit was reduced to 18 Inches; and therefore the Cubit at that Time being 21.888 Inches, when multiplied by four, ſhews their Stature to have been 87.552 Inches, or ſeven Feet, three Inches and an half. So that the Difference of their Stature bears no Proportion with the Difference of their Longevity at that Time.

CHAP. II.

An Abſtract of the Hiſtory of the World immediately after the Flood, and the Founding of the Aſſyrian Monarchy by Nimrod.

WHen the Ark was built by Noah at a Place call'd (a) Cyparisſon, ſo call'd becauſe it was famous for the great Quantity of (b) Cypreſs, or Gopher Wood, which grew there, the Inundations of the Perſian and Mediterranean Seas join'd with a wet South-weſt Wind drove it to the North-eaſt as far as the Caſpian Sea, and when the Rain ceaſed, the North Wind brought it in a direct South Courſe to one of thoſe Mountains, which were call'd (c) the Mountains of Ararat, which lay (d) directly Eaſt from Babylon, and not at ſo great a Diſtance as is uſually ſuppoſed. Thus the Providence of GOD brought him ſo near to his native Country, that he might be capable of Gueſſing where he was, or at leaſt have a Notion of the Rivers in the adjacent Parts, with which he might be better acquainted, as ſending by them into all Parts for Timber to build the Ark. Noah being old did not travel far from the Place, where he landed, but (e) applies himſelf to Husbandry, leaving his Sons, who were (f) five hundred Years younger than himſelf, to travel into diſtant Countries. At (g) the Birth of Peleg, which was in the 101ſt Year after the Flood, when the Poſterity of Noah began to be numerous, he orders his Sons to diſperſe themſelves regularly into more diſtant Habitations. He gives the Right of Primogeniture to Shem for the Sake of his Piety, and allots his Poſterity to be near to himſelf, and to inhabit all the Parts of Aſia, which lay to the north and eaſt of the River Tigris as far as the Perſian Sea. He allots to Japhet all the fruitful Country between Tigris and Euphrates; and he allots to Ham all the Country lying ſouth of Euphrates, and which generally ſpeaking was more full of Deſarts, and more barren than the reſt. So that Shem lay open to people the greateſt Part of Aſia. Ham had a free Paſſage into Africa, and the Poſterity of Japhet could more eaſily in Proceſs of Time remove themſelves into Europe. Accordingly the Sons of Shem ſoon take to thoſe Countries, which were allotted for them. Arphaxad is allowed by all, being the eldeſt Son, to ſettle himſelf in the fruitful Country on the eaſt both of Tigris and Babylon, which is ſuppoſed to have been the antient Seat of Paradiſe. Lud inhabited the Country of Lydia. Elam went Southward into that Part of Perſia call'd by his Name and ſince Elymais, the Inhabitants whereof were call'd Elamites. Aſshur went higher up the Tigris, and ſeated himſelf in that Country, which was afterward called Aſſyria, of which Nineveh was afterward the Metropolis. And Aram goes farther Weſtward, and ſeats himſelf beyond his Brother Aſshur, on the North Side of the Tigris. Ham and Japhet and their Poſterity going to take Poſſeſſion of the Countries allotted to them, came as far as Babylon, and there they reſolve to tarry, and to prevent their Diſperſion they build that famous Tower; but being providentially diſperſed from thence, they betake themſelves to the Places allotted for them. The Sons of Japhet are ſituated between the Tigris and Euphrates. The four Sons of Ham place themſelves thus. Canaan takes to the Land of Canaan. Mizraim takes to Egypt, called in Hebrew The Land of Mizraim. Phut goes farther into Africa. And Cuſh ſeats himſelf in Arabia upon the Banks of the Red Sea. This Country being very barren, Cuſh makes an Invaſion into the Country belonging to Elam the Son of Shem, or Perſia, on the other Side of the Perſian Gulph, and having conquered it he dwells there, and calls it Chuzeſtan, which in the Perſian Language ſignifies, The Province of Cuſh. Here he builds (h) Erec, and Accad, on the Banks of the Tigris, and his Son, whom the Scripture calls (i) Nimrod or the Rebel, ſeizes upon Babylon, and ſo lays the Foundation of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, ſo call'd from the Country which he afterward conquered, and where he afterward dwelt. As he was the Son of Cuſh the firſt Invader of Countries, and imitated his Father's Temper, ſo the Eaſtern Inhabitants called him נין Nin, which in Hebrew ſignifies A Son; and hence the Greeks called him Νινος, and the Latins Ninus. After this he ſeizes on (*) the City of Calneh, which lay higher up on the Tigris, in the Country belonging to Arphaxad, another Son of Shem. Upon this Peleg, the great Grandſon of Arphaxad, flees from thence into Meſopotamia or the Country of Japhet, and there he with his Relations builds a City, which the Greeks called Pholga. When he had ſecured theſe Conqueſts, he makes farther Invaſions, and (k) marches out of that Land, into the Country of Aſſur, another Son of Shem, who was ſituated on the Tigris as before mentioned, and from whom the Country was afterward called Aſſyria. The Inhabitants flee from him over the Tigris, and drive out the Poſterity of Japhet; ſo that this Part of the Country was afterward alſo called Aſſyria, as being now inhabited by the Sons of Aſſur. Upon this Nimrod (l) builds ſeveral Cities in the Country, which he thus conquered, particularly Nineveh, where he dwelt, and therefore the Name in Hebrew ſignifies, The Habitation of Nin, Ninus or Nimrod. After this he invades the Country of Aram, which lay farther up on the Tigris. Theſe Inhabitants alſo flee over the Tigris into the Country of Japhet, and inhabit thoſe Parts, which were called Meſopotamia, in Hebrew Aram-naharaim, or Aram between the Rivers; Padan Aram or the Field or Village of Aram; Aram Dammeſek, or The Syrians of Damaſcus; Aram Zobah; and Aram beth Rehob, or The Syrians of the Houſe of Rehob; and Aram Maacah. This Preſſure upon the Poſterity of Japhet, and the Apprehenſions of future Invaſions was the Cauſe of their Removal out of the Country, which lying open to them on the weſt Side, ſo that they went forward into Aſia the leſs, whilſt the Heads of their Families were alive, who after the Flood (m) lived near five hundred Years; and then they called their Towns and Countries after their Names, as the (n) Scriptures tell us, and as it is abundantly proved by many (o) learned Authors.

2. This Account of the Riſe of the Aſſyrian Monarchy is agreeable to the Chronological Tables ſet forth by Mr. Marſhal by the Direction of the late learned Biſhop of Worceſter, who places the Beginning thereof in the 289th, and the Death of Nimrod in the the 341ſt Year after the Flood. It is alſo agreeable to what the learned Dr. Prideaux ſaith in the very firſt Words of his admirable Hiſtory, viz. That the antient Empire of the Aſſyrians had governed Aſia for above thirteen hundred Years before the Death of Sardanapalus. It alſo explains the Account, which is given us by Moſes in (p) the tenth Chapter of Geneſis, and in other Places, where the Scripture expreſly calls (q) the land of Aſſyria, by the Name of The land of Nimrod. And (r) in another Place, the Prophet ſpeaking of the Overthrow of Tyre, and how the Inhabitants thereof ſhould paſs over to Greece, gives a parallel Caſe: Behold the antient land of the Chaldeans, or thoſe who inhabit near Babylon; this preſent people was not, did not inhabit there, till the Aſſyrian Nimrod, who afterward dwelt in Nineveh the chief City of Aſſyria, formed it for them that dwelt in the wilderneſs, for the Poſterity of Cuſh his Father, who dwelt in the Deſerts of Arabia, near the Red-Sea; they, the Chaldeans, ſet up the towers thereof, they ſet up the palaces thereof, and he, Nimrod, brought it to ruin, or deſtroy'd them, and ſet up the Aſſyrian Monarchy in their ſtead. Anno ante CHRISTUM 747.

3. It muſt be own'd, that (s) Herodotus tells us, that the Aſſyrian Monarchy laſted but five hundred and twenty Years to the Death of Sardanapalus, from which Authority (t) our learned Prelate dates the Beginning thereof, about the Time that Deborah the Propheteſs judged Iſrael, and he quotes ſome (u) other Authors for the ſame Purpoſe. From ſo great an Authority others alſo have been ſince of the ſame Opinion. But if the Teſtimony of Herodotus is invalid, all thoſe which are built upon it, will fall of Courſe. And that this is the Caſe, will (as I hope) appear from the following Reaſons.

Firſt, As the Scripture ſeems to date it from Nimrod the Grandſon of Ham; ſo if any human Writer ſeems to claſh with this, we muſt certainly give the Preference to the ſacred Penmen, and not to any other.

Secondly, If the Account of Herodotus is true, it is impoſſible to give any Reaſon, why the chief City upon the Tigris ſhould be call'd Nineveh, or The Habitation of Ninus by Moſes himſelf, ſo long before Ninus was born, or at leaſt was famous. And there can no Reaſon be given, why the Poſterity of Japhet ſhould come ſo ſoon into Aſia the leſs, even whilſt his Sons were alive to head them, and call the Lands after their own Names.

Thirdly, The Manner, by which Herodotus came by his Knowledge of the Aſſyrian Hiſtory, is not ſo very ſatisfactory, viz. by Travelling in the Country, and Converſing with the Inhabitants, who might be miſtaken themſelves, and ſo more eaſily lead him into an Error.

Fourthly, In thoſe Times they uſually reckon'd three Generations to contain an hundred Years. Now Herodotus might have been told, that there were ſix and thirty Generations or Kings in that Empire, which he might mark in Numbers thus λϛ, and this upper Stroke not being legible, he might afterward miſtake it for ις, which in Greek ſignifies ſixteen, and after this, when he came to compile his Hiſtory, he might eaſily, inſtead of ſixteen Generations, place the round Sum of five hundred and twenty Years.

Laſtly, This Suppoſition is more natural, becauſe Cteſias hath given us a Catalogue of the Aſſyrian Kings from Ninus to Sardanapalus, making ſeven and thirty in all, or ſix and thirty, excluding either the firſt or the laſt, in which he inſerted how long each of them reigned. Cteſias was Phyſician to Artaxerxes Mnemon Emperor of Perſia; and therefore he could have free Acceſs both to the Aſſyrian and Perſian Records. He tells us, that he took this Catalogue (x) out of thoſe Records, which might have been ſearch'd by others as well as by him; and any Miſtake might eaſily have been found out to his Diſcredit. Some of (y) the Greeks ſpeak of him as a fabulous Writer; however he was never contradicted, as to the Names of the Kings, or the Time of their Reigns. The Reaſon, why he was ſlighted by them, was, becauſe he contradicts Herodotus, and in ſome things differs from Xenophon; tho' after all he might write the Truth concerning the Country in which he lived, and they might be in the wrong, concerning a Country ſo far diſtant from them, whoſe Language they did not underſtand. However, Diodorus Siculus, and Trogus Pompeius (who is contracted by Juſtin) take from him the moſt, which they have written of the Aſſyrian Affairs, and this ſhews him after all to be no contemptible Author. So that where two Heathen Authors differ in their Hiſtory, we may well give the Preference to him, who is moſt agreeable to the ſacred Scriptures.

4. It hath been objected againſt the Antiquity of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, that we hear nothing of it from the Time of Nimrod till near its Fall at the Death of Sardanapalus. But the Reaſon is, the Want of Hiſtorians. Sanchoniatho's Hiſtory is but very ſhort. And (z) Herodotus (who is the moſt antient Hiſtorian next to him) was born 264 Years after the Fall of this Empire, and therefore it is no wonder, if he ſaith but little of it, or indeed of any thing elſe of ſo great an Antiquity. But Secondly, After this Empire was eſtabliſh'd by Nimrod, who conquer'd a vaſt Part of the Country, his Succeſſors (as Diodorus Siculus tells us) gave themſelves up wholly to Eaſe and Luxury, and even ſome Countries revolted from them, and ſet up Kings of their own without Oppoſition. So that we hear nothing of them, becauſe they did nothing remarkable. However, a Lion is a Lion, when it is aſleep, and an Empire is an Empire, when it doth nothing; and this Account is moſt agreeable to what (a) the Prophet Daniel mentions, who, deſcribing the four Monarchies under the Repreſentation of four Beaſts, ſaith, That the firſt, the Aſſyrian Monarchy, was like a Lion, ſwift and furious in his Conqueſts, and had eagles wings, to make him more ſwift. I (ſaith Daniel) beheld until the wings thereof were pluckt, ſo that it conquer'd no farther, and even loſt ſome of its extreme Dominions. And tho it was lifted up from the earth in Pride, as being an Empire, whoſe Metropolis was the moſt antient and famous City in the World; yet it was made to ſtand upon the feet as a man, like the reſt of the neighbouring Kingdoms, without Hunting after farther Conqueſts, and a man's heart was given unto it. It was now like the reſt of the Kingdoms, and not like a Lion, as it was at firſt. So that even the Silence of other Writers concerning this Monarchy confirms the Account, which we have thereof in the ſacred Scriptures.

Thirdly, The Manner, by which Herodotus came by his Knowledge of the Aſſyrian Hiſtory, is not ſo very ſatisfactory, viz. by Travelling in the Country, and Converſing with the Inhabitants, who might be miſtaken themſelves, and ſo more eaſily lead him into an Error.

Fourthly, In thoſe Times they uſually reckon'd three Generations to contain an hundred Years. Now Herodotus might have been told, that there were ſix and thirty Generations or Kings in that Empire, which he might mark in Numbers thus ϛ, and this upper Stroke not being legible, he might afterward miſtake it for ις, which in Greek ſignifies ſixteen, and after this, when he came to compile his Hiſtory, he might eaſily, inſtead of ſixteen Generations, place the round Sum of five hundred and twenty Years.

Laſtly, This Suppoſition is more natural, becauſe Cteſias hath given us a Catalogue of the Aſſyrian Kings from Ninus to Sardanapalus, making ſeven and thirty in all, or ſix and thirty, excluding either the firſt or the laſt, in which he inſerted how long each of them reigned. Cteſias was Phyſician to Artaxerxes Mnemon Emperor of Perſia; and therefore he could have free Acceſs both to the Aſſyrian and Perſian Records. He tells us, that he took this Catalogue (x) out of thoſe Records, which might have been ſearch'd by others as well as by him; and any Miſtake might eaſily have been found out to his Diſcredit. Some of (y) the Greeks ſpeak of him as a fabulous Writer; however he was never contradicted, as to the Names of the Kings, or the Time of their Reigns. The Reaſon, why he was ſlighted by them, was, becauſe he contradicts Herodotus, and in ſome things differs from Xenophon; tho' after all he might write the Truth concerning the Country in which he lived, and they might be in the wrong, concerning a Country ſo far diſtant from them, whoſe Language they did not underſtand. However, Diodorus Siculus, and Trogus Pompeius (who is contracted by Juſtin) take from him the moſt, which they have written of the Aſſyrian Affairs, and this ſhews him after all to be no contemptible Author. So that where two Heathen Authors differ in their Hiſtory, we may well give the Preference to him, who is moſt agreeable to the ſacred Scriptures.

4. It hath been objected againſt the Antiquity of the Aſſyrian Monarchy, that we hear nothing of it from the Time of Nimrod till near its Fall at the Death of Sardanapalus. But the Reaſon is, the Want of Hiſtorians. Sanchoniatho's Hiſtory is but very ſhort. And (z) Herodotus (who is the moſt antient Hiſtorian next to him) was born 264 Years after the Fall of this Empire, and therefore it is no wonder, if he ſaith but little of it, or indeed of any thing elſe of ſo great an Antiquity. But Secondly, After this Empire was eſtabliſh'd by Nimrod, who conquer'd a vaſt Part of the Country, his Succeſſors (as Diodorus Siculus tells us) gave themſelves up wholly to Eaſe and Luxury, and even ſome Countries revolted from them, and ſet up Kings of their own without Oppoſition. So that we hear nothing of them, becauſe they did nothing remarkable. However, a Lion is a Lion, when it is aſleep, and an Empire is an Empire, when it doth nothing; and this Account is moſt agreeable to what (a) the Prophet Daniel mentions, who, deſcribing the four Monarchies under the Repreſentation of four Beaſts, ſaith, That the firſt, the Aſſyrian Monarchy, was like a Lion, ſwift and furious in his Conqueſts, and had eagles wings, to make him more ſwift. I (ſaith Daniel) beheld until the wings thereof were pluckt, ſo that it conquer'd no farther, and even loſt ſome of its extreme Dominions. And tho it was lifted up from the earth in Pride, as being an Empire, whoſe Metropolis was the moſt antient and famous City in the World; yet it was made to ſtand upon the feet as a man, like the reſt of the neighbouring Kingdoms, without Hunting after farther Conqueſts, and a man's heart was given unto it. It was now like the reſt of the Kingdoms, and not like a Lion, as it was at firſt. So that even the Silence of other Writers concerning this Monarchy confirms the Account, which we have thereof in the ſacred Scriptures.
